ETYMLOGICAL AND PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY
OF
DIFFICULT WORDS.
Demy 8vo., Illustrated. Price 5s.

WARD & LOCK'S
STANDARD ETYMOLOGICAL DICTIONARY
OF THE
ENGLISH LANGUAGE,
With an Appendix and 500 Illustrations.

LONDON: WARD, LOCK & Co., Salisbury Square, E.C.
ETYMOLOLOGICAL AND PRONOUNCING
DICTIONARY
OF DIFFICULT WORDS.

BY THE REV.
E. COBHAM BREWER, LL.D.

(Of Trinity Hall, Cambridge).

AUTHOR OF
"Guide to Science" (300,000th);
"History of France" (brought down to the present year):
"Dictionary of Phrase and Fable" (3rd edition):
'Les Phénomènes de Tous les Jours" (dedicated by authority to Napoleon II.; and sanctioned by Mgr. SiSœur, Aplh. of Paris);
&c., &c.

LONDON:
WARD, LOCK, & CO., WARWICK HOUSE,
SALISBURY SQUARE, E.C.

NEW YORK : 10, BOND STREET.
Cordeel
Brewer, E
1882
Etymological and pronunciation dictionary of difficult words
The object of this Dictionary is not to collect together all the words employed in the language, nor to furnish an exhaustive list of the several meanings of each word, but simply to call attention to errors of speech and spelling made, not by the uneducated, but by those who wish to speak and spell correctly.

In pursuance of these objects, the plan adopted is—

1. To omit all words which are so obvious as to present no difficulty of meaning, spelling, or pronunciation.*

2. To supply the correct spelling and pronunciation of every word likely to be looked for in such a manual as this.

3. To point out those errors in spelling, pronunciation, or use, to be especially guarded against.

4. To give so much of the meaning of each word as may suffice to identify it and explain its general use.

5. To set side by side homonyms, paronyms, and synonyms, that they may be readily compared and correctly applied.

6. The plural of every word (except those which add -s or -es) is given, the feminine of every masculine, the past tense and past participle of every verb, the degrees of comparison, the changes of -y into -ies, the doubling of consonants, and every other variation which a word in its different phases undergoes.

In carrying out the scheme some repetition has been made, with a view of saving the searcher that tedious and most unsatisfactory task of turning to a word which he does not want, after he has been at the pains of finding the one which he requires. As a dictionary is read piece-meal and not consecutively, the only fault of these repetitions is that it somewhat enlarges the bulk of the book.

* The earlier letters of the book are not so full as the latter. The original intention was to limit the size of the book to about 300 pages.
7. Attention is called to all outrages of spelling and combination; but, that the corrections suggested may in no wise interfere with the received spelling or pronunciation, they are invariably added as notes in a smaller type. Thus equerry is pointed out as indefensible in spelling, rhyme (meaning the clink of words in poetry), indelible, isinglass (from the German "hausenblase," a sturgeon’s bladder), imposthume for “aposteme,” infusible (both positive and negative), pedometer for “podo-meter,” defence and offence for “defense” and “offense,” letter and lettuce, marry and marriage, manacles for “manacles,” mar-malade for “marmelade,” ospray for “osfray” (the bone-breaker), passenger and messenger, with scores of others. Some of these errors may probably get corrected after attention has been called to them, others may afford amusement or gratify literary curiosity.

8. All hybrids are noticed, all abnormal derivations, all per-versions, all blunders of philology, all inconsistencies: for example—pro-ceed with -ceed, and pre-cede with -ceed; primo-geniture and primo-genitor for “primi.” (Latin “primi-genitus,” &c.); the introduction of h in the middle of some Greek compounds and its omission in others, as philharmonic, aphetion, diarrhoea, philhellenist, enhydrous, &c., on the one side, and pan[h]oply, ex[h]odus, pan[h]orama, an[h]omaly, peri[h]od, &c., on the other. In some instances the h is omitted even at the beginning of a word, as udometer, although we have fifty other compounds of ludor with the “h” affixed, apse for “hapse,” erpetology for “herpetology,” endecagon for “hendeacon,” and that much abused word eurêka, which ought to be “heurêka.”

Amongst the many instances of perversion, take the following from the French: connoisseur, dishevel, frontispiece, lutestring, encore, epergne, furnish (for “garnir”), and furniture (for “meubles”). Some of these perversions are too well established to be disturbed, but it cannot fail to amuse the curious to pry into these oddities.

Our hybrids are above 200 words in common use: witness octopus (Latin and Greek), grand-son (English-French and English), grand-father (French and English), bi-monthly (Latin and English), demi-semi-quaver (French, Latin, and Spanish). In regard to “grandfather” and “great-grandfather” we have no excuse, as excellent words existed for those relationships before the conquest; "bi-monthly" is very objectionable, and "octopus" is a blunder.

Etymology and Derivation.

Etymology is the tracing of a word back to its original source, and showing the ethnological changes it has gone through in its travels thence to its settlement in the language under consideration.

Derivation is simply showing from what source a people came by a certain word, regardless of any more remote origin.

Take two very simple illustrations. A man offers me some cherries, and I ask him where they come from, he replies from his own garden. That would be "derivation" if applied to language; but if he went into the tale about Lucullus and the Mithridatic war, showing that the Roman general transplanted them from Cerasus to his own garden at Rome; that the Romans imported the tree into Spain, where the word was modified into cereza; that the French obtained the tree from their neighbours, and, hating the letter z, changed the word to cerise; that we borrowed it from the French, and called the word cherries; this would be etymology, more or less valuable as each stage of the process could be proved to be an historical fact; but for everyday life the simple answer, "they came from my own garden," would be quite sufficient, and the learned disquisition about Lucullus and his wars would be tedious and out of place.

So, again, a labourer named Hetty settles in our village, and I ask a neighbour where the man came from. He replies from Singleton, the other side of the Downs. That is all I require. But another informs me that the original family came from the terra incognita called Arya, somewhere near the ancient garden of Eden; and that the word may be distinctly traced in all the Aryan family of languages. Thus we have the Gothic hath, the High German had, the old Frankish chad, the Celtic cath in Cathmor, the Scandinavian Hoedhr (according to Grimm). We have the Catti, a warlike tribe of Teutonic origin, Cato and Catullus in Latin, Cadwalha in Welsh, Chabot in French, from the Aryan word cad, meaning "war." This, again, may be very well in its place: "Fortasse cupressum scis simulare: quid hoc, si fractis enatat expes navibus æro dato qui pingitur?" This learned parade is too lengthy and too erudite for the purpose in hand, and the simple answer, "the man comes from Singleton," is all-sufficient.

In this manual no attempt has been made to trace cherries to Pontus, or the name of the ploughman to the hypothetical Aryan word meaning "war;" but to give a fair idea of the heterogeneous character of our language, and to show the meaning of words, their derivation is given. When the French is a modified Latin word, or the Latin a modified Greek word, the earlier form is added also; but no unravelling of etymology proper has been attempted, except indeed when the change of a word (as sir from anax, a king) tells a tale startling to the eye, but obvious the moment it is pointed out.

It may, however, be mentioned, that not one single derivation has been taken on trust, everyone has been verified by personal reference to some well-established dictionary of the language referred to, be it French, Spanish, Danish, Anglo-Saxon, Latin, Greek, or what not. The necessity of this precaution is far more important than many would suppose; for not only have printers' errors, manuscript "slips," and authors' blunders been handed down from dictionary to dictionary in a most incredible manner, but scores of words have been coined for the nonce, scores of others have been tortured in spelling and meaning, or dressed up so as to make Jacob look like Esau, while not a few have been deemed foreigners which belong to our own Anglo-Saxon medley of words.

Opening the first English dictionary of established reputation at hand, a dictionary especially praised by one of our most reputed Reviews "for its accurate and very excellent derivations," we meet in one page taken at random the following specimens: Gale (Danish galm, a blast), whereas the Danish verb is kule (to blow), and no such word as "galm" exists in the language. Gall (to fret) is said to be the French galler, but the French verb is galer (to scratch). Gallon is given (French galon), which means "galoon," and should be gallon with double l as in English. Galley, we are told by the same authority, is Latin galeida, a word most certainly not Latin at all. Game is said to be Anglo-Saxon gaman (sport), which ought to be gamen. Gaol (Italian gaiola), a word contained in no Italian dictionary, the nearest to it is gāio (gay). Garret (French garitte); not to be found, but galetas may be intended. These all occur in one page. Turning over the leaves, and taking the words at hap-hazard, we light on the following: Gloom (German glumm); but no such word exists in any of my four German dictionaries, and if it did, the obvious derivation is our own glêm. Spigot (Italian spigo, a spigot); now, it is very true there is an Italian word spìgio, but it means "lavander" or "nard," and the word for spigot is zípolo. Lease (French laissem); no such word to be found, the nearest to it is laisse (a leash). Loch (Welsh llwch, a lake); but the Welsh llwch means "dust," and the word corresponding to "loch" is lloc (a dam). Quire (French quaier); no such word exists, but cahier means a quire.
PREFACE.

It would be mere predantry to go further. I pledge my word that these extracts are copied literally and exactly, and that similar examples may be taken from any page of the book. Of course, I cannot mention the author's name, as the work stands in good repute, and its publishers are in the fore rank of their profession. When, however, it is stated that every word in this Dictionary has been personally verified, and that neither the spelling nor meaning of one single word has been tampered with to make it fit the occasion, it is a great advantage, which may be most confidently relied on.

A goodly number of the "derivations" differ from those usually given, but therein fancy or guess-work has had no part. The word "converve" is usually referred to the Latin conversare (to boil up), but the connection between water-plants and ebullition is not obvious. Pliny tells us these plants "were esteemed cures for broken bones," and "conferveo" means to "knit together broken bones," a good and sufficient reason for the technical term. "Pæan" (a hymn to Apollo, and applied to the god himself) we are told, in Dr. Smith's Classical Dictionary, is from Pæan, the physician of the Olympian gods; but surely it could be no great honour to the Sun-god to be called by the name of his own vassal. Hermstel'huis suggests pau(' to make [diseases] cease); but paio, “to dart,” seems to be the natural parent-word of the “far-darter.” Again, the usual derivation of “mummy” is mum (wax); but Diodorus Siculus says, that “the people of the Balearic Isles used to beat the bodies of the dead with clubs to render them flexible, in order that they might be deposited in earthen pots called mum'ma.” “Morgue” (a dead-house) is generally associated with the Latin mors (death); but Bouillet tells us the word means visage, and was first applied to prison vestibules, where new criminals were placed to be scrutinised, that the prison officials might familiarise themselves with the faces and figures of the new inmates. “Sky-lark” (a spree) has nothing in common with the word sky. It is a contraction of “Volsci,” by which the Westminster boys mean “snobs,” and a “sky-lark” is a lark or bout with the sci-men or skies, a “town and gown row.” “Lumber;” one dictionary gives lammer, which it terms “an old Dutch word meaning hinderance;” another gives the Anglo-Saxon leoma with the meaning “utensile,” but the only meaning of leoma is “a ray of light.” Lady Murray tells us that the real origin of the word is lumbard (a pawnbroker’s shop, originally called a “lumber-room”): “They put all the little plate they had in the lumber, which is pawning it.”

Sometimes the analogy between a parent word and its offspring seems so very remote that the general reader cannot trace it: the missing link has always been supplied in this Dictionary, and in some cases this has brought out information of a very interesting character. Archbishop Trench has pointed out that the word post (immovably fixed) expresses the idea also of the utmost speed. To this example many others equally curious are here added; thus, “onion” is the same word as union, and, strange to say, both are equally connected with precious pearls. “Complexion” is the Latin complexum (to embrace), and “countenance” is from the Latin verb contenteo (to contain); but it is by no means obvious at first sight how “embrace” and “contain” came to signify the “colour and expression of the face” (see complexion and distemper). The names of flowers afford a wide field for this curious lore;
The difficulty and absurdity of our spelling have long been a very general complaint, and those who interest themselves in education will bear witness that spelling is the greatest of all stumbling-blocks in examinations, even Lord Byron confesses "he could never master English orthography." Many devices have been suggested to remedy or relieve the difficulty, but no system hitherto projected has found favour with the general public.

In all spelling reforms three things are essential: (1) Nothing must be done to render our existing literature antiquated and unreadable. (2) Nothing must be done to render etymology more obscure and intricate. (3) Nothing must be done which would render the task of learning to read more laborious and perplexing.

Keeping these three things in view, much, very much, might be done to make our spelling more uniform and simple; and with very little alteration the perplexity of pronouncing words might be greatly relieved.

The first reform in spelling should be to abolish all printers' blunders which have become perpetuated, all wanton caprices, and all needless exceptions to general rules.

I. Take those words derived from the Latin cedo (to go). Why should proceed be spelt one way and precede another? No reason can be given but caprice. The twelve examples belonging to this class of words should be made to conform to one uniform pattern: thus acceed, anteced, conceal, exceed, interceed, preceed, proceed, receive, retroceed, seceed, succeed, andceed. The termination -ceed is preferable to -cede, because the word would remain unchanged throughout all its parts, whereas a final e would have to be cut off with some affixes and retained with others.

"Supersede" is not from cedo to go, but sedeo to sit, and to "supersede" is to sit above another, to sit in a higher place (Luke xiv. 8-10).

II. We have 120 words ending in -e mute which take the suffix -ment, but five of the group drop the "e." It is rather curious that four of the anomalous words are examples of \( e, i, o, u \) before \( -dg \), as

\[
\begin{align*}
\text{Acknowledgment} & \quad: \quad e \text{ before } -dg. \\
\text{Abridgment} & \quad: \quad i \text{ before } -dg. \\
\text{Lodgment} & \quad: \quad o \text{ before } -dg. \\
\text{Judgment} & \quad: \quad u \text{ before } -dg.
\end{align*}
\]

The only other exception is \textit{argue}, which makes \textit{argument}.

III. The next class of words needing reform is much larger.
There are two general rules which, if strictly observed, would do much to simplify our spelling.

\( a \) Monosyllables ending in \textit{one consonant}, preceded by \textit{one} vowel, double the last letter when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added: as “\textit{thin},” \textit{thinner}, \textit{thinnest}, \textit{thinnest}, \textit{thinning}.

\( b \) Dissyllables accented on the \textit{last} syllable, under the same conditions, are treated in the same way: as “\textit{defer},” \textit{deferr-ed}, \textit{deferr-ing}, \textit{deferr-er}, &c.

The negatives of these two rules are:—

\( c \) Monosyllables, and also dissyllables accented on the \textit{last} syllable, do not double the final consonant \( 1 \) if \textit{more than one} vowel precedes it; and \( 2 \) if no vowel at all precedes it: as “\textit{clear}” (more than one vowel before the final consonant), hence \textit{clearer}, \textit{clear-est}, \textit{clear-ing}, \textit{clear-ed}, &c.; “\textit{bright}” (the final letter is not preceded by a vowel at all), hence \textit{brighter}, \textit{bright-est}, &c.

\( d \) No dissyllable (even if it ends in one consonant preceded by one vowel) doubles the last letter on receiving an affix, unless the accent of the word is on its \textit{final} syllable: thus “\textit{differ}” (although it terminates in one consonant, and that final consonant is preceded by only one vowel) remains unchanged throughout, because it is not accented on the \textit{last} syllable:
\textit{differ,” differ-ing, differ-ed, differ-er, differ-ence, &c.}

If these rules could be relied on they would be useful enough, but the exceptions are so numerous that the rule is no rule at all. The first palpable observation is that the rule will not apply even to the most favoured examples: thus “\textit{defer},” it is true, makes \textit{deferr-ing}, \textit{deferr-ed}, &c., but it has only one \textit{r} in \textit{defer-ence} and \textit{defer-ential}. If it is objected that the accent of “\textit{defer-ence}” is thrown back to the first syllable and of "deferential" is thrown forward, the reply is this, fifty other examples can be produced to show that accent has no part or lot in the matter.

We have nine disyllables ending in \( p \) not accented on the last syllable. Six of these preserve one \( p \) throughout, and three of them double the \( p \) when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added:

Thus "goss'ip" makes gossipp-er, gossipp-ed, gossipp-ing, gossipp-y.
"kid'napp" makes kidnapp-er, kidnapp-ed, kidnapp-ing.
"wor'ship" makes worship-er, worship-ed, worship-ing.

Compare with the above the following examples:
"Fil'lip," fillip-ed, fillip-ing.
"Gal'lop," gallop-ed, gallop-ing, gallop-ade, &c.
"Wal'lop," wallop-ed, wallop-ing, wallop-er.

What reason can be given why the first three of these words should double the \( p \) and the last six should not? It is mere wantonness, and the superfluous \( p \) of the first three words ought to be suppressed.

The case with words ending in \( l \) is still worse. There are between ninety and one hundred words of two syllables accented on the first syllable and having one consonant for the last letter preceded by only one vowel. Of these words about one-half conform to the rule, and the rest are a rule unto themselves.

For example:
"E'qual" makes equall-ed, equall-ing, and, to make matters worse, equall-ity, although the accent is brought to the last syllable of the simple word, equal-ise, equal-ised, equal-ising, equal-iser, &c.
"Mar'shal" makes marshall-ed, marshall-ing, marshall-er.
"Sig'nal" makes signall-ed and signall-ing, but signal-ise, &c.

Above twenty other words in -al do not double the \( l \), as:

Brutal, carnal, crystal, feudal, final, formal, frugal, local, loyal, moral, regal, social, special, venal, and vocal. To these add capital, federal, general, liberal, mineral, national, and rational.

§ Of those ending in -el some fifty double the \( l \), and seven or eight do not: thus:

"An'gel" makes angel'ic, angel'ical, &c.
"Chi'sel" makes chisel-ed, chisel-ing, chisel-er.
"Impan'nel" makes impannel-ed, impannel-ing, but not panel.
"Han'sel" makes hanel-ed, hanel-ing.
"Parallel" makes parallel-ed, parallel-ing, parallel-gram, &c.
"Teasel" makes teasel-ed, teasel-ing.
"Gospel" makes gospel-er, but gospel-ise, gospel-iser, &c.

The fifty which double the l are—
Apparel, barrel, chancel, chapel, corbel, counsel, cudgel, duel, embowcl, entrammel, flannel, fuel, gravel, grovel, hauel, housel, hovel, impail, jewel, kennel, kernel, label, laurel, level, libel, marvel, model, panel, parcel, pomel, quarrel, ravel, revel, rowel, sentinel, showel, snivel, spanel, swivel, tassel, tinsel, towel, tunnel, tramel, travel, umbel, vowel, &c.

§ Of the dozen words in -il there are four which preserve the single l throughout and eight which double it. The four are—"Civil," civil-ian, civil-ist, civil-ity, civil-ise.
"Devil" (to grill), devil-ed, devil-ing, also devil-ish, devil-ism.

Those which double the l are—
"Cavil," cavill-ed, cavill-ing, cavill-er, cavill-ous.
"Council," counsell-er.
"Pencil," pencill-ed, pencill-ing, pencill-er.
"Peril," peril-ed, peril-ing, but peril-ous, &c.
"Pistil," pistillaceous, pistilliferous, pistillate, pistillidium.
"Tranquil," tranquil-ity, tranquill-ise, tranquilliser, &c.

§ Of words in -ol only carol doubles the l, as caroll-ed, caroll-ing, caroll-er, and this is so doubtful that some dictionaries give it one way and some the other; gambol, pistol, and symbol retain one l throughout.

Nothing can be worse and more perplexing than this uncertainty, but nothing could be more simple than a substantial reform in this respect. Restore to the simple word the lost letter where it is due, and preserve it throughout; but where the simple word has but one consonant do not force upon it a second when a suffix is added. For example, cavil (Latin cavill-or) should have double l, but counsel (Latin consul-o) should have only one. Similarly gallop (French galop-er) should have only one p throughout. The same should be carried into words accented on the final syllable: thus excell (Latin excell-o), distill (Latin distill-o), &c., the double l should be restored to the simple word and preserved throughout.
IV. The next simple reform would be to reserve the plural -es to those words only with which it makes a separate syllable: as church-es, box-es, gas-es, sash-es; nothing can be more absurd than thiev-es, loav-es, halv-es, beeav-es (all of one syllable.)

§ All nouns in -ef, except thief, thiev-es, make the plural by adding s: as belief-es, brief-s, chief-s, clef-s, grief-s, reeef-s. Why should thief form an exception? "Thief" is the Anglo-Saxon theaf or th(ia, the plural of which was theofas or thefas (thiefs); and as there was no v in the language, the substitution of v for f is most reprehensible.

We have the word beef the flesh of oxen slain for food, and the word beev-es living oxen, &c.; but the French is beuuf, beuufs.

§ In -if and -iff, -of and -aff, -uff and -ulf, with those in -rf, the plural without one exception is formed by adding -s: as—

Bailiff-s, caififf-s, calf-s (?), cliff-s, cof-s, mastiff-s, plaintiff-s.
Sheriff-s, stiff-s, tariff-s, waif-s, whiff-s.
Hoof-s, proof-s, reprooef-s, roof-s, woof-s, scoff-s.
Cuff-s, huff-s, muff-s, puf-s, ruff-s, snuff-s, stuff-s, gulf-s.
Dwarf-s, scarf-s, wharf-s, surf-s, turf-s.

§ Except 'thief,' thiev-es, therefore, all the nouns in f mentioned above are normal, but those in -af, -aff, and -lf (except gulf) are all abnormal. Strange enough, all these nouns are native words, not one of which makes such a plural, or indeed could do so. There are ten in all:—

"Leaf," leaves; "sheaf," sheaves; "leaf," loaves; "staff" (a stick), slaves, but not staff (a body of men), nor yet distaff.

The original plural of these words was -ffas, as stafas, lifasás, &c., and there is no excuse for the present perversions.

§ In regard to -fe the case is worse, and even more absurd. We have six nouns with this ending, four native and two borrowed from other languages. The native words are knife, life, wife, and strife; the borrowed ones are fifes and safes (a closet).

The native words have for their plurals knifes, lives, wives, (and strifes); the aliens have fifes and safes. The original plural of knifes was cnifas (knife), but wif and lif were alike in both numbers. The word "strife" is a corruption of stríth, plural stríthas (stríths); there is, therefore, no excuse whatever for the change of f into v, in any word ending in -fe.

V. Come we now to the plurals of nouns ending in -o. They somewhat exceed one hundred, and may be displayed under three groups: (1) Musical terms and terms descriptive of the size of a book. All these are Italian words, and make their plurals by adding -s: as Alto-s, basso-s, solo-s, flauto-s, piano-s, violoncello-s; canto-s, rondo-s, &c., with folio-s, quart-o-s, octa-vo-s, duodecimo-s, and so on.

As this group is consistent and without exception, no objection can be brought against it. The other two groups are about equal, thirty-five of one make the plural in -s, and thirty-one of the other in -es.

All nouns ending in -lo, -so, -vo, and -o after a vowel, make the plural by adding -s, with one exception, viz., buffalo-es. Thus we have—

Ammadillo-s, halo-s, and peccadillo-s in -lo: proviso-s and virtuoso-s in -so; bravo-s, relievo-s, and salvo-s in -vo; imbroglio-s, nuncio-s, oglio-s or olit-o-s, pistachio-s, portfolio-s, punctilio-s, ratio-s, seraglio-s, studio-s, embryo-s, cuckoo-s, &c., in -o preceded by a vowel. To these add six in -to, not musical terms or sizes of books, viz., centa-s, grotto-s, junto-s, memento-s, pimento-s, and stiletto-s, with all such proper names as the Cat-o-s.

The list complete would contain about seventy words.

The third group consists of thirty words which make the plural in -es, and there cannot be a doubt that the e of these plurals should be expunged. It serves no good end, and is in every case an interpolation.

Let us take them in terminational order: (1) -cho and -co, as echo, calico, fresco, magnifico, portico, and stucco (all having their plural in -es). Echo is Greek, in which language it has no plural; in Latin it is the fourth declension, echo echus, and, of course, could have no such plural as echo-s; in French the plural is échos. What right, therefore, has this word to the suffix -es? "Fresco," "magnifico," "portico," and "stucco" are Italian, like the musical terms and the sizes of books, and there is no reason but caprice why they should deviate from those words. "Calico" is probably a corruption of "Calicut," and ought also to be deprived of the e.
(2) In -do, as bravado, innuendo, rotundo, tornado, and torpedo. Of these “rotundo” is Italian, often written rotunda in English; and, to show our spirit of contradiction, the foreign words bravata and tornada we make “bravado” and “tornado”; innuendo and torpedo are concocted from the Latin verbs innuo and torpeo, so that none of these five words has the least pretence to a plural in -es.

3. The words in -go are cargo, flamingo, indigo, mango, sago, and virago. Of these, “cargo,” “flamingo,” and “indigo,” are Indian. “Mango” is the Indian-Talmudic word mangos; “sago,” the Malay word sagu, in French sagou; and “virago” is Latin, the plural being viragines. So that none of these six words has a plural resembling its modern English form.

4. In -no the only examples are no-es (persons voting “no”), albino-es, domino-es, and volcano-es. Of these “albino” is spelt both ways in the plural, albinos and albinoes; “domino” and “volcano” are Italian; and as for the plural of “no,” if this is the only word which stands out we must write no’s, as we write I’s, m’s, and so on.

5. In -ro there are four words: hero, negro, tyro, and zero. “Hero,” like “echo,” is common to Greek, Latin, and French, in all which languages the singular is heros. Probably we borrowed the word from the French, where the s is silent, but there is not a tittle of authority for heroes. As for “negro” and “zero,” they are Italian; and “tyro,” the Latin word, has tyrones for its plural.

We have now gone through every word ending in -o, except six, and can find no reason why the plural of all should not be s. By this uniformity an enormous difficulty of spelling would be removed, nothing would be lost, and every word would be consistent with its original form.

The six remaining words are those ending in -to. Of the twelve words with this termination, six go one way and six another. We have already noticed the words cento-s, grotto-s, junto-s, memento-s, pimento-s, and stiletto-s; the remaining six are manifesto-es, mosquito-es, motto-es, mulatto-es, potato-es, and tomato-es. Three of these are Spanish, “mosquito,” “mulatto,” and “tomato”; two are Italian, “motto” and “manifesto”; and the sixth is a corruption of the American-Indian word batatas. In every case the suffix -es is an abomination. In every case, therefore, it is a violation of correct spelling, an anomaly in English orthography, where -es should be limited to words ending in -s, -sh, -ch (soft), and -x (with the single word topaz-es in -z); it introduces great confusion and difficulty; has not one single excuse; and ought to be abolished. To use the words of Lord Lytton, it may be fairly said "such a system of spelling was never concocted but by the Father of Falsehood," and we may ask with him, "How can a system of education flourish that begins with [such] monstrous falsehoods?"

INDIVIDUAL LETTERS.

A few words may here be added respecting individual letters:

(1) c. This Latin and French letter is one of the greatest pests of our language. It does duty for c, s, and k, and often drives us to vile expedients to determine its pronunciation. Thus we have the word "traffic," but cannot write trafficèd and trafficing, because c before -e and -i = s, and therefore we are obliged to interpose a k. Why in the world did we drop the k instead of the c in the word traffic? If we had dropped the c all would have gone smoothly, "traffic," trafficèd, trafficing, but printers have set up their backs against the letter k, and hence the spelling of the language is tortured to preserve a fanciful uniformity of type.

A similar intrusion of c for s is far more serious. We have only six words ending in -ense, but above 220 in -ence. Here the c is an intruder and ought to be turned out. The six words are con-dense, dis-pense, ex-pense, im-mense, pre-pense, and recom-pense. It will be seen that the s in all these words is radical, and cannot be touched; but what of -ence? Take a few examples at random, "acquiescence," why not acquiesènse (Latin acquiescens)? "adolescence," why not adolescènse (Latin adolescens)? "cadence" (Latin cadens), "coalescence" (Latin coalescens), "decence" (Latin decens), "efflorescence" (Latin efflorescens), "innocence" (Latin innocens), "licence" (Latin licens), "precedence" (Latin precéndens), and so on. In other cases the -ce represents the Latin -itia as magnificence (Latin magnificentia), munificence (Latin munificentia), &c., but it would be no outrage to spell these words magnificence and munificence, for s is as near to "t" as c is, if not nearer.

Another intrusion of c is its being made to do duty for k in Greek words. If the Greek k were preserved it would tell the eye at a glance the nationality of the word, whereas the c gives no certain cue. Thus kardiak, kriterion, kritik would label the words "Greek" in origin; but cardiac, criterion, and critic may be Latin, French, or perverted Greek. Nothing can be worse than the double sound of this letter, which is sometimes = s, and sometimes = k.

(2) A similar accusation lies against the letter g which sometimes is soft and sometimes hard, and hence we are driven into all sorts of shifts to make it speak an articulate language. For example: fatigu-ing, plagu-ing, leagu-ing. We are obliged to preserve the useless letter u in order to keep the g from contact with the i when it would lose its hard sound and = j. We might spell fatigue, plague, and league without the absurd -ue, but g before e and i is generally soft, and therefore -ed and -ing might alter its sound. Here, however, we are inconsistent in inconsistency, for we find no difficulty in begin and give, singing, gear, and get.

Then again, why has g thrust itself into such words as light, bright, night, sight, rough, tough, and so on? It does not exist in the original forms and is a gross solecism. Night, bright, sight, would be far better and more normal, and as for the other two, rough and tough would do as well as rough and tough, although it must be confessed that "ruf" and "tuf" would express the sound attached to these words better than either of the other combination of letters.

(3) The final -e added to words for the sake of lengthening the preceding vowel is certainly one of the clumsiest contrivances which could be devised, and quite as often fails of its duty as not: thus live, give, festive; come, have, love; genuine, sterile, handsome, vine-yard, examine, destine, respite, discipline, and hundreds more are a standing protest against this use of the letter for such a purpose. How much better would it be to reintroduce the accents of our older forms, and write lif for life, liv for live (1 syl.); mil for mile and mil or mill for mill; still for stile and stil or still for still.

As our alphabet now stands, we are wholly unable to express certain sounds. Thus no combination of letters can give the correct pronunciation of such simple words as these: spirit, merit, psalm, puss, push, put, foot, only, bosom, whose, pull, full, rule, qualm, pudding, pulpit, bush, prelude, rogue, fugue, rugged, water, calf, calve, half, halve, sugar, loaves, sheath, wreath, beneath, show, woman, and hundreds more. Let anyone try to express by letters the sound we give to full and put, and show the difference between full and hull, put and hut, and it will be presently seen how difficult the task is. Or let anyone try to express the sounds attached to woman and water, spirit and merit, pulpit and bush, and the necessity of some more definite vowels will be readily acknowledged.

PHONETIC SPELLING.

Many schemes have been projected of late years to simplify our spelling by making sounds the ruling principle; but there are many grave objections to all these systems. First and foremost any material alteration, such as these systems contemplate, would render our existing literature antiquated and unreadable, except as a dead language, an evil which no literary man would sanction. Next it would fossilise our present system, as if it were already perfect, and perpetuate errors which are not now immutable. Those who have lived for half a century, have seen numerous reforms in the spelling and pronunciation of words, and there is no reason to believe that we have yet arrived at the period of verbal petrifaction.

A third great objection is, that it not unfrequently obscures the derivation, but the great tendency should be the other way. The only fixed principle in language is the parent stock of words, and the only plan to make words living symbols of ideas is to show from what "stock" they spring, and how the present meaning has arisen from the parent or cognate word: thus hare and hair are pronounced exactly alike, but one is the Anglo-Saxon har, and the other hara; so with reed and read (reed and red[an], mare and mayor (meareh and Spanish mayor), with hundreds more. If any reform were made in such words as these, it should not be to make them more alike, alike to the eye as well as to the ear, but to make them speak a more definite and articulate language by bringing them back more closely to the primitive words, and not to perpetuate the notion that they are identical in derivation as they now are in sound. Before any word is fossilised by phonetic spelling, we should feel quite sure that no existing or future scholar either will or can improve upon the form proposed; for my own part I believe that many of our words are at present in a transition state, and that the tendency of the age is to reduce them more and more to their etymological standard, and to pronounce them more and more according to the letters which compose them.

OLD ENGLISH.

Some reason may be expected for the rather unusual substitution of "Old English" in this dictionary for what is more generally termed "Anglo-Saxon." The main reason is to force upon the attention the great fact too often overlooked, that our language is English, substantially English, and that even numerically considered it is still English. In the dictionary referred to, "so highly commended by certain reviewers for its etymology," not a twentieth part of the words belonging to us have been acknowledged, but they have been fathered on the Greek, German, Dutch, Persian, and often on tongues still more remote. The use of the term Saxon or Anglo-Saxon helps to favour the notion, by no means uncommon, that we have no words of our own, but that every word has been imported, and Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Arabic, are often most cruelly tortured to account for a word well known to our forefathers before Harold fell at Hastings.

Again, the language of England before the introduction of the Norman element was not English and Saxon, as the word Anglo-Saxon implies, nor yet English Saxonised. One element, no doubt, was Saxon, but other elements were Keltic, Latin, Danish, and Gallic.

By Old English is meant the English language as it existed before the introduction of the Norman element, and no possible confusion can arise from this use of the term, as all words due directly to the Conquest are termed Post Norman, those later down are termed medieval, and those still later archaic.

It is not unusual to divide the language into five periods:—
1. OLD ENGLISH down to the middle of the twelfth century (say 1150).
2. TRANSITION ENGLISH, when the old terminations were struggling for existence and only those best suited to the language survived (1150–1250).
3. EARLY ENGLISH, from 1250 to the Reformation (say 1520).
4. MIDDLE „, from the Reformation to Milton’s death (1626–1674).
5. MODERN ENGLISH, from Milton’s death to the present times.

The following table will show the proportion of English, French, Latin, Greek, and other words in the language.

This dictionary contains 17,437 distinct families of words.

Of these groups or families of words—
3931 are English.
3595 are borrowed from the French.
4925 are borrowed from the Latin.
2098 are borrowed from the Greek.
146 are English taken from the Latin before the Conquest.
1802 are from miscellaneous sources, as Welsh, Dutch, German.
211 are hybrid.
541 are from proper names.
37 are words in imitation of sounds, like cuckoo.
91 are Mediaeval or Low Latin.

17,437 Total.
PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS.

Prefixes and prenouns may be added to words beginning either with a vowel or with a consonant.

When a prenun is added to a word beginning with a vowel, the general rule is to take the genitive case of the word prefixed without its termination; but when added to a word beginning with a consonant the vowel of the termination is left to form a vinculum: Thus, from the Greek " démôs" (the people) gen. démôn, we get dém-agogue and démocracy; from the Latin " lumen" (light) gen. luminis, we get lumin-ary and lumin-iferous.

In Greek words, most unfortunately, we convert " u " into ū, and " k " into c, after the Latin and French method: For example, " martur" (a martyr) gen. marturos, gives martyr-dom and martyr-do-logy; " anthrax " (a coal) gen. anthrakos, gives anthracc-epten and anthraco-saurus.

("Ch" is a distinct character in Greek (written thus χ); " th " is also a distinct character which existed in Anglo-Saxon, but unhappily has been dropped out of use. How very desirable it would be to have two distinct characters for th (soft) and th (hard), as in the and thin. In this Dictionary the character τ has been introduced for the hard letter.

Irregularities. (i.) In the first Greek declension the final vowel is changed to o. In the first Latin declension the final vowel is changed to i.

(1) Greek aitea  gen. -as  etio-logy cephalo  " -o  cephalo-pod hóra  " -as  horo-scope idéa  " -as  idéo-logy phonê  " -s  phono-logy phusa  " -s  physo-grade psychê  " -s  psycho-logy rhize  " -s  rhizo-pod sphaira  " -as  spher-o-meter selênê  " -s  seleno-graph skia  " -as  scio-mancy staphulê  " -s  staphylo-raphy technê  " -s  techno-logy tracheia  " -as  tracheo-tomy

(Exception: " theka " gen. thekê, theka-phore.)
The older form of the gen. case of the first Latin declension was -ai: as "musa" (a song) gen. musai; the "ai" is generally written a, but in prenouns it is written i.

(2) Latin mamma gen. -oa (for -ai)
- palma -oa (for -ai) palmo-ferous
- penna -oa (for -ai) penna-form
- petra -oa (for -ai) petri-fer
- pinna -oa (for -ai) pinni-ped
- rosa -oa (for -ai) rota-fer
- seta -oa (for -ai) setti-ferous
- spina -oa (for -ai) spinii-ferous

(Example: "aqua" gen. aqua, aqua-duct.)

(ii) The ou of the second Greek declension is sometimes changed to i: as "archos" gen. archi-pelago, archi-tect, but not generally, hence from "deinos" gen. deinou we get deino-therilun; "autos" gen. autou gives auto-erat; aristos gen. arisou gives aristo-cracy, &c.

The "i" of the second Latin declension is in some few examples converted into o:

(3) planus, (adj.) plani plano-concave primus " primi primo-geniture &c.

All such words are barbarisms: We have the Latin plani-loquus, plani-pedia, plani-pes, plani-tudo, and even in English plani-sphere. Again, primo-genitus is debased Latin: Cicero uses primi-genia, Varro primi-genius, Lucretius primi-genus, then we have primi-para, primi-pilaris, primi-pilus, &c.

(i) The -is of the fourth Latin declension is a contraction of -nis: as "fluctus" (a wave) gen. fluctuis contracted to fluctus. The vinculum vowel of this declension seems to have puzzled our word-minters, and hence from manus (a hand) we have manu, mani, and manu: as mana-cle (a disgraceful word, Latin manica), mani-fest, manu-facture; but the general vowel for this declension is i—

(4) fructus gen. fructus (for fructuis) fructi-fer manus " manus (for manus) manu-fest risus " risus (for risuis) risi-blle

Latin words with Greek endings generally take o for the vinculum—

(5) lac gen. lactis lacto-meter better galacto-meter muscus " musci musco-logy " mosco-logy nox " noctis nocto-graph " ncto-graph oleum " olei oleo-saccharum " elo-saccharum pes " pedis pedo-meter " podo-meter pomum " pomi pomo-logy " pomo-meter sonus " soni sono-meter " phono-meter spectrum " spectri spectro-scope

(Example: "polari-scope." This would be better "polaro-scope.")

(6) centum centu-ple quinti-ple quintuplue octo octu-ple sextu-ple septu-ple quadra- quadru-ple septim-ple
(septi-ple, a handful; and mani-pleus, a handful.)
PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS.

Most words of modern manufacture not derived from classic sources, or if joined together by a hyphen, take the vowel o for the vinculum—

(7) alun-gen, Fr. alun alum
    Anglo-Saxon       Gothico-Latinum
    Austro-Prussian   Latino-Anglican Franco-Prussian   meso-Gothic, politico-religious

The following are abnormal or contracted forms—

(8)  anti- for ante-
     ba- for bichromo- for chromatoori- for orico- or oro-penta- for pente-rubi- for rubri-sulpho- for sulphupseudo- for pseudo-taxo- for taxoterri- for terrorianti-cipato ba-lance chromo-trope ori-ganum penta-meter rubi-cund sulpho-vinic pseudo-prophet taxo-nomy
     terri-blo

Three prefixed words are very uncertain in the vinculum—centum, centi, centu: centum-viri, centi-pede, centu-ple contra, contro: contra-distinction, contra-versy manus, manu, manit, manu: mana-cle, mani-ple, manu-script

PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS.

(By permission from Dr. Brewer's "Prefixes and Suffixes.")

| a-       | Eng. d, from, away | a-go, a-rise |
| a-       | Eng. d, intensive  | a-wake, a-bide |
| a-       | Eng. of, intensive | a-shamed, a-fraid |
| a-       | Eng. of, of, off   | a-board, a-float |
| a-       | Eng. -on, upon the, on | a-way, a-sleep |
| a-       | Eng. ge-           | a-like, a-mong |
| a-       | Lat. a, from (before -m and -v) | a-vert, a-manuensis |
| a-       | Lat. a(l), up to, up | a-scend, i.e. as-scend |
| a-       | Gk. a, without, negative | a-cephalous, a-conite |
| a-       | Fr. a, to, for an end | a-vail, a-dieu |
| ab-      | Lat. ab, removal from, contrary to | ab-dicate, ab-normal |
| abs-     | Lat. abs, from (before -c and -t) | abs-tract, abs-cond |
| ac-      | Lat. ac for ad, to (before -c) | ac-cede, ac-cept |
| acro-    | Gk. akros, upwards | acro-genus, acro-lith |
| actino-  | Gk. aktin gen. aktinos, a ray | actino-crinites (-kri-nites) |
| ad-      | Lat. ad, to         | ad-apt, ad-ore (2 syl.) |
| astro-   | Gk. aithôn, luminosity | atho-gen |
| aer-, aeri- | Lat. aer gen. aeris, air | aer-ate, aer-fy |
| aer-     | Gk. aer gen. aeros, air | aero-lite, aero-naut |
| af-      | Lat. af, for ad (before -f) | af-firm, af-fix |
| after-   | Eng. after           | afternoon, after-math |
| ag-      | Lat. ag for ad (before -g) | ag-grandise, ag-gravate |
| agalmato- | Gk. agalma gen. matos, delight | agalmato-lite |
| agape-   | Gk. agape, brotherly love | agape-mone (5 syl.) |
| agatho-  | Gk. agathos, good    | agatho-phyllume |
| al-      | Eng. at, all, altogether | al-mighty, al-ready |
| al-      | Lat. al, for ad, to (before -l) | al-lege, al-lude |
| al-      | Arab, al, the        | al-kali, al-cobol |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>aleth-</td>
<td>Gk. αἰθός, true</td>
<td>allele-pteris</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>alexi-</td>
<td>Gk. αλεξό, I ward off</td>
<td>alexiopharmic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all-</td>
<td>Eng. et, et all, altogether</td>
<td>all-wise, all-saints</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>al-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀλλος, another, different</td>
<td>all-egory, allo-pathy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>al-</td>
<td>Fr. alun, alum</td>
<td>alun-gen, alun-ite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>am-</td>
<td>Lat. am for ad (before -m)</td>
<td>am-munition</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ambi-</td>
<td>Lat. ambi, about, around</td>
<td>ambly-pterous, ambly-gonito</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ambly-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀμβλύς, obtuse, blunt</td>
<td>ambly-pterous, ambly-gonito</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ammu-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀμμός, sand</td>
<td>ammu-costes, ammu-dytes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>amphi-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀμφί, both, on both sides</td>
<td>amphi-pteris, amphi-theatre</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>an-</td>
<td>Lat. an for ad (before -n)</td>
<td>an-nex, an-nihilate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ant-</td>
<td>Lat. an-te, before</td>
<td>an-cestor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>an-</td>
<td>Gk. ἄνω, without, free from</td>
<td>an-hydrous, an-chronism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ana-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀνά, upwards</td>
<td>ana-cathartic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ana-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀνα, small</td>
<td>ana-logue</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ana-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀνα, into, up into</td>
<td>an-archy, an-thera</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>an-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀνω, without, apart</td>
<td>an-archy, an-thera</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>andro-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀνδρός, a man</td>
<td>andro-gens, andro-id</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ang-</td>
<td>Eng. ang, painful, troublesome</td>
<td>ang-nail</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>antico-</td>
<td>Lat. Anglico-roman, English</td>
<td>Anglo-Saxon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ant-</td>
<td>Lat. Antiquus (adj.), English</td>
<td>Anti-Jewish</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ante-</td>
<td>Lat. ante, before</td>
<td>ante-diluvian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ant-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀντί, reverse of, opposite</td>
<td>anti-arctic, anti-septic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ant-</td>
<td>Lat. ante, before</td>
<td>ante-cedent, ante-diluvian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>antho-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀνθός, a flower</td>
<td>antho-zoa, antho-lite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>anthrac-</td>
<td>Gk. anthrakós</td>
<td>anthrac-erpen, anthraco-saurus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>anthro-</td>
<td>Gk. ἄνθρωπος, a man</td>
<td>anthropo-phagi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>anti-</td>
<td>Lat. anté, before</td>
<td>anti-cipate, anti-quiry</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ant-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀντί, opposed to, reverse of</td>
<td>anti-agonist, anti-pathy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>apo-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀπό, away from</td>
<td>apo-stasy, apo-crypha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>aqua-</td>
<td>Lat. aqua gen. aquae, water</td>
<td>aqua-fortis, aqua-duct</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>aer-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀερ, air</td>
<td>aer-range</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>arch-</td>
<td>Teutonic archy, crafty</td>
<td>arch-ness</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>arch-</td>
<td>Gk. ἄρχος gen. archou, chief</td>
<td>arch-angel, arch-tect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>aristo-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀρίστος, the best</td>
<td>aristo-cracy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as-</td>
<td>Lat. as for ad (before -s)</td>
<td>as-sault, as-sume</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>asa-</td>
<td>Lat. asa, gum</td>
<td>asa-fatida</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>at-</td>
<td>Lat. at for ad (before -t)</td>
<td>at-tend, at-tract</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>atmo-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀτμός, vapour</td>
<td>atmo-meter, atmo-sphere</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>atra-</td>
<td>Lat. atra, atrum, black</td>
<td>atra-bilary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>aut-</td>
<td>Gk. αὐτός, one's ownself</td>
<td>auto-crat, auto-maton</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bi-</td>
<td>Lat. bi-, two, twofold</td>
<td>bi-lance</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>back-</td>
<td>Eng. bac, behind, to the rear</td>
<td>back-wards, back-gammon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Eng. be- converts nouns to verbs</td>
<td>be-friend, be-night</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Eng. be- converts intrans. to trans. verbs</td>
<td>be-speak, be-think</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Eng. be- part of adv. and prep.</td>
<td>be-cause, be-here</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Eng. be- private</td>
<td>be-head, be-reave</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Eng. be- intensive</td>
<td>be-daub, be-smeary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Eng. be- to, in, for, at, about, &amp;c.</td>
<td>be-long, be-hold</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Added to Romance words)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>prefix</th>
<th>meaning</th>
<th>example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Gk. ἀπό, away from</td>
<td>apo-stasy, apo-crypha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be-</td>
<td>Lat. be- gen. beati, blessed</td>
<td>beat-ly</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>bene-</td>
<td>good</td>
<td>bene-factor, bene-fit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bi-, bis-</td>
<td>two-fold, double, in pairs</td>
<td>bi-ped, bis-sextile</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bin-</td>
<td>once in two</td>
<td>bin-ocular, bin-oxide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>chlor-</td>
<td>green</td>
<td>chloro-melamine, chloro-phyllic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cent-</td>
<td>a hundred</td>
<td>cent-ennial, centil-pede</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cephal-</td>
<td>a head</td>
<td>cephal-aspid, cephal-poda</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>chrom-</td>
<td>colour</td>
<td>chromo-melamine, chromo-graph</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>chrys-</td>
<td>gold</td>
<td>chrys-anthemum, chryso-lithia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cinque-</td>
<td>five</td>
<td>cinque-foil</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>circum-</td>
<td>all round</td>
<td>circum-scribe, circum-spect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cis-</td>
<td>on this side</td>
<td>cis-ALpine, cis-Padano</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cock-</td>
<td>birds and insects</td>
<td>cock-sparrow, cock-chaffer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>col-</td>
<td>collect</td>
<td>col-lect, col-league</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>coleo-</td>
<td>a sheath</td>
<td>coleo-pteran, coleo-rhiza</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>com-</td>
<td>combine</td>
<td>com-bine, com-mit, com-ply</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>con-</td>
<td>together with</td>
<td>co-adjutor, co-equal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cock-</td>
<td>a gender-word for male</td>
<td>co-partner, co-sine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>conch-</td>
<td>a shell</td>
<td>conch-su, conch-fer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>concho-</td>
<td>a shell</td>
<td>concho-melamine, concho-phyllic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>contr-</td>
<td>contrary</td>
<td>contr-rol, contra-dict</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>contro-</td>
<td>against</td>
<td>contro-vert (Ital.)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES:

- bene- Lat. bon, good
- bi-, bis- Lat. bis, two-fold, double, in pairs
- bin- Lat. bis (before -o)
- chlor- Eng. chlor, a gender-word of fem.
- cent- Lat. centum, a hundred
- cephal- Gk. kephal, a head
- chrom- Gk. chroma, colour
- chrys- Gk. chrys, gold
- cinque- Fr. cinq, five
- circum- Lat. circum, all round
- cis- Lat. cis, on this side
- cock- Eng. cock (a gender-word for male)
- col- Lat. cum (before -nascor, nosce)
- coleo- Gk. koles, a sheath
- com- Lat. cum (before -b, -m, -p)
- con- Lat. cum (before -c, -d, -f, -g, -h)
- conch- Gk. koches, a shell
- cont- Lat. contus ex, a cone
- contra- Lat. contra, against (law), the
- contro- Lat. cum (before -r)
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PREFIX</th>
<th>EXAMPLES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>cos-</td>
<td>Gk. kosmós, the world .. .. .. cosmo-rama, cosmos-ography</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cosmos</td>
<td>Lat. cosmos, in conjunction with .. .. .. countenance, count-sel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>count-</td>
<td>Gk. kentron, in the opposite way .. .. .. counter-act, counter-march</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cru-</td>
<td>Lat. crux gen. crucis, a cross .. .. .. cruci-fy, cruci-form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>crypt-</td>
<td>Gk. krypeus*, concealed, secret .. .. .. crypto-logy, crypto-gram</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cyano-</td>
<td>Gk. kyádus, deep-blue .. .. .. cyan-uric, cyano-gen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cyclo-</td>
<td>Gk. kyklos, a circle .. .. .. cyclo-pedia, cyclo-pteris</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dais-</td>
<td>Eng. deag-es, of the day .. .. .. dais-y</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>days-</td>
<td>Fr. daisy, a raised platform .. .. .. days-man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>de-</td>
<td>Fr. de (prefix ed to men of &quot;family&quot;) .. .. .. Do-sax, De-lolme</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>des-</td>
<td>Lat. de, motion down from .. .. .. de-cline, de-part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>de-</td>
<td>Lat. de, intensive .. .. .. de-clare, de-salute</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>de-</td>
<td>Lat. de, intensive .. .. .. de-stroy, de-magnetise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>de-</td>
<td>Lat. de, intensive .. .. .. de-capitate, de-odorise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>de-</td>
<td>For duck, as in drake .. .. .. de-coy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dec-</td>
<td>Gk. deka, ten .. .. .. dcc-andria, deca-gon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dein-</td>
<td>Gk. deinos, dreadful [from its size] .. .. .. dein-ornis, deino-therium</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dein-</td>
<td>Gk. demos, the people .. .. .. demagoguc, demo-cray</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>demi-</td>
<td>Fr. demi, half .. .. .. demi-god, demi-lune</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dent-</td>
<td>Lat. dens gen. dentis, a tooth .. .. .. dent-frice, denti-cle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dento-</td>
<td>Gk. denteiros, a double quota .. .. .. di-oxide of copper; that is, to one of the base (copper)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>deuter-</td>
<td>Gk. deuteréos, a second, another .. .. .. deuteronomy, deuter-o-gamy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>di, dis</td>
<td>Gk. parse, dis, asunder .. .. .. di-capital, dis-oxide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dia-</td>
<td>Gk. dis, two .. .. .. di-capital, dis-oxide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>di-</td>
<td>Gk. dia, through .. .. .. di-rect, di-electrics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dia-</td>
<td>In Chem., double equiv. of base .. .. .. di-sulphate of silver</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dia-</td>
<td>Gk. dia, through .. .. .. dia-gram, dia-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dis-</td>
<td>Lat. dis, asunder .. .. .. di-fuse, di-fer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dis-</td>
<td>Lat. and Gk. dis, asunder, the reverse .. .. .. dis-believe, dis-agree</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>doe-</td>
<td>Eng. doh, a gender-word (the female of certain animals) .. .. .. doe-rabbit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dog-</td>
<td>A gender-word (the male of certain animals) .. .. .. dog-fox, dog-otter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dog-</td>
<td>PERTAINING TO THE DOG .. .. .. dog-star, dog-fly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dog-</td>
<td>Depreciative, deceptive .. .. .. dog-sleep, dog-Latin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dog-</td>
<td>Eng. dégotol, dodge, dodging .. .. .. dog-watch (board ship)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dulci-</td>
<td>Lat. dulcis, sweet .. .. .. dulc-amara, dulci-ty</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dulci-</td>
<td>Lat. duo, two .. .. .. du-plicate, duo-decimal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>duum-</td>
<td>Lat. duo, two .. .. .. duum-viri</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dyna-</td>
<td>Gk. dynamis, power .. .. .. dynam-ics, dynamo-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dynam-</td>
<td>Gk. dynamis gen. dynamelos, power .. .. .. dynam-ics, dynamo-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dys-</td>
<td>Gk. dus, evil, diseased .. .. .. dys-pestis, dys-phagia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dys-</td>
<td>Lat. e out of (before the liquids; and c, d, q, s) .. .. .. e-nil, e-vince, e-lect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>e-</td>
<td>Gk. ek, up out of .. .. .. e-lectuary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ec-</td>
<td>Gk. ek, .. .. .. ec-lectric, ec-lipsa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eco-</td>
<td>Lat. ek (only one example) .. .. .. cc-entric</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eco-</td>
<td>Gk. okeos, house .. .. .. eco-nomy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ef-</td>
<td>Lat. ef for ex (before -f) .. .. .. ef-foot, ef-face</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>el-</td>
<td>Gk. el for ek, out .. .. .. el-lipsa (a leaving out)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>electri-</td>
<td>Lat. electrum gen. electriv amber .. .. .. electric-ty</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>electro-</td>
<td>Gk. electron, amber .. .. .. electro-scope, electro-type</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PREFIXES AND PRENOUS.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Examples</th>
<th>Notes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>em-</td>
<td>Eng. em- (converts nouns and adjectives to verbs)</td>
<td>em-bed, em-bitter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Used also with Romance words: en-balm, en-power)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>en-</td>
<td>Romance en- (converts nouns and adjectives to verbs)</td>
<td>en-rage, en-camp</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Used also with Latin words: en-able, enquire, en-throne)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>en</td>
<td>Gk. en, in</td>
<td>en-caustic, en-cma</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>end, endo-</td>
<td>Gk. endon, within</td>
<td>end-osmose, endo-gens</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>enter-</td>
<td>Fr. entre, between</td>
<td>enter-tain, enter-prise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ento-</td>
<td>Gk. entos, within</td>
<td>ento-zeen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>entom-</td>
<td>Gk. entomon, insect</td>
<td>entomo-logy, entomo-lito</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>entre-</td>
<td>Fr. entre, between</td>
<td>entre-pot, entre-sol</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eo</td>
<td>Gk. eos, recent</td>
<td>eo-cene</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ep, epi-</td>
<td>Gk. epi, over and above, upon</td>
<td>ep-onym, epi-gram</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>equi-</td>
<td>Lat. aequus, equal</td>
<td>equi-poise, equi-noc</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>crysi-</td>
<td>Gk. crysis, a drawing</td>
<td>crys-pelas</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>es</td>
<td>Gk. eis, on</td>
<td>es-palter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ex</td>
<td>Lat. ex, from out of</td>
<td>excape</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>es</td>
<td>Romance en</td>
<td>es-planado</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>esse</td>
<td>Lat. esse, to be</td>
<td>esse-nce</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ethno-</td>
<td>Gk. ethnis, nation</td>
<td>ethno-logy, ethno-graphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>etio-</td>
<td>Gk. etia, cause</td>
<td>etio-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>etymo-</td>
<td>Gk. etymos, the real word</td>
<td>etymo-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eu</td>
<td>Gk. eu, well, good</td>
<td>eu-charist, eu-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eury-</td>
<td>Gk. eurus, broad</td>
<td>eury-notos, eury-pterus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ex</td>
<td>Lat. ex, out of, beyond</td>
<td>ex-ceed, ex-cite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Used also with Romance words: ex-cise, ex-change, &amp;c.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ex, exo-</td>
<td>Gk. exos for ek, out of, recent</td>
<td>ex-arch, exo-gens</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>extra-</td>
<td>Lat. extra, out of, more than</td>
<td>extra-mundane, ordinary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>female-</td>
<td>Fr. feminine (a gender-word)</td>
<td>female-servant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Eng. fil, the feet</td>
<td>fet-lock, fet-eer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>flor-, flori-</td>
<td>Lat. flor gen, floris, a flower</td>
<td>flor-id, flori-culture</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>for-</td>
<td>Eng. for-, negative, aside</td>
<td>for-bid, for-bear</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>for</td>
<td>Eng. fore, before</td>
<td>for-ward</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fore</td>
<td>Eng. fore, beforehand</td>
<td>fore-know, fore-tell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fore</td>
<td>Eng. fore, front, before</td>
<td>fore-head, fore-father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fore</td>
<td>Eng. fore, leading, chief</td>
<td>fore-horse, fore-man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>forth-</td>
<td>Eng. forth, presently</td>
<td>forth-coming</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fratri-</td>
<td>Lat. frater gen, fratris, a brother</td>
<td>fratri-cide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fro-</td>
<td>Eng. fra, from</td>
<td>fro-ward (perverse)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fructi-</td>
<td>Lat. fructus, fruit</td>
<td>fruct-i-ty, fruct-i-ferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>frugi-</td>
<td>Lat. frugi gen, frugiis, fruit</td>
<td>frugi-ferous, frugi-vorous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gain-</td>
<td>Eng. gean, the opposite</td>
<td>gain-say</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gastro-</td>
<td>Gk. gastérer gen, gastéres, the belly</td>
<td>gastro-nomy, gastro-pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gen-</td>
<td>Gk. génos, breed, descent</td>
<td>genea-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gen, gent-</td>
<td>Lat. gêns gen, gentis, family</td>
<td>gen-erons, gent-eel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>genu-</td>
<td>Lat. genu, the knee</td>
<td>genu-flection</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>geo-</td>
<td>Gk. gé, the earth</td>
<td>geo-graphy, geo-metry</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>germ-</td>
<td>Germ. gêter, a hawk</td>
<td>ger-falcon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glyco-</td>
<td>Gk. glykos, sweet</td>
<td>glycerine, glyco-[r]-hiza</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glycy-</td>
<td>Gk. glykos, sweet</td>
<td>glyco-thon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glypto-</td>
<td>Eng. gluptos, carved</td>
<td>glypto-thon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>god-</td>
<td>Eng. god, by christian rites</td>
<td>god-father, god-child</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gos-</td>
<td>Eng. godes, god's</td>
<td>gos-pel, gos-sip</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>grand-</td>
<td>Fr. grand, once removed</td>
<td>grand-father, grand-son</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Great-grand, twice, great-great-grand, thrice removed)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>grand-</td>
<td>Lat. grandis, grand</td>
<td>grandiloquent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gutta-</td>
<td>Lat. gutta gen, guttae, a drop</td>
<td>gutta-percha, gutti-ferous</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PREFIXES AND PRÉNOUNS.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Gk.</th>
<th>Examples.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Gk. gumnós, naked</td>
<td>gym-notos, gymnospERM</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. guné, a woman</td>
<td>gyn-andria, gyn-o-sperm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. gúros, circular, circuit</td>
<td>gyr-odús, gyro-mancy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hadros, huge</td>
<td>hadro-saurus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. haimagen. haimátês, blood</td>
<td>hæma-chrome, hæma-to-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. haimagen. haimátês, blood</td>
<td>hæma-tose-ine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hagios, holy</td>
<td>hagio-graphy, hagio-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. haima, together with</td>
<td>hama-dryad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hamos, a cap</td>
<td>hazel-nut</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hélês, the sun</td>
<td>heli-anthus, helio-trope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hēmi, half</td>
<td>hemi-sphere, hemi-pteran</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hén, a gender word for a female bird</td>
<td>hen-sparrow, pea-hen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hépar gen. hêpitês, liver</td>
<td>hepat-itis, hepatogastric</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. kepta, seven</td>
<td>hept-archy, hepta-gon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hētērōs, another</td>
<td>heter-archy, hetero-doxy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hex, six</td>
<td>hex-andria, hexa-gon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hērōs, sacred, priestly</td>
<td>hēr-archy, hēro-glyph</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hippos, a horse</td>
<td>hipp-urite, hippo-potamus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. holo, the whole</td>
<td>hol-aster, hol-o-caust</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. homoiōs, like</td>
<td>hemo-pathy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. homos, the same</td>
<td>homi-cide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. homoiōs, like</td>
<td>homonym, homo-logous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hōra, the hour, time</td>
<td>hore-scop, hore-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lat. hortus gen. horti, garden</td>
<td>horticulture</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eng. huts, house</td>
<td>hus-band, hus-wife</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. kudor, water</td>
<td>hydra-angea, hydro-gen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. humen gen. humēndēs, membrane</td>
<td>hypno-terap</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hus gen. hudos, swine</td>
<td>hyho-potamus, hyos-cyamus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hypēra, over, very much</td>
<td>hyper-critical, hyper-hole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. hypro, under</td>
<td>hypochondriac, hypo-theosis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. ichnos, footstep</td>
<td>icho-ite, ichno-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. ichthus gen. ichthuos, a fish</td>
<td>ichthyo-saurus, ichthy-o-graphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gk. cikón gen. cikōnōs, an image</td>
<td>icono-clast, icono-latrية</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Prefixes and Prenouns

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>English Meaning</th>
<th>Greek Word</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>icos-</td>
<td>Twenty</td>
<td>εἴκοσι</td>
<td>icos-andria, icosa-hedron</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>icosa-</td>
<td></td>
<td>εἴκοσα</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>iede-</td>
<td>Idea</td>
<td>ιδέα</td>
<td>iede-ography, iede-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ig-</td>
<td>Five</td>
<td>ιπτός</td>
<td>ig-noble, ig-noramus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ign-, igni-</td>
<td>Fire</td>
<td>ιγκές</td>
<td>ignite, igni-potent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>il-</td>
<td>Five</td>
<td>ιπτός</td>
<td>il-lapse, il-lative</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>il-</td>
<td>Five</td>
<td>ιπτός</td>
<td>il-legal, il-liberal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>im-</td>
<td>Five</td>
<td>ιπτός</td>
<td>il-jurious, il-luminate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρό</td>
<td>in-bide, im-part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in-</td>
<td>Romance</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>im-mortal, im-perfect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ir-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρό</td>
<td>ir-radiate, ir-irigate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>is-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>ir-rational, ir-regular</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>is-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>is-land, Enn-is</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>iso-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>iso-sceles, iso-thermal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>jec-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>jec-ass, jec-daw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>jur-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>juris-diction, juris-prudence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>just-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>just-i-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>juxta-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>juxta-position</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>kal-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>kal-eidoscope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>kick-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>kick-saw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>klepto-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>klepto-mania</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>knap-</td>
<td>In</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>knap-sack</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>labyrinth-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιβαρυνθος</td>
<td>labyrinth-odon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>laest-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεσις</td>
<td>laest-iform</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>land-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεσις</td>
<td>land-scape, land-mark</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lapid-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστέος</td>
<td>lapid-ary, lapid-i-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lateri-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>lateri-folius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lati-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>lati-septe</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>laurus-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>laurus-tinus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>leg-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>leg-ible, leg-end</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>legis-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>legis-late</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>legitim-</td>
<td>Lawful</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>legitim-ate, legitim-ise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lib-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>lib-el, lib-ary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>liber-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>liber-al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lieu-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>lieu-tenant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>liga-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>liga-ment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>limac-</td>
<td>A maze</td>
<td>ιστεος</td>
<td>limac-idea, limaci-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lingua-</td>
<td>The tongue</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>lingua-dental, lingui-form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lingu-</td>
<td>The tongue</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>liquifer-longus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>liqui-</td>
<td>The tongue</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>liquid-ise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>liquid-</td>
<td>The tongue</td>
<td>ιντρο</td>
<td>liquid-ise</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Examples

- Gk. εἴκοσι, twenty - icos-andria, icosa-hedron
- iede-ography, iede-logy
- ιγκές - ignite, igni-potent
- il-lapse, il-lative
- il-legal, il-liberal
- il-jurious, il-luminate
- in-bide, im-part
- im-mortal, im-perfect
- ir-radiate, ir-irigate
- ir-rational, ir-regular
- is-land, Enn-is
- iso-sceles, iso-thermal
- jec-ass, jec-daw
- juris-diction, juris-prudence
- just-i-fy
- juxta-position
- kal-eidoscope
- kick-saw
- klepto-mania
- knap-sack
- labyrinth-odon
- laest-iform
- land-scape, land-mark
- lapid-ary, lapid-i-fy
- lateri-folius
- lati-septe
- laurus-tinus
- leg-ible, leg-end
- legis-late
- legitim-ate, legitim-ise
- lib-el, lib-ary
- liber-al
- lieu-tenant
- liga-ment
- limac-idea, limaci-ous
- lingua-dental, lingui-form
- liquid-ise
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefixes and Pronouns</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>lith-, litho-</td>
<td>Gk. lithos, stone</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>load-</td>
<td>Eng. load, to load</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>logo-</td>
<td>Gk. logos, ratio</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>long-</td>
<td>Lat. longus, longi, long</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>longi-</td>
<td>Lat. longus, longi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>luc-</td>
<td>Lat. lucus, light</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lumin-</td>
<td>Lat. lumen, lumines, light</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lumin-</td>
<td>Lat. lumen, lumen, light</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mac-</td>
<td>Gk. makros, large</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mac-</td>
<td>Gk. makros, large</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>macro-</td>
<td>Gk. makros, large</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mael-</td>
<td>Norwegian mal, evil</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>magneto-</td>
<td>Gk. magnetes, -etes, magnesia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>magn-</td>
<td>Lat. magnus, magni, great</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mald-</td>
<td>Eng. megal (gender word)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mal-</td>
<td>Fr. mal, evilly, not</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mal-</td>
<td>Lat. malus, male, naughty</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>malaco-</td>
<td>Gk. malakos, soft</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mala-</td>
<td>Lat. male, amiss</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>male-</td>
<td>Fr. male, (gender word)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>male-</td>
<td>Lat. mellius, a hammer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>malmö-</td>
<td>Lat. mamma, the breast</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mammali-</td>
<td>Lat. mammalis, adj. of mamma</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mamm-</td>
<td>Fr. main, the hand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>man-</td>
<td>Eng. man, man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>man-</td>
<td>Eng. man, man (a gender word)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mana-</td>
<td>Lat. manus, the hand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>man-</td>
<td>Lat. manus, the hand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>man-</td>
<td>Lat. manus, the hand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>man-</td>
<td>Eng. man, man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mano-</td>
<td>Gk. manos, rarity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>manu-</td>
<td>Lat. manus, the hand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mar-</td>
<td>Eng. mare, a horse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>marcion-</td>
<td>Med. Lat. marcius, marcius, a marquis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mari-</td>
<td>Maria or Mary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mar-</td>
<td>Lat. maritus, a husband</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mar-</td>
<td>Lat. marinus, mare, the sea</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>marial-</td>
<td>Lat. marialis, a husband</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>marimal-</td>
<td>Port. marmelo, quince</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>marqu-</td>
<td>Eng. marc, border land</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mari-</td>
<td>Lat. mas gen. maris, man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mari-</td>
<td>Lat. mars, a man's name</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Martin-</td>
<td>Martin, a man's name</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>martyr-</td>
<td>Gk. martur gen. martiros, a martyr</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>martyr-</td>
<td>Gk. martyrs, a martyr</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mary-</td>
<td>Mary, the &quot;virgin Mary&quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mas-</td>
<td>Lat. mas, the male kind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mast-</td>
<td>Gk. mastos, the breast</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mater-</td>
<td>Lat. mater gen. matris, a mother</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>medieval-</td>
<td>Lat. medius, the middle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mega-</td>
<td>Gk. mega, great</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>megalo-</td>
<td>Gk. megala, great</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Greek</th>
<th>English</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>melan-</td>
<td>Gk. melános</td>
<td>black</td>
<td>melan-choly, melan-chroite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mel-</td>
<td>Gk. mellis</td>
<td>honey</td>
<td>mell-ite, melli-fluous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mem-</td>
<td>Lat. memor</td>
<td>mindful</td>
<td>memor-able, memor-y</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>merc-</td>
<td>Lat. mercis</td>
<td>merchandise</td>
<td>merc-er, merc-ery</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mes-</td>
<td>Gk. méros, middle</td>
<td>meso-carp, meso-thorax</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>met-</td>
<td>Gk. metá, after</td>
<td>met-empyseosis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>met-</td>
<td>Gk. metá, after</td>
<td>meta-physics, -morphosis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meta-</td>
<td>Gk. meta, middle</td>
<td>metáll-form, metáll-ferous</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mett-</td>
<td>Lat. metállum, metal</td>
<td>metall-ury, mettallo-graphy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mett-</td>
<td>Lat. métis, a soldier</td>
<td>milit-ary, milit-1-a</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>milt-</td>
<td>Lat. miltis, a thousand</td>
<td>mill-ennium, mille-pede</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mill-</td>
<td>Lat. milites</td>
<td>mill-ium, mill-ple</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mio-</td>
<td>Gk. méion, less</td>
<td>mio-cene</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mis-</td>
<td>Eng. mis-, wrong</td>
<td>mis-belief, mis-lay</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mis-</td>
<td>Fr. mes-, evil</td>
<td>mis-chance, mis-chief</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mis-</td>
<td>Lat. mínsis, amiss, evil</td>
<td>mis-calculate, mis-fortune</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mis-</td>
<td>Gk. mísco, I hate</td>
<td>mis-anthrope, miso-gny</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mod-</td>
<td>Lat. modus, a measure</td>
<td>mod-ule, modi-fy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mole-</td>
<td>Lat. molés, a mass</td>
<td>mole-cule, mole-st</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>moll-</td>
<td>Lat. mollis-culus (mollis, soft)</td>
<td>moll-us</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mon-</td>
<td>Gk. mónos, only, one</td>
<td>mon-arch, mono-syllable</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mon-</td>
<td>Eng. mőna, the moon</td>
<td>Mon-day</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mort-</td>
<td>Fr. mort, dead</td>
<td>mort-main, mort-gage</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mort-</td>
<td>Lat. mōris gen. mortis, death</td>
<td>morti-fy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mos-</td>
<td>Lat. Mosas, the Meuse (river)</td>
<td>mosa-saurus</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>multi-</td>
<td>Lat. mūltis gen. multi, many</td>
<td>multi-angular, multi-form</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>muni-</td>
<td>Lat. mūnum, a gift</td>
<td>muni-fcent, muni-cipal</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>muni-</td>
<td>Lat. munitio, I fortify</td>
<td>muni-ment</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mur-</td>
<td>Lat. muris gen. mūris, a mouse</td>
<td>mur-1dae, mus-clo</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>musco-</td>
<td>Lat. mūscus, moss</td>
<td>musco-logy (hybrid)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mut-</td>
<td>Lat. muto, I change</td>
<td>mut-able</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>my-</td>
<td>Gk. mýo, I close</td>
<td>my-ops</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myce-</td>
<td>Gk. mýkos, fungus</td>
<td>myce-fllium</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myco-</td>
<td>Gk. mýkos, fungus</td>
<td>myco-logy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myel-</td>
<td>Gk. mýelas, spinal marrow</td>
<td>myel-itis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myl-</td>
<td>Gk. mýlus, a mill</td>
<td>myl-odon</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myo-</td>
<td>Gk. mýos gen. mýos, a muscle</td>
<td>myo-logy, myos-itis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myri-</td>
<td>Gk. mýrios, numberless</td>
<td>myri-ad, myri-acanthus</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nau-</td>
<td>Gk. naus, a ship</td>
<td>nau-machia, nau-ea</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Examples:
- meio-cene
- mel-an-choly, mel-an-chroite
- mell-ite, melli-fluous
- memor-able, memor-y
- merc-er, merc-ery
- meso-carp, meso-thorax
- met-empyseosis
- meta-physics, -morphosis
- metáll-form, metáll-ferous
- metall-ury, mettallo-graphy
- milit-ary, milit-1-a
- mill-ennium, mille-pede
- mio-cene
- mis-belief, mis-lay
- mis-chance, mis-chief
- mis-calculate, mis-fortune
- mis-anthrope, miso-gny
- mod-ule, modi-fy
- mole-cule, mole-st
- moll-us
- mon-arch, mono-syllable
- mort-main, mort-gage
- morti-fy
- mosa-saurus
- multi-angular, multi-form
- muni-fcent, muni-cipal
- muni-ment
- mur-1dae, mus-clo
- musco-logy (hybrid)
- mut-able
- my-ops
- myce-fllium
- myco-logy
- myel-itis
- myl-odon
- myo-logy, myos-itis
- myri-ad, myri-acanthus
- nau-machia, nau-ea
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>navi-</td>
<td>Lat. navis, a ship... navi-gate (i.e. [navi-gari])</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>necro-</td>
<td>Gk. necros, a dead body... necro-mancy, necro-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nectari-</td>
<td>Lat. nectar gen. nectaris... nectarine, nectariferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>neigh-</td>
<td>Eng. neath, near... neigh-bour</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>necro-</td>
<td>Gk. necros, new... neo-logy, neo-phyte</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nether-</td>
<td>Gk. nether, lower, down... nether-land... Nether-lands</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>neuro-</td>
<td>Gk. neuron, nerve... neur-algia, neuro-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>night-</td>
<td>Eng. night... night-shade, night-mare</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nitro-</td>
<td>Gk. nitron, nitre... nitro-gen, nitro-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nocti-</td>
<td>Lat. noci gen. noctis... nocti-vagant, nocto-graph, noctu-ary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>noce-</td>
<td>Lat. nomen gen. nomenis... nomen-clature, nominal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nomen-</td>
<td>Gk. nomen, law... nomo-graphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>non-</td>
<td>Lat. nona, nine... non-illion, non-esimal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nona-</td>
<td>Lat. non, not... non-sense, non-conformist</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>north-</td>
<td>Eng. north... north-ward, north-man</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>noso-</td>
<td>Gk. nosos, disease... noso-graphy, noso-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nought-</td>
<td>Gk. noughtos, bastard... nothin-g, no-body</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>not-</td>
<td>Gk. notos, south... not-ours, noto-therium</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>numismat-</td>
<td>Gk. numisma g.-matos, coin... numismat-ics, numismato-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>numismatic-</td>
<td>Eng. numismat... numis-mat-ics, coin... numismat-ics, numismato-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nut-</td>
<td>O'- Irish (prefixed to men of &quot;family&quot;)... nut-meg, nut-shell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ochlo-</td>
<td>Gk. oklos, the mob... ochlo-acity, ochlo-cray</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oct-</td>
<td>Gk. okta, eight... oct-andria, octa-gen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>octo-</td>
<td>Lat. octo, eight... oct-ennial, octo-syllable</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>octu-</td>
<td>Lat. octo, eight... octu-ple</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>odont-</td>
<td>Gk. odous gen. odontos... odont-algia, odonto-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>onil-</td>
<td>Gk. oinois, wine... oen-anthic, oeno-thera</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of-</td>
<td>Lat. of for ob (before f)... of-fend, of-fer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of-</td>
<td>Eng. of, away from, from... of-fal, off-set</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ole-</td>
<td>Lat. oleum, oil... ole-flat, ole-fo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>olig-</td>
<td>Gk. oligos, a few... olig-archy, oligo-class</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ombro-</td>
<td>Gk. ombros, a shower... ombro-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>on-</td>
<td>Lat. onis, all... omni-scient, omni-potent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>onero-</td>
<td>Eng. on, upon, forth... on-slaughter, on-wards</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oncer-</td>
<td>Gk. oneriros, a dream... onero-mancy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>onomat-</td>
<td>Lat. onom, oneris, a burden... oner-ary, oner-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>onomat-</td>
<td>Gk. onomag, onomatodos, a name... onomat-ology, onomatopeia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oper-</td>
<td>Lat. op- for ob (before -p)... op-pose, op-press</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>opera-</td>
<td>Lat. opus, plu. opera... oper-culum, opera-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ophi-</td>
<td>Gk. ophi, ophiotes a serpent... ophi-cleide, ophi-mancy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>opt-</td>
<td>Gk. opthomas, the eye... opthalm-o-dyneia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>opto-</td>
<td>Gk. optikos, pertaining to sight... opthalamo-scope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>opto-</td>
<td>Gk. optomai, I see... opto-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS.</td>
<td>EXAMPLES.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------------------------</td>
<td>-----------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>organ-</td>
<td>Gk. orgānon, an organ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>organ-</td>
<td>Lat. os, the mouth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>or-</td>
<td>Gk. ὄρος, a mountain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ornith-</td>
<td>Gk. ornis, a bird</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oro-</td>
<td>Gk. oros, a mountain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ortho-</td>
<td>Gk. orthos, right</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>os-</td>
<td>Lat. os, a kiss</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oss-</td>
<td>Lat. os, bones</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oste-</td>
<td>Gk. osteon, a bone</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ostrac-</td>
<td>Gk. ostrakon, a potsherd</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oz-</td>
<td>Gk. ozo, to smell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pachyo-</td>
<td>Gk. pachy, thick</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pal-</td>
<td>Gk. palaios, ancient</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pant-</td>
<td>Gk. pantos, everything</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>par-</td>
<td>Gk. para, near</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>paral-</td>
<td>Gk. parallelos, parallel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>part-</td>
<td>Lat. pars, part</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pass-</td>
<td>Fr. passer, to pass</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>patern-</td>
<td>Lat. paternus, father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>patho-</td>
<td>Gk. pathos, suffering</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>patr-</td>
<td>Gk. patrius, father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pea-</td>
<td>Dutch peijs, a thick coarse cloth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pecto-</td>
<td>Gk. pektos, crined, crystallised</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pectin-</td>
<td>Lat. pecien gen. pectinis, a comb</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prefix</td>
<td>Examples</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>--------</td>
<td>----------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ped-</td>
<td>pector-al, pector-i-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ped-</td>
<td>ped-agoque, pedo-baptism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ped</td>
<td>ped-al, pedi-ment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pel-</td>
<td>pedo-meter, pedo-mancy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pelop-o-</td>
<td>Pelopo-nus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pen-</td>
<td>pen-insula, pen-umbra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-penn-</td>
<td>pen-nule, penni-form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>penny-</td>
<td>penny-worth, penny-wise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-penny-</td>
<td>pent-andria, penta-gon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pert-</td>
<td>pert-ambulate, pertur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-petri-</td>
<td>petri-scope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-petto-</td>
<td>petto-coat, petti-fogger</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phanta-</td>
<td>phanta-morphous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phanto-</td>
<td>phantome</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pharmaco-</td>
<td>pharmaco-pelia, pharma-co</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phil-</td>
<td>phil-anthropy, phil-o-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phon-</td>
<td>phon-ies, phono-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pho-</td>
<td>pho-tonics, pho-to-synapsis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phoro-</td>
<td>phoro-graphy, phoro-phore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phosph-</td>
<td>phosph-ate, phosph-itio</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phot-</td>
<td>phot-opsy, photo-sphere</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phren-</td>
<td>phren-o-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phren-o-</td>
<td>phren-o-morphous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phyll-</td>
<td>phyll-o-gen, phyll-o-pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phys-</td>
<td>phys-ics, physio-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-physio-</td>
<td>physio-grade</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-phyto-</td>
<td>phyto-phoros, phyto-thebans</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pig-</td>
<td>pig-sty, pig-tail</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pin-</td>
<td>pinnate, pini-пед</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-plano-</td>
<td>plano-concave, plan-o-convex</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-plato-</td>
<td>platy-crinite, platy-omous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pleio-</td>
<td>pleio-cene</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-plen-</td>
<td>plen-ar, pleni-potentiary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pleio-</td>
<td>pleio-cene</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pleio-</td>
<td>pleio-cene</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-pleio-</td>
<td>pleio-cene</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Prefixes and Prenomouns

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefixes</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>pleur-</td>
<td>Gk. pleuron, side, rib</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pleuro-</td>
<td>Gk. pleion, full</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>plio-</td>
<td>Lat. plus, more</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>plus-</td>
<td>Lat. plus gen. pluris, more</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>plur-</td>
<td>Lat. Pli. gen. Plutonis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plutoni-</td>
<td>Gk. pneuma gen. pneumatōs, pneumat-ics, pneumat-ology</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pneumat-</td>
<td>Gk. pneuma gen. pneumatōs, pneumat-ics, pneumat-ology</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pneumato-</td>
<td>air, spirit, breath</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pseudes</td>
<td>Gk. pneumon, lungs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pseuds gen. pseudēs, false.</td>
<td>Gk. pneumon, lungs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>psycho-</td>
<td>Gk. psuchē, the soul</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>psychro-</td>
<td>Gk. psychros, cold</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pter-</td>
<td>Gk. pterōn, a wing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pteryg-</td>
<td>Gk. pterus gen. pterōgos, a wing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pterygo-</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pulmo-</td>
<td>Lat. pulmo gen. pulmōnis, lungs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pulmon-</td>
<td>Lat. pulmo gen. pulmōnis, lungs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pulmoni-</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pulm.</td>
<td>Lat. pulsus, the pulse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pulv-</td>
<td>Lat. pulvis, the pulse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pulver-</td>
<td>Lat. pulvis gen. pulvēris, dust</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pur-</td>
<td>Lat. pro, beforehand, forth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pur-(for</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pro)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>pur-</td>
<td>Fr. pour, on, off, away</td>
<td>pur chase, pur loin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pur-</td>
<td>Lat. parum, somewhat</td>
<td>pur blind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pur-</td>
<td>Lat. purus gen. puri, pure</td>
<td>puri fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pur-</td>
<td>Lat. pus gen. puris, pus.</td>
<td>puri form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pycn-</td>
<td>Gk. puknos, thick</td>
<td>pycn odont, pycno style</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pycno-</td>
<td>Gk. pur gen. puros, fire</td>
<td>pyc ope, pyro technic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pyr-</td>
<td>Gk. purēdós, fiery heat</td>
<td>pyre tics, pyreto logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pyro-</td>
<td>Lat. qua dra, a square</td>
<td>quadr angle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quadri-</td>
<td>Lat. quadrus gen. quadri, four</td>
<td>quadr dentate, quadr u ped</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quadru-</td>
<td>Lat. qu a sit, such as, like</td>
<td>qu a l fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quali-</td>
<td>Lat. quantus gen. quanti, much</td>
<td>quantify</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quanti-</td>
<td>Lat. quartus, fourth</td>
<td>quar t er</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quart-</td>
<td>Lat. quaterni, by four</td>
<td>quatern ary, quater n ity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quatro-</td>
<td>Fr. quatre, four</td>
<td>quater fo il</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quin-</td>
<td>Lat. quineque, five</td>
<td>quin decemviri, quin decagon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quinqu-</td>
<td>Lat. quinquies, five</td>
<td>quinq angular, quinqu partite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quint-</td>
<td>Lat. quintus, fifth</td>
<td>quint essence, quintu ple</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quintu-</td>
<td>Lat. quintus centum, a hundred</td>
<td>quint al (a cwt.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>radi-</td>
<td>Lat. radius gen. radii, a ray</td>
<td>radi ate, radio lite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>radi-</td>
<td>Lat. radia gen. radicis, a root</td>
<td>radic ate, radic al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>radio-</td>
<td>Lat. ramus gen. ram i, a branch</td>
<td>ram ous, rami fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rami-</td>
<td>Lat. rarius, rare</td>
<td>rare fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rati-</td>
<td>Lat. ratus gen. rati, firm</td>
<td>rati fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ration-</td>
<td>Lat. ratio gen. rationes, reason</td>
<td>ration al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>re-</td>
<td>Lat. re, again, back</td>
<td>re verse, re animate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>re-</td>
<td>(Added to Teutonic words: as re-open, re-build)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rect-</td>
<td>Lat. rectus gen. recti</td>
<td>rect angle, recti fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>recti-</td>
<td>Lat. rectus gen. regis, a king</td>
<td>reg al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>reg-</td>
<td>Lat. reg gen. regis, a king</td>
<td>reg al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>red-</td>
<td>Seven examples</td>
<td>red eem, red olent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rer-</td>
<td>Eng. bré[an], to raise oneself [in the air]</td>
<td>rere mouse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rete</td>
<td>Fr. arrière, behind</td>
<td>rere dos or rear dos</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>retro-</td>
<td>Lat. retro, backwards</td>
<td>retro grade, retro spect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rhin-</td>
<td>Gk. rhinos, the nose</td>
<td>rhin encephalic, rhino ceros</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rhino-</td>
<td>Gk. rhiza gen. rhizēs, a root</td>
<td>rhiz anth, rhizo pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rhizo-</td>
<td>Gk. rhiza gen. rhizēs, a root</td>
<td>rhiz anth, rhizo pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rhod-</td>
<td>Gk. rhōdon, a rose</td>
<td>rhod ant he, rhodo dendron</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rhodo-</td>
<td>Gk. rhōdon, a rose</td>
<td>rhod ant he, rhodo dendron</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ris-</td>
<td>Lat. risus, a laugh</td>
<td>risi ble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>riv-</td>
<td>Lat. rives, a bank, a river</td>
<td>riv al, riv er</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rota-</td>
<td>Lat. rota gen. roti, a wheel</td>
<td>rota lite, rolt fer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rub-</td>
<td>Lat. ruber, red</td>
<td>rub eola, rubi cand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rubel-</td>
<td>Lat. rubellus, reddish</td>
<td>rubel lite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rubigin-</td>
<td>Lat. rubigo gen. rubiginis, rust</td>
<td>rubigin ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>rus-</td>
<td>Lat. rus gen. ruris, the country</td>
<td>rur [i] ic, rur al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sal-</td>
<td>S for ex. s ample, s carce, s corch; for extra, s tray</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>salsi-</td>
<td>Lat. salser gen. sacrī, sacred</td>
<td>sacrī fice, sacrī l ge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sal-</td>
<td>Lat. sal gen. salis, salt</td>
<td>sal ary, sali ferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>salsi-</td>
<td>Lat. saltus gen. salēt</td>
<td>salsi fy</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Prefixes and Prenouns

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>salut-</td>
<td>Lat. salus gen. salutis; salutation</td>
<td>salut-ary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>salvi-</td>
<td>Lat. salus gen. salutis; salutary</td>
<td>salvi-ble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sancti-</td>
<td>Lat. sanctus gen. sancti, sacred</td>
<td>sancti-fy, sanctu-ary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sanctu-</td>
<td>Lat. sanctus gen. sancti, sacred</td>
<td>sancti-fy, sanctu-ary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sangui-</td>
<td>Lat. sanguis gen. sanguinis, blood</td>
<td>sangui-ferous, sanguini-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sans-</td>
<td>Lat. sans without</td>
<td>sans-culotte</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sapo-</td>
<td>Lat. sapor gen. saporis, flavour</td>
<td>sapor-ous, sapor-i-ic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>saro-</td>
<td>Lat. sarkos flesh</td>
<td>saro-asm, sarco-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sati-</td>
<td>Lat. satis, enough</td>
<td>sati-ate, sati-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sam-</td>
<td>Lat. sam, half</td>
<td>sam-blind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>saur-</td>
<td>Lat. saurus, a lizard</td>
<td>saur-ichthys, sauro-pus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>saxi-</td>
<td>Lat. saxum, gen. saxi, a rock, a stone</td>
<td>saxi-cavous, saxi-frage</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>schismat-</td>
<td>Gk. schisma g. schismatos, schism</td>
<td>schismat-ic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>schizo-(for schisto-)</td>
<td>Gk. schistos, cleft, cloven</td>
<td>schizo-pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>scle-</td>
<td>Gk. skia gen. skisis, shadow</td>
<td>scle-rectine, sclero-derm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sclero-</td>
<td>Gk. scleratos, hard</td>
<td>sclerot-ic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>se-</td>
<td>Lat. se (scorpium), out of, from, off</td>
<td>se-cede, se-clude</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>seismo-</td>
<td>Gk. seismos, earthquake</td>
<td>seismo-graph, seismo-scope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>selen-</td>
<td>Gk. selene, the moon</td>
<td>selen-ite, seleno-graphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>self-</td>
<td>Eng. self, one's proper person</td>
<td>self-taught, self-will</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>semio-</td>
<td>Gk. smeios, a sign, a symptom</td>
<td>semi-log, semi-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>semi-</td>
<td>Lat. semi, half</td>
<td>semi-colon, semi-acid</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sen- (for seven)</td>
<td>Eng. septem, seven</td>
<td>sen-night, sen-nit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sens-</td>
<td>Lat. sensus, sense</td>
<td>sens-ible, sensu-al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sensu-</td>
<td>Lat. septem, septi-seven</td>
<td>sept-en-nial, septi-lateral</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sept-</td>
<td>Lat. septem, seven</td>
<td>Septem-ber, septen-ate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>septenni-</td>
<td>Lat. septem gen. septi, a fold</td>
<td>septi-ate, septi-form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>septen-</td>
<td>Lat. septem, septu-seven (1 exam.)</td>
<td>septu-pile</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sesqui-</td>
<td>Lat. septem, septu-seven (1 exam.)</td>
<td>sesqui-bromide, -pedalian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>set-</td>
<td>Lat. seta gen. seta, a bristle</td>
<td>set-ose, seti-ferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sex-</td>
<td>Lat. sex, six</td>
<td>sex-en-nial</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sext-</td>
<td>Lat. sexitis, six</td>
<td>sext-ion, sextine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sexu-</td>
<td>Eng. sex, sharp</td>
<td>sexu-ple</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sharp-</td>
<td>Eng. sex, sharp</td>
<td>sharp-set, sharp-en</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>she-</td>
<td>Eng. sex, female</td>
<td>she-wolf, she-bear</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>she-</td>
<td>Eng. sex, sharp</td>
<td>she-riff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>shod-</td>
<td>Past part. of shed, to throw off</td>
<td>shodd-y</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sider-</td>
<td>Lat. sidus gen. sideri, a star</td>
<td>sidere-al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sidero-</td>
<td>Gk. sidereos, iron</td>
<td>sider-ite, sidero-scope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prefixes</td>
<td>Examples</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------</td>
<td>----------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sign-</td>
<td>Lat. signum gen. signi, a sign</td>
<td>sign-al, sign-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>signi-</td>
<td>Lat. signum gen. signi, a sign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>silic-</td>
<td>Lat. silex gen. silicis, flint</td>
<td>silic-ate, silic-calcareous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>silicif-</td>
<td>Lat. silex gen. silicis, flint</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>simpl-</td>
<td>Lat. simplex gen. simplex, simple</td>
<td>simpli-fy, simpli-ty</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>simplifi-</td>
<td>Lat. simplex gen. simplex, simple</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sin-, sine-</td>
<td>Lat. sine, without</td>
<td>sin-cere, sine-cure</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>so- (sub)</td>
<td>Through the French</td>
<td>so-journ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>soci-</td>
<td>Lat. socius g. socii, a companion</td>
<td>soci-al, socio-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>soclio-</td>
<td>Lat. socius g. socii, a companion</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sol-</td>
<td>Lat. sol, the sun</td>
<td>sol-ar, sol-stice</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>soli-</td>
<td>Lat. soleus g. solis, alone</td>
<td>soil-loquy, soil-ped</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sonn-</td>
<td>Lat. somnum gen. sonni, sleep</td>
<td>somn-ambulista, somn-ferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sonmil-</td>
<td>Lat. somnum gen. sonni, sleep</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>son-</td>
<td>Lat. sonus gen. soni, a sound</td>
<td>soni-ferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sono-</td>
<td>Lat. sonus gen. soni, a sound</td>
<td>sono-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sonor-</td>
<td>Lat. sonor gen. sonoris, noise</td>
<td>sonor-ous, sonori-fic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sonorif-</td>
<td>Lat. sonor gen. sonoris, noise</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>soph-</td>
<td>Gk. sophos, wise</td>
<td>soph-ist, soph-ism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sopori-</td>
<td>Lat. sopor gen. soporis, sleep</td>
<td>sopori-fic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spec-</td>
<td>Lat. species, appearance, species</td>
<td>spec-aI, spec-a-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spectro-</td>
<td>Lat. spectrum, a spectrum</td>
<td>spectro-scope, spectro-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spin-</td>
<td>Gk. sphaira g. sphaerds, a sphere</td>
<td>spin-ics, sphero-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spinif-</td>
<td>Gk. sphaira g. sphaerds, a sphere</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spir-</td>
<td>Lat. spiritus, spirit</td>
<td>spirit-less, spirit-ual</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spiri-</td>
<td>Lat. spiro, I breathe</td>
<td>spiro-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spleen-</td>
<td>Gk. splanchon, the viscera</td>
<td>spleancho-ic, spleancho-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spleunche-</td>
<td>Gk. splanchon, the viscera</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spor-</td>
<td>Gk. sporos g. sporidos, a spore</td>
<td>spor-i-um, spor-o-carb</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sporid-</td>
<td>Gk. sporos g. sporidos, a spore</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>staphyl-</td>
<td>Gk. staphylin, a bunch of grapes</td>
<td>staphyl-oma, staphyl-o-raphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>staphyl-</td>
<td>Gk. staphylin, a bunch of grapes</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>star-</td>
<td>Span. estri, the right-hand side</td>
<td>star-board</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stear-</td>
<td>Gk. steator gen. steatos, scent</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>steat-</td>
<td>Gk. steator gen. steatos, scent</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sten-</td>
<td>Gk. stenos, thin, small</td>
<td>steno-saurus, steno-graphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>steno-</td>
<td>Gk. stenor gen. stentoros, a</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stentor-</td>
<td>Gk. stenor gen. stentoros, a</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stereo-</td>
<td>Gk. stereos, solid</td>
<td>stereo-type, stereo-scope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stetho-</td>
<td>Gk. stethos, the breast, the chest</td>
<td>stetho-scope, stetho-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stoma-</td>
<td>Gk. stoma, the mouth</td>
<td>stom-at, stoma-pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>strati-</td>
<td>Lat. stratum gen. strati, a layer</td>
<td>strati-fy, strati-form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>strato-</td>
<td>Gk. stratos, an army</td>
<td>strato-cray</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>straw-</td>
<td>Eng. straw, straggling</td>
<td>straw-berry</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stultif-</td>
<td>Lat. stultus gen. stulti, foolish,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sub-</td>
<td>Lat. sub, under, inferior</td>
<td>substi-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>subter-</td>
<td>Lat. subter, underneath, under-</td>
<td>substi-fy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>suc-</td>
<td>Lat. suc for sub (before -e)</td>
<td>subter-fuge</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Added to Teutonic words as:)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sub-</th>
<th>Lat. sub for sub (before -e)</th>
<th>subter-fuge</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>sub-</td>
<td>Lat. sub for sub (before -e)</td>
<td>subter-fuge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sub-</td>
<td>Lat. sub for sub (before -e)</td>
<td>subter-fuge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sub-</td>
<td>Lat. sub for sub (before -e)</td>
<td>subter-fuge</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*(in Chem.) the article named inferior to the base | sub-carburet |

(Defined for sub in the article named inferior to the base | sub-carburet |
Prefixes and Prenouns

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>suf-</td>
<td>Lat. suf for sub (before -f)</td>
<td>suf-fer, suf-fix</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sug-</td>
<td>Lat. sug for sub (one example)</td>
<td>sug-gest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>su-</td>
<td>Lat. sui, one self</td>
<td>sui-cide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sulph-</td>
<td>suiphur gen. sulpharius, sulphur</td>
<td>sulph-uret, sulpho-vine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sulpho-</td>
<td>sulphur</td>
<td>sulpha-vine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sum-</td>
<td>Lat. sum for sub (before -m)</td>
<td>sum-mon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sumptu-</td>
<td>Lat. sumptus, expense</td>
<td>sumptu-ary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>super-</td>
<td>Lat. super for sub (before -p)</td>
<td>sup-pose, sup-port</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>super-</td>
<td>Lat. super for sub (before -p)</td>
<td>super-BOUND, super-cargo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sur-</td>
<td>Fr. sur (Lat. super), over</td>
<td>sur-base, sur-mount</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sur-</td>
<td>Lat. circum, around, about</td>
<td>sur-round</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sur-</td>
<td>Lat. sur for sub (before -r)</td>
<td>sur-render, sur-rogate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sur-</td>
<td>Lat. sur for super, over, beyond</td>
<td>sur-plies, sur-face</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sus-</td>
<td>Lat. sus for sub (before -c, -s, -p, -t)</td>
<td>sus-ceptible and sus-[s]-pect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sword-</td>
<td>Eng. sword, a sword</td>
<td>sword-play, sword-stick</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>syco-</td>
<td>Gk. sukos, a fig</td>
<td>syce-mère, syce-phant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>syl-</td>
<td>Gk. sul₄ for su, with</td>
<td>syl-logism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sym-</td>
<td>Gk. *sym₄ for sun (before -b, -m, -p)</td>
<td>sym-metry, sym-pathy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>syn-</td>
<td>Gk. sun, with</td>
<td>syn-onym, syn-opis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sy-</td>
<td>Gk. sun (before -s, -z)</td>
<td>sy-stole, sy-zyg</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tauto-</td>
<td>Gk. to auto, the same</td>
<td>tauto-logy, tauto-phony</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tax-</td>
<td>Gk. taxis gen. taxi, a yew-tree</td>
<td>tax-ite</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>taxo-</td>
<td>Gk. taxeos, classification</td>
<td>taxo-nomy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tech-</td>
<td>Gk. technē, art</td>
<td>techn-ic, techno-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tech-</td>
<td>Gk. tele-, tele-</td>
<td>tel-erpeton, tele-scope</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tele-</td>
<td>Gk. tele-, tele-</td>
<td>tele-saurus, tele-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tempor-</td>
<td>Lat. tempus gen. temporis, time</td>
<td>tempor-al, tempor-is</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tenaci-</td>
<td>Lat. tenax gen. tendēks, adhesive</td>
<td>tenaci-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tenecr-</td>
<td>Lat. terebren, darkness</td>
<td>tenecr-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ter-</td>
<td>Lat. ter (in Chem.), three atoms of the substance named, generally refers to the negative constituent ter-acetate [of lead]</td>
<td>ter-acetate of lead = 3 atoms of acetic acid to 1 oxide of lead</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ter-</td>
<td>Lat. tergy gen. tergi, the back</td>
<td>tergi-pression, tergi-ferous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>terr-</td>
<td>Lat. terra gen. terra, earth</td>
<td>terr-aqueous, terr-i-genous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>terri-</td>
<td>Lat. terror gen. terrois, terror</td>
<td>terri-fy, terri-ble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>testi-</td>
<td>Lat. testis, a witness</td>
<td>testi-fy, testi-mony</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tet-</td>
<td>Gk. tetra, four</td>
<td>tet-a-rch, tetra-gon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>theca-</td>
<td>Gk. thekē, a sheath</td>
<td>thec-odont, theca-phore</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>theo-</td>
<td>Gk. theos, god</td>
<td>the-ist, theo-logy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>therm-</td>
<td>Gk. thermos, heat</td>
<td>therm-al, thermo-meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>thor-</td>
<td>Eng. tharub, through</td>
<td>thorough-fare, thorough-bred</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thurs-</td>
<td>Eng. Thor g. Thores, a Scand. god</td>
<td>Thurs-day</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to-</td>
<td>Eng. adverbial prefix</td>
<td>to-day, to-morrow</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tom-</td>
<td>A gender word (male)</td>
<td>Tom-cat, tom-tit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tox-</td>
<td>Gk. toxikon, poison</td>
<td>tox-odon, toxico-logy</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PREFIXES AND PRENOUNS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Example</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Trachei-</td>
<td>Gk. trachéiOS, the neck or throat</td>
<td>Trachei-Pod (Trachéi-Poda ought to be tracheo-poda)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trach-</td>
<td>Gk. tracheia, the wind-pipe</td>
<td>Trachitis, Tracheotomy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tracheo-</td>
<td>Eng. trade, a beat, a tread</td>
<td>Trade-Wind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trach-</td>
<td>Lat. tra- for trans, across</td>
<td>Tra-montane, Tra-duce</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tran-</td>
<td>Lat. tra- for trans (before -f)</td>
<td>Trag-Edy (for Trag-Edy)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trans-</td>
<td>Lat. trans, across, elsewhere</td>
<td>Trans-Fer, Trans-Plant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tra-</td>
<td>Lat. trans</td>
<td>Romance (Lat. trans)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trag-</td>
<td>Gk. tragos, a goat</td>
<td>Trag-Edy (for Trag-Edy)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tractia-</td>
<td>Gk. tractia, the wind-pipe</td>
<td>Tractia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trade-</td>
<td>Eng. trade, a beat, a tread</td>
<td>Trade-Wind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tra-</td>
<td>Lat. tra- for trans (before -f)</td>
<td>Tra-Fic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trag-</td>
<td>Gk. tragos, a goat</td>
<td>Trag-Edy (for Trag-Edy)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trans-</td>
<td>Lat. trans, across, elsewhere</td>
<td>Trans-Fer, Trans-Plant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trigone-</td>
<td>Gk. trigonon, a triangle</td>
<td>Trigono-Metry, Trigono-Pod</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tri-, Triph-</td>
<td>Gk. treis, three</td>
<td>Tri-Phyllons, Triph-Thong</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tris-</td>
<td>Gk. treis, three</td>
<td>Tris-Agion, Tris-Megistus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Turn-</td>
<td>Eng. tyrn[an], to turn</td>
<td>Turn-Stile, Turn-Coat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tur-</td>
<td>Eng. turb, round</td>
<td>Tur-Nip</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Twi-</td>
<td>Eng. twon, doubtful</td>
<td>Twi-Light</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Typ-, Typo-</td>
<td>Gk. tupos, type</td>
<td>Typ-Ec, Typo-Graphy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Udo- (for)</td>
<td>Gk. hudo, water</td>
<td>Udo-Meter (for Hydo-Meter)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ultra-</td>
<td>Lat. ultra, beyond</td>
<td>Ultra-Montane, Ultra-Radical</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Umbr-</td>
<td>Lat. umbra, a shadow</td>
<td>Umbre-Age, Umbre-Ella</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Un-, Uni-</td>
<td>Lat. unus, one</td>
<td>Un-True, Un-Wind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Under-</td>
<td>Eng. under, beneath, inferior</td>
<td>Under-Ground, -Secretary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Und-ul-</td>
<td>Lat. und-ul, undo, a wave</td>
<td>Undul-Ate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ungu-</td>
<td>Lat. unguis, a nail, a hoof</td>
<td>Ungu-Al, Ungu-Form</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uni-</td>
<td>Lat. unus, one</td>
<td>Uni-Form, Uni-Son</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Usque-</td>
<td>Irish usque, water</td>
<td>Usque-Bangh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Usu-</td>
<td>Lat. usu, use</td>
<td>Usu-Fract, Usu-Al</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uxori-</td>
<td>Lat. uxor, a wife</td>
<td>Uxori-Ous</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Examples.

1. Trachéi-Poda ought to be tracheo-poda.
2. Trag-Edy (for Trag-Edy).
3. Udo-Meter (for Hydo-Meter).
5. Tri-Phyllons.
7. Turn-Stile.
9. Twilight.
10. Typo-Graphy.
11. Udo-Meter (for Hydo-Meter).
13. Umbre-Age.
15. Under-Ground.
17. Ungu-Al.
18. Uni-Form.
19. Usque-Bangh.
20. Usu-Fract.
SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS.

*By permission from Dr. Brewer's "Prefixes and Suffixes."

The part in brackets [ ] is either the vinculum of a suffix or an accidental part of the termination. It is displayed in this list for three reasons: (1) because the general reader will more easily find the termination he seeks for by having it written out in full; (2) because it very often affects the suffix with "a new shade of meaning;" thus -[tr]ess is more than a mere female like -ess (in "lion-ess"), as the tr denotes that the word is not only a female but a female agent; and (3) it guides to a declension, conjugation, and sometimes even to a language.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Suffix</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-a</td>
<td>Romance Noun, denotes a woman</td>
<td>donn-a, sultan-a</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]ble</td>
<td>Lat. Adj., able to be, fit to be</td>
<td>eat[-a]ble, culp[-a]ble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]c</td>
<td>Lat. Adjectival Noun, possessed of</td>
<td>demoni[-a]c</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]ce</td>
<td>Lat. Adjectival Noun, made of, produced from</td>
<td>terr[-a]ce, men[-a]ce</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]ceous</td>
<td>Lat. Adjectival Noun, from a concrete noun</td>
<td>sapou[-a]ceous, argil[-a]ceous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]che</td>
<td>Lat.-aceus: Ital. -acito.</td>
<td>moust[-a]che</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]cius</td>
<td>Lat. [a]c, g. -cis</td>
<td>aud[-a]cius, ten[-a]cius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-aci]ous</td>
<td>Lat. [-atios]-us, Adj., from an abstract noun</td>
<td>gr[aci]ous, sp[aci]ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-aci]ity</td>
<td>Lat. -[a]c-ilas</td>
<td>aud[a]c-i-ty, ten[a]c-ity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]c-le</td>
<td>Lat. -[a]c-ul-um</td>
<td>tabern[-a]c-le</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]c-y</td>
<td>Lat. -[a]c-ia</td>
<td>recep[-a]c-le, or[ace]</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[-a]cy</td>
<td>Gk. [-a]cia; Lat. -cia-cia</td>
<td>cur[-a]c-y, pap[-a]c-y</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

"cy" denotes rank, office, jurisdiction, but "-sy" condition, the arts: as palsy, apostasy, minstrel-sy.

---

Abstract nouns are those which are formed from adjectives: as vital-ity from "vital," white-ness from "white," audacity from "audax" (bold), constancy from "constant."
SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Suffix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-ad</td>
<td>Gk. -as g. -a- os</td>
<td>Noun, the concrete of an idea</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ada</td>
<td>Fr. -ada; Lat.</td>
<td>Noun, concocted, made</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ado</td>
<td>Fr. -ado; Lat.</td>
<td>Verb, to use, to employ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-age</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, to do Noun, a trade, a thing done</td>
<td>broker-age, marriage</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-agen</td>
<td>Fr. -agen</td>
<td>Noun, collective, season of</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Added also to Teutonic nouns: as "till-age," "sott-age," "boud-age").

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Suffix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-age</td>
<td>Fr. -age</td>
<td>Noun, condition, duty</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen the Fr. [a] gene</td>
<td>Noun, characterised</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, office, rank (good or bad)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen the Fr. [a] gene</td>
<td>Noun, characterised</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen the Fr. [a] gene</td>
<td>Adj. from a noun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjetival noun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us, um Noun</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us, adjectives Abstract noun, state</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adj., belonging to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjectival noun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us Noun</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us Noun</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Also joined to Teutonic words: as "forbear-ance," "hinder-ance").

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Suffix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Abstract noun, state</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, to be done</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us Noun</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us Noun</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us Noun</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, one of a class</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, one of a craft</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, a depot, adapted or set apart for</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, made of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, in depreciation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, star-struck</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, office</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Verbal noun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun (in Chem) denotes a salt formed by the combination of an acid in -ic with a base</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adjective, inclined to, favored by</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Verb, to energise</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Noun, agent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-aigen</td>
<td>Lat. -a gen, us</td>
<td>Adj. or Adjetival noun</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS.

-ber | Sanskrit var-a, | Noun, time or month of the year | October, December-ber.
-blé | Rom. -ple | Noun, multiplicative | double, treble.
-bli | Lat. habilitus | Adj., fit for, full of | humble, feeble.
-bli | Lat. -bul-an | Noun, instrument | stable, mandible.
-bli | Lat. -bul-an | Gerundial noun | bag-bond.
-li | Lat. -brum | Noun, instrument | candelabrum (robe-depôt).
-bund | Lat. -bund-us | Gerundial noun | mori-bund.
-c | Lat. -cus | Adj. | from[i]-c, rust[i]-c.
-c | Lat. -cus | Adjectival noun | crit[i]-c, mania-c.
-clar | Lat. -c[a], -cia | Noun, denoting a genus | angeli-[c], lactu-[c].
-ce | Lat. -ci-a, -ci-a | Abstract noun | justi-ce, mali-ce.
-ceed | Lat. ceda, to go | Verb, to go | pre-ceed, pro-ceed.
-cell | Ital. -celli; Lat. -culus | Noun, dim. | vermi-cell.
-cello | Ital. -cello | Noun, dim. | violon-cello.
-chre | Fr. -cre; Lat. -chre | Noun, dépôt, instrument | secpul-chre.
-chre | Gk. chroa | Noun, colour of | ochre (egg-colour).
-cle | Lat. -cul-us | Noun, dim. | canti-cle, mius-cle.
-cle | Lat. -cul-an | Noun, dim. instrument | tenta-cle, ventr-cle.
-cule | Lat. -cul-an | Noun, dim. | corpus-cule.
-culum | Lat. -cul-an | Noun, dim. | animal-culum.
-cund | Lat. -cund-us | Adj., endowed with | jo-[c]und.
-ely | Fr. -cely; Lat. -ely | Abstract noun | excellent-[c], constant-[c].
-er | Lat. -er, -ear; Gk. -er | Noun, office, state, jurisdiction | magistra-cy, cura-cy.

(Different for -cy and -sy, see page xil.)

d | Eng. -de, -[e]de, Past tense of weak | hear-d, sle-d.
-den | Eng. den | for In names of places, a | Tenter-den.
-dom | Eng. -dom | Noun, rule, province | king-dom, wis-dom.

(This suffix is also used with Romance words: as "duke-dom," martyr-dom.")

-[d]or | Span. -[d]or | Noun, agent, instrument | corn-[d]or (a runner).
-[d]oor | Fr. -[d]oir | Noun, instrument | battle-[d]oor.
-let | Lat. -o | Verb | produce-o, divid-e.

(Very often it is added merely to lengthen the preceding vowel: as cloth, clothe.)

-[el] | Gk. -[el] | Noun, a sub-genus | amygda-[el].
-[el] | Lat. -[el]a | Adj. or Adjectival noun | Mediterr-[el]a.

(Also added to nouns: as "horn-ed," "wing-ed," "foot-ed.")

-ed | Eng. | Added to all verbs not | syllabl-ed (Gk.).

From native words | expand-ed (Lat.).

-ne | Fr. -ne | Noun, object of some action | legat-ne, mortgag-ne.

(Chiefly used in legal phraseology, the corresponding active noun, or that which is the subject of the action being -or: as "mortgag-or," "legat-er.")

. In some few words this suffix is added to nouns of an active character: as "devot-ne," "grand-ne," "repart-ne," "absent-ne."
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-[e]ll</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-[e]ll</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-[e]ll</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-[e]ll</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-cl</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(The final -el of many other words is only a part of the termination: thus in "gospel" it is -spel, in "hydromel" it is -mel, in "rebel" it is bell-um, in "excel" it is cell-0, in "refel" it fall-o, &c.

| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]n-us | Noun, one of a class | all-[e]n |
| -[e]n | Eng. -an, -en | Plural of certain nouns | ox-[e]n |
| -[e]n | Eng. -en | Gender-noun, female | vix-[e]n (a she-fox) |
| -[e]n | Eng. -en | Adj., made of | wood-[e]n, gold-[e]n |
| -[e]n | Eng. -en | Verb, to make | black-[e]n, thick-[e]n |
| -[e]n | Eng. -en | P. p. of strong verbs | written, shak-[e]n |
| -[e]in | Lat. -[e]n-us | Adjectival noun | cover-[e]ln (super-[e]n) |
| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]nt-ia; | Fr. -[e]nce | Noun, result, exhibit |
| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]nt-ia; | Fr. -[e]nce | Noun, result, exhibit |
| -[e]nd | Lat. -[e]nd-us | Adj., to be, to be done | rever-[e]nd, divid-[e]nd |
| -[e]nous | Lat. -[e]nous | Adj., fit to produce | trem-[e]nous, stup-[e]nous |
| -[e]nisis | Lat. -[e]nisis | Noun, Instrument | amann-[e]nisis |
| -[e]nt | Lat. -[e]nt-us | Participle noun | stud-[e]nt, accid-[e]nt |
| -[e]nt | Eng. -or, -ra | Comparative degree | near-r, narrow-r |
| -[e]nt | Eng. -ere | Noun, agent | learn-r, robb-er |
| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]r, -[e]r | Noun, agent | mast-[e]r, defend-[e]r |
| -[e]n | Fr. -[e]r | Noun, agent | labour-[e]r, devin-[e]r |
| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]r-ius | Noun, occupation, trade | mountain-[e]r, engin-[e]r |
| -[e]nel | Fr. -erelle, -erel. | Noun, agent, dim. | cock-erel, dott-erel |
| -[e]n | Eng. -ern | Adj., in the direction of | south-[e]rn, north-[e]rn |
| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]rn-us, | [e]rn | Noun, place |
| -[e]n | Lat. -[e]ri-a, | -[e]ri-a | Noun, dépôt, workshop |
| -[e]ry | Lat. -[e]ri-a, | -[e]ri-a | Noun, an art, result of |
| -[e]ry | Eng. -es, later-es | Plu. of nouns in ch | church-es, fish-es, |
| -[e]ry | Eng. -es, later | Sing. pres. Ind. of v. | reach-es, wash-es, |

(The sign () arose from a blunder of old grammarians, who supposed the possessive case to consist of "his," and we still have in the Prayer Book "for Christ his sake," i.e. Christ's sake, or rather Christ's sake.)

| -es' | Eng. | Poss. of proper names |
| -es' | Eng. | in- |
| -es' | Eng. | Verb, inceptive (sc inceptive) |
| -es' | Eng. | Noun, inceptive, incipient state |
| -es' | Eng. | Noun, inceptive, advanced state |

Moses' sake, Xerxes' army
Suffixes and Terminations

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIX</th>
<th>MEANING</th>
<th>EXAMPLES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-escent</td>
<td>Adj., inceptive, finished state</td>
<td>convalescent, putrescent, Chin-esc, Malt-esc, Japan-esc</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ess</td>
<td>Fr. [es]-, [e]-, [a]-, [a]-</td>
<td>Noun, denoting a female person; Adj. count-ess, lion-ess</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-esque</td>
<td>Fr. -esque</td>
<td>Adj., like, of the character of operesque, Arab-esque</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-eous</td>
<td>Lat. -eous</td>
<td>Adj. from concrete nouns calcarious (see -ious)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-et</td>
<td>Lat. -et-us, -et-a</td>
<td>Noun, one of a class proph-et, dig-et</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-let</td>
<td>Fr. -et, -ell</td>
<td>Noun, a small receptacle or instrument. budg-et, buff-et, lanc-et</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-like</td>
<td>Adj.</td>
<td>like, resembling a people; Adj. God-heml, boy-hood, girl-hood</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-like</td>
<td>Noun</td>
<td>one of a class proph-et, dig-et</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-less</td>
<td>Fr. -less</td>
<td>Noun, denoting a people; Adj. pictur-less, Arab-less</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-less</td>
<td>Fr. -less</td>
<td>Noun, denoting a people; Adj. pictur-less, Arab-less</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ly</td>
<td>Lat. -ly</td>
<td>Adverb med-ly (Fr. melle)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ly</td>
<td>Eng. -ly</td>
<td>Adverb journ-ly, vall-ly, void-ly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ly</td>
<td>Eng. -ly</td>
<td>Noun, alter !-oy-ey, chimp-ey, journ-ey, vall-ey, void-ey</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| -ly | Eng. -ly | Noun, alteration of people; Adj. effeetually, entirely.

The words with this ending are all compounds: thus "com-plete" and "re-plete" (Lat. v. pleo), "con-crete" (Lat. v. creco), "de-lete" (Lat. v. leo), "et-eto" (Lat. fact-us), "ob-soleto" (Lat. v.soleo), and "se-crete" (Lat. v. corno).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIX</th>
<th>MEANING</th>
<th>EXAMPLES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-ey</td>
<td>Fr. -ey</td>
<td>Noun, all-ey, chimp-ey, journ-ey, vall-ey, void-ey</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ey</td>
<td>Fr. -ey</td>
<td>Noun, one of a class. proph-et, dig-et</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ay</td>
<td>Fr. -ay</td>
<td>Noun, parli-ey (Fr. parlier)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ey</td>
<td>Eng. -ey</td>
<td>Noun, parli-ey (Fr. parlier)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ey</td>
<td>Eng. -ey</td>
<td>Verb and Verbal noun. hon-ey (hunig)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ey</td>
<td>Eng. -ey</td>
<td>Noun, alter !-oy-ey, chimp-ey, journ-ey, vall-ey, void-ey</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ey</td>
<td>Eng. -ey</td>
<td>Verb, to make, to become versa-fi, testi-fi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Adj., having much hate-ful, hope-ful</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Verb, to make, to become versa-fi, testi-fi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun (in Chem.) a gas oxy-gen, nitro-gen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, person, state, condition God-head</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, things belonging to boy-hood, girl-hood</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, (in Bot.) an order or genus; (in Zool.) a class or order regal-ia, insign-ia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, (in Bot.) an order or genus; (in Zool.) a class or order regal-ia, insign-ia</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This suffix is restricted to females of the human family and some few quadrupeds.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIX</th>
<th>MEANING</th>
<th>EXAMPLES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Adj., having much hate-ful, hope-ful</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Verb, to make, to become versa-fi, testi-fi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun (in Chem.) a gas oxy-gen, nitro-gen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, person, state, condition God-head</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, things belonging to boy-hood, girl-hood</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, (in Bot.) an order or genus; (in Zool.) a class or order regal-ia, insign-ia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ful</td>
<td>Eng. -ful or -ful</td>
<td>Noun, (in Bot.) an order or genus; (in Zool.) a class or order regal-ia, insign-ia</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: The words with this ending are all compounds: thus "com-plete" and "re-plete" (Lat. v. pleo), "con-crete" (Lat. v. creco), "de-lete" (Lat. v. leo), "et-eto" (Lat. fact-us), "ob-soleto" (Lat. v. soleo), and "se-crete" (Lat. v. corno).
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-iad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ible</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Same as -able, but added to Lat. words not of the 1st conj.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Except in the 5 words (arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetoric, derived from the French) this termination is always plural.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(If not excited, the termination is -oid or -ode: as titanoid or titanate.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ical</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ically</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ie</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ician</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-dict</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-id</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ied</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ideal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ideal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ides</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-idion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iform</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ier</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iform</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-im</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-in</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-iun</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Suffixes and Terminations

- -in Lat. -in-us
  Noun, (in Chem.) a simple substance amid-in

- -ina Rom. -ina
  Noun, denotes a woman czar-ina

- -ine Lat. -in-us
  Noun, belonging to a group fel-ine

- -ine Rom. -ine
  Noun, denotes a woman of the nature of mar-ine, sal-ine

- -ine Gk. in-is, an
  Noun, (in Chem.) an offspring chlor-ine, iod-ine

- -ing Eng. -ing
  Noun, son of, descendant of Athel-ling

- -ing Eng. -ing
  Participle noun the preach-ing (of John)

- -ing Eng. -ing
  Gerund... the fear of open-ing... love-ing, hear-ing

- -[jon Lat.-[jon, g.-[onis.
  Fr. [-jon
  Noun, act of, one of... compa-n-[jon

- -[jon Lat.-[jon, g.-[onis.
  Verbal noun... admiss-[jon, relig-[jon

- -[jon Lat.-[jon, g.-[onis.
  Adj., comparative deg. super-[jon, infer-[jon

(The suffix -or is added to the first case of the positive which ends in -i: thus in superius (high) it is added to the gen., but in brevis to the dat.)

- -ious Lat. -ius
  Adj., (in Bot.) pertaining to a class, order, or group monogyn-ious

- -[jon Lat.-[jon, g.-[onis.
  Adjective from an abstract noun gracio-ious (see -eous)

- -que Fr. from Lat. anti-que, un-ique

- -ise Lat. -is-um. cxero-ise, parad-ise

- -ise Gk. -izo verb, to undertake to do, to make apolo-ise, sermon-ise

- -ish Eng. -ise external resemblance, hence folk... English, Ir-ish

- -ish Eng. -ise broken-ness, hence folk... boy-ish, girl-ish

- -ise Eng. -ise adjectival verb, inchoative whit-ish, black-ish

- -isk Gk. -isk-os... apost-isk

- -[ism Lat.-[ism, sm-ous;
  Noun, a system, a doctrine, a phase, a structu-rose Calvin-[ism, vulgar-[ism, organ-[ism

- -iste Lat. -iste
  Noun, agent... art-iste, antagon-iste

- -ister Gk. -ister verb, engaged in doing mer-iste, pulp-iste

- -ite Lat. -ite verb, un-ite, inv-ite

- -ite Lat. -ite noun, (in Chem.) a salt sul-ite, (of potash),... ending in -ite, acid with the base potash

- -ite Lat. -ite noun, one of a race or nation Cannaan-ite, infin-ite

- -ite Lat. -ite noun, subject of an action ammon-ite

- -ite Gk. [ith-oso, a] noun, a mineral, a stone... appel-ite, contr-ite

- -[ite Gk. [himi, a] noun, (in Med.) inflammation... ammon-ite

- -[ity Lat. -ity
  Abstract noun... card-itis
SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS.

-ium Lat. -ium; Gk. -ion: Noun, (in Chem.) a metal.
-ium Lat. -ium; Gk. -ion: Noun, (in Bot.) a species.
-ive Lat. -ive, -ius: Adj., able or inclined to.
-ive Lat. -ive, -ius: Verbal noun.
-lx Lat. -lx: Noun, denoting a woman.
-ize Gk. -ize: Verb, to make, to produce.

-kin Germ. -chen: Noun, dim.
-kind Eng. -kind or -kine: Noun, race.
-ling Eng. -ling: Noun, offspring of, dim.
-lith,-lite Gk. -lith-os, a stone: Noun, a stone, a fossil.
-lock Eng. -lock, a pledge: Noun, a pledge.
-long Eng. -lock, a herb: Noun, a herb or plant.
-lyse Gk. -lithos, a stone: Noun, a stone, a fossil.

-metal Eng. -metal: Noun, a substance decomposable.
-m Eng. -m: 1st pers. sing. of verbs.
-ma Eng. -ma: Noun, done, made.
-me Lat. -me: Noun, made.
-me Lat. -me: Noun, a dealer.

-ment Fr. -ment: Noun, subject of an action.
-ment Lat. -mentum: Noun, instrument.

-ment Lat. -mentum: Adv., part by part.

-monger Eng. -monger (a dealer): Noun, a dealer.

-lyte Gk. luo, to lose: Verb, to resolve a compound into its elements by the agency of electricity.

-de Lyn. -de: Noun, subject of an action.
-de Eng. -de: Noun, subject of an action.

-ling Eng. -ling: Noun, the state or condition.

-lent Lat. -lentus: Adj., full of.
-less Eng. -less: Adj., privative, void of.

-ment Lat. -mentum: Noun, instrument.

Also added to Teutonic words: as ful-ment, acknowl-ment.)

-ex Eng. -ex: Noun, a substance decomposable.

-lyse Gk. -lithos, a stone: Noun, a stone, a fossil.

-lyse Gk. -lithos, a stone: Noun, a stone, a fossil.

-lyse Gk. -lithos, a stone: Noun, a stone, a fossil.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-mony</td>
<td>Noun, state, condition</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-most</td>
<td>Adj. (superlative deg.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-mus</td>
<td>Noun, an instrument</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-naut</td>
<td>Noun, a sailor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-nee</td>
<td>Noun, outcome, result</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ney</td>
<td>Abstract noun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-nd</td>
<td>Noun, to be done</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ndum</td>
<td>Noun, something to be done</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ness</td>
<td>Abstract noun</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Also added to Romance words, especially with “ful” as a vinculum, e.g. merciful-ness, bountiful-ness, &c., savage-ness, factions-ness.)

-nt | Lat. -nt| Participial adjective | [abundant], prud-ent |
-nt | Lat. -nt| Participial noun | serv-ant, ag-ent |
-url | Welsh -ur | Noun, full of | hav-our |
-lacity | Lat. -lacity | Abstract noun | ferocious, precocious |
-luck | Eng. -luck | Noun, dim. | bull-ock, hill-ock |
-ode | Gk. hodos (way) | Noun, a range, a way | peri-ode, syn-ode |
-ode | Gk. hodos (way) | Noun, a range, a way | epis-ode (see p. 315) |
-podes | Gk. pous gen. | Noun, feet | anti-podes, a-podes |
-ocious | Gk. oikes (house) | Adj., (in Bot.) arrangement of stamens and pistils | mon-oicious |
-old | Gk. eidos (like) | Noun, (in Med.) disease in an unexcited state | tetan-old or -ode |

(Disease in an excited state terminates in -ic: as tetanic.)

-old | Gk. eidos (like) | Noun, like (with o vinculum) | spher-old, cycl-old |
-oldal | Lat. -al | Noun, large, augmentative | tromb-one |
-on | Romance -on | Noun, large, augmentative | ball-oon, bass-oon |
-or | Lat. -or | Noun, denoting masculine gender | auth-or, administror |

(Used especially in legal phraseology to denote the active agent in opposition to -ce the objective agent. Also after t or s: as doct-or, spons-or.)

-or | Lat. -or | Adj. (comparative deg.) | superi-or, inferi-or |

(The suffix is added to the first case of the positive which ends in -i.)

-or | Lat. -or | Noun, a man | sign-er |
-ory | Lat. -ory | Noun, a dépôt | dormit-ory |
-ory | Lat. -ory-er, -er | Adj., pertaining to, province of | orat-ory, ranat-ory |
-ose | Lat. -ose | Adj., full of | verb-ose, soc-ose |
-osity | Lat. -osity | Abstract noun | pomp-osity (as-ocity) |
-ot | Fr. -ot, -ette | Noun, dim. | ball-ot, chariot |
-et | Lat. -et | Noun, characterises a person | patri-ot, idi-ot |
Suffixes and Terminations

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Suffix</th>
<th>Origin</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>-our</td>
<td>Lat. - or thro' the</td>
<td>Abstract noun</td>
<td>val-our, hon-our</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ous</td>
<td>Lat. -os-us</td>
<td>Adj., (in Chem.) an acid with less oxygen than -ic denotes</td>
<td>nitr-ous, sulphur-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ans</td>
<td>Lat.</td>
<td>Full of</td>
<td>fam-ous, delict-ous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-us</td>
<td>Lat. -os-us</td>
<td>Adj., full of</td>
<td>aude[l]-ous, ter[oc]ious</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(Used also in many modern formations: as joy-ous, wonder-ous, etc.)

- -over | Eng. ofer | Adv., besides | more-over |
- -ple | Eng. pli-ca, to fold | Adj., folded | tri-ple (3-fold) |
- -r | Eng. -r-e | Gen. suffix preserved in the pronouns | he-r, thei-r, ou-r, you-r |

- -r Romance -r-e; | Lat. -r-us | Adj. | clear, tende-r |
- -r Lat. -[e]r-is | Adj. | famili-[a]r, regul-[a]r |
- -re Fr. -re; Lat. | Noun, instrument, | theat-re, scept-re |
- -r Fr. -[a]l-ru | place set apart | meag-re, pu-re |
- -r Eng. rid (counsel) | Proper name | Mild-red, Etheld-red |
- -red Eng. hreach (active) | Noun, active, operative | hat-red, kind-red |
- -rel Fr. -[e]r with -el, | Adj., dim., depreciative | mong-rel, dogg-rel |
- -rel Lat. -[e]r-is | Adj., dim., depreciative | cock-erel, hogg-erel |
- -rie Eng. -rie | Noun, dominion, jurisdiction | bishop-rie |
- -ry Romance -rie | Noun, collective | sair-ry, poult-ry |
- -s Lat. -ri-a | Noun, dépôt | vest-ry, armo-ry |
- -s Eng. | The ordinary plural of nouns | boy-s, tree-s |

(Nouns ending in -ch (soft), -sh, -a, -z, add -es: as church-es, dish-es, glass-es, fox-es. To these add one word in -z, topaz-es.)

- -s Modern Eng. | Adjectival noun (plural number) | good-s, sweet-s |
- -s Eng. | The 3 sing. pres. Ind. | love-s, hears-s |

(Verbs ending in -ch (soft), -sh, -a, -z, add -es: as reach-es, wish-es, guess-es, box-es, whizz-es. Till the 11th century it was -th.)

- -s Eng. -es | Possessive case of nouns | man-'s, men-'s |
- -s Eng. -es (sing.) | Possessive plu. after -s | boys', girls' |

(This sign (') arose out of a blunder. Our old grammarians supposed the possessive -s was a contraction of his, and wrote it accordingly '. The plu. (')) is a double blunder, as -es is not a plu. gen. term.)

- -saur or -saurus | Gk. sauros | A prehistoric reptile | See pp. 1050-1053 |
- -sace Eng. -scape | Noun, view | land-scape |
- -ship Eng. -sipe | Noun, tenure, pos-sion, office | lord-ship, guardian-ship |
- -ship Eng. -sipe | Noun, form, state, condition | hard-ship, friend-ship |
- -ship Eng. -sipe | Noun, skill, art | horseman-ship, work-ship |
- -[s]ion Lat. -[s]io gen. | Noun, act, state | confu-[s]ion, ascen-[s]ion |
Suffixes and Terminations

- -sis: Gk. -sis, Noun, process, its result analy-sis, synthe-sis
- -sm: Gk. -sm-os, Noun, system, act method-[i]sm, spa-sm
- -some: Germ. -sam, Adj., full of, containing glad-some, light-some
- -son: Eng. -sun-w, Added to proper names John-son, Dick-son
- -[s]or: Lat. -[s]or, Noun, agent john-[s]or, succes-[s]or

(or is especially used in legal phraseology to denote the active party in opposition to the object of an action. It is also used after -t or -s.)

- -[so]ry: Lat. -[so]rij-ut, Adj., full of, able to illu-[so]ry, persua-[so]ry
- -[so]ry: Lat. -[so]rij-um, Noun, a dépôt sen-[so]ry, inset-[so]ry
- -ss: Fr. -[e]ss-e, -es, Abstract noun progr-[e]ss, distr-[e]ss
- -[st]: Gk. -st-es, Noun, agent antagon-[i]st, art-[i]st
- -[st]er: Eng. -[st]er, Noun, trade, skill malt-[st]er, spin-[st]er

(-ster does not denote one of the female sex; it is added to any gender, and means trade, pursuit, or the skill which results therefrom: thus "malt-st er" is one whose trade or pursuit is malting, "spinster" is one whose pursuit is spinning.)

- -[st]ic: Gk. -stik-os, Adj., active quality sophi-[st]ic, sarca-[st]ic
- -[st]ical: Lat. -[st]i, with -sical Gk. -stik-os, Adj., active quality sophi-[st]ic-al
- -[s]ure: Lat. -[s]or-er-a, Abstract noun men-[s]ure, plea-[s]ure
- -[sy]: Lat. -[si]-, -si-a, Noun, an art, office minstrel-sy, embas-sy

(-sy is added to Abstract nouns denoting rank, office, as aristocra-cy.)

- -[sy]: Eng. -[sy]e, Added to certain plants dai-sy
- -[s]y: Gk. -sia, Noun, a group, a genus euphra-[s]y
- -[s]y: Romance -[s]ie, Abstract noun courto-[s]y, here-[s]y
- -[sy]: -[s]y, Noun, Agent tip-sy, trick-sy
- -[t]: Eng. -[t]l, -t, Fast part. clef-t, spel-t, dream-t

(In Ang.-Sax., verbs ending in c, h, p, s, t, x, took -t instead of -d in the past and past part. In modern Eng. the -t is limited to verbs ending in f, l, d, m, p.)

- -t: Eng. -[t]l, -d, -t, Participial noun gift-t, shoo-t
- -t: Eng. -[t], Noun le[t] (the left or weak hand)
- -t: Romance -[t], -te, Participial noun hab[t]-, prof-t
- -t: Lat. -[t]-a,-sa gen. -[t]-es, Noun aun-t, ar-t, moun-t
- -t: Lat. -[t]-aum, Participial noun deb-t, rescrip-t
- -t: Lat. -[t]-us, Adj. hones-t, modes-t
- -t: Gk. -t-es, Noun, agent proph[e]-t, com-et (one who wears long hair)
- -te: Gk. -t-es, Noun, agent hypocr[ie]-t, athl-te
- -teen: Eng. -lyme, Numerical, ten added four-teen, six-teen
- -teenth: Eng. -th, Ordinal adj., ten added four-teenth, six-teenth

(th converts nouns to adjectives: as "wide", "thick", "long", "thick", "deep", "bread"...)

- -[t]er: Lat. -[t]er-un, Noun, instrument coul-[t]er, canis-[t]er
- -[t]er: Romance Noun, instrument bols-[t]er, cas-[t]er
- -[t]er: Eng. -[t]er-e, Noun, agent wri[t]er, figh[t]er
- -[t]er: Eng. -[t]or, Verbal noun laug[h]-ter, slaugh-[t]er
- -[te]ry: Lat. -[te]rij-um, Noun, condition, state baptis-[te]ry, mas-[te]ry
- -[te]ry: Lat. -[te]rij-um, Noun, condition, state baptis-[te]ry, monas-set apart
- -[th]: Eng. -th, Converts adj. to abstract nouns tru-th, dep-th
- -[th]: Eng. -[t]a,-[t]e, Ordinal adj. six-[t]h, seven-[t]h
- -[t]a: Lat. -[t]a, Noun of multitude mill-[t]a
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUFFIXES AND TERMINATIONS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>[t]c</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[t]cal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>[t]on</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-t[ora</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-[t]re</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-t[ory</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| -t[ess | Fr. -[t]ess-e | Noun, female agent | in[tr]-ess, instruc-[tr]-ess, en-
| -t[lix | Lat. -[t]lax | Noun, female agent | execu-[tr]-ix, testa-[tr]-ix |
| -tude | Lat. -tud-o | Abstract noun | forti-tude, gradi-tude |
| -ture | Lat. -[t]ur-a | Abstract noun | na-[t]ure, adven-[t]ure |
| -ty | Eng. -tig | Multiple of ten | six-ty, seven-ty |
| -uce | Lat. -[u]cea, -[u]tio | Noun, outcome, product | left-[u]ce, prod-[u]ce |
| -duce | Lat. -duc-o | Verb, to lead | intro-duce, re-duce |
| -ule | Lat. -[u]lul-us, -a | Noun, dimin. | pust-ule, spher-ule |
| -und | Lat. -[u]nd-us | Gerundial noun | joc-[u]nd, rubic-[u]nd |
| -ure | Lat. -ura | Noun, relating to the arts | agricult-ure, horti-
| -uret | Lat. ur-o (to burn) | with an inflammable body | man-ure, manufact-ure |
| -ve | Lat. -v-us | Noun | sulph-uret, carb-uret |
| -ive | Lat. -iv-us | Noun, inclination | octa-ve, oli-ve |

-ve, often changed into "f": as sa-fc, bai[t]iff, &c.

-ward | Eng. -ward | Adj., tending to north-ward, south-ward
-wards | Eng. -wardes | Adv., in the direction of home-wards, heav-en-
-ways | Eng. -wis | Adv., in the direction | side-ways or side-wise
-wig | Lat. -wicca; Fr. que | Noun, formed | perri-vig
-wise | Eng. -wisis | Adv., in the direction of | length-wise, breadth-
-worth | Eng. worth | In names of places, a farm land belong-
-wright | Eng. Wright-a | Noun, a workman or ship-wright, wheel-
-wright | Eng. wiorts-a | of | Wright
-y | Eng. -ig | Noun, dim. | Nell-y, Johnn-y
-y | Eng. -yg | Adj., of the nature of, like snow-y, frost-y
-y | Gk. -ia | Noun, denoting a science | astronom-y, homeo-
-y | Gk. and Gk. -ia | Abstract nouns | path-y
-yler | Eng. -yler | Noun, an agent | charit-y, modest-y
-yl, yle | Gk. hyle, wood | Noun, the substance from which any-thing is made | benzo-yle = bon-zoil, meth-yl
ERRORS OF SPEECH

AND OF SPELLING.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>ã, fate;</th>
<th>ã, about;</th>
<th>ã, father;</th>
<th>th, the.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>e, need;</td>
<td>e, betray;</td>
<td>ë, Gk. long e;</td>
<td>÷h, thin.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>i, ivy;</td>
<td>i, ill;</td>
<td>ð, Gk. long o;</td>
<td>j, just.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ò, no;</td>
<td>ò, on;</td>
<td>òw, grow;</td>
<td>&quot;&quot;, the stronger of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>û, unit;</td>
<td>û, us;</td>
<td>òw, now;</td>
<td>two accents.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A- (Old Eng. adverbial prefix) denoting “away,” “without,” “on,” &c.

A- (prefixed to verbs) intensifies, as “awake,” “arouse.”

A- (Greek prefix) negative; an before vowels.

A (Article) is An with the n omitted, before words beginning with a consonant or aspirated h. Exceptions: It stands before one, as “many a one,” before Eu- and u=yu, as a eulogy, a unit, and not before words beginning with h, unless the accent is on the first syllable, as a history, an historian.

Ab- The Latin preposition, used as a prefix, drops the “b” before m and n; and adds “s” before c and t.

“Ab” (prefix) means diminution, removal, or complete exclusion; “The “A” before both m and n.

And “ABS” before both c and t.

Abattoir, ab.at.towr’, a public slaughter-house (French).

French abattre, to knock down (a battre).

Abbassides, Ab’bas.sides. A family of caliphs. (Double b and s.)

Abbas, Mahomet’s uncle; -sides, -ides (patronymic) descendants of.

Abbé, ab.bay. French clerical title given for scholarship.

Abbot, feminine abbess. Head of an abbey or muntery.

Abbreviate, ab.bree’-vī.ate not a.bree’-vī.ate. (Double b.)

Abbreviation, ab.bree’-vī.ā’-shun. A shortened form.

Latin ab brevīāre, to shorten.

Abet, abett-ed, abett-ing, abett-or (Rule i.)

Abhor, ab.hor’ not a.bor’; abhorr’-er, abhorr’-ence, abhorr’-ent, abhorr’-ently, abhorred (2 syl.), abhorr’-ing (Rule i.)
Abide, past tense abode, past participle abided.

Ablative, abˈ.lə.tɪv not abˈ.lɑː.tɪv, a case in grammar.

-able (Latin suffix -bilis, preceded by a). Added to adjectives.

The "a" is merely a copula. In words derived from the first conjugation the copulative vowel is a, otherwise it is i.

Abnormal, abˈ.nom.ˈrəl, out of rule, irregular.

Latin ab norma, not according to the square [used by builders].

Abracadabra, abˈ.rɑː.h.ˈdə.bər not abˈ.rɑː.k.ˈdəbər.

Abridgment (verbs in -dge diˈ.ʒe before -ment). Rule xix.

Abrotonum, a.ˈbrə.tən.ˈəm, often misspelt abrotanum.

Greek abrotōmōn, the immortal plant, so called from its great antiseptic qualities (a ἄνδρο, not mortal).

Abstract, abˈ.strakt (noun), abˈ.strakt′ (verb). Rule 1.

Abuse, abˈ.us (noun), abˈ.us (verb). Rule li.

Abut, abˈ.ət-ed, abˈ.ət-ing, but abutment (Rule i.)

Ac- (prefix). Latin preposition ad before "e".

-ac (suffix), Greek -ak-os, Latin -ac-us, "possessed of," "of."

Acacia, a.ˈkæʃ.ˈi.əh not a.ˈkæy.ˈeər, nor a.ˈkez.ˈeər.

Latin accēsō, a thorn. (The thorny plant.)

Academicians, akˈ.ə-de.mˈi.ks. Disciples of Plato.

Because he taught in the Academy, or grounds of Acadēmus.

Academy, a.ˈkæd.ˈe.mi not akˈ.ə.dəmˈi. (The "e" is long in Gk.)

Greek aқατήμοs, Latin academia.

Acalephae, akˈ.ə.ləf.ˈe. The "medusae," as sea-nettles, &c.

Greek aκατέφθα, a nettle.

Acarus, plu. acari (Latin), akˈ.ə.rəs, akˈ.ə.r.i, mites, &c.

Acarides, a.ˈkær.ˈrɪ.dez, or acarˈ.ɪdəz. The acari family.

Greek aκατηρίδες (patronymic) the acari family.

Acatlectic, a.ˈkæt.ˈə.lekˈ.tɪk not a.ˈkæt.ˈə.lepˈ.tɪk.

Accede (not one of the three which end in -ced.) Rule xxvii.

Latin ac [ad] cedō, to go. (N.B.—"exceed, " "proceed," "succeed").

Accelerate, akˈ.səl.ˈe.rət. To hasten. (Double e, one l.)

Latin ac [ad] celerāre to hasten to [the end].

Accent, akˈ.sen (noun), akˈ.sent′ (verb). Rule l.

Accessible, not accessible (Lat. ac [ad] cedēre, see -able).

Accessory, akˈ.sɛs.ˈsɔr.ˈɪj not akˈ.sɛsˈsɔr.ry (Rule lv.)

Law Lat. ac [ad] cessorius, one who goes to or joins another [in crime].

Accidence, elements of grammar; Accidents, mischances.

Accipitres, akˈ.sɪpˈ.tər.i. trees. Such birds as hawks, vultures, eagles, &c.

Latin accipītēr, plural accipītres, hawks.
AND OF SPELLING.

Acclimate, ak.'kli.mate not ak.'kli.mét.
Acclimatise, not acclimatize; acclimatization (R. xxxi.)
Latin ac [ad] clima [habitudined] to a climate.
Acclivity, ak.'klö.v.'t.ty not a.klöv.'t.ty. A slope.
Latin ac [ad] clivitas, a bending upwards.
Accommodate, accommodation (double c and m).
Latin ac [ad] commodare, to lend help to one.
Accomplice, ak.'kom.plis not a.kom.plis. A confederate.
Latin ac [ad] complices, to fold up with one [in mischief].
Accomplish, ak.'kom.plish not a.kom.plish. To finish.
Latin ac [ad] compleo, to complete entirely.
Accord, ak.'kord' not a.kord'. To agree with one, to award.
Latin ac [ad] corda, [hearts] to hearts.
Accordingly, ak.'kord'.ing.ly not a.kord'.ing.li.
Accordion, ak.'kord.i.on not a.kor.de.on. An instrument which plays in accord with others.
Accost, ak.'kost' not a.kost'. To address another.
Latin ac [ad] costa, to draw near to one's side [to speak].
Account, ak.'kount' not a.kount'. A bill; to verify.
Latin ac [ad] computa. A mercantile term, meaning "the particulars of a bill set forth," and hence "to state particulars." "Compt" is a contraction of computa (comp't).
Accountant, accountable (1st conj., computare, R. xxiv., xxv.)
Accoutrements, ak.'koo.t.rements. Military equipments. (Fr.)
Accredit, ak.'kred.it not a.kred.it. To give trust to one.
Latin ac [ad] credo, to give credit to one.
-ace (suffix of nouns) Latin c or t, preceded by "a."
Thus menace (Lat. minacia), preface (Lat. prefatio),
It means "of the nature of," "pertaining to."
-aceae (In botany) denotes an "order:" as amaranth-aceae.
-aceous, -acious (suffix, of adjectives), "of the nature of," "ap-ppearance of," as saponaceous (Lat. sapo, sapon[is], soap).
Acephala, a.sif'.dl.läh. In Geology, molluses without a head.
Greek a kephalé, without a head [as oysters].
Ache, ake, pain. Hake, a hook, a fish.
The jaw of the hake is like a hook.
Achores, a.ko'.reez not ak'.ô.reez. Pustules on the head.
Greek achôr, an ulcer on the head with an inflamed base.
Achne, often misspelt acne, ak'.ne. A pimple on the face.
Greek achné, surface foam.
-acity added to Abstract Nouns: as audacity. See -ace.
Acknowledgment, ak.knöl'ledgment not ak.knöw'ledgment. All verbs ending in -dge drop the "e" before -ment (Rule xviii.)

-acle (Latin -[a]culum), "diminutive;" as tabernacle, a little wooden house.

Acme, ak.mey (Greek). The highest point, the crisis of a disease. It means "the edge," hence the Greek proverb, ἐπι γυρόν ἄκρα (on the razor's edge), that is, "at the critical moment."

Acme, see Achne. Hackney, a horse kept for hire.

Aconite, ak.önite. The herb Wolfsbane.

Greek akoniton, the plant without dust, meaning, it will grow on rocks where there is not even dust for a soil. It is called "Wolfsbane" because meat steeped in its juice was used by our forefathers as a lure to poison wolves.

Greek a koröö, to stop diarrhea, for its astringent properties. Called "flag," because its flowers resemble a flag curled by wind.

Acotyledon, a'.ko.ty.lce'-don, plu., acotyle'dons, or acotyle'dona. Plants without husks or seed-lobes for their seed.

Greek a kotüledön, without husks (like ferns, mosses, lichens, &c.)

Greek akou6, to hear.

Acquit, acquitt-al, acquitt-ance, acquitt-ed, acquitt-ing (R. i.)

Acrogenous (plants), a.kroj'.e.nüs not ak'.rojé'.ne.us.

Greek akro gênës, growth upwards. Plants, like tree-ferns, which grow tall, without increasing much in bulk. Plants which grow in bulk, not height, are called amphigèns.

Acroleine, ak.krö'.lé.én. Acrid fumes from distilled oils.

Latin a cre ole, acrid-product of oil.

Acrolith, ak'.krö.lith. A statue partly in stone or marble.

Greek akro-lithos, stone extremities (as head, arms, legs, &c.)

Act, a deed. Hacked, hakt, mutilated.

Actaea, ak.te'ah. The snake-root genus of plants.

Greek a klad, preventive of death [from the bite of snakes]. Called "herb Christopher," because St. Christopher was invoked to ward off evil spirits, which often assumed the form of snakes (Gen. iii.)

Actinia, plu. actinieä, ak'tin.äh, ak'tin't.e. Sea-anemones, &c.

Greek aktis, a ray, because their numerous tentacles extend like rays from the circumference of the mouth.

Actinocrinites, ak'-tin.o.kri'-nites, not ak'-tin.ok'-nites. A subgenus of extinct "actinia."

Greek aktis krimon, ray-lily (radiated lily-shaped animals).

Actor, fem. actress; not acter as it is a Latin word (R. xxxvii.)

-acy (suffix) Greek -[a]k-os (nouns) "rank," "office;" as papacy.
-acy (suffix) Latin -[æ]sia, -tia (nouns) "state," "condition:
 celibacy.

Ad- (Latin preposition) to, for. As a prefix it intensifies, or denotes "approach," "juncture," "addition." It changes its consonant in sympathy with the liquids, and with c and s, p and f, g and t.

"AD" (prefix) means augmentation,
Juncture, or approximation;
But when preceding c, f, g,
A liquid, or a p, s, t.
These letters it prefers to d.

Ad infinitum (Latin) ad in.finitum. Without end, for ever.
Ad nauseam (Latin) ad nau'.'se'am. To disgust, to nausea.
Ad valorem (Latin) ad va.lo'rem. A tax in proportion to the market value of the things taxed.
Observe the terminations of these last three words.

Adage, ad'adje, a proverb. Adagio, a. daj'jë'o not a.dad'yë.o.

Adamantine, a'da-man.tee'an not a'du'-man' -të-ân.
Latin adamanteus, hard or strong as adamant.

Adamic, Ad'am.îk not A.dam'îk, as "The Adamic Covenant."

Adansonia, A'da.san.së'-në-âh. The boabab or Monkey-bread-tree.
So called by Linneus in comp. to Michel Adanson, a French botanist.

Adapis, a'da.pi's. An extinct animal resembling a hedgehog.
This was the animal which Cuvier worked out from a stray bone or two by his knowledge of comparative anatomy.

Add, to join. Had, past tense of "have." Aid, help.
"Aid," add, French aider, to assist; Latin ajudicare.

Addendum, plu. addenda (Latin). Things to be added.

Addicted, ad.dict'ed not ad.dict'ed. Given up to the habit.
Latin addictus, given in bondage to [a creditor or habit].

Addition, ad. dish'on not ad. dish'on; additional (double d).

Address, ad.dres'. not a.dres'. To speak to, to give the due title.
French adresser (one d), but in English the d is doubled.

Ade (Lat. at-us), termination of Nouns: "state of," as blockade.

Ade, as a termination of Verbs: "act of," as cannonade.

Ades (Greek patronymic -idês or -iades), "descent from," "of the family of"; generally -ide as canide.

Adephagans, a.def' a.ganz. A tribe of voracious insects.
Greek adephagós, voracious.

Adept, a.dept' not a.dept. One skilled in something.
Latin adeptus, one who has discovered [the philosopher's stone].
Adiantum, ad'-i-an'·tum. “Maiden-hair” and other ferns.
Greek adiantion, dry. So called because rain does not wet it.
Adieu, ã.de'än, Good bye. Ado, a.doo, fuss.
“Adieu.” French à Dieu, [I commend you] to God.
“Ado.” Old Eng. verb adon. The noun means a fuss, as if there was much to do.
Adipic (acid), ad'·ik pik not a.dip' ik. Fat procured by acid.
Latin adeps, adipis, fat.
Adipocere, ad'·ip.o·seer. A substance, called “grave wax.”
Latin adiposa céra, fatty wax (found in cemeteries).
Adipose, ad'·ip o·se not ad'·ip o·ze. Full of fat, fatty.
Latin adiposus, containing fat.
Adjournment, ad-journ'ment not a-jurn'·ment. Postponement.
French adjournement, deferred to another day (jour, a day).
Adjure, ad.jur'e not a.jure'. To bind by oath.
Latin ad-jūre, to make one swear to [what he says].
Adjust, ad.just' not a.just'; adjustment, ad.just'ment.
Latin ad-justus [righted] to what is correct.
Adjutant, ad.jü·tan. (This word is incorrect in quantity.)
Latin ad-jūtānt, one who aids.
Adjutor, female adjutrix, ad.jū'·tor, ad.jū'·trix (R. xlvi.)
AdminISTRATOR, female administra'trix (Latin) R. xlvi.
Admit', ad mitt'·ance, ad mitt'·able also admiss'·ible, ad mitt'·ed, ad mitt'·er, ad mitt'·ing (Rule i.) Admittable (R. xxiii.)
Adonis, A.dō'·nis. The plant called “Pheasant’s eye.”
The flower of the “corn Adonis” is poetically supposed to have been reddened by the blood of the boy Adonis dropping on it.
Ad’ulator (Latin), not ad’·u·lat er (Rule xxxvii.)
Advertised, ad'·ver.tiz·ed (in a newspaper).
ad'·ver.tiz·ed (by private letter).
Advertisement, ad-ver'tiz-ment, not ad'·ver·tiz'-ment.
Advertiser, ad'·ver·ti·zer; not advertiser (R. xxxi.)
Latin ad vér'ta, to turn [public attention] to something.
(Advertiser is not a Latin word, but an English coinage, and hence the suffix is er, not or (Rule xxxvii.)
Advice (noun), advise (verb). Latin ad vis'o, to go to see (R. li.)
Advisable, ad'·vī.zā·bl (Not of the 1st Lat. conj., R. xxiii.)
Adynamic, a'·dy-nā·mik, not dynamic or strong.
Adytum, ad'·y·tum, not a.dyi'tum (Gk. adi'ton, Holy of Holies).
Égean (Sea) E·je·e'·an (Sea). The Archipelago.
Greek aigos kéras, goat's horn. Ægicera, e'j-sé'ra-rh.
Ægilops, e'j-jil-öps. A sore in the corner of the eye.
Greek aigos opa, a goat's eye. Goats being subject to the disease.
Æneid, E-ne's-id, not E'ne-n é-d. Virgil's epic about Æne'as.
-íd (a patronymic) meaning "pertaining to," "concerning."
Æolian, E'öl'i-an. It ought to be E'öl'i-an (o short).
Æolic, e'öl'i-k, not e'öl'i-k. Belonging to Æöl'ia (Greece).
Æruus, e-rú'-go. (Lat.) The green "rust" of bronze ornaments.
Æthal or Æthal, é-th'al. (A word coined by Chevreuil.)
It consists of the first syllables of Eth [er] and Al[cohol].
Æsthetics, ecc:rh'tik's. The philosophy of good taste.
Greek aisthétikos [beauty as it is] appreciated by the senses. (The e of the second syllable is long in Greek.)
Æthogen, é-th'o-jén. An intensely luminous compound.
Greek aithó geno. I produce luminosity.
Æthusa, a-rú'-sáh. A genus of plants including "Fools' parsley."
Greek aithousa, burning hot. The leaves being very acid.
Ætites, more correctly Aëtites, a'-ë.ti'-teez. Hollow stones.
Greek aëtos, an eagle. Supposed to form part of eagles' nests.
Aer- (prefix). All words with this prefix (except a'ë.ri'al) have the accent on the first letter. For example:—
a'er-ate (3 syll.) a'er-o-g'raphy a'er-onaut'ics a'er-a' ted a'er-olite (4 syll.) a'er-o-ph'o"bia a'er-a'tion a'er-ol'o- gy a'er-ophytes (4 syll.)
a'er-i-fi-ca'tion a'er-o-man'cy a'er-os"copy a'er-ify a'er-o-mé'ter a'er-os'tatics a'er-o-dy-nam'ics a'er-ona'ut a'er-os'ta"tion
Affair, af'fair not a'fair', business; plu., transactions in general.
French affaire; Latin af [ad] facère to do [something].
Affect, af'fect' not a'fect'; affec'ted; affec'tion (double f).
Latin af [ad] fectus, to act on [one].
Affettuoso, af'fet-too'o'-so. (Ital. term in Music.) With feeling.
Affianced, af'fii'-anst not a'fii'-anst. Betrothed.
Latin af [ad] fido, to trust to one's good faith.
Affidavit, af'-fii'-dit-vit. ('Davy is a vulgarism.)
Old law Latin affidère, to give an oath of fidelity.
Affiliated, af'fii'-i-a-ted not a'fii'-i-a-ted (double f, one I). Latin af [ad] filius, [to assign] a child to one.
Affirm, af'firm' not a'firm'; affirma'tion (double f).
Latin af [ad] firmare, to make [something] firm to [another].
Affix' (verb), af'fix (noun). A postfix (Rule 1.)
Latin af [ad] fixo, to fix to [something].
Aflatus, af·flay'-tus not a·flay'-tus. Inspiration.
Latin af [ad] flatus, breathed into one [by divine inspiration].
Afflicted, af·fiik'-ted not a·fiik'-ted; afflic'tion (double f).
Latin af [ad] fito, to dash against one.
Afford, *af·ford' not a·ford'. To be able to bear the expense.
French afforer; Latin af [ad] forum, according to market-price.
Affright, *af·right' not a·right'. To startle with fear.
Old Eng. *afyrht' changed to afryht' (the g is interpolated).
Affront, *af·frunt' not a·frunt'. To insult one to his face.
French afironter; Lat. af [ad] fronem [to insult one] to his face.
A fortiori (Lat.), af·tor ·io·ri.
For a still greater reason.
Afraid, *af·raid' not af·a'id'. Filled with fear.
Old Eng. *afserd' changed to afred' (“aferd'” is the older).
Afresh, *af·resh' not af·resh'. Again, anew, recently.
Old Eng. afersc changed to afresc (c equals ch).
Aft (Old Eng. aft), behind. Haft (Old Eng. haft), a handle.
Ag- (prefix) is the Lat. prep. *a*d before “g.”
Agagite (The) Ag'a.gite. Haman is so called (Esth. iii. 1).
Agalmatolite, a·gal·mat·oi·lite. A clay for statuary.
Greek agalmatos lithos, stone for images.
Again, *a·gen' not a·gane: (Old Eng. agen.)
Agama, plu. agamas, ag'·a.mah, &c. A species of lizard. The adjective is agamoid, as “agamoid lizards.”
Agama, plu. agamæ, ag'·a.mee. Flowerless plants. The adjective is ag'amous, same as cryptoameric, q.v. All the species, &c., are the agam'ideæ or “ag'ama” family.
Greek a ginosos, without sexual organs.
Ag'ami, plu. *ag'ami*s. The gold-breasted Trumpeter.
Greek agapētos anthēs, the lovely flower.
“Agape,” Greek agapē, brotherly love.
Agapemone, ag'·a.pem'-ō·ne. Love's abode.
Greek agāpē mouē, Love's mansion.
Agaric, ag'·ā.rīk.* A genus of fungi.
Greek agārīkon, fungus; from Agāria, a river of Sarmatia.
Agathophyllum, ag'·a.θo·fīl'-lum. Clove nutmeg of Madagascar.
Greek agathon phyllon, the good leaf.
Agathotes, a.gath'·ō.teez. One of the gentian family.
Greek agathōtes, goodness (from its medical virtues).
Agave, a.gā·vē not ag.ūv'. The American aloe.
Greek agave, splendid [plant].
-age (French suffix), "state of:" as pupilage.

-age (Lat. agère) "the act of:" as tillage.

-age (Celt. fulnness); added to collective nouns: as herbage.

Agen'dum, plu. agen'da (Lat.) Mem. of "things to be done."

Ageratum, a·jeec·rä·tüm not a.jé-ra·tum (Bot.) A flower.

Greek agérátum, exempt from old age. Properly, "Everlastings."

Agglomerate, ag.glom'-e-rate not a.glom'-ë-rate (double g, one m).

Lat. ag [ad] glömeräre, to wind into a ball (glomus, a clew of thread).

Agglutinate, ag.glu'ti-nate not a.glu'-ti-nate. To glue together.

Lat. ag [ad] glútinäre, to glue together (glutem, glutinis, glue).

Aggrandise, ag'gran·dize not a.gran'dize. To exalt.

Aggrandissement, ag-gran'-dis-ment not ag'·gran.dize"·ment.

Latin ag [ad] grandësis, to make larger and larger (Rule xxxi.)

Aggressive, ag;gress'·iv; aggression, aggressor (double g and s).

Latin ag [ad] gressio, a going against. ("Aggressor," Rule xxxvii.)

Aggrieve, ag;greev' not a.gree/. To do wrong to a person.

A hybrid word. Lat. ag [ad], French grever, to burden with taxes.

Agilia, ajil'·i.äh.: Squirrels, dormice, and similar "Rodents."

Latin agilë, nimble creatures.

Agio, adg'·i.o not a'jé.o. The market difference between bank.
notes and current coin. Ago, a.gö'. Gone by.

Agitator (Latin), aj'·i.ta'-tor not agitater. (Rule xxxvii.)

Agnail see Angnail.

Aginate, ag'·nate. Related on the father's side; Cognate, on the mother's.

Latin ag [ad] natus, born to [the same surname]:

Agomphians, a.gom'·f·i.anz. Rodents without grinders.

Greek a-gomphës, without a grinder.

Agora, ag'·o.räh. The Greek " forum."

Greek a-goire, to assemble; the place of assembly; the market-place.

Agree, agree-ing, agree-ment, agree-able, agree-ably, &c.

(Observe the double e is retained throughout.)

Agrimony, ag'·räm'·në. A genus of field plants.

Greek agros mënë, the field my abode.

Aide-de-camp, plu. aides-de-camp (French). A military officer.

A'.de.cong, plu. aid'd.de.cong, sometimes aids.de.cong.

Aiguille, a.gweel (French). For boring holes in blasting.

Ailing, ailing, suffering. Hailing, hailing, hail falling.

Ain't, "am not," "is not," should be written "a n't" (a contraction of am not, as not, "as" being the old form of is). Ar'n't is a contraction of are not. (Colloquial.)

Air (we breathe); Airs, plu., tricks of conceit. Air, ar, plu. of "am." Hair (of the head). Hare (game). Heir, air (of property). Here, in this place.

"Air," Latin aer, the atmosphere.
"Are," Norse, plural of the Old Saxon verb to beo, thi bist, he byth.

Airless, without air. Hairless, without hair. Heirless, airless, without an heir.

Airy, adj. of air. Hairy, adj. of hair. Aerie or eyrie, an eagle's nest.

Aisle, ile (of a church) meaning "the wing;" isle, an island.
French aisle, now aile; Latin ala, a wing. "Isle" (Lat.) insula.

Ajuga, a'jü-güy not ajoo'gah. The plant called "Bugle."
Lat. a Jüga, averse to Juno; supposed to favour miscarriage.

Aricia, a.lair'-rē-āh. A genus of sea-weeds, as "badderlocks, &c.
Latin ala, a wing. "Badder-locks" means "locks of Balder."

Albeit, awl'be'.it. Although, notwithstanding (Rule lviii.)

Albino, plu. albinos, al.bee'.nō, al.bee'.noze (Rule xlii.)

Al Borak, al' Bo rak'. The animal that carried Mahomet from the earth to the seventh heaven.

Arabic al borāka, the shining one.

Albucum, al.büs'.kum not al'.bū.kum. The white daffodil.

Albugo, al.bu'.go. A white speck on the cornea of the eye.

Alcachof, al'.kā.hes'.t' (Arabic). The universal solvent.

Alcaid, al.kāid'; or alcayde, al.kay'.dē. (Spanish.)

Arabic al kadi, the governor [of a Spanish fortress].

Alcalde, al'kāl'.de. A Spanish magistrate.

Arabic al kaldi, the judge, or justice of the peace. (It is a mistake to suppose the Alcaide and Alcalde are merely different spellings of the same officer.)

Alcedo (Latin), al.seč'.dō. The kingfisher genus of birds.

Alchemilla, al'.kē.mi'll'-tiiḥ. The plant called "Ladies' mantle."

The "Alchemists' plant," being greatly prized by them.

Alchemy, al'.kē.me, not alchymy; alchemist, al'.kē.mist.

Arabic al kimta, the secret art. It is a mistake to suppose the word mixt Arabic and Greek,—as al, the; chuma, something poured out.
Alcohol, al'kö.hól. The spirit of fermented liquors.
Arabic al kohol, the volatile substance.
Alcoholize, al'kö.hól.ize not al.kö.hól.ize; Al'kö.hól.iza'tion.
Alcoran, see Alkoran. The Mohammedan Scriptures.
Alcoranes, al'-kö ray'-neez. The high slender turrets of mosques.
Alcyonite, al'si.ö.nite not alsö.nite. A sponge-like fossil very common in chalk formations. (See below.)
Aleyon'tum, phü. aleyon'ía. Halcyon stones. Supposed at one time to have been used by kingfishers for their nests.
Greek alkión, a kingfisher. Alkióné, daughter of Hélus changed into a kingfisher. (With or without an initial k.)
Aldebaran, al.deb'-à-rán. The "Bull's eye" in Taurus.
Arabic al dābāran, the follower [of the Pleiades].
Alder (tree), ol'der, not al'der, nor awl'der (Rule Iviii.)
Old English alder, an alder-tree; Latin alnus.
Alderleefest, ol'der-lee'fést. Best or oldest loved (2 Hen.VI.i.1.)
Alderman, ol'der.man. A civil dignitary (Rule Iviii.)
Alembek, a lem'-bék. A vessel used by alchemists.
Arabic al anbiq, the cup; Greek ambix, a cup.
Alethopteris, a.lee.rop'-te-rí.s. Fossil ferns (coal formations).
Greek aletho-plērīs, the true fern.
Aletris, al'.e.tris not a lee'.tris. A garden shrub.
Greek aletris, a miller; the plant being covered with "meal."
Alexicacon, a.lex'-ik"-kön. A medicine.
Greek alexó kákon, I drive out the evil thing.
Alexipharmic, a.lex'-i.far"-mí.k. Antidote of poison.
Greek alexó pharmákon, I avert poison.
Alexipytetum, a.lex'-i.pyr"-tum. A fever mixture.
Greek alexó puréllos, I drive off fever.
Algæ, al'jee (Latin). Sea-weeds.
Alguazil, alg'.wa.zeel'. A Spanish constable.
Arabic al wasil, the man in authority.
Alien, generally pronounced a'li.é.n. A foreigner (Rule Ivii.)
Alienate, al'ké.nate; alienation, al'.ké.nay"-shun.
Latin aliēnō, to make another's; aliēnus, one of another country.
Alike. "Two" and "both" should not be used together with "alike:" as "The two are both alike;" say "The two are alike;" or "They are both alike;" or "The two are exactly alike;"
Alike (adj.), meaning similar, always stands after its noun, as "The darkness and the light are both alike to Thee." (Ps. cxxxix. 12.)
Alike (adv.), means in a similar way, equally, as "Whether they shall both be alike good." (Ecc. xi. 6.)

Alima, a.I'm-hh. A medicine to assuage "craving for food.

Greek a lamos, antidote for hunger.

Aliment, al'xment. Food. (Obs. only one l.)

Latin dimentum, verb diu, to nourish.

Alimony, al'kun.ij. For a wife's separate maintenance.

Latin alimentos, alimony. (Obs. The o is long in Latin.)

Alismace, al'-iss.may".-e-c. "Water-plantain," &c.

Greek alsma, the water-plantain. The suffix -cia or -cea means "of the same sort." (Gk. -kia, -kea.)

Alkahest, al'.kah.est. The Universal Solvent.

Alkali, plu. alkalis, al'.kä.lä, al'.kä.lize. Soda, potash, &c.

Arabic alkali, the kali plant.

Alkaloid, al'.kä.löid. A substance analogous to an alkali.

The Greek -idos (-id), like our -ish, is sometimes a diminutive. Alkaloids are substances slightly alkaline.

Alkoran, al'.körän not al.kö'ran. The Arab "Scriptures."

Arabic al Koran, the Koran. It is incorrect to say "The Alkoran." "The Koran" means the Readings. We call our "Bible" The Writings (Scriptures).

All, awl, every one. Hall, hawl (of a house), a mansion.

All. The perfect compounds of this word drop one l: as:-- almighty already altogether almost although always

See Rule lviii.

But when it is only agglutinated to another word, it preserves its double l: as all-wise, all-fours, all-saints.

All of them. In this and similar phrases "of" does not mean out of, but has an adverbial force, like the Latin ca in ca parte (partly); e duobus (two by two, two by two), &c. So all of them means "them wholly," "altogether." Both of them "them both-ly," or "both-together," the whole of it "it entirely," "in its entirety," &c.

Allantoic (acid), al.lan'.tö:ik not al'.lan.tö"ik (see below).

Allantois, al.lan'.tö:iss. A membrane like a sausage in form.

Greek allantós-ekos, sausage-like.

Allay, al.lay'; to mitigate. Alley, al'ley, a passage. Ally, al.lv, an associate.

"Allay," Old Eng. aleg [an], to lay down; French aller.

Allge not alledge; allege-able (Verbs ending in -ge and -ce preserve the "e" before -able). Rules xx. and xxiii.

Latin al [ad] legeré, to read an indictment against a person.

Alleviate, al.lee'-vi.ate not a.lee.vi.ate. To lessen a trouble. Latin al [ad] leviaire, to lighten [a burden] to the bearer.

Alley, plural alleys, not allies (Rule xiv.) (See Allay.) French allée, a passage (verb aller, to go).

Alliance, al.li'-ance not a.li.ance. Union by treaty or marriage Latin al [ad] liga, to tie together [by treaty, &c.]

Alliteration, al'.lit-e.ri-tion not o'.lft.e.ri-tion. (One t.) Latin al [ad] litera, words or lines made to a letter.

Allium, al'.li.um (Latin). Garlic and similar plants.

Allochroite, al.lok' -ro-ite. Iron garnet which is iridescent. Greek allos chria, exhibiting different colours.

Allocatur, al'-lo.kay'-tuir. Cost allowed in a law suit. Latin al [ad] locátur, placed to one's credit.

Allodium, al.lo'-di-um. A free tenure, not held of an overlord. Norse óði, a patrimonial estate; Medieval Latin allódium.

Allopathy, al.l0I' ;'!i·.,hit. Treatment of disease by antidotes.

Homeopathy.—Treatment of disease by what causes it. "Like curing like," as curing a burn by hot fomentations.

Allopathist, al.l0I' ;'!i.hist. One who practises allopathy. Greek allos pathos, [medicine] different to the disease.

Homeopathy homoios pathos, [medicine] like the disease.

Allophane, al.ló.fain. A mineral which changes colour before the blowpipe.

Greek allos phain-(omai), I appear of different [colours].

Allot, allott'-er, allott'-ed, allott'-ing, allott'-ment. (Rule I.) Medieval Latin al [ad] lotto, to place to your lot.

Allude, al.lood'. To hint at; reference to. Latin al [ad] ludo, to play towards one [with nods and other signs].

Allusion. Verbs ending in -d, -de, -s, -se, change these terminations to -sion, instead of -tion. (Rule xxxiii.) This word should be employed only for vague and indirect references: thus, "Henry V. won the battle of Agincourt" is a positive statement, and a person ought not to say "the battle alluded to was fought in 1415," but the battle referred to.

Latin al [adj] here, to wash to [the bank or shore].
Almanac, ол.мă.нă.х. A calendar of the year. (Rule lviii.)
Almighty, ав.мийт'.г'. All-powerful. (Rule lviii.)
Almond, ah.мун' not ал.мон'. The nut of the almond-tree.
Greek dmugădălē (dmugăd); French amande; Spanish almendra.
French aumonier; Med. Lat. almonarius; Old Eng. almes-man.
Almost, ол.мост not ав.мост (Rule lviii.)
Alms, армс not алмс. Charity. Both singular and plural.
“Who, seeing Peter and John, asked an alms” (Acts iii. 3).
“Thine alms are come up for a memorial” (Acts x. 4).
Anglo Saxon almes; Old English almnes; Norman almoignes; Latin eleemosyna; Greek ἐλέημοσύνη (ἐλέημων, pitiful).
Greek aλοετίκος. The post-fix -ік means “pertaining to.” To express acids, it means containing the most oxygen possible.
Greek алотск exchanges, aloe wood.
Alopecurus, а.лăр.-пĕк'-кă'-рăс. Fox-tail grass, &c.
Greek алопĕккос cura, fox’s tail.
Alopecy, алăр.-пĕ-сă. A disease of the hair.
Greek алопĕккία, fox’s evil (о long, е short).
Aloysia, ало'-зé.-ă. The Verbenia order of plants.
Greek алуся, unwashed; because rain does not wet the leaves.
Alpaca, ал.пăк'-ăл. Cloth made of paco hair. The пaco of South America is a kind of camel with long woolly hair.
Greek альфитон, bran (the bone ground like bran).
Already, ол.ред'-ђ. At this time, in time past (Rule lviii.)
Alsinia, ал.сий.нě.ăл. The “alsine” or chickweed group of plants.
Also, ол.сă. Likewise, in like manner (Rule lviii.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Alsodeæ, al.so'-dē-e. The violet sub-order of plants. Greek alsōdēs, woodland plants.

Alstonia, al.stōn'-ē-ah. The Dogbane tribe of plants. So named from Charles Alston, a Scotch botanist. (1683–1760.)

Alstonite, al'stōn.ite. A white or greyish mineral, found in the mines of Alston Moor, in Cumberland.

Alteration, ol'-ter. ray'-shun not al'-ter. ray-shun (Rule Iviii.)

Alternative, ol'.tra.ti.v not al'.ter.ā.ti.v. A medicine to change gradually the habits of the body (Rule Iviii.) French alterer, alteration, alteratif.

Altercation, al'-ter. kay'-shun not ol'-ter. kay'-shun. Latin altercare, to talk one against another.

Alternate, al'.tē.r.nate (verb); al'.ter.nate (adjective). Rule I.

Although, all.thōw not all.rhow. Notwithstanding (R. Iviii.)

Alto, plu. altos, al'.tō, al'.tōze. Counter-tenor (Rule xlii.)

Alto-relievo, plu. alto-relievos, al'.tō rel'.ī.ā'.vō (rel'.ī.ā'.voze) not al'.tō rel.lee.ve'r.ō, &c. Term in sculpture (Rule xlii.)

Alto-primo, plu. alto-prīmos, al'.tō pre'.mo (pre'.moze).

Alto-secun'do, plu. alto-secun'dos (Rule xlii.)

Altogether, all'.tō.geth'er. Wholly, entirely (Rule Iviii.)

Aludel, a.lū'.dēl. A vessel used in sublimation. Latin a lutum, [a pot or vessel] without lute.

Alumina, al.loo'.mī.nā. Earth containing alum.

Alumine, a.loo'.mēn. (Same as alumina.)

Aluminium, al'.ō omin'.i.ūm. Metal obtained from aluminia. The gold-coloured is a mixture of aluminium and copper. Latin alūminem, saltstone. (The u is long.)

Aluminous, a.loo'.mē.nus. In Geology, means clayey.

Aluminum, a.loo'.mē.num. The metallic base of clay.

Alunite, a.loo'.nīte not al'.ō.omin.ite. Alum-stone.

Alum, a.loo', alum; Greek lithos, a stone.

Alunogel, a.loo'.nō.jēn. An efflorescence on damp walls, French alun, alum; Greek genē, to produce.
Alveary, al'vē·ər·ər·ē not al·vee'·ə·rē. The hollow of the ear.
(The "a" in əry is long in the Latin word.)
Latin alveārium, a bee-hive. (Rules iv. and lvii.)
Alveolar, al·ve·əl·ər·ər not al·vee'·ə·lər. Containing sockets.
Alveolus, plu. alveoli (Latin), al·ve·əl·ə·ləs, al·ve·əl·əs. Not al·vee'·ə·ləs, nor al·ve·ə·ləs. (Both e and o short.)
The hole or socket of a tooth.
No such word as alveola used by Dr. Mantell, Wonders of Geology.
Alveolite, al·ve·ə·lə·tē. One of the coral groups.
Always, ol·'ways. At all times, forever (Rule lviii.)
Alyssum, a·li·səm. Mudwort, &c. [To prevent madness.]
Greek a·lūsis, preventive of madness [from the bite of mad dogs].
Am- (prefix), Latin preposition ad before the letter m.
Am, was, been. These are parts of three distinct verbs.
Am is Norse; Be is the old English beo; and Was is the old English wes [we] "to dwell." Beō is Indicative Mood, and be is still used so in rural districts and in poetry.
Amadou, am'·dou not am'·do. German tinder.
French amadou, from the Latin am [ad] manu dulce (a'ma'du').
Amanita, am·ā·nə·tə. A fungus common in Amānus.
Amanuensis, plural amanuenses, a·man·u·en·sēs, -en'·sēz.
Latin a·man·u·ēn·sis: a manu, a secretary; -ensis (suffix) office of.
Amaranth, am'·ə·rənθ; or amaranth, am'·ə·rənθ·ə·rəs. Greek amaranthes, the unfading flower (a maraino, I die not).
Amaranthaceae, am'·ə·rənθ·ən·ə·tē·sē·ē. The "order" of the above; -aceae, added to plants, denotes an "order."
Amaryllis, plural amaryllises, am'·ə·rə·ləs; &c. A flower so called from the shepherdess of classic pastorals.
Amaryllidaceae, am'·ə·rə·lə·dē·sē·ē. The "order" of the above; -aceae, added to plants, denotes an "order."
Amateur (French), am'·tər·ə. One who cultivates an art or science for his own pleasure, and not as a profession.
Amaurosis, a·maw·rə·sēs. Called by Milton "the drop serene."
Greek amauros, blindness [without any visible defect in the eye].
Amazon, am'·də·zōn: A race of female warriors. Amazo'niān.
(This word is wrong in quantity, the second "a" is long).
Greek amazōn, without a breast. The right pap being cut off.
Ambassad or, femi-nine ambas'sadress, not embas'sad or, &c.
Fr. ambassadeur; Med. Lat. ambascia; Celt. ambacht, a servant.
Ambas'sador Extra'rdinary, plu. Ambas'sadors Extra'rdinary.
Ambas'sador Ple'ni poten"tiary, plural Ambas'sadors, &c.
Ambergris, am'·ber·gri·sēs not am'·ber·grease. Grég amber.
French ambre gris (grey). To distinguish it from the noir and jaune.
Greek ambōsus pteron, [fish with] obtuse or large fins.

Ambreine, am'.brē tên. The active principle of amber.

Ambreic (acid), am'.brē.țik not am.loc.țik. (See above.)

Ambrosia, ambro'.zē.ăh not ambro'.zhe.ăh. Food of the gods,
Greek a bretos, not mortal [immortal food].

Ambulacra, am'-bu.lay'-krăh. Holes in the crust of sea-urchins through which their “walkers” protrude.
Latin ambulācra, walking places.

Ambulatores, am".bū.lā.tō.řēz. An order of birds; their feet have three toes before and one behind (Rule Iv.)
Latin ambulātores, walkers. (The o is long in the Latin word.)

Ambuscade, _plu.* ambuscades; *am'.bus.kade', am'.bus.kădz'.

Ambusca’do, _plu.* ambusca’does (Spanish). Rule xlii.

Spanish emboscar, to retire into the thickest part of a forest.

Amenable, amec'-nō.-bł not a-meń'-ă-bł. Accountable,
Italian ammainare, to strike sail; French amener.

French amender, to amend; Latin a mena, without fault.

Amende honorable (Fr.), a-mend' on".j.rah'-bł. An apology.

Amenity, amec'-ni'-ty not a-men'-.tī-.ty. Softness of climate.
Latin a monitas, agreeableness of climate or manners.

Latin amentum, a catkin or thong; -aceae (suffix) an “order” of plants.

Ametabolia, a.met'-a.bōł'.tă-hē. Insects which change not.
Greek a metabōle, without change or metamorphosis.

Amethyst, am'.ē.rhist. A precious stone of a violet colour,
Greek a methōstēs, preventive of drunkenness.

Amiant or amianthus, am'-i.an'-rē.ŭs. A sort of asbestos.
Greek amiantos, that which does not contract defilement.

Amiantoid, am'.i.an'-rō.id. Like amiant. (Rule xlix.)
Greek amianto-eidos, like amianthus.

Amide, am'.ē.dē. A chemical substance not unlike starch.
Greek am[ulon] -iĕ̂des (patronymic) of the starch family.

Amidin or amidine, am'.i.dīn. The soluble part of starch.
The insoluble part is called amyline, _q.v._

Ammoniacal, am'.mo.nī'-ă-kūl not a'-mo.nī'-ă-kūl. (Double m)
Ammoniacum, am'-mo.ni'-ä-kum not a'-mo.ni''-ä-kum. Gum of the Persian plant called [dorema] ammoniacum.

Ammonitidea, am'-mo.ni.t'ë-de. The Ammonite family of fossils -ide (Greek patronymic -idés), of the family or race.

Ammophila, am.mof'-i-lah. Sand wasps.

Greek ammos phileô, I love the sand.

Ammunition, am'-mu.nish'-on. Military stores.

Latin am [ad] munitio munitions for [war].

Amœba, amee'-buh. The lowest type of animal life.

Greek amoîbé, the changeable [animal].

Amomum, a.mö'.mum. The ginger species of plants.

Greek amônumum, ginger.

Among, a.mung', not a.mong. Old English amang.

Amorphous (rocks), a.mor'.fus. Having no definite shape.

Greek a-morphos, without [definite] form.

Amorphozoa, a.mor'.fö.so'-äh. Zoophytes, like sponges, &c.

Greek a-morphos zôa, living animals without [definite] form.

Amour propre (French), a.moor' propr. Self-respect.

Ampelic (acid), am'.pe.likh. Produced from coal tar.

Ampelin, am'.pe.lin. A liquid resembling creosote.

Ampelite, am'.pe.lite. Alum-slate.

Greek ampêtis, the vine. "Ampelite" is so called because it was used by the ancients for destroying the vine-insects.

Amphi- (Greek prefix). "All round," "on both sides," "doubt."

Ampibia, am.fib'-ä-äh. Animals that live in water or on land.

Greek amphi bios, having life both [on land and in water].

Amphibichnites, am'.fi.bik''-nites. Animals which have left their footprints in certain geological rocks.

Greek amphibia ichnos, footprints of amphibia.

Amphibolite, am.fib'-öl'-lite. Parts of amphibia fossilised.

Greek amphibios lithos, amphibia [become] stone.

Amphibole, am.fib'-öl'-ë. Hornblende.

Greek amphibòlós, something doubtful [whether hornblende or augite. It being difficult to distinguish them].

Amphibology, am'.fi.böl'-öl'-jë. Words which bear two interpretations, like the responses of the ancient oracles.

Greek amphibòlós logos, doubtful words.

Amphibrya, am.fib'-ri'-äh. Plants which grow in bulk, not height.

Greek amphibô brôd, to swell all round. Those which grow upwards, and not in bulk, are acrógenes.
AND OF SPELLING.

Amphigens, am'fi-jë-gens. Plants which grow in bulk, not height. Greek amphi γένος, growth allround (like lichens). See Acrogenous.

Amphitheatre, am'-fith-abs'-a-tér. A circular theatre. (The "a" is long in the Greek word.) Rule lvii.

Greek amphi theatrón, a theatre all round.

Amphora, am'fö-råh. A wine vessel with two handles.

Greek amphi phōrëin, [handles] on both sides to carry it by.

Ample, am'.p'l, am'ple-ness, am'ply. (Latin amplus, large.)

Amplify, am'.pI'ij, am'plify-ing, but amplified (3 syl.), ampli-fied (3 syl.), am'pli-fier, am'pli-fi-ca'tion. (Rule xi.)

Latin amplificare, to make ample.

Ampulla, am'pul'.låh (Latin). A bottle large in the middle.

Amulet, am'ü-lët. A charm worn about the person. (One m.)

Latin amuletum, a charm; a motior, to drive away [evil].

Amuse, a.mu'ze', amuse'-ment, amused' (2 syl.), amu'ses, amu'ser, amus'-ing, amus'-ingly, amus'-ive, amus'-ively. (R. xix.)

French amuser; Latin a Mūsis, [to turn] from the Muses or study.

Amygdaleo, a-mig'da-lö-e. A family of plants including the peach, apricot, plum, and almond.

Amygdalic (acid), a.mig'dål-ık. Derived from amygdaline.

Amygdaline, a.mig'dål-in. A crystalline principle contained in bitter almonds.

Amygdaloid, a.mig'dål-oïd. Volcanic rocks with almond-like cells or cavities filled with foreign substances.

Greek amygdałos eidos, almond-like.

Amyl, am'.il, or amyline, am'.il'in. Insoluble part of starch.

The soluble part is called amidine, q.v.

Greek āmēlōn, starch.

Amyridaceae, am'-ri-da-i'-se-e. Plants of the myrrh kind.

The genus am'yrīs (Latin mūrrha, myrrh), is type of the order.

An- (prefix) Latin preposition ad before n; Greek an (privitive) before a vowel.

-an (suffix), Latin an-us "belonging to:" as Roman.

An (Article), before vowels and silent h; also before h aspirated, when the accent of the word is not on the first syllable, as "a history," but an histor'ian. On the other hand, the n is dropped before one, and also before cu and u pure, as many a one, a u-nit, a European.

Anacathartic, an'-a-kå-thar'-tîk not an'-a-kå-thar-kå'-tîk.

Greek ana katharsis, purging upwards [through mouth and nose].

Anacharis, an.a'k.å. rîs. A troublesome river-weed.

Greek ana chiaris, out of favour, a nuisance.

Greek anachronos, out of time.

Greek anæmia, without blood.

Greek anæsthesia, without the sense of feeling.

Anagallis, an'-a.gal.lic. The pimpernel group of plants.

Greek anagallis, to laugh heartily. Supposed cure of "spleen."

Anagrammatic, an'-a.græ.m. mat'.lik (double m).

Greek anagammatic, transposition of letters.

Greek analogos, of similar proportion.

Analogy, a.nal'.ogy, analog-ous, analog-ously, analogist, analog-ism, analogise, analogising; analogical, analogically, analogicalness. (Rule xi.)

Latin analogia, analogus; Greek analogos, similarity of words.

Analysis, plural analyses, a.nal'.fisis, a.nal'.fis'ez.

Greek análisis, a breaking up. The opposite process is syntheseis.

Greek synthēsis (sin thē-mi), a putting together again.

Analyzable, analyzation not analyzable, analyzation.

The s is part of the word analysis (luso not lusó).

Anamorphosis, an.-a.mor'.fō.sis. (Wrong in quantity, Rule lvii.)

In Natural History, development.

In Botany, when one part of a flower assumes the appearance of a higher principle.

In Perspective, elongating the figure.

Greek anamorphosis, upward shaping.

Ananas, a.nak'.nāz (Brazilian word). The pine-apple species.

Ananchytes, a.nan'.k'i.tez not a.nann'.k'i.tecz. Fairy loaves, &c.

Greek anantis chōiti (gaia), steep mounds.

Greek an andros, without a male or stamens.

Anastomose, a.nast'.tō.mōze. To interlace vessels, &c.

Greek ana stōma, [to insert one vessel] up the mouth [of another].

Anathema, plural anathemas, a.nath'.ē.māh, a.nath'.ē.mars.

Greek anathēma, a thing set apart; hence a ban of the church, which sets a person "apart" from church fellowship.

Anathematize not anathematise, a.nath'.ē.mat'.tice.

Greek anathēmatiζó, to make accursed. (Rule xxxii.)

Anatidae, a.nat'.i.de. Web-footed birds, as swans, geese, ducks.

Latin anātās -ī, the duck family (-idae, a patronymic).
AND OF SPELLING.

Anatomy, a.nat'o.my, anatomist; anatomise, not anatomize, anatomised (4 syl.), anatomiser, anatomising, anatomisation; anatomical, anatomically.

Latin anatőme, anatómicos; Greek ana tómē, a cutting up.

Anatropal, a.nat'ró.pal. In Botany, an inverted ovule.

Greek ana-trópō, to invert [the ovule], as in apple blossoms.

-ance (suffix, Latin -ans). Attached to verbal nouns.

There are nearly 300 words with this termination, and not one ending in the more correct form -anse.

Ancestor, fem. ancestress, an'.sèst'r, &c. A predecessor.

French ancêtres, ancétres; Latin ante cessor, a predecessor.

Anchor, an.kór (of a ship). Anker (Dutch), ten. gallons.

Old English ancor; Latin anchōra; Greek ἀγκύλος, hooked.

Anchovy, an'.cho'vyy not an'cho'veyy. (In Port. anchovy.)

Ancient, ain'shent not an'shent nor ann'shent, of old.

The Ancients, plu. People of the olden times.

French ancien, old; Italian anziano; Latin antiquus.

Ancile, an.si'.le (Latin). The sacred shield of Mars.

Ancillary, an'si'.li.r̩y not an'sil'l.ir̩y. A handmaid (Rule lv.)

Latin ancilla, a maidservant.

Ancipital, an.si'.p'l.t̩l. In Botany, two-edged.

Latin anceps; aneipitis, two-edged (am caput, head both sides).

-Ance (suffix, Latin -ans, -antis). 'Added to abstract nouns.

Ancyloceras, an'.si'.l̩'s̩-r̩hs. Fossils curved like a horn.

Greek ἄγκυλος, curved [like a horn]. (Greek "g" before k = n.)

And (a copulative). Hand (of the human body).

And so forth, et cetera. (Old English and swa'forth.)

Andante, an.dan'te (Italian). In Music, moderately slow.

Andirons, an'-dér-r̩ns not hand'rons. Fire-dogs.

Old English brand'isen, iron to hold a brand or log.

Androgynous, an'drö'j.n̩s not an'drō'jee'ni.ūs. (Botany.)

Greek anér γυνή, man-woman. (Male and female flowers united.)

Android, plu. androides, an'.droid, an'droid.deez. An automaton.

Greek andro-oidos, [an-automaton] like a man.

Andromeda, An.drom'ē.d̩h. Wild Rosemary, &c.

As Andromeda pinned on a rock surrounded by sea monsters, so the plant droops its head in swampy places amidst reptiles.

Anellides, an.el'.l̩.l̩des, or anellids, an'.ell'il̩ds. Earth-worms.

(All these words should be spelt with one n and double l. Latin anellus, a little ring.—Horace's Satires, II. 7-9.)
Anelytrous, an. el'y.trús not an. el'y. trús.
Greek an el'trón, [insects] without wing sheaths.

Anemone, an. em'ón.e not an. em'ón.me. The wind-flower.
Plu. anemones not anemones (Lat. anemóine, Rule Ixvi.)
Greek anemóís, wind. These flowers love a free open space.

Aneroid, an. é.roid. The air barometer, which has no mercurial or other liquid column. (The “e” long in Greek.)
Greek a néróös eítos, without a column; resembling a liquid [column].

Anethum, an' e. thum. The dill genus of plants.
Greek anéthón, dill: anó thein, to run upwards, by rapid growth.

Aneurism, an. é. ur'izm. Morbid dilatation of an artery.
Greek aneurísto, to stretch or dilate.

Angel, ain' gel, a heavenly being. Angle, ain' gle, a corner.
Angel-ic, angel-ical, angel-ically (Rule iii: -ic). (This is a strong example of the perversity of English spelling. Although the accent is on the -el', the “l” is not doubled, while in travel, trav'elling, &c., it is doubled, although the accent is on the first syllable.)

“Angel,” Greek an'gelos, a messenger. (In Greek γ before ι = “n.”
“Angle,” Old English an'gel, genitive angles, a fish hook.

Angelica, an. gel' i. ka not an'. ge. lee' ka. A plant.
So called from the “angelic” virtues of its seeds and root.

Anger, ang' er, angered (2 syl.), angering (Rule ii.)
Old English an' ge, vexation; Latin an'gor, sorrow.

Angina, an' jí' nah (Latin). A disease affecting respiration.

Angle, a corner. Angel, a heavenly being. (See Angel.)

Anglican, an' gi kan. Belonging to England.

Anglice, an' gi lise (adverb). In English.

Anglicism, an' gi l i sm. An English idiom.

Anglicise, Anglicised (3 syl.), Anglicis-ing. (Note s not z.)

Anglo- (prefix) English: as Anglo-Saxon, Anglo-Norman, &c.
Old English Angl-, as angel-cyning, the English Kg.; angel-thedd, the English nation. Angle or English, the Angles or English.

Angnail, not an' nail nor hangnail.
Old English an' nayl, a nail-trouble. Similarly an' brev'ist, a chest-trouble (asthma), an' mo'd, a mind-trouble (vexation).

Angry with you, not “angry at you.” Angri-ly.

Anhydrite not an' hyd rite, an' hyd r i te; an' hyd rous.

The “h” is needless. The Greek is anu'dria, and ἄνυδρος. Greek ἄν ὕδωρ, without water. It would be impossible, in Greek, to express by letters such a word as Anhydrite. (Rule lxx.)

Aniline, an' il in. An oily liquid used in “mauve” dyes.

Amber antl, indigo; from which it may be obtained.
Animalcule, plural animalcules, an'-i.mäl'-kül; an'-i.mäl'-külz; or, an'imal'culum, plural an'imal'cula. Latin animal-citum (-culum, a diminutive).

Animalise, an'imalisa'tion (with s not z. Rule xxxi.)

Anker, ten gallons. Anchor (of a ship). (See Anchor.)

Ankle, an.k'l. Part of the leg. (Old English.)

Annals (no singular). History arranged by years (double n).

Latin annuālis, from annus, a year.

Annates, an'.nates. First-fruits on presentation to a living.

Latin annuālis, [the value of one] year's income.

Annelida, see Anelida (with one n).

Annex, an'.nex (noun), an'nex' (verb). Rule 1.

Latin an [ad] nexus, tied to [another thing].

Annihilate, an.ni'.hrl.ate, annihilated, annihilat.ing, annihilat-or, annihilation. (Double n.) In Latin the -ni- is short.

Latin an [ad] nūmī, [to reduce] to nothing.

Anniversary, plu. anniversaries, an'-nī.vers'-sū-rīz. The return of the time-of-the-year at which an event happened.

Latin annus versus, [the time of the] year returned.

Announce, an-nounce' not a.nounce'; announce'ment.

French annoncer: Latin an [ad] nunclo, to tell to [others].

Annoy, annoyance, an.noy', an.noy'.ance (Rule xxiv.)

Italian annoim'e: Latin an [ad] nocco, to incommode.

Annual. Yearly. In compounds, -ennial; as bi.ennial, triennial, per-ennial, &c. (Double n.) Latin annus.

Annuitant. One who receives an annuity. The i in these words is a blunder taken from the French, just as write annuilly;

Annuit', annull'-er, annulld' (2 syl.), annull'-ing. (Rule 1.)

Annular not annuler; annulated; annulose, an'nu.loze; annu-losa, an.nu.lo'sa. Earth-worms, &c., composed of rings.

Latin annūlus, a ring; annularius, ringed, full of rings.

Annunciate, an.nun'.shē.ate not a.nun'.shē.ate; Annunciator.

Latin an [ad] nunciare, to carry tidings to one.

Anode, an'.o'de. The positive pole of a voltaic battery. (The opposite pole is called the Cathode.) Rule lxx.

Greek ana-ōdos, the way up; kata-ōdos, the way down (hōdos).

Anodon, plu. anodonts or anodonta, an'.o.dōn, &c. The river mussel.

Greek an ὄδοντα, without tooth.
Anodyne, an·ö·dine. A medicine to relieve pain.
Greek ánōdê, destroyer of pain.

Anoint, an·oint not a·no·int. (Note only one n.)
Norman-French enoindre; Latin inungo, to anoint.

Anomaly, plural anomalies, an·o·m·äl·ē, an·o·m·ä·lis. In the Greek word the o is long, to compensate for the lost h.
Greek ánōmalos, irregular (hōmálōs, like). Rule lxx.

Anomopteris, an·ö·mōp·tē·rēs. Fossil ferns.
Greek ánōmos ptērios, anomalous fern.

Anonymous, a·no·n·i·mus. The name suppressed.
Latin anonymus; Greek án onoma, without a name.

Anoplotherium, plu. anoplotheria, an·ö·plō·the·ri-um, an·ö·plō·the·ri-ä·th. An extinct quadruped without horns, tusks, claws, or other weapons of defence. (Rule lxx.)
Greek ánōpōlōs, unarmed (án hopōlo, but diōn̄rōs, without h).

-anse. No word in the language has this termination.

Anserine, an·sē·rīne. Of the goose tribe. (Lat. anser, a goose.)

-ant (Latin participle suffix). "A" is merely the vowel copula of words belonging to the first conjugation.

Ant-. (Greek prefix), contraction of anti. "Opposite to."

"Ant," corruption of Old English emēts (em't), an emmet.
"Aunt," corruption of Latin amīta (am't), an aunt.
"Haunt," French hanter, to frequent a house or place.

Antacid, an·t·ā·sid not an·t·ā·sid. Acid counteracter.

Antacrid, an·t·ā·kīd not an·t·ā·kī·d. Acid counteracter.

Antarctic, an·t·ā·ptic not an·t·ā·ptic. Opposite the arctic.
Greek anti arktos, opposite the Northern Bear.

Ante- (Latin prefix), "before," as antedate.

Antecedent, ant·e·ced·ent, not ant·e·cede·ant, antecedence.
Latin ante cedere, to go before. (Not of the 1st conjugation.)

Antediluvian, an·t·ē·di·lū·vē·an. Existing before the Deluge.
Latin ante dilūviun, before the Deluge.

Antelope, an·t·ē·lop (Latin). A corruption of antholope.
Greek anthōs opis, beautiful eye.

Antemeridian, an·t·ē·me·ri·dē·an Before noon.
Latin antimēridiano.

Antenna, plu·al anten·nae (Latin). The feelers of insects.
Anten'ula, plu. anten·ulae (Latin) diminuitive.
The singular, antenna, is very rarely used.
Antepenult, an-te-pé-nult "not an'-té.pee"-nult.
Latin ante penē ultimus, before the almost last (syl.)
Pene ultimus, the last-but-one; ante penultimus, the last-but-two.

Anthelion, plu.: Anthelia, ant.hee.li.ah. A bright spot opposite the sun. The "h" is needless. (Rule lxx.)
Greek antéitos, ánteîlos (anti éllos, opposite the sun).

Anthelix, anth'.é.lix. The part of the ear opposite the "helix."
The th of this word belongs to the first syl. (Rule lxx.)

Anthem, an'.rhem. A corruption of the Old English antefen (ant'fen, ant'em), same as antiphon, Greek antiphónos, sounds or voices from opposite choirs. Anthym (anti.humnos) might be "a hymn sung by two opposite choirs," but anthem can only be Greek anthemis, árýs, g.v.

Anthemis, an'.rhe.mís. Chamomile and its group of plants.
Greek anthémis, verb ánthē, I blossom [abundantly].

Antherozoides, an'-rher.o.zoi.deez. Life-giving corpuscles of ferns, mosses, and lichens (li'.kenz).
Greek anther zo-b-eidos, life-like anthers.

Anthesis, an'.rhee.sis not an'.rhe.sis. In Botany.
Greek anthésis, the bursting or opening of a flower.

Anthodium, an'.rho.dí.um. The flower-head of comp. plants.
Greek anthódēs, full of florets (anthos duo, I put on flowers).

Antholites, an'.rhO.lites; Fossil impressions of flowers.
Greek anthos lithos, fossil or stone flower.

Anthophore, an'.rhō.fore. The column which supports the petals.
Greek antho-phoros, the flower supporter.

Anthophylite, an'.rho.jil.ite. Species of hornblende.
Greek anthophyllon, a clove (which it resembles in colour).

Greek anthos zōa, flower animals.

Anthracosaurus, plural: anthracosauri, an'-thrák-saw'-rés.

Anthracosaurus, plural: anthracosauri. An extinct saurian.
Greek anthrax sauros, lizard of the coal-measures.

Anthracotherium, an'-thrák-thē.ri.um. An extinct beast.
Greek anthrax théron, a wild beast of the coal-measures.

Anthrakerpeton, an'-thrak.ker"-pé-ton. An extinct reptile.
Greek anthrax erpeton, a reptile of the coal-measures.

Anthropophagi (plural), an'-thrō.po-f"-a-ji. Cannibals.
Greek anthropos phagein, to eat men.

Anti- (Greek prefix), "opposed to," "the opposite of:" as *antidote.
See Ante.

Antichrist, an'-ti.krist. A false Christ, a foe to Christ.
Greek anti Christos, antagonist of Christ.
Anticipate, *a*n.ti*ss'ē*pa*te* To forestall. Anticipat-ing, anticipat-ion, anticipator, anticipat-ory.
Latin *antici-pā*re (ante capere), to take beforehand. This word and antiquarian, antiquity, &c., are the only instances of anti- signifying before in time, (ante-), instead of antagonistic (anti-).

Anticlinal, a*n'-tī'kli*na*la* (Geology.) Applied to strata.
Greek anti kīnein, [strata] dipping in opposite directions.

Anticolic not *anti*cholic. (Latin colic [us]).

Antipathy, plu. antipathies, *a*n.tip'ā*rhē*, *a*n.tip'*ā*rz*iz.
Greek anti pathos, a feeling repugnant to [something].

Antiphonal, *a*n.tif'ō*na*la* Responsive or alternate singing.
(This word ought to be *a*n.tif'ō*na*la*. *A*n.tif'ō*na*la* means “mutual slaughter”—*ārrt-*phō*vos.*)

Greek anti phō*nos, *ārrt-*phō*vos, responsive singing.

Antiphra-sis, *a*n.tif'-rā*si*sa* Irony.
Greek anti phrā*sis, [meaning] opposite to the words expressed.

Antipode, plu. antipodes, *a*n'-tī*po*de*; *a*n.tip'-ō*de*ez.
Greek anti podoi, [people whose feet are] opposite to our feet.

Antiquary, *a*n'.ti*qua*ry. A person fond of antiquities. Not antiquarian which is an adjective.

Antique (Fr.), *a*n.tik'; antiquely, *a*n.tik'-ē*zi*sa* Relics of olden times.
Latin *antiquarius, from ante before; antiquus, one before us.

Antiseptic, *a*n'-ti*sep*ā*ta* not *a*n'.ti*sep*ā*te*.
Antiseptic” means a preventive of putridity, but “antiskeptic” would mean one who is not sceptical or a disbeliever.

Greek anti séptikos, opposed to putridity (σηπω).
AND OF SPELLING.

Apatite, ap'at.ite, a phosphate of lime. Appetite (for food).
“Apatite,” Greek apatê, deceit; so called because it appears in every variety of colour and form, so that it is often mistaken.
“Appetite,” Latin ap [ad] petitus (appete, to seek for [food]).

Ape, male dog-ape, female bitch-ape. (Old Eng. apa, an ape.)

Apennine, Ap.'en.nine. A range of mountains in Italy.

Aperient, ap'ee.r.i.ent. (The “e” of this word is short in Latin.)
Latin apérērens, opening. (A laxative medicine.)

Aperture, ap'er.ture. An opening. (Only one p.)
Latin āpertura, (āpērio, to open).

ApeX, plu. apaxes or apices; a.pex, plu. a'pes.es or ap'ees.
Latin apēx, plural āpices, the summit of anything.

Aphelion, plural aphelia; af.heel'ion, af.heel'ah. The position of a planet when it is furthest from the sun. Peri- helion is its position when nearest to the sun.
Greek apo helios, away from the sun. Peri, near. (In Greek it would be apēlion, similar to ἀπηλιωτής not ἀφηλιωτής.)

Aphis, plural aphides, a'fis, af'i.deez. The plant-louse. (Lat.)

Aphorism, af'.o.rizm. A maxim expressed with antithesis.
Greek aphorismós, distinction (aphorizō, to separate).

Apiany, plu. apiaries, ap'ia.ri.z. A place for bees (Rule lv).
Latin āpīarium (āpitēs, a bee).

Apiocrinite, ap'-ik'-ri-nite. A fossil sea-lily or “en’crinite,”
Greek apion krinon, pear [shaped] lily [zoophyte].

Apo.- (prefix) Greek preposition, equivalent to the Latin “ab,” q.v.

Apocalypse, a-pok'.ā.lips. The Book of the Revelation.
Greek apokalupsis, from apo kaluptō, to un-cover or reveal.

Apocrypha, a-pok'.ri.fāh. The uncanonical Scriptures.
Greek apo krūpha, things hidden from [the general].

Apocryphal, a.pok'.ri.fāl. Belonging to the Apocrypha, false.

Apode, ap'o.de. Fish without ventral fins, like sword-fish, eels, &c.
Greek a'pōdēi, without feet (or ventral fins).

Apodons, ap'.ā.dōns. A generic name for “apodes” (ap'o.des).

Apogee, ap'.ō.jē. That point in a planet’s orbit furthest from our earth.
(The point nearest to our earth is the peri-gee).
Greek apo gē, away from the earth (peri gē, near the earth).

Apollyon, A.pol'.yon. The destroyer (Rev. ix. 11).
Greek apollōn, destroying (Angel of the bottomless pit).

Apology, plu. apologies, a.pol'ojiz, excuses; apō'gist.

Apologetic, apologetical, apologetically, apologetics.

Apologize, apologized, &c. (Greek apo-logizomai. R. xxxii.)
Greek apōlōgya, an excuse; Latin apologeticus, apologetic.
Apothegms are not apothegms, ap'ō-thēg'm. A sententious saying.
Greek apo phthēgma, [a saying made] by a word.

Greek apoplexia (apo πληκτός, one struck by a fit).

Apostasy not apostacy, a.pos'tā-sy. Falling off from the faith.
Greek apostasia (apo στάσις, a standing away from the faith.)

Apostatize not apostatise, a.pos'tā-tize. To become apostate.
Greek apo στάτιζω, to place oneself away from [the faith].

A posteriori (Lat.) a pos.ter'ri-jō'ri. Causes inferred from effects.
(The opposite is a priori, effects predicated from known causes. Natural Philosophy, being based on data, is an example of the former; Mathematics of the latter.)

Apostolic, a.pos'tō'lik. not a.pos't·lik, adjective of apostle.
Greek apostolíkos (apostólos, apo stelo, to send off on a mission).

Apostrophe, plu. apostrophes (Greek), a.pos'trof'ě, a.pos'trof'ě.fiz. Apostrophise, apostrophised (4 syl.), apostrophising.
Greek apostrophe. ("Apostrophe" is not a Greek word. R xxxii.)

Apotheosis, generally called ap'ō-the'o'sis, but more correctly ap'ō-the'o'sis (ἀποθέωσις), Deification.
Greek apo theōs, [placed with the gods] by deification.

Appall, appalled (2 syl.), appall-ing, appall-ingly. (Rule I.)
(This word would be better with double "l"—appall.)
Latin ap [ad] pēll [e], to turn very pale.

Appanage, ap'ā-nij. Lands assigned to younger sons.
Med. Lat. ap [ad] panāgium, for maintenance (panis; bread).
In French one "p", appanage.

Apparatus, ap'ā-par'ā-tūs not ap'ā-pār'ā-tūs nor a-par'ā-tūs.
Latin ad [ad] parātus, [instruments] prepared for [experiments].

Apparel, appareled (3 syl.), apparell-ing. (Rule iii. -EL)
French appareil; Latin ap [ad] parā, to dress thoroughly.

Apparent, ap.pair'ent not a.pair'ent. Evident.
Latin ap [ad] parent; apparentis; visible to [men].

Appeal, ap'ēal' not a.pearl. To refer to a higher court.
Latin ap [ad] pēllāre, to drive or refer to [another court].

Appearance. (The spelling of this word is quite indefensible.)
It ought to be appearance, as "apparent."
Latin ap [ad] parentes; Med. Latin apparentia; French apparence.

Appease, ap'ēez' not ā.pee'ez'. To pacify. (Double "p").
Latin ap [ad] pacífico; French one "p," apaiser (paz, peace).

Appellant, ap'ō-Pel'lan. One who removes his suit to a higher court.
Appendage, app'end.age not a. pen'.däge. Something added.
Medieval Latin ap [ad] pendit/a, hung on to [something else].

Appendant, app'endance. (These words ought to be app'endent, app'endence, as 'dependent, dependence, independent, independence, pendent, impendent.)
Latin ap [ad] pendens, hanging on to [something].

Appen'dix, plural appen'dixes or appen'dices (4 syl.) A supplement.
Latin appendix, plural appendices (4 syl.)

Appetite, ap'etite. Natural desire for food. (See Apatite.)
Latin ap [ad] petit/us (ap-peto, to seek for [food]).

Applaud, ap.plawd' not a.plawd'. To praise by clapping hands.
Applause, ap.plawz' not a.plawz'. To clap the hands.
Latin ap [ad] plau/do, to clap the hands [in approval].

Applicable, ap.pl'i.kli.b'l not a.plik'.a.b'le. Suitable.
Latin ap [ad] plieabtlis, fit to be folded to [something].

Apply, applies (2 syl.), applied (2 syl.), applier, appli-able, applianse, appli-cable, appli-cability, but apply-ing.
Latin ap [ad] plie, to fold to (or) against something.
To "apply a blister," is to fold it to the skin. To "apply to your books," is to fold your attention or thoughts on them.

Appoggiatura, ap-po/j'.ja.tu rbah not a-podg'.j-too'bah. A grace-note in Music. (Italian.)
Italian appoggiare, to lean on something. A grace-note "leans on" the note preceding it.

Appoint, ap.point' not a.point'; appointment (double y).
French ap-pointer, to give a salary to a person.
(It is incorrect to say a person is "appointed" on a committee or board, if no "pay" is attached to the office.)

Apportioned, ap.por'.shund not a.por'.shund. Assigned.
Latin ap [ad] por'tio, [to give] to one his portion.

Apposite, ap.pozite. To the point. In Grammar, an amplification without a connecting word: as "Victoria, daughter [of the duke of Kent].
Latin ap [ad] po/sit/us, placed (or) put to [the other].

Appreciate, ap.pre.che.ate not a.pre.che.ate.
Fr. apprécier. Lat. ap [ad] preti/um, [to value] according to its price.

Apprehend, ap.pre.hend', apprehend-er, apprehend-ing (from the root), apprehens-ible, apprehens-ion, apprehens-ive (from the supine).
Latin ap [ad] prehend-e, apprehens-um, to seize on.

Apprentice, ap.pren'.tis not a.pren'.tis. One bound to a trade.
French apprenti, a learner (apprendre, to learn); Latin apprenendo or apprendo, to learn.
Apprise, ap.priz'. To inform, to give one notice of [something].
French appris, participle of apprendre, to learn.

Approach, ap.proach', not a.proach'; approachable.
French approcher (proche, near), to draw near.

Approval, ap'-pro.boy'-shun. Approval. (Double p.)
Latin ap [ad] probatio, proof or satisfaction given to [the judgment].

Appropricate, ap.pro'.pri.ate not a.pro'.pri.ate; appropriator.
French approprier. Latin ap [ad] proprius, [to take] to one's self.

Approve, ap.proov'. To admit the propriety of.
Latin ap [ad] probo, to prove to (or) satisfy [the judgment].

Approximate, ap.prox'.x.mate not a.prox'.x.mate.
Latin ap [ad] proximaTe, to draw next to some one.

Appui, ap'.pwe'. (In horsemanship) reciprocity between horse and rider. If the mouth of the horse answers readily to the bit, the horse has a good appui. If the rider manages his reins skilfully, he has a good appui.

French appui, a support or fulcrum; the two ends of the lever are the reins and bit, the power is applied by the hand of the rider, the fulcrum is the corner of the horse’s mouth. “Appui” is a nice adjustment of power in the rider, and a sensitive response in the mouth of the horse.

Appurtenance, ap.pur'.te.nanee not a.pur'.te.nanee. (The spelling of this word is quite indefensible.)
Latin ap [ad] p"tinens*, pertaining to; French appartenance.

A priori (Latin), a pri.,roti. Premising the effects of a cause.

In Mathematics, we argue a priori: thus, knowing the value of 2 and 4, we conclude that 2 × 4 = 8, 4 ÷ 2 = 2.

In Natural Philosophy we proceed the other way (a posteriOr): thus, we find all unsupported bodies fall to the earth, and from this fact we assume there is a power in the earth to cause it. The power we call “gravitation.”

Apron, a'.pron not a'.pun. “An apron” corruption of a nape.ron (French), a large cloth (nappe, a table-cloth).

Apse (1 syl) of a church. The bay or curved part behind the altar. This word ought to be hapse (Greek ἁπάς).

Apsis, plu. apsides, ap'.sis, ap'.st.deez. Two points in the orbit of planets, one nearest the sun, and the other furthest off. This word ought to be hapsis, hapsides.

Greek hapas, a hoop, arch, bow (ἁψ). (For the singular we use the word ap'teran.)

Aptera, ap'.te.ry.h. Wingless insects, as spiders, fleas, &c.

Greek ap'tera, without wings.

Aquatic, aquat'.xk. Pertaining to water, living in water. (In Latin, the second “a” of this word is long.)

Latin aquāticus, aquatic (aqua, water).
Aquarium, plural aquaria or aquariums. Cases for the exhibition of marine animals and plants. (This word should be aqua-vivarium, as the Latin word "aquarium" means a "place for watering cattle").

Aqueduct, not aquaduc nor aqueduct, a'.quē.duct.
Latin aquē-ductus, a duct or conduit for water. (Aqua, gen. case.)

Aqueous, a'.que.ūs. Watery. (Latin? aquēus.) (Note, aque not aqua.) (The spelling of this word is indefensible.)

Aquilegia, a'-quıl`ee`.g'i-ah. The Columbine plants.
(This word is most improper to express "An eagle-like plant." It exists in Latin, and means "vessels to collect water" (aqua-lego). Aquila, a cont. of the old form aquai.)
Latin aquila, an eagle; from a fanciful resemblance of the flower to eagle's claws. "Columbine" is from Columba, a dove; from a similar resemblance to the claws of a pigeon. Probably it is a corruption of aquila-chēlea—chēle, a bird's claw.

Aquiline, a'k.quil`i.ine. Hooked like an eagle's beak.
Latin aquilìnus, like an eagle (aquila, an eagle).

Ar- (prefix) is the Latin preposition ad before r.
-ar, (termination) of adjectives is the Latin -r[is] preceded by "a," as vulgar, "pertaining to" the vulgus (mob).
-ar, termination of native nouns, "agents"—beggar.

Arabesque, Ar'a.besk. Moorish ornamentation.
-esque (French postfix for like), Arab-like.

Arabic, Ar'ri.ık not A.rab'.äk. The Arabian language, from Arabia, Arabian: as gum-arabic.

Arable, ar'rā.b'l. Fit for tillage, cultivated by the plough.
(This word in Latin has the second "a" long.)
Latin arābitis (verb arāre, to plough). It is the long ā of the 1st conj.

Arachnoid, a.rak'noid. A membrane of the brain fine and delicate as a cobweb. In Botany, soft downy fibres.
Greek arachn-idoes, like a cobweb.

Araneidae, ä.rain`.i.deez. The spider family.
The genus is called arachnida, ä.rák'n.i.dah.
Latin arānea-īdes, the spider family.

Arbitrary, ar'.bī.trar`ry not ar'bī.ter`ry. Dogmatic.
Latin arbitrarius (āra bīto, to go to the altar to give judgment. In swearing, the Romans touched the horns of the altar, hence the phrase usque ad aras, to assert on oath).

Arbitrator, feminine arbitratrix. An umpire (Law Latin).

Arboretum, plu. arboreta, ar'.bo.ree`.tum, ar'.bo.ree`.tah. A pleasure ground of rare shrubs and trees (Latin).
Arbour (of a garden) not harbour. Harbour (for ships) not arbour.

"Arbour," Latin arbor, a tree (a seat under a tree).
"Harbour," Old-English here-borga, an army-station, hence a place for a fleet, and hence a place for ships in general.

Arbutus, ar'bu.tus not ar.bu'tus (Latin). The strawberry-tree.

Arc, part of a circle; Arch (in architecture).

Latin arcus, a bow. "Arch"—this word is a blunder, from the supposition that architect means a maker of arches, and not a "directing builder" (Greek architecton, archi tecton), where the prefix arch- is from the verb arché, to direct; and not from the Latin arcus, a bow.

Arcanum, 'pu.' arcana (Latin), ar.kay'num, ar.kay'nah. A secret [preparation], the secrets of a secret society.

Arch- (prefix), Teutonic ar'y, "crafty," "waggish," as archness.

Arch- (prefix), Greek arkos, "chief," as archbishop.

Rule i.—Arch- followed by a consonant is pronounced arch.

Rule ii.—Arch- followed by a vowel is pronounced ark.

Examples of Rule i.—

ARCH-bishop, ARCH-duke, ARCH-marsh'al
  -bishops'  -duke's
  (Archiepiscopal, R. ii.) -du'cal
  -builder    -duch'y
  -butler     -duchess
  -butter     -fel'son
  -chamberlain -fiend
  -chancellor -flam'ien
  -conspirator -flatter'er
  -critic     -foe
  -deacon    -governor
  -deaconry  -her'etic
  -deaconship -her'esy
  (Archidiacconite, R. ii.) -hyp'ocrite
  -diocese    -like
  -Druid     -ly

Examples of Rule ii.—

ARCH-ism ARCH-episcopal ARCH-itect
  -e.ology    -episcopal
  -angel     -il
  -angellic  -i.och'l'an
  -ego.saurus- i.magas
  -e.type    -re.im'eles
  -ical      -i.pel'ago
  -idiac'onal -on.ship

Exceptions:

ARCH-apos'tate not ark'apos'tate
ARCH-apos'tle not ark'apos'tle
ARCH-er, ARCH-ery, ARCH-ed, ARCH-es, ARCH-ing, &c.
Archives, ark.ives not ar`cheeves. Historical records, their dépôt.
Greek archeion, a public building, residence of the chief magistrates under whose charge the public records were placed.

Arctic, ark.тик not ar`tih. Pertaining to the North Pole.
Greek arktès, the [Great] Bear, the chief northern constellation.

-ard (native suffix), "species," "kind:" dotard, drunkard—one of the doting kind, one of the drunken kind.

Ardent, ardënt-ly, ardency.
(Latin ardens, ardëntis, burning.)

Ardour, ar`dor. Fervency.
(Latin ardur, French ardeur.)

Are, är not air. The old Norse "we, you, they are," has superseded the older form of synd or sinden.

Areca, a.ree`.käh. The betel-nut tree.
(Malabar areek.)

Arena, plural areæce or arenas, a.ree`.nah, a.ree`.nee, a.ree`.nâz.
Latin arena, sand; that part of the amphitheatre where the gladiators fought, which was always well sanded.

Areola, plural areolæ, a.ree`.ô lah, (sing.), means the coloured circle round the nipple of the breast; a.ree`.ô lee (plural) means the spaces in the wings of insects between the nervures (2 syl.) Aurelia, q.v., is quite another word.

Areopagus, ar`reek.oy`.gö-gës not ar`reek`-e.pay`-gus.
Greek Ares paxis, Mars' Hill (a court of justice in Athens).

Argentine, ar`.gen.tin (a mineral); ar`.gen.tine (adj.), like silver, belonging to the republic of La Plata.

Latin argentum, silver. (The metal is also called argentan.)

Argil, ar`.gil, clay; argillaceous, argilliferous, argillite, argillitic, argillous, &c. (with double l).
(Rule iii. -ll.)

Argonautic, ar`go.naut`ik not ar`go.nawk`-tikh. Pertaining to the argonauts.
(Greek Argo naus, the ship "Argo ruth.)

Argue, ar`.gli/ argues, ar`.gizze; argued, ar`.gâde; arguer, ar`.guer; ar`gument not argumen, argumentation, argumentative, argumentatively. (The "e" in argue is a blunder.)
(That is the only word, except four verbs in "dge," which drops the "e" before "ment.")

Rule xviii.
French arguer, argument, argumentation, &c.; Latin arguo.

Arise, past tense arose, past part. arisen. Arising.
A.riz`, a.rose`, a.riz`.n, a.riz`.ing. To rise up.
Old English aris[an], past arís, past participle arisen.

It is now customary to spell all the words from the Greek krataia "cracy," not crasy: thus, aristocracy, autocracy, democracy, with the hybrid mobocracy. The ending -cy denotes "rank," "office," &c.
Greek aristokratia (ariston krâtein), rule of the best-born.
Arithmetic, arithmētik not arithmētik.

Arithmetical, arithmētik not arithmētik.

Arithmetician, arithmētik not arithmētik.

(In the Greek the "e" of all these words is long.)

Greek arithmos, number; arithmētikos, one skilled in numbers.

Armada, armādah dah not armēdah dah. An armed fleet. (Sp.)

Armadillo, armēdoo plural armadillos (Spanish). (Rule xliii.)

Armillary (sphere), armēlīrē not armēlīrē. A machine fitted with movable circles representing the great and little geographical circles of our earth.

Latin armilla, a bracelet or iron ring.

Army, plural armies, armī, armīz. (Rule xliiv.)

Aroma, arō'mah. The fragrant principle of plants.

Aromatic, arō'matīk containing arōma,

Greek arōma, sensing. Latin arōmaticus, aromatic.

Arpeggio, plural arpeggios, arpeg'jō, arpeg'joze. (Rule xliii.)

Chords played as in the harp, that is "open," not "close."

Italian arpeggio (arpa, a harp: arpeggiare, to play the harp).

Arragonite, arragōnīt not arragōnīt. A metal. (This word ought to be spelt with one r.) It is named from Aragon, in Spain.

Arraign, arrain' to indite. Arrage, to set in order.

Old Fr. arraigner; Lat. ad rationem stare, to stand to a law-suit.

Arrange, arrainj, arranged (2 syl.), arraing-er, arrangement (with the e), *arrainj*ment. (Note the double r.) (Only 5 words lose the "e" before "ment": acknowledg-ment, abridg-ment, lodg-ment, judg-ment, and argu-ment. All but the last end in -dge.)

French arranger, arrangement, i.e., arr[ad] rang, according to rank.

Arrant (thorough), as an "arrant knave." Errant, wandering.

"An arrant knave" is probably the Old English a neaer cnēpā (an arrant knave), similarly neaer bregd (great fear), neaer grēp (thorough grasp).

Array, arrayed not arraid. To put in order of battle.

Medieval Latin arraya, an array; arrayatio, an arraying.

Arrest, arrēst not arrest. To seize as a prisoner.

Greek arēstā, [summoned to hear] the judgment of the court.

Medieval Latin arresto, to arrest; arrestum, an arrest.

Arrive, arriv not āriv; arrived (2 syl.), *arriv*ing, *arriv*al.

Latin ar [ad] rivum, [come] to the river (the shore or boundary), rivers being the natural boundaries of nations.

Arrogant, arrogance, arrogancy, arrogate (double r).

Latin ar [ad] rogāre, to claim to [oneself].
-art (Old English termination), added to agents, as braggart.

Art (of the verb "to be"), is the Old English ear-th or ear-t, the first person "am" being eo-m (later form ea-m), m is the first person pronoun, and th or t the second.

Art, a work of skill. Hart, a male deer. Heart (of the body).

Art'ist, art'isan, art'ifice, artif'icer, artific'ial, artific'ially.

Artemisia, ar'-tē.mīz"-i-āh. Mother-wort, wormwood, &c.

From Artēmis, who presided over women in child-birth, hence also the name mother-wort. It is called worm-wood because moths dislike it for its bitterness.

Ar'tery, plu. art'eries. A vessel to convey blood from the heart.

(In Greek the "ε" is long, as in arterial.)

Greek arteria (i.e., aer tēros, to hold air; from the old notion that arteries are air tubes, because in dead bodies they are empty).

Artesian (well) Ar.tee.′zē.an not Ar.tee.′zhăn. Water obtained by boring the earth.

So called from Artois (or Artēsium) in France.

Article, the called the "definite," an the "indefinite." "An" drops its n when the word following begins with a vowel or h mute. "The" is a pronoun adjective, "An" the numeral adjective ane (one). See A (article).

Artifice, ar'.tījīs (Latin artificium, done by art).

Artillery, ar.til'.le.rfj. Ordnance. (French artillerie).

Artisan, ar'.tīz.an. A skilled workman, a mechanic.

Latin artis, with the termination -an (an agent), "a man of skill."

Arum, air′.um. The wake-robin, cuckoo-pint, lords and ladies, &c.

Greek arūn, said to be an Egyptian word. Called "Wake-robin," because it generates great spontaneous heat.

-ary (Latin termination) -ri[us], preceded by "a." It is added both to nouns and adjectives. In nouns it means "a place" for something, as library; or "one who pursues a craft," as statuary. As an adjective it means "pertaining to," as literary.

As- (prefix), the Latin preposition ad before "s."

As ... as; so ... as. In affirmative sentences as follows as. In negative sentences as follows so. "It is as light as day;" "It is not so light as it was." So in indirect negative sentences: "Few kings have been so feared as Napoleon," that is "not many kings," &c. "So far as I know," that is, "I do not know to the contrary."

Asafaetida, as′ā.fee′-ti-dāh. A gum-resin of fetid smell:

Latin āsā fatīda, a fetid gum (asūrum, nard).
Errors of Speech

Ascaris, plural ascarides, as. ká.rís, as. kar ry.deez.

Greek askarí̯s, an intestinal thread-worm.

Ascend, ascended (3 syl.): -ed after "a" or "t" forms a separate syllable.

Ascension not-tion: after "d," "de," or "t," -sion and not-tion is added.

Ascendancy, ascendant ought to be ascendent (not the 1st Latin conjugation).

Ascendable, one of the abnormal words in -able. (Rule xxii.) It ought to be ascendible, like "descendible."

Latin as [ad]scendere (i.e., scandero), to climb up to [something].

Ascertainment, as'se.r.tain': To make oneself sure by investigation.

Latin as [ad]certus, to assure oneself.

Ascetic, as'set'íc, a hermit; acetic, a see'tic, sour.

Greek askétos (askeb, to honour a divinity).

Asceii, as'së-i. Those who have no shadow [at noon]. For the singular we use the word asc'ian.

Greek a skía, without shadow (people in the torrid zone).

Ashamed, a.shamed' not as.shamed'. "To be ashamed," and "To be glad," are deponent verbs, that is, passive in form but active in sense.

Old English a-scamian, to be ashamed; glad'ian, to be glad.

Ask, às not às (a'x is a vulgarism). Old English asc[ian].

-asm (Greek termination -sm [os] preceded by "a." It is added to nouns), "system of," "state of"—enthusiasm.

Asparagus, as.par'ra.güs not spar'row.grass nor grass.

Greek aspáragós, a plant with turí̯cs, i.e., unexpanded shoots.

Asperse, aspersed'- (2 syl.), aspers'-ing, aspers'-er, aspers'-ion.

Latin aspergo, supine aspersum, to sprinkle.

Asphodel, as'fo.del not as. fo.del. The day-lily, or King's-spear.

Greek asphódelós (spóddás, ashes), from its use in funerals.

Asphyxia, as.fíx'.t.i.áh. A full in the action of the heart.

Greek a sphúxis, without pulse (from suffocation, &c.).

Aspire', aspired (2 syl.), aspir'-ing, aspir'-er, aspirant.

As'pirate, as'pirated, as'pirat-ing, as'pira'tion.

Latin as [ad]spiráre, to breathe towards or aim at [something].

-as (French termination -asse added to nouns), means "made of," as cuirass, made of leather (cuir).

As, possessive case ass's, ass'ís; plural asses, ass'es.

Assail, assailed (2 syl.), assail-ing, assail-er. (Rule ii.)

Assailable, as sail'a.b'l not â sail'a.b'l. (Rule xxiii.)

Latin as [ad]salire, to leap on one.
AND OF SPELLING.

Assassin, assas'sin. One who attempts murder by surprise.

Armenian hashiskin, hemp-eaters (Lane); hassa, to lie in ambush in order to kill (Volney). (Observe double s twice.)

Assassinate, assas'sin.ate. To kill by surprise. (Double s twice.)

Assault, assalt' not a. sawlt'. To attack violently.

Latin as [ad] saltum, to leap on another.

Assay, past tense assayed not assaid. It is no comp. of "say."

French essayer, to try; Medieval Latin assaia, assay.

Assemble, assembled, assem'bled, assem'bling, assem'bl-er assem'bl-y, assem'bl-age. (Double s throughout.)

French assembler, to gather persons together; Med. Latin assem'blatio, (as [ad] simul blatio, to chat together).

Assent, assent' not a. sent'. To admit as true.

Latin as [ad] sentio, to think as you think.

Assertion, ass'er'shun not a.ser'shun. An affirmation.

Latin as [ad] serio, a, not [ad] sero, to knit, to weave; whence serere colloquio (Livy), and serere sermones (Plautus). Conversation is a "web of words," or "knitting thoughts with words."

Assessor, asses'sor not a.ses'sor. One who assesses. (R. xxxvii.)

Assessable, one of the abnormal words in -able. (R. xxiii.)

Latin as [ad] sessor, a sitter [at a board for adjusting taxes].

Assets, as'sets' (plu.) Property available for payment of debts.

Latin as [ad] satum, [to be taken till there is] enough to [pay all].

Asseverate, assev'er ate, asseverat-ed, asseverat-ing, asseverat-or, assevera'tion. To declare positively.

Latin as [ad] severeare, to speak according to the truth.

Assiduous, assid'u ̊ us not a.sid'jus. Industrious.

Latin as [ad] sedere, to sit close to [work].

Assign, assine not a.sine'. To make over to another.

Assignor, as'si nor not as sig'nor nor assine'or.

Assignee, as'sine'ee not as sig'nee nor assine'ee.

Assignment, assine'ment not a.sine'ment. (Double s.)

Latin as [ad] signo, to mark out for another.

Assimilate, assim'l at e not a.sim'ul.at e. To make like.

Assimilate'd, assimilate'ing, assimilate'or; assimilate'ion.

Latin as [ad] similare, to liken to something else (-mil not -mu-).

Assistant, assistance, as sis'tant, as sis'tance. (Rule xxiv.)

Latin as [ad] sistens, standing by or near another.

Assize, plu. assizes, as'size', as size'ez. (Double s.)

Law Latin assisa (as [ad] sessio), a sitting to [hear trials].
Associate, as.sə'ʃe.ate not ə.sə'ʃe.ate. To join as companion.
Latin as [ad] sociare, to be a companion to one.

Assume, as.səm'ə, assumed' (2 syl.), assum'ing, assum'·er, assum'·able. (Rule xxiii.)
Assumpt'·ive, assump't'·ion, assump'sit (from the supine).
Latin as [ad] sumere, supine assumptum, to arrogate to oneself.
Assure, as.shʊrə, assured' (2 syl.), assur'·ing, assur'·edly (4 syl.), assur'·edness (4 syl.), assur'er, assur'·ance. To make sure.
French assureur: Medieval Latin as.sūro, assur'·ancia; i.e., as [ad] secur'o, to secure to one.

-aster (Greek -aster). “Affected by the stars”: disaster.

Asterisk, as.ter.ɪsk not as.ter.ɪk. A mark thus *.
Greek astériskós, a little star (used to direct to a footnote).
Asteroid, as'tə.roid. One of the minor planets.
Greek astérōs-eidos, like a star. Herschel uses the gen. case to signify “likeness of character;” thus in Latin similis domini, “of a similar disposition to the master.” (See Astroid.)

Asteroida, as.tə.roidə.áh. An order of polypes (3 syl.)
Greek astérōs-eidos. So called because their expanded tentacles form a star-like or rayed arrangement.

Asthma, asth.'mah. A disease affecting the breathing.
Greek asth'ma, a panting (ad, to blow or puff).

Astroid, as'troid. A star with six points instead of five.
Greek astrō-eidos, like a star in outward visible form; so in Latin “os, humerosque similis deo,” in outward form like a god—in face and shoulders. (See Astroid.)

Asylum, plu. asylums or asyla, a.sɪ'lux, a.sɪ'lah. (One s.)
Greek asylum, a place not to be violated (a sīlaō, not to pillage).

At- (prefix). The Latin preposition ad before “t.”

At (preposition). Being a preposition it requires after it a noun, expressed or understood. Hence, such a phrase as “Where are you living at?” is incorrect; although it would not be incorrect to say “What house are you living at?” (i.e., at what house are you living?) (for the head).

“A‘t all,” “not a·t all,” “not a·tall,” “not a·t·all.”

-ate (Latin termination -t [us] preceded by “a.” It is added to nouns, adjectives, and verbs.
To Nouns signifying “office:” as advocate.
To Adjectives signifying “made of,” “full of:” passionate.
To Verbs signifying “to take up,” “to put into:” animate.
AND OF SPELLING.

-ate (in Chemistry), denotes a salt formed by the union of an acid with a base: as nitrate.

Ate, past tense of eat. Hate, dislike. Ait, an island.

"Ate," Old English et[an], past æt, past participle eten, to eat. "Hate," Old Eng. hetæ, verb hettan, past hette, past part. hetten, hate. "Ait," corruption of the Norse eyot or eyot, a little ey or ay [island].

Atheneum or Atheneæum. Public club house, reading room, &c.

Greek Athenaión, the temple of Athēnē (goddess of wisdom).

Athletic, athlet'ik not ath'let'ik, adjective of athlete (2 syl.) (In Greek the "e" of the second syllable is long.)

Greek athlētēs, a wrestler; adjective athlētikós.

-atic (Latin termination -tic[us] preceded by "a") added to adjectival nouns: as fanatic, "one who belongs to a fānum or temple," i.e., a priest, who raved like a madman when he gave responses in the temple.

Atlas, plu. Atlantes, At'las, Atlan'teez, not Atlant'ides (4 syl.) In architecture, "Atlantes" are figures of Atlas used as supports or pillars. (See Atlantides.)

Atlantean, At.lan'tean not At.tan.te'an, adj. of Atlas.

Latin Atlantēs, belonging to Atlas. (Atlantian is quite another word, being the adj. of "Atlantias," a female descendant of Atlas.)

Atlantides, At.lan'ti.deez. The Pleiades (Pli'.a.deez) or seven "daughters of Atlas" formed into a constellation.

Greek Atlas -idēs (-ides, a patronymic), offspring of Atlas.

Atlantiades, At.lan'ti.deez. Mercury, a descendant of Atlas. In Greek the masculine patronymics are -adēs, -idēs, and -iadēs.

Atmosphere, at'mos.fear. The fluid enveloping the earth.

Greek atmos sphaira, a sphere of vapour. (The "air" is one part of the "Atmosphere." The Atmosphere consists of air, vapour, gases, and whatever else contributes to the mass.)

Atmospheric, at'-mōs.fer'-ik not at'-mōs.fee'-rik.

French atmosphérique, pertaining to the atmosphere.

Atom, at'om, at'omic, at'omed (2 syl.), at'omise, at'omised (3 syl.), at'omising, at'omis-ing, at'omism, at'omism. An indivisible particle. (One t.)

Atomical, a.tom.′i. kal, atomically, adj. and adv. of atom.

Greek atômōs, an atom (a temno, not cut, not able to be cut).

Atone, at′one′, atoned′ (2 syl.), aton′-ing, aton′-er, atone-ment. A compound of at-one.

Atonic, at′o.nik, atony, at′o.ny. Wanting tone.

A tonic is a medicine to give tone.

Greek a tōnōs, without that which strains or "braces."

Atrabiliary, a′-trā.bil′i.-ā-ry not a′-trā.bil′i.-ā-ry. Melancholic.

Latin atra bilis, black bile; supposed at one time to produce melancholy. (Greek meliān chōlē, black bile.)
Atrocious, ā.trō.śhūs not ā.trō.śhūs. Very heinous.
Latin atrōx, atrōcis, black, heinous.

Atrocity, ā.trō.ś.ś.ś.ty; atrociousness, ā.trō.śhūs.niess.
(In Latin the "ō" of atrocity is long.) (Atrōcitas.)

Attach, ā.t.tach'; attachment, ā.t.tach'.ment. (Double t.)
French attacher, to bind to another. Low Latin attachiāre.

Attack, attacked, at.takt' not ā.takt'. To assault.
French attaquer; Latin at [ad] Greek tassō, to put an army in array; hence the Latin word tacticī, those who array an army.

Attain, at.tain. To touch on, not to complete. Thus a man attains his 50th year on his 50th birthday.

Attainment, attainable (double t). Rule xxiii.
Latin at [ad] tinēre [tenēre], to touch on, to reach 'till you touch.

Attainted, at.taint'.ed not ā.taint'.ed. Condemned to lose one’s civil rights, stained with the charge of treason.
Latin at [ad] tinctus (tingo, to dye; Greek teggo=tengo).

Attempt, at.temp't not ā.temp't. An effort, to try.
Latin at [ad] tendo, to try to [do something].

Attend, attention, at.tend'; atten'.shun. (Double t.) To stretch the mind to follow a person’s thoughts, hence to follow.
Latin at [ad] tendo, to stretch out to something.

Attendance, attendant. These should be attendance, attendant: as superintendent, superintendence. (Rules xxiv. and xxv.)
Latin attendens, attendentis, verb attendere, to attend.

Attenuate, ā.ten'ā.šeate not ā.ten'ā.šeate. To make thin.
Attenu'ated, attenu'at-ing, attent'u'ation, attenu'at-or.
Latin at [ad] tenuo, to make very thin.

Attestation, at.tes.tay'-shun not ā-tes.tay'-shun. Attestator.
Latin at [ad] testāri, to bear witness to [a document].

Attire, ā.tir'é' not ā.tire'. A dress, to dress or adorn.
Attired' (2 syl.), attir'-ing, attir'-er.
French atour, a head-dress; dame-d'atour, lady of the bed-chamber.

Attorney, ā.t.tur'nei, plu. attorneys not attorneys.
Law Latin attornarius, one who takes the turn or place of [his client].

Attorney-general, plu. attorney-generals, not attorneys-general. In this compound “general” is not an adjective, but a noun. The word does not mean general or common attorneys, but head or crown attorneys. Similarly, lieutenant-generals, brigadier-generals, major-generals, &c.

Attraction, ā.trac'.shun not ā.trac'.shun.
Latin at [ad] tractio, a drawing towards something.

Attractable, attractability. These ought to be attractive, attractability, as contractible, contractibility (Rule xxiii.).
Attribute, at'trib'ute (noun); at'trib'ute (verb) (Rule I.)
Latin at [ad] tribuère, to give or ascribe to someone.
Attributable, contributable, distributable (Rule xxiii.)
Attrition, at'trish'ion not á'trish'ion. Wearing by friction.
Latin at [ad] tritus, [one thing] rubbed against another.
Attune, at'tune' not á'tune'; attuned (2 syl.); attun'ing.
Latin at [ad] tonus, to put in tune [with other instruments].
Auction, aw'k'shun not ok'shun. A sale by bidding.
Latin auctio (augo, to increase [the amount of each bid]).
Aucuba, au'k'bah not a'k'bah. A Japanese plant.
Audacious, au'dav'shus not ou.'dav:.shus. Bold, impudent.
French audacieux, Latin audax, audacis, bold.
Audible, not audable; so inaudible. (Not the 1st Lat. conj.)
Latin audire, to hear; audibilis, what may be heard.
Audience. "A.B. had an audience of Her Majesty," not "an audience with—;" "the queen gave an audience to—"
Augean, Au'je.an not Au.gee.an (short e). The king's name was Aug'éas not Aug'éas. A mythical king of Elis (Greece.)
Aught and naught; ought and nought.
Old English ðht, anything; ðht (ne ðht), nothing.
Also, ðht, anything; ðht (ne ðht), nothing.
Augment, aug'ment (noun); aug'ment (verb). Rule I.
August, au'gust (noun); au'gust (adjective).
Augustins, not Augustines. Of the order of St. Augustin.
Aunt not ânt, a corruption of amt. Ant, ânt not arnt.
Latin amít[a] shortened to ânt; similarly "ant" is a corruption of amít; i.e., emít shortened to emít. Incorrectly amít.
Aurelia, au'ree.li.ah. It ought to be au'rel.î.ah.
Latin aurum, gold, with the diminutive -el, and the termination -ia, the little gold creature. The Greek chrusallis is the same:—
Auricula; au'rik'ulah. The plant called "bear's ear."
Latin aurís, and the diminutive -ulá, a little ear; so called because the leaves resemble in shape a bear's ear.
Auspice, plu. auspices, au'spis, au'spis.isiz. Augury.
Auspicious, au'spis'hus. Lucky; of good augury.
Latin auspúciúm, divination from birds (aves specto, I inspect birds).
Austere, 'au.stear', comp. austér'er, sup. austér'est.
Austerity, plu. austerities, au.ster'ri.tiz.
Latin austérus, rough; austérítas; Greek austérós, austérôtes.
Authentic and Genuine, au-rhev-tik, gen'-i-in.

"Authentic" book, one true in what it states.
"Genuine" book, one written by the person to whom it is ascribed.

Author, feminine authoress or author. (Latin author, R. xxxvii.)

Authorise, not authorize. (It is not a Greek word. Rule xxxi.)

Autocracy not autocracy. (See Aristocracy.)

Greek autó-kratés, ruling by oneself, absolute.

Autocrat, feminine autocratix, au'-to-kra't, au tok'ra-trix.

Greek autókrator, an absolute monarch.

Auto-da-fé not auto-de-fe, pronounce au'-to da-fay' (Port.)

Automaton, plu. automata or automatons.

Greek automatón (autos maitó, to work of oneself).

Autumn, aw'.twum; autum'nal. (Latin autumnus.)

Auxiliary, plu. auxiliaries, aux'il'ó.riz, not aux'il'ó.riz.

Latin auxílium, help; auxítāres, auxiliarius, sent from allies; verb auxilior, to help, from augto, perf. aúxi, to increase.

Avail, a.vail', avail-able, avail-ability, &c. (R.xxiii.)

Latin a [ad] vawre, to be strong against [an adversary].

Avalanche, av'.a.lansh'. A vast body of snow sliding down a mountain.

French avalanche; Latin a [ad] vallem lancinēre, to tear away towards the valley.

Avarice, av'.a.rıS; avaricious, av.a.rish'.us; avariciousness.

Latin avaritia, avarice; avarus, a covetous man.

Avenge, a.venge'; avenged' (2 syl.), aveng'-ing, aveng'-er.

Old French avenger, to revenge; Latin a [ad] vindicäre.

Aver, averred', averr'-ing, a.ver', a.ver'd, a.ver'-ing. (Rule i.)

Averse, a.verse'; averse-ly, averse'-ness, averse'-sion.

Avert', avert'ed, avert'ing, avert'-er.

Latin a vel'to, to turn away, supine avcr'sum.

Aviary, plu. aviaries, av'.'i.a.riz. A place for fancy birds.

Latin aivarium, an aviary (avis, a bird).

Avocation, av'.o.kay', shun. An occupation distinct from your regular trade or profession. It is incorrect to call your ordinary business your avocation, it is your vocation. Thus building is the "vocation" of a builder, gardening may be his "avocation."

Latin a-vocation, a calling away [from business].

Avoid, a.void', avoid-able, avoid-ance, avoid-er.

Latin a vitāre, to shun from [seeing a person].

Avoirdupois, av'.vor.da.poiz'. The ordinary trade weights.

Awake, past. awoke or [awaked, 2 syl.], past part. awoke or [awaken]: awak-ing, a.wake'ing. To rouse from sleep. Old Eng. awac[an], past awoo, past part. awacen, to awake.

Awaken, past part. awakened (3 syl.) (In a religious sense.) Old English awac[an], past awacenede, past part. awacen.

Awe, aw-ing, aw-ful, aw-fully, aw-fulness; but awe-struck, awe-less. Old English ége, dread. (Rules xvii. and xix.)

Awkward means left handed; hence ungraceful, clumsy.

French gauche. Auk, the left hand. “The awoe or left hand” (Holland’s “Plutarch”).

Awl, a shoemaker’s tool for boring holes. All, every-one.

Haul, a catch of fishes. Hall (of a house), a mansion.

“Awl,” Old Eng. awl or awel, an awl. “All,” Old Eng. al or al.

Axil, ar’il, the armpit. Axle, ax’l (of a wheel).

Axil, ax’il-ar, ax’il-ary. (Latin axilla, the armpit.)

Axle, ax’le-tree. Axled, ax’led. (Latin axis, an axis.)

Axis, plu. axes (Latin), ax’iss, ax’ez. (The plural of Axe is also axes, but pronounced ax’ez.)

Aye or aye (meaning yes), plu. ayes, eyes, eyes. No, plu. noes.

Aye, ā, meaning always. Old English awa, always; Greek ai.

Azalea not azalia, a.zay’lé.äh. A genus of shrubs.

Greek azaleös, dry; so called because it loves a dry soil.

Azoic, a.zo’ik. Where no trace of life exists, as “azoic rocks.”

Greek a zoon, without a living creature.

Babble, bab’b'l, to prate. Babel, Ba’bel (Gen. xi. 9).

Babbled, bab’b’ld; babbler, babbling. (Double b.)

French babìter, to prattle.

Baboon, ba’boon’. A large monkey. (One b.) Rule lxii.

French babìne, a lip, and -oon, augmentative (large-lipped).

Baby, plu. babies, bay’by, bay’bez; also babe, babes (1 syl.)

A word common to the whole Aryan family of languages.

Bacchanal, bak’ká.náil; Bacchanalian. (Double c.)

Greek Bakchos, the wine-god. Latin Bacchánàlis, Bacchus.

Bachelor, batch’è.lor; feminine spinster, maid.

Backgammon, back-gam’môn. (Double m.)

Either Old English bæc-gamen, the back game; because the art is to bring all the pieces back into the adversary’s table.

Or Welsh bach gammaun, a little battle.

Or Danish bakke gammen, a tray game.

Backward (adj.), dull. Backwards (adv.), in a back direction.
Bad, worse (comparative deg.), worst (superlative deg.). Worse, worst, are the degrees of the obsolete word wear (bad).

Bad, bād (past tense of "bid"). The final e is to compensate for the diphthong in bad.

"Bad" is probably an ecclesiastical word, taken from Rev. ix. 11; "Abaddon," from the verb abad, to be lost. If so, bad means "lost eternally."

Bag, bagged (1 syl.), bagging, baggage (Rule i.)

Bagatelle, bagˌa.telˈ (French). A trifle, a game.

Baggio, plu. bagnios, bavˈjō, bavˈjōze (Rule xlii.)

Bail, surety. Bale, a packet. (Both pronounced alike.)

"Bail," French bailler, to give or deliver.

"Bale," French balle, a pedlar's pack.

Bailiff, a steward, an officer of justice. Bailey, a prison (R. vi.)

"Bailiff," Law Latin baldūitus, a bailiff.

"Bailey," Law Latin baldium, the enclosure of a fortress.

Bait, lure for fish, refreshment for a horse. Bate, to lessen.

"Bait," Old English bat(an). "Bate" or "abate," French abattre.

Baize, coarse woollen cloth. Bays, plu. of bay (laurel).

"Baize," Spanish baýete; called in French espagnolote.

Balance, not ballance. A pair of scales. (Only one "l".)

Latin bi·lan·ces, two dishes or platters. French balance.

Balcony, plu. balconies, balˌko.niz. Window platforms.

In the Italian the "o" is long: balco·ne (baˌkōˈne).

Bald, bawld not bawl. Without hair. Baldness not bawl·ness.

Bale, a packet. Bail, surety. (See Bail.)

Balk, bawk. Old English bālea, a balk.

Ball, retains double l in all its compounds: as ball-oon, ball-ot, ball-room, football, snowball, &c. (Rule x.)

Ballad, Ballet, Ballot, bālˌläd, bālˌlā̆, bālˌlot.

Ballad. A song containing a tale. (French ballade.)

Ballet. A theatrical dance. (French ballet.)

Ballot, "A little ball" used in voting. (French ballotte.)

Balloon, bālˌloonˌ. Ball with -oon augmentative. (Rule lxi.)

(The guard of a staircase is corruptly called banister.)

Ballustrade, balˌlūsˈtrādˌ. A set of ballusters.

French balustrée, balustrade.

Balm (the herb). Barm, ferment, leaven.

"Balm," contraction of bal•s•am (bal'm); Latin.

"Barm," Old English beorma, leaven.
Bamboo, plural bamboos (Malay), bam'.boo', bam'.booz'.
Ban, banned (1 syl.), bann-ing. Bans (of marriage). Rule i.
Latin bannum, a ban; banna (matrimonialia), banns.
Banana (Spanish), bá.nah'.nah not bá.nay'.nah.
Bandit, plural bandits or banditti, ban.dit', ban.dit'.ty.
Italian banditto, plural banditti, outlaws.
Bandrol, band'.rol. The little flag attached to a trumpet.
French banderole (2 syl.), bande and -role (diminutive).
Bandy, plural bandies (2 syl.), ban'died (2 syl.), ban'di-er, but ban'dy-ing, ban'dy-legs, &c. (Rule xi.)
Banian (days) ban'.yan'. Days when no meat is served. The Banians of India abstain from animal food.
Ban'ister. The guard of a staircase. Corruption of balluster.
Bankrupt, bank'.rupt not bank'.rup. One who has failed.
Bankruptcy, not bankrupcy. State of being a bankrupt.
Italian banco-rotto, broken-bench; because when a money-lender failed, his bench was broken, and he was expelled from his office.
Banner, ban'.ner. A flag. (Double n.)
Latin pannus; Welsh baniar; French bannière.
Banns (of marriage), not bans nor bands. (See Ban.)
Bann'quet, ban'quet-ed, ban'quet-er, ban'quet-ing. (Rule iii.)
(ed forms a distinct syl. after d or t.) French banquet.
Baptize' not baptise, bap'tism, baptist. Baptized' (2 syl.), baptiz'.ing.
Greek baptizó, baptisma, baptistos.
Bar, barr-ed (1 syl.), barr-ing, barr-ister, barr-ier, barr-icade, barr-ulet, barr-ý. (Rule i.) French barrer, to bar.
Barbarize, bar'.bar.ize not barbarise. To make barbarous.
Greek barbarizó, to make barbarous.
Bar'berry. A corruption of berbery. (Genus berbéris.)
Barley. The plural barleys means different specimens or sorts, the general crop: as, The barleys look well (the general crop). Barleys were higher. (the specimens offered for sale). Welsh bara llys[iau], bread plants.
Barm, leaven. Balm, balsam. (See Balm.)
Baron, a lord (one r). Baronet, not fertile (double r).
Baron, feminine baroness. Baronry, baronet, baronial.
"Baron," Latin bānus (a dolt); Barones dicuntur servi militum, qui utique stultissimi sunt, servi videlicet stultorum " (Scholastic). First a serving soldier, then a military chief, then a lord.
Barouche, bā.roosch. A four-wheel coach with a falling top.
Latin bē拉萨, a cart with two pair of wheels (bis rōta), through the German barutsche.

Barrack, plural barricades. The plural is more generally used.
The singular is used in compound words as barrack-master, barricade-life.

Barrel, bar'roll (2 syl.), bar'relling. (Rule iii. -el.)
Spanish barrel. In Welsh and French baril, only one "r."

Barren, not fruitful. Baron, a lord. (See Baron.)

Barricade, bār'rīkade. Originally meant to block up a thoroughfare with barrels (French barriques) filled with stones or earth. (French barricader, to barricade.)

Barrier, bārrī'er. A bar to keep out intruders.
French barrière, from barre, a bar; Welsh bâr, a bar.

Barrister, bārrī'ster. One called to the bar, a pleader.
Bar and the Old Eng. termination -ster, business, habit.

Greek barytēs, heaviness; so called from its weight. (See next.)

Greek bārīs tōnēs, heavy tone of voice.

Bashaw, now called "Pasha," pā'šah.
Latin basilicus (Greek basileus, a king). The "king serpent;" so called from a crest on its head like a crown.
"Basilica," a royal hall of justice; such a hall used for a church.

Basin, bā'sin not bason. *(The French word has double s).

Basis, plural bases (Latin), bā'sis, bā'y seez. (See Base.)

Bass, plural basses; or basso, plural bassos: base, base'e ez; bas'so, bas'soze. (See Base.)
Rule xlii.

Bass-relief, plural bass-reliefs; or basso-relievo, plural basso-relievos: base re'leef, base re'leef's; or bas'so rel'i a'vo, bas'so re.l'i a'voze. (Rule xlii.)

Bassoon, bā.soo'n. A deep bass wind-instrument.
Bass and -oon (augmentative). Italian bassone; French basson.

Bastille, bās'tiıl'. A State prison in Paris. (Not bastile.)
French bastir now bātir, to build. It means the building.

Bastinado, plural bastinadoes, bas'ti.nah'doze. (Rule xlii.)

Bat, batt-ed, batt-ing. Bat (the winged mouse), batt-ish. R. i.
"Bat," Old English bat, a bat. French battre, to beat.
"Bat" (the animal), Welsh bathor, a dormouse.
AND OF SPELLING.

Bate, contraction of abate. Bait, refreshment. (See Bait.)

Bath, bāth not bāth (noun); bathe, bāthe (verb). Rule li.

Bathos, bāthōs, mock sublime. Pathos, pāthōs. Words which excite a feeling of grief.

"Bathos" (Greek), depth; the reverse of sublime.

"Pathos" (Greek), feeling of grief.

Baton (French), bātōn. A small staff used by the leader of an orchestra, a marshal's staff of office, &c.

Batrachians, bā.trāk'chanz. The frog order of reptiles.

Greek bātrachos, a frog.

Battalion (double t and one l), but in French batalion.

Latin bātōn, to fight; Italian battaglione

Battery, plu. batteries, bat.tēr.iz. (French batterie.)

Battle, bat.tl, battled, bat.tld, battling, battlement.

Bazaar, bā.zar', a depot of fancy articles. Bizarre, fantastic.

"Bazaar," Persian bazar, a market. "Bizarre" (French), fantastic.

Be- (prefix) added to nouns, verbs, prepositions, and conjunctions. Added to nouns, it converts them into verbs, as be-friend. Added to verbs, it intensifies them, or adds the idea of about, at, before, for, in, on, over, &c. In prepositions and conjunctions it has the force of by or in

Be (verb). Bee (insect). "Be" forms parts of the verb "To Be." It is used in hypothetical propositions, as: "If I be," that is, "If I should be."

"Be" (verb), Old English beōn; present tense ic beō, thū bist, he byth; plural beoth (all persons).

"Bee" insect, beō, plural beōn (without accent).

Beach, cost. Beech, a tree. (Both pronounced beech.)

Beadle, bec'el. A church officer. (See Bedell.)

Old English beōl, one who bids or cites [to a court of law].

Bead-roll not bead-rol. A list of those to be prayed for. (R. x.)

Beadsman, feminine beadswoman; plu. beadsmen, beadswomen. One employed to pray for another's welfare.

Old English bead or beō, a prayer.

Bean, pulse. Been, bin, past participle of "To be."

Old English beōn, pulse. "Been," Old English beon of the verb beōn.

Bear (to carry), past bore [bare], past participle borne.

Bear (to bring forth), past bore [bare], past part. born.

"Bear" (to carry, to produce), O. Eng. bēr[an], past bér, p.p. boren.

Bear (a wild beast); he-bear, she-bear. Bare, naked.

"Bear" (the animal), Old Eng. bēra. "Bare," Old Eng. bēr[an].
Beast, best, beast-ly, beast-liness: but best-ial, best-iality, best-ially (without "n"). (The "a" of beast is inserted to distinguish the word from "best.")

Latin bestia, a beast; bestialis, bestial.

Beat, to strike. Beet, a root. (Both pronounced best.)

Beat, past beat, past part. beaten or beat. (We say: "He was dead beat," but beaten is the general past part.

Old English beot[an], past beet, past part. beaten.

"Beet" (the root), German bead; Latin bada; French belle.

Beotify, beat'if.illy; beot'ify-ing; but beatified (be-at.'i.fide); beot'ti-cal. (Rule xi.)

Latin, beatus facio, to make happy.

Beau, bo, a top. Bo! an exclamation to frighten children.

Bow, plural bows, an instrument to propel arrows. (Bow to rhyme with grow.)

Beau, plural beaux, bo, boze; feminine belle, plural belles, bell, bells (French). Gentlemen and ladies admired.

Latin bellus, beautiful. Beau is a contraction of bellus (be'w).

Beau ideal, plural beaux ideals, bō i.deel.al, boze i.deel.al (French.) A fancy model of beauty or excellency.

Beau monde, bō mōnd (French). The fashionable world.

Beauty, plural beauties, bu'tiz; beauti-ful, beauti-fully, beauti-fy, beauti-lying, beauti-fied (3 sel.), beauti-fer (Rule xi.): beaute-ous, beaute-ously, beaute-ousness (with e).

French beauté. (There is no sufficient reason for the change of vowel.)

Beautiful, bu'ti.ful. In poetry the superlative beautifulest is sometimes used.

Becca-fico, ought to be beca-fico, bek'-ka.fee'ko. The fig-pecker.

Italian beca-fico (beccare fico, to pick the fig or fig-tree).

Becalm, be.carm' not be.calm; becalmed, be.carm'd.

Fr. calme; Ital. and Sp. calma, quiet, with prefix be-, "to make."

Become, past became, past part. become, pres. part. becom-ing.

Old English becum[an], past becom, past part. becumen.

Bed, bed-d-ed, bed-d-ing; but bedpost, bedstead, &c. (Rule i.)

Old English bed or bad (noun); bed[an], to go to bed.

Bed-clothes, bed-close (no sing.) Sheets, blankets, and quilt.

Bedell not beadle, bee'dell. A university or court mace-bearer. Always styled the Squire bedell. (Latin bedellus.)

Bedim, be.dim', bedimm'd (2 sel.), bedimm-ing. (Rule i.)

Old Eng. dim, dark, with prefix be-, which converts nouns to verbs.

Bedlam, bed'lam. Corruption of Bethlehem, the name of a religious house converted into a lunatic asylum.

Bedouin, Bed'ouin. An Arab tribe (dwellers in the desert).

Arabic bedaw (from badw or bedw, a desert).
AND OF SPELLING.

Bee, the insect. Old Eng. beo. Be (the verb). Old Eng. beo. (See Be.)

Beach, a tree. Beach, a coast. (See Beach.)

Beef, the flesh of slain oxen; plural beoves, 'living' oxen. (Rule xxxviii.)

- French bœuf, plural bœufs; Latin boves, oxen.

Beef-steak, beef-steak not beef-steek.

- "Steak" is Old Norse stek; Danish steg, a broil, or slice to roast.

Beef-eaters, beef-eaters. Yeomen of the guard.

- Norman French buffetiers or boufitiers, waiters at the boufets.

Been, bin, past part. of "To be." Bin (for corn, wine, refuse.)

Beer, malt liquor. Bier, beer, barrow for the dead.

- "Bier," Old English bœr. "Bier," Old English bœr.

Beestings, beestings not beestlings. First milk after calving.

- Old English bysting, which is the better spelling, and sing. number.

Beat, to strike. (See Beat.)

Beetle, beetle, an insect; a mallet. Betel, beetel, a shrub.

- Old English betel or bitel, a beetle; bytel or bytl, a mallet.

- "Betel," an East Indian plant, the leaf of which is much used.

Bees, beex, black cattle; plural of beef. (See Beef.)

Befall, befell, befallen; not befal, befel, befalen. (Rule x.)

Befit, befitt-ed, befitt-ing. To suit, to become. (Rule i.)

Befool, Old Eng. prefix be-. makes verbs of nouns. (Rule lxii.)

Beg, begged (1 syl.), begg-ing, begg-ar, beggared (2 syl.) beggar-ing, beggarly, beggarli-ness, beggary, beggarman (all with double g.) Rule i. "I beg to inform you" means "I beg leave to inform you."

Beggar, a corruption of bègarer (Norse). This accounts for the termination "-ar."

Beget', past begot' [begat], past part. begotten [begot], begett-er, begett-ing, begot-t-en. (Rule i.)

- Old English begebætan, past begebæt, past part. begeten.

Begin', past began' [begun], past part. begun, beginn-ing, beginn-er. To commence, &c. (Rule i.)

- Old Eng. beginnan, past began, past participle beginnen.

Begird; past begirded, past part. begirded or begirt.

- Old English begyrdan, past begyrde, past participle begyrden.

Begonia, plural begonias, begô-ni-ah. Elephant's ears (a plant.)

- So called from M. Begon, French botanist.

Beguins, Beg'winz. A sect of religious women of Germany.

- So called from a linen cap (or beguin) which they wear.
Behalf. A corruption of the Old English behéfe (benefit).

Behold, past and past participle beheld. The more ancient participle beholden means “under an obligation.”

Old English beheldan, past beheld, past part. behelden.

Behoof (noun), behove (verb), Old Eng. behóf[ian]. Rule li.

Belay, past and past part. belayed (2 syl.), not belaid. (R. xiv.)

Old English belédan, past beléd, past part. belédan. Léwa, a betrayer, and prefix be- which converts nouns into verbs. It has no connection with the verb “lay.” (Old English legan.)

Beldam (French belle dame). A euphemism for “an old hag.” Similarly the French say bel age for great age.

Belemnite, bel’em.nite not bel’.em.ite. “Thunderbolt.” Greek belémnon, a dart. (These “stones” are fossil molluses.)

Belie, bel’i, past be.lied’, part. pres. be.ly-ing. (See belly.)

Old Eng. beleeg[an], past belege, past participle beled.

Belief (noun), believe (verb); be.leef, be.leeve. (Rule li.)

Believe, believ.able, believ.er, believ-ing, believ-ingly.

Belle, plural belles, feminine of Beau, plural beaux (French), bell, bells; bô, boze. Pretty girls and their admirers.

Belles lettres (plu), bel lettr. Polite literature. (French.)

Belows (plural), may refer to a single pair, but always requires a plural construction: “The bellows are broken.”

Old English bylig, bellows (from bôg, a bag).

Belly, plural bellies, bel’lîz; bellied, bel’laid. (Rule xi.)

Belly-ing, belly-ache, belly-ful. (See Belie.)

Old English bôg (from bôg, a bag); Welsh bôl.

Belong requires to after it: as “This belongs to me.”

Old English gelang, belonging to, property of.

Belvedere, bel’vi.deer’. A lookout in a garden.

Italian bel vedere, fine sight; Latin bellus videre.

Bend, past and past part. bent; bended (adj.), as “On my bended knee.”

Old English bend[an], past bende, past participle bended.

Beneath, be.neeth’ not be.neerh’. Old English beneothan.

Benedick or Benedict. A man who vows not to marry. “Benedick” (in Much A-do about Nothing) vows he will not marry, but afterwards marries Beatrice. “Benedict” is a play on the proper name. It means “Blessed,” or “Made happy,” and is applied to an old bachelor who has become a bridegroom.

Benefactor, feminine benefactress, bene.fak’tor, bene.fak’tress. -or is more common than -er after t and s. Unhappily no uniform rule is observed.

Latin bene facto, to do well; beneficium, a benefit or good deed, &c.
AND OF SPELLING.

Benefit, past and past part. benefited not benefitted; benefiting not benefitting. (Latin beneficio.) Rule iii.

Benign, benignly, be.nine', be.nine'ly; but benignant, benigneantly, benignity, be.nig'nant, be.nig'.nity, &c.

Latin benignus, benignant (bēnus old form of bēnus, good).

Benumb, be.num'. To make numb or insensible from cold.

Old English benim[an], past benim, past participle benumen, to stu­
py, to benumb. (The b is interpolated.)

Benzine, ben.zeen'. A fluid obtained from coal-tar.

Better Benzole, ben.zole, as the termination -ine denotes a gas. So called by Mitscherlich, who obtained it from benzoic acid. It was Faraday who discovered it in whale oil and coal tar.

Benzoin, ben.zoin', resin of the Benzoin plant (Styrax Benzoin).

In French Styrax Benjoin, and hence called “Gum Benjamin.”

Benzoin, ben.zoin' not ben.zoin'. Obtained from bitter almonds.

Bequest (noun), bequeath (verb), be.kweeth'. O.Eng. becwéth[an].

Berberis, ber'.ber'is (Latin). The barberry genus of plants.

Bereave, past and past part. bereft or bereaved (2 syl.)

Old Eng. bereft[an], past bereftode, past part. berefted.

Berg, a mountain. Burg or burgh, a fortified place: as “Heidelberg,” the heather-hill (Germany); “Edinburgh,” the fortified town of Dunedin (Scotland). Old English berg, a hill. Burh, genitive burge, a fort.

Bernardine, Ber'.nar.dine not Ber.nar'dine. Adj. of the next.

Bernardins, Ber'.nal.dins. So called from St. Ber'nard.

Berry, plu. berries, ber'.rīz, a fruit. Bury, to inter (only one “r”).

Both Old Eng.: Beric (only one “r”), a berry. Buric[an], to bury.

Berth, a place to sleep in. Birth, the act of being born.

Both Old Eng.: Ber, a bed-room; Bere th or ber th, birth.

Beryl, ber'.ril. A precious stone somewhat like an emerald.

Greek bērolēs. (In the Greek word the “ē” is long.)

Beseech, past and past part. besought. (The “g” is interpolated.)

Old Eng. besed[an]; past besocht; past part. besocht.

Beset', past and past part. beset; pres. part. besett-ing (R. i.)

Old English besettan; past besette; past part. besetten or besetten.

Beside, by the side of. Besides, in addition to, moreover.

Besom, bee.zum not bee'sum. A large broom. (O.Eng. bee'sm.)

Besot', besott-ed, besott-edly, besott-edness, besott-ing, besotingly. (Old English be-sot.). Rule i.

Bespeak', past bespoke; past participle bespoke [bespoke].

Old English bespré[an]; past besproe; past participle besprocen.
Besprinkle, past besprinkled, past part. besprinkled or bespruen.

Bestial, bestiality, bestially (Latin bestia). See Beast.

Betake, past betook, past part. betaken; pres. part. betak'-ing.

Betray', betrayed' (2 syl.), betray'ing, betrayal, betray'er. (R. xiii.)

Betroth, betroth not be.trúh. To pledge to marry.

Beware-of. No past tense, participle, or gerund. Without an auxiliary it is used only in the Imperative and Infinitive present. (The auxiliaries used with it are shall and should, may and might, also the verbs must, needs, can, and could, but not do or did, have or had, am, be, or was.)

Betunia (no such word). It should be Petunia, pe.tu'.nuːh.
AND OF SPELLING.

Bey, a Turkish prince. Bay, a small gulf, a laurel.

Bi- or Bis- (prefix). Latin bis. Twofold, double. "Bis" drops the s before consonants. The two exceptions are biscuit and bissextile. Before "o" it is written bin as bin-oxide, bin-oxalate, &c. (This prefix is often added to Greek words, instead of dis.)

In Chemical nomenclature the Greek and Latin numeral prefixes have an arbitrary force: Thus in metaloïdes, if the base is in excess the Greek prefixes are employed: di- (2), tris- (3), &c.; but if the gas is in excess the Latin prefixes are used: pro- (1), sesqui- (1½), bi- (2), ter- (3), &c. Thus a "dioxide of A" (the base), would mean 2 quotas of A to one of oxygen; but "bin-oxide of A" would mean 2 quotas of oxygen to one of A (the base).

Bias, bi'as. A leaning or tendency in one particular way, (verb) bi'assed (2 syll.), bi'ass-ing. (French biais, bias.) The doubling of the s in this verb is an outrage. (R. ii.)

Bib, bibbed (1 syll.), bibb-er, bibb-ing (Rule i.), but bib-a'cient, bib-"ac'ity, bib'-ulous, bib'-io (the wine-fly).

Latin bibo, to drink; bibax, genitive bibliaxis, given to drink; bibitätus, having the capacity to sop up like sponge.

Bible, bi.ble. The Book [of Books]. (In Greek, the i is short.) Bib'lic.al, bib'lic.og'-ra-pher, bib'-lic.oma-.ni-a, bib'-li.pole.

"Bible," Greek biblós, a book.

"Bibliographer," Greek bibliógraphos or biblio-grap'ter, a writer of books.

"Bibliopole," Greek biblio-pôle, a bookseller (pôleo, to sell).

Bicarbonate, bi.kar.bO.nate. A salt with two equivalents of carbonic acid to one of a base.

Latin bi [bis] carbo (-ate, in Chem., means a salt formed by the union of an acid with a base). The "acid" two to one of the "base."

Biccaroon: No such word. See Bigaroon. A white-heart cherry.

Biceps, bi.seps. Any muscle with two heads, as that between the shoulders and elbow. Bicip'ital, not bicep'tal, biceps-tous. (Note -ci, not -ce.)

Latin bi [bis] caput, genitive bicip'titis, with double head.

Bicephalous, bi.sef'.dus. Having two heads.

An ill-compounded word: Latin bi [bis], Greek kēphalē, a head. (It ought to be dicephalous: Greek di [dis] kēphalē.)

Bichromate, bi.kro'.mate. A salt with two equivalents of chromic acid to one of the base.

Latin bi [bis], Greek chroma (-ate, in Chem., means a salt formed by the union of an acid with a base). Bi- is used in Chemical nomenclature to denote that the gas prevails. Di- (Greek) to denote that the base prevails.
ERRORS OF SPEECH

Dicuspid, biˈkusˌpid. Having two points or two fangs.
Latin bi [bis] cuspis, two spear-points (as a tooth with two fangs).

Bid, past bade (bād), past part. bidden [bid]. (Bod is a vulgarism.) Bidd-er, bidd-ing, bidd-en (Rule i.)
Old English bid[an], past bade, past participle bidden, to bid.

Bide, past bode or bided, past part. bided, biˈded. To abide.
Old English bid[an], past bided, past participle bidden, to abide.

Biennial, biˈəniˈəl. Lasting two years, once in two years. It should never be used in the sense of "twice a year." (See Bi-monthly.) Annual becomes ennial in the compounds bi-ennial, tri-ennial, per-ennial, &c. (Double n.)
Latin biennius (bis annus, double year), one year twice over.

Bier, a barrow for the dead. Beer, malt-liquor. (See Beer.)
Diestings or beestings. The first milk of a cow after calving.
Old English bysting, byst, or beast.

Biffin, biˈfɪn. An apple which is dried in an oven and flattened.

Bifurcated, biˈfɜrkəˈted. Forked, divided into two branches.
Latin bi [bis] furca, [like the] two prongs of a fork.

Big, bigg-er, bigg-est; big-ness, big-l’y (Rule i.)
Corruption of "big," swollen. (Old Eng. verb big[an], to swell.)

An ill-compounded word: Latin bi [bis], Greek gámós, double marriage. The word ought to be digamy. Greek di-gamos.

French bigarreau, the mottled cherry (a "White-heart"); Low Latin bivarcella, a corruption of bivarelia (bis varius, doubly mottled).

Bight, a small bay. Bite (with the teeth). (Both bite.)

Bignonia, biˈnɒniəˈniːə. The trumpet flower, yellow jasmine, &c.
So called by Tournefort from the abbé Bignon, a botanist.

Bignoniaceae, biˈnɒniəˈniːəˌsiˈe. The order of which Bignonias are types (-aceae, in Botany, denotes an order).

Bigot, biˈɡɒt, bigoted not bigotted. A religious zealot. (R. iii.)
Old Eng. big[an], to worship. Suffix -ot, dm. or depreciatory.

Bijou, plu. bijoux (French), bəˈzhu, bəˈzhu. Trinkets.

Bijoutry (French), bəˈzhuˌtrɪ. Jewellery.

Bilbo, plu. bilboes. The singular means a "rapier," so called from Bilbao, in Spain. The plural means "fetters."
Latin bi [bis] boia, double collar of iron.

Bilious, biˈluːs, having the bile out of order. (N.B.—One l.)

Biliary duct, biˈliər iˌdʌkt not biˈliər iˌdʌkt.
Latin biliōsus, full of bile (bilis, bile).
AND OF SPELLING.

Billet, bil’let. A log of wood; to quarter soldiers. Bill’et-ed, bill’et-ing. (One t. Rule iii.)

“Billet of wood,” French bilot. “Billet” (to quarter soldiers), French billet, a ticket (Latin bulla, a seal to authenticate the order); Low Latin biléius, a billet.

Billion, bil’yun. A million million.

Latin bi [bis] million, a million twice over.

Billy-goat, a male goat. Nanny-goat, a female goat.

Bilobate, bi.lO’.bate. (Botany.) A leaf with two lobes. This word is wrong. The o is short, and the Bi should be Di.

Greek di lobos. “Bilobate” is part Latin part Greek.

Bimana, bi.ma’nä not bima’nia. It ought to be bi’män-ah. Animals with two hands like men. (“Bima’nia” would mean mad on two subjects, double madness.)

Latin bi [bis] manus, having two hands.

Bimonthly, bi.month’ly. Twice a month. In this sense the word is quite indefensible. It can only mean “Every two months;” as Biennial, “every two years.” Besides, bi (Latin) monthly (Anglo-Saxon) is a false compound. It should be Twymonthly (twice monthly).

Binacle, bin’a.cle. Corruption of the French habit’acle or ‘bitacle, a box containing the compass and lights. Bin’acle, a telescope with two tubes.

“Binacle,” Latin hablāculum, a small house or abode.

“Binocele,” Latin bin [bis] oculus, for both the eyes. (See Bi-.)

Binary, bi’nä.ry not bin’a.ry. Combination of two bodies (as double stars), two compounds, two figures, &c.

Latin binarius (binus, i.e., bi [bis] unus, one twice).

Bind, past and past participle bound, to fasten by bonds. Bounden (adjective), obligatory: as “My bounden duty.”

Old English bind[ten], past band, past participle bunden.

Binnacle or binacle. (See Binacle.)

Binoxalate, bin.ox’.a.late. Binoxide, bin.ox’.ide. In Chemistry the Latin numerical prefixes pro- (1), sesqui- (1½), bi- (2), ter- (3), denote that the gas is the part referred to, and prevails. The Greek di- (2), tris- (3), &c., denote that the base is the part referred to, and is 2, 3, &c., to one of the gas. (See Bi-)

Latin bin [bis]. Greek oxālis.

Biography, bi.o’g.rá.fy. The written history of a person’s life.

Greek bios graphe, I write the person’s life.

Biology, bi.öl’.ö.gy. The science which investigates the phenomena of life, whether animal or vegetable.

Greek bios logos, a treatise or discourse about “Life.”
Biped, bī′ped. One who has two feet, like men and birds.
Latin bī [bis] pēdes, two feet.

Bipennate or bipinnate, bi′pen′nate or bi′pin′nate.
Latin bī [bis] penna or pinna, having two wings.

Bird (common gender). Cock-bird (male), hen-bird (female).
Old Eng. bird, a bird; brid, a young bird or a brood.

Birth, act of being born. Berth, a sleeping-place. (See Berth.)

Bis- (prefix). Latin bis, “two,” “twofold,” “double.” The “s” is dropped before consonants (except in bis-cuit and bis-sex'tile). Before “o” it becomes bin-, as bin-ocle, bin-oxide.
In Chemical nomenclature it denotes that the gas is twofold the quantity of the base. Thus bi-carbonate of potash means: two equivalents of carbonic acid gas to one of potash.

Biscuit, bi′s-kit (Fr. bis-cuit, twice cooked; Lat. bis coc[tus]).
This word and “bis-sextile” are the only two which retain the s of “bis” before a consonant.

Bisected, bi′sek′ted. Cut into two equal parts.
Latin bī [bis] sectus, cut into two parts (called bisegments).

Bishop. In the Saxon period called bīscop or biscop, and his diocese a bīscopdom or biscopdom. Contraction of Greek epiśkōps, Latin episcopus (“bishop”).
Greek epi skōpōs, an overseer (of the clergy); verb skōpō, to look.

Bismuth, bīs′muth not biss′muth (French). A metal.
In German it is bismuth or wismuth.

Bison, bi′son (Greek bison). A wild ox with a hunch.

Bisextile, bi′sex′tile. Leap-year. (See Biscuit.)
Latin bis sextiles, the sixth [of the calends of March or February 24, counted] twice. Now, a day (29) is added to February.

Bisulphate, bi′sul′fate. A salt containing two equivalents of sulphuric acid to one of the base.
Latin bī [bis] sulphur, sulphur twice. The suffix -ate denotes a salt where the acid is most oxidised, and therefore ends in -ic; as *sulphur*ic acid; -ite denotes a salt where the acid is less oxidised, and therefore ends in -ous, as sulphite a salt formed of sulphurous acid with a base.

Bit, a morsel. Bitts (plural), two pieces of timber in the forepart of a ship round which cables are fastened.
Bit, bitt-ed, bitt-ing. To put the bit into a horse’s mouth.
Bitt, to put the cable round the bitts; bitt-ed, bitt-ing.
“Bitt,” Old Eng. bītolt, a bridle [a cable is the ship’s bridle].
(The second “t” is added to distinguish the two words.)
Bitch, feminine of dog. Also a gender-word as bitch-fox; dog-fox; bitch-ape, dog-ape; bitch-otter, dog-otter, &c.

Old English bice or byce, a bitch.

Bite (with the teeth). Bight, a bay. (See Bight.)

Bite, past bit, past part. bitten [bit]; bit-ing; bit-er. R. xix.

Bitter, bit-ter, acrid. Biter, bi-ter, one who bites.

Bitts (for cables). Bits (for horses). See Bit.

Bitu-minise, bitu-minisa'tion (s not "z.") Rule xxxi.

Bivouac (French), biv'o.o.ach. To encamp in the open air.

It ought to be pronounced biv.wak, "ou" in French being equal to w: thus "Zouave" (1 syl.), Zwarve, "Edouard," Ed-ward.

Biweekly, bi.weekly. Twice a week. This word is quite indefensible. It means "Every two weeks" (once a fortnight). The compound is also abnormal. Bi (Latin) weekly (Ang.-Sax.) It should be Twyweekly, twice a week.

Bizarre not bizzare (French), bi.zar'. Fantastic.

Bazaar is a mart or dépôt of fancy articles. (See Bazaar.)

Blab, blabbed (1 syl.), blabb-ing, blabb-er (to tell tales). (R. i.)
Norse blabbl', to gabble; German plappern, to blab.

Bladder (double d). The old form has but one "d," blädre."

Blain, a sore. The old form was blägen.

Blame, blame-able (not blame.able), blam-ably (R. xix. xx.), blame-ful, blame-less, &c., blame-worthy. (Rule xvii.)
(Only words ending in "-ce" and "-ge" retain the "e" before the postfix "-able.")

Blancmange, blam-mon's. A white jelly-like confection.

An English perversion of the French blancmanger.

Blare, blair (like a cow). Blear, ble-ar, sore: as "blear-eyes."
"Blare," Low German blliren, to cry. "Blear," Danish blære, a sore.

Blaspheme', blasph'eming, blasphemed' (2 syl.), blasph'emer; but blasphémonous, blasphémonously, blasphémony. (The "e" long in Greek.)

Greek blasphémon (blaspeis phémii), to speak hurtful words. "Blasphemy," Greek blasphémonia; "blasphémonous," Greek blasphémonos.

-ble (postfix) Lat. -bil[is], added to nouns: "able to," "full of," &c.

Bleach, bleech. To whiten. (The "ea" is the diphthong æ.)
Old English blečan or blečian, to bleach.

Blek, bleek. Cold. (The "ea" is the diphthong æ.)
Old Eng. blēc or blēc, pale, bleak. So Lat. pallidus, pale, bleak.

Blear, bleer, sore. Blare, bläre, to bellow. (See Blare.)
BLEAT, bleat (like a sheep). (The "ea" is the diphthong a). Old Eng. bleat, a bleating; verb bleatan, to bleat.

BLEED, past and past participle bled; blooded, by venesection. Old English bledan, to bleed, or to draw blood.

BLEND, past blended, past participle blended or blent.

Old English blendan, past bland, past participle blenden.

-Blende, a word added to several metals: as "horn-blende," &c. German blenden, to dazzle. The metals so named are lustrous.

BLESS, past blessed (1 syl.) or blest, past participle blest.

Blessed (adj., "happy," "extolled"), bless-ed (2 syl.) (Blessed be the dead which die in the Lord.—Rev. xiv. Blessed be the God of Abraham.) Similarly, blessedly, bless-ed-ly; blessedness, bless-ed-ness.

Old English bless-an, past blessode, past participle blessed, to bless.

BLIGHT, blite. A disease of plants by which they are withered. Old Eng. blæth, rust, mildew.

BLISS (Old English bliss, joy). Bless (Old English bless-an, to make joyful).

BLITHE, not blirth, cheerful. Old English blithe, joyful.

Blithely, blitheful, blithesome, blithesomeness, blithesomely. (Only "whole," "due," and "true," drop the "e" before ly.)

BLOAT, blote; bloated, bloater. A herring slightly dried.

BLOOED, bloody; bloodi-er, bloodi-est, bloodi-ly, bloodi-ness, bloodi-ness.

Old Eng. blod, blood; blodig, bloody; bloditan (verb).

BLOOD, blod; bloody; bloodi-er, bloodi-est, bloodi-ly, bloodi-ness, bloodi-ness.

Old Eng. blod, blood; blodig, bloody; bloditan (verb).

BLOOM, not blume. Old Eng. blösm, softened into blóm (R. lxi.) Old Eng. blösm(an), past blösmode, past part. blösmad, to bloom.

BLOT, blott-ed, blott-ing, blott-er, blott-y (Rule i.)

Old Eng. blut, black [spot]; verb blatan, past blatode, p. p. blatoed.

BLOW, past blew, past participle blown.

Old Eng. blowan, past blew, past part. blæven, to blow, or breathe; but blew(an), past blewede, past part. blowed, to blow or blossom. "Let the pealing organ blow" is correct, because the organ sounds only when the organ pipes "blow" or transmit the blast of the bellows. "Let the fire blow," would be nonsense, because the fire does not burn by transmitting the blast of the bellows.
Blue, a colour. Old Eng. bleo. Blew (did blow), see above.

Blueness, bluebell, &c. "A fit of the blues," spleen (R. xvii.)
Blu-ish, bluishly, bluishness (Rule xix.)

Blur, blurred (1 syl.), blurring. To blemish. (Rule i.)

Boa (a serpent), bo'ah. Boar (a pig), bo'ar. Bore (to make a hole), bōre. Boor (a rustic), boo'r.

"Boa." Latin boa, from boas, a cow, which it was supposed to suck.
"Boor," Dutch boer, a farmer; Old English ge-bōr, a rustic.

Boar, bo'ar, a male pig; female sow. (See Boa.)

Board, bōrd, a plank; to furnish with lodgings and meals.
Bored, bōrd, perforated. Bawd, a procuress.

"Board." Old Eng. bōrd, a plank; also "food and lodging."
"Bored." Old Eng. bōr(ian), past bōrden, past part. bōred, to bore.
"Bawd," French bau de (boudir, to incite.)

Board-of-Trade, plural Boards-of-Trade, &c. (Phrases compounded with a prep. pluralise only the 1st word.)
Boarder, one who boards. Border, an edging. (Both alike.)
Borderer, one who lives on a frontier or border-land.
Boarding, pres. part. of board. Bordering, making a border.

Boast, bōste; boast'ær, boasting, boast'ful, boast'fully, &c.

Welsh bost, a boast; bostiad, a boasting; bostiwr, a boaster; bostio, v.

Boat, bōte, a vessel urged by oars. Boot (for the foot).
Boated, past tense of boat. Booted (wearing boots).

Boating. Boatswain, a ship's officer in charge of the boats.
Boatman, one whose trade is to manage a boat.
Boatsman, an amateur manager of boats: as Lord Star is a good boatsman, not boatman.

Old English bōt, a boat; bōt-swain, a boatswain.

Bob, bobbed (1 syl.), bobbing. To fish with a bob, &c. (R. i.)

Bop. (Provincial.) To duck to avoid something.

Bobbin. A spool on which cotton is wound. (Double b.)
French bōbin (only one b). Bobbin, in French, means "bobbinet."

Bode; boded, bō'ded; bod-ing, bō'ding. To portend.

Bodied, bō'd.ed, is the past tense of body, bodying, &c.
"Bode," Old English bod(i)an, past bodode, past part. bodod.

Bodice, bod'iss, a corset. Bodies, bod'iz, plu. of body.

Old Eng. bodig ceac, a restraint or stay for the trunk. (See Body.)

Bodleian (library), Bod'leian. A library at Oxford. So called in honour of Sir T. Bodley, its founder.
Body, plu. bodies, bod′.is; bodied, bod′.ed; bod′.ly, bod′.less; possessive singular body′s, possessive plural bodies′; body-guard, body-linen, body-politic (Rule x.)
Old Eng. body, the trunk of a man, the whole body was called lc.

Bog, bōggy (full of bogs). Bogy, bō.gi, a hobgoblin.

Boisterous, boice′.tē.rūs; boisterously, boisterousness, not boistroux, boistrously, boistrousness.
Welsh bwystus, savage, ferocious (bwyst, a savage, ferocity).

Bold, intrepid. Bowled, bōld, past tense of "to bowl."
Bold (more bold). Boulder, a large rounded stone.

Bole (1 syl.), the trunk of a tree. Bowl, bōle, a basin.
"Bole," Welsh bol, the belly. "Bowl," Old Eng. bolla, a basin.

Boletus, bo.lee′.tus (Latin). A species of fungus.

Bolster, along pillow. Bolsterer, one who bolsters-up another.
Old English bolster, a pillow; i.e., bol, a sleeping-room; ster, something habitual or common to a bedroom. (See -ster.)

Bomb, bōm, an explosive shell. Boom (of a ship).

Bombardier (Fr.), bōm′.bar.deer′. The soldier who fires bombs.

Bombasine, bōm′.bā.zeen. A cloth made of silk and cotton.
It ought to be bombycine, bom′.bī.sin.
Latin bombycines, made of silk (bombyx, silk or fine cotton yarn; Greek bombyx, the silk-worm).

Bon mot (French), bōn′.mō. A witticism.

Bon ton (French), bōn′.toˈgn. Good in the opinion of fashion.

Bon vivant (French), bōn′.vē.vaˈgn. One who loves to eat.

Bonne bouche (French), bōn′.bouch. A dainty or "tit bit."

Bona fide (Latin), bo′.na fī′.dē. In good faith, without deception.
Bona fides, bo′.na fī′.deez. An equitable intention.

-bond (postfix, Latin -bund[us]). Added to gerundial nouns: as vagabond, a wandering person or vagrant.

Bond-man, fem. bond-woman, plu. bond-men, -women, a slave.

Bonds-man, fem. bonds-woman, a surety.

Bone (1 syl.), bōned (1 syl.), bōn-ing, bōn-y. Bon (Fr.), good.

Bonito, plu. bonitoes (Spanish), bo.nee′.toza. A species of tunny-fish.
Bonnet (for the head). Bonnetted, bonneting (with only one t). Rule ii.

Both French (connected with ben, the head or top, as Ben-Nevis).

Bonny, bon'ny (jolly); bon-i-ly. Bony, bo'ny, full of bones.

"Bonny," Latin bonus, good, with -y diminutive.

"Bony," Old English bāen, adjective of bān, bone.

Booby, plu.bobbies; pos.sing. booby's, pos.plu. boobies', boo'bez.

Spanish bobo, a dolt.

Boom (of a ship). Bomb; bōm, an explosive shell. (See Bomb.)

Dutch boom, a spar. Bommon, to sound like an empty tub (R. Ixii.)

Boon, a favour; corruption of the Old Eng. bēn, a petition.

Boon (companion); Latin bonus, good (Rule lii.)

Boor, a rustic. Bore, to perforate. Boar (pig). Boa, a serpent, q.v.

Boot (for the foot). Boat, bōte (for the water). (See Boat.)

French botte, a boot. "Boot," profit, Old Eng. bōt, profit (R. Ixii.)

Bootes, Bo'o'tees, a constellation. (Greek bōtēs, a herdsman.)

Booth, bootee not boor, a shed. Both, bōth, the two (R. Ixii: b).

"Booth," Gaelic both; Law Latin botha, a tent.

"Both," Old English bā-both, both two.

Booty, spoil. Beauty, bu'ty, what is handsome. Botty, priggish.

"Botty," Welsh bostio, a boaster; verb bostio, to brag.

Boracic, bo'ras'.ik, adjective of "borax." (French.)

Borage, bo'ra'ge, not bur ridge. A herb.

Corruption of Corage, Latin cor-ago, to act on the heart; so called from its cordial virtues: Ego Borago gaudia semper ago: that is, "Borage gives courage," or "Borage, I ween, drives away spleen."

Border, baw'der, an edging. Boarder, one who boards, q.v.

Bore, to perforate. Boor, bō'or, a rustic. Boa, bō.ah, a serpent, q.v.

Borecole, bōr.kōle (a vegetable). Welsh bore cael, early-cabbage.

Born (to life). Borne, bōr, carried. Bourn; bō'urn, a limit.

"Born" and "Borne," Old English boren, verb bōran, to bear.

"Bourn," French borne, a limit or boundary.

Borough, Burrow, Borrow, Barrow.

Borough, bur'ráh, a town "represented," but not episcopal.

Burrow, bur'ro, a rabbit's lodge.

Borrow, bor'ro, to take on loan.

Barrow, bār'ro, a hand-cart, a mound over the dead.

"Borough," Old English buruh or burug, a city. Also būr.

"Burrow," Old English burigen, a sepulchre, or buruh, a dwelling.

"Borrow," Old English bōr or bōr, a loan.

"Barrow," Old English bere, a wheelbarrow: be'roga, a mound.

Borrow, see above. (Double r.)

Bosom, booz'om not buzzun. Old Eng. bōsm. (Rule lx. d.)

Botany, bōtānı́. (Greek bōtanı́, herbage.) This word should be limited to fodder and herbage. The science of plants should be phytopogy, fītō'to'gy. (Greek phūtōn lōgōs, plants the subject.)

Both, bōth not borth. Booth, booth. A tent-shop. (See Booth.) "Both of them." Both-of" has an adverbial sense. It does not mean both out of them, but them both-ly or both-together. (See All. All of them.)

Bottle, bō'tl (for wine, &c.) Bottel, a bundle (bottel of hay).

"Bottle," French bouteille; Low Latin buticula or buticula, a little buttla or "butt."

"Bottel," French bōth, a little bottle or bundle.

Bottom (double t). The older form was bōtm.

Boudoir (French), bōo'dwör. A lady's private room.

Bough, bōw (of a tree). Bow (of a boat), to bend the head.

"Bough," Old English bōh, genitive bōges (2 syl.) "Bow," to bend the head, Old English bōg[an] imperfect bōh.

Boulder, bōld'ër, a large rounded stone. Bolder (more bold).

"Boulder," corruption of bōvider, a [stone which has been] bowled about.

"Bolder," Old English bōldre, more bold (bōld).

Bounty, plu. bounties, boun'tiez; bounti-ful, bounti-fully, bounti-fullness; but bounte-ous, bounte-ously, bounteousness. (There is no sufficient reason for this change of the vowel. See Beauty.)

French bōntë, Latin bōntias, goodness (bōnus good).

Bouquet, plural bouquets (French), bōo'kay', bōo'kaiz'.

Bourgeois, bow'zhwoiz (sing and plural). A citizen, a burgess. (Pronounced bour-zhwoi in French.)

Bourn, bō'urn not bōrn, a limit, a country. Born, brought forth. Borne, carried. (See Born.)

Bow, bōw (to rhyme with noiv): (1) a salutation with the head, (2) the fore part of a boat or ship, (3) to bend. Bough (of a tree). See Bough.

Bow, bōw (to rhyme with grow): (1) the propeller of arrows, (2) a curve, (3) an instrument used with a violin, &c.

"Bōw" (to bend): Old Eng. beg[an], bēg[an], or bōg[an].

"Bōw" (for shooting arrows) is from the same verb.

 Compounds in which "bow" rhymes with vow:—

Bōw-grace (sea term), bōwman (first oar), bōwpiece (of a ship), bōwline (in ships), the Spanish bōlina.
Compounds in which "bow" rhymes with grow:—
Bow-bearing, bow-bent, bow-dye (so called from Bow, near London), bow-hand, bow-instruments (as violins, &c.), bow-legged, bow-less, bow-man (an archer), bow-net, bow-saw, bow-sprit, bow-string, bow-window, &c.

Bows, bowz (of a ship). Bows, bowz (of a saddle). Bouse, to drink. French buveur, a drinker, boise; L. Lat. buo.

Bowd, bowd (term in heraldry). Bowed, bowd, bent.
Bode, to portend. Old English böð[ian], to tell.

Bowling, bow-ing, saluting. Bowing, bow-ing, curving.
(As "bow" and "bòw" are from the same verb, the only excuse for the twofold pronunciation is that of making the sense more clear.)

Bowel, plural bowels, bòwel, bòwelz ("bòw" to rhyme with vow), bowell-ed, bowell-ing. (Rule iii. -EL.)

Bower, bower (in a garden), a boudoir. Old Eng. bür, a bower.

Bower-anchor, bòwer an.kor not bòwer an.kor. The second anchor, carried at the ship's bows.

Bowie Knife, bòw'.ee nife nôt bòw'.ee nife. Used in North America. So called from "Jim Bowie," one of the most daring characters of the United States.

Bowl, bòwl, a basin. Bole, a clayey earth.

Bowler, bòwel.ter not bòwel.er. One who bowls.

Bowling-green, bowling green not bowling green.

Bowled, bowld not bowld. Bold, intrepid. (See Bold.)

Boy, plu. boys, feminine Girl, plu. girls. Buoy, a float.

"Boy," Old English byré, a son (verb býr[ian], to raise).

"Buoy," French bouée; Dutch boet, a float.

Brace, a tie; two head of game, &c. Brass, a mixt metal.

Brace (verb), braced (1 syl.), brac-ing, brac-er; but brace-let.

"Brace," French bras, the arms, hence embrasser, to hug.

"Brass," Old English bras, brass.

Brachial, brá'ki.áhl. Pertaining to the arms.

Latin bráchiátis (bráchium, the arm); Greek brachión.

Brachiopod, plu. brachiopods or brachiopoda, brák'.i.ó.pôd, brák'.i.ó.pöd, brák'.i.ó.p".däd. Molluscs with feet like arms.

Greek brachión pous (podos), arms (for) feet.

Brag, bragged (1 syl.), bragging, braggingly, brag-er, brag-art.

Braggadocio, plu. braggadocios. (Rule xliii.)

Old English brág[an], to pretend to arrogate to oneself.
Brahman or Brahmin, plu. Brahmans or Brahmins, never Brahmen. The termination -man is merely by accident like our word "man," as Roman, &c. It arises from the addition of -n to a noun ending in -ma, as Brahman, Roma. Brahmanic, Brahmanical, Brahmanism.

"Brahman," from Brahma; "Brahmin," from Brah." Brahma or Brah, chief of the Hindú Trinity.

Braid, bráde, trimming. Braided, past tense of bray. (See Bray.) "Braided," Old English bredan (verb bred[an], to weave).

Brain, bráne (of the head). Old English brægen, the brain.

Brake. A female fern, a skid, a carriage for training horses, &c.

Break, brake, to fracture

"Brake" (a fern), Danish bregn. Welsh brog, bracken.

"Brake" (a skid), Latin brachium, an arm, a lever.

"Brake" (a carriage), Old Eng. bræc, a [carriage for] breaking-in.

"Break" (to fracture), Old English bredan, to rupture.

Bramble, bran'.bl. The older, spelling is brembel or brembel.

Bran, brégn. The husk of ground corn. Brann-y. (Rule i.) French brun: as bran du soie, sawdust.

Bran-new. Quite new, with the sheen or brightness still there.

Old Eng. broge or bringe, shining; verb burn[an], brenn[an], to burn.

The word occurs with a difference in "Brown," brún, the colour of things burnt; "brimstone," burning stone; "brand" (bran-d) being added to convert the participle into a noun; "Burn-ish," to make the surface glow. Not a corruption of Brand-new.

Brandy, plural brandies, bran'.diz; brandied, bran'.did.

German brant-wijn, Dutch brand-wijn, burnt-wine.

Brass, brás (a mixed metal). Brasses, monumental slabs of brass. Brassed, brassiness; brazed, brazier (a worker in brass).

Old Eng. bræs, brass; bressen, brazen; bresian, to braise.

Bravado, plu. bravadoses, bra'.va.h',do, bra'.va.h',doze. Brag. (xlii.) Spanish bravata, the brag of a bully; bravecador, a bully.

Brave, braver or more brave (comp.), bravest or most brave (sup.), braved (I syl.), brav-ing, brav-ry, brave-ly. (Fr. brave.)

Bravo, plu. bravos, bra'h.voza. Assassins for hire. (Rule xlii.) Italian bravo (noun and adj.); Spanish bravo (adj.), ferocious.

Bray, brays, brayed (I syl.), bray-ing, bray-er. (Fr. braire.) R. xiii.

Braze, to solder with brass. Braise, charcoal used in a brasier.

"Brase," Old English bræs[an], to cover with brass.

"Brasie," French, prepared charcoal for cooking purposes.

"Braiser," French braiser, to braise over brasie.

"Brays," (pounds in a mortar), Old Eng. bras[an], to bruise.

"Breeze," French brisé, broken; Latin brisus, something trodden on,
AND OF SPELLING.

Brazen, ought to be basen, adj. of brass, not "soldered." Old English bræsen, made of brass (bræs).

Brazier, one who brazes or works in brass. Brasier, a pan to hold "braise" or charcoal in ignition.

Breach, breech, a gap. Breech, the thickest end of a gun, &c.

"Breach," Old Eng. brice (c=ch), a fracture; French breche.

"Breech" (the hinder part or bottom), Old Eng. brēc, breeches.

Bread, brēd, food. Bred, past and part. of bread.

"Bread," Old Eng. bread or bread, bread, food generally.

"Bred," Old Eng. bred of the verb brēdan, to nourish.

Old Eng. brēd, bread, with -th. This suffix added to adjectives converts them into abstract nouns, as strong, strength; &c.

Break, brāke not breek, to rupture. Brake, a female fern.

Break, past broke [brake], past part. broken [broke].

Breakfast, brek'fāst. The morning meal (break [the] fast).

Breaking, brāke'ing not breck'ing. (See Break.)

Bream, a fish of the carp family. Brim, brīm, a rim, a brink.

Breast, brest (of the body). Old Eng. brēst, the breast.

Breath, brēth (noun); breathe, breethe (verb). Rule li.

Breath (brēth), breath'-less, breath'-lessly, breath'-lessness.

Breath (breathe); breathed (1 syl.), breath'-ing, breathes (1 syl.), breath'-er, breath'-ing-time.

Old Eng. brēth, breath, an odour, exhalation.

Breccia, brēch'.ēahn. A rocky mass of angular fragments. A mass of rounded fragments is a Conglomerate.

It ought to be bricia (Italian), a fragment. The Italian word breccia means a "breach."

Breech, plural breeches, brieč, britch'.ez. In the singular it means the hinder part, as the "breech" of a gun. In the plural it means trousers terminating at the knees. The verb (breech) means to flog; and also to change the petticoat-suit of young boys for jacket and trousers.

Breach, breech, a gap, an opening. (See Breach.)

Breed, brēde, to hatch, to generate. Breed, brēd, food, q.v.

Breed, past bred, past participle bred.

Old English brēdan, past brēd, past part. brēden, to nourish.

"Breeze" (refuse coke), French brisé, broken; Latin briza.

"Breeze" (a gentle wind), French brise, a breeze.

"Breeze" (a gad-fly), also spelled Brise, Old Eng. briose, a gad-fly.

Bressumer. It ought to be Bretsumer, a beam over a shop window, &c., to support the weight above it.

German braet, a plank or beam, and suemer (Welsh) supporter.
Brethren, plural of brother, chiefly used in Scripture language. For all general purposes the plural of brother is brothers.

"Brethren" is altogether a blunder. The Old English was brōther, plural brōthera or brōthra, later form brōthrc.

Brevo (1 syl.), a note in Music. Brief, brīfe (of a barrister).

"Brevo," not Ital. but French brève (in Music). Ital. is nota intiera.

Brevet, brev'et [rank]. An honorary degree in the army, being one grade higher than that which takes the pay.

French brevet, brevet rank, a commission.

Brevier, brev.veer'. A small type, like that used in this line.

Latin brevis, small. Said to have been the type of breviers.

Bridal, brī.dāl, adjective of bride. Bridle, brī.d'l, for a horse.

Bridal or Brīdal was the marriage feast, the "bride ale." The adjective of bride in Old English is brīdic or brīdlic.

"Bridle," Old Eng. brīdel or brīdēl (verb brīdelan), to curb.

Bride, masculine bridegroom, a corruption of bridegume.

Old Eng. brīd or brīd; brīd or brīd yumma

N.B.—Gum- (prefix) denotes excellence. Gum-mann, the famous man. Gum-cymn, man-kind; Gumā, man "par excellence."

Bridesmaid, attendant on the bride. Best man, attendant on the bridegroom. (Bridesmaid is incorrect. It does not mean the "bridal maid, as "bridecake" means the bridal cake, but the maid of the bride.

Bridecake, not bridescake. It means the "bride cake" not the cake of the bride.

Bridge (over a river). Brig, a ship with two masts.

Bridle, brī.'d'l (for a horse). Bridal, brī.'d'al, adj. of bride, q.v.

Bridled, brī.'d'ld; bridling, brī.'d'ling; bridler, brī.'d'ler.

Brief, brīfe, the summary of a cause. Breve (in Music), q.v.

Brier or briar (a plant). Briery (Old Eng. brar, a brier).

Brigade Major, plural brigade majors, brī.gād'e, &c.

Brigade General, plural brigade generals, brī.gād'e, &c.

Bright, brīte, shining, clear. (O. Eng. beorht corrupted to breaht.)

Bright'en (verb), bright'en(ed) (2 syl.), bright'ening.

Bright-ly, bright-ness, bright-eyed, bright-shining, &c.

Brilliant, bril'.yant. (French brillant, verb briller, to shine.)

Brim, a rim. Bream, a fish of the carp family. (See Bream.)

Brimm-er, brimed (1 syl.), brimm-ing. (Rule i.)

Brim-less, brim-ful (full to the brim).

(“Full,” “fill,” and “all,” drop one l in the compounds.)

Brimstone, sulphur. (Old Eng. Bryne-stone, the burning stone.)

Brine, brin-ish, brin-ishness, brin-y (i long). Rule xvii.

Old Eng. bryne, salt liquor. (Bryne, burning, has no accent.)

Bring, past brought, past part. brought. To carry to the place where we are, to carry elsewhere is “to take.”

Bring-er and bring-ing, not brin-ger and brin-ging like finger and fingering, where the n stands for g (fjgger).

O. Eng. bring[an], past bróhte or brang, past part. ge-broht or brungen.

BRITAIN, Brit’n; Briton, Brit’en; British (one t).

British, Brit’n, Brit’nic. (Latin Britannia, Britannicus.)

Brit’tany. (Double t). The -y is diminutive.)

“Britain,” Old Eng. Brittan, Brytten, Bryten, Briten, &c.

“Brison,” Old Eng. Brit or Britte, plu. Britlas (i or y).

Bristle, *brit’t*l; bristler or more brittle, brittest, or most brittle; not britteler, brittelest. Easily broken.

Old Eng. byrtic, verb bry[g]a’t, to break.

Britzka, brit’s’kah or briz’.kah. Russian britshka. An open carriage which can be closed at pleasure.

Broach, to tap. Brooch, an ornament for the neck or breast.

Broad, bráwd, wide. Brod, a sharp-pointed instrument. Brood.

“Broad,” Old Eng. brad or bráed, broad.

“Brood,” same as prod, an awl, a goad; Danish braad, a goad.

“Brood,” Old Eng. bród, a brood; brády, brooding.

Broadwise, not broadways. In the direction of the broad part.

Old Eng. suffix -wisa, in the direction of; wisa, a director.

Broccoli, plural broccolis, brok’.kó.li, brok’.kó.li.z not brococolow. French brocoli (one e), a spring cauliflower. (Not Italian.)

Brogue, bróg (g hard), a twang in speech, as the “Irish brogue.”

Gaelic brog, a shoe made of rough hide.

Bromelia, bro.me’li.ákh. A genus of plants. So named from Olaus Bromel, a Swedish naturalist. The pine apple, &c.

Bromeliaceæ, bro-me’li.a’se-e. The order containing the above.

In Botany -aceæ denotes an order.

Brome (1 syl.), or Bromine, brómín. A non-metallic element.

- Brom-al, a fluid obtained from brome by alcohol.

- Brom-ico, a non-acid combination of brome and oxygen.

- Brom-ico, an acid combination of brome and oxygen.

- Brom-ate, a salt from the union of bromic acid and a base.

Greek brómos, fester. (So called from its fetid smell.)
Bronchia, plural Bronchiae, brōnˈˌkī.ə, brōnˈˌkī.e. The ramifications of the tubes called bronchi, terminating in the vesicles of the lungs. Bronˈchial, brōnˈˌkī.əl (adj.)

Bronchus, plural bronchi, brōnˈˌkəs, brōnˈˌki. Bronchus, either of the two branches of the windpipe (bronchus dexter or bronchus sinister), the two are the bronchi.

Greek brōğchos, the windpipe. (Note "g" before g or ch=“ch”)

Bronchitis, brōnˈˌkī.ət. Inflammation of the bronchus.

In Medical phraseology the suffix -itis denotes "inflammation;" as carditis, inflammation of the heart; peritonitis, inflammation of the peritoneum; pneumonia, inflammation of the lungs.

Bronze (1 syl.), bronzed (1 syl.), bronzing, bronzes (2 syl.), bronz-ite, bronz-y. (Italian bronzo, bronze.) Rule xix.

Brooch, an ornament. Broach, to tap. (See Broach.)

Brood, a progeny; (verb) to sit to hatch. Broad, braʊd, wide (q.v.)

Old English brōd, a brood; brōd·ig, brooding. Brōd, broad.

Brook, a stream. Broke, brōk, past tense of break; brōk·e.

Broom, a brush. Brougham, broʊm (q.v.) Brome (q.v.)

"Broom," Old English brōm, the broom shrub.

Broth, broʊθ·ət not brōθ. (Old Eng. brōθ, broth.)

Brothel, broʊθˈəl. Corruption of the Fr. bordel. Ital. bordello.

Brother, plu. brothers. In Scripture language, plu. brethren (q.v.)

Brother, feminine sister; plural sisters.

Brother-in-law, plural brothers-in-law, by marriage.

Step-brother, plural step-brothers, sons of different families made brothers by the second marriage of their surviving parents.

Old Eng. step·an, to bereave. Brothers bereaved of one parent.

Foster-brother, plural foster-brothers, nursed together.

Old Eng. fós·er, to feed. Food-brothers, fed by the same parent. Old Eng. brō theor, plural brōthra or brōthru, later form brōthre.

Brougham, broʊm not broʊˈəm. A light four-wheeled carriage. So named from Lord Brougham, whose name, says Lord Byron, "is pronounced Broom from Trent to Tay." Similarly Vaughan is Vawn, and Maughan is Morn.

Brow, brō to rhyme with "now," not brōw to rhyme with "grow."

Old English brew, the eye-brow.

Brown, brōn to rhyme with "gown," not with grōn.

Old Eng. brōn, the colour of burnt things, brōnen or burnen, burnt.

Browse (1 syl.), to graze. Brows, eye-brows. (See Brow.)

"Browse," Greek [bɪ]brósko, to eat; brōsis, food.
Brucine or Brucina, bru'sin or bru'sin-nah. An extract somewhat like strychnia (strich.nē.āh). Named after Dr. Bruce, mineralogist and traveller, New York.

Bruin, bru'in, a bear. Brewing, brew'ing, making beer.

Bruin is so named from Sir Bruin, the bear, in the German beast-epic of Reynard the Fox. (The brun or brown animal.)

"Brewing," Old Eng. brew[en], past brew, past participle brown.

Bruise, brū'se, a contusion. Brews, 3rd person sing. of "Brew."

"Bruise," Old Eng. bry[en], to bruise, past bryse, past part. brysed.

Bruited, brū'ted, noised, rumoured. "It got bruited abroad."

A verb made from the French bruit, a noise, report. "To bruit," in French, is Répandre un bruit au loin.

Brunette. (French), broo-net'. A woman of dark hair and complexion. A fair woman is a blonde (French).

Brusque (French); brāsk, abrupt, blunt in manners.

Brute (1 syl.), a dumb animal. Bruit (French), a rumour. Brū't-al, brū't-al'ly, brū't-al'ity, brū't-al'ise, brū't-al'ising, brū't-al'isation, brū't-ish, brū't-ish'ness, brū't-ish'ly, brū't'-ism, brū't'-if-y, brū't'-if-y ing, brū't'-ifies (3 syl.), brū't'-ified (3 syl.). Rule xvii:

Latin brūtā [animalia] brute animals.

Brutum fulmen (Latin), brū.tum fūl.men. A harmless threat.

Bryony, bro'-ony. The wild vine, the lady's-seal, &c.

Buck, a 'gender-word': (buck) rabbit, doe rabbit; buck hare, doe hare; buck goat, roebuck.

Bucaneer not buccaneer buk.a.meer. A sea-robber.

French boucanier from boucaner, to smoke flesh: boucan, a smoking-place. Boucaniers originally hunted wild beasts for skins, and smoked the flesh for food. (Boucan, a Caribbeau word.)

Buck, lye in which clothes are soaked to bleach; hence Buck, a fop, whose clothes are "buck," or well bleached and got up, and Buck-basket, a basket for dirty linen.

German beuchten, to steep clothes in lye.

Buck, feminine doe. Fallow deer. (Old Eng. buc, a stag.)

Buck-bean, corruption of bog-bean. The marsh or bog vetch.

Buck-wheat, corruption of buche-wheat. Beech-wheat.

German buchweitze, beech-mast or buck-wheat.

Bucketful, plural bucketfuls not bucketsful. Bucketful is a noun, and means the quantity which fills a bucket. Two bucketfuls is twice that quantity, but two "buckets-full" means two buckets filled full,—quite a distinct idea,
Buckle, buckled, buckling, buklaid, buckling.
French boute, a buckle or ring.

Buckler. A shield made of osiers and covered with ox-hide.
Low Latin bucclarium (buculus, a bullock), ox-hide shield.

Bucolic, buklaik. Pastoral, a pastoral poem. (One l.)
Latin bucolicus, Greek boukolos, a herdsman; boukolos.

Bud, budd-ed, budd-ing, budd-er. R. i. (French bouton, a bud.)

Buddleia, buddleia not *buddlee*a. A genus of shrubs. Named in honour of Adam Buddle, an English botanist.

Buffalo, plural buffaloes (Spanish bufalo). Rule xlii.

Buffet, bufjet or bufJay, a blow. Italian buffetto, a fillip, a blow. French buffet, a cupboard.

Buffoon, bufoon, a fool. (French bouffon, a jester.)

Bug, buggy, bugginess. (Welsh bucai, a maggot, &c.) Rule i.

Buggy. A gig for commercial travellers. (French bourgeois.)

Bull, bute. Brass, &c., for inlaying in wood furniture. So called from Sig. Boule, cabinet-maker to Louis XIV.

Build, bld, past and past part. built, bllt, or [built].
Old English byldan, past bylde, past participle bylled, to build.

Bul, bull. Four words (bulb, bulge, bulk, and ebullition) have the u short, as in "dull." All the rest have the u long to rhyme with "wool." (Rules lxv. and lxvi.)

Bulb, bbl, bulbous. A root solid, like the tulip; sealy, like the lily; coated, like the onion; or jointed, like the adoxa.
Latin bulbus, bulbosus; Greek boulos, a bulb.

Bull (rhyming with vool, not bull (rhyming with *dull)), feminine cow; bull-calf, feminine cow-calf or heifer.

Bullock, an ox fed for slaughter. Steer, a young bullock.
Old English bulluce, a bullock. Steer, a steer.

Bullace not bullis, bullace ("bull" rhyming with wool). A plum. Welsh Eirinen bulas (Dr. Withering).

Bulletin, bullteen ("bull" rhyming with wool). An official report.
French bulletin (2 syl.). This word and the Pope's "bull" owe their names to the bulba or seal which authenticates them.

Bully, bully ("bull" rhyming with wool), bullies (2 syl.), bulled (3 syl.), bully-ing, bull-rag. (Rules xi. and xiii.)

Bulrush, bullrush ("bull" rhyming with wool, not with dull). Bul or bull prefixed to many words means "large": as bull-frog, bull-trout, bul-rush, &c.
AND OF SPELLING.

Bulwark, bUl·werk ("bul" rhyming with wool). A fortification.

Dutch bolwerck, a fortified wall. The "boulevards" of Paris, &c., is the same word. (Boulevard [2 syl.], bou·lár.)

Bumbailiff. Corruption of bunde-bailiff, i.e., a "bound bailiff"; a bailiff "bound" by sureties to the sheriff, who is responsible for his bailiff's acts. (Old Eng. bunde, bound.)

Bundle, bundled, bundling, bun·d'lg, bun·dld, bun·dling.

Old English byndel, bndl, to bind, and -el diminutive, "A little bound thing:" bindele, a binding or bond.

Bungle, bungled, bungler, bunglingly, bun·'g'l, bun·'g·ld, bun·'g·ler, bun·gling, &c.

Buoy, a float. Boy, a male child. Buoyed (1 syl.), buoy-ing, buoy-ant, buoy-antly, buoy-antness, buoy-ancy.

French bouët, a buoy or float.

Burden or burthen. (Old English byrden or byrthen.)

Bureau, plu. bureaux (French), bú·ro, bú·roze.

Burglar not burgler. The -lar is the French larron (Latin latro) a thief, and burg means a dwelling. The Old Eng. word was burgbrace, a house-breaker.

Low Latin burglaria, burglary (burgagium latro, house robber).

Burgess, plural burgesses, bú·gess, bú·gess·es. A man who has a town vote. The -ess is not the feminine termination, but a contraction of -ensis, "one employed on or for."

Low Latin burg·ensis, one employed in a town or borough.

Burlesque (French), bur·lesk, burlesqued (2 syl.), burlesquer, burlesqu-ing. (Italian búlesko, burlare, to ridicule.)

Burn, past and past participle burnt or [burned].

Burnish. To polish till the surface glows like fire. -ish added to nouns means "like," as boyish; burnish means [to make] like fire. (See Bran-new.)

Burr. For monosyllables ending in a double consonant, see Rule vii.

Burrow, bur·rō, a hole in the ground, to make a hole in the ground. Borough, bur·rōk not bur·rō. It is merely a corrupt way of pronouncing búrk.

"Burrow," Old Eng. búrg[an], to shelter, børgh or borga(n).

Bury, to inter. Bury, a borough. Berry, a fruit.

Bury, buries (2 syl.), buried (2 syl.), buri-al, bury-ing.

"Bury" (to inter), Old Eng. búrg[an], to bury.

"Bury" (a borough), Old Eng. búrh or burh, a town.

"Berry" (a fruit), Old Eng. bérte or berig, a berry.
Bush, boosh not bush. This and Push are the only two words in -ush with the “u” like oo. All the others have “u” short. They are “blush, brush, crush, flush, gush, hush, lush, plush, rush, thrush, and tush.”

“Bush” is French boucheon, a tavern bush, a wisp.
“Push” is French pousser, to push. (The “u” represents Fr. ou.)

Business, biz’nez. Vocation, employment. (See Busy.)

Bus, a contraction of Omnibus (q.v.). Buss, a kiss.

“Buss,” Spanish bus; Latin basium, a kiss.

Busy, busies, busied, biz’y, biz’iz, biz’id, busy-ing, busi-er (comp.), busi-est (super.), busi-ness, biz’nez, busi-ly, busi-body, etc. (Rules xi. and xiii.)

Old Eng. bys[g]ian], to occupy; bysgung, business.

But (conj.) But [end], the big end. Butt, a tun, to toss.

“But” (conj.), Old Eng. butan or buta, except but, without.

“But” [end].”French bout, the end.

“But” (a large tub), Old Eng. butt or but, a tun.

“Butt” (to toss or thrust), Welsh butian, to poke or butt.

Butcher, boot’cher (“but,” to rhyme with foot, not with “fit”).

This is the only instance of but so sounded. Of the nine other words one has “u” long as in “unit”—viz., buty’ric; and eight have “u” short,—viz., but and butt, butter, butment, butter, buttery, button, and buttress.

“Butcher,” French boucher. The “u” in bush, push, and butcher owes its abnormal sound to its representing the French ou.

Butt, a mark; to toss. But [end]. But’ (conj.) See But.

Butts, plural. A place where archers meet to shoot at butts.

Butter, but’ter. (Old Eng. butere or butyra, butter.)

Latin butyrum; Greek butyron (Gen. xviii. 8), boos turos, cow curd.

Buttery, plural butteries, but’ti.ry, but’ti.riz. In the Universities the college buttery supplies all sorts of food to the students, from a penny roll to a banquet.

Butyric [acid], bū’ty’ri:k not but’y’ri:k. Obtained from butter.

Butyrine, bū’ty’rin not but’y’rin. An oily substance obtained from butter. (Latin butyrum, butter.)

Buy, to purchase. By (prep.) B’ye, as Good b’ye.

Buy, past and past part. bought. Buy-er, buy-ing, buys.

“Buy,” Old Eng. buy[can], past bohte, past part. geboht.

Buzz. One of the monosyllables ending in a double consonant. (Rule vii.) The others are: Add, odd; berr, err; ebb, egg; buzz, fuzz; jizz, frizz; butt, bit, mitt.
By (preposition). Spelt anciently be, bi, big, and by (be-cause). When both agent and instrument are expressed, by follows the agent, and with the instrument: as "The bird was killed by a man with a gun." If only the instrument is expressed, by follows passive and neuter verbs: as "London was destroyed by fire, in 1666." "Socrates died by poison." "Burnt with fire." "Killed with poison." "Slay him with the sword."

By (gerundial): as "It may be had by applying at the office." This is good English. The Gerund with the preposition by or with being used, both in English and Latin, to express the manner, cause, or means. "It may be had (how?) by paying sixpence." "It may be had (how?) merely by asking for it."

By (past, near). "The train has gone by." By-gones.

By and by, not by and bye (adverbial). Soon, presently. Near, in point of time, that is, soon. "By and by" means soon and nearly [now], almost immediately.

By or Bye, a borough, house, place, way; (adj.) local, private.

TOWN: By-word, town talk.

By-laws, town or local laws, not statute or national laws. (Latin leges privatae.)

SECRET, underhand, sly: By-stroke.

OUT OF RULE: By-ball or Bye-ball. (See below Bye.)

By the by, by the way (en passant, French; in transitu, or ob-iter, Latin). (Old Eng. by or bye, a way, a place.)

B'ye as Good b'ye, Good by, "God be wi' ye" (à-dieu, Fr.)

Bye, plural byes (in Cricket). "A bye" is a ball which passes the batsman and eludes the grasp of the wicket-keeper behind him.

Cabal, ka'bal', a junto. Cable, ka'bl', a rope.

Cabal, caballed' (2 syl.), caball'-er, caballing'-ing. (Rule i.)

"Cabal," French cabale, a club. It is merely by strange coincidence that the initial letters of the British Cabinet in 1671 formed the word "CABAL." "Cable," French cable, a rope.

Cabbage, cab'bage, a vegetable. Cab'bage, to pilfer. (Double b.)

Italian cappuccio, a cabbage lettuce; Latin caput, a head.

"Cabbage" (to pilfer), Dutch kabassen, to pilfer.

Cabin, kab'in, a hut. (Welsh cab and caban, a booth.)

Cable, ka'bl', a rope. Cabal, ka'bal', a junto. (See Cabal.)
Cabriolet, kab’rē-o-lat. A one horse coach, with a hood.

A cab, a contraction of the same word. It means, a little coach, that scampers along like a kid or mountain-goat.

French cabriolet, a caper, a scamper (cabri, a kid).

Cacao, kā-kō-ō, the chocolate tree. Cocoa, kō-kō, made from cacao nuts. Coca is another word, being a Peruvian tree of narcotic virtues.

"Cocoa" is a contraction of "chocolate* (choc’ō)*, and both "cacao" and "chocolate" are corruptions of the Mexican word cacao or quachuaht, as the tree is called.

Cacoethes, kāk’-ë-ō-thēz. A bad habit hard to resist. Generally applied to scribblers, whose love of writing is termed cacoethes scribendi (Greek kakos ethos, bad habit).

"Caddis," Latin caduus, Greek kādōs, a case or chest. The "caddis" or "case-worm" is enclosed in a case or sheath.

"Caddy" is the Chinese word catty, a small packet of tea.

Cadmean, kad’-ē-mēn. Relating to Cadmus.

Cadmium, kad’-ē-üm. A metal.

Latin Cadmus, adj. of Cadmus, a mythical king of Thebes.

"Cadmium," Latin cadmia, brass ore, so called from Cadmus.

Caduceus, ka’dō-sē-us. Mercury's wand. Caducous, kad’-ō-kōs, in Botany, shedding as the calyx of a poppy is shed.

"Caduceus" (Latin), from the Greek kéruxios, adj. of kérux, a herald.

"Caducous," Latin caducus, from cado, to fall.

Caffeine, kaf’-e-ën. The bitter stimulating principle of coffee.

Theine, te-ē-in, is the similar principle in tea.

French café, coffee. The plant is called "Coffea Arabica."

Cage (1 syl.), caged (1 syl.), cag-ing, kay’-jing. To coop, a coop.

French cage, a coop, Latin cāvea, a cave, or coop.

Caique, kay’-ēek’ (French). A small Spanish war-ship.

Caitiff, plu. caitiffs. A knave, a wretch. (Rule xxxix.)

French chet, Latin captivus, a captive.

Cajole, *kä-jōl’, cajoled (3 syl.), cajō-l’-er, cajō-l’-ing, cajōl’-ery.

French cajoler; to flatter.

Calamanco, plu. calamancoes, kal’-ō-man’-koze. (Rule xli.)

Spanish calamaco, a woollen cloth checkered in the warp.

Calamine, kal’-ā-mēn. A mineral, chiefly carbonate of zinc.

"Calamine," Latin calāmus, a reed; when smelted it adheres to the furnace in the form of reeds.

"Chamomile," Greek chamai melon, apple lying on the ground, so called from a resemblance in the smell (French conomilé).

"Calomel," Greek kalēs melas, beautiful black. It is prepared by rubbing mercury with corrosive sublimate which forms a black mixture, turned pale grey by heat.
AND OF SPELLING.

Calcareaus, kal.kair’rē.us. (Would have been better with i.)

Latin calcārius, adj. of calx, lime.

Calcedony, better Chalcedony, kal.se’d.on.y. A precious stone.

From Chalcedon, in Asia Minor, where the first was found.

Calcedoria, kal-sē’do.lair’ri.ah, not kal-se.lair’-ī.ah.

Slipper-wort. (Latin dim. of calceōlus, a little shoe.)

Calcine, kal’sin. To reduce to powder by heat. (Fr. calciner.)

Cal’cined (2 syl.), cal’cin-ing, cal’in-able (i long).

Calculate, kal’·u.late. To reason by figures. Cal’culat-ed, cal’culat-ing, cal’culat or, cal’cula’tion, cal’culable, cal’cula-\lybly; in-calculable and in-calculably (negatives).

Latin calcūlāre, from calcūlus, a pebble, used by Roman boys to assist in adding and subtracting.

Calc’ulus, plu. cal’·u·li, stone on the bladder. Cal’cu.ulous, stony.

Calculus (Latin), a stone; calcŭlōsus (Latin), stony.

Caldron, kaul’dron, a large kettle. Chaldron, chol’dron.

"Caldron," Latin caldārium, a caldron.

"Chaldron," French chaldron = 36 English bushels.

Cal’endar (of the year). Cal’ender, a machine for calendering.

"Calendar," Latin calendāriu,m, an account-book.

"Calender," French calendre, verb calanclrer~ to mangle; Latin cylindrus, a roller; Greek kulindrus (kulindō, to roll).

Calender, cal’·endering, not calendring, calendered, kal’·en.derd.

Calendrer. One who calenders cloth. The poet Cowper uses the word Calender for "Calendrer." (See John Gilpin.)

Calendula, ka.len’·du.lah. Marygolds, &c.

Latin calendae, the first of the month; so called because these plants flower almost every month in the year.

Calf, plu. calves, karf, karres; bull-calf, fem. cow-calf.

Old Eng. eal fetal. Our plural ought to be ealfs. (R. xlvii.)

Caliber, kal’·i.ber not ka.lee’ber. The diameter of a gun-barrel.

Fr. and Sp. calibre, dimension of a ball, bore of fire-arms (Arab calīb, a mould, or from the Lat. equilibrāre, to weigh out in equal parts).

Calico, plu. calicoes, kal’·iko, kal’·iko.ze. Cotton cloth. (R. xlii.)

French calicot, from Calicut (E. Ind.), whence it was first imported.

Calistenics, kal’·iss.rhen”-iks. Exercises to develop the body.

Greek kalōs sthēnōs, beauty and strength [combined].

Calix, plu. calixes, kay’·li.zez, a cup. Calyx, part of a flower.

Latin calix, Greek kulix, a cup. (A different word to calyx.)

Latin calix, Greek kalix, the empanelment of a flower.

Calk or Caulk, hauk. To drive oaken into the seams of a ship.

Caulk, a sulphate of bary’ta. Cork (of a bottle).

"Calk," Latin calca, to tread, to press (calx, the heel of the foot).

"Cauk," a miner’s term, derivation unknown.

"Cork," Latin cortex, the bark of a tree. Nare sine cortex, to swim without corks (Hor. Sat. i. iv. 120); German kork, cork.
Call, to shout. Caul (of a wig), a membrane. (Old Eng. caul)
Call, kaw, called (1 syl.), calling, call-er.
Catecall, recall, callboy, &c. It retains the double “1” always.
Latin cálō, Greek κάλεω, to call.
Calliope, kālˈli.ə.pē not kālˈliə.ə.pē, as it is generally called.
Greek Kallīōpe, the muse of epic poetry (kallís, beauty).
Callous, kalˈlus, insensible. Callus, bone gluten.
Latin callosit-s, callous.
Caloric, kāˈlo.rık not kalˈo.rık nor kalˈo.rik. The principle of heat. (Latin călor, căloris, heat; căleo, to be hot.)
Calm, kārm; calmer, more calm; calmest, most calm. (Fr. calme.)
Calomel, kālˈo.mel, prepared mercury. Chamomile, kāmˈə.mılle (a flower).
Calamine, kālˈə.mən, a fossil (q.v.)
Caloric, kālˈo.rıc not kālˈo.rić nor kālˈlo.rik.
Calumet, kālˈu.met. A pipe smoked by American Indians when they make a treaty or terms of peace.
Calumny, plu. calumnies, kālˈum.niz. A slander.
Calum'niate (4 syl.), calum'niated, calum'niating, calum'ni-at-or, calum'niation, calum'niatory, calum'nious, calum'niously. (Latin calumnīa.)
Cal'vary, the place of Christ's crucifixion. Cavalry, horse-soldiers. (Second "a" of " Calvary " is long in Latin.
No such word in the Greek text of Luke xxiii. 33.)
“ Calvary,” Latin calvēria, a cemetery (calve, a skull).
“Cavalry,” French cavalerie; Latin caballus, a horse.
Calve, karve, to bring a calf into life. Carve, to serve meat.
Calves, plu. of calf. (See Calf.)
“ Calve,” Old Eng. cealf-ian; to bring a calf into the world (c = k).
“Carve,” ceorf-an, to cut, hew, or carve (c = k).
Calvinism not Calvanism. The religious tenets of John Calvin.
Calvinist. One who entertains the religious views of Calvin.
Calix, plu. calxes or calces, kālˈsēz. Lime, chalk.
Old Eng. ceal or celdo; Latin calc, plu. calces, chalk.
Calˈyx, plu. calˈyaxes or calˈyces, kālˈv.i.sēz. Calix, a cup. (q.v.)
Latin călyx, plu. călyces; Greek kālyx, plu. kάlykēs, the umpalem ent of a flower.
Cambria, kāmˈbri.ək. Fine linen made of flax.
From Cambray, in Flanders, where it was first manufactured.
Camelion, better Chamæleon, kā.meeˈ.la.ən.
Latin chamaeleon; Greek chamaileón, the reptile lion.
Camellia, generally called kā.meeˈ.li.a, better kā.melˈli.a.
These beautiful plants are named after G. J. Kamel (Latinised into Camellus), a Moravian Jesuit, and botanist.
Camelopard, generally called kam'-el'-o.pard or kam'-el-lep'-arid.
Latin camelopardalis, the giraffe. The word is compounded of camel- and pardalis, the parded camel, the camel spotted like the pard or panther, and should be pronounced kam.ell.o.pard.

Cameo, plu. cameos, kam'-e.o, kam'-e.oze. Stones cut in relief.

Intaglio, in.tal.yo. A stone cut in hollow, like seals.

Italian cameo and intaglio.

Camomile, better Chamomile, kam'-o.mile. A plant.

Calomel, kal'o.mel. A preparation of mercury.

“Chamomile,” Greek chamai melôs, an apple on the ground. So called from a resemblance in the smell.

“Calomel,” Greek kallos melôs, beautiful black (bleached by heat).

Campaign, kam.pain'. The time an army is in “the field.”

Champagne, sham.pain’. Wine made of Champâgne grapes.

“Campaign,” French campagne, a field or open country.

Campaigner, kam.pain'er. One who has served in campaigns.

Campana, kam.pay'-nah (Latin). The pasque-flower.

Campanile not campanel, kam'.pa,nile. A bell-tower.

Latin campanile, a bell-tower. (The “i” is long.)

Campanula, kam.pan'-u.lah. Hair-bell, blue-bell, Canterbury-bell.

Latin campanula, the blue-bells, also the woodbine (-pâ-long).

Campanulaceae, kam-pan-.u.lay'-se.ce. The “campanula” order.

The suffix -aceae, (in Botany) means an “order” of plants.

Campanularia, plu. campanulariae, kam.pan'-u.lair'ri.ah, &c. Corals with bell-shaped cells.

Latin campanula, a little bell.

Camphine, better camphene; kam'fe.en, cont. of cam'phôgen.

A mineral oil, identical with rectified oil of turpentine.

Latin camphora, Greek gônd, I produce camphor. (Its protoxide).

Camphor, kam'.for. A gum from the camphor laurel.

Latin camphora. Dr. Ure gives “Kamphur, Arabic.”

Campion, kam'.pi.on. Both catch-fly and cuckoo-flower.

“Corn-campion,” the common catch-fly; “white and red campions,” lychnis or cuckoo-flower; “rose campion,” bachelor’s button.

Can, past tense could. This is never an auxiliary verb, but it stands in regimen with other verbs without to between them; as “I can write,” “I could write.” Here write is infinitive mood, being the latter of two verbs in regimen.

(I ken, to write.)

Old Eng. cannan, pres. tense can, past câthe, past part. câth.
(The “î” is interpolated, and the “th” changed to “d.”)

Canaille (French), kà.nah.‘e. The rabble. (Lat. canes, hounds.)

“Canal” (French), an artificial river; Latin canālis.
“Channel” (a watercourse), Old French chenal, a gutter.
“Kennel,” Italian canale, a place for dogs. (Latin canis, a dog.)

Cancel, *kan.*səl, to obliterate. Canceled, *kan.səld; can’e*l-*n-, can’-ll-ate. (In Botany) lattice-like. (Rule iii. -EL.)

Canceller, one who cancels. Chancellor, a dignitary, q.v.

Latin cancello, to make like a lattice (cancelli, lattices).

When a document is cancelled a pen crosses the writing into lattices.

Latin cancer, the crab, sign of the summer solstice.

“Cancer,” Old Eng. canc or cancere (c = k).

Candelabrum, plu. candelabra, *kan.dəl’*ə.brəm, *kan.dəl’*ə.*brəh. (The “e” of this word is long in Latin.)

Latin candelabrum; candela, a candle; candeo, to glow like fire.

“Candid.” Latin candidus, white, sincere.

“Candied,” Italian candito, candire, to candy.

Candidate, *kan.*dii.dət. One who offers himself for a vacant post.

Latin candidatus, clothed in white; because Roman candidates dressed in white when they solicited the people’s votes.

Candle, *kan.*dəl. (The older spelling is the better.)

Old Eng. candel; Latin candēla; candeo, to glow.

Candlemas, *kan.dəl’*məs. Feb. 2, when “Catholics” consecrate all the candles to be used in churches during the year.

(-mas [postfix] drops one “s”: Christmas, Michaelmas.)

Ital. candire, to candy.

Cane, kain, a reed. Cain, brother of Abel.

“Cane,” Latin canna; Greek kanna, a reed, a cane.

Canicula, *ken.*a.ɪkə.ə.ləh, the Dog-star. Canicular (adj.)

(The “i” is long in the original Latin words.)

Latin canicula, the dog-star; canicularis, adj. (canicularius dies).

Canine, ka.nine not ka.neen, adj. of canis, a dog. (Lat. caninus.)

Canister, *kan.*is.ə.tər. A small box for tea, &c.

Latin canistrum, Greek kanastron, a wicker basket.

Canker, to corrode; a worm. Cancer, a disease; “the crab.”

“Canker,” Old Eng. cancer or canere (c = k), a canker.

“Cancer,” Latin cancer, the crab; Old Eng. cancer, the disease.

Cannabis (Lat.), *kan.*nʌ.bəs. Hemp. (Greek kannabis, hemp.)

Cannibal, *kan.*ni.bəl. A human being who eats man. (Double n.)

Columbus says: “The natives live in great fear of the cannibals (that is, Caribals, or people of Cariba).”
Can'non, ordnance. Can'on, a church dignitary. It is difficult to recollect which of these two words has the double n.

A "cannon" is a reed for holding gunpowder; Greek kanna; Latin and Italian canna; French canne (all with double n).

Can'non-ade, can'non-a''ded, can'non-a'ding, can'non-eer'.

"Canon" is the Greek kanôn; Latin canon, a rod for measuring, a "rule," hence a standard or model of excellence, and hence the books admitted as our Scriptures, and a church dignitary.

Canon'ical, canon'ically, canon'icals; can'on-ist, can'on-is'e, can'on-ry, can'on-isa'tion (not a Greek word, R. xxxi.)

Cannot, kan'.not, familiarly contracted into can't, karnt not kînt. It is in reality "ca'n't (ca = kah).

Canny, kan'.ny, cautious, knowing. Can'y, kain'.y, adj. of cane.

"Canny," Old Eng. cēne, from cunnan to know or ken.

"Cany," Latin canniēus, adj. of canna, a cane.

Canoe, plu. canoes, ka.no'oe, ka.nooz. (Rule xlii.) This word, meaning a boat made of skins or bark, is said by Spanish historians to be of Indian origin: "Illa in terram suis lin-tribus, quas 'canoas' vacant, eduxerunt." (Hist. of Amer.)

Canon, a church dignitary. Cannon, ordnance. (See Cannon.)

Canopy, plu. canopies, kan'.o.py, kan'.o.piz. (Rule xiii.)

Canopied, kan'.o.pid, can'opy-ing. To cover with a canopy.

Low Lat. canūpeum; Greek kōnūpeion, a pavilion to keep off gnats (kōnûps, a gnat). The -nō- is long both in the Gk. and Lat. words.

Cant, hypocritical whining complaints. Can't, for "cannot," q.v.

Latin canto, to repeat the same thing often, to sing.

Cantata (Italian), kan.tar'.tah not kan.tay'.tah. A poem set to music (Latin cantāre, to sing).

Canteen. A soldier's tin vessel for holding drink.

Italian, cantina, a wine-cellar.

Canter, one who cants. Canter, a Canterbury gallop. The Canterbury gallop refers to the easy pace of pilgrims.

Cantharis, plu. cantharides, kan'.thi.ri.sis, kan.thar'ri.deez.

Latin canθarίs, the Spanish fly; Greek kanθhros, a beetle.

Canthus, the corner of the eye. Acanthus, a thorny plant.

Greek kanths, the corner of the eye; Latin canthus, a wheel-tire.

"Acanthus," Latin, from Greek akanthos (akantha, a thorn).

Canticle, plu. canticles, kan'.ti.kl, &c. A religious song.

"Solomon's Song" in the Bible is called "The Canticles."

Italian cantice; Latin cantus, a tune, and -ete, diminutive.

Canto, plu. cantos (Italian), kan'.toze. Divisions of a poem.

Canton, kan'.ton, a territorial division. Cantle, a fragment.

"Canton," French, from the Greek kanthos, a corner.

"Cantle," French échantillon, a sample, our "sçantling."

AND OF SPELLING.
Can’vass (one s), plu. canvases, cloth. Can’vass, to solicit votes.

Can’vass, can’vasses, can’vassed (2 syl.), can’vass-er, &c.

“Canvas,” French cana Vanessa; Latin cannabis; Greek kannabis, hemp.

“Canvass,” Old Fr. cana Vanessa, to sift through hemp; hence to sift votes.

Cany, kay’ny, adj. of cane. Canny, knowing (q.v.)

Caoutchouc, koo’tchook’ not ka.ou’tchook. (Indian). India-rubber prepared for waterproof cloths.

Cap, capped (1 syl.), capping, capful plu. capfuls. (Rule i.)

Cap-a-pie, kap’ah pay’. From head to foot.

Spanish (de) cabeza a pies. Not French. Fr. would be de pied en cap.

Capable, kay’.pa.b’l, ca’pableness, ca’pability.

French capable; Latin capax, capax (verb capio).

Capacity, plu. capacities, ka.pas’i.tiz; capacious, ka.pay’shus, capa’ciously, capaciousness. (Latin capacitas, capacity.)

Caparison, ká.par’rý.zon. To decorate a horse. (This word is corruptly spelt “caparison” for “caparason.”)

Spanish caparazon (with a and z); French caparaçon.

Capillary, plu. capillaries, ka.pi.l’la.riz, the extremities of arteries, fine as hairs. Capillary, adj., fine as a hair.

Latin capilarius, like a hair (capillus, a hair).

Capital (of a column), chief city. Capitol, a temple in Rome.

Capital-ly, capital-ist, capital-ise, capitalis-ed (4 syl.), capitalis-ing (s not z), capitalis-ing’tion. (Rule xxxi.)

“Capital” (chief city; excellent). French capital; Latin capitalis.

“Capital” (of a column), ought to be capitell; Latin capitalum. The termination is the dimin. -illus (-il), and not the adj. -al.

“Capital,” Latin capitolium, the temple of Jupiter, erected on the Capitoline Hill of Rome.

Capitoline, kap’i.to.line not ka.pi.o.line. (Latin capitolinus.)

Capitular, ka.pi.tu.lar. Member of an ecclesiastical chapter.

Capitulary, plu. capitularies, ka.pi.tu.ri. The laws of an ecclesiastical chapter.

Latin capitularis (capitulum, a chapter a summary).

Capitulate, ka.pi.tu.lat’ not ka.pi.chu.late; capitulated, capitulat-ing, capitula’tion, capitula’tor.

French capitulation, verb capituler, to surrender on terms; Latin capi-tula’tion, chapters; hence articles of agreement.

Capivi, ka.pi.ve’.vi or ka.piv’.a, corruption of capaifer. A balsam of the capaibern officina’tis of South America.

Capriccio, plu. capriccios (Italian), ka.pri.tsho’, ka.prit’shoze (3 not 4 syl.) In Music, a caprice. Rule xlii.

Latin capra, a goat; our “caper.”
Capsicum, plu. capsicums, *kap'sikum, &c. The cayenne-pepper plant. (This word ought to be capsicum instead of "capsicum.")

Latin capsa, a coffer, referring to the pod which contains the seed.

"Capstone," so called from its resemblance to a cap.

Capsule, kap'sule (2 not 3 syl.) The seed-vessel of a plant.

Latin capsula (capa and -ula dim.), a little chest (or pod).

Captain, kap't'n.

(French capitaine; Latin caput, the head.)

Suffix -cy denotes "rank," "office," "condition" (-cy, not -sy).

Caption, kap'shun.

The act of taking by judicial process.

Captious, kap'shus, disposed to find fault; cap'tiousness.

Latin capio, capitōsus (verb capio, capto, to entrap).

Captivate, kap'ti vate; cap'tivated, cap'tivat-ing, cap'tiva'tion. (-or, after t or s, is more usual than -er.)

Latin captivare, to make captive [by charms or otherwise].

Captivity, plu. captivities, kap'tiv a ti z. (Rule xlv.)

Captor, he that captures. Capture, kap'tshur, to take prisoner.

Captured, kap'tshurd; capturing, kap'tshur ing.

(-tor and -sor for agents, rarely -ter and -ser.)

French capture, verb capturer; Latin captūra, a capture.

Capuccio, plu. capuccios (ItaL), ka pute'sho, ka pute'shoze.

(The plural of this word is Anglicised.)

Capuchin, kap' u shin. A monk of the order of St. Francis.

So called from the "capuchin" or hood worn by them.

In French capucin, the monk; but capuchon, the hood.

In Italian capuccino, the monk; and cappuccio, the hood.

Cap'ut mor'tuum (Latin). What remains in a still, &c., when all the volatile matters have been driven off.

Car, a small one-horse vehicle. Char, to carbonise by fire.

"Car," Latin carrum, a cart or car; carrus, a wagon or wain.

"Char," French charrée, cinders; Latin carbo, coal.

Carafe (French), car'raf. A water decanter; not craft nor craft.

Carat, caret, carrot; kar rat, ba ir' et, kar' rot.

Carat (French), 4 grains Troy. 24 carats, standard purity.

Caret (Latin), term in Gram. "wanting," as "Vocative caret."

Carrot, a vegetable root. (French carrot.)

Car'avan* (one r). It is not derived from "carry," but from the Armenian word karawan; verb karau, to journey.

Persian karvan, a merchant; French caravane, a company of merchants travelling across deserts, &c.
Caravansary, kar'ra.vans'ar.y. A station for caravans.

Persian karvan sarai, a large place for travelling merchants.

Latin carbo, coal, charcoal. (Rule xxxi.)

Carbonado, plu. carbonadoes, kar'-bonay'-doze. (Rule xliii.)

Spanish carbonada, a steak or chop broiled on carbon or charcoal.

Carbonate, kar'.bo.nate. A "salt" formed by the union of carbonic acid and a base: as "Carbonate of lime," &c.

Carbonated, carbonating (carbon and suffix -ate, q.v.)

Carbuncle, kar'.bun.kl. A gem of a deep red colour; a red ulcer.

Latin carbo, and the diminutive -culum, a little (live) coal.

Carburet, kar'.bu.ret. Carbon in union with some other substance, the compound not being an acid.

(-uret, in Chemistry, denotes a "base.")

Carburett-ed, carburett-ing, carburett-er. (R. iii., t.)

The "t" ought not to be doubled in these words. (R. iii.)

Carcass, kar.kass, a dead body. Carcasse, a projectile.

French carcasse, a dead body, a sort of shell, &c.

Cardamine, Cardamom, Cardamum. (N.B.—da not -di.)

Cardamine. A plant called lady's smock, cuckoo-flower, &c.

Cardamom. An Indian spice plant—the seeds are useful.

Cardamum. Garden cress, nasturtium.

"Cardamum," Latin cardamum, Greek kardamôn, a garden cress.

Greek kára damad, to afflict the head (with its acrimony).

If spell "-di-" it would be the Greek "kardia, the heart.

Cardiac, kar'.di.ac. Adj. of the Greek kardia, the heart.

Carditis, kar.di'tis. (-itis denotes "inflammation.")

Greek kardia-itis, inflammation of the heart.

Latin cardinalis (cardo, a hinge); the election of the pope "hinges" on the cardinals. "Cardinal virtues," on which minor ones hinge.

Care, cared (1 syl.), car-ing; care-ful, care-less, care-fullness.

Old English cear, care (verb cardian, past cærode, past part. cærold).

Careen, ka.reen. To lay a ship on its beam-ends for repairs.

French caréne (verb caréner; Latin carina, a keel.

Career, ka.reer. A course of action. (French carrière, a career.)

(This word ought to have a double "r.")

Latin carrum, a car; carrus, a wagon (from currô to run).

Caress, ka.ress. To hug, to "dear" one; an act of endearment.

French caresser, to caress: Latin carus, dear.

Caret, kar'ret, wanting. Carat, Carrot. (See Carat.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Cargo, plu. cargoes, kar'goz. (Spanish cargo, a ship's load.)

Caricature, kar'ri.kut'ar. This word has no connection with Character. It is the Italian caricatura, from caricare, to load; and means to overcharge blemishes and faults.

Caricatured' (4 syl.), caricatur'ing, caricatur'ist.

Caries, plu. caries, kair'ri.es, mortification of the bone during life. Carries, kar'riz, 3rd pers. sing. of the verb carry.

Carious, kair'ri.us, adj. of caries. Cariosity (abst. noun).

Carleovian, kar'-lo.vi.an. Adj. of Karl (German).

Carolingian, kar'-lo.vi.an. The dynasty of Charles (Martel).

Carminative, kar.min'.a.tiv. A medicine to cure flatulence.

Carminine, kar.min'. A brilliant crimson colour.

Carmin, kar'.nal, sensual. Charmel, tchar'.nel, animal refuse of a churchyard. (French charnier, a churchyard.)

Carnal, car'nal, carnality; carnation, flesh colour.

Carnelian not cornelian. A carnation or flesh-coloured stone.

Carnival not carneval, kar'.ni.val. The Saturnalia preceding the abstinence of meat in the season of Lent.

Carpe, car'pet, car'pet.ed, car'pet-ing. A worker in wood.

Carpe, kar'.pot'at, the arteries of the neck, from carot'ides, producing sleep. The ancients supposed these arteries controlled sleep.

Carouse, ka.rooz' not ku.roose, caroused (2 syl.), carous'.er, carous'.ing, carous'.al. To revel, &c.

Carpenter, carpentry not car'pentry. A worker in wood.

Carpe, kar'pet-ed, car'pet-ing (with one t. Rule iii.)
Carriage, kar’ridge. A coach. (See Carry.)
Carrier, kar’ri.er, one who carries. Career’, a course (q.v.)
Carriion, kar’ri.ion. Corrupting flesh. (Ought to have only one “r,”) (Latin caro, flesh.)
Carronade, kar’r.on.a.de. A short cannon; so called from the Carron Foundry (Scotland), where they were first made.
Carrot, Carat, Caret, bū’rot, bū’rét, bair’et. (See Carat.)
Car’rot-y, red like a carrot. (N.B.—Double r, one t. R.iii.)
Car’ry, carries, kar’riz; carried, kar’rid; car’ry-ing, car’rier, carriage, kar’ridge. (Rule xliv.)
Welsh cario, to carry; carior, a carrier; Latin carrus, a cart.
Carte blanche (French), kart blarnsh. A piece of paper to be filled up at discretion, the giver being responsible.
Carte de visite, plu. cartes de visite (Fr.), kart døvé.zec’h, &c.
Cartload, plu. cartloads not cartload, as “two cartloads.”
Cartagin’ian not Carthagenian. Adj. of “Carthage.”
Latin Carthago, Carthaginis, Carthaginiensis (adj). Our “e” in “Carthage” is merely to soften the “g.”
Cartilage, kar’til.age, gristle. Cartilag’inous (adj.) (g = j.)
French cartilage, cartilagineux; Lat. cartitago, cartilaginösus.
Cartouch, kar.toosh’. A cartridge-box. (French cartouche.)
Cartridge. The charge of a gun in an envelope; the charge of a cannon is put into a serge envelope. When the charge contains ball, as well as powder, it is called Ball-cartridge; when it contains only powder, and no balls, it is called Blank-cartridge.
Cartridge-box. A small leather case to hold cartridges.
Cartridge-paper. The paper used for cartridges.
<“Cartridge,” a corruption of cartouche; Italian cartoccio.
Carve, to cut meat at meals. Calve, karve, to bring forth a calf.
Carves; third person singular of carve. Calves, karves, the plural of calf. (Rule xxxviii.)
Old Eng. ceof[an], to carve or cut; ceal[ian], to bring forth a calf; cealf, a calf; plural cealfre, calves. We have lost these distinctions.
Caryated, plu. caryatides, kar.i.at’id, kar.i.at’i.deez. (In Arch.) Female figures employed as pillars or supporters. So called from Caryc (Peloponnesus), conquered by the Athenians. To celebrate their victory they made the supporters of the trophies represent women of Caryc in their national costume.
Caryophyllaceæ, ka’ri.of’i.lay’ce.e. Clove-carnations, &c.
Latin caryophyllum, the clove gilly-flower, with the suffix -aceæ, denoting an “order” of plants; Greek karuophyllon, Caryophyllia, ka'ry-o'fil'-u-ah. A section of flowery corals.
Latin caryophyllum, the clove gilly-flower, with the suffix -ia, denoting an "order" or section; Greek karuophyllon.

Caryopsis, ka'ry-op'-sis. Technical name of a corn-grain.
Greek karyöön õpse, a nut in appearance.

Casava, better Cassava, kas'sah'-vah. Starch of the cassava-plant.
Spanish cazabe; French cassavi.

Cascarilla, kas'skar'il'-ah. A tonic bark. (Span. cascara, bark.)
Case, cased (1syl.), cá's'ing. To put into a case. (Fr. caiisse.)

Casina, cas'ee-noze. A dancing saloon; (R. xxii.) Italian casino or casina, a small house (casa, a house).

Cashier, kas'ee-er (cash-clerk); kasheer' (to dismiss in disgrace).
French caissier, cash-keeper (caisse, a till).

Casino, plu. casinos; ka'see'-noze. A dancing saloon. (R. xxii.)
Italian casina, a small house (casa, a house).

Cask, a tub. Casque (French), kask, a helmet.

Cassava, kas'sah-vah. Starch of the cassava plant.

Cassock, kas'sok. A clergyman's robe worn under the gown.

Caste, a little wheel for furniture. Castor, kas'tor, the beaver.

Castor-oil, a corruption of Castus-oil. It is not an animal oil, extracted from the castor or beaver, but oil expressed from the Palma Christi, and used in religious rites.
Latin castus, a religious rite; Castus oleum, oil for sacred rites.

Cat, Tom-cat *(male), Tabby, plu. Tabbies (female). Latin catus, a cat (from catus, wily, sly, cunning).

Cata- (prefix, Greek kata, “down,” “against,” “according to,” &c.

Cataclysm not cataclasm, kat'ə.kli.zm. Cataplasm, a poultice.

Catacomb, kat'ə.komb. A cave for the burial of the dead. French catacombe, from the Greek kata hombos, a cave underground.

Catalepsy, kat'ə.lep.syy. A trance, a fainting-fit.

Catastrophe, plu. catastrophes, katas'trofe, katas'tro.fiz. Latin catastrophē, Greek katastrophē, (kata strepho, to overturn).

Catastrophic, kat'ə.stragf. A waterfall; a disease of the eye.

Latin catastraca, from the Greek kata arassos, to dash down.

Catarrh, ka.tər. A cold affecting the secretions of the eyes, &c.

Catarrh'-al, adj. of catarrh. (Latin catarrhus, rheum.)

Greek katarrōs, (from kata rheō, to flow down). The “r” is repeated to compensate for the lost aspirate in pēw. In “catarrh,” either the “h” or one “r” should have been omitted.

Catastrophe, plu. catastrophes, kat'as'trofe, kat'as'tro.fiz. Latin catastrophē, Greek katastrophē, (kata strephō, to overturn).

Catacall not catacal. Only “fill, full, still, thrall” (postfix) drop an “l.” (Rule viii.)

Catch, past and past part. caught not catched, catching, not ketch, ketch'ing.

Low Lat. catzūrus, a hunter; catsūro, to go hunting (take in hunting). “Caught,” a contraction of catzurātus (catzurat, ca’ut’).

Catchpole, katch.pole, a parish constable. (Poll, the head.)

Catchup, Ketchup, or Catsup. Extract of mushrooms.

East Indian ketjab, soy sauce.

Catechism, kat'ə.kizm, catechist, kat'ə.kist, catechizer, kat'ə.kiz.e.r, catechize, kat'ə.kize, catechized (3 syl.), catechizing (Rule xxxii.), catechetical, kat'ə.ket'i.kal, catechetically, kat'ə.ket'i.kal.ly. (In the Greek words the “e” of all these words is long η not e.)

Greek katēchismos, katēchistēs, katēchēs (from kata echō, to din into one, to teach the elements of religion orally).

Catechumen, kat'ə.ku'men. One being prepared for confirmation.

Latin catēchumēnus, Greek katēchoumēnos, one learning the catechism or rudiments of religion. The plural is catechumens.
Category, plu. categories, kat'.e.gör.ry, kat'.e.gör.riz; more correctly kat'.ee.go.ry, but rarely so pronounced.

Categorical, kat'.e.gör'ri.kal, adj. of category.
(In Latin and Greek the “o” of all these words is long.)
Latin catégória, catégoricus; Greek katégória, katégórikon (from kata dígōred, to speak in public against a person, to prove).

Cater, kay'.ter. To provide food. (Norm.-French acater, to buy.)

Caterer, fem. cateress, kay'.tër.re, kay'.tër.ress. One who caters. Chaucer uses the word achatoT for caterer.

Cathartic not cathart'ctic, law.jar'ti.tik. A purgative medicine.
Lat. catharticus; Gk. kathartikos (katahaire6, to e.rry downwanls).

Cathedral, ka.rhee'.dräl. A church containing a bishop’s seat. (This word shows the perversity of the English language. We outrage quantity to throw the accent back from the penultimate, and say “ca's'tigate” for castigate, “blas'phemy” for blaspheomy, “bal’óny” for baléony, “meta-mor’phósis” for metamorphōsis, “apothe’ósis” for apotheōsis, and hundreds more; but here, where accent and quantity favour our favourite system, we actually change short e (e) into long e (η), and say “cathedrāl” instead of cath'.e.dral, or at any rate cath.ed'.ral.)

Latin cathēdra, Greek kathēdrā (kathēopa) kata hēdra, a seat.

Cathode, kath.ode. Where electricity makes its way out.

Anode, is where it makes its way in.

Greek kata hōdos, the way down or out. Ana hōdos, the way up or in.

Catholic, kath’.ol.ik, universal. Catholics, or “Roman Catholies,” are those who adhere to the Church of Rome.

Catholicism, ka.thol’.i sizm. The creed of Catholics.

Catholicity, kath’.o.i.ty. Universality.

Lat. catholīcus; Gk. kathōlikos (kata hōlikos, according to the whole).

Catholicón, ka.thol’.i.kôn. A panace’a, or universal medicine.

Latín catholicon [remédium], Greek kathōlikon [iáma], a universal remedy.

Cato, plu. Catos not Catoes, ka’.toze. (Rule xlii.)

Proper names in o add -s (not -es) to form the plural.

Catoptrics, ka.top'.triks. The science of reflexion and refraction.

Greek katóptrikos (katōptron, a mirror).

Caucasian, kaw.küs’i.an not kaw.kay’.fi.an. (Gk. kaukäsios.)
In Latin the word is spelt both Caucasean and Cauasian.

Caudal, pertaining to the tail. Caudle, kaw.d’l, a sort of food.

“Caudal,” Lat. cauda, a tail. “Caudle,” Lat. calidus, warm [food].

Caul, a membrane. Call, kawl, to speak with a loud voice.

“Caul,” Old Eng. caul or cowl, a basket. “Call,” Lat. calo, to call.
Cauliflower, kal'iu.flō'w.ər ("flow-" to rhyme with now).

Latin caulis florus, flowering cole-wort.

Cause, caus (1 syl.), caus-ing, caus'er, caus'ative.

Cause-less, cause-lessly, cause-lessness.

Latin causa, causālis, causātio. The reason or cause of an effect.

Causeway, a corruption of the French chaussée. A raised way.

Caustic, kōw's.tik, nitrate of silver. Causticity, kōw's.tis'i.tē.

Latin causticus; Greek kaustitos (kaussē, burning heat).

Cauterize, kōw'tərīz, cauterized (3 syl.), cauteriz-ing, cauteriz'er, cauteriz-ation, cauteriz-er, cauterism. (Rule xxxii.)

(In the Greek and Latin words the middle "e" is long.)

Lat. cauterizo; Gk. kautēria, kautērism (from kauo, to burn).

Caution, kōw'shun; cau'tioned (2 syl.) To warn, a warning.

Cautionary, kōw'shun.a.ry; cau'tional, cau'tious, kōw'-shuls; courteous, kor'tees, polite, q.v.

Latin cautio, cautioinis, cautus (from caeo, to beware).

Cavalcade, kōv'al.kādē. A procession of horsemen.

Latin caballus, a horse.

Cavalier, kōv'.ə.lēr, a knight. Caviller, one who cavils.

Cavaliers (plu.) Royalists or partisans of Charles I.

"Cavalier," French, a horseman; Lat. caballarius (caballus, a horse).

"Caviller," Latin cavillor (deponent verb), to cavil.

Cavalry, kōv'.ə.lē.rē. Horse-soldiers. (French cavalerie.)

Latin caballus, a horse; caballarius, a horseman.

Cave, kāv (1 syl.), cav-ing, kāv'.iŋ; cav'-ity, kāv'.i.tē.

Latin cavēa, a cave; cavitas, a cavity (cavary, to hollow).

Cavern, kāv'.ərn, caverned (2 syl.), cavernous. (Lat. caverna.)

Cavil, kāv'.əl, cavilled (2 syl.), cav'il-ing. (Rule iii., 2.)

Caviller, kāv'.əl.lər, one who cavils. Cavalier (q.v.)

Lat. cavillor, to cavil; cavillator, a caviller; cavillation, a cavilling.

Cayenne, kā.yən. Red pepper, from Cayenne (South America).

-ce (suffix) Latin -ce[a], -ci[a], -til[a], added to abstract nouns.

Cease, seen; ceased (1 syl.), cess'-ing, cess'-less, cess'-lessly.

Cessation, ses.sə'.shən. A pause or leaving off.

Latin cessatio; French cesser, Latin cessare, to leave off.

Cedar, se.dər, a tree. Cedry, adj. of "cedar," not cedary.

Old English ceder; Greek kēdrōs; Latin cedrus, adj. cetrātus.

Cedilla, see. di'la.h. A mark under c (ç) to indicate that it is to be pronounced like s (hard).
Spanish cedilla. It occurs only in çà, çö, and çú.

Ceil, Seal, Seel.
Ceil. To cover in the ceiling of a room with plaster.
Seal. A sea-call; a stamp; to fasten with sealing-wax.
Seel. To close the eyes of hawks, to hoodwink.
“Ceil,” Latin celum, heaven; French ciet; Ital. and Span. cielo.
“Seal,” French seellé (seeou); Latin sigillum, contracted to sigl.
Ceiled, seeled, past and p.p. of ceil. Sealed (1 syl.), with wax.
Ceiling (of a room), ceilinged (2 syl.) Sealing (with wax).

Celandine, sel'.an.dine. Swallow-wort. A blunder for chelidine.
Latin chelidónia; Greek chelidónion (from chelidón, a swallow).
So called because swallows cure their young ones of blindness with this herb, according to an ancient fancy. (Plin. 25, 50.)

Celebrate, sel'.è.brate; cel'ebrá't-ed, cel'ebrá't-ing, cel'ebrá'tion.
Celebrator (-or, the Latin termination for an agent).
Celebrant. An officiating priest at a religious rite.
Celebrity, pln. celebrities, se.leb'.riti.z. One known to fame
Latin celebráre, celebrátor, celebránt, celebritás, &c.
Celerity, sel'.er'ti.te. Swiftness. (-ty added to abstract nouns.)
Latin celebrátas, swiftness (verb celeráre, to hasten).

Celery, sel'.è.ry not sal'.è.ry, a vegetable. Salary, wages.
“Celery,” French céleri; German selleri; Greek selínón, parsley.
A species of parsley (apium grávédéns).
“Salary,” Lat. salárium, money for salt, i.e., condiments; (pin-money).

Celestial, se.les'.ti'al not se.les'.tchal. Heavenly.
Celestials, pltn. The heavenly deities of heathen mythology.
Celestially, se.les'.ti'ali.ly, adv. In a heavenly manner.
Celestialise, se.les'.ti'al.i.tze. Celestialised (4 syl.) R. xxxi.
Latin celestial, celestial, from celum, heaven.

Celestine, sel'.es.tine not se.les'.tine, a mineral. Celestin (a monk).
“Celestine,” Latin celestis, so called from its sky-blue colour.
“Celestins,” an order of monks named from Pope Celestin V.

Celibacy, sel'.e.bii.siy, an unmarried state. Celibate, sel'.e.bate.
Latin celibáta, a bachelor; celibátius, single life (from the Greek koiléps, i.e., koilé leipó, I avoid the bridal-couch).

Cell (of honeycomb), a small room. Sell (for money).
Cellular, sel'.lu.lar. Cellulated, formed with cells.

Cellule, sel'.lu.la. A little cell.
Cellulose, sel'.lu.loze. The cell-matter of plants.
“Cell,” Old Eng. celtas, cells; Latin cella (Greek koilé, a hollow).
“Sell,” Old Eng. syl(ian), past sale, past part. sold, to sell.
Cellar, a room for stores underground. Seller, one who sells.
Old Eng. cellas, cells; Latin cellarium, a cellar (cella, a cell).
-cellis, -cello (Ital. diminutives), -cul[us] Latin diminutive.

Celt, Kelt. "Celt," a bronze cutting instrument found in tumuli. The people, called Celts, should be called "Kelts," for distinction sake. Similarly Keltic, adj. of kelt; and Celtic, adj. of celt.
"Celt," Latin celtis, a chisel (verb caco, to carve or emboss).
"Kelt," Greek Keltai or Gálaitai; Latin Gálitae; Old Eng. Cell.

Cement, cement not sent (noun), but verb and noun alike.
French cement; Latin cemen{um} (cementa, mortar).

Cemetery, plu. cemeteries (for burials). Symmetry, harmony.
Cemetry not cemetery. Symmetry not symmetry (double m).
(In Greek and Latin the "e" of "cemetery" is long.)
Latin cem{et}rium; Greek koim{er}ion (verb koim{e}in, to sleep).

Cenotaph, cenotaph. A monument without the dead body.
French cenotaphe; Latin cenotaphium; Greek keno{taphion} (kénos taphos), an empty tomb. (N.B.—cen- not cena-)

Censer, Censor, Censure, censor, censer, censor, censer.
Censer. A vase for incense.
Censor. A Roman officer to enforce decorum.
Censorious, censoriosely, censoriousness, censorship.
Censure, censured (2 syl.), censur-ing, censur-er, censur-able, censur-ably, censur-ability. To blame, &c.
"Censer," French encensoir; Latin incensum, incense.
"Censor," Latin censor, censorius (verb censere, to think and judge).
"Censure," Latin censura, the office of censor; and hence the judgment or blame of censors (verb censere).

Census, Censers, Censors, Censures, census, censer, censer, censer.
Census (Latin). Registering the number of the inhabitants.
(The other three words are the plurals of words given above.)

Cent, Scent, Sent, all pronounced alike, sent. (See Centum.)
Cent, hundred: as 5 per cent, written thus 5 0/.
Scent, perfume. Sent, past and past part. of send.
"Cent," Latin centum, a hundred; French cent.
"Scent," Fr. senteur, scent. (Lat. sentire, to observe by the senses).
"Sent," Old Eng. send[an], past sente, past part. sented, to send.

Centaur. A fabulous being half man and half horse.
Latin centaurus; Greek kentauros. The centaurs were Greek bucaneers, or horsemen who hunted wild bulls. Greek kentés tauros, to prick or spear bulls.
AND OF SPELLING.

"Century," Latin centaūrīa, the centaury, named from the centaur (Chiron), who cured with it a wound in his foot from one of the arrows of Heracles.

Centum. (1.) written cent before vowels.

Centenarian, sent.en'ri.an. One who is 100 years old.

Centenary, plu. centenaries, sent.en'neriz. The return of a period after the lapse of 100 years.

"Annual" suffix becomes ennial, as biennial, triennial, &c.

Centesimal, sent'es.i.al, adj. Centesimal, sent'es.i.al, adv.

Latin centenarius, centēsimus (centum, a hundred).

Centum. (2.) -i after "cent" (next letter *-c, -f, -g, -m, or -pe."

Centiceps, sent.e.cips. Having 100 heads. (Capita, heads.)

Centifolia, -fo.li.ah. Having 100 leaves. (Folia, leaves.)

Centigrade. Having 100 degrees between the freezing and boiling point of water. (Gradus, a degree.)

Centigram. The 100th part of a gram. (French measure.)

Centime, sah'ntim. The 100th part of a franc. (Fr. coin.)

Centimetre. The 100th part of a metre. (Fr. measure.)

Centipede, plu. centipedes, sent.i.peeds. Insects with 100 feet. (Latin pes, pēdis, plu. pēdes, feet.)

Centum. (3.) -u after "cent" (next letter -m, -p, or -r.)

Centumviri, sentum.vi.rı. Government lodged in the hands of 100 men. (Latin centum viri, 100 men.)

Centumvirate, sentum.vi.rate. The office of the above.

Centuple, sentu.pl'. A hundred fold. (Plica, to fold.)

Centuplicate, sentu.pli.kate. To make centuple.

Centurion, sentu.rı.ın. Captain of 100 men.

Century, plu. centuries, sent.u.rı.z. Period of 100 years.

Latin centumviri, centuplex, centuplicātus, centurion, centīria.

From centum -um must be effaced

Whenever before a vowel placed.

Cent-i appears with c, f, g,

Or when preceding m or pe;

Cent-u is reckoned better far

When joined to m, or p, or r.

As a "memoria technica"* the word "Enis" (ns) will denote when n is used, and the word "Umpire" (mrn) when u is used. All other words belong to the second category.*

Cento, plu. centos. A patchwork poem, each line being from a different author, and used in a perverted sense.

Spanish centon: Latin cente, a patch or poem of patches. Greek kentrón, a patch, a cento.
Centre, sent·ter, the middle; centred, sent·tered, placed in the middle; centring, tending to the centre.

Cent*·tric, cen*·trical, cen*·trically.

Cent*·tral, cen*·trally, central*·ity, cen*·tralism.

Cent*·tralis*·e, cen*·tralised (3 syl.), cen*·tralis*·ing, cen*·tralisa*·tion.

French centre, Greek κέντρον, a point; Latin centrum.

(*It will be seen that the word center is quite indefensible.*)

Centrifugal, sent·rif*·ug*·al. A force directed from the centre to the circumference; a tendency to fly from the centre.

Latin centrum fugio, to fly from the centre.

Centripetal, sent·rip*·te*·tal. Tending towards the centre.

Latin centrum peto, to seek the centre.

Centuple, cen*·tur*·ion, cen*·tu*·ry, &c., see above, Centum.

Cephalic, se·pal*·ik. Pertaining to the head.

Latin céphalicum, céphalicus, adj.; Gk. κέφαλικός (képhalé, the head).

Greek κέφαλικό podoí, feet [placed round] the head.

Cepheus, Se·fue. A constellation containing thirty-five stars.

Cepheus, husband of Cassiopeia, both made constellations.

Cerastium, cer*·as*tium. Mouse-ear chickweed.

Greek κέρασιον (from κέρας, a horn). "The horned plant," referring to the shape of the capsule (3 syl).

Cerasus, cer*·ra*·sus. A genus of plants containing the cherry.

Latin cérasus; Greek κέρας, the cherry-tree. So called from Cérdsus (now Kérdsus), whence it was brought by Lucullus.

Cerate, Serrate, Serried, see·ret, ser*·rate, ser*·rid.

Cerate. A thick ointment containing wax.

Cerated, see·ra.ted. Covered with wax.

Serrate (in Botany). Leaves with saw-like edges.

Serried. Compact, set in close array.

"Serrate," Latin serr*·at*·us, like a saw (serra, a saw).

"Serried," French serré, closely packed, crowded together.

Cere, see*·r, to cover with wax. See*·r, a prophet. Sear, dry.

Cerement, see·men*·ent. A waxed wrap for dead bodies.

"Sear," Old Eng. ser*·ian, to dry.

Cereal, pertaining to grain. Serial, a periodical.

Cereals, plu·, all grains used for food. Serials, periodicals.

Cerebrum, plu. cerebra, ser′re.brum, ser′re.brāh. The brain.

Cerebellum, plu. cerebella, ser′re.bel′.hum, ser′re.bel-lāh. The hinder part of the brain, where the animal spirits are supposed to be generated.

Latin cerebrum, the brain proper; cerebellum, the little brain, the animal not the intellectual part.

Ceremony, plu. ceremonies, ser′re.mun.y, ser′re.mun.iż.

Ceremonial, ser′re.mō″nial; cer′emo″niously, cer′emo″nious, cer′emo″niousness. Outward forms of courtesy.

Latin cérémonia; French cérémonie, cérémonial, &c.

Cereous, waxen (Latin cērēus). Serious, grave (Latin ser′vus).

Ceres, See′reez, goddess of corn. Series, se′rē.eez, sequence.

“Series,” Latin, sēriēs, a connected succession.

Certificate, ser.tifi′.cate, certifi′cated, certifi′cat.ing, certifi′cation. A written testimony; to testify in writing.

French certificat; Low Latin certifuratorium. (See Certify.)

Certify, ser.ti′fy; certifies (3 syl.), certi′fied (3 syl.), certi′fy-er, certi′fy-ing. To attest in writing; to assure. R. xliv.

French certifier; Latin certi′fere, to make certain.

Cessation, ses.sa′.shun, a pause. Cassation (French), appeal.

Latin cessatio, cessation (from cesso, to leave off).

Cession, ses′sa.shun, a yielding. Session, an assize, &c.

“Cession,” Latin cessaio, a giving up (verb cessio, to leave off).

“Session,” Latin sessio, an assize (verb sedeo, to sit).

Cesspool, ses′pool not cispool, Receptacle for liquid filth.

Old Eng. sesse-pol, a pool settle (verb sess[ian], to settle).

Cetacea or cetaceans, sing. cetacean, se′tay′.sē.ah, se′tay′.se.anz, sing. se′tay′-sē.an. Whales and other marine mammals.

Cete′ceous, adjective.

Latin cēce; Greek kētē or kētos; adj. cetæceus, kēteos (3 syl).

Cetiosaurus, se′tē.o.saw″.rus. The fossil whale-saurian.

Greek kētie-sauros, the whale-like lizard.

Cetotolites, se′tō tol.ites. Fossil ear-bones of whales.

Greek kētos-ōla lithos, whales′ear stones.

Ch- represents three distinct sounds, and three distinct characters. The sounds are sh, tch, and k. The characters are c (before a, e, i and eo), ch, and the Greek χ.

(N.B.—In this dictionary “ch” is sounded “tch,” unless otherwise expressed.)

All words (except two) beginning with “ch” = k, are of Greek origin. The exceptions are chem′istry (Arabic), and chia′ro-oseu′ro (Italian).
All native words, and two-thirds of those borrowed from the French beginning with "ch-" have the sound of tch.

There are eighteen words beginning with "ch-" = sh, all of which are from the French, to which language indeed most of our irregularities are due. The eighteen words are chad, chagrin, chaise, cham'ois, champagne, champagne, charade', char'latan, chas'seur, chat'aeu, chemise', chevalier', chica'nerly, and chifforier'.

-ch (Old Eng. suffix of adjectives), "pertaining to": rich, Scotch.

Chafe, châfe, to rub. Chaff, châf not châf, husks of grain.

Chafe, châfed (1 syl.), châf'ing, châf'er, châf'ery.

Chaff, châf'ing, rubbing. Chaffing, châf'ing, quizzing.

"Chafe," French échauffer, to warm, to chafe.

Chaff, chay'jel', a beetle. Chaffer, châf'er, to haggle.

"Chaffer," Old Eng. ceaf, a chaffer, a beetle ("c"=ch).

Chaffing, châf'ing, to quiz. Chafe. (See above.)

Chaffer, châf'er (noun); châf'er (verb). Rule 1.

Chagrin (Fr.) sm'rin (n.), sha.grin' (v.). Shagreen, sha.green'.

Chag'rin, vexation: chagrin', to vex. (Rule 1.) Shagreen', a sort of leather prepared from the shagreé whale.

Chagrin', chagrined, sha.grind', chagrin'-ing (only one u).

(One of the few exceptions to a very general rule. Rule i.)

Chair, cheer, share, shear, sheer.

"Chair" (a seat), French chaire, a pulpit; Lat. cathèdra.

"Cheer" (to console), French chère, cheer, welcome.

"Share" (a portion), Old Eng. scir, a part cut off.

"Shear" (to cut), Old Eng. scir[an], to cut off, to divide.

"Sheer" (entire, pure), Old Eng. scir, pure, clear, &c.

Chaise, shâze, a one-horse carriage with two wheels. Chase, hunt.

Chalcedony, kal.scè.dô.ny not kal.sèl.dô.ny. A precious stone.

(The "o" and the "e" are both long in the Greek word.)

Greekchalkédon; Latin chalcedónius. So named from "Chalcédon," a Greek city of Bithinia, where the first was found.

Chaldee, kal.dee' not chal.dee'; Chaldean, kal.dee'an.

Chaldaic, kal.day'.îk; Chaldaism, kal.day'.ism.

Latin Chaldaici, Chaldeans; Chaldaicus; Gr. Chaldaia, Chaldaios.

Chaldron, chan' drôn not châl' drôn. Thirty-six bushels [of coke].

Caldron, kawl' drôn not kăl'.drôn. A large boiler.

"Caldron," French chaudron; Latin caldārium, a large kettle.
Chalice, chāl'is, a cup. Chaliced, chal'ist, full of cups.
(This word ought not to have an "h" after the "c").
Old Eng. calic, a goblet; French calice; Latin calix; Greek kūx.
Chalk, chawk. Calk, kawk, to fill the seams of a ship. Cork.
Chalky, chawk'y, adj. of chalk. Corky, like cork.
"Chalk," Old Eng. ealce or calce, lime; Latin calx; Greek chaliz.
"Calk," Latin calceo, to tread down (from calx, the heel).
"Cork," Spanish corcho; Latin cortex, bark.
Challenge (2 syl.), chal'lenged (2 syl.), chal'lenger, chal'lenging.
Chal'lengeable, chal'lenj.ā.bl. (Only verbs in -ce and -ge retain the "e" before -able.)
Low Latin calangium, a challenge; Greek kàleo, to summon.
Chalybeate, kā.lib'e.at. Ferruginous water.
French chalyb; Latin chalybéus, adj. of chalybs, steel; Greek chálíbó, steel, from "Chalups," one of the nations of the Chalybés, in Pontus, famous for working in iron and steel.
Chamber, chām'ber, chām'bered (2 syl.), chām'ber-ing.
French chambre; Latin cáméra; Greek kámara, a vaulted room.
Chameleon, ka.11lee'.le.on. A lizard, able to change its hue.
Latin chamæleon; Greek chamaíleon, the reptile lion.
Chamois, sham'.wor (noun), sham'.my (adj.): as "chamois-leather."
French chamois, Spanish gam'ús, a species of antelope or goat.
Chamomile, kam'.u.11lile, a plant. Cal'mel, prepared mercury.
Calamine, kal'.ă.min. Carbonate of zinc.
"Chamomile," Latin chamemélon; Greek kamaímélōn, the ground apple, so called ab odore mali Mariani. (Plin. 22, 21.) (Our word is quite misspelt, and as usual we have taken the error from the French, camomille for chamomel.)
Champaign, sham'.pain', a wine. Campaign, kam'.pain' (q.v.)
Champion, cham'.pi.on, a defender. Campion, kam'.pi.on (q.v.)
"Campion," both the Silène (catch fly) and the Lychnis.
Chance (1 syl.), chanced (1 syl.), chanc'-ing. To happen.
French chance; Latin cadens, cadentia, things that occur.
Chancel, chān'.sel (of a church). Cancel, to obliterate.
Chancellor, chān'.sel.lor, a dignitary. Canceller, one who cancels. Chancery, chān'.sē ry, a court of equity.
Latin cancelli, a chancel: cancellarius, cancellaria (from cancelli, lattices, which divided the clergy and lawyers from the laity).
Chandeler, shān.dē.leer'. A hanging candelabrum.
Chandler, chānd'ler, chānd'ler not chānd'ler. A dealer in candles.
French chandelier, chandelier and chandler; Latin candela, a candle.

"Ch" in English words sounded as "ch," unless otherwise expressed.
"Ch" in English words sounded as "tch," unless otherwise expressed.

Change, change; changed (1 syl.), chăng'-ing, chăng'-er.

Change-able (verbs in -ce and -ge retain the "e" before -able), change-ableness, change-ably, change'-fully, change-less, change-ling. To alter, an alteration.

French changer; Latin cambiare, to change, cambium, change.

Channel, chan'.nel; channeled, chan'.nèld; chan'nel-ing. (R. iii.)

Canal', an artificial river. Ken'nel (for dogs), a gutter.

"Channel" and "canal," Latin canalis; French canal.

"Kennel" (a gutter), Fr. chanal. (A dog's house) chanil (chien, a dog).

Chanter; fem. chantress, chan'ter, chan'.tress. One who chants.

Chanticleer, chan'ti.cleer. A corruption of cantic'tula.

Chantry, chan'.t1'y (should be chanté1'y). A chan'tle-cl;ape1.

"Chantier," Old Eng. cantare; Fr. chanter, v.; Lat. cantare, cantator,

"Chanticleer," Latin canticulátius, a little singer, the cock.

"Chantry," Fr. chantererie; Low Lat. cantaria (chanter, to sing).

Chaos, kay'.òs. The materials of the world before "creation."

Chao'tic, kay'ot.ic. Adj. of chaos. (Greek and Latin.)

Chap (the cheek), not chop. Chap (to crack from cold), not chop.

chap, chapped, chap't; chapp'-ing, chapp'-y. (R. i.)

"Chap" and "chop" are the same words, but "chop" is now used to signify a cut, as a "mutton chop," or to cut, as to "chop wood."

"Chap" (the cheek), Old Eng. ceaplas, the jaws; cevel, the snout.

"Chap" (as chapped hands), Low Latin colpo, to cut; French coup.

Chapel, chüp'.el, chüp.el-ry. Chapel was originally the canopy placed over the altar when mass was performed.

Low Lat. capillus, a cap or hood, capellária, a chapelry; Fr. chapel.

Chapel Royal, plu. chapels royal. ("Royal," adj. no plu.)

Chaperon, shap'.èrøné (noun), chaperone, shap'.è.røne (verb).

Chaperone, chap'erøned (3 syl.), chap'erøning.

French chaperon, a hood worn by an attendant, hence an attendant on young ladies, a guide or protector.

Chapiter, chüp'.i.ter, the capital of a column. Chap'ter (of a book).

"Chapiter," Latin capitellum or capitulum/caput, a head, and -ellum or -ulum, dim.: French chapiteau, a chapiter.

"Chapiter," Old Eng. capitol; Latin capitolium; French chapitre.

Chaplain, chüp'.læn. A clergyman to a private family, ship, &c.

Chaplaincy, chap'lainship. (It would be better chapelain.)

French chaplain; Latin capellanus (one who wears a hood, capellus).

Chaplet, chüp'.let, a wreath (Fr. chapellet; Low Latin capellus).

Char, to burn to carbon. Char, chair, to work by the day at house-work (applied to women). Charr; a lake fish.

Char (to burn). Charred, char'd. (Rule i.)

Charring, burning. Charing (one r), doing char'work.

"Char" (to burn), a contraction of the French charbonner (charcoal).

"Char," Old Eng. cérre, a turn of business (verb cérren).

("Charing" is one of the few exceptions to a very general rule. R. i.)

"Charr" (the fish), Gaelic cearr, one of the salmon family.

Character, kar'ra-k.ter. Caricature, kar'ri-kü.ture (q.v.)

Charactered, kar'ra-k.ter-éd ; charactering, characterless.

Characterize, characterized (4 syl.), characterizing.

Characteristic, kar'ra-k.ter-ik ; characteristic, characteris'ically, characteristicism. Rule xxxii.

Greek character, characterismo (from charasse, to impress coin); Latin character, characterismus, the distinguishing of characters.

Charade (French) sha-rar'd. A riddle. (See Enigma.)

Charge (1 syl.), charged (1 syl), charg'-ing, charg'er.

Charge-able (Verbs in -ce and -ge retain the "e" before -able), charge-ably, charge'-ableness, charge-less.

French charger, to load, &c.; Low Latin careo, to load (our cargo).

Chargé d'affaires, plu. chargés d' affaires (French), sha'r-zja daffair. One entrusted with diplomatic business.

Chariot (French) char'ri-ot. A coach with only a front seat.

Charioteer, char'ri-o-teer'. The driver of a chariot.

Charity, plu. charities, char'itable, charitably, charitableness.

French charité; Latin chartas, not cártilas (Greek chartes, favours).

Charlatán (French), sha'r-là-ta'n, a quack. Char'latanism.

Charr, a fish of the salmon family. Char, to burn. (See Char.)

Chart, chart, a map. Cart, a two-wheeled vehicle for stores.

Charter, a royal grant in writing. Carter, one who has charge of a team.

Chasable, chä'se, vol'tl, that may be chased. Chas'uble (q.v.)

Chase, chä'se, chased (1 syl.), châ's-ing, châ's'er, châ's-able.

(Only verbs in -ce and -ge retain the "e" before -able.)

French chasser, to chase; Low Lat. chacea or chasea (verb chacea).

Chasm, käs'm, a gulf. (Greek chasmä, a yawning; Lat. chasma.)

Chaste, châ'st, châ's-ly, châ's-ness, but châ's-ty.

French chaste, chasté; Latin castus, castitas.
“Ch” in English words sounded as “tsh,” unless otherwise expressed.

Chasten, chäst’ë.n not chäste’n; chastened, chäst’ë.nd.
Chastening, chäst’ë.ning; chastener, chäst’ë.ner.
Chastise, chäst’ë.zë; chastised’ (2 syl.), chastising, chastis’ë-er, chastis’ë-able. (Not in -ce or -ge. Rule xx.)
Chastisement, chast’ë.zë.mënt. Correction, punishment.
Old Fr. chastier, now chatter; Latin castigare, to correct, punish.
Chastity, chast’ë.tëtë. Purity of body and mind. (See Chaste.)
Chasuble, shäz’ë.bël, a priest’s robe. Chasable, chäz’ë.bël (q.v.)

"Chasuble," French: Low Lat. casubula, dim. of casula, a surplice.
It is worn over the alb when the priest performs mass.
Chat, chatter’ed (2 syl.), chatter’ing, chatter’er. To prattle.
French jaser, corrupted first to chäser then to chatter.
Chateau, plu. chateaux (Fr.), shäميز. She&W. A country seat.
Chattels, chat’tëls. Goods in general. (Low Lat. catalla, chattels.)
Chaumontelle, shau’mon’tël’ not shar’mon’tël’. A pear.
So called from Chaumont, in France.
Cheap, cheep’; cheapen, cheep’ë.n; cheapened, cheep’ë.nd; cheap’eningen, cheep’ë.ning. Low in price, to lessen in value.
Old Eng. ceap, a bargain; ceapjan, to bargain, ceap’an, to buy.
Cheat, cheet. Contraction of “escheat.” Escheators were officers appointed to look after the king’s escheats. This gave many opportunities of overcharging and of fraud.
Cheater, one who cheats. Cheeta, the hunting leopurd.
Old Eng. ceatta, cheats. “Cheater,” or cheeta, is a Mahratta word.
Check, a restraint, to restrain. Check or cheque (for money). Checker or chequer. To form into checks or squares.
Old Eng. cece, a fetter; French écheé, a repulse, hinderance.
“Cheque or check” (for money), exchequer, a treasury.
Cheek. Side of the face. (Old Eng. cédéca, the cheek or jaw.)
Cheer, Chair, Char, Sheer, Shear, Share.

Cheer. To gladden. (French chëre, cheer, welcome.)
Chair. A seat. (French chaire, a pulpit; Latin cathedra.)
Char, chair. To do domestic work by the day. (Old Eng. cérran, to do a turn of business; cérrë, a turn of business.)
Sheer. Entire, pure. (Old English scër, pure, clean.)
Shear. To cut. (Old Eng. scër[an], to cut off, to divide.)
Share. A portion. (Old English scër, a part cut off.)
Chee’tah, the hunting leopurd. Cheater, one who cheats (q.v.)
"Ch" in English words sounded as "tch," unless otherwise expressed.

Chef d'œuvre, plu. chefs d'œuvre, shay d'uvr. (In art) the best production of an artist in his particular line.

Cheir- (Greek), ki'r or ki'r... The hand. Except in Zoological nomenclature, spelt chir- (q.v.)

Cheiracanthus, ki'r.aka than'.thus. A fish armed with spines.

Cheirolepis, ki.roöt'.zip. A fossil fish. (Gk. lépis, a scale.)

Cheiroptera, ki.roo'.te.rah. Bats. (Greek pteron, a wing.)

Cheirurus, ki.rü'rus. A trilobite. (Greek cheir oura, hand-tail; i.e., having a tail with five finger-like spines.)

Chelae, kee'lee. A claw (of a crustacean). (Gk. chélë, a talon.)

Chelonia, ke.l'o.ni.a. The tortoise family. Chelo'nian (n. or adj.) (Gk. chelônë, a tortoise.)

Chemise (French), shè.meez'. An undergarment of women.

Chemisette, shim'.e.zet'. A sort of female waistcoat.

Chemistry, chemist (c not y), kem'.is.ty, kem'.ist. Chem'ic, chem'ical, chem'ically.

The same root as al-chem, without the article al. Arabic kimia, the occult art. Even if taken from the Greek, the first vowel would be a, not y (ché, to melt; not chuë).

Cheque or check. An order for money. (See Check.)

Cherish, cher'ish; cher'ished (2 syll.) Fr. chérir; cher, dear.

Cherry, cher'ry (ought to have only one r). A fruit.

Chevaux de frise (French), she.vô'dë-freez'. A military fence.

Chevalier (French), shev'.e.leeer. A cavalier.

Chew, choo, chewed (1 syll.), chewing. To masticate.

Chiaro-oscuro (Ital.), ke.ar'o os.kü'ro. Light and shade.

Chibouk or Chibougue (Turk.), chi'boo.ke'. A Turkish pipe.

Chicane, shè.kain'; chicanery, shè.kain'.e.ry. Trickery.

French chicane, chicanerie, petitifogging trickery.
"Ch" in English words sounded as "tch," unless otherwise expressed.

Chick or chicken, plu. chicks or chickens. (Chicken is not plural.)
Old Eng. cicken, plu. cichenis. "Chick" is a contraction of cicken.

Chide, past chode, past part. chidden [chid]. To reprove.
Chid'-er, chid'-ing, chid'-ingly.
Old Eng. cild'ian], past cild, past part. cild'en, to chide.

Chief, plu. chiefs (Rule xxxix). Chief' tain (French chef).

Chiffonier, shiff'-o.neer', not chestioneer. A piece of furniture.
French chiffonier, a rag-picker (from chiffon, a rag).

Chilblain, chill.'blain. A blain or sore from chill or cold.
Old Eng. eccle-blegen or blregan, a chill blister or sore.

Child, plu. children, child, chill'dren. Childe, a young nobleman.
"Child," Old Eng. cild, plu. cild're, later form cild're (a interpolated).

Childhood, the child period. (O. Eng. -had, state, condition.)

Childish, like a child. (O. Eng. -ise [added to nouns] means "like," but added to adjectives is diminutive, as "blackish."

Chiliad (Greek) kil'.iad, 1,000. Kilo-, used in French weights to express a multiple; mille- (Latin 1,000) to express a fraction. Thus kilo-gramme = 1,000 grammes; mille-gramme, 1/1000 part of a gramme.

Chill, chilled (1 syl.), chill'-ing, chill'-er (comp.), chill'-est (sup.), chill'ingly, chill'ness, chill'y, chill'i-ness. (Rule viii.)

Chilli [vinegar]; chillies (plu.), chill'iz, pods of Guinea pepper.

Chime, chimed (1 syl.), chim'ing. To make bell-music.

Chimera, plu. chimeras, ki.me'er.rah, ki.me'er.raz. A monster.

Chimerical, ki.me'r.ry.kal (imaginary); chimer'ically.

Lat. chimera: Gk. chimaira, a lion, dragon, and goat united.

Chimney, plu. chimneys, not chimnies. Chimney-piece.
(The word " chimney " is a common error with children.)

French cheminee; Latin caminius; Gk. kaminnis, a chimney.

Chimpanzee, chim'.pan.zeez'. African name for the orang.

Chin (of the face). Chin, the back-bone, a "joint," cut from it.

Chinese. Sing. a Chinese or a Chinaman, plu. Chinese (indefinite), Chinamen (definite), as 1, 2, 3, &c., Chinamen.

Chintz, plu. chintzes. Cotton prints with more than two colours.

Chintz, plu. chintzes. Cotton prints with more than two colours.

Chip, chipped (1 syl.), chipp'-ing, chipp'-er. (Rule i.)

German kippen, as kippen und wippen, kipper und wipper, applied to money-clipping and money-clippers.
AND OF SPELLING.

Aim of Spelling.

1. In English words sounded as "tch," unless otherwise expressed.

Chir- (Greek cheir, the hand), ki'rr... (prefix), hand. (See Cheir-.)

Chirography, ki'ro.'graf' filmpjes. Art of writing.

Chirograph, ki'ro.'graph. An official written document.

Chirographic, ki'ro.'grafl'ik, adj. Chirographer.

Greek cheir grapho, to write with the hand, hand-writing.

Chiromancy, ki'ro.'man.sy. Divining by looking at the hand.

Chiromancer, ki'ro.'man.ser. One skilled in the above.

Greek cheir manteia, hand-division, &c.

Chiropodist, ki'rop'.o.dist. A corn and wart doctor.

Greek cheir pods, hand and feet (-ist, an agent).

Chis'el, chis'eled (2 syll.), chis'el-ing, chis'el-er. (Rule iii. -EL.)

French ciseler, to chisel (ciseau, scissors); Lat. cesum (cudo, to cut).

Chivalry, shiv'ul.ry; chivalric, shiv'ul.rık; chivalrous.

French chevalerie (3 syll.), from cheval, a horse; Lat. caballus.

Chlorine, kla'r'in. In Chemistry -ine denotes a gas.

Chloride, kla'r'id. In Chemistry -ide denotes a base. If "lime" is the base, the compound is chloride of lime.

Chlorate, kla'r'ate. In Chemistry -ate denotes a salt, the acid of which ends in -ic. The salt of chloric acid with a base.

Greek chloros, pale green. Chlorine is a greenish yellow gas.

Chloroform, kla'r'.form. A compound of chlorine, carbon, and hydrogen. -form in Chemistry denotes the "ter-oxide of a hydrocarbon," which resembles "formic acid."

Chlorophyll, kla'r'.phil. The green colouring matter of plants.

Greek chloros phyllon, the green of leaves.

Chocolate, chok'.o.let. (French chocolat, Spanish chocolate.)

Choice, choic'-er (comp.), choic'-est (sup.) Worthy to be chosen.

Old Eng. cc6s[an], to choose; c6sun, a choice.

Choir, quire. A band of singers; the place where they sing.

Old Eng. ch6r; Latin chorus; Greek ch6rös.

Choke, choked (1 syll.), chok'-ing, chok'-er. To block up.

Welsh cegio, to choke, (from ceg, a mouth).

Choler, kol'.er, anger. Collar (for the neck).

Choleric, kol'.e.rık. Irritable, passionate.

Greek and Latin choléra. (Greek cholé rheo, flow of bile.)

"Collar," Old Eng. ccele, a collar; Latin colluhi, the neck.

Cholera, kol'.e.rah. A flow of bile, bile-flux. (See above.)

Choose, past chose, past part. chosen, chöz, chöze, chözen; choos'-ing, choos'-er. Choice, choic'-er, choic'-est.

Old Eng. cc6s[an], past ccás, past part. ccérn.
"Ch” in English words sounded as “tch,” unless otherwise expressed.

Chop, to cut, to exchange. Chap, the jaw-part of the cheek, &c.

Chop, chopped (1 syl.), chopp'ing, chopp'er. (Rule i.)

"Chop” (to cut, &c.), Low Lat. colpo, to cut; French couper, to cut.

"Chop” (to exchange), Old Eng. coup, a bargain; verb coup[an].

"Chap” (the jaw), Old Eng. ceaplas, the jaws.

"Chop” (to crack with cold), Low Latin colpo, to cut.

Choral, ko'ral, adj. of choir (quire). Coral, kor'ral (q.v.)

"Chord,” Greek chordé, the string of a lute, &c.; Latin chorda.

"Cord,” French corde, string; Greek chordé; Latin chorda.

"Cawed,” kord, past tense of “caw,” an imitation-word; Old Eng. cor, a crow; Latin cor[vus]; Greek corus.

Chorus, ko'rus. Cho'ral, adj. (Latin chórus, Greek chórós.)

Chough, chuff, a jackdaw, a crow. Cuff, kuf, a blow. “Chough” was originally pronounced chow, like “though” tho’.

Old Eng. ceo = ch'ow; Fr. choucas; Lat. corvus ("caw," the cry).

"Cuff,” French coup, to blow; Latin coláphus (Greek kolaptó).

Chrism, krízm, consecrated oil. Chrisom, krís'om, a child that dies within a month of its birth.

“Chrism,” Greek and Latin Chrisma, ointment (Gk. chrió, to anoint).

“Chrisom,” so called from the “chrism cloth,” anointed with "chrism,” or consecrated oil, and placed over the child.

Christ, kríst; Christ-less, kríst-less. Short in the compounds:

Christmas, kríst'mas. From Dec. 25 to Jan. 6. (Rule viii.)

Christen, krís’n not krís'ten; christened, krís’nd.

Christening, krís’n.ing; christener, krís’n-er.

Christendom, krís’n.dom. All Christian countries.

Christian, krís’ti.an; Christianity, krís’ti.an’i.ty.

Christianize, krís’ti.an’i.ze; christianized, krís’ti.an.ized.

Christianizing, Christianism, krís’ti.an’izm. (R. xxxii.)

Greek Christos, christiános, christianizó, christianismos.

Latin Christus, christianus, christianismus, christianitas.

Chromate, krízm.a.te. In Chemistry -ate denotes a salt, from the union of a most highly oxidized acid with a base. Thus chromic acid and potash is the chromate of potash.

Chromite, krízm.ite. In Chemistry -ite denotes a salt, from the union of a less oxidized acid with a base. Thus chromite of iron is an oxide of chromium (inferior to chromic acid) in union with iron.

Chromium, krízm.i.num, a metal; also called chrome (1 syl.)

Greek chróma, colour. The metal “chromium” is so called because it is a powerful colouring substance.
AND OF SPELLING.

“Ch” in English words sounded as “tch,” unless otherwise expressed.

Chromatics (plu.), kromat’iks, science of colours.

Chromatic Scale (Music), so called from the intermediate notes being printed in colours.

Chromatope, kro’ma.trope. An apparatus for showing a stream of colours. (Greek trópaō, to turn round.)

Greek chroma, colour. All sciences in -ic are plural except logic, music, and physic (French words). Gr. chro-matiōs; Lat. chro-matische, chromatic music.

Chronic, krō’nik or chron’ical. Continuing a long time.

Chronicle, krō’nik.l. History arranged in order of time.

Chronicled, krō’nik.léd; chronicling, krō’nik.ling.

Chroni-cler, krō’nik.ler. One who chronicles, an historian.

Greek chro-nikōs; Lat. chro-nicus (Greek chro-nos, time).

Chronologist or chronol’ogist. One who arranges dates.

Chronological, krō’nik.l.oloj’ik, chronolog’ically.

Greek chro-nolōgia, chro-nolōgōs (from chro-nos, time).

Chronometer, krō.nōm’é.ter. A watch or time instrument.

Chronometer’y. The art of making chronometers.

Greek chro-nos métron, time metre.

Chrysalis, plu. chrysalises not chrysale, krī’sa.lis, krī’sa.lis.čz.

Chrysalid, plu. chrysalids, are better and more modern forms; “chrysalid” is also used as an adjective.

Greek chry-salida, gen. chry-salid[ī]s, with double l (chrusos, gold); Lat. chry-salida, gen. chry-salid[ī]s, one l. (See Aurelia.)

Chrysanthemum, krī.santh’mum not chrysanthemum, plu. chrysanthemums not chrysanthema. A genus of flowers.

Greek chrus-an-themōn (chrusos anthēmōn, gold flower); Lat. chrys-an-themum, the yellow crow-foot, ox-eye, moon-daisy, &c.

Chrysolite, krī’so.lite. The topaz of the ancient, now improperly applied to a green crystal.

Lat. chry-solithus; Gr. chrusos lithōs, the gold stone.

Chrysoprase, krī’so.prāz not chrysophrase. A green stone.

Lat. chrysoprasus; Gr. chrusōprasos (chrusō prason, gold leek). “Quod sit coloris porracei; i.e. viridis, aureis intervenientibus guttis Isid.” (See also Plin. 37, 20.)

Chuckle, chuk’l; chuckled, chuk’.léd; chuckl-ing, chuk’.ling.

Corruption of the Latin caja-hina; Gr. kajehaza, to laugh.

Church. Old Eng. circ = chir.chc; Scotch kirk; Greek kur[īos] the Lord, with the suffix -ch, “belonging to.”

Churl, a surly fellow. Curl, kurl, a ringlet.

“Churl,” Old Eng. ceorl = ch’orl, a freeman of the lowest rank.

“Curl,” Old Eng. cir’el, a circle; Welsh cur, with dim., a little circle.
“Ch” in English words sounded as “tch,” unless otherwise expressed.

Churn, to make butter. (Old Eng. cerene, a churn, verb eern[an].

Chyle, kile. A milky fluid separated from food by digestion. Greek chalos; Latin chylus (Greek chelo, to pour out).

Chyme, kem. Digested food before it is converted into chyle. Greek chumos; Latin chymus (Greek chuo, same as chelo, to pour out).

Cicada, plu. cicadae (Lat.), st.kay'dah, st.kay'dee. Tree-hoppers.

Cicatrix, plu. cicatrices (Lat.), sik'atric, sik'atrised. A scar.

Cicatrice, sik'atraize; cicatrised (3 syl.), cic'atris-ing. A scar.

Cicerone (Ital.), sis'e-ro'.ne or ch'o.chey.ro',ne. A guide.

Ciceronian, Sis'e.ronian. A manner of writing or speaking in imitation of the style of the great Roman orator.

Cider, si'der. Wine made from apples. (Old Eng. cider.)

Ci-devant, see d'vah'n (French). An ex-[official], former.

Cigar, sik'gar' (Spanish cigarro, French cigare).

Cigarette, sik'si.ret' (French). Tobacco in a paper envelope.

Cilia, si'la, hair-like organs. Sillier, more silly.

Cinquefoil, sink'fo'il. Five-leafed. (French “feuille, a leaf).

Cinque- (French), sink. Used as a prefix to denote 5.

Cinquecento. Degraded or 16th century style of art.

Cinquefoil, sink-foil. Five-leafed (French -feuille, a leaf).

Cinque-ports. Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, Sandwich.

Cipher, si'fer, the figure 0; to do sums. Ci'phering, doing sums.

Arab. sifr, zero; Low Lat. ciphra; French chiffre; Italian cifra.
AND OF SPELLING.

Circean, Sir.se'e.an not Sir.'sé.an. Adj. of Circè (Lat. Circæus).

Circle, ser'.k'1; circled, ser'.k'1d; circling, ser'.k'1ling; circlet.

Latin circŭltus (circus, around); Greek kirkos; French cercle.

Circuit (French) ser'.k't. The route of a judge.

Circuitous, ser'.k'1.t'1.t'us, round-about. Circuitous-ly.

Circular, ser'.k'u.l'ar, adj. of circle. Circular-ly (Lat. circularis.)

Circulate, ser'.k'u.l'ate; circŭlăt-ed, circŭlăt-ing, circŭlăt'ion, circŭlător not circulator, (-ed sounded after d or t).

Latin circŭlāre, circulator; French circuler, circulation.

Circum- (Latin preposition), "around." Used as a prefix.

Circumnambient, ser.-hū.n.am'-'bi-ent; circumambiently.

Latin circumambio, to encompass or go all round.

Circum-ambulate, -am'bul'ate*; -am'bulăt-ed, -am'bulăt-ing,

-am'bulăt-or (Rule xxxvii.), -am'bulăt'ion.

Latin circumambulăre, to walk all round.

Circum-cise, circum-cised (3 syl.), -ci'ser, cir'cum-cis'ion.

Latin circum.credo (ccesum), to cut all round.

Circumference, ser.cum'-'je.1·c1zcC. The line that bounds a circle.

Latin circum fero, to carry all round.

Cir'cumflex, cir'cumflexed (3 syl.) A mark ( فوق) over a letter.

Latin circum flecco (flexum), to bend round.

Circum'-fluent, circum'-fluence, circum'-fluous, flowing round.

Latin circum fluens, circumfluus, flowing all round.

Latin circum fundo, supine fusum, to pour all round.

Circumjacent, ser'-cum.ja''sent. Lying round on all sides.

Latin circum jacens, lying all round.

Circum-locu'tion, circumlocutory, ser'-cum.lok'-u-tö-ry.

Latin circum locatio, a round-about manner of speaking.

Circum-naviga'te, *nav'-i.gāt-ed, -nav'-i.gāt-ing, -nav'-i.ga''tion, -nav'-i.gāt-or. (R. xxxvii.), circumnavigable, nav'-i.ga.b'l.

Latin circum navigăre, to sail all round (navis, a ship).

Circum-scribe, -scribed', -scrib'-ing, -scrib'-er, -scrip'tion.

Latin circum scribo, to write or draw a line all round [a place, beyond which combatants must not pass], hence to limit.

Circum-spect. Cautious. (Lat. circum specto; to look round.)

Circum-spection, -spec'-shum. Caution. (See Rule xxxiii.)

Latin circum spicio, supine spectum, to look round.

Circum-stan'cet, -stan'ced, -stanst; -stan'tial, *stan'.shäl.

Circum-stan'tials (plu.); incidents; circum-stan'tially.

Circum-stan'tiate, -stan'.she.ate, -stan'tiät-ed, -stan'tiät-ing.

Latin circumstantialia, circum stans, standing all round.

"Circumstances" are the details of time, number, names, incidents, influences, qualities, &c.; &c., which contribute to an effect.
Circum-vallation, -val.la'.shun. A military trench all round.
Latin circum vallare, to make a vallum (trench) all round.

Circum-vent, -vention, -vent.shun. (See Rule xxxiii.)
Latin circumventio, circum venio, supine ventum, to come all round, and hence to impede, to out-trick.

Circum-volve, -volved, -volv'd; -volv'-ing, circum-vol'ution.
Latin circum volvo, to roll all round, circumvolutus.

Circus, plu. circuses not circi. A circular place for equestrians.
Latin circus, plu. circi; Greek kirkos, plu. kirkoi.

Cirrous, adj. of cirrus. Scirrhous, skir'.rus, tumourous.
"Cirrus," Latin cirrus, a lock of hair; Greek keras, a crumpled horn.
"Scirrus," Latin scirrhos, a hard swelling; Greek skirrhos.
("Cirrhi," so often written in scientific books to denote "curl-clouds" is a mistake. The Greek "skirrhos" means yellow or flesh-coloured.)

Cis- (Latin preposition), prefix to adjectives, "on this side."
Cis-Alpine, this side the Alps; i.e., the south or Roman side.
Cis-Padane, this side the "Padus" or Po; i.e., the Rom. side.

Cistern, sis'.tern. A box for water. (Latin cisterna.)

Citadel, sit'.a.del. A fortress in or near a city.
French citadelle; Italian cittadella (citta'-della, a little city).

Cite, site, sight; all pronounced alike.
Cite, cit'ed, cit'ing, cit'er, cit'able, cita'tion. - (Rule xix.)
Sight, sight-ed, sight-ing. To come in view of.
"Cite," Latin citire, to quote, to call, to summon.
"Site" (a building plot), Latin situs, a situation.
"Sight," Old Eng. gesiht, vision (g of "sight" is interpolated).

Citizen, sit'.i.zen. There is no such word as citizenship.
Citizenship. State of having the privileges of a citizen.
-en, "one belonging to"; citi-z-en, one belonging to a city.
(As there is no "-z" to Latin words, it ought to be "citsen.")
Latin civitati (dative case) contracted to civi'ti, civi'ti, to a city.

Citrate, sit'.dit. In Chemistry -ate denotes a salt formed from the union of an acid ending in -ic and a base: Thus "citrate of magnesia" is citric acid united with magnesia.

Citric. In Chemistry -ic denotes an acid most highly oxidised.

Citron, sit'.ron. Fruit of the citron tree.
French citron; Latin citrus (citrun, citron wood).

City. A corporate and cathedral town. (O. Eng. cite, Lat. civitas.)

Civet. A substance taken from the civet-cat.

Civic, siv'.ik. Pertaining to a city. (Ci- long in Latin.)
Latin civicus, adj. of civis, a citizen; civitas, a city.
AND OF SPELLING.

Civil, siv'.il, civ'il-er (comp.), civ'il-est (sup.); civ'il-ly; civilise, siv'.il.ize; civ'ilised (3 syl.), civ'ilising, civ'iliser, siv'.il.ize.er; civilisation, siv'.il.i.za'.shun (R. xxxi.); civ'ility, sivil.i.ty; civilian, sivil.y-an.

Latin cívīlis, courteous like a citizen; cívītās, civility.

French civil, civilisateur (civiliser), civilisation, civiliser, civilité.

Clack, clacked, klōkd. To chatter. (French claqu'er, to clack.)

Claim, claimed (1 syl.), claim-ant, claim-able (1st Latin conj.) Meant originally to demand with noisy clamour.

Old Eng. hlem[m]an, to make a noise; Latin clamāre, to exclaim.

Clair-voYant (Fr.), one who sees without eyes. Clair-voYance.

Clam, clammed (1 syl.), clamm-ing, clamm-y, clammi-neSS.

Old Eng. clam, sticky mud, &c.; verb cläm[ian], to smear. (R. i.)

Clamour, klām'ér, outcry. Glamour, glam'ér, a charm which acts on vision. Claymore, a Highland broad-sword.

"Clamour," (one m), Old Eng. hlem[m]an, to make a noise; French clamour; Latin clamōr (verb clamō, to clamour).

"Glamour," Scotch, same as glimmer.

"Claymore," Gael. clād mor, great-sword.

Clamp, clamped (1 syl.), clamp-ing. (The p not doubled. R. ii.) Old Eng. clam, a bandage. To "clamp" is to fasten with clamps.

Clan, clann'-ish, clann'-ishly, clann'-ishness. (R. i.)

Clan-ship, clans-man not clanman. One of the same clan.

Clari-fy, klar'ri.fy; clar'ifies, (3 syl.), clar'ified (3 syl.), clar'i-fy-ing, clar'i-fi-ca'tion. To make free from impurities.

French clarifier; Latin claríficó (clarus facio, to make clear).

Clarin, a trumpet. Clarinet, klar'ri.net, not clarionet. ("Clarionet" means a small clarion, which it is not.)

"Clarion," Ital. clarino; Low Lat. clarigarius, a herald.

"Clarinet," Spanish clarínete; French clarinette.

Class, classed (1 syl.), class-ing, to arrange in a class.

Class'ic or class'i-cal (adj.), class'i-cal-ly, class'i-cal-ness.

Classics, the best authors. (Latin classicus, highest of the six divisions of Roman citizens made by Servius; hence classici auctores, the highest class of authors.)
Classify, classifies (3 syl.), classified (3 syl.); classifying, classifier, classification (Lat. classis-ficio [ficio]).

Clatter, clattered, klattered; clatterer, clattering, clatteringly. (The r not doubled. Rule ii.)

Old Eng. clatring, a clatter, a drum; Welsh clattering, to clatter.

Clay, plu. clays, clay-ey (not clay-y), clayish.
(There are three words which take the postflex -ey instead of -y,—viz.: clay-ey, sky-ey, and whey-ey.)

Old Eng. clæg, clay; Danish klæg, loam, clay.

Claymore, a Highlander's broad-sword; Glamour, glam'er; Clamour, clam'er. (See Clamour.)

Claymore, Gaelic clàlmòr, great sword; Welsh clàd-dùl, a clout; Welsh clwl, a patch.

Cleave, cleaved (1 syl.), cleaver, one who cleaves; cleanly, in a clean manner; cleanest, cleanest, cleanly (adj.), klèn'-ly; cleanliness, klèn-lieness.

Old Eng. clèn, verb clèn[an], clèn[an] and clèn[ee], cleanly.

Cleanse, cleaned (1 syl.), cleanser; to purify, to make clean. (R. xix.)

Old Eng. clèns[ian], past clènsede, past part. clènsed.

Clear, clear'er (comp.), clear'est (superl.), cleared (1 syl.), clearer (v).

Welsh clær; French, clair; Latin clarus; verb clàro, to clear.

Cleft, a crack. A piece of iron for the heels of shoes and boots.

Old English cléf[an], past cléf[n], past part. cléfen, to adhere.

Cleave: (to split), past cleaved (1 syl.), or clef (obsolete forms "claf" and "clof"). "Cloven" occurs often in the Bible (Acts xvii. 34). "Cloven" is used, as an adj., as "cloven foot," "cloven tongues."

Cleave: (to split), past cleaved (1 syl.), or clef (obsolete forms "claf" and "clof"). "past part. cleaved or cleft (obs. "cloven"). "Clave" (split) occurs often in the Bible (See Gen. xxii. 3). "Cloven" is used, as an adj., as "cloven foot," "cloven tongues."

Cleaver, one who cleaves, a butcher's chopper. Clever (q.v.)

Cleave: (to split), past cleaved (1 syl.), or clef (obsolete forms "claf" and "clof"). "past part. cleaved or cleft (obs. "cloven"). "Clave" (split) occurs often in the Bible (Acts xvii. 34). "Cloven" is used, as an adj., as "cloven foot," "cloven tongues."

Cleft. A crack. (Old Eng. cleafa, verb cláf [an], to cleave.)

Clem'atis, plu. clem'atises not klémáy'tís. "Traveller's Joy," "Virgin's Bower," "Old Man's Beard," "White Vine." (The "e" is long in the Latin and Greek words.)

Latin clémátis; Greek klémátis (from kléma, a vine twig). "Traveller's Joy," because it decks the hedges in autumn. "Virgin's Bower," because it climbs and overhangs, bower-like. "Old Man's Beard," because it looks like grey hair. "White Vine," because it is a "vine" and bears a whitish flower.

Clemency, plu. clemencies, kléme'nsíz. Gentleness, mercy, -cy, suffix to abstract nouns. (Lat. Clementia, clemens, mild.)

Clench, clinch. "Clench" (to grasp), as "he clenched my hand"; (to settle), as to "clench an argument." Clencher, a settler, a finishing stroke, as "that was a clencher." "Clink," to turn a nail, to rivet. We use both words.

Dutch klinken, to rivet; Danish klinke, to clinch.

Clerestory, kler'rís.tó.ry. Corruption of the French clérístère, and generally called clear-storey.

Clergy (no plu.). A noun of multitude. (French clergé.)

Cler'gy-man, plu. clergy-men. One of the clergy. (R. xi.)

Clerical, klér'i kal. Pertaining to the clergy.

Old Eng. clerca or clerc, a priest; Latin clérus, cléricus; Greek klérós, a lot or heritage. The "church" is God's heritage (1 Peter v. 3), and the priestly tribe was "God's lot."

Clerk, klurk, a clergyman; klark, a church servant, &c.

Old Eng. clere, a priest; Latin clérus; Greek klérós.

Clever, klév' er, clever-er (comp.), clever-est (super.) See Cleaver.

Old Eng. gledw, talented, changed to glé. wd, corrupted to clever.

Clew. A hint. (Old Eng. cleowen, clieve, clieve or cîowe.)

Latin globus, a ball of thread, by which strangers were guided through labyrinths. Incorrectly spelt clue.

Cliff, clef, cleft, clift.

Cliff. A hill by the sea.

Clef (of Music), q.v. "Cleft or Clift, a fissure, a crack.

In the Bible "cliff," "clift," and "cleft," a fissure, are used indifferently. "I will put thee into a clift of a rock" (Exod. xxxiii. 22); "To dwell in the cliffs of the valleys" (Job xxx. 6); "Thou art in the clefts of the rock" (Cant. ii. 14).

 The distinction should be preserved thus:

Cliff, cliffs (of the sea); clef, clefts (of Music).

Cleft, clefts (fissure); cleft (cut), as "cleft wood."

"Cliff" or "Cleft" (a fissure), Old Eng. cleafa, a cleft, clifith, splits.
Climate, kli\'mät; climactic, kli.mä.t'ik (adj.) (i short in Lat.)

French climat; Latin clima, clímatis; Greek klima, a heavenly zone. Ancient geographers divided the globe into 60 parts called "climates," 30 north and 30 south of the Equator.

Clin'max, plu. cli'maxes; Cliqua'teric, a crisis; Cliqua'terical.

Latin climax, cli. mà'terical; Greek klimax, a ladder.

Climb, past climbed [clomb], past part. climbed, climb-ing, climb'er, klim, klimed (1 syl.), klime'-ing, klime'er (klôme).

("Clomb" and "clamb" [past] are still used in poetry.)
Old Eng. climb[an], past clamb (plu. clumb[on]), past part. clomben.

Clime. A region or tract having its characteristic climate.
Latin clíma; Greek kli'ma. (See Climate.)

Clinch, to fix, as to "clinch a nail." Cliché, to grasp (q.v.)

Dutch klinken; Danish klinke, to rivet.

Cling, past clung [clang], past part. clung; cling'-ing, cling'er not clinging, cling-er, to adhere firmly.

"Finger" (fin'ger), "Clinger" (klung'er). The root of "finger" is fin or fín, to seize, and therefore the division of the word is fin'ger. The root of "clinger" is cling, and hence the division of the word is cling'er.

Old Eng. cling[an], past clangi, past part. clungan, to cling.

Clip, clipped (1 syl.) or clipt, clip-p'-ing, clip-p'er. (Rule i.)
Old Eng. clyp[an], past chypte, past part. clypt, to clip or clasp.

Clique (French), clee; cliquey, clee-k'y; cliqu-ish, clee-k'ish.

A clique is an exclusive "set" of similar rank or tastes.

Cloak. An outer garment. (O. E. cláth, a covering, and -ock dim.)

Clock, a time-piece. (Old Eng. cloegge; Low Lat. clocca or cloca.)

Clod, clodd-ish (Rule i.) Clodhopper, a rustic, a peasant.

Old English clód, a clod, a stone; Danish klods, blocks, clods.

Clog, clogged (1 syl.), clogg'-ing, clogg'y, clogg'-ness. (R. i., xi.)

Old Eng. clot, a log; Welsh cloigen, anything tied to another.

Clois'ter (of a cathedral), clois'tered (2 syl.), clois'tering.

Old Eng. clisstra, a cloister; clisstor, an enclosure; Latin claustrum.

Close, kloč (noun), kloče (verb), to shut, a place shut in.

Closed, klözd; clos-ing, klöze'-ing; clos-er, klöze'-er;
close-ly, kloče'-ly; close-ness, klöce'-ness; close handed,
clos-er, kloč'er (comp.), clos-est, kloč'est (sup.) R. xix.

Old Eng. clusa, close, a prison; Latin claustrum (verb claudo, to shut).

Closet, kloč'et. A little enclosure. (Close and -et diminutive.)

Clot, cłott-ed, cłott-ing, cłott-y. A lump, to conglute. (R. i.)

Cloth, klôth (noun); clothe, klôthe (verb); clothes, klôthz.

Clothes, klôthz, garments. Clothe, to dress in garments.
AND OF SPELLING.

Clothes-brush, clöze-brush; clothes-basket, clöze-bas-ket.
Clothe, past and p.p. clothed (1 syl.) or clad, cloth-ing.
Clothier, klöthe'-yer. A dealer in clothes, an outfitter.
Old Eng. cloth, cloth; clöth, a garment: clöth(ian), to clothe.
Cloud, cloud’y, cloud’i-er (comp.), cloud’i-est (super.), cloud’i-ly, cloud’i-ness. The vapours of the air amassed (Rule xi.)
Welsh cloter, a heap or pile; Old Eng. clid, a heap, a hill.
Clove. A spice, a division of a root of garlic, &c. In Bot., a bulb.
"Clove" (a spice), French clou, a nail; Latin clavus.
"Clove" (of garlic), Old Eng. clufe (from clU/lan), to cleave.
Cloven. Divided, as "cloven foot," "cloven tongues of fire."
Cloy, cloyed (1 syl.), cloy-ing, cloy-less. To fill to loathing (R.xiii.)
Danish klöge, to retch, to feel sick.
Club, clubbed (1 syl.), clubb-ing, clubb-ist. (Rule i.)
"Club" (a cudgel), Welsh clob a knob, clopa a club stick.
"Club" (a society), Germ. gelübde, a body of men united by a sacred vow.
Clue. Shakespeare uses this word (All's Well, d.c., i. 2), but clew is better. (See Clew.)
Clum'sy, clum'si-er (comp.), clum'si-est (super.), clum'si-ness, clum'si-ly. Awkward, not natty. (Rule xL)
Old Eng. clom, a bond; clum-sy, as if one's hands were tied.
Clyster. An injection for medical purposes.
Latin clus'ter; Greek klus'ter, a syringe (klus'o, to wash).
Co-. The Latin prefix con, with the n dropped. It stands before a vowel or h, as coalesce, cohabit. Before "o" it is separated by a hyphen, as co-operate. With a hyphen it is used before any letter: as co-mates, co-partner. In Mathematics it means the complement, as co-sine, co-tangent, &c. (See Con-) Co. Contraction of Company: as "Smith and Co."
Coach, köčh. A close carriage with front and back seats.
French coche; Latin carrē(a), a calash.
Coadjutor, fem. coadjutrix, ko'.adju'tor, &c., a helper.
Latin co [con] adjūtōr (juvo, to help), a fellow-helper.
Coagulate, ko-ag'ulate (to clot), coag’ulat-ed, coag’ulat-ing, coag’ulat-or, coag’ulat-ive (Rule xix.), co-ag’ulat’ion, coag’ulant, coag’ulum, coag’ulable, coag’ulabil’ity.
Latin co-agulāre, to curd; coagulātio, coagulātus, coagulānum.
Coal, köle. A black mineral used for fuel.
Collier, köl’yer. A ship for conveying coals, a coal labourer.
Old Eng. col or col. The a of "coal" is to compensate for the accent.
Coalesce, ko'ə.ləs' (to assimilate), coalesced, ko'ə.ləst'; coalescing, ko'ə.ləs'ing; coalescent, ko'ə.ləs'ent; co'alescence; coalition, ko'ə.lish'on; coalition-ist.

Lat. co [con] alseco, to grow closer and closer together (alo, to cherish).

Coarse, kor'se not ko'ərse (gross). Course (a corpse). Course (q.v.).

Coarser (comp.), coarsest (super.), coarse-ly, coarse-ness.

Old Eng. gorst (rough), as in goose-berry, cos-lettuce; Ursinum, or Ursinum, a coarse onion (corrupted to Latin allium ursinum).

"Corse," a poetical form of Corpse. "Course" (a process, a chase). French course; Latin cursus, a course.

Coast, köst, land lying next the sea. Coastwise not coastways.

French coste now côte; Low Lat. costéra, Lat. costa, a rib or side.

Coat, köte, coat-ed, coat-ing; coatée, kötee, a half-coat.

French cotte; Germ. kütte; Ital. cotta. (Our word is ill-spelt.)

Coat-of-mail, plu. coats-of-mail, not coat-oj-mail.

Coax, ko'æs; coax-ed, ko'æd; coax-ing, coax-ing-ly, coax-er.

Welsh coor, to coax; cocru, to fondle: French cacasse, funny.

Cobble, kob'bəl (to botch); cobbled, kob'bəld; cobbler, kob'ler; cobbling; kob'ling; cobbling-ly (double b, root cob, R. i.)

Welsh cob, a thump; cobio, to thump; coblyn, a thumper.

Portuguese, "the hooded snake;" capello, a hood.

Cob'web; cobwebbed, kob'webd; cobweb-bing, cob'webby.

(The double "b" would be contrary to Rule iii., but the word was originally joined with a hyphen.)

Cob or cop, a spider; as Old Eng. atter-cop the poison-spider; Dutch spinne-kop; Chaldee kopi; a cobweb.

Coca, kö'-kək (a narcotic). Cocoa, kō'kə (a nut), or substance prepared from the Cacao (kə.kə) plant:

"Coca," the dried leaf of the Erythroxylon Coca, of Peru.
"Cocoa," the fruit of the Theobroma Cacao (West Indies).

Cochineal, kōch'ineel not kōch'i.neel. Crimson-dye-stuff.

Spanish cochinilla, the wood louse; French cochenille, cochineal.

Cochlea, kōk'le.ək (part of the ear); Cochlear, kōk'le.ar (L. Bot.)

Cochleary, kōk'le.ər.i. Spiral, like a shell.

Cochleate, kōk'le.ət; cochleat-ed, kōk'le.ət'ed. (R. xix.)

Latin cochlēa; Greek kochlias, a snail's shell.

Cock, fem. hen; cock'erel, fem. pullet. Barn-door fowls.

Cock and hen are also gender-words: as

Cock-bird, fem. hen.-bird; cock-sparrow, hen-sparrow; cock-pheasant, hen-pheasant; moor-cock, moor-hen; peacock, pêa-hen; turkey-cock, fem. turkey; cock-lobster; hen-lobster. Woodcock is both mas. and fem.

Old Eng. cox or coc, and hen or henn. French coq, poule.

("Pullet," like "beef," "mutton," "veal," etc., shows that the Norman lords retained their names for the "meats," while the Saxon serfs retained theirs for the living animals which they tended.

Cockade (2 syl.) A livery worn on the hat. (French cocarde.)

Cockatrice, kôk'ät.ris (French cocatrice).

Cockchafer, kôk'chafe.r. The May-bug. (Old Eng. ceasfor.)

Cockle, kôk'kl. The corn-rose. (Old Eng. coecel, the darning.)

Cockle, kôk'kl. Shell-fish. (Latin cochléa, Greek kochlēa.)

Cockle, kôk'kl; cockled, kôk'led; cockling. To pucker.

French re-coquiller, to curl up, dog's-ear, or cockle.

Cockroach, kôk'róch. A black beetle. (Old Eng. hroce.)

Cockscomb (a plant). Coxcomb, a flop. Both kôz'kome.

The licensed jesters were called coxcombs, because they wore a "cock's comb" in their caps. Spelling incorrect.

Coddle, kôd'kl. To parboil, to pamper; one pampered.

Coddled, kôd'kld; coddling, kôd'ling; coddler, kôd'ler.

Coddling. A young cod.

Old English -ing, "offspring of," "young of."

Codlin. An apple fit for coddling or cooking (-in not -ing).

Latin coctilius, fit for roasting or baking. Old Eng. coe-appel, the cooking apple. "Cod" (the fish) is a corruption of Gad[us], Lat. the codfish; "haddock" is another form of the same word.

Côde (of laws), codex, kô'dex (Latin). An ancient manuscript.

Codicil, kôd'i.śi, a supplement to a will (Lat. codicillus, a little book); codicillary, kôd'i.śi.rij (adj. of codicil).

Codify, kôd'i.fyz; codifies, kôd'i.fize; codified, kôd'i.fide; codifying, codifi-ation, kô'di.śi.ka'shun; codist, kô'di.dist, one who reduces laws to a "code." R. xix.

Latin cōdex, a volume (from cāudex, the stock of a tree), books being at one time made of boards (from cædo, to fell).

Coehorn, kô'horn. A military projectile. (See Cohorn.)

Coequal, kô'é.qual, coequal-ly; coequality, kô.e.quol'ē.ty.

Latin co [con] aequalis, [all] alike equal.

Coerce, kôr'se'; coerced, kôr'st'; coerc-ing, kôr'sing; coerc-er, kôr'ser; coerc-ion, kôr'shun; coerc-ive, kôr's.śi; coercive-ly; coerc-ible, kôr'si.bl'. R. xix.

Latin coeréo, co [con] arco, to drive or press together. The word "compel" (com-pello) means the same thing.

Coessential, kô'ś.śen'shul, same in essence; coessential-ly; coessential-ity, kô'ś.śen'shul'ē.ty, coessential state.

Latin co [con] essentialis, partaking of the same essence.
Coeternal, ko\’e.\textit{ter}n'al, coeternal-ly; coeternity, ko\’e.\textit{ter}n’-\textit{ti}ty.
Latin co\{con\}\textit{ter}num, co\{con\}\textit{ter}nitas, equally eternal, &c.

Coeval, ko\’e.\textit{val}, coeval-ly. (Latin co\{con\}\textit{ven}um, equal ages.)

Coexecutor, fem. coexecutrix, ko\’e.\textit{ek}”\’\textit{utor}, ko\’e.\textit{ek}”\’\textit{trix}.
Latin co\{con\}\textit{e}\textit{c}\textit{c}\textit{u}\textit{t}or, co\{con\}\textit{e}\textit{c}\textit{c}\textit{u}\textit{t}rix, joint executor with [another].

Coexist, ko\’e.\textit{exist}’; coexist’-ed, coexist’-ing, coexist’-ent, coexist’-ence not coexist’-ant, coexist’-ance.
Latin co\{con\}\textit{exist}ere, to exist at the same time (followed by with.)

Coextend, ko\’e.\textit{extend}’ (to extend equally); coextend’-ed, coextend’-ing, coextension, ko\’e.\textit{ten}’\textit{shun} (Rule xxxiii.), coextensive, ko\’e.\textit{ten}’\textit{sv}’; coextensive-ly, coextensive-ness.
Latin co\{con\}\textit{ten}d, supine -\textit{ten}sum, co-extensivus, co-extensio.

Coffee, kof’fee. The berry of the Coff’ea arab’ica, from Caffa or Kaffa, a province of Abyssinia.

French cafe; Spanish cafe; Italian caffe; Danish kaffe.

Coffer, kof’fer (a chest), coffer-ing; coffered, kof’ferd.

 Coffin, kof’fin; coffin-ing, coffin ed, kof’finn.
(The double “f” is French, our chief source of error.)

Old Eng. cofa, a box; Low Lát. cafëra or cafra; Ital. cifano; Latin cophysus; Greek kophinos, a basket.

Cog-(prefix). The Latin con- before the derivations of nascor, nosco, and nomen; as cognate, cognition, cognomen.

Cog (of a wheel), to trick; cogged (1 syl.), cogging. Cog, a boat.

“Cog” (of a wheel), Welsh cocos, cogs of a wheel.

“Cog” (to trick), Welsh coegio, to trick; cog, a trickster.

Cogent, ko\’e.\textit{jeilt}, cogent-ly; cogen-cy. Urgent, urgently, urgency.
Latin cogens, cogen\textit{sis}, co\{con\}\textit{ag}o, to urge together.

Cogitate, ko\’it\textit{ate} (to think), cog\textit{it}’-ed, cog\textit{it}’-ing, cog\textit{it}’ative (Rule xix.), cogitative-ly, cog\textit{it}’ation, cogitable.
Latin cogitare, supine -\textit{at}\textit{um} (to think); cogitation, cogitantatis.

Cognac, kön’yühl, not cogniac. The best French brandy.
So called from Cognac, in Charenté. (French cognac.)

Cognate, related on the mother’s side; Agnate, on the father’s.

Cognation, relationship on the mother’s side.

Agnation, relationship on the father’s side.

An uncle on the father’s side is an agnate, because he bears the same surname; an uncle on the mother’s side is a cognate only, he is related by birth, but does not bear the same surname, or belong to the same “gens.”

Latin co\{con\}\textit{noscâ}, to know for the first time.

“To recognise,” is to know not for the first time, to recall.
(These words ought not to be spelt with a “z.” Rule xxxi.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Cognoscente, plu. cognoscenti, kög’nössen.ti, kög’nöss-en’ti. One learned in art. (Italian, from the Latin cognoscére.)

Cognomen, plu. cognomens, kög.nö’men not kög’nömen. Latin cog [con] nomen, a name with [your personal name].

Cohabit, ko.hab’it. To live together not in a married state. Cohabit-ed, cohab-it-ing; cohabitation, ko.hab’i.ta’shun. (“ed,” after “d” or “t” makes a separate syllable.)

Latin co [con] häbito, to dwell together; co-habita-tio.

Coheir, fem. coheirress, ko.air, ko.ai’ress. Cohere, ko.heer’ (q.v.)

“Coheir” (joint heir), Latin co [con] hæres, heir with [others].

(Only five words have the initial “h” mute: they are heir, hour, honest, honour, and humour.)

Coheir, ko.heer’ (to stick together), cohered’ (3 syl.), cohér’-ing; cohér’-ence; cohér’-ency; cohér’-ent, cohér’-ent-ly. (R.xix.)

Cohesion, ko.he’zhun; cohesive, ko.he’ziv, cohesive-ly, cohesive-ness; cohe’sible; cohesibility, ko.he’zi bil’i.ty.

Latin co [con] hærere, sup. cohaesum, to stick together; co-hærentia.

Cohorn, ko.horn. This is the French spelling, and is better than coehorn. A mortar invented by Baron de Cohorn (Coe-horn) of Holland, called the Dutch Vauban (1641-1704).

Cohort, ko’hort not ko’ort. A body of soldiers. (Lat. colhors.)

Coin, koyn; coined, koyn’d; coin-er, coin-ing, coin-age. French coin, a wedge; Latin cuneus, a die for stamping money.

Coincide, ko.in’side” (to agree), coincid’-ed, coincid’-ing; coincidence, ko.in’si.den.se not ko.in.si’.den.se; coincid-ent, ko.in’si.dent; coincident-ly (simultaneously).

Latin co [con] incidère, to fudge in together (cadère, to fall).

Coke. Coal deprived of its volatile matters by heat.

Old English coilk, refuse, the core of an apple, &c.

Col. (Latin prefix). Con before “1” is so written. (See Con.)

Colander, koł’an.der. A strainer. (Latin cõlans, straining.)

“Colátor[ium],” not “colander[ium],” is the Latin word.

Colchicum, koł’ke.kum. Meadow-saffron, Naked Lady.

From Colchis, on the Euxine sea, where it flourishes. “Naked Lady,” because the flowers are without leaves.

Cold, cold-er (comp.), cold-est (superl.); cold-ish, rather cold.

Old Eng. cold or cold, cold. (ish added to adj. is diminutive)

Coleopter, plu. coleoptera, koł’e.op’’ter, koł’e.op’’ter-räh, also Coleopteran, koł’e.op’’ter-án, beetles, &c. Coleopterous(adj.)

Gk. kölöös ptérón, sheath-wing. Insects with sheaths to their wings.
Colic not Cholic, a bowel attack. Choleric, kol'érık, passionate.

Latin colikus, the colic (from Greek kolon, the intestine).

"Choleric," Latin choléricus (from Greek cholé, bile).

Coliseum, kol'izë́um. The largest amphitheatre in Rome. The same spelling is kept in "Rue de Colisée," Paris.

The Rom. "Coloseum" was so called from the "Colossus" or gigantic statue of Nero which stood near it, as well as from its great size.

Collapse, kól'lapses', not ko.lapses'; collapsed, kol'lapsed'; collapsing, kol'laps'ing.

Latin col [con] labor, lapsus, to sink, or tumble all together.

Collar (for the neck). Choler, kól'er, anger.

"Collar," Old Eng. ceor, from ceole, the throat; Lat. collum, the neck.

"Choler," Latin cholérca, from chole, bile, anger.

Collate, kól'late not ko.late'; collat-ed, collat-ing. (Rule xix.)

Collation, kól'la'shun not "Colat-ion" (a very common error); collat'or (R. xxxvii.); collat'able (an error in spelling); the Latin collatáre means "to make wide." Collat'ible is the proper derivative of conferre, collatum.

Latin con-ferro, supine col-lárum, to bring together, to compare.

Collateral, kól'lät'aral not ko.lät'erall; collat'erall-ly.

Latin col [con] laterális, indirect (col látus, látiris, the side), running on the side, proceeding from one side.

Colleague, kól'lég (noun), kol.leeg' (verb); colleagueed, kol.leeg'd'; colleague- ing, kol.leeg'ing. To league together. French collègue; Latin collega (from con lego, to gather together).

Collect, kól'leet (noun), kol.leet' (verb), collect'ed, collect'ing, Collect'ive, collect'ive-ly, collect'ive-ness; collect'ible, Collection, kól.lee' shün not ko.lee' shün (Rule xxxiii.)

Lat. col [con] legére, -lectum, to gather together; collectio, collectivus.

Coll'lege not college; collegian, kól.leé'ji'an; collegiate, kól-leé'ji'ate. A society, a superior school institution.

Latin collégium (from col [con] lego, to gather together).

Colley or collie, a cur. Cooley or collie, a porter (East Indies).

Collier, kól'yar; collie-y, kól'yéry. (See Coal).

Collision, kól.лизh'än not ko.lizh'än. A striking together.

Latin colliiso (from colli odio, col [con] ludo, to hurt mutually by "striking together"; so elisio (e ludo), to strike out).

Collocate, kól'ló.kate; collocat-ed, collocat-ing; collocation, kól'.lo.kay'shün, A setting side by side. (Rule xxxiii.)

Latin collocátiO from col [con] locáre, to place together.

Collodion, kól'lo.ði.on not ko.lo'di.on nor ko.lo'di.um. A solution of gun-cotton in ether, used in photography, &c.

Greek kolla eidos, glue-like. It was first used in surgery, because in drying it left a gluey film over wounds. (An ill-formed word.)
Colloquial, kol.iu'.qu't.al not kol.lö'.qui.al; collo'quial-ly.

Collo'quial-ism, form of expression in common use.

Colloquy, plu. colloques, köl.lö.kwät, köl.lö.kwiz.

Colloquist, köl.lö.kwist. A speaker in a dialogue.

Collude, to conspire in a fraud; collusion, kol.lu'.zhun (R. xxxiii.)

Collusive, kol.lu'.siv, collu'sive-ly, collu'sive-ness;

Collusory, kol.lu'.zor.ry. Of the nature of a fraud.

Colocyth, kol'.ö.synth (only one l). The bitter-apple.

Colon, köl.lön. The largest intestine. A stop made thus (·).

Colonel, ker'.nel; colonel-cy, ker'.nelisy (-cy denotes "rank"); colonel-ship, ker'.nel.ship (-ship denotes "tenure of office,"). In "Hudibras" we have "colonelling" (4 syl.)

French colonel (from colonne, a column), a commander of a column or regiment of soldiers; till the reign of Francois I. called capitan-colonel. Low Latin colonnitus.

Colonade, köl'.ö.nade. A covered walk with columns.

Colonial, köl.lö.nial (not colo'nial), belonging to a colony.

Colophony, plu. colophons, kol'.ö fon. The printer's impress at the end of a book. (Greek kolophón, a finishing-stroke.) Colophon, a city of Ionia, the inhabitants of which were such good horsemen that they could turn the issue of a battle; hence the phrase colophónein addēre (kolofóνα ἀπειρωθειν), to put a finishing stroke to a matter.

Colossean, kolös.sean or Colisean. The great Roman amphitheatre was called "Coliseum," but as the word is from "Colossus." Colosseum is the better spelling.

Colossal, kolös'.sal (not colossial); colossean, kolös.sean. Lat. colossus; Greek kolossós, kolossatós. The "Colossos of Rhodes" was a gigantic statue of Apollo, near the harbour.

Colour, kul'.er; coloured, kul'.ercd; col'our-able, col'our-ably.

French couleur; Latin color. (Our word is neither Fr. nor Lat.)

Colporteur, kol'.por.teur, a book hawker. Col'portage (French.)

Colt, fem. filly, both called foal, folc. A young horse or ass.

Old Eng. colt; Lat. filia, a daughter; Old Eng. folc, a foal.

Columbine, kōl.um.bine. A plant, so called from the Latin columba, a dove. The flower resembles a dove's claw.

Columella, kōl.ume'l.ə. The column in the capsule of mosses; the axis of fruits. (Latin columella, a little column.)

Column, kōl.ū.nəm, a pillar. Columnar, kōl.un'mar (adj.)

Latin columna. The adjective columnar is ill-chosen, as the Latin word columnarium means a "tax on columns." The adjective of "columna" is columnātus (columnate).

Colure, plu. colures, kō.l'yərs. Two great circles cutting at right angles the four cardinal points of an artificial globe.

Greek κολυρίων (koloiros, a mutilated tail), these circles are "cut-tailed" or cut by the artificial horizon.

Colza, kōlzə. A variety of cabbage which affords an oil.

French colza; Old English cælw, cole-wort; Flemish kolzaad.

Com- (prefix), for com- before b, m, and p. Also in the English words conflict and comfort, in Lat. "con-ficio," "con-fort[i]s;"

Comatose, kōˌmā.ˈtozə, lethargic; comatous, kōˌmā.təs.

Comate, kōˌmātə, a companion. This word should be commate.

"Comate" (from the Latin comitus), should mean "hairy." If from com and mate, it ought to be joined with a hyphen. (See Co-.)

Comb (b mute), combed, kōməd; comb-ing, kōmˈə.ɪŋ; comb-er.

Old Eng. camb, a comb; Latin cōma, to dress the hair (cōma, hair).

Combat, kōmˈbɑt; combat-ed, combat-ing, combat-ant, combat-ive, kōmˈbɑt.əv; combative-ness. (Rule iii.)

French combattre; Latin *combat*io, to fight together.

Lat. combināre, to combine (from com binus, two and two together).

Combustion, kōmˌbusˈ.təʃən, a burning; combustible, not-able; combustɪbil′ity, combustible-ness, combustīve (R. xxii.)

Latin combustio: combūrēre, sup. combustum, to consume with fire.

Come, past came, past part. came, kōm, kōˈmə; com-ing, com-er (Rule xix.) To arrive at the place where we are; hence A. says to B. "I am coming to pay you a visit." "I am going to pay you a visit," would mean I intend, I am about to...

To come about, to happen: "How did that come about?"

" come at, to get-to, or obtain: "I cannot come-at it."

" come of, to arise from: "What came-of it?"

" come-off, to escape: "We came-off with flying colours."
To come on, to proceed: "The train came-on quickly."
" come out, to publish: "The book came-out last month."
" come over, to get the better of: "You cannot come-over me."
" come round, to recover: "The man will come-round."
" come up to, to amount to: "It comes-up-to 300."
" come upon, to attack: "He came-upon me unawares."

Old Eng. cum[an], past com, past part. cumen; cume, a comer.

Comedy, plu. comedies, kóm'e.diz; Comedian, kóm.e.di.an.
(In Latin and Greek the first two vowels are long; "cómēdus" [short] means "one who eats with you.")

Latin cómedia, cómedus; Greek kómédia, kómados, i.e., kómé ôdê, a village song, an ode sung at a village [fair].

Comely, kum'li. Nice-looking (applied to peasant girls, &c.); comeli-ly, kum'li.líy; comeli-ness, kum'li.níss (R. xvii.)
From come. So in Lat. con-véniens, suitable, &c., is from venio, to come.

Comestible, kóm.ess'.ti.bl (adj.), edible. Comestibles (plu.)
French comestible; Latin comestor, to revel; Greek kómêdo, to revel.
The proper meaning of "comestibles" (edibles) is extra foods, foods in addition to those which form the "meals."

Comet, kóm'.et, a "hairy star"; cometarium, plu. cometaria, kóm'.e.ta.irí'.ré.üm, a machine to show how comets move.

Cometary, kóm'.é.tá.ry (adj.); Commentary, a comment.

Cometography, kóm'.e.to.g'.rí'.fY, treatise on comets.

Latin cómêta (from cóma, hair); Greek kómêta (kómê, hair).
Most comets have some sort of "hairy" light about them; sometimes it forms a "tail," sometimes a "beard," sometimes a "nebula," &c.

Comfit, Comfort; Comfiture, Comforture; Dis- (negative).

Comfit, a seed coated with sugar. Comfort, consolation.

Comfiture, kóm'.fi.tür, preserved fruit (French confiture).

Comfort, kóm'.far.chur, what gives comfort.

Dis-comfit, to rout. Dis-comfort, inquietude.

Dis-comfiture, defeat. Dis-comforture, want of comfort.

Com'fort (to console), com'forted, com'forting, com'forture; com'forter, fem. com'fortress or comforter; com'fort-able, com'fort-ably, com'fortable-ness; com'fort-less, com'fort-less-ly, comfortless-ness, absence of comfort.

"Comfit," French confit; Latin confectus (our "confection").
"Dis-comfit," "dis-comfiture," French déconfîre, déconfiture; Latin dis configo, to unfasten. Both French and English are ill-formed.
"Dis-comfort." French déconfîre; Latin dis con (fortis, strong).
"Comfort," French conforter; Latin "confortâri," to be strong.
(There is no reason why "con" should be changed to "com" before it and fort, and it violates all analogy. At all events, "comfit" should be confit, a "confection.")

Latin cômicus (the o long); Greek kônítös. (See Comedy.)

Coming, köm·ing, approaching. (See Come.)

Comma, plu. commas, köm·má.z. A stop made thus (.). Go‘ma, q.v.

Latin comma; Greek komma, a part cut off (koptó to lop).

Command, köm,mând; command’·able, command’·ant, command’·atory, command’·er, command’·ment. To order.

French commandé, commandant, commander, commandement; Latin con·mandare; to give orders with [others].

Commemorate, köm.mén·or·á.te. (Double m followed by one n.)

Commem’orat-ed, commem’orat·ing, commem’or·ation.

Commem’orative, köm.mern‘o·rát·iv; commem’orable.

Latin com [con] mémórae, commemorabilitis, commemoratio, commemorare, to call to mind with [some special act].

Commence, *köm.mén’s*l, to begin; commenced, köm.ménst; commen’s·ing (Rule xix.), commence’·ment (Rule xviii.). (“Comince” would have been better, but as usual we have followed the French, and copied their error.)

Command’, command’·ed, command’·able, command’·ably, command’·able-ness; commen·dation, köm·men·day·shun.

Command’·er, one who praises. Commandator, köm-mén·da·tor, one who holds a living in trust (in commendam).

Commandatory, köm·men·dá·tory, laudatory. Commen·da·tary, one who holds a living in trust (in commendam). (“Commandatory” is often spelt commen·datory, but the distinction should be observed.)

French commander to recommend; Latin com [con] mendáre, to entrust one with [a commission], (mendáre, to give to one’s charge).

Commensurate, köm·men·sú·rate not köm·men’shu·rate; com·men·surate·ly, commen·surate·ness; com·men·surable, commen·surably, commen·surabil’ity, commen·sur·a‘tion.

French commensurable, commensurabilité; Latin com [con] mensu·rare, to measure a thing proportionate with [something else].

Comment, köm·ment (noun), köm·ment (verb). Rule I.

Comment’·ed (R. xxxvi.); comment’·ing (followed by on).

Comment, köm·ment; com·ment·ary. A book of comments.

Commentate, köm·ment·ate, to make comments; com·ment·at-ed, com·ment·at·ing (R. xix.); com·mentator (not -ter), R. xxxvii.; com·mentat’ial, com·menta·tor·ship.

French comment; Lat. comméntarii; to write comments, comméntátus, comméntários, comméntátor (from comméni·sor comméntus, to call to mind many things together, meniscor, i.e., memini, to remember.
AND OF SPELLING.

Commerce, kom.mer.se, trade; commercial, kom.mer.shal (adj.), commercial-ly. (French commerce, commercial.)

Latin con mer eor, to trade with [others], commercium.

Commingle, köm.minj´g´l; commingled (3 syl.), commingling.

Old Eng. meng[an] or meng[ian], to mingle, with the Lat. prefix com.

It would have been better with the English prefix ge-("geminingle").

Commminute, *köm.minit´m.nu*te. To reduce to small pieces, to pulverize. Comm´minit-ed (Rule xxxvi.), comm´minit-ing (Rule xix.); comminution, köm.minu´shun.

Fr. comminution; Lat. com [con] mino, to break into minute parts.

Commis-rate, köm.mis´e.rite, to pity; commis´er-at-ed (R. xxxvi.); commis´er-at-ing (R. xix.); commiseration, köm.mis.´er.uy´shun, pity. (Double m.)

Commiserative, köm.mis.´er.ay.tiv; commiserative-ly.

Commiserable, köm.mis.´er.əb´l, deserving of pity.

French commiseration; Latin commiseratio, to condole with, commiseratio (misereo, to pity; miser, wretched, an object of pity).

Commis-sarry, köm.mis.sər.iz A person employed to provide an army with personal requisites.

Commis-sary-general, köm. mis.sər.iz-ər.e.nəl; chief of the commissaries; commis-sary-ship, office of commissary.

Commis-sariat, köm.mis.sər.i.ət. Commissary department.

Fr. commissaire, commissariat; Late com missarius; Latin com [con] missus, sent with [the army], verb mittto, to send.

Commission, köm.mish´shun; commissioned (3 syl.), commis-sion-ing; commis-sion-er, one authorized.

Fr. commissio; Latin commissio, (com mittto, to send with [orders]).

Committ’, to give in charge; committ’-ed, committ’-ing, committ’-al, committ-able (R. i., R. xxiii.); Commitment.

Committer, one who commits. Committor, the Lord Chancellor when he commits a lunatic to a trustee.

Commix’, commixed, köm.mix´t; commixture, köm.mix´tchur; commix’-ible not-able. (Not of the 1st Lat. conjugation.)

Latin con [con] miscère, supine commixtum, to mix together.

Commmodious, köm.mod´i.əs not köm.mo´dʒus; commo’dious-ly, commo’dious-ness (Lat. commodus, convenient, suitable), commodity, köm.mod.´i.tiz, wares.

Latin commoditas; French commodité, a convenience.

Commodore, köm.mo´d.zor. Commander of a detachment of ships.

Italian comandatore, a commandant; Spanish comandador.
Com'mon, com'moner (comp.), com'monest (super.), com'mon-ly, com'mon-ness; com'mon-able, held in com'mon; com'mon-age, right of pasturing on a com'mon; com'mon-alty, the com'mon people; Com'mon-er, one under the rank of a nobleman; Com'mons, provisions.

House of Commons, plu. Houses of Commons.
Common-councilman, plu. common-councilmen (not -sel).
Commonwealth, kóm.mon.welth. The public good.

French commun; Latin commune, common (munis, tied to duty).
Commotion, kóm.mó.shun not kód.mó.shun. Disturbance.
Commune, kóm.mune (noun), kóm.mune' (verb). Rule l.
Communed' (3 syll.); commün'ing; communion, kóm.mù.ni.on; commu'nity; commu'nicant (of the Lord's Supper).

Commune, public good. Commonwealth, the common people.

French communauté, communual, communion, communisme, communist; Latin communio, communion; communitas.

Communicate, kóm.mu'ni.kate; commün'ieat-ed, commün'ieat-ing (R. xix.), commün'ieat-or (R. xxxvii.); commün'ieat-ive, commün'ieative-ly, commün'ieative-ness; commün'ieatory; communicable, kóm.mu'ni.kü.böl, commün'ieably, commün'ieative-ness, freedom in imparting; communi-cation, kóm.mu'ni.kay' shun; commu'nicable-ly.

Communism, commün'ism. Communistic.
Communistic, commün'ist (noun), commünosti (verb). Rule 1.
Communed' (2 syll.); commün'ing; communism, kóm.mùnism; commu'nist, commün'ist (noun), commünosti (verb).

Companion, kóm.pan'yun; companion-able (not a Lat. word), companionably, companion-ship. (ship Old Eng. postfix, meaning tenure, state, being.)

French compagnon; (cum pennis, under the same flag).
Company, plu. companies, kōm. pā.niz. A party, a firm, &c.
("A firm" is contracted into "Co.," as "Smith and Co." French compagnie (not cum panis [eating] bread together, as is usually given, but cum pennon, under the same flag).

Compare, kōm.pāir'; compared' (2 syl.), compār'-ing, compār'-er (R. xix.)
Comparable, kōm'. pā.rā.b'l, worthy to be compared, followed by to (Lam. iv. 2); kōm.pāir.a.b'l, able to be compared with each other, as "The two things are not comparable," cannot be compared together.

Comparative, kōm'. pār'ra.tiv. In a more or less degree.

Comparison, kōm.pār'ri.siv not comparason.

Latin comparāre (com [con] para, to make or set things together.)
(The "i" of comparison is indefensible; it is the conjugational letter, and transfers the word from comparāre "to compare," to comparāre "to be extant." We are alone in this outrage, which is a great stumbling block to young spellers. Latin comparatio, Italian compartimento, Spanish comparacion, French comparaison.)

Compartment. A special department or part of a machine.
French compartiment, but appartement ! (Latin com pars, partis )

Com'pass, plu. com'passes; com'passed (2 syl.), com'pass-ing.
French compas, verb compassee, to measure; Latin com [con] passus, a stride or pace in common.

Compassion, kōm.pās'h'un; compassion-ate, compassionāt-ed, compassionāt-ing (Rule xix.), compassionāt-ly (Rule xvii.), compassion-able. (French compassion.)
Latin compassio (from con [con] patior, to suffer with [another]).

Compatible, kōm.pat'.i.b'l not -able (not of the 1st Lat. conj.)
Compatible, compat'ibility, compat'ible-ness.
French compatible, compatibilité; Lat. con [con] pātēre, to seek the same thing, not compatūr, to suffer the same thing.

Compatriot, kōm.pā'tr.i.o.t. A fellow patriot. (Ital, compatriotto.)

Compeer', an equal. Compare, kōm.pāir', to judge by comparison.
"Compeer," French compère; Latin compar, a compeer or equal.

Compel' (to force); compelled' (2 syl.); compell'-ing, compell'-er, compell'-able (Rule i.)
Latin compellēre (com [con] pello, to drive together) ("Compellable" is quite incorrect, as it would be derived from compellēre, to address or accost some one. It ought to be "-ible;" and "compel" would be better with double "l.")

Compen'dium, plu. compen'diums or compendia (Latin).

Compensate, kōm'. pen.sāte; com'pensāt-ed, com'pensāt-ing; compensator, kōm'. pen.sā.tor (not -ter, Rule xxxvii.);
compensation, kōm'. pen.say'.shun, amends (Rule xix.);
compensative, kōm'. pen'. sa.tiv; compensative-ly.
Latin compensāre, to make amends, compensātio; French compenser, to compensate, compensation, compensatif.
Errors of Speech

Compete, köm.peet'; compêt-ed, compêt-ing; compêt-er (R.xix.;
Competitor, fem. competitorress, competitorrix, or competitor, köm.peet'.i.ter, köm.peet'.i.ress; competitorly; competitive,
köm.pet'.i.tiv; competitive-ly, by competition;
competition, köm.pe.tish'.un, rivalry in merit.
Latin competitor, competère (com [con] pêlo, to seek with [another]).

Competence or comp'etency, plu. comp'etencies. -tense-cz.
Competent (not competant), able; competent-ly (adv.)
Latin (see above) competenter (adv.), competens, gen.: -entis.

Compile, köm.pile' (to pile or get together), compiled (2 syl.), compil'-ing, compil'-er (R.xix.); compile'-ment (R.xviii.4) French compiler, compilation; Latin compilo, compilatio (from con pûlo, to pile together. Our word "pillage.")
Complicant, köm.play'.sent. Complaisant, köm'.pla.zant'.
Complacent, affable; com'plaisant' (French), courteous.
Complacent-ly, affably; complaisant'-ly, courteously.
Complacency, affability; com'plaisance'(French), courtesy.
Complacency, kom.play'.sen.sy (same as compla'cence).
Latin complacens -centis (com [con] placere), to please altogether.
All the French words [complaisant', &c.] are wrong. If from complacere the -e of the last syl. should be -c. If from complácev[ complácev'as; to pay court to one] the -e of the last syl. should be -c.

Complain', complained' (2 syl.), complain'ing. To find fault.
Complaint': Dissatisfaction expressed in words.
Complain'ant, a plaintiff. Complain'er, one who complains.
French'complainte, compláissant; Latin com [con] plangère, supine plancium, to bemoan with [someone about a grievance].

Complaisant, köm'.pla.zant'. (See Complacent.)

Complement, köm.plee'.ment; compliment, kom'.pli.ment.
Complement. That which completes or supplies a deficiency.
Compliment. An expression of praise or civility.
Compliment'al or compliment'ary. Adj. of complé'ment.
Compliment'al or compliment'ary. Adj. of com'pliment.
Complement'ing. Supplying what completes.
Compliment'ing. Paying a compliment.

"Complement," Latin complementum (com-plère, to complete).
"Compliment," French complément (from Latin complère). In Italian complimento and Spanish complimento, both meanings. French complément, complement; German complement, compliment.

Complete, köm.plleet'; complête-ed, complêt-ing, complêt'er (one who completes), complêt'-er (comp.), complêt-est (supert.), complêt'-ory (R. xix.) (Suffix -ory, Lat. -ori[us] added to adj.), complete-ly, complete-ment, complete-ness (Rule xvii.) Completion, köm.plee'.shun, finish. (Rule xxxiii.)
French completer, complementement; Latin compleo, completum.

Complexed, köm.plexed; complex'ing, complex'ity, complex'edness, kömplex'ed.ness; complication, kom'pli'kay'shun; a mixture of several things.

French complexe; Lat. complexus (com [con] plecto, to twine together).

Complexion, köm.plek'shun. The hue of the face.

French complexion. An old medical term, from the notion that the skin "embraced" or contained a hue corresponding to the humour or element of the body: If the element of the body is fire, the humour is bile, and the hue yellow; if air, the humour is blood, and the hue red; if earth, the humour is black-bile or "melancholy," and the hue tawdry grey; if water, the humour is phlegm, and the hue of the skin dead white. What contains the "key."

Complicate, kom'plik!ate (to involve); comp'licate-ed (R. xxxvi.); comp'licate-ing (Rule xix.); comp'licate-er (Rule xxxvii.).

Complication, köm'plikay'shun. Intricacy.

Complicacy, köm'plik.ä.sy not kom'plik.ä.sy.

Complicative, köm'plik.äтив not kom'plik.äтив.

Latin complicare (com [con] pleco), to fold together, to tangle.

Complicity, köm.plit'sä.ty. Participation [in guilt].

French complicité (complice, an accomplice); Latin complicare.

Compliment, köm'plëment. Complement, köm.plek'ment (q.v.).

"Present my compliments" (salutations), not complements.

Complimenter not -tor. (It is not a Latin word.)

Complot', complott'ed, complo't'ing, complo't'er. (Rule i.)

Comply', complied (2 syl.), complies (2 syl.), compli'er, compli'ance, compli'ant, compli'antly, compli'able, compli'ably, compli'ableness, but comply'ing... (Rule xi.)

Latin complicare (com [con] pleco), to fold with [you], to agree.

It is not from compleo, nor yet from complaco, generally given.

Comp'o'nent not compo'nant. Constituent. (Latin compönens.)

Comport, köm.port, to suit; comported, &c.; comport'able.

Fr. comporter; Lat. comportäre, to carry together (com [con] porto).

Compose, köm.pöze; composed' (2 syl.), compö's'ing, compö's'ible.

Composedly, köm.pö'zed.ly, calmly; compö's'edness (4 syl.)

Composure, köm.pö'zhur. Tranquility. (Rule xix.)

Composition, köm.pö'zhish'.on. A putting together.

Composer, köm.pö'zer. One who composes.

Composite, kom'pözit; not simple, mixt.

Composite, kom'pöz.i.те. An order of plants.

Compound, kom'-pound (noun), kom'-pound (verb). Rule l.

Compound’-ed (-ed forms a separate syl. after d or t).

Compound’-able (Rule xxiii); compound’-er.
Latin componderāre (com [con] pondere), to weigh out [different things for a mixture]. (Not from componēro, to put together.)

Comprehend’ , comprehen’sible, comprehen’sibly.

Comprehension, kōm'-pre-hen'shun. (Rule xxxiii.)

Comprehens’ive, comprehens’ively.
Latin comprehendere, sup. -hensum (com [con]prehendo, to grasp).

Compress, kom'-press (noun), kōm'-press (verb). Rule l.

Compress’, compressed’ (2 syl.), compress’-ing. To press close; compress’-ive, compress’-ible (not-able), compress’-ibility.

Compression, kōm'-presh'un; compressure, kōm'-presh'ār.

Compress-or (not a). That which serves to compress. (R. xxxvii.)
Latin compressio, compressor, comprima, sup. compressum (cum [con] premeto, to press or squeeze together).

Compri,se , comprised’ (2 syl.), comprised’-ing. To include; comprised’ (2 syl.), compris’-ing, compris’-al. (Rule xix.)
French compris, past part. of comprendre; Lat. comprehensum, sup. of comprehendo (cum [con]prehendo, to seize hold of).

Compromise, kōm’-prom’iz* not kom’prom’iz, com’promised (3 syl.), com’promis’-ing, com’promis’-er. (Rule xix.)
French compromis; Lat. compromissum (cum [con] pro mitto, to send forth with [a bond]; i.e., to give bond to abide by arbitration).

Compt, count, an account (nearly obsolete); comptroller, kōn’-trol’er. An officer to control or verify accounts.

French compter, an account; Lat. comptūlo [com’tl], to compute.

Compulsion, kōm’-pul’shun (force); compulsive, kōm’-pul’siv; compulsive-ly, compulsive-ness. (Rule xvii.)

Compulsory, kōm’-pul’so’ry (adj.), compulsor’-ily (adv.)
Latin compulsus, sup. compulsum (cum [con] pell(o), to drive together).

Compunction, kōm’-punk’shun. A pricking of conscience.

Compunctionous, kōm’-punk’shus*. Having quarms of conscience.
Lat. compunctio (cum [con] puncto, to prick with [remorse]).

Compute’ (2 syl.), comput’-ed, comput’-ing, comput’-er, comput’-able (Rule xix); computation, kōm’-pu’tay’-shun.
French compute, computation; Lat. computāre, to compute.

Comrade, kōm’-rad. Companion. (French camarade.)

From camēra, a chamber, one who occupies the same chamber. Our word has quite lost sight of the true meaning.

Con- also co-, cog-, col-, com-, and cor-. (Latin prefix.)

Co-, before a, e, i, o, and u. Also before any letter with a hyphen, as “co-mate,” “co-partner,” “co-trustee.” In Mathematics = complement, as “co-sine,” “co-secant.”
AND OF SPELLING.

Cog-, before nascor, nosco, nomen, with their derivatives.

Col-, before l, as “collect.”

Com-, before b, m, p, and u. Also with fit and fort.

Con-, before c, s; d, l, t; g, v, f (except “fit” and “fort”),

Cor-, before r, as “correct.”

Con.: As pro and con, “for” and “against” [a proposal]. In this sense, it is a contraction of contra (Latin) against.

Con (to learn by repetition), conned, kōnd; conning (Rule i.)

Old English connan or cunnan, to know; con, can.

Concatenate, kōn.kāt.ē.nate; concatenat-ed, concatenat-ing.

Concatenation, kōn.kāt.ē.nay”.shun. To link together.

(In Latin the “e” of all these words is long.)

Latin concatenare, to chain together (catēna, a chain). Rule xix.

The inside of a C is “concave,” the outside is “convex.”

Con’cave; concaved, kōn’.kāved; concav-ing, kōn’.kāve’.ing

(Rule i.) Concavity, kōn.kāv’.ty. The reverse is Convex’ty.

(When put in opposition the accent is thrown on the final syllable, as glasses for short sight are concave’, for far sight they are convex’.)

Latin concāvus, altogether hollow; concāvitas (cāvus, a cave).

Conceal, kōn.seel’; concealed’ (2 syl.), conceal’-er, conceal’-able.

Latin conceāre, to hide altogether (cēlo, to hide).

Concede, kōn.seed’. One of the seven verbs in -cede. The three in -cede are “exceed,” “proceed,” and “succeed.” (R. xxvii.)

Conceded, kōn.seed’.ed; conceding, kōn.seed’-ing (Rule xix.)

Concession, kōn.sees’.shun. Something conceded.

French conceder; Latin con-cēdo, to go with [you], to yield to you.

Conceit, kōn.seet’, vanity. Conceived, kōn.seet’.ed, vain. (Rule xxxvi.) Conceived-ly, conceived-ness. (Italian concetto.)

Latin conceātio, sup. conceptum, a conceived [opinion of oneself].

Conceive, kōn.seep’ (to suppose, to comprehend, &c.); conceived’

(2 syl.), conceiv-ing, conceiv’-er, conceiv’-able (Rule xiii.), conceiv-ably, conceiv’-ableness (Rule xix.)

Conception, kōn.seep’.shun. Notion, impregnation.

(“ceives” take e first, “lieves” take i first. Rule xxviii.)

Latin conceātio, conceātio, (con capio, to take with [you]).

Concentrate, kōn’.sen.trātē (to bring together); concentrat-ed, concentrat-ing (R. xix.); concentration, ”tray”.shun.

Concentrative, kōn’.sen’.tra.triv; concentrative-ness.

Italian concentrare, to concentrate; concentrazione, concentration.
Concent’tre, to bring to a point. Consent’er, one who consents.
Concent’re, kön.sen’ter; concent’red, kön.sen’terd.
concentrating, kön.sen’tring not kön.sen’t.ering.
concent’re, concent’red; concentricity, kön’sen.tris’i.ty.
French concentré; Latin concentricus (con centrum, common centre).
Conception, kön.sep’shun. Notion, impregnation.
Conceptrive, kön.sep’t.tv. (See Conceive.)
Concern’ (noun), affair; (verb) to take interest in something.
Concernéd, kön.sernd’. Moved with interest or sympathy.
French concerner; Latin concernère, to separate (con cerno, to separate and put together [what belongs to each]).
Concert, kön.sert’ (noun), kon.sert’ (verb). ‘Rule 1.
Concert’; a musical entertainment. Concert’, to scheme.
Concerto, plu. concertos, not concertes. (Rule xlii.)
Concertina, plu. concertinas, kön.ser’ti.nah, &c.
Concert-ed, kön.sert’ed; concert-ing, kön.sert’ing.
French concert; Ital. concerto; Lat. con certare, to strive together.
Concession, kön.ses’s-ón, a grant; concession-ist, a grantee.
Concession-ary, kön.ses’s’ón.ry; concessory, kön.ses’sö.ry.
("Concession-ery" would be more correct.)
Latin concessio and concessum, a concession (con cedere, to give way).
Conchifera, kön.kif’.e rah. The mussel, oyster, and other bivalves.
A single specimen is a Conchifer, kön’.ki’fer.
Conchoidal, kön.ko’dal. Having a concave and convex surface, like a bivalve shell. (Gk. kogχή eidos, cockle-like.)
Conchologist, kön.kol’o gist. One-skilled in conchology.
Greek kogχή lógos, shell lore; Latin concha; a shell.
Conciliate, kön.sil’late, to propitiate; concil’lated (R. xxxvi.); concil’lated-ing (R. xix.). Conciliatory, kön.sil’i.tor; -trix;
Conciliation, kön.sil’i.shun. Reconciliation.
Latin conciliator, conciliatrix, conciliatio, conciliare, to reconcile (con cilo, to call together; hence to unite or bring together).
Concise, kön.sis’ (brief), concise’-ly, concise’-ness, brevity.
Latin concises (conclido, to cut small; con caedo, to cut entirely).
Conclude, kön.klû’ed; conclûd’-ed (Rule xxxvi.). conclûd-ing, conclûd’-er (R. xix.). To determine, to end, &c.
Conclusion, kön.klû’shun; the end’ (R. xxxiii.); Conclusive, kön.klû’siv; conclusive’-ly, conclusive’-ness (Rule xvii.)
Latin conclúsiō, verb conclúdo, supine conclúsum, to conclude (from con cláudo, to shut-up altogether, hence to finish).
Concoct', concoct'-er (not -tor); concoction, kön.kok'shun. Latin concoctio, con-coquo, to cook together, to concoct.

Concom'itant, concom'itance, concom'itant-ly, concom'itancy. Latin concomitans, -tantis (con cómìtāre, to go often together).

Concord, kön'.kord (noun), kön.kord' (verb). Rule I.

Concord'ance (not kon'.kor.dance). An index of words.

Concord'ant, concord'ant-ly, concord'ancy.

Concord'at. A convention between a king and the pope. Latin concordā; concordāre, to agree (con corda, hearts together). French concordance, concordant, concordier, to agree.

Con'course, not con'cours. (Fr. concours, a throng; Ital. concorso.)

Concrete, kön'.kreet (noun), kon.kreet' (verb). Rule I.

Concrete-ed (R. xxxvi.), concret-ing, concret-ive (R. xix.)

Concretion, kön.kree'shun. A concreted mass, union of parts.

Concrete (noun), a cement; adj. having a real existence, not abstract. White is abstract, white paper concrete.

French concret, concrétion; Latin concrētum, concrētio, a concretion (from con cresco, supino cretum, to grow together).

Concubine, kön'.ku.byne. A woman who acts as a wife.

Concubinage, kön.ku'.bin.age; concubinal, kön.ku'.bin.al. Latin concubinus, a concubine (con cūbāre, to lie together).

Concupiscence, kön.ku'.pis.sense, lust; concup'iscent, lustful. (The -se- is the Latin frequentative or intensifying prefix.)

Latin concupiscētia (con cupiscēns, -entis, greatly desiring).

Concur, kön.kur', to agree; concurred' (2 syl.), concurr'-ing, concurr'-ence, concurr'-ent, concurr'-ently. (Rule I.)

Latin concurrēns, -entis (con currēre, to run together).

Concussion, kon.kush.on; concussive, kon.küss'.siv.

Latin concussion, a striking together (con quātio, to shake together).

Condemn, kön.dem'; condemned, kön.dem'd; condemning, kön.dem'.ing (not kön.dem'ning); condemn'er, kön.dem'.er; condemnation, kön.dem'.nāτ.'shun; condemnable, kön..dem'.na.b'le (not kön.dem'.a.b'l); censurable; condemnatory, kön.dem'.nā.tör.ry, worthy condemnation.

Latin condemnatio; condemnāre (con damnō, to cast in a law-suit).
Condens', condensed' (2 syl.), condens'-ing, condens'-er (Rule xix.), condens'-ity, condens'-able, condensation, kon'-den.say’’.shun. To shorten, to make more close.

Latin condensatio, condensare, to condense (con denso, to make thick). (There are nearly seven hundred words ending in “nce,” and only nine in “-nse”: viz., dense and condense; dispense, expense, propense, and recompense; immense, sense, and tense. The larger part of the seven hundred have as much claim to “s” as these nine.)

Condescend, kon’de.send’, to stoop (morally); condescend’-ence; condescension, kon’de.sen’’shun (Rule xxxvii.)

Latin con descendere (de scendo, to climb down, dis-mount).

Condign, kon.dine’, deserved; condign’-ly, condign’-ness.

French condition, appropriate; Latin condignus, wholly deserved.

Condiment, kon.ment. (French; Latin condimentum, sauce.)

Condole, kon.dole’; consoled (2 syl.); condol’-ing, condol’.-cr, condol’-ence (Rule xix); condol’.-ment (Rule xviii.)

Latin condolentia, con dolare, to grieve with [those who grieve].

Condor, kon’dor. The vulture of S. America. (Span. condor.)

Conduct, kon.duct (noun), behaviour; kon.duct’ (verb), to guide; conduct’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), conduct’-ing, conduct’-ive.

Conduct’or, fem. conduct’ress; conduction, kon’duk’’shun.

Conductibility, kon.duct’i.bil’’ity. Capacity of transmitting.

Conduit (French), kon.du.uit not kon’’-dit, a duct.

Cone, kon. A shape like a sugar-loaf; the fruit of a fir-tree.

Conic, kon’’ik; conical, kon’’ik.al (adj.), cone-shaped.

Conics. The geometry of conical figures. (All the sciences in -ic, except “logic,” “music,” and “rhetoric” are plural.) (The “o” of “conic” in Latin and Greek is long.)

French cone; Greek konos, a cone.

Conifer, plu. conifera, kon’’i.ferz; Conifera, kon’’i.f.’r.ee, the cone-bearing plants. (Latin cōnus fēro, to bear cones.)

Coniferous, kon’’i.f.’rus, cone-bearing; co’’niform.

Conoid, kon’’o.id (Greek kŏnōs eidos, cone-like).

Conoidal, kon’’o.id.al; conoideic, kon’’o.id’ik; conoi’’dical.
AND OF SPELLING.

Confabulate, kon.fab'.u.late, to chat; confab'ulat-ed (R. xxxvi.), confab'ulat-ing, confab'ulat-or (not -er, Rule xxxvii.)

Confaborutory, kon.fab".u. lay'try (Rule xix.). Gossip.

Confabulation, kon.fab'.u.lay".shun. Gossip.
French confabuler, confabulation; Latin con fabulare, to tell stories or gossipy tales together, hence to chat, &c.

Confection, kon.fek'.shun; confection'er, confection'ery (not -ary). Sweetmeats, the maker or seller of pastry, &c.
French confection; Latin confectio, confectio, supine -factum, to make with [sugar, &c.]

Confederate, kon.fed'.er ate, to league together; confed'erat-ed, confed'erat-ing (R. xix.), confed'erat-or (not -er, R. xxxvii.)

Confederation, kon.fed'.eray".shun. A league.

Confederacy, plu. confederacies, kon.fed'.er ae.siz (Rule xli.)
(In Latin, the first "e" of all these words is long.)
Latin con federatio, a confederation (con fædus, a league).

Confer', conferred (2 syl.), confferr'-ing, conferr'-er (Rule i.)

Conference, kon'.fer.ence (not -ance, and only one r).
(This abnormal word is borrowed from the French.)
French conférer, conférence; Latin conferred, conferens, to confer.

Conferva, plu. confervæ, kon.fer'.vah, kon.fer'.vée, fresh-water plants. Confervaceous, kon'.fer.vay".shus (adv.) Confervoid, kon.fer'.void, articulated like the conferva.

Confervite, plu. confervites, kon.fer'vites, fossil conferva.
Latin confervæ, from conferre, to join together like broken bones. Pliny tells us the conferva were so called because of their efficacy in knitting together broken bones. (Pliny, 27, 45.)

Confess', confessed' (2 syl.), confessed-ly, kon.fes'.sed.ly.

Confessor (not -er, R. xxxvii.) A priest who hears confessions.

Confession, kon'.fes'.ion; confession'al, confession'ary.
French confesseur, to confess; confession, confessional; Latin confessio, confessorius, confessor, -fessus (confasseor, to confess).

Confide, kon'.fi.de' (to rely on); confided, kon'.fi.de'd (R. xxxvi.);
confid'-ing, confid'-ingly, confid'-er. (Rule xix.)

Confidant, fem.confidante (Fr.), kon'.fi.dant'. A bosom friend.

Confident, kon'.fi.dent (positive); confident-ly, confidence.

Confidential, kon'.fi.den".shul; confidential-ly,
(In Latin, the "i" of all these words is long.)
Lat. confidentialia, confidence; confidens, -entis, confident; confidere, to trust one wholly; French confidence, confident, confidant, &c.

Confine, kon'.fine (noun), a limit; kon'.fine' (v.), to imprison (R. 1.)

Confined, kon'.find', confin'-ing, confin'-er (Rule xix.), confin'-able (Rule xxiii.), confine'-ment (Rule xviii. §).

Confinity, kon'.fin'.i.ty, nearness. (In Lat. the "i" is long.)
French confiner, to confine; Latin confinium, confinitas, confinatītis (adj.), con fīnire, to finish with [some limiting boundary].
Confirm', confirm'-able, (not -ible), confirm'-ative, confirm'-atively; confirm'-er, one who corroborates; confirmat-or, kon.fir'mo.to r; confirm'atory (the "a" is long in Latin); confirmation, kon'fim'may'".shun, corroborat-ion.
Latin con firmäre, to make strong with [additional assurance], confirm-atio, confirmat-or; French confirmatif, confirmation, confirmer.

Confiscate, kon' fis'kat not kon' fis'.kate, to alienate; confis-ci-ed (R. xxxvi.), confis-ca't-ing (R. xix.), confis-ca't-or (R. xxxvii.).
Confiscation, kon' fis'kay'".shun. A forfeiting to the exchequer.
Confiscable, kon.fis'.kä.bl; confiscatory, kon.fis'.kä.tö.ry. Latin confiscátio; con fisçare, to confiscate (fiscus, the exchequer).

Conflagration, kon'fla-gray'".shun (not kon' fla.gay'".shun).
Lat. conflagrátio, conflagrare, to burn wholly; Greek phlego, to burn.
Conflict, kon'flikt (noun); kon'flikt' (verb), to contend (Rule 1.); conflict'-ed (R. xxxvi.); conflict'-ing, conflictive, kon..flik'.tiv; conflictive-ly; confliction, kon' flik'.shun.
Latin conflictio, conflictus, conflagrare, flagrare, to dash together.

Confluence, kon'flü.ence. The meeting of two or more streams.
Con'fluent, flowing together. Conflux, a crowd, a flood.
Latin confluentia, conflixtens (con fluo, sup. fluxum, to flow together).
Conform', conformed' (2 syll.), conform'-able, conform'-ably.
Confirmation, kon.fir'may'".shun. The act of confirming.

Conformation, kon'for.may'".shun. The act of conforming.

Conform'ity, conformed'; non-conformity, non-conformist.
(""Conform," "conformable," are followed by "to," as "Be not conformed to this world" [Rom. xii. 2]. "Conform-ity" may have either "to" or "with," as "In conformity with your wish," "In conformity to your order."")
"Conformare se ad [to] voluntatem; .." or "mentem meam [with] cogitationem [with... conformatam." (Cicero.)
Lat. conformatio, conformitas, con forma're, to form like [something].

Confound' (to confuse), confound'-ed (R. xxxvi.), confound'-er.
Confuse', confused' (2 syll.), confus'-ing, &c. (See Confuse.)
Latin con fundère, supine fusa'm, to pour together.

Confront, kon'front' (not kon' front'), to bring face to face; confront'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), confront'-ing; confront'er.
French confronter, to confront; Lat. con front; front with [front].
Confuse', confused', confus'-ing; confused-ly, kon.fü.zed.ly; confused-ness, kon.fü'.zed.ness (with -ly and -ness); confusion, kon.fü'.shun, disorder; confus'er, kon.fü'.zer.
Latin con fundère, supine fusa'm, to pour together. (See Confound.)
Confute', confüt'-ed. (R. xxxvi.); confüt'-ing, confút'-er, confút'-able (not -ible), confút'-ant (R. xix.). To prove wrong.
Confutation, kon'füt'.tay'".shun. Disproving, a denial proved, Latin confutatìo, con fütìre, to argue against [another].
Congé (French), könje.zja'. Leave of absence, discharge, farewell.

Congé d'élére, könje.zja dë-lee'r. The sovereign's request to a dean and chapter to elect a bishop.

P.P.O. (pour prendre congé). To take leave. (Written on cards on leaving home.)

Congeal, kön.jeel' (to freeze); congealed' (2 syl.), congeal'-able.

Congelation, kön.jé.lay'shun (not congelation).

(The "a" of "congeal," &c, is a great error.)

Latin congelatio, congelabilitis, con gela, to freeze thoroughly; French congelater (= könge-lat, 2 syl.), congelable, congelation.

Congener, kön.jee.nér. Of the same origin or kind. Congener'ic.

Latin con génere, of the same stock. (The -ge- in Latin is short.)

Congenial, kön.jee.niál (social); conge'nial-ly, conge'nial'ity.

Latin con génialis, genial with [others], con génialitas.

Congestion, kön.jes.tshun; congestive, kön.jes.tiv; congest-ible.

Lat. congestio, con gérère, sup. -gestum, to bring together, to amass.

Conglomerate, kön.glöm.erät'ate (one m), to amass; conglomer'-erät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), conglomer'merät-ing (Rule xix.), conglomeration, kön.glöm.erät'shun, a collection.

Latin congöméräre, to wind into a ball (glomus, a ball).

Congratulate, kön.grat'.u.lat; congrat'ulat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), congrat'ulat-ing (Rule xxi.); congrat'ulat-or (not -ter, Rule xxxvii.)

Congratulatory, kön.grat'.u.lat'.ry. Expressing joy. (R. xix.)

Congratulation, kön.grat'.u.lat'shun. Expression of joy.

Lat. congratulatio, congratulátor, congratuläre, to rejoice with [you].

Congregate, kön.grég.gate (to assemble in a crowd); con'gregat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), con'gregat-ing, con'gregät-er (Rule xix.)

Congregation, kön.grég.gay'shun; congregation-al, congregational-ly, congregational-ism, congregational-ist.

Latin congregatio, con gregäre, to herd together (greg gregis; a herd).

Congress, kön.gres, a senate; congressional, kön.gres.shun'al.

Latin congressus, a meeting; congrédior, sup. -gressum, to meet together (con grátor, to go with [others]; grátus, a step).

Congruity, kön.gru'it.ty (fitness); congruous, kön.gru.us, &c.

Lat. congrus; congruére, to flock together like cranes (grus; a crane). "Birds of a feather [which] flock together," exactly meets the idea.

Conia, kön.ni'ah. Hemlock and other plants of the same genus.

Conéine, kön.née'.tin. The poisonous alkaloid of hemlock. ("Conine," kön.neé'tin, is not well formed.)

Conic, kön.tik; con'ical, like a cone; conics, kön.iks. (See Cone.)

Conifer, kön.fer'; coniferous, kön.ni'.fer'us; conifera. See Cone, Conjecture, kônˈjēkˈchər (a surmise, to surmise); conjectured (3 syl.), conjectur-ing, conjectur-er; conjectural, conjectural-ly (Rule xix.), conjectural-able (Rule xxi.).

Latin conjectūra, a guess, conjectūrātus; conjectūrē, to surmise (conjūco to cast [two and two] together [to form a guess]).

Conjugal, kônˈjü-gəl. Pertaining to marriage.

Latin conjugālis (from conjur, a husband or wife).

Conjugate, kônˈjü-gət; conˈjug-æd (R. xxxvi.), conˈjug-æt-ing.

Conjugation, kônˈjü-gaˈʃən; conˈjug-æt-or (R. xix., xxxvii.)

Latin conjugatio, conjugāre (con jugo, to yoke together).

Conjunction, kônˈjən-kˈʃən (union); conjunctive, kônˈjən-kˈtiv; conjunctive-ly, conjunctive-ness (R. xvii.); conjuncture, kônˈjən-kˈtur, a crisis, a critical period.

Latin conjunctio, conˈjun-gō, supine -junctūm, to join together.

Conjure, kônˈjūr, to play tricks; kônˈjūrˈe, to implore.

Conˈjure, kônˈjūr; conjured (2 syl.), conˈjur-ing (R. xix.), conˈjur-er; conjuration, kônˈjūrˈayˈshən.

Conjure, kônˈjūrd (to implore); conjured (2 syl.), conˈjur-ing; conˈjur-er, one who conjures; conjuration, kônˈjūrˈayˈshən, invocation to a prisoner to answer on his oath.

Both these are the same word. A conˈjurer is one who acts with a confederate bound by oath to secrecy. A conˈjurˈer is one who calls on another to answer on his oath.

Latin conˈjūro, to swear together.

Connect, connect-æd (R. xxxvi.); connective, kônˈnekˈtiv.

Connection, a junction of substances; connexion, a relative.

("Connection" is not required, "connection" answers both meanings.)

Latin con necto, supine nēxum, to bind together.

Conνivˈe, connived (2 syl.), connivˈ-ing, connivˈ-er (R. xix.), connivˈ-ance (R. xxiv.) (Ought to be connivence.)

French connivence, conniver, to connive; Latin connivēns, connivēre (con nīco, to wink with [the eyes], to pretend not to see).

Connoisseur (bad French), kônˈmēsˈsər. A judge of the fine arts.

French connoisseur; Latin cognosco, to know thoroughly.

(It is surprising that the host of bad French words which disgrace our language should be suffered to remain.)

Connuˈbial, kônˈniˈbē-əl. Pertaining to wedlock.

Latin connubialis, con nūbo, to marry together.

Conquer, kônˈkwər not kônˈkər; conquered, kônˈkwərd; conquering, kônˈkwər-ing; conqueror, kônˈkwərˈor; conquerable, kônˈkwərˈə-bəl; conquest, kônˈkwəst.

French conquérir, to conquer; Old French conqueste, now conquête. Latin conquīrēre (querc, to seek, to acquire, to conquer).

Consanguinity, kônˈsänˈgwənˈtē-ə. Relationship by blood.

Consanguineous, kônˈsänˈgwənˈe-əs. Related by blood.

Latin consanguinitas, consanguineus (con sanguis, same blood).
Conscience, kön.šə'ven's; conscience-less; conscious, kön.šə'us; conscious-ly, conscious-ness (Latin conscius, conscious); conscientious, kön.šə'.en's.šə'us, conscientiously, conscientious-ness (French conscien'sieu's, conscientious); conscientable, kön.šun.ə'b'l, conscientably, conscientable-ness. "For conscience sake" (not for conscience' sake, nor for conscience's sake). "Conscience" has no possessive case. Only nouns personified, and those which denote animal life have possessive cases.

(Note the "-sc" which are the initial letters of "science").

Latin con scientia, knowledge with [another]. Man being supposed to be a dual being, conscience is the privacy of the "inner man" to the acts, &c., of the "outer man"; French conscience.

French conscriptio; Latin conscriptsio (which is incorrect), con scribo, supine -scriptum, to write with [other names].

Consecrate, kön.sə'krət, con'secret-ed, con'secret-ing (R. xix.), con'secret-or (not -er, R. xxxvii); consecration, kön.sə'kra't'shon, dedication to sacred uses.

Latin consecratio, consecrare (con sacro, to hallow with [sacred rites]).

Consecutive, kön.sek'wətiv, following in systematic order; consecutive-ly, consecutive-ness (Rule xvii.)

French consecutif, consecutive; Latin consecquare, to follow in order.

Consent, kön.sent', to agree to, an agreement. Consent'-er.

Consentaneous, kön.sən'te'nis, consistent with; consentaneous-ly, consentaneous-ness (suitableness).

Latin consensuus, consensu, consentaneus, consentiens, -entis, verb consentiō, sup. -sensum (con sentio, to think with [another]).

Consequence, kön.sə'kwən'sən's; consequent, kön.se'.kwənt; consequent-ly (therefore); consequential, kön.se'.kwənt'šə'ii (important); consequential-ly (conceitedly).

French consequence; Latin consequentia (con sequor, to follow upon).

French conserve, to keep; conserve, fruit, &c., preserved in sugar. Latin conservator, conservans, con servare, to preserve with [sugar, &c.]
Consider, kön.síd’er (to think about); considered, kön.síd’erd; consid’er-ing, consid’er-ing-ly; considerable, kön.síd’er-a.b’l; consid’er-able-ness, consid’er-ably.

Considerate, kön.síd’er-ate; considerate-ly, considerate-ness.

Consideration, kön.síd’er-a.tion. Mature thought.

French considerable, consideration, consider; Latin consideratio, con sidèrare, to consult the stars (sidèra, the stars), contemplate.

Consign, kön.sine’; consigned’ (2 syl.), consign’-ing, consign’-er, consign’-ment; consignee, kön.sine’e, one to whom goods are consigned; consignor, kön.sínor’, he who consigns the goods.

French consigner, to consign; Latin con-signare, to seal with [your own seal] as a voucher that the consignment is authorised.

Consist’, consist’-ed (R. xxxvi.), consist’-ing, consist’-ent, consist’-ent-ly, consist’-ence, consist’-ency. To be made up of.

“Consist of” = composed of. “Consist with” = to be in accordance with.

French consistre, to consist; Latin con sistere, to stand together.

Consistory, kön.sís’tó.ry, a “spiritual” court; consistorial, kön.sís.tó’ri.al; consistorian, kön.sís.tó’ri.an.

French consistoire, consistory, consistorial; Latin consistorium, a council, the private council-chamber of Roman emperors; now it is applied to the college of cardinals, the court of the bishops, &c.

Console, kön.so.lé (noun), an ornamental bracket; kön.so-le’ (verb), to comfort; console’, consoled’ (2 syl.), consol’-ing, consol’-er, consol’-able (R. xix.); consolation, kön.so.lay’”shun, comfort; consolator, kön.so.lá.tor, one who consoles another; consolatory, kön.so.lá.tó.ry, comforting.

Fr. consoler, to console, consolation, consolable, console (in Architec.) Lat. consolatio, consolator, con-solari, to solace with [words].

Consolidate, kön.so.lá.ted, to form into one mass; consol’id-ated (Rule xxxvi.), consol’id-ating (Rule xix.); consolidation, kön.so.lá’tion”, shun, condensation, union.

French consolider, consolidation; Latin consolidare, to join together.

Consols, kön.so.lz’, “3 per cents.” Consuls’, Roman magistrates.

“Consols,” i.e., consolidated stocks. Government has borrowed money at different times from various sources, and at different rates of interest. In 1751, the several stocks were consolidated, with a uniform interest of 3 per cent.

Consonant, kön.so.nant (adj.), agreeable (followed by to or with).

Consonant, plu. consonants. All letters except vowels.

Consonance, concord; consonancy, kön.so.nán.sy.

(In Latin it is followed by “ to”: as “sibi consönans.”)

Latin consönans, -nantis, consönantia, con-soùre, to sound together.

A “consonant” is a letter which carries in its sound another letter, thus: “B” carries with it the sound of e, and “K” the sound of a.
Consort, kön'sort (noun); kön'sort' (verb). Concert, concert'.
Consort, kön'sort'. Husband or wife of a crowned head.
Consort, kön'sort'. To associate together (followed by "with").
Concert, kön'sort. A musical entertainment.
Consort, kön'sort' (to league); consort'-ed, consort'-ing.
"Con'sort," Lat. consortis, -sortis, a partner (con sors, same lot with [you]).
"Con'sort," a verb coined from the Latin consortio, partnership.
"Concert," Fr. concert; Ital. concerto; Lat. concertare, to concert.
"Concert," Lat. certare, to strive together, hence to plot.
Conspicuous, kön.spik'tu.us (obvious); conspicuously, conspicuous-ness; conspicuous-ness; conspicuity, kön.spik'ku.ty, visibility.
Latin conspicuus, conspicère (con specio, to see with [clearness]).
Conspire, kön.spir'; conspired' (2 syl.), conspir'ing (Rule xix.)
Conspiracy, plu. conspiracies, kön.spir'ra.siz. Plot for evil.
Conspirator, kön.spir'ra.tor (R. xxxvii.) One of a conspiracy.
French conspirer; Lat. conspiratio, con spirare, to breathe together.
Constable, kön.'stä.bl,A peace-officer. Constabulary, constabulary.
Constabulary, kön.stä.bl.u.ry (adj.) Pertaining to, &c.
Constablewiclr, kön.'stä.bl.w'ik. A constable's district.
Lord High Constable, plu. Lords High Constable.
High Constable, plu. High Constables. Of a county.
French constable; Latin comes stabuli, superintendent of the imperial stables, then "Master of the Horse," then "Commander-in-chief of the army" (Obsolete).
Constant, kön.'stant (frequent); constancy, persistency.
Latin constantia (con stäre, to stand together, to be consistent).
Constellation, kön.'stell.lay'shun (double l), a group of stars.
French constellation; Latin constellatio (con stella, stars together).
Consternation, kön.'ster.nay'shun. Amazement with terror.
French consternation; Latin consternatio (con sterno, to cast down).
Constipate, kön.'stä.päte, constipat-ed (R. xxvi.); constipat-ing.
Constipation, kön.'stä.pay'shun, costiveness (Rule xix.)
Fr. constipation; Lat. constipatio (con stipare, to cram together).
Constituent, kön.'stit'.u.ient (adj.), essential, elemental.
Constituency, kön.'stit'.u.en.cy. An entire body of electors.
Lat. constituo, part constituents, to constitute. A "constituent" is one who by his vote "constitutes" or elects a member of parliament.
Constitute, kön.'stä.tüte (to establish); constitüt-ed (R. xxvi.), constitüt-ing; constitüt-er, one who constitutes (R. xix.)
Constitution, kön.'stä.tü.shun (frame of body, of a government, &c.); constitutional, constitutional-ly; constitutional-ist, a lover of a constitutional government; constitution-ist, one who advocates such a government.

("Constitution-al" should be "constitution-al." The French have preserved the right vowel, "constitutionnel.")

Fr. constitution; Lat. constitutio (con statívere, to set up together).

Constrain, kön.strain' (to compel); constrain'-able (R. xxiii.)

Constrained', constrainedly, kön.strain'.ed.ly (Rule xxxvi.)

Constraint, kön.straint'. Restraining influence in action.

French contraindre, contrainte; Latin constringere, to bind fast.

Constrict, kön.strict' (to bind); constrict'-or (not -er, R. xxxvii.)

Boa Constrictor, plu. Böa Constrictors, Böa kön.strík'tor

The serpent which with its coils binds its victim fast.

Lat. constringo, supine constrictum, to bind fast.

Construct, kön.struct' (to make), construct'-or (not -er, R. xxxvii.)

Construction, kön.struk'shun, constructive, constructive-ly, constructive-ness (R. xvii.)

French construction; Latin constructio, constructor, construire, to heap together; Greek stôôô, stôôôô, to spread, &c.

Construe, kön.stru'; construed, kon'strude, (not kön.stru', kön'.-strudel'); con'strü-ing, con'strü-er (R. xix.) To translate.

Fr. construire, to construe; Lat. construere, to build, to heap together.

Consubstantiation, kön'-sub.stan'.she.a'-shun, the Lutheran notion that the body and blood of Christ are in-union with the eucharistic bread and wine.

Transubstantiation, the Roman Catholic notion that the eucharistic bread and wine are veritably changed into the body and blood of Jesus Christ.

Latin con substantia, (in union) with the substance (i.e., Christ): trans substantia, transferred into the very substance of Christ.

Con'sul, plu. Con'suls, Roman magistrates. Consuls', British 3 per cents. Consular, kön'.sul'lar (adj.); consulate, kön'.sul'late, the term of a consul's office; consul-ship, the tenure of the office of consul. Consul general, plu. consul generals (not consuls general).

Latin consul, consilio, to consult (con sul'o, i.e., si vôlo, to examine and see if each one is willing, or approves of a decree).

Consult, kön.sult'; consult'-er; consultation, kön.sul'tay'shun.

"Consultor" ought to be "consultor," Latin consultor.

Fr. consulter, consultation; Lat. consultatio, consultare, to consult.

Consume, kön.süm'e'; consumed' (2 syl.), consum'-ing, consum'-or (R. xix.), consum'-able (R. xxiii.) 'To devour, to burn.

Consumption, kön.sump'shun; consumptive, kön.sump'tiv, consumptive-ly, consumptive-ness (consumptive tendency).

Fr. consumer, to consume; Lat. consumptio, consumere, to consume.
AND OF SPELLING.

Consummation, kōn.sum'mate (adj.); kon'sum'mate (verb).
Consum'mate, complete; consum'mate-ly (Rule xvii.)
Consum'mate, con'summat-ed, con'summat-ing (Rule xix.)
Consummation, kōn'.sum'may'shun. Completion. (-m-'-)
"Consum'mate," Latin consummātus, fully (summa, the sum total).
"Con'summat-ed," Latin consummatum, to sum together [all the figures].
Consumption, kōn'.sum'p'shun; consumptive. (See Consume.)

Contagion, kōn.tay' jün. Communication of disease by contact.
Contagious, kōn.tay' jūs, contagious-ly, contagious-ness.

French contage, contained (2 syl.), contain'-able (Rule xxiii).
(The spelling of all these words is indefensible.)

Contain' (to hold), contained (2 syl.), contain', able (Rule xxiii).
French contenir, to contain; Lat. contineō (con tenēo, to hold together).

Contaminate, kōn.tam'i nate (to defile), contam'inate-d (R.xxxvi), contam'inate-ing, contam'inate-er (ought to be -or), R. xix.

Contamination, kōn.tam'i nay'shun. Pollution, taint.
French contaminer, contamination; Latin contaminatio, contaminātor, contamināre (con tāmō, to defile with [association]).

Contamin, Condemn, kōn.tēm', kōn.dēm' ("n" not sounded).

Contemn, to despise; Condemn, to blame, to pronounce guilty.

Contemned, kōn.tēmd', despised; Condemned, kōn.dēmd'.

Contemn-ing, kōn.tēm' ing; Condemn-ing, kōn.dēm' ing.

Contemn-er, kōn.tēm' er; Condemn-er, kōn.dēm' er.

Latin conennēre, to contemn (con temno, to despise altogether); but condemnāre (con damnō, to doom with penalty).

Contemplate, kōn.tēm.plate (not kōn.tēm'.plate), to meditate upon; con'templāt-ed, con'templāt-ing (R. xix.), con'templāt-or (R. xxxvii.); contemplation, kōn.tēm' play'-.shun, meditation; contemplative, kōn.tēm'.plāt.iv; con'templative-ly, con'templative-ness (Rule xvii.)

Latin contemplāre, to contemplate, contemplātiō, contemplativus, contemplātor. The Roman augurs having taken their stand on the Capit'oline Hill, marked out a space called the templum. Watching on this space to see what would happen was called "contemplation."

Contemporaneous, kōn'.tēm.pō'ray'.mē.sūs (not cotemporaneous) (adj.), of the same period; contemporaneous-ly, contemporaneous-ness; Contemporary, plu. contemporaries, kōn.tēm'.porā'ry, kōn.tēm'.porā'rīs (not contemporary).
("Co.~ precedes a, e, i, o, and u. "Con.- precedes e, d, t; f, v, q; g, j; n and s.)

Contemporary of or with? If an article precedes, of must follow; if not, with. "He was a contemporary of mine." "He was contemporary with me." In the former example "contemporary" is a noun, in the latter an adj.

Latin contemporā'neus (con tempus, the same time).
Errors of Speech

Contempt, kontemt' (scorn); contemptuous, -ten' tu.us' ness. Contempt' ible (worthless); contempt' ous (-tu. us') scornful. Contempt' ibly (worthlessly); contempt' ous-ly, scornfully. "I gave him a contemtuous look" (not contemptible). "He treated them contemptuously" (not contemptibly). "He is a contemptible fellow," worthless. Latin contemptus, disdain (con temnere, sup. temptum, to scorn wholly).

Contend' (to dispute); contention, kön.ten' shun, strife.

Contentious, kön.ten' shus; contentious-ly, contentious-ness. Latin contentio, contentiosus, contendere to strain with [force].

Content, content, satisfaction; (Dis-content, dissatisfaction).

Content' ed, content' ment. The negatives are "discon- content' ed," "discontent' ment."

Content' ed-ly, discontent' ed-ly; content' ing.

Mal-content, plu. mal-contents, persons not satisfied.

Non-content, plu. non-contents, lords who negative a " bill." Those who approve of it are called "Contents."

Contents (no sing.) of a cask, book, &c.; i.e., what it contains. Fr. content, contentement (3 syl.); Latin contentus, continere, supine -contentum (con tenere, to hold together, to contain). ("Contentus" belongs to two verbs—contendo to stretch, and contino.)

Contest, kön. test (noun); kön. test' (verb). Rule 1.

Contest, kön. test' (to dispute), contest' ed, contest' ing, contest' ing-ly; contest' ing-ly; contest' able (not- ible), contest' able-ness, contestation, kön. test' ay' shun, strife, joint-attestation.

French contest, to contest, contestation, contestable; Lat. contestatio, con testari, to call witnesses to prove a case (testis, a witness).

Context, kön. test. The part bearing on a "text" or quotation. French contexte; Latin contextus, con texo, to weave together.

Contiguity, kön. ti.gii' a.ty. Proximity, contact. Cowper uses the word for " uninterrupted extent," "continuation": Oh! for a lodge in some vast wilderness, Some boundless contiguity of shade...

Contiguous, kön. ti.gii' a.uss; contiguous-ly, contiguous-ness. Fr. contiguïté; Lat. contiguousus, adjoining (con tangere, to touch together).

Continent, kön. ti.nen' t. Pertaining to the Continent.

Fr. continence, continent, continental. Latin continencia, chastity; continens-mentis, mainland; continere, to contain or restrain oneself (con tenere, to hold together, like different lands on a "continent.")

Contingent, kön. tin' jent (dependent), contin' gent-ly.

Contingence, kön. tin' jence; contingency, kön. tin' jens. ey. Fr. contingent, contingence; Lat. contingens (con tangere, to touch).
Continual, kön.tin'ua.l. (See next article.)

Continue, kön.tin'a (to last); contin'ued (3 syl.), contin'u-ing.

Contin'ue or, one who continues; contin'ue'or, one who continues a book or poem begun by another; contin'ue'able; contin'ue-al, contin'ue-al-ly, contin'ue'ance, continuation, kön.tin'ua.ush; continuous, kön.tin'a.ues; continuous-ly, continuity, kön.ti.nu'.i ty, uninterrupted succession.

Fr. continuer, continuité; Latin continuans, continuatio, continuus, to continue. (Fr. continué is incorrect.)

Contort' (to twist), contortion, kön.to'r.shun, a twist.

Latin contortio or contorsio, con tortuo, to twist wholly.

Contour, kön.toor' (not kön.toor'). The outline of the face.

French contour, outline, turn; Latin con torno, to turn.

Contra- (Latin prefix), against, in opposition to.

Per Contra. A commercial term, used in ledgers, &c., on the "credit" side: as "Dr." (left side), "Per Contra, Cr."

Contraband, illicit traffic; contrabandist, kön-tra. band'-ist.

Contrabandista, kön-tra. bund-dis'-tah, plu. -tahs. Smuggler.

Ital. contrabando, to smuggle; Lat. contra bannus, against the edict.

Contract, kön.tract (noun); kön.tract' (verb). Rule I.

Con'tract, a bargain; contract', to make a bargain, to shorten.

Contract', contract'-ed (xxxvi.), contract-or (not er), xxxvii.

Contract' (to shorten), contract'-ed, contract-ed-ly, contract-ed-ness; contraction, kön.tract'shun, abridgment.

Contractile, kön.trac'.til. Able to contract itself.

Contract-ible (not -able). Capable of being contracted.

Contractility, kön.trac'til'-i-ty. Having a contractile force.

Contractibility, kön.trac'til'-i.ty. Having a contractible property. The opposite property is dilatability. ("Air" is contractible, but not contractile, and we speak of its "contractibility." Animal muscle has a "contractile" force, and we speak of its "contractility.""

French contracter, to contract, contractile, contractilité, contraction.

Lat. contractio, contractus (con trahère, sup. tractum, to draw together).

Contradict, kön-tra. dict' (to gainsay); contradict'-ed (R. xxxvi.)

Contradict'-er (not -or. Not a Latin word. Rule xxxvii.)

Contradiction, kön-tra. dict'shun. A flat denial.

Contradictious, kön-tra. diç'ishus; contradictious-ness.

Contradictory, kön-tra. diç'.tã.ry; contradictori-ly (adv.)

French contradiction, contradictoire, contradictory; Latin contradictio, contra dictere, to say the opposite.

Contralto, plu. contraltos, kön.tral'tos (Italian). Rule xlii.

"Contralto" is a low female-voice; Soprano (so.prãh'no), a high female-voice.

Contrari-ly, kōn.trā.ry.ły; contrari-ness, contrari-wise(xi.)

Contrarious, kōn.trā.ri".us; contrarious-ly, -ness.

“Contrari'ry” is more correct, but is not in use. Shakespeare uses both: “Had falsely thrust upon contrari'ry feel.”—K. J., iv., 2.)

Contrast, kōn.trast (noun); kōn.trast' (verb). Rule 1.

Contrast. The opposite. (Followed by to: “A contrast to...”) Contrast'. To show the difference of things by comparison. (Followed by with: “Contrast God’s goodness with...”)

Fr. contraster (v.), contraste (n.); Lat. contra stīre, to set in opposition.

Contravene, kōn.trā.ven' (to thwart); contravened' (3 sy1.), contraven'ing, contraven'er (R. xix.), one who thwarts.

Contratempo'ps (Fr.), kōl.n'.trā. ta'lu'n'. Something inopportune.

Latin contra tempus, [coming at] the wrong time.

Contributary, -trū'.utā'rīy. Paying tribute to the same crown.

Contributory, -trū'.utō'rīy. Contributing to the same object.

Fr. contribution; Lat. contributārius, contributio, contribūtor, contribūre (con tribuo, to give with [others]).

Contrite, kōn.trīte (penitent); contrite-ly, kōn.trīte'.ly (adv.)

Fr. contrit, contrition; Lat. contritus (con τσητεν, sup. trūtum, to rub together. “A contrite heart” is one broken or bruised with rubs.)

Contrive, kōn.trīv'o'; contrived' (2 sy1.), contriv'-ing, contriv'-er, contriv'-able, contriv'-ance (R. xix.). To devise, to plan.

Corruption of the French controuver, to find out, to invent.

Control, kōn.trōl'e (to keep under restraint); controlled' (2 sy1.)

Controll'-ing, controll'-er (R. i.); but control'-ment (R. ii.  qi.)

Comptroller, kōn.trole'.er. One whose duty it is to examine tax-gatherers’ accounts; an officer of the royal household.

Comptroller of the Pipe. An exchequer officer connected with the “pipe,” or great roll. Both these words are now spelt controller. (Low Lat. contrarītūlator.) “Comptroller” is compūtus rōtūlātor, keeper of accounts.

Fr. contrōle, i.e., contra rōle; Lat. contra rōtūlus, a counter register. All contrāqts were at one time enrolled in a public register.
Controvert, kon'tro·vert, to dispute; controvert-ed (R. xxxvi.)
Controvert'-er, one who disputes a statement; controvert'-
-ist, controvert'-ible, controvert'ibly.
(The second t in these words is an error. The root verb is not “vertëre,” to turn, but “versi,” to dispute.)

Controversy, plu. controversies, kon'tro·ver·sìz, disputation.
Controversial, kon'tro·ver·sì·al; controversial-ly (adv.)
Controversial-ist. A professional writer of controversies.
Fr. controverse (n.), controverser (v.), controversial-able; Latin controversia, controversial (not controvertôre; to turn against).

Contumacy, kon'tu·mä·sy (not kon'tu·ma·sy), obstinate resistance of authority; contumacious, kon'tu·ma·shus; contu-macious-ly, contumacious-ness.
Fr. contumace, contumacy; Lat. contumacia (con tumëre, to swell against one. Contumacex, gen. contumacexis.)

Contumely, plu. contumelies, kon'tu·mé·lis (not kon'tu·më·lis), insolence, affronting language.

Contumelious, kon'tu·mé·li.us; contumelious-ly.

Contumelious-ness. (Same root as “contumacy.”)
Latin contumêlia, contumelioso; abusive (con tumëre, see above).

Contuse (to bruise), contused (2 syl.), contüs'-ing, contüs'-er, contusion, kon'tu·shun (Rule xxxiii.), a bruise.
Fr. contusion; Lat. contùsio (con tundere, sup. tûsum, to pound).

Conundrum, plu. conundrums. A punning riddle.
Old Eng. cunand to know, dream (fun, “fun-knowledge.” Like Dream-craft joy-craft, i.e., music, &c.

Convalescence, kon'va·les·sense. Renewal of health after illness.
Convalescent, kon'va·les·sent. Restored to health.
(“-Sc” denotes that the action of the word is “progressive.”)
Fr. convalescence, convalescent; Lat. con valesco (valesco to be well, valesco to grow stronger and stronger).

Convene, kon'ven (to assemble); convened’ (2 syl.), convên'-ing, convên-er (Rule xix.), convên-able better convên-ible.
(The wrong conjugation, as usual, is a borrowed French error.)

French convenir, convenable; Latin con vènere, to come together.

Convenience, kon've·nè·së·sense. Something commodious.
Conve'niency; convène'nt, convène'nt-ly.

Lat. conveniens, convenien'tia (con venire, to fudge together).

Convent, kon'ven, home for nuns [or monks]; conven'tual,
(inonastic); conventional, -shu·nal, customary.
A “conventional phrase or manner,” i.e., in vogue, usual.
A “conventional prior,” i.e., the prior of a convent.

Conventicle, kon'ven·ti·kl. A dissenter’s chapel (a word of contempt), it means a “little” convent or assembly.

Conventicler, kon'ven·ti·kler. A dissenter (word of contempt),
French conventicle; Latin conventículum (-cul, -cle, &c., dim.)
Convention, kon'ven'shun. A meeting of delegates, a contract.
Convention-al (customary), convention-al-ly (adv.)
Conventionality, kon'ven'shun.al'ti. Formality.
Convention-ism. Manners in accordance with the fashion.
Conventionary; kon'ven'shun.ar. Settled by convention.
Convention-er, a party in a convention. Convention-ist, one who makes a contract. (See Convent note.)

French convention, conventionnel; Latin conventio, conventionalis (con venio, supine ventum, to come together).

Converge, kon'verj, to incline to one point; converged' (2 syl.), converg-ing, converg'-ent, converg'-ence, -ency (R. xix.)

French converge, convergence; Latin convergere, to bend together.

Converse, kon'vers, complete change; (See Convert.)

Converse (to chat); conversed' (2 syl.), convers'-ing, convers'-able, convers'-ably, convers'-able-ness. (Rule xix.)

Conversant, kon'ver sant (not kon'versant), acquainted [with an art, &c.] by familiar use; conversant-ly.

Conversation, kon'vers'a'shun (chat); conversation-al, conversation-al-ly, conversation-ist.

French conversation, converse, converser (v.); Latin conversari, conversans, conversatio (con versor, to converse with another).

Conversazione, plu. conversazioni (Ital.) kon'ver sa zjone. A party in which conversation is to furnish the amusement.

Convert, kon'vert (noun); kon'vert (verb). Rule l.

Convert', convert'-ed (R. xxxvi.), convert'-er, convert'-ing.
Convert'-able (not -able), convert'-ibly, convert'-ibility.

Conversion, kon'ver'shun. Entire change. (Rule xxxiii.)

French convertir, convertible, conversion; Latin converso, convertibilis, convertere (con verto, to turn completely).

Convey, kon'vey (to transmit); conveyed' (2 syl.), convey'-ing, convey'-able (R. xxiii.), convey'-ance (R. xxiv.), convey'-anc-ex, a lawyer who draws up writings for conveying property; convey'anc-ing, the business of a conveyancer.

Convict, kon'vekt, a felon; kon'vekt, to prove guilty. (Rule l.)

Convict', convict'-ed (R. xxxvi.), convict'-ing; conviction, kon'vekt'shun, strong belief, proof or detection of guilt.

Convictive, kon'vekt'iv, condemnatory; convictive-ly.

French conviction; Latin convictio, v. convincère, supine convictum (con vincio, to overthrow altogether). In Latin there are two supines alike, "convivo" (to live together) and "convincor," Hence conviction means either, "a living together" or a "conviction."
AND OF SPELLING.

Convince' (2 syl.), convin'ces (3 syl., R. liii.), convinced' (2 syl.), convin'c-er, convin'c-ing, convin'c-ing-ly, convinc-ible.

Latin convince, to convince; same root-verb as convict (q.v.).
Hence, Jno. viii. 46: "Which of you convinces (convicts) me of sin?"

Convivial, kön.vív'ā.tl (jovial); convivial-ly, convivial-ist.

Conviviality, kön.vív'ā.tł'ā.ty. Festivity, social indulgence.

French convivialité; Latin convivialis, convivo, to live together.

Convolve', convoked' (2 syl.), convòk'-ing, convòk'-er (Rule xix.)

Convocation, kön.vó.kay'.shun. A clerical council.

French convolution; Latin convocatio, con vicio, to call together.

Convolution, kön.vó.hı'.shun. A fold or coil.
Latin convolutus (con volvo, to roll together).

Convolvulus, kön.vól'.vu.lus. The garden bindweed (vul. not.-vo).

Latin and French convolvulus (vul. dim.), the little twisting plant.

Convolvulaceae, kön.vól'.vu.lāy'.sē.ē. The order including the above. The suffix -acca denotes an order of plants.

Convoy, kön.voy (noun), kön.voy' (verb). Rule I.

Convoy', an attendant for defence. 'Convoy', to attend, &c.

Convoy', convoyed' (2 syl.), convoy'-ing. (Rule xiii.)

French convolt; Low Latin convolvo; Latin convolvō, to convey.

Convulse' (2 syl.), to shake emotionally; convulsed' (2 syl.)

Convuls'-ing (R. xix.); convulsive, kön.vól'.sv. convulsive-ly, convulsive-ness (R. xvii.) (Fr. convulsion, &c.)

Lat. convulsio, from con velle, sup. vulsum, to pluck or tear to pieces.

Coo (like a pigeon), cooes, koös; coosed, kood; coo'-ing (R. xliii.) An imitative word.

Cook (to dress food), cooked (1 syl.), cookery, kook'-é ry.
Old English cōc or cūc; verb cue[ca]n; Latin cōqua, noun cōquums.

Cool, cool'-er (comp.), cool'-est (super.); cooled (1 syl.), cool'-ing; cool'-er (a vessel for cooling liquids; cool'-ly, cool'-ness, cool'-ish (ish added to adj. is dim.); added to nouns it means "like," as boy-ish, like a boy.

Old English cōl, cool; verb cōltian], cōl-nes, cōchness.

Coolie, kool'.éy, a porter (East Indies). Cool'-ly, chilly.

Coom, koom; Coomb, koom; Comb, köme.

Coom. Refuse such as collects in carriage-wheels, &c.

Coomb. Four bushels (dry measure); a valley.

Comb (for the hair), verb to dress the hair.
"Coom," German kahn, mould.
"Coomb," O. Eng., a liquid measure; a valley; Gk. kumbē, a hollow.
"Comb" (for the hair), Old English comb.

Coop (a pen for fowls, to pen fowls), coopéd, koop't.
Latin cápa, a butt, a coop; Old English cōfa, a box, a chamber.
Cooper, koop'or, one who makes tubs. Cooperage; koop'er.age, the workshop of a cooper, charge made for cooper’s work.

Latin cēpa, a butt or tub (-age something done, -age to do).

Co-operate, ko-op'ē.rāt (to work in unison), co-operât-ed (R. xxxvi.), co-operât-ing (R. xix.), co-operât-or (not -er R. xxxvii.), co-operative, ko-op'ē.rāt.īv (adj.); co-opér-ation, ko'ōp'ē.rātion; co-opér-ant (adj.)

French co-operant, concurring, co-opération, cooperer (verb); Latin co-opérátio, co-opérátor (co[con]opérâri to work with [others]).

Co-ordinate, ko-or'di.nāt (adj.). Of equal order, rank, or degree.

Co-or’dinate-ly, co-or’dinate-ness. Equality of rank, &c.

Co-or’dinate, plu. co-or’dinates. Lines, &c., ranged in order.

Co-ordination, ko-or'di.nātion. Just arrangement.

French coördination, coordenner! (verb); Latin co-ordinātio, co-ordinātus (co[con]ordinâre, to arrange together).

Coot, a water-fowl; Cote, a pen for doves or sheep; Coat (q.v.)

"Coot," Welsh cwtiar, a coot (cwt, the bob-tail [bird]).

"Cote," Old Eng. côte, a cot; Welsh cwt, a cot, sty, &c.

"Coat" (a garment), French cotte; Italian otta; German kutte.

Copaiba, ko-pay'bah. A balsam. (See Capivi.)

Copal, ko'pal (not *kō'pa*l*). A varnish. (Mex. copalli, resins.) Co-part’ner (a joint partner); co-part’nery, or co-part’nership.

Cope, a hood; Cope, to vie with others; Coop, a pen for fowls.

"Cope" (for the head), Old Eng. cop, a cap or hood; Welsh cob, a coat.

"Cope" (to vie), Danish kappes, to vie with others.

"Coop" (for fowls), Latin cēpa, a butt or coop.

Copious, ko'pi.ous (plentiful), co’pious-ly, co’pious-ness.

Latin copiōsus, cōpia, plenty (co[con]opis, very rich).

Copper. A metal, made of copper, to case with copper, a coin.

Cop’per-ish. Having a slight taste or smell of copper.

Coppery, kop'pē.ry. Containing copper, resembling copper.

Latin cuprum, i.e., res Cyprium, Cyprus brass; German kupfer.

Copperas, kop'pē.rs. Green vitriol. (It ought to be copperos).

Fr. copperose; Ital. copperosa; Lat. cupre ros, liquor of copper.

Copice, kop'pis. A wood consisting of brushwood.

Low Lat. copicea; Gk. kopē, to cut, so called because the trees are cut to the ground every few years, to make underwood as cover for game.

Copse, kop's. Same as Copice. (See above.)

Copula, plu. copulas, kop'u.ū.lūh, &c. The verb which unites or couples the predicate with the subject: viz., is or is not.

Copulate, kop'ū.lāt (to pair sexually); cop’ulat-ed, cop’ulat-ing (R. xix.); copulation, kop'u.ū.lāt.ion.
Copulative, kōp'ə.la.tɪv, connective, as “copulative conjunctions.” Copulatory, kōp''ə.lə.tə.rɪ.
French copulation, copulative; Latin cópula, cópulatio, cópulatīvus, v. cópulāre, to unite, to couple.
Copy, plu. copies, kōp'py, kōp'plz. A transcript, a pattern.
Cop'y, copies, kōp'plz; copi-ed, kōp'pld; copi-er, kōp'ilcr; cop'y-ing, cop'y-ist, cop'y-right, cop'y-book, cop'y-hold.
Fr. copie, a transcript; Low Lat. cópia, a transcript, v. cópīare.
Coquet, kō.kēt' (verb), to “play” love-making. Coquette (noun).
Coquet', coquett'-ed (R. xxxvi.), coquett'-ing (R. ii., b.)
Coquette, kō.kēt'; coquett'-ish, coquett'ish-ly (jauntily).
French coqueter (v.), coquettitude (coq, [to imitate] a cock).
Cor- (Latin prefix), con before r.
Coracle, kōr'rā.kl, a Welsh boat; Curricula, kūr'rə.klə, a carriage.
"Coracle," Welsh corwgl (corogw, a frame or carcase).
"Curricula," Latin currículum, a little carriage (-cl- or -culus, dim.)
Coral, kōr'ral (a zoophyte, the shells conglomerated).
Corall-aceous, kōr'rə.lət.l̩j''-sl̩us (adj.); corall-ine, kōr'rə.lən.ən.
Coralliferous, kōr'ral.i.fərəs. Containing coral.
Coralliform, kōr'rə.lər.form, resembling coral; cor'all-ite.
Coralloid, kōr'rə.lət.ōd; coralloid-al, kōr'rə.lət.ōd''-əl.
Greek korallion eidos, coral-like.
("Coral" ought to have double "l," or its compounds only one "l." R.iii.)
Fr. corail, corailine, corallinule; Lat. corallium, corallum, or cūrālium; Gk. korallion or korullion, coral.
Coramach, kōr'rən.nək. Lamentation for the dead.
Gaelic coruib ranaich, crying together.
Corbeil, kōr'bel (used in sieges). Corbel, kōr'bel (used in architecture). The base of a Corinthian pillar, the projecting knob (often carved) on which an arch rests.
Cor-bel, cor-belled (2 syl.), cor'bel·ling.
Fr. corbeille, a small basket, a corbel; Lat. corbula, a little basket.
Cord (string); Chord (of music); Cawed, past tense of caw.
Cord, to fasten with cord; cord'age, cord collectively.
French corde; Latin chorda; Greek chordé (-age suffix collective).
Cordelier, kōr'də.lər'-. A grey friar who is girded with a rope.
French cordelier (corde, a rope), one who wears a rope.
Cordial (n.), kōr'dər.al. A cheering draught; (adj.) hearty.
Cor'dial-ly, cor'dial·ness, cordiality, kōr'dial.ət.ɪ.tɪ. French cordial, cordialité (Latin cor, gen. cordis, the heart).
 Cordovan, kōr.də.vən (not kōr.də.vən), Spanish leather. So called from Cor'dova (not Cor'do'va), where it was first made.
 Corduroy, kōr'droy. A thick ribbed cotton for trousers.
French cord du roi, the king’s cord,
Cordwainer, kord′way-ner. A worker in leather, not cord maker.

French cordouanier, now cordonier, a corruption of cordovanier, a worker in Cor′dovan leather.

Core, Corps, Caw, kör. Core. (Lat. cor the heart, Gk. kēr.)
Core (of an apple), v. to take out the core; cored, cor′ing.
Corps, kör, a body of soldiers. (Fr. corps, Latin corpus.)
Caw. The cry of a crow, an imitation word.

Coreopsis, kör′é-op′sis. The tick-seeded sunflower.

Greek koris ὀπίσις, a bug in appearance [referring to the seed].

Coriander, kör′i-án′der. A plant famed for its seed.

Old English coriōn; Latin cōriandrum; Greek κοριάννων or κορίον (kōris, a bug). The bruised seed smells like that insect.

Cork, Calk or Caulk, Cauk. All pronounced kork.

Cork (of a bottle), v. corked (1 syl.), cork′-y, tasting of the cork; cork′-ness, having the buoyancy of a cork.

Calk. To close the seams of a ship with oakum.

Cauk. A sulphate of barium. (A miner’s word.)

German kork; Latin cortex, the bark of a tree.

Cormorant, kör′mō-rant. A glutton, the sea-raven.

French cormorant; Latin cōrvenus marinus, the sea-raven.

Corn. Grain; an excrescence on the feet; to salt meat.

Corn (grain), has no plural, except when the general crop or different varieties are referred to; as “Corns are better.”

Old English corn; German korn; Danish korn; Latin granum.

Corn, plu. corns (on the feet); corn-y; cor′neous; horny.

Old English corn; Welsh corn; French corne; Latin cornu, horn.

Corn (to salt meat), corned (1 syl.), corn′-ling.

German kornen, to corn or salt meat.

Cornea, kör′né-ā. The membrane in front of the eye.

French cornée; Latin cornēus, horny (cornu, horn).

Cornelian, kör′ne-lē-an. A chalcedony. (See Carnelian.)

Cornet, kör′net, a cavalry ensign; a horn. Cor′net-cy (-cy denotes “rank”). Cor′net-a-piston, a musical instrument.

French cornette, a cavalry officer; cornet, a horn; cornet à piston. The officer so called carries the “cornette” or ensign of his company.

Cornice, kör′nīs (not cornish, as it is very often pronounced).

The border round the ceiling of a room.

Italian cornice; Greek κόρωνις, the end or finish of anything.

Cornu-am′monis (not -ammon′is), the ammonite (q.v.)

Cornucopia, kör′nu-kō′-pi-ā. Emblem of abundance.

Latin cornu cōpia, horn of plenty. It was the horn of Amalthea (nurse-goat of Jupiter) which Achelōus gave to Herculēs.
Corolla, kor'o.läh, blossom; corollaceous, kör'-röl.lay'shüs (adj. of corolla); corollet, kor'-röl.let, one leaf of a blossom.

Latin côrolla, a little crown (dimin. of côrôna, a crown).

Corollary, kor'-röl.lä.ry (not kor'-röl.lä.ny nor kor'-röl.lair'ry).

An inference which rises out of an inference: Suppose it is proved that matter was created, then it follows as a "corollary" that there was a creator anterior to the existence of matter, and that matter is not eternal, &c.

Latin côrollârium, a consectary (from côrolla, a garland which was given invariably to an actor who had performed his part well).

Coronilla, kor'-ro.nïl'lah (not coronella). A plant so called because the flowers crown the branches in a corymb.

French coronille (Latin côrolla, with a diminutive ending).

Corona, ko.rö'.nah, a halo; the upper surface of molar teeth; the margin of a radiated compound flower; a drip, &c.

Coronal, kor'-ro.nïl, belonging to a crown; coronet, kor'-ro.net, the crown worn by a nobleman; a downy tuft on seed.

Coronation, kor'-ro.nay'.shan. The ceremony of crowning.

Coroneted, kör'-ro.net.ed, entitled to wear a coronet; coronated, kör'-ro.nay.ted, crowned; coronary, kor'-ro.märy.

French coronâl ("coronation" is one of the very few words in -tion which is not French); Latin côrônâti, côrônâtus.

Coroner, kor'-ro.nér. So called because he has chiefly to do with "Pleas of the Crown." (Low Latin coronâtor, a coroner.)

Corporal, Corporeal, kor'-po.rål, kör'-pö'-rël (adjectives).

Corporal. Pertaining to the body, bodily, of the body.

Corporeal. Having a material body.

"Corporal punishment," bodily punishment; not corporeal punishment (punishment having a material body).

"Corporeal substance," "This corporeal frame," that is a substance or frame having a material body.

"Corporeal pain," pain of the body; "Corporeal injury."

"Corporeal rights," rights over material substances.

"Corporeal" is opposed to Mental; "Corporeal" to Spiritual or Immaterial.

Corporeal-ly, bodily. Corporeal-ly, in a material form.

"He was present corporally," bodily, in his proper person.

"The ghost in Hamlet is shown on the stage corporeal-ly," that is, not as a spirit, but having a material form.

Corporal-ity, bodily state. Corporeal-ity, materiality.

Raleigh speaks of the "corporeality of light," it should be "corporeality," meaning that light is material, according to Newton's theory; but it would be quite correct to speak... of the "corporeality" of the ghost, meaning his embodied state, or having his own veritable body.

Corporal. The lowest officer in a company of foot soldiers.

Corporal. The lowest officer in a company of foot soldiers. The cloth which covers the eucharistic elements. Hence a Corporal Oath (or Corporal Oath), one taken while touching the eucharistic cloth.

(The spelling of "Corporal," for an officer is incorrect. It ought to be caporal. French caporal; Italian caporale; Spanish caporal, a chief; Latin caput, a head (head of the men under him).

"Corporal," Fr. corporal, corporalité; Lat. corporālis, corporātus.

Corporate, kor'porət, united in a corporation; corporate-ly.

Corporation, kor'porə'shən. A body politic.

French corporation; Latin corporātio, corporātus (corpus, a body).

Corporeal, kor-pərə-l əl. Material, opposed to spiritual.

Corporeal-ly, corporeal-ity, corporeal-ism, materialism. Corporeal-ist, one who denies the existence of spirit independent of matter; corporeity, kor'pərə-tət, materiality. (Corporeal or Corporal, see under Corporal.)

French corporeal, corporéité; Latin corporēns, bodily (corpus, a body).

Corps, plu. corps, kor, plu. korz. A body of soldiers. (See Core.)

Corpse, plu. corpses, korps, plu. korps'əz. A human dead body.

French corps; Latin corpus, a body (coro əpərə, flesh fashioned).

Corpulence, kor'pə-ləns (not corpulance), corpulency, bulkiness of body; cor'pulent, stout; cor'pulent-ly, fleshily.

French corpulence, corpulent; Latin corpulentia, corpulente (adv).

Corpuscle, plu. corpuscles or corpuscula, kor'pus'ku lə, plu. kor.pus'ku ləz or kor.pus'ku lədə. A minute particle.

Corpuscular (adj.), corpuscularian, kor.pus'ku lərən (not -larən). One who maintains that corpuscles were the germs of all material substances, and not the "Divine Word."

French corpuscule, corpusculaire; Latin corpusculum (corpus a body, and -cium a diminutive).

Correct. The degrees are: nearly correct, more nearly correct, very nearly correct, quite correct. More correct is the comparative of "incorrect;" most correct means quite correct, the most correct means that all others are incorrect.

Correct (adj.), right; (verb) to punish, to put right.

Correction, kor.rek'shən. Emendation, punishment.

Correction-al. (This word ought to be correction-el.) Corrective, kor.rek'tiv. That which corrects.

Correct-er (not -er, Rule xxxvii.). One who corrects.

French correctif, correction, correctionnel; Latin correctia, correctus, γ, corrigėre (cor [con] rego, to regulate or set quite right).
Correspond, to hold intercourse by letters; corresponding, writing letters, similar; correspondent, one who corresponds, something which "pairs" with something else.

Correspondence. Intercourse by letters, similarity.

Correspondently. In a corresponding manner.

Correspondingly, by letter; Correspondent, writing letters, similar; corresponding, one who responds, something which "pairs" with something else.

Corridor, korridor (French). A gallery communicating with different apartments of a house. (Latin curro, to run.)

Corrigendum, plu. corrigenda, korri.jen.dum, plu. korri.jen.dah. To be corrected (Latin). Rule xlvii.

Corrigible, korri.ji.ble, capable of correction. Incorrigible, hopelessly bad, regardless of reproof.

French corrigible; Latin corrigibilis (corrige, to correct).

Corroborate, kor.ro.berate (not kor.ro.brate), to confirm.

Corroborative, kor.ro.berat.ive (not kor.ro.berat.ive), korro.berat.ing, korro.berat.or.

Corroboration, korro.beration (not kor.ro.beration). (In Lat. "-rō" is long; "korro.beration would be better.)

French corroborer, corroborant, corroboration; Latin corroboratōre (cor [con] robēre, to strengthen with oak, robur, oak).

Corrode, kor.ro.de (not kor.ro.de), to eat away by degrees, as by rust, &c.; corroded, corroding, corroded (not -ant); corrodedible (not -able), corroded-er (R. xix.), corrodedibility.

Corrosion, kor.ro.shun (not kor.ro.shun). A fretting.

Corrosive, kor.ro.śive; corrosive-ly, corrosive-ness.

Corrosibility, kor.ro.śibility (not kor.ro.śibility).

French corrosion: Lat. corrūgatio, corrūgans-antis, corrūgāre (cor [con] rāgo, to make into wrinkles with [frowning], ruga, a wrinkle).

Corrupt, kor.ro.p't (not kor.ro.p't), to spoil; corrupt-ed (R. xxxvi.), corrupt-ing, corrupt-er (more corrupt), corrupt-est (most corrupt), corrupt-or, one who corrupts (R. xxxvii.), fem. corruptress; corrupt-ly, corrupt-ness, corruptible (not -able), corruptibly, corruptible-ness, corruptibility (not kor.ro.p't.śibility), corruption, kor.ro.p'.shun.

French corruption: Lat. corruptio, corruptor, corruptum (cor [con] rumpo, to break).
Corsair, kor′saiv′, a pirate. Coarser, kor′ser. Course, ko′r-se.

"Corsair," Fr. corsaire (fr. It. corso, a race). The word was first applied to ships of chase during war, then to the captains who had "letters of mark," and ultimately to sea-rovers and pirates. "Coarser," comp. of coarse, q.v. "Course," a swift horse.

Corse, Course, Course, Corps, Cores, Caws, Cause.

Corse, korse. Poetical for "corpse." (Latin corpus, a body.)

Coarse, ko′rse. Rough, not refined. (Old Eng. gorst, rough.)

Course, ko′dorse. A race. (Latin cursus, a race.)

Corps, korz, plu. of corps, kor (French). Bodies of soldiers.

Cores, korz, plu. of core. Hearts of apples, &c. (Latin cor.)

Caws, korz, 3rd per. sing. of caw. Applied to the cry of crows.

Cause, korz. The reason or motive. (Latin causa, a cause.)

Corset, Cosset, Corslet, kor′set, kos′set, kors′let.

Corset (Fr). A bodice for women (corps, a body, and -et, dim.)

Cosset. A pet (Old Eng. cas, a kiss, a little thing for kisses).

Corslet. A little cuirass (Fr. corselet, corps; a body, let, dim).

Corset, kor′sned. A piece of consecrated bread used for an ordeal.

Old English corsenece cors sned, curse morsel. The person under trial said, "May this morsel prove a curse if I am guilty, and turn to wholesome nourishment if I am innocent."

Cortège, lwr′tage′. A train of attendants. (French cortège.)

Cortes, kor′tēz (Spanish). The parliament of Spain or Portugal.

Spanish corte, a resident of a town, the representatives of towns.

Coruscate, kor′sē.kate, to glisten; cor′uscat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), cor′uscat-ing (R. xix.); coruscation, kor′sē.kā′shun.

French coruscation; Latin coruscatio, coruscare, to glisten, to flash.

Corvet or Corvette, kor′vet′. A sloop of war. (French corvette.)

Latin corbita, a hoy; corbitare, to freight a ship.

Corylaceae, kor′i.ley′.sē. An order of plants, including the oak, beech, chestnut, and hazel.

Latin corylus; Greek κόρυλος, a hazel (-aceae denotes an "Order").

Corymb, kor′i.mbd, a bunch or cluster; corymbiated, kor′i.mbd′.bā′.ted (not corymbated), having berries or blossoms in clusters; corymbiferous, kor′i.mbd′.fē′.rus, bearing clusters; corymbose, kor′i.mbd′.bose (adj.)

Latin corymbyfer, a berry-bearer, like ivy, corymbus, a cluster.

Greek korymbos, a cluster of fruit or flowers (kōrus, a head).

Co-secant, ko′-sec′.kānt. The secant of the complementary arc.

Co-sine. The sine of the complementary arc.

Latin secans, gen. secantis, cutting. Sinus, a curve or bay.

Cosey. Should be cosy, adv. cosi-ly, ko′z.zy, ko′z.ī.ly. (The adv. "cosily" cannot be formed from "cosey," R. xiii.)
Cosmetic, kōs·met·‘ic. A preparation for beautifying the face by removing freckles, &c. Also an adj.
Gk. kōs·metikós, a beautifier; kōsmēō, to adorn; Fr. cosmetique.

Cosmogony, Cosmography, Cosmology, Geology, Geography.

Cosmogony, kōs·mōg·‘on·y. An “a priori” theory of the world’s origin. (Gk. kōsmōs gōnd, the world’s generation.)
Gen. i. is the Bible theory of the world’s origin.

Geology, jē·dl·‘o·g‘y. An “a posteriori” view of the world’s origin. It explains from known facts, how the rocks, &c., of the earth have been produced.
Greek ge graphē, a description of the earth, in detail.

Cosmography, kōs·mōg·‘ra·f‘y. A description of the structure, figure, and order, of the world, the relation of its parts, and how to represent them on paper.
Greek kōsmōs graphē, description of the earth, as a whole.

Cosmology, kōs·mōl·‘o·g‘y. A treatise on the elements of the earth, the laws of nature, and the modifications of material things. (Greek kōsmōs lógos, treatise of the world.)

Geography, jē·g‘r‘a·f‘y. A description of the surface of the earth, its countries, inhabitants, and productions.
Greek ge graphē, description of the earth in detail.

Physical Geography treats of climates, elevations, configurations, influence of coast, tides, winds, &c.

Cosmog‘ony (v.s.), cosmog‘onist. A writer of cosmogony.

Cosmo‘graphy (v.s.), cosmog‘rapher, a writer of cosmography; cosmographical, kōs·mo·gra·f‘i·kal; cosmographical-ly.

Cosmology (see above) cosmologist, a writer of cosmology; cosmological, kōs·mo·lo·g‘i·kal; cosmological-ly.

Cosmopol‘ite, kōs·mōp‘o·l‘i·t‘e. A citizen of the world.

Cosmopolitan, kōs·mo·pōl‘i·t‘an (adj.)

Cos‘mo·pol‘i·tan-ism. A system which regards man (regardless of nationality) as a citizen of the world.
Greek kōsmōs pol·lēς, citizen of the world (-ism, doctrine, system).

Cosmorama, plu. cosmoramas, kōs·mo·rā·m‘a·h, plu. -māς. A representation of the world in large panoramic pictures.

Cosmoramic, kōs·mo·rā·m‘i·k. Pertaining to the above.
Greek kōsmōs horāma, a view of the world.

Cosmos. The world considered as a whole. The word means the “beauty of arrangement,” and was first applied to creation by Pythagoras. Cos·mical, cos·mical-ly.
Greek kōsmōs, the world; kōsmēō, to arrange.

Cossack, kōs·sāk. One of the Cossacks; a Russian tribe.

Cosset, a pet lamb, brought up by hand. Corset, a bodice (q.v.)
Old English cos and -et dim. A little thing to be kissed.
Cost, past cost, past part. cost. Cost, koste (of the sea).
Costly, kost'-ly; costli-ness (R. xi.), expensiveness.
Ital. costo (n.), expense; costare (v.); Lat. consto, to cost. (We say, "What did it stand you in?" [cost]; consto, to stand.)
Costermonger, kost'-ter.mung'-ger. Corruption of costard-monger, a seller of "costards;" that is, apples.
Old English costard, a species of apple; monger, a dealer.
Costive, kost'.tive, contraction of "con'stipative". costive-ly, costive-ness, having the bowels con'stipated.
Latin consti-to, to cram close together (con stip'o, to stuff together).
Costume, kost'-tume' (French). National style of dress.
Cosy, kos'-sy, snug and comfortable. Co'si-ly, kos'-si-ly, snugly.
Scotch cosis. Old English cos, a kiss (not cosey).
Cot, Cote, Coat, kot, kote, köte, koot.
Cot, a cottage; an infant’s bed, &c. Cott-ar, a cottager (R. i.)
Cote. A pen for sheep, doves, &c., called sheepcote, &c.
Coat. A raiment for men or boys. (Fr. cotte, Ital. cotta.)
Coot. A small black water fowl. (Welsh cutiar, a coot.)
Old English cot or cote, a cottage, a bed, a pen.
Co-tangent. The tangent of the complement of an arc. (See Co-.)
Cotemporary, cotemporaneous. (See Contemporary.)
Cotillon, ko.til'.yon. The "petticoat" dance, so called because ladies had to hold up their gown and show their petticoat.
French cotillon, a petticoat; a dance.
Cottage, köt'.tage. a peasant’s house. Cot’-tag-er, cot’tjer, köt'-'ti'er, a squatter, an independent peasant (Obsolète).
Low Latin cottagium, a cottage; cottarius, a cottager.
Cotton, kot'-'n, thread made from the cotton plant, a fabric made of cotton; cotton-y, containing cotton, feeling like cotton.
Cottons, cotton threads, cotton fabrics. Cotton (verb), to cling to a person fondly, as cotton clings to one’s clothes.
French coton, verb colonner; Arabic al gaton, the cotton-plant.
Cotyledon, köt'-i.les’-don. The seminal leaf of plants which first appears above ground, and forms part of the embryo.
Dicotyledons, di'. Plants with two seminal leaves.
Monocotyledons, mōn'-o-. Plants with one cotyledon.
Acotyledons, ac'. Plants without a seminal leaf.
Lat. cotyledon, the hollow of the huckle-bone; Gk. kötule'don, a socket.
Couch, köwch (n.), a sofa; (v.) to hide, to fix a spear in its rest; couched (1 syl.), couch-ing, couch-er, couch-ant; kowch'-ant or koowsh'ong (in Her.) lying down with head raised.
Fr. couche, a bed; coucher (v.), couchant; Lat. col [con] locare, to lay.
Cough, kōf (n. and v.); coughed, kōf't; cough-ing, kōf'ing.

There are twenty-five words ending in -ough, with eight distinct sounds,—viz., ok, off, uf, up; ow, öw, oo, er. Only two ("cough" and "trough") have the sound of off. These are both native words, coh' and troh, guttural. (Not one of the twenty-five words have any right to the diphthong "ou," and if the original vowels had been preserved much of the present absurdity of pronunciation would have been avoided.) (Rule xliv.)

Old English coh', contraction of cohettan (=kōf'tan), to cough.

Could, kood (to rhyme with "good"), past tense of Can, "to be able," "to know how," never an auxiliary, but it stands in regimen with other words without to between them: as "I could write." Here write is infinitive mood, being the latter of two verbs in regimen.

Our word "could" is a blunder. The Old Eng. cunn[an] "to know how to do a thing," makes can in the present tense, and cūthe in the past; but the verb cūth[ian] "to make known," has cūthode for the past tense, contracted to cu'd our "could" (l interpolated).

Council, Counsel, Councillor, Counsellor.

Coun'cil. An assembly met for consultation. (Lat. consilium.)

Coun'sel. Advice, a pleader. (Latin consilium.)

Coun'cil-lor. A member of a council. (Rule iii. -or.)

Counsell-or. One who gives advice, a barrister. (R. iii. -or.)

Coun'selled (2 syl.), advised; coun'sell-ing, advising.

Council-board, plu. council-boards.

Coun'men'ical council, plu. Coun'men'ical councils.

The distinction may be remembered thus: Council is concilio, con calo, to call [the board] together; but counsel is consilio, to consult. You consult a "counsellor," you call together "councillors."

Count, a foreign title, fem. count'ess. We retain the feminine, but have substituted our native word "earl" for count.

Count'ess, plu. count'esses, poss. countess's, plu. countesses'.

Count-y, plu. counties, coun'tiz. We have retained this word, and also our native word "shire," [a count's] share.

Italian conte; French compte; Latin cōmes, gen. cōnitēs, a companion of the chief or leader; comitātus, a county or share of the cōmes.

Count, to reckon; counter, one who counts, base money to assist in reckoning, a shop table where accounts are paid; (adv.) the wrong way, contrary to; a prefix.

Italian contare; French compter; Latin computāre, to compute, contracted to compt, and corrupted into count.
Counteract, kown’-ter.œct. To frustrate, to act contrary to.
Latin contra ago, supine actum, to act in opposition to.

Counterbalance, kown’-ter.ðælt-ænce.
(Only one t in balance.)
Latin contra bilanz, [balance] against balance.

Counterfeit, kown’-ter.ʃiːt (noun), kown’-ter.ʃiːt (verb); counterfeit-er, kown’-ter.ʃiːt-er; counterfeit-ed (R. xxxvi.)
Latin contra feœra, supine factum [facio], to make against [law], to forge, to imitate without authority or right.

Counterfoil, kown’-ter.ʃoɪl.
Part of a check kept by the drawer.
Latin contra folium, the corresponding leaf.

Countermand, kown’-ter. 曬naɪnd.
'To withdraw a command.
Latin contra manda, to command the opposite [of a command].

Countermarch; kown’-ter. æmært. To march back again.
Low Latin contra marchio, to march in the opposite direction.

Countermine; kown’-ter.ɪniːn. to dig a gallery underground in search of an enemy's mine.
Low Latin contra minero, to make a mine in the contrary direction.

Counterpane, kown’-ter.æin.
A bed quilt.
A corruption of the Latin culletia puncta, a quilt worked in a pattern, French courtépoinde, a counterpane.

Counterpoise, kown’-ter.poɪz, to counterbalance; counterepoised (3 syl.), counterepoising (Rule xix).
Latin contra pondero, to weigh against [a given weight]: French contre poids.—i.e., poids, [weights] against weights. (See Avoirdupoise.)

Countersign, kown’-ter.ʃiːn, to sign a document in attestation of a signature; countersignature, kown’-ter.ʃiːɡ’-næ.tʃuːr; countersignatories, kown’-ter.ʃiːɡ’-næ.tʃoʊ.riːz.
Latin contra signo, to sign against [another signature].

Italian contessa; French comt`esse; Low Latin comitissa.

Country, plu. countries (R. xi.), kœn’-trɪʃ, kœn’-trɪz (Fr. contrée); countryman, fem. countrywoman, plu. countrymen, countrywomen, wɪm.æn; poss. sing. man's, woman's, poss. plu. men's, women's, wɪm.ænz.
(Obs. The y is not changed to ð in these words. Rule xi.)

Countrfy, kœn’-trɪ.fɪ (R. xi.), to give the air and mien of a rustic; countrified, kœn’-tri.ʃɪdɪ, having the air and mien of a rustic. (Latin con terra, land contiguous [to a town].)

County, plu. counties (R. xi.), kown’-ty, kown’-tiːz.
Norman French counté, French comté; Latin comitatus, a county.
Coup (Fr.), koo, a stroke. Coupé (Fr.), koo-pay, part of a coach.

Coup d'état, koo-de-tar. A sudden raid on political foes.

Coup-de-grace, koo-de-gras. The victor's last blow.

Coup-de-main, koo-de-main. A sudden attack on a fort.

Coup-d'oeil, koo-de-yel. A comprehensive view of a scene.

Coup-de-soliel, koo-de-sol-layel. A sun-stroke.

Coupé (Fr.), koo-pay. The first division of a stage coach, a private railway carriage furnished with only one bench.

French couper, to cut. A part cut off for travellers.

Couple, *koo'p', a pair, to link together; coupled, *koo-pid'; coupling, koo-peling. (Fr. couple; Lat. copula, a couple.)

Coupon, Too'p-on. The part of a bond presented for a dividend.

Fr. couper, to cut off; because they are cut off as the claim falls due.

French courage, koo-rayjus; Latin corago, to move the heart.

Courant, koo'r ant, kur rent. A special messenger sent with a dispatch.

(*This word ought to be spelt with double "r." As it now stands its base would be ceur, the heart; or cura, care."

French courrier; Latin corriere; Latin currre, to run.

Course, koor. A career, to hunt. (Lat. cursus; Fr. cours.)

coursed (1 syl.), kurs-ing, kurs-er, kurs-es (2 syl.).

Corse, koerse. Poetical form of corpse. (Lat. corpus, a body.)

Corps (plu.), korz. Companies of soldiers. (French corps.)

Cause, kovz. The reason, a plea. (Lat. causa, a cause.)

Caws, kaws, third person sing. of caw, to cry like a crow.

Court. The royal palace, those attached to it, a place for trying criminals, &c. To woo, to strive to please, &c.

Court (a palace), courtier, kor-tye-er, one of the court.

Court'ly (adj.), fit for a court; court'li-ness (Rule xi.)

Courteous, kor-tyooz (not kort-tichus nor koo-tichus), affable; courteously, courteously, kor-tyooz-ness.

Court-plaster; kort play-ster (not play-ster). Black sticking plaster; once used by court ladies for beauty-spots.
Courtisan, ko'r.te.zan (not kur.te.zan, nor kor.te.zan). A woman of immodest character. (French courtisane.)
(This word meant originally a "female courtier," and tells a sad tale of the past history of courts.)
Court (of justice), Court of Equity, plu. Courts of Equity; court-martial, plu. court-martials, sessions of the same court; courts-martial, different courts (mar.shal).
Court. A paved way. (French court, curt, a short [cut].)
Court-yard. A yard before a house. (Latin cohors, gen. co.hortis, a yard with outhouses for poultry, cattle, pigs, &c.)
Court (to woo), court'-ed (R. xxxvi.), court'-ing, court'-er.
"Court" (a palace or hall of justice), Fr. cour; Ital. corte; Lat. curia (from cura, care), where the "public cares" are attended to.
"Court" (to woo), Fr. faire la cour, to make a [love] suit, courtiser.

Courtesy, plu. courtesies, kor.te.s, plu. kor.te.siz (kur.te.sy is nearly obsolete), civility.

Courtesy, plu. courtesies, kert.sy, kert.siz. Woman's act of reverence. A man's is a bow (rhyme with now).

Courtesy, kert.sy (verb); courtesies, kert.siz; courtesied, kert.sid; courtesy-ing, kert.sy.ing. To make a woman's act of reverence by bending the knee.
(-sy suffix, denotes an act. A "courtesy" is an act of reverence, similar to that which is used at court.)

Cousin, Cousin-german, Cozen. All pronounced kuizn.

Cousin. The children of my aunt or uncle are my first cousins; the children of my great aunt or uncle are my second cousins; the children of my aunt or uncle by a second marriage are my step cousins.

"Step" is the Old English steop, an orphan, one parent being lost.

Cousin-german, plu. cousins-german. First cousins.
Latin germánus, of the same stock (germen, a branch).

Cozen, to cheat. (Italian cotzerie, cheating. Halliwell.)

"Cousin" French, a male cousin; cousine, a female cousin. We want a similar distinction; Latin consobrinus, a cousin.

Covenant, kuv.čnant. A stipulation on stated terms.

Covenant-er, kuv.čnant.er. One who joins in a covenant.

French covenant, a contract; Latin conventum, an agreement (con venio, to come together [to make terms]).

Cover, kuv.čer, to overspread; covered (2 syl.), cov'er-ing.

Coverture, kuv.čer.tɛchur. Shelter, the state of a married woman who is under the "cover" of her husband.

French couvrir, to cover; couverturé, not in the English sense, but meaning a cover for a book, &c. "Coverture" in French is abs.
Covert, kūv′.ert, secret. Covet, kūv′.et, to desire eagerly.

Cov′ert, cov′ert-ly, cov′ert-ness. (French couvert.)

Covet, kūv′.et (see above); cov′et-ed (R. xxxvi.), cov′et-ing, cov′et-ing-ly; cov′et-er, one who desires wrongfully; covetous, kūv′.et.uš (not kūv′.e.tculos), greedy to obtain; covetous-ly, kūv′.et.uš.ly; covetous-ness, kūv′.et.uš.ness; covet-able, kūv′.et.č.b′l, worthy to be wished for.

(Dean Alford says covetous and covetousness are "commonly mangled by our clergy" into "covetious" and "covetousness."—Queen's English, p. 76.)

Latin cupidus, greedy (from cupi., to desire).

Covey, kuv′.y. A brood of partridges, &c. (Fr. couvée, a brood.)

Cow, plu. cows or kine. Cow rhymes with now (not coo).

(The sixty-eight words ending in "ow," ten monosyllables and two dissyllables have the "ou" sound, like "cow," and fifty-six the "o" sound like "grow." See Rule lix.)

Old English CU, plu. cil (=ky). Kine is a collective plural, ky-ein, corrupted into kine. The plural suffix -en is seen in ox-en.

Cow (to dispirit), cowed (1 sy1.), cow-ing. (Danish kue, to subdue.)

Coward, kow′.ard; cow′.ard-ly, cow′.ardli-ness (Rule xi.), cowardise, kow′.ar.dis, want of courage. (ow as in now.)

French coward, cowardise, a corruption of culward or culvert (culver, Old English culfre, a pigeon). In heraldry, coward means an animal with its tail between its legs. Latin culum vertere.

Coxcomb, kox′.kume, a fop; coxcombry, kox′.kome.ry (not cox- .

coxcomical, kox′.kom.′i.čil, foppish. The ancient licensed jesters were called coxcombs, because they wore a cock's comb in their caps.

Coy, shy, demure; coy′-ly, coy′-ness, coy′.ish (Rule xiii.), coy′.ishly, coy′ish-ness (-ish added to adj. is diminutive).

Fr. coi; Lat. quiεtus (from quiε, rest; Gk. κηόδης, to lie down to sleep).

Cozen, to cheat. Cousin. A relative, (See Cousin.)

Crab, a crustacean, a wild apple, a machine; crabb′ed (2 sy1.), unamiable; crabb′-ed-ly, crabb′-ed-ness (Rule i.).

"The crustacean," Old Eng. cræba; Lat. carāb[us]; Gk. καραβός.

"A morose person," Lat. crābro, a hornet or waspish person.

Crack. Excellent, to boast, to split, to make a sharp noise.

"In a crack" (instantly), French croa; Latin creπtus digitürum.

Cracked (1 sy1.), crack′-er, a small firework.

"Crack" (excellent), Lat. creπare, to boast; Fr. croquer, to boast.

"Crack" (to split), Old Eng. crud′[an]; Germ. krach (n.); Fr. crae.

Crackle, kraκ′.t (dim of "crack"); crackled, kraκ′.čéd; crackling, kraκ′.č.ling, part. also the skin of roast pork.

Cracknel, kraκ′.nel, a brittle cake. A corruption of the French croq uninole (kro.kin.yol), from croquet, crisp.

("Take with thee ten loaves, and cracknels..." 1 Kgs. xiv. 3.)
Cradle, *kray*d'bl*, an infant’s bed, to put into a cradle; cradled, *kray*d’ld*; craddling, *kray*d’lling. (“Cradel” is older.)

Old English cradell; Greek kradlo, to swing.

Craft, a trade, guile, a small ship. Crafty, kraf’ty; craft’i-ly (Rule xi.), craft’i-ness, skill in device, cunning.

Old English craft. This word, like “cunning,” had originally no reference to underhand dealing, but referred to skill in workmanship, knowledge of one’s trade, contrivance, &c.

Crag, cragg-ed (2 syl.), rugged; cragg’-ed-ness (3 syl.), Rule i.; cragg’-y, of a rugged character; cragg’i-ness, a cragg’i state; cragg’i-or (more cragg’y); cragg’i-est (most cragg’y).

Welsh craig, a crag; Greek krach[i]a, a crag or rock.

Cram, crammed (1 syl.), cramm’-ing, cramm’-ér (Rule i.)

Old Eng. cram[m]an, to stuff; past cramm’d, past part. cramm’m’d.

Cramp, a contraction of a muscle; v. cramped, kramp’t.

Crampoons*, cramp’-irons for raising stones; crampoons (in Bot.), the roots which serve as supports to ivy, &c.

Old Eng. kramma, a cramp; Fr. crampoon, a crampoon or crampoon.

Cranberry, plu. cranberries, krän’ber.ri (not cranberry).

German kranbeere, the cranberry, so called because the fruit-stalks, before the blossom expands, resemble the head and neck of a crane.

Crane (1 syl.), a bird, a lifting machine.

Old English crán, Welsh garan, the long-legged bird (from gar, the shanks, our “gaiter”). Heron or herm, is a variety of the same word. Greek gérō尼斯; Latin grus.

Craniology, *kray*ni.úl’-o.gy, now called phrenology.

Craniologist, *kray*ni.úl’-o.gist, now called phrenologist.

Lat. cránium, the skull; Gk. kránton (“a” short in Lat., long in Gk.)

Crank (a machine), a conceit or twist of the mind; crank’y, crank’i-ness (R. xi.), liable to be upset, crotchety.

Crankle, krán’kl; crankled, krán’kl’d; crank’ling (dim.)

“Cranky” (weak), German krankhör (krank, sick).

“Crank” (a machine), French crán, a cog, crank, or notch.

Cranny, a chink; crannied, krän.núd (adj.), full of chinks.

French crán, a notch; Latin crena, a notch or split.

Crantara, krän.tará, ráh. The fiery cross which formed the rallying symbol of the Scotch highlanders.

Gaelic cren tarradh, cross of shame; because disobedience to the summons incurred certain infamy.

Crape. A fabric. (French crép, from créper, to curl or wrinkle.)*

Cratch, a rack, a manger. Scratch, a slight skin-wound.

“Cratch,” Ital. craticia, a rack or crib; Fr. creche; Lat. crates, a hurdle.

Crater, kray'ter. The mouth of a volcano.

Latin cräter, Greek krátér, a cup or bowl.

Cranch or Crunch, to crush with the teeth (not screunch);

crunched (1 syl.), crunch'-ing; crunched, crunch'-ing.

Cravat, kra'vat (not krav'iat). A necktie.

French cravate, said to be from the Crabats or Croats, whose linen and muslin neck bands were introduced into France in 1636. We have, however, the Danish krave, a collar, and kruet, a little collar.

Crave, to long for; craved (1 syl.), crav'-ing, crav'-er (Rule xix.)

Old English craftan to implore; Welsh crafu, to crave.

Craven, kray'ven. A coward.

In former times, says Blackstone, controversies were decided by an appeal to battle. If one of the combatants cried out Craven (i.e., I crave mercy) he was deemed a coward, and held in infamy for not defending his claim to the utmost.

Craw. The crop or first stomach of a bird.

Norse kraas, the crop or craw; Germ. kragen, the neck (our "scrag").

Crawfish. A corruption of écrevisse (French), a crustacean.

Latin caràbus; Greek kàràbos, a crab or lobster.

Crayon, kray'on, a chalk for drawing. Crayons, chalks for drawing, drawings done in chalk. Crayoned (2 syl.)

French crayon (from crais, chalk; Latin craetum).

Craze (1 syl.), to distract; crazed (1 syl.), craz'-ing, craz'-y (Rule xix.), crazi'-ly; crazi'-ness (R. xi.). Fr. ecraser, to crush.

Creak, kreek, to make a grating noise. Creek, a small bay.

Creak, creeked (1 syl.), creek'-ing.

Welsh creek, a screech, crog, hoarse; French criquer, to creak.

"Creek," Old English creaca, a bay or creek; French crique.

Cream, kréem (n.) (v. to skim); creamed (1 syl.), cream'-ing, cream'-y (adj.), cream'-ness (R. xi.), cream-faced, pale.

Old English ream; French créme; Latin cremes, cream.

Crease, kree, a mark made by a fold; to mark by a fold, &c.;

creased (1 syl.), creas'-ing, R. xix. (Welsh creithen, a scar.)

Cresote, kre'sote. A liquid obtained from coal-tar.

Greek kreas sodó, I preserve meat (being an antiseptic).

Create, *kree*at', to make out of nothing; créat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.),

créat'-ing (R. xix.); créat'-or (R. xxxvii.); creative, kree'-

-o'tion; creative'-y, creative'-ness; creation, kre.o'shun.

Creatiture, kree'tchur. Every created animal or thing.

Latin creatio, creator, creaturá, a creature; creare, to create.

Credence, kree'dence (not dance), belief; credential, kree'den'-

-shat; credentials, schats, letters of testimony. Creed.

Credendum, plu. credenda, kree'den.dah. Articles of faith.

Credence-table. A small table to hold the bread and wine before consecration. (Ital. credenza, a shelf or buffet.)
Credible, krēd.i.b'l (not -able), worthy of belief (Lat. crēdi-bilitis); cred'ible-ness, cred'ibly, credibility, krēd.i.b'il-i.ty.

Credulous, krēd'u.lus; cred'ulous-ly, cred'ulous-ness.

Latin crēdūlus. (The "e" is long in Latin.)

Credulity, krēd'u.li.ty. Prone to believe. (Lat. crēdūlitas.)

Credit, krēd'.it, trust; to trust; cred'it-ed (R. xxxvi.), cred'it-ing, cred'it-or, cred'it-able, cred'itable-ness, cred'itably.

Credible, worthy of belief; creditable, praiseworthy.

Credibly, trustworthily; creditably, praiseworthily.

Cred'ibility, probability; cred'itable-ness, estimation.

Fr. crédit, n. créditer; Lat. crēdita, he trusts, crédo, to trust.

Credulous, krēd'u.lus. (See Credence.)

Creek. Articles of religious faith. (Lat. credo, I believe; Fr. créddo.)

Creek, krēk (not krīk), a small bay. Creek, a harsh noise.

Crepitate, krēp'.i.tate, to crack; crepitat-ed (R. xxxvi.), crepitat-ing, crepitation, krēp'.i.tay'.shun, a cracking noise.

French crépitation; Latin crēpitāre, to crackle (crēpō, to rattle).

Crepuscule, krēp.'pūs'.kule, twilight; crepus'cular (adj.)

French crepuscule, crepusculaire: Latin crēpusculum, twilight (from crēpušu [lux], doubtful light; -cum diminutive).

Crescendo, plu. crescendos, kre.shen'.do, plu. kre.shen'.doze (Ital.)

A mark (<=) in music, to denote that the force is to increase. The contrary word is diminuendo and the mark (>=).

Crescent, kre's.sent, shaped like the "horned" moon; poetical for Turkey, a crescent being the national symbol; growing.

Latin crescens, gen. crescentis, increasing.

Cress, plu. cresses or cress. A spring vegetable.

Old English cerse or cressa; French cresson; German kresse.

Cresset, krēs'.set. A beacon-light, so called because it was originally surmounted by a little cross.

French croisette (dim. of croix, a cross). It was by carrying about a "fiery cross" armies were at one time assembled in these islands.
Crest. An armorial device, a bird's comb, the cone of a helmet.
French creste now crête; Latin crista, a crest.
Cretaceous, krēˌtās ēˈəs, chalky. (Latin crēta, chalk.)
Crevise, Crevia, Crevasse, krēˈvəs, krēˈveə, krēˈvass.
Crevise, a chink. Crevisse, a crayfish. Crevasse, a huge rent in a glacier, &c.
“Crevise” and “crevasse” French crevasse, a cranny, a chink.
“Crevis,” Fr. dorevisse, a crayfish; Lat. cūrubus; Gk. kūrubōs.
Crew, kru, a ship's company; past tense of crow. (See Crow.)
Crewel, fine worsted yarn. Cruel, inhuman (both kruˈel.)
(Shakespeare speaks of “cruel garters.”—K. Lear, ii. 4.)
“Crewel,” corruption of clewel; clew, a ball of thread; Old English clew, a hank or ball of worsted. “Cruel,” Latin crūdēlis, cruel.
Crib, a stall for cattle, a bed for infants, to pilfer; cribbed (1 syl.), cribbing, cribb-ing, cribb-er (R. i.); cribb-age, a game at cards.
Old English crib, a stall or crib; Welsh criuddail, pillage, extortion.
Cribble, krīˈbəl, a corn-sieve; cribbled, krīˈbəld; cribbling.
(The double b [as if from “crib”] is a blunder.)
Fr. crible, a riddle; v. cribler; Lat. crībrae, to sift; crībellum, a sieve.
Crick, stiffness in the neck. Creek, a cove. Creak, a harsh noise.
“Crick,” Welsh crig, a crik; Old English kreas, rheumatic pain.
Crick-et, an insect, a game. Crick-et-er, one who plays cricket.
“Cricket” (the insect), Welsh criciad; Fr. criquet; Lat. a-crid-iun.
“Cricket” (the game), Old English cric, a club, and -et diminutive.
Crier, krīˈer, one who weeps; cries (1 syl.), cried (1 syl.), cry-ing.
Cryer. The town-cryer or bellman. (See Cry.)
Crime, sin (“i” long in the simple, but short in all its compounds).
Criminal, krīˈmən·əl; crim·inal-ly, crim·inal-ity; crim·inos, krīˈmənəs; crim·inos-ly.
Criminate, krīˈmən·ət; crim·inat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), crim·inat-ing (Rule xix.), crim·inat-or (not -er, Rule xxxvii.)
Criminatory, krīˈmən·ət·ər. Involving crime.
(In Latin the “cri-” is long in every instance.)
Latin crimen, crīm·i·nālis, crīm·i·nātio, crīm·i·nōsus, &c.
Crimp, to frizzle; a decoy; to decoy [sailors and fleece them].
“Crimp” (to frizzle), Old English ge·crympt, curled; Welsh crimpo.
“Crimp” (a decoy), the same word; meaning “to pinch or squeeze.” To “crimp” a collar is to pinch it into little furrows.
Crimson, krīˈmənˈən, a colour; crim·son·ed (2 syl.), crim·son·ing.
Italian creme·sino (from kermes, the cochineal insect).
Cringe, krín, to fawn with servility; cringed (1 syl.), cring’-ing, cring’-er (Rule xix.); cringes, krín’-es.
Old English críngan, or crígian, to cringe, to fawn.
Crinkle, krín’-k, to run in bends. Cringle, krín’-g, a loop.
Danish krinkel-krog, a place with tortuous ways.
Crinoline, krín’-o-lín. (not krín’-oi, nor krín’-oo-lén).
French crinoline (from crin, hair; Latin crinis túnnum, hair linen).
(An ill-formed word, which ought to mean "reddish linen," from crinum, a reddish lily. "Crimo" cannot make crínó.)
Cripple, kríp’-p, one who is lame, to maim; crippled (2 syl.); crippling, kríp’-pliniJ. (O. RePepel, a creeper, v; eTep[an]).
Crisis, jís, crises, i,ri’-sis, “Tí’-seez. A decisive or turning-point.
Latin crisí, Greek kritis (from krino, to judge).
Hypocratès said that all discourses had their tidal days, when physicians could "judge" what turn they would take. (First syllable short in Lat.)
Crisp, brittle, to curl; crisped, krísp’t; crisp’-ing, crisp’-ness.
“Old English krísp, Latin crispus, -frizzled.
Criterion, plu. criteria, kri’-te’-ri-on, kri’-te’-ri-ů. A standard by which judgment may be formed.
Greek kríterion, means of judging (from kríte, a judge. Short i.)
Critic, krí’t’, critical, krí’-i’-ul; critical-ly, critical-ness, criticise, krí’-i’-size; criticised (3 syl.); criticising (R. xix.), critic’-icis-ing; critic’-icis-ed; critic’-ieer; criticism, krí’-i’-isim; critique, krí’tik; criticisable, krí’tik-able, open to criticism.
Fr. critique; Lat. criticus; Gk. kritikos (from krínó, to judge).
Croak, “ro”e (like a frog). Crook, a shepherd’s staff.
Croaked (1 syl.), croak’-ing; croak’-er, one who grumbles. Old Eng. croac[lan], to croak; Lat. croció; Gk. króso, to croak.
Crochet, Crockett, Croquet, kró’-sha, kró’-et, kró’-ky.
Crochet, kró’-sha; crocheted, kró’-shed; crochetiJ-ing, kró’-sha-ing, fancy-work done with a hooked needle. Also (a term used in fortification.)
Crochet, kró’-et (a term used in architecture.)
Croquet, kró’-ky, a game; v. croqueted, kró’-kade, &c.
"Croquet," French baton armé d’un croè (Du Cange).
Crook, an earthen pitcher. Crock’-ery, krók’-e.ry, earthenware.
Old Eng. croè, a pitcher; Welsh croqugan, a pot; crochenn, pottery.
Crocket, krók’-et (in Arch.) French crochet. (See Crochet.)
Crocodile, krók’-o. dél (not krók’-o.dill), a reptile of the lizard kind. Crocodilea, krók’-o. dél’-e.ah, the crocodile order. Crocodilean, krók’-o. dél’-e.an (adj. of crocodile).
Latin crocOdelus, crocOdelia; Greek krókhodelos, a lizard. ("Crocodilea," not "crocOdelia," which means thistles.—Plin. 27, 41.)
Crocus, plu. crocuses, krō'küs, krō'küs.čêz; croceous, krō'se.ůs.
Lat. crocus, plu. crocit, the saffron flower; Gk. krōkōs, the crocus.
Cromlech, krōm'lech. A huge stone supported by uprights.
Welsh cromlech (crom ilech, an incumbent flag-stone).
Crómorna, krō.mor'nah (not cromona). An organ stop.
Cremona, krō.mō.nah, a violin. (See Cremona.)
French cromorne; Italian cromorno; German krumphorn.
Crone, an old woman. (Irish crion, withered; crioná, old.)
Crock, a shepherd's staff. Croak, krōk (like frogs). Crock (q.v.)
Crook, to bend into a curve; crooked; kroök; crook'-ing.
Crooked, krook'.ết (adj.), not straight; crooked-ly, krook'.
ed.ly; crooked-ness, krook'.ěd,ness.
"Crook," Welsh croe, tortuous, croeu, to make crooked.
"Croak," Old Eng. crosse[as]; Latin crōcto, crōcto; Greek krōsā.
"Crook," Old Eng. crok, a pitcher; Welsh crochan, crochenn, pottery.
Crop, the produce of a field; the claw of a bird; to lop or reap.
Crop, cropt or cropped (1 syl.), cropp'-ing, cropp'.er (R. i.), a pigeon with large claw; crop'ful (Rule viii.); to crop'- out, to show itself on the surface; to crop up, to reappear.
Old English crop or cropp, a crop, a claw, a top, whence to lop or reap; Welsh croppa, a crop of corn.
Croquet, krō'kē, a game. Crochet, krō'.sha, work done with a hooked needle. Crocket, krō'.ět (in Arch.)
"Croquet," croque, croquebois, croquet: "Bâton armé d'un croc, ou qui est recourbé" (Du Cange, viii., p. 115).
"Crochet" and "Croquet," French crochet, dim. of croc, a hook.
Crosier, krō'.sher. A bishop's staff surmounted with a cross.
Low Latin crocia, crosiarius, one who carries a crosier.
Cross. A gibbet, ill-tempered, to pass over, to cancel.
Cross, plu. crosses, krō'.sěz. A gibbet made thus (†, X, ††). Cross, ill-tempered; cross-ly, cross'-ness, cross-grained.
Cross (v.), crost or crossed (1 syl.), cross'-ing, cross'.es.
Crossette, krō'.sėt' (in Arch.); cross'.let, a little cross.
Crosswise (notcrossways), adv., transversely.
Welsh cross, a crucifix, transverse; Latin crux, gen. cručis.
"Cross" (ill-tempered), contraction of the Fr. courroucé, angered.
Crotch, a hook or fork. Crutch, a staff for the lame.
Crotch, crotched (1 syl.), hooked; crotch'-et, a note in Music, a whim; crotch'.ět-y, full of whims; crotch'.ět-ed.
French crochet, a little hook, dim. of croc, a hook; croche, a note in music; crocheter, to make "crochets" for porters.
Crōton-Oil. Oil expressed from the Crōton Tiglium.
Crouch, crouched (1 syl.), crouch'-ing. Crutch. (See Crotch.)
Welsh crocwean, to bow, crycdu, to squat. Old Eng. croe, a crook.
Croup. Inflammation of the larynx, &c.; the buttocks of a horse.

French croup (the disease), croupe (the buttocks).

"Croupier" sits at the "croup" or bottom of the table.

Crow, a bird, an iron lever, to cry like a cock, to triumph; crow, past crew [crowed, 1 syl.], past part. crowed [crown].

Old English crivo, a crow; Greek kóroné, a crow.

Crowd, kroud (to rhyme with loud), a throng; a fiddle.

Crowd (verb), crowd.-ed (Rule xxxvi.), crowd'-ing.

"Crow" (a fiddle), Welsh crwth, a crow or violin.

Crown (to rhyme with town), crowned (1 syl.), crown'-ing.

French couronne; Latin coronal; Greek korone, a crown.

Cruel, lmt.el, inhuman. Crewel, fine worsted (see Crewel).

Cruel, lmt.el-ly, cruel-ness; cruelties, plu. cruelties, lmt.el-tiz, immaturity (Rule xi.)

French cruétié; Latin crudité, cruziltas; Greek krúdites, that is, kruós césés, resembling cold, hence uncooked, raw, &c.

Cruel, lmt.el, inhuman. Crewel, fine worsted (see Crewel).

French crué; Latin crudeílés, cruel; cruziltas, cruelly.

Cruet, lmt.et. A glass "castor." (Fr. cruche, a glass vessel, -et dim.)

(There is no word in French for "cruet-stand," or a "set of castors.")

Cruise, Crew, Crews, all pronounced kruze.

Cruise, to rove about the sea; cruised, krūzd; cruising, krū.zing; cruis'er, krū.zer, a cruising ship. (Rule xix.)

Cruze, a small cup. (French cruche, a jug.)

Crews, plural of crew, a ship's company.

French croisé, to cruise or cross; German kreuzzeug, kreuzen,
Crumb, krum, a morsel. (The “b” is an error.) Crumbed, krummed; crumbling, crumming, breaking into crumbs.

Crummy, krummy. (If “crumb” is accepted, this adj. ought to be crumb-y. Either “crumb” or “crummy” is wrong.)

Crumble, krumbl, to break into crumbs; crumbled, krumbl’d; crumbling, krumbling; crumbl er.

Old English crume, a fragment. (N.B. crumb means “crooked.”) German krumm, to crumble.

Crump, krum’, to ruffle; crumpled, krum’ed; crumpling, krum’ing; crumpler, krum’er, one who crumples.

Old English crump, wrinkled; crumb, crooked, awry.

Crunch. To crush between the teeth. (See Craunch.)

Crupper. A strap which passes under the tail of a horse.

Croupier, kroo’yer. An assistant at a gaming table.

Both from French croupes, the rump, a crupper, &c.

Crusade, plu. crusades, krü-säde, krü-sädz. “Holy” wars.

Crusade (v.), crusäd-ed (R. xxxvi.); crusäd-ing (R. xix.); crusäd-er; crusäd-o (a Portuguese coin, with a cross).

Cruse, kru:z, a small bottle. Cruise, to rove about the sea.

Crews, plu. of crew. (Fr. cruche, a jug; creuset, a crucible.)

Crush; to squeeze; crushed (1 syl.), crush’-ing, crush’-er.

Italian crocito, to crush; Latin crucio, to torment.

Crust, the external coat; crust’-ed (R. xxxvi.), crust’-ing;

crust-y, hard, morose; crust’-ly, crust’-ness (Rule xi.)

Latin crasta, crust; verb crustare, to cover with a crust.

“Crusty,” morose, is archaic crus, wrathful; cross, corrupted into crust, a contraction of the French courroux, angry.

Crustacean, plu. crustaceans, krüs-tay’së.anz, one of the “crab” family. Crustacea, krüs-tay’.se.ah, the crustacean class.

Crustaceous, krüs.tay’.së.ous (adj.); crustaceology, krus.tay’.se.ol’-a-gy, a description of crustaceans.

French crustacé; Latin crusta [animals inclosed in] a shell.

(“Crustaceology” is a vile hybrid. “Ostracology” would be a Greek compound, but “crustaceology” is half Latin and half Greek.) If ostracian had been adopted instead of “crustacean,” it would have been far better.

Crutch, a staff for the lame. Crotch, a hook, a fork; crutch-friars, krutch fr’ars (not crotched-friars), friars badged with a cross. (Latin crux, cruciatus).

Cry, cries, kree; cried, kraid; cry’-ing; cri’-er, one who weeps.

Cry, plu. cries (1 syl.), street cries; cry’-er, the bellman.

Welsh cri, a cry, a clamour; French crier, to cry.

Crypt, krip’t, the underground compartment of a church; cryptic or cryptical, krip’t.ic.al, secret, hidden.

Latin crypta, a vault; Greek krupté (krupt, to hide).

Crypto- (Greek prefix). Secret, concealed.
Cryptogamia, krēp'-to-gām'-'ākh (in Bot.) Plants, like mushrooms, mosses, &c., in which the stamens and pistils are not manifest. Cryptogamic, krēp'-to-gām'-'āk (adj.; Greek krūtos gamos, concealed marriage.

Cryptography, krēp-tōg'-rā, fy. The art of writing in cypher.

Cryptographer, krēp-tōg'-rā, fer. One who writes in cypher.

Cryptographic or cryptographical, krēp'-to-grāf'-'āk.

Greek krūtos graphe, secret writing.

Cryptology, krēp-tōl'-o, gy, secret language; cryptologist.

Greek krūtos logos, secret language.

Crystal, krīs'-tal (not el'ystal nor eristal) n. and adj.

Latin crystallum; Greek krūsfalllos; French cristal (wrong).

Crystalline, krīs'-tal-līn, clear as crystal. Milton more correctly calls the word krīs-tal-līn (See "Paradise Lost.")

Latin crystallīnus; Greek krūsfallnoś like crystal.

Crystallize, krīs'-tal-līz (R. xxxxi.); crystallized (3 syl.); crystalliz-ing, crystalliz-er (R. xix.); crystalliz-able, crystallization, krīs'-tal-līz'-shun, congelation into crystals.

Greek krūsfallloś to shine like crystal.

Crystallography, krīs'-tal.lōg'-'rā, fy, science of crystallization; crystallographer, krīs'-tal-lōg'-rā, fer, one skilled in the above; crystallographic, krīs'-tal-lo, grāf'-'āk; crystallographical.

Greek krūsfallloś graphē, a writing about crystals.

Crystalloid, krīs'-tal-lōid. (Gk. krūsfalllos eidos, like crystal.)

Cub, kūb, a young fox, bear, &c.; to bring forth a cub; cubbed (1 syl.), cubbing (Rule i.). Cube, kūb, q.v.

Cube, kūb, a solid body with six equal sides. A number multiplied twice into itself, as $3 \times 3 = 27$, whence 27 is the "cube" of 3, and 3 is the "cube-root" of 27.

Cubed, kūb'-ed (1 syl.); cubbing, kūb'-ing (Rule xix.).

Cubic, kū'-bīk (adj.); cubical, kū'-bīk'-āl; cubi-cal-ly; cubiform, kū'-bīf'-orm; cuboid, kū'-bōid, or cuboid-al, an imperfect cube. (Greek kūbōs eidos, like a cube.)

Cubiture, kū'-bīt'-chur. The cubic contents of a body.

Latin cubus, a solid square, a die; Greek kūbōs.

Cubit, kū'-bit, 20 inches, the length of a man's arm from the elbow to the end of the middle finger. Cubital, kū'-bīt'-āl (adj.); cubited, kū'-bit-ed.

A gallows 50 cubits high (Esther vii. 9). A gallows of 50 cubits high (Esther v. 14).

In the former of these sentences "which is" must be supplied: "Behold a gallows which is 50 cubits high." The latter is not good English.

Latin cūbitum, a cubit; Greek kūbitōn (cubé, to recline at table resting on the elbow, cūbitus, the elbow).
AND OF SPELLING.

Cuckoo, plu. cuckoos, kook’.ko, kook’.kőze (Rule xlii.)
French coucou; Latin cucúlus; Greek kokkux, a cuckoo.
Cuckold, kük’.kold. A husband whose wife is faithless to him.
Cuckoldy, kük’.köl.dy (adj.); cuckoldom, kük’.köl.dum, the state of being a cuckold; cuckoldry, kük’.köl.dry.
This word is not derived from cuckoo (Latin cucúlus), but from cur-růca, the bird which hatches the cuckoo’s egg. The French word is cocu not coucou, a cuckoo. The Old English suffix -ol [-old] means “of the nature of,” “like,” “full of”; so that “cuckold” is currůca’-old, like a bird which hatches an egg not its own.
French concombre; Latin cucúnum. (Varro.)
Cuddle, ”cud’dl, to fondle; cud’dled (2 syl.), cud’dling, cud’dler.
Welsh cueddol, fondly loving; cuedd, fondness.
Cud’dy. A ship’s cabin. (Welsh cauedig, an enclosure.)
Cudgel, kük’.jel, a knobbed stick, to beat; cud’gelled (2 syl.); cud’gell-ing, cud’gell-er. (Rule iii., -er.)
Welsh cwyg, a knob; cwyn, a knuckle; with -el dim.
Cuff, a wristband, to box; cuffed, kűft; cuff’-ing, cuff’-er.
(For monosyllables in f, l, s, see Rule v.)
Welsh cufl, something put over another thing, hence cuff, a hood. “Cuff” (to strike); Greek koptó, to strike; kópel, a striking.
Cui bono, kũ’bo’.no (Lat.) What’s the good of it? Who’ll be the better for it? Literally, “For what good?”
Cuirass, kwe.răs’ (not ku ras’). A metal breastplate.
French cuirasse (from cuir, leather, of which breastplates were originally made); Latin coriúm, a skin or hide.
Cuisine, kwe.zeen’. The cooking department. (French.)
Cul de sac, plu. culs de sac (not cul de sacs), kũ’d sák (French).
A blind alley. “The bottom of a bag.”
-cule, -cle, -kle (dim. Lat. suffix -cul[us]), added to nouns.
Culinary, kůl.ín.ar’y (not kůl.in.ar’y nor kůl.níl.ar’y). Pertaining to the cooking department.
Latin cūtina, a kitchen; cūtinarius, culinary.
Cull, to pluck; culled (1 syl.), culled’-ing, culled’-er (Rule v.)
Fr. cuiller, to pluck; Lat. colligo (con [col] lego, to gather together).
Cullender better colander, kûl.an.der. A strainer.
Latin colans, straining; cūtum, a strainer. “Cullender” is quite indefensible, it is wrong in three places.
Cullis (bad French, for coulis). Strained gravy. (See above.)
Culm, kůlm. Stalk of corn, anthracite shale.
“Culm” (stalk of corn). Lat. culmus, straw; Gk. kůl misogyn, a reed, “Culm” (shale); Welsh cuilm; Old English cd, coal.
Culminate, küll' mi.na.te. To reach the highest point.

*Cul'minat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), cul'minat-ing (Rule xix.)

*Culmination, küll'. mi.nay' shun. The highest point.

French culmination, cul miner; Latin culmen, the vertex.

*Culpable, küll'. pa.by', blamable; cul'pably, cul'pable-ness; culpability, küll'. pa.by' .it'y, blame-worthiness.

Latin culpabilis (from culpa, fault, blame); French culpabilité.

Culprit, küll'. prit. One guilty of a crime.

Latin culpa reatus, one accused of a crime.

*Cultivate, küll'. ti.vi.te, to till; cul'tivat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), culti'vating (R. xix.), culti'vator (not -er, Fr. xxxvii.); culti'vable, küll'. ti.va.b'le (Fr. cultiver, cultivable); culti'vation, küll'. ti.vay' shun, tillage, refinement.

French cultivier; Italian coltivare, coltivazione, coltivatore; Latin cultus, tillage. "Cultivation" is one of the few words in -tion which is not French.

*Culver, a pigeon. (Old English culfre; Latin columba, a dove.)

*Culverin, küll'. vèr.in. A long slender gun. (Fr. couleuvre.)

From couleuvre, a snake; Latin coluber. Italian colubrina. The resemblance of this word to "culver" is merely accidental.

Culvert, küll'. vert. An arched passage under a road, &c.

French couvert, formerly culvert, v. couvrir, to cover.

*Cumber, to overload; cumbered, küm'. ber'd; cum'ber-ing, cum'- ber-er; cumbrous, küm'. ber'süm (-some, Old Eng. suffix meaning "full of"); cumbrous-ness, cumbrons, küm'. brüs; cum'brons-ly, cum'brous-ness.

French encombre, v. encombrer; Latin cùm mulare, to heap up.

*Cumbrian, küm'. bri'an (adj.), applied in Geol. to a system of slaty rocks developed in "Cumbria," that is Cumberland.

Cumberland, properly Combra-land or Comba-land, the land of valleys; comba, valleys or coombs (Celtic). Welsh cwm.

*Cumulus, küm'. ë.liüs (not kù'. mul.üs), applied to clouds when they look like mountains. (Latin cùmulus, a pile.)*

*Cumulo-stratus, küm'. ë.to strà'. tüs (not kù'. mu.lo strak'. tüs), the cumulus cloud flattened.

Cirro-cumulus, s'é'ro küm'. ë.liüs, small cumulous clouds.

If cùmulus is from the Greek küma, a wave, the length of the ë was changed when the word was adopted in the Latin language.

-und (a Latin termination denoting "fullness:" as *fa-cund, full of speech ("fär" to speak); fe-cund, full of fruit ("feo," a fructus); jo-cund, full of joy ("Jove," "juvo," to delight); vere-cund, bashful ("véröör," to fear); rubi-und, full of redness ("ruber," red).
AND OF SPELLING.

Cuneal, ki'ne.āl, wedge-formed; cuneate, ki'nē.ate (adj.)

Cuneated, ki'nē.ated, tapering like a wedge; cuneiform, ki'nē.form, applied to certain letters made like wedges. They are found in old Babylonian and Persian inscriptions. (Latin cuneus, a wedge; French cunéiform.)

Cun'ning, artful; cun'ning-ly, cun'ning-ness. Originally these words denoted "skill derived from knowledge."

Old Eng. cunā[an], to know how and be able to do. (Ken and can.)

Cup, kūp, a drinking vessel, part of a flower, to scarify; cupped, kūpt; cupp'-ing, cupp'-er (R. i.); cupboard, kūb'.bard: cupful, plu. cupfuls (not cupsful). Two "cups full" would mean two cups filled full; but two "cupfuls" would mean a cupful repeated twice.

Old English cuppa; Latin cupa or cuppa, a cup or tub.

Cupidity, ki.pū'd'i.ty, greed. (Lat. cupiditas; Fr. cupidité.)

Cupola, plu. cupolas, kū'.pō.lah, kū'.pō.lahz (not kū.pō'.lah nor cupulo). Italian cupola, from cupo, deep.

Cupreus, kī'.pre.us (not cuprius), coppery; cuprite, kū'.prīt, red oxide of copper; cupriferous, kū'.prī'.rūs,yielding copper.

Latin cupreus, from cuprum, copper.

Cur, kūr, a degenerate dog; curr'-ish (Rule i.), like a cur (-ish added to nouns means "like," but added to adj. it is dim.)

Welsh cor, a dwarf; Irish gur, a dog; Dutch korre, a housedog.

Curable, kū'.ra.b'l; curability, kū'.ra.bl'.i.ty. (See Cure.)

Curacao, kū'.ra.so', a liqueur. Curassoe or Curassow, kū'.rūs'.so, a South American bird, like a turkey.

Curacao is made from Curacao oranges. The Curacao Islands are near Venezuela. French curaçao.

Curate, kū'.ra.te. A clergyman's licensed clerical assistant.

Curacy, plu. curacies, kū'.ra.siz. The parish, &c., of a curate.

Curator, kū'.ray'.tor. One who has the charge of something.

Latin curátor, curátio (from cura, care).

Curb, kurb; curbed (1 syl.), curb'-ing, curb-stone.

French courbe, a curb; courber, to bend: Latin curvus, crooked.

Curd, kūrd; curd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), curd'-ing, curd'-y.

Curdle, kūr'.dāl; curdled, kūr'.dāl'd; curdling, kūr'd.ing.

Welsh crud, a round lump; archaic crud and crudle. The old form is the more correct. (Latin crudus, crude.)

Cure, kure; cured (1 syl.), cur-ing, kūr'.ing; cur-er, kure'.er; cur-able, kū'.ra.b'l; curable-ness; curability, kū'.ra.bi.l'.i.ty, possibility of being cured; curative, kū'.ra.tīv.

French cure, curatif, curer (v.); Latin cūra, curābiōs.
Curfew, kur'fu. A bell rung in former times at 8 o'clock p.m., to announce that it was bed-time.

French courre-fou (time to) cover-fire. Where wood is burnt the ashes at bed-time are thrown over the logs; and next morning the whole is easily rekindled by drawing the blower down. In some places a sort of meat-cover is put over the logs.

Curious, kăr'ri.us, inquisitive, remarkable; curi'ous-ly, cu'rious-ness; curiosity, plu. curiosities, kăr'ri.o.s't.i.tēz, a rarity, &c.; curioso, plu. curiosos, kăr'ri.o's.o so, cu'ri.o's.soze, one fond of collecting curiosities. (Rule xlii.)

(In the sing. num., curiosity means also "inquisitiveness.")

Latin cēriōsus, cēriōsitās; Italian curioso (from curva, care).

Curl, curled, kurl'd, curl'ing, making curls, a game; curl'er, plu. curl'ers, a player at the game called "curling," curl'ing-ly; curl'y; cur'li-ness. (Rule xi.)

Welsh cwr, a circ., with 1 dim.; Latin circularis, a little circle; Welsh cwr, Old circul. Lat. circularis, Gk. kirkōs, a circle.

Curlew, kur'lu. A sort of snipe. (French courliou.)

Curmudgeon, kur'mud'jun. A churlish fellow, a miser.

Old English ceorl-mōdishan, churl-minded or tempered.

Currant, kur'rant, a fruit; Current, kur'rimt, a stream.

"Current," a corruption of Corinth, the "Corinthian grape.

Currency, kur'ren.s'y, current coin; current, kur'rent, v.s.

Curricula, kur'ri.k'lu. An open carriage, with two wheels.

Curriculum, kur'ri.k'lu.m: A course of study.

Latin curriculum, a race course (curso, to run, and dim.-culum).

Curry, kur'ry, to dress leather; curried, kur'rid, curries, kur'riz; curri'er, one who dresses leather. (R. xi.), but courier, koō'rī.er, an express messenger. (Fr. courrier.)

Curry, to clean a horse; to curry favour, a corruption of curry faivel, to clean the-bay-horse; currycomb.

("Curry" ought to be *spelt. cory... "Currier," ought to have only one r, (corier), and... "courier," ought to have double r (courrier). Latin "curro," to run.)

French corrager, to curry; corregeur; Latin corium, a hide.

Curry, a condiment, a food prepared with curry; curried, kur'rid; curry-ing, kur'ry.ing; curry-powder.

The mixture invented by James Curry.

Curse, kur'se; cursed (1 syl.) or curst, curs'-ing. (Rule xix.)

The adjective is curst, or cursed, kur'sed; curs'ed-ly (3 syl.), curs'ed-ness (3 syl.).

Old English curs, (noun); curst; to curse; cursed, cursed.
Cursive, kur'siv, fluent; cursive-ly, cursive-ness. (Rule xvii.)
Curvilinear

Cursory, kur'sö.ry (adj.), superficial; cursori-ly (adv.) R. xi.; cursori-ness; cursitor, kur'si.tor, a chancery officer.
French cursive; Latin cursōrius (from curse, to run about).
Curst, angry, a corruption of curs, cross, whence “crusty.”

“Curst” cows [angry cows] have curt horns [short horns].
French courroucer, to anger; courroux, angry, cross (crouce cross, and c'uros curs corrupted into curst).
Curt, kur't, short, abrupt; curt-ly, curt-ness. (Latin curtus.)
Curt. A contraction of current, meaning the “present [month].”
The month past is ultimo, the month to come is proximo.
“Ultimo” and “proximo” are nouns. We say the 5th ultimo or proximo; but “current” is an adj. and must have the word “month” expressed: as the current month.
Currente calamo (Lat.) kur.rö.te kii'l.a.mo. Off hand (applied to composition). Literally “with a running pen.”
Curtail, kur.tail', to cut short; curtained (2 syl.), curtailed- ing, curtail'er (French court tailor, to cut short).
Curtain, kur't.n; curtained, kur't.n'd; curtain-ing, kur't.n.ing. French courtine, a curtain.

Curtsy, kur't.syi, curtseyed (2 syl.), courtesies, curtsey-ing, curtsey-er. (See Courtesy.)

Curvilinear

Cushion, koosh'n (not *kii'sh';!), It pad to sit on; cushioned (2 syl.), cushion- ing; cushion-et, a little cushion.

Custody, kus.tö.dyi, protection, keeping; custodian, kus.tö.dì.an, one who has the custody of something; custos, kus.tö.s, as custos rotulorum, keeper of the rolls.

Custody
Cut, past cut, past part. cut. Cut, a wound, to wound, a print, a make-up in dress, to divide a pack of cards; cutt'-er, one who cuts, a boat, a vessel with one mast; cutt'-ing, dividing, sarcastic; cutting-ly (Rule i.)

Derivation uncertain. Perhaps a corruption of curt, Latin curtus, short; curto, to shorten. There is the Welsh word cwalln, to shorten.

Cutaneous, kū.ta.y.nē.ū.s. Pertaining to the skin.

Cuticle, ku'.tī.k'l, the scarf-skin; cuticular, kū.tik'.u.lar.

French cutané, cutaneous; cuticule, the cuticle. Latin cutis, the skin; cutícula, the cuticle; cuticularis, cuticular.

Cutlass, kū.t'las. A sword. (French coutelas; Latin cultellus.)

Cutler, a maker of knives, &c.; cutl'er-y, kū't.l.e.ry.

French coutelier, a cutler; coutellerie [3 syl.], cutlery. Latin cultor, a knife; cultellus, a little knife.

Cutlet, kū.t'let. (French côtelette; Latin cultello, to cut small.)

Cuttle-fish, a molusc. (Old Eng. cudele [fisc]; Germ. kuttel-fisch.)

(From kuttel (guts), referring to the bladder under the throat.)

Cwt., that is C (100) wt. (weight), pronounced hundred-weight.

“C” is the initial letter of the Latin centum, a hundred.

-cy (French suffix -cie), added to abstract nouns.

-cy (Lat. suffix -c[us] or -t[us]), denoting “office, state, condition.”

Cyanate, cyanide, cyanite, cyanosite.

Cyanate, si'.ā.nate, a salt (cyanic acid and a base. If potash is the base, the “salt” is cyanate of potash).

(-ate denotes a “salt,” from the union of an acid and a base.)

Cyanide, si'.ā.nide, a compound of cyanogen and a base. Thus, if iron is the base, the compound is “cyanide of iron.” (-ide, Greek eidos, resembling kuānos.)

Cyanite, si'.ā.nite, an azure blue garnet.

(-ite, in Geol., denotes a stone, or something resembling a stone, as ammon-ite, cyan-ite.)

Cyanosite, si.an'.ō.site, blue vitriol, native sulphate of copper. Greek kuānos-ite, a blue stone-like substance.

Cyanogen, si.an'.ō.jen, a gas which burns with a deep blue flame (Gk. kuānos gennao, I produce a deep-blue [flame]).

Cyanosis, si.an'.ō.sēs, a disease characterized by blueness of the skin. (Greek kuānos nōsos, the blue disease.)

Cyanometer, si.ā.nom'.e.ter, an instrument for measuring how blue the sky or sea is. (Greek métrōn, a measure.)

Cyanotype, si.an'.ō.type, photographs in Prussian blue. (Greek kuānos tupos, deep-blue type).

Latin cyanus, a blue garnet, cyaneus, deep blue; Greek kuānos, a deep-blue substance, kuānos (adj).
AND OF SPELLING.

Cyclamen, sik'.läuft.men (not sik'.klay'.men). The plant "sow-bread."
(This word ought to be "cyclamine," sik'.läuft.min.)
Latin cyclaminus; Greek kuklaminos (from kuklos, a circle, the root being globular). The chief food of the wild boars of Italy.
Cycle, sī'.kīl, an ever-recurring period; cyclical, sik'.lit'.kīl (adj.)
French cycle; Latin cyclus; Greek kuklos, a circle [of phenomena].
Cycloid, sī'.kloid, a geometrical curve; cycloidal, sik'.kloy'.dāl; cycloidean, plu. cycloideans, sik'.kloy'.dē.anz, the fourth order of fishes (Agassiz), including salmon, herrings, &c.
Greek kuklō-cidōs, like a circle. Imagine a nail in the circumference of a wheel. Let the wheel revolve and move on in a straight line. The nail would describe in the air that double motion, and the figure thus described would be a cycloid.
Cyclone, plu. cyclones, sī'.klōn, sik'.lōnz. A rotatory storm.
Latin cyclus; Greek kuklos, a circle, and -one augmentative.
 Cyclopean, sī'.klō'.pé.an (not sik'.klo'.pee'.an). Huge, the work of the fabled Cyclops.
Latin cyclopēs, cyclopēs; Greek kuklopēs, kuklopēcios.
Cyclopædia, plu. cyclopædias, sik'.klo.pē'.dē.āh, plu. -az, or en-cyclopædia, a dictionary of general information.
Greek kuklōs paidela, a circle of instruction.
Cyclopteris, sik'.lop'.terls. A genus of fern-like plants.
Greek kukloptēris, like a circle fern; the leaflets are round.
Cygnet, sig'.net (not cignet). A young swan.
Latin cygnus or cygnum, a swan; Greek kuknōs (and -et dim.)
Cylinder, sī'.līn.dēr, a drum-shaped article; cylindrical, sik'.lin'.-drīkāl, shaped like a cylinder; cylindrical-ly.
Latin cylindrus, a roller, &c.; Greek kuklindō, to roll.
Cymbal, sin'.bāl, a musical instrument. Symbol, a sign or type.
"Cymbal," Lat. cymbātum; Gk. kumbalon (from kumbos, hollow). "Symbol," Lat. symbolōta: Gk. symbolōn, a mark or token.
Cynic, plu. cynics, sin'.āk, sin'.āks, a misanthrope; cynical, sin'.ā.kīl, snarling; cynical-ly, cynical-ness; cynicism, sin'.ā.zisim, churlishness, the manners, &c., of a cynic.
These words are formed from the ancient sect called "Cynics," who snarled at every article of luxury (kumikos, dog-like).
Cynosure, sik'.no.shure. The pole-star, an object of attraction.
Latin cynōsura; Greek kunōsoura (from kunos oura, the dog's tail), meaning the star in the tail of Ursa Minor.
Cypress, sī'.press, a tree. Cypris, Cyprus (see below); cyprine, sī'.prīn; adj. of cypress. (Properly the adj. of Cypris.)
Latin cyprīssus; Greek kuprīssos, kuprīssinos [adj.]
Cypris, sī'.prīs, one of the cyprididae; sik'.prīd'.ī.dee, a genus of minute bivalves of great beauty (Greek Kupris, Venus).
Cyprus, si'präś. An island in the Levant; sacred to Kupris.
Cyprian, si'prä.tän. A woman of immodest habits.
Cypriot, si'prä.o. An inhabitant of Cyprus.

Cyst, a bag containing morbid matter. Cist, a stone box for books or other valuables; a stone coffin.

Cystic, sis'tik, adj. of cyst; cysticle, sis'.ti.k'l, a little cyst; cystidio, sis'ti.de.o, little bladder-like animals; cystidia, sis'ti.de.ah (in Bot.) sacs containing spores (1 syl.)

Cytherean, sí'θrepr.ən, pertaining to Venus or love. So called from the island Cythēra, sacred to Venus.

Latin Cythērēus (adj.), Cythērea, Venus.

Czar, zar, the emperor of Russia; Czarina, zar.ɾe'.nəh, the empress of Russia. Czarowitch, zar'ro.vits, the eldest son of the Czar; Czareyna, za.ɾə'.nəh, wife of the Czarowitch.

Czar is the Polish form of the Russian kaiser (Cesar or emperor).

Da capo, da kah'.po (in Musik), from the beginning.

Italian da capo, [repeat] from the beginning (to the end).

Dab, a flat fish, a slap; a small lump; to slap, to wet, &c.; dabbed (1 syl.), dabb-ing, dabb'er. (Rule i.)

"Dab," Fr. dauber, to beat with the fist; "Dabble" dim. of dab.

Dace, a fresh-water fish; Dais, da'.is, a raised floor.

Dactyl, dak'.tîl, three syllables, the first being long and the other two short; dactylic, dak'.tîl.ik (adj.)

Latin dactylus, dactyleus; Greek daktúlos, a finger (which consists of one long joint and two short ones; daktúlikós).

Dad or daddy. A word for father used by the infant children of the peasantry. (Welsh tad, father.)

Dado, plu. dadoes, da'.də, da'.do.zə. (Italian.) A panel round the base of a room, just above the skirting-board. (R. xlii.)

Dædalian, better dædalæan, də.dəl.ə.ən. Cunningly contrived, like the works of Dædalus.

Latin dædalæus; Greek dædalēs, skilfully made.

Latin asphodelæus; Greek asphodelēs, the daffodil.

Dagger. A short sword, a mark in printing (+).

Low Latin daggerius, a dagger; Italian daga; French dague, a dirk.

Daggle or draggle, dag'.g'l or drag'.g'l, to trail in the wet; daggle-tailed or draggle-tailed, having the skirt of the gown bedabbled with wet and dirt.

Old English dág, to dangle or hang in a slovenly manner.
Daguerreotype, dag.i're.rote. A process of taking likenesses by sunlight, discovered by M. Daguerre. (1841.)

Dahlia, plu. dahlias, generally pronounced day.ü.äh, but dahl'.ü.äh is more correct. A genus of plants.

So named from Andrew Dahl, the Swedish botanist.

Daily. Recurring every day. (Daily and gaily are exceptions to a very general rule. R. xiii.) See Day.

Dainty, plu. dainties, dain'tiz, something "toothsome"; dain'ti-ly, dain'ti-ness, dain'ti-er (comp.), dain'ti-est (super.)

Welsh danteiddiol, dainty (from dânt, a tooth); Latin dens, or French dainet, a venison pasty (from daïne, a deer).

Dairy, plu. dairies, dair'ry, dair'rz, the place where milk, butter, and cheese, are made and kept in store; dairyman, dairymaid, dairyswoman (with y). (When man, maid, woman; hood, like, ship; ish, ing, ism, are added, the "y" final is not changed. Rule xi.) Chaucer uses the word dey for a servant who has charge of a dairy; Sir Walter Scott speaks of "the dey or farm-servant"; and Junius says dey means "milk."

"Dairy" is the dey's ric; that is, the farm woman's room.

Daisy, da'zis. That part of a banqueting hall which has a canopy, the part for honoured guests, generally raised. Days (1 syl.), plu. of day. Deys, plu. of dey. (of Algiers).

French daïs, a canopy; sous le daïs, in the midst of grandeur: dagus Low Lat. ("a panni gencre daï dicto"), chief table in a monastery.

Daisy, plu. daisies, da'zay, da'ziz; dasied, da'zed, covered with daisies. A corruption of day's-eye. (Rule xi.)

Old English dæges-dæge, a daisy or day's-eye.

Dale, a valley; dalesman, -woman, one who lives in a dale.

Old English dægel, obscure; dægelnes, a solitude. Low Latin dâlus, a dale; German that; Norse dat.

Dally, da'lli, to toy; dailies, da'lli'tiz; dallied, da'lli'id; dally- ing; dalli-er, one who dailles; dalli-ance. (Rule xi.)

German dâllen, to dally.

Dam, damn, dame.

Dam, a maternal quadruped; a mole to confine water; to stop the flow of water; dammed (1 syl.), damming (R. i.)

Damm, dam'. To condemn. (Latin damnâre, to condemn.)

Dame, dâim. (French dame; Latin domîna, mistress.)

"Dain" (mother of a young beast). Fr. dame; Ital. dama, a lady.

A mill [dam]; Danish dom, a pond or lake.

German damm, a dam; verb dammen, to dam.

Damage, dâ'm.äge, injury, to injure; damaged (2 syl.), dam'ag-ing (R. xix.); damages, dâ'm.ägez (-s added to -ce or -ge forms a distinct syl., R. xxxiv.); dam'age-able (words ending in -ce or -ge retain the "e" before the suffix -able).

Old English dem, hurt; French dommage; Latin damnum, loss.
178

ERRORS OF SPEECH

Damask, dăm'ask, cloth with flowers wrought in it; verb damasked, dăm'askt; damask-ing.

Damasken, dăm'askén', to inlay steel with gold or silver;
dam'skeen'ed (3 syl.), dam'skeen'-ing.

Damaskins, dăm'askinz. Damascus blades.

Damson, a corruption of "damascene" (dăm's. seen'). A plum. (All from Damascus, in Syria.)

Fr. damasquiné, to damasken; damasseer, to damask, damas (n.)

Dame (1 syl.), fem. of baronet or knight, now called "lady."
The word is still used in the compound dame's-school, a school for poor children kept by an elderly woman.
Fr. dame (Madame); Latin dömína (from dömus, the house).

Damn, to condemn. Dam, the mother of a young quadruped.

Damned, dăm'd; damn-ing, dăm'-ning (not däm'ing like the pres. part. of dam, q.v., stopping the flow of water.)

Damnable, däm'ná'b'l; damnably.

Damnation, däm.nay'shun; damnatory, däm'nát'ry.

Latin damnare, to condemn, damnatórius.
Fr. damnabile, damnation, damner (verb.)

Damnify, däm'nif'I, to injure. Indemnify, to insure against injury, to repair an injury.

Damnifies, däm'nif'Iz; Indemnifies.

Damnified, däm'nif'id; Indemnified.

Damnification, däm'nif'I-shun; Indemnification.

Latin damnificare (damnnum facio, to cause loss.)

Damp, moist, to make moist; damped, damp't; damp'-ing;

damp'-er, a contrivance to abate a draught or sound, one who damps; damp'-er (more damp), damp'-est (most damp), damp'-ness; damp'-ish, rather damp (-ish added to adj. is dim.); dampish-ly, dampish-ness.

Dampen, to make damp; dampened, damp'-end; dampening, damp'-ning; dampen-er, damp'ner.

German dampf, damp; dampfen, to damp; dampfer, &c.

Damself, däm'zélf, a girl (Low Lat. damisella, Old Fr. damaizelle (ma-demaiselle), dim. of dame and madame, originally damaizel was applied to the sons of noblemen and kings.

"Pages" were so styled (from Latin dömínus).

Damson, däm'són, a plum. Corruption of "damascene" (dăm', ás. seen'). From Damascus, in Syria.

Dance, danced (1 syl.), dance'ing, danse'ing; dance-er, danse'er (Rule xix.) (French, danser, to dance).

Dandelion, dan'de.U.ion, a flower. (Fr. dent de lion, lion's tooth).

Its leaves are supposed to resemble the teeth of lions.
Dandle, dan' dł, to fondle; dandled, dan' dł'd; dandling, dan' dl'lng; dandler, dan' d'ler, one who fondles.

Italian dòndola, a child's doll, dòndolaro, to toss and swing about.

Dandruff or Dandruff. Scurf on the head.

Old Eng. tineda dreft, one diseased with dirty or troublesome tetter.

Dandy, plu. dandies, dàn' dl'z,* a fop;* dandy-ish, dandy-ism.

French dandy, dan'din, a ninny; dan'diner, to "raipse" about.

Dane or Dansker, a native of Denmark. Deign, to vouchsafe.

Danish, døy' nish (adjective and noun). Rule xix.

Danegeld, dane-geld (not danegelt). Danish tribute.

Old English dane-geld ("geld" is tribute, but "gelt" is gilt).

Danger, dain' jër, peril; danger-ous, dain' jër'zis; dan'gerous-ly, dan'gerous-ness. (French danger, dan'gereux.)

Dangle, dän' g'l, to hang so as to swing about; dangled, dän' g'l'd; dangleing, dan' dl'lng; dangler, dan' gl'ler.

Dank, dank-ish, rather dank (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); dank'ish-ness.

Same word as damp, with "k" diminutive.

Danubian, dan' bÜ'n, adjective of Danube.

Daphne, duf' ne. The spurge laurel. Daphne the daughter of Peneus (Pen'e us) was changed into a laurel.

Dapper. Natty in dress and manners, smart. (Dutch.)

Dapple, dáp' p', spotted, to spot; dappled, dáp' p'ld; dappling, dáp' pl'lng (double p). (German apfel-grau.)

Dare. To venture; to defy or challenge.

Dare (to venture, to have courage), past durst.

Dare (to defy), past dare'd, (1 syl.), dared.

He dare not is strictly correct, but he dares not is more usual. Sir. Walter Scott (Waverley) says: "A hard to sing of deeds he dare not imitate." In Old Eng. the verb was [I] dear, [thou] dearest, [he] dear. "You dare not so have tempted him, should be You durst not so...

"Dare" (to have courage). Old English dear; past dorste.

"Dared" (provoked, defied) is more modern.

Dark (noun); darken, dark' n,* to make dark; dark'ened (3 syl.), dark'en-ing, dark' n-ing; dark'-ness, dark'-ly; dark'-ish, rather dark (-ish added to adj. is dim.) dark'ling (-ling, Old Eng. means "offspring of," or is simply a diminutive).

Dar' ling, noun and adjective, dear-one, dearly beloved.

Old English deorling, little dear-one (-ling, dim. or "offspring of."")

Darn, to mend; darned, (1 syl.), darn ing, darn er.

Welsh darn, a patch; v. darnio, to patch; darniad, a pieceing.
Dart, noun and verb; darted (R.xxxvi.); darting, dart'er.
French dard, v. darder; Low Latin dardus, a dart.
Dash, noun and verb; dashed (1 syl.), dash'ing, dash'er, dash'board, a defence in carriages against splashes.
Danish dask, a slap; v. daste, to slap or dash.
Dastard, das'tard, a coward; dastard-ly, dastard-ness.
Old English a-dastirgan, to terrify.
Date, a fruit, the time of an event, to give the date; dát-ed
(Rule xxxvi.), dát-ing (Rule xix), date-less (Rule xvii.)
French, date, v. dater; Danish datere, to date.
Datum, plu. data, day'tak (Latin). Things admitted as facts.
Daub, a coarse painting, to smear; daubed (1 syl.), daub'ing, daub'er; daub'y, adj. (Welsh dwbio, to daub; dwb.)
Daughter, daw'ter, a female offspring of human parents; a male offspring is the Son of his parents.
Daughter-in-law, plu. daughters-in-law.
Step-daughter, plu. step-daughters. (Old English stepean, to bereave; a daughter "bereaved of one parent.")
Old Eng. dóchter; German tochter; Danish datter; Greek, thugüter.
Daunt (rhyme with aunt), to dismay; daunt'ed (Rule xxxvi.), daunt'ing, daunt'less, daunt'less-ly, daunt'less-ness.
French dompter, to tame (animals); Latin domtari (from domtare).
Dauphin, fem: dauphiness, daw',fin, daw',fin.ess. Dauphin the eldest son of the king of France (1349-1830);
"dauphiness," the wife of the dauphin.
So called from Dauphine, an old province of France, given to the crown by Humbert II., on condition that the eldest son of the king assumed the word "dauphin" as a title.
Davy-lamp, 'day'vy lamp. A miner's safety-lamp.
Invented by Sir Humphrey Davy, and called by his name.
Dawdle, daw'd'l, a loiterer, to fritter away time; dawdled, daw'd'ld; dawdling, daw'd'ling; dawdler, dawdler.
Dawn, day-break, to begin to grow light; dawned (1 syl.), dawn'ing. (Old Eng. dagung, dawn; dag[ian], to dawn.)
Day, plu. days (R. xlv.); daily (not dayly, as it ought to be,
R. xiii.), adj. and adv.; day by day, every day (here by means after; succeeding-to); to day, this day (Old Eng.
to-day, this day; to-asen, this evening); daybreak, day-spring, dawn; to win the day, to gain the victory.
Dey. The title of the governor of Algiers, before its conquest by the French.
Old English dég, day; dég-tuma, day-time; dég-canade, the sun.
"Dey," Turkish déi, a title similar to senior, father, &c.
Daysman. An umpire, mediator. (Job ix. 38.)
A corruption of daws-man, a man who sits on the dais to judge.
Day-work, work by the day. Day's-work, the work of a day.
AND OF SPELLING.

Daze (1 syl.), to stupify; dazed (1 syl.), dáz'-ing (Rule xix.)
Old English dýs, seen in dýsig, foolish; dýsig[ian], to be a fool.

Dazzle, dáz'z', to overpower with light; dizzled, dáz'z'ld;
Dazzling, dáz'-ling; dazzling-ly, dazzle-ment.
Old English dýsignes, dizziness; dýsig[ian], to make dizzy.

De- (Latin prefix), motion down or back, hence "the reverse."
"DE" (prefix) denotes privation,
Diminution, and negation,
Motion from or downward states,
Reverses and extenuates.

Deacon, fem. deaconess, dec'kon-ess; deacon-ship, office of...
Latin diaconus; Greek diakómos (from diakonéo, to serve.)

Dead, død, lifeless; dead'-ness, dead'-ly, dead'li-ness (R. xi.);
deaden, død.n, to numb, to abate force; deadened, død'.n'd;
deaden-ing, død'ning; deaden-or, death (q.v.)
Old English dědd, dědd[ian], past děddode, p.p. děddod.

Deaf, def (R. vi.), without "hearing;" deaf'-ly, deaf'-ness;
deafen, děfn, to make deaf; deafened, děfn'd; deafen-ing, děfn'ing. (Old Eng. def (adj.), deafe (noun).)

Deal, deel, a large part, fir or pine wood; to distribute cards, to traffic; past and p.p. dealt, dělt; deal'-ing, deal'-er.
To deal with A. B., to treat with A. B.
To deal by A. B., to treat A. B. well or ill.
To deal to A. B., to give the next card to A. B.
A great deal better; i.e., better by a great deal.
Deal now means a large portion, but dělt formerly meant a portion or lot (v. děl[ian] to distribute); past dělde, past part. děl'd.
"Deal" (wood), German diele, a plank or board.

Dean, deen: Title, The Very Reverend; Address, Mr. Dean.
Dean'-ery, the office, revenue, house, or jurisdiction of a dean;
rural-dean, plu. rural-deans. Deene, a down, q.v.

Dean and chapter, the bishop's council, including the dean.
French doyen; Latin decimus, leader of a file of soldiers ten deep;
the head of the bishop's council, which originally consisted of ten canons and prebendaries (from Greek déka, ten.)

Dear, beloved, expensive. Deer, a stag. (Both dear.)
Dear, dear-ness; dear'-ly, fondly, high in price.
He paid dearly for his folly (not he paid dear...)
Dear me! a corruption of dió mio (Ital.)
Old English deor, beloved, expensive; also "a deer."

Dearth, derth, scarcity.
French dear, as "length" from long, &c. So in German theur,
dear: theure setl, dearth (dear time).

Death, deít; death'-less, death'-like, &c. (See Dead.)
Old English dæth or death.
Debar, disbar; -barred, -bard; -barr'ing (Rule i.)
Debar', to deprive, to forbid. (The Fr. debarrer is un-bar.)
Dis'bar'. To take from a barrister his right to plead.
Debase' (2 syl.), to degrade; debased' (2 syl.), debås'-ing (R. xix.), debås-er (one who debases), debåse'-ment.
Debate' (2 syl.), to argue; debåt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), debåt'-ing, debåting-ly, debåt'-er (Rule xix.), one who debates.
Debâch', to march out of a defile; debouched' (2 syl.), debouched'-ing, debouched'-er, one who debouched; debouchery, de.bor.chéry, debouch'-ment; debouchee, dé'bô.o.shé', a man of intemperate habits.
Debenture, de.ben.tûr', an acknowledgment of debt bearing interest to the holder; debentured, de.ben.tûr'd, pertaining to goods on which debentures have been drawn.
Debilitate, de.bll.î.tate, to weaken; debilîtät-ed (Rule xxxvi.); debilitation, de.bill.tay'ish, state of weakness; debility, de.bill.î.ty, weakness of health.
Debit, dé'bît (n. and v.), an entry (or to enter a customer's name on the debtors' side of a ledger; debît-ed, deb'it-ing.
Debout, da.boo'. First appearance as a public character.
Deca-, dé'ka (Greek prefix meaning ten).
Deca-chord. A musical instrument with ten strings.
Deca-gon. A plane figure with ten angles (gônia, an angle.)
Deca- (Greek prefix meaning ten). Deca-gyn'ia. Plants with ten pistils (Gk. gune, females).
Deca-hed'ron. A solid figure with ten sides (kedra, a base.)
Deca-litre, -lee't,.. A measure of ten "litres" (quarts).
Deca-mètre, -mèt·tr. A measure of ten "metres" (yards).
Deca-an'dria. Plants with ten stamens (Gk. andres, males).
Deca-pod, plural decapods or decapoda, de.kap'.ō.dūh. Crustaceans with ten legs (Gk. podes, feet).
Deca-stich, dek'.a.stik. A poem with ten lines (Gk. stikos).
Deca-style, dek'.a.stīlē. A porch with ten pillars (Gk. stulos).
Decad-al, de.kad'.āl (not de.kay'.diil), adj. of "decade."
Latin décés, gen. décadēs, a decade (Greek δέκα, ten).
Decadence, de.kay'.dence; decadency, de.kay'.den.sy, state of decay (-cy denotes "state"); decadent, de.kay'.dent.
Fr. décédence; Lat. decadentia, gen. -dentis (de cadere, to fall off).
Decalcomanie, da'.7wl'.lw.mah'.nee. The art of transferring the surface of coloured prints, &c., for decorative purposes.
French décalquer, to reverse the tracing of a drawing or engraving.
Decamp', to remove from a camp, to depart hastily; decamped' (2 syll.); decamp'-ing; decamp'-ment; departure...
Fr. décamper, décampement (de camper, to break up an encampment).
Decant, de.lciint'. to draw off wine, &c. (not to decaitter); decant'-ed (R. xxvi.); decant'-ing; decant'-er, one who decants. Descant, des.kant', to prate about.
"Decant," French décantor: de cantine, [to draw] from a canteen.
"Descant," Latin dēcantāre, to prate about.
Decapitate, de.cāp'.tātē, to behead; decapitāt-ed (R. xxxvi.); decapitāt-ing (R. xix.); decapitation, de'.cāp'.tāt'.shun.
Lat. decapitāre (from de capitis, gen. capitis, [to take] off the head).
Decarbonise, de.kar'.bō.nīzē, to deprive of carbon (R. xxxi.); decarbonised (4 syll.); decarbonis-ing (R. xix.); decar'-bonis-er, decarbonisation, de'.kar'.bō.nī.zay'.shun.
Latin de carbo, [to deprive] of carbon.
Decay', to rot; decayed' (2 syll.), decay'-ing, decay'-er (R. xiii.);
Latin de cadē, to fall away from. (An ill-formed word.)
Decease, de.sēsē', death, to die. Disease, diz.ēzē', sickness; decease', deceased' (2 syll.), deceas'-ing (Rulé xix.);
Latin decessus, departure; de cadē, sup. cessum, to go away from.
Deceive, de.sēev', to impose on one; deceived, de.sēevd'; deceiver', deceiver'-er (R. xix.), deceiver'-able (R. xxiii.); deceivably, deceiv'able-ness.
Deceit, de.seet'; deceit'-ful (R. viii.), deceitful-ly, deceit'-fulness; deception, de.sēp'.shun; deceptive, de.sēp'.tīv; deceptive-ly, deceptive-ness, deceip'tible (not -able); deceitibility, de. sēp'.tī.bī'.tī.ty.
French deceitif, deception; Latin deceptio, dēctēpēra, supine deceptum, to entrap (from de copio, to take in).
December, \textit{de.sen'.ber}. The tenth month, beginning with March.
Latin \textit{december} (from \textit{dece}m, ten; and -\textit{ber}. "Bar" (Pers.), period).

Decemvir, \textit{plu.} \textit{decemvirs} or \textit{decemviri}, \textit{de.sen'.vi}.ri. Ten magistrates, "decemvir" one of the ten.

Decency, \textit{plu.} \textit{decencies}, \textit{de.sen'.sy}, \textit{de.sen'.siz}. (See Decent.)

Decennial, \textit{de.sen'.nial} (double \textit{n}), a period of ten years; \textit{decennial}, \textit{de.sen'.nial}, once in ten years; \textit{decennial}-ly.

Latin \textit{dece}n\textit{ium}, the space of ten years; \textit{decennial}.

"Annual" becomes \textit{ennial} in the compounds, bi-\textit{ennial}, tri-\textit{ennial}, dec-\textit{ennial}, per-\textit{ennial}, &c. Latin \textit{dece}n\textit{niius}.

Deception, \textit{de.sep'.shifn}; \textit{deceptive}, \textit{de.sep'.tiv}. (See Deceive.)

Decide, \textit{de.side'}, to determine; decided, \textit{de.si'.ed}. (Rule xxxvi.); dec\textit{ide}d-ly, dec\textit{id'-ing, dec\textit{id'-er}. (Rule xix).

Decision, \textit{de.si'.shun}; determination; decisive, \textit{de.si'.tiv}; decisive-ly, decisive-ness. (Note the \textit{c} in these words). (Observe.—Verbs in -\textit{de} and -\textit{d} add "\textit{ion}" not "\textit{tion}".)

French \textit{décider, décisif, décision}; Latin \textit{decidere}, to decide (from \textit{de} + \textit{cidus}, to cut away [what is irrelevant]).

Deciduous, \textit{de.si'.d.u.us}. [plants not evergreen], which shed their leaves [in autumn], \textit{deciduous}-ness.

Latin \textit{deciduus}, subject to decay (from \textit{de cado}, to fall off).

Decimal, \textit{des't.imal}, numbered by tens; \textit{decimally} (adv.).

Decipher, \textit{de.si'.fer}, to unravel obscure writings; dec\textit{iphered} (2 syl.); dec\textit{ipher-ing, dec\textit{ipher-er, dec\textit{ipher-able}, that which may be deciphered.}

Decision, \textit{de.si'.shun}; decisive, \textit{de.si'.tiv} (See Decide.).

Deck (of a ship), to adorn; decked (1 syl.), deck\textit{ing, deck\textit'er, a ship having decks, one who adorns.}

Old Eng. \textit{decan}, to cover; Germ. \textit{decks, a covering}, v. \textit{deken, decker.}

Declaim', to inveigh; \textit{declaimed} (2 syl.), \textit{declaim-ing}, \textit{declaim-er}; \textit{declaration, deklam\textit{ay'shun}; deklam\textit{atory, deklam\textit{d.tor.ry, bombastic.}

French \textit{décclaration, déclamatoire}; \textit{décimatio, decimato, declamatori, declamátorius, declámare} (from de clamó, to speak aloud).
Declare, 'de.clair', to assert; declared' (2 syl.), declar'-ing, declar'·er (R. xix.), declar'·able (R. xx.), declaredly, de.clair'·ed.ly; declaration, dék'.la-ray''shun; declarative, de.clair'ry.tiv; declarative-ly; declarator, de.clair'ra.tar; declar'ator-y, declar'atori-ly (Rule xi.) French déclaratif, déclaration, declaratoire, verb declarer.

Lat. declarator, declarário (de clarário, to make quite clear).

Declension, de.klen'.shun. A grammatical form of nouns, a falling off. (An ill-formed word.) See Decline.

Decline', consumption, to lean, to refuse, &c.; declined' (2 syl.), declin'-ing (R. xix.), declin'-able (1st Lat. conj.).

Declination, dék'-li.nay''shun. Deviation.

Declension, de.klen'.shun (of a noun). A falling off. (v.s.)

Declinator, de.kline'.er. One who declines a noun, &c.
French déclin; déclinable, -déclinaison; v. décliner, to decline.
Latin declinitia, a deviation, a declension; v. declinare.
(The supine of 'declinio" is declinatum, and it is quite impossible to obtain declension therefrom.)

Declivity, plu. déclivities, de.cliv'·i.ty, de.cliv'·i.tis (not deeliv·i.ty), an inclination downwards. An inclination upwards is an acclivity, ak.klv·'i.ty.

Declivitous, de.lcl'iv'.i.tlls, adj. (not deelivatous).
French déclivity; Latin declivitas (de clivus, a downward slope).

Decoction, de.kok'·shun. The liquor containing the virtues of something which has been boiled in it.

Latin decoquo, supine decoctum, to boil down.

Decompose, de.kom.pöze. Discompose, dis'.kömpöze'.

Decompose. To analyse, to reduce to elements.

Discompose. To disturb, to ruffle, to agitate.

de'composed', de'composed' (3 syl.), de'composing. (R. xix.)
de'compos'·er, de'compos'·able (R. xxiii.), decom'pose.

Decomposition, de'.köm.po.zi.sh"·on. Analysis; decay, &c.
French décomposable, v. décomposer, "décomposition; Latin de com [con] pönerë, to do the reverse of putting together.

Decompound, de.kom'.pound (noun), de'.kömpound (verb.) A de.compound leaf or flower (Bot.), is a compound-compound leaf or flower, that is, each part of each leaf is compound.

De'compound', to make a compound of different compounds; de'compound'-ed (R. xxvi.), de'compound'-able. (R. xxiii.)
De is for dis (Greek), twice. It is a wretched hybrid, and ought to be bicom-pound. (Latin bi' [bis] compöne.)

Decorate, dék'.o.rate', to adorn; dec'orat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dec'orat-ing (R. xix.), dec'orat-or, one who decorates; decoration, dék'.o-ray''shun; decorative, dék'.o.raft·iv.

French décoration, v. décorer; Latin décorére (from décorus, beauty).
Decorous, de.kör'rus (not dek'er.o.rus), befitting, seemly; decor'ous-ly, decor'ous-ness; decorum, de.kör'rum.

Fr. décorum, propriety; Lat. decórum, decorus (from decus, beauty).

Decoy', to allure; a lure, a place for catching wild-fowls; decoyed' (2 syl.), decoy'-ing (Rule xii.), decoy'-er; decoy'-duck, a duck employed to lure wild ducks into a net or place for catching them.

A corruption of duck-duck, a duck lure ; German koder, a lure.

Decrease, de'kres (noun), de.kres' (verb). Rule 1.

de'crease, diminution; decrease', to diminish; decreased' (2 syl.), decrease'ing (R. xix.), decreasing-ly, decreas'ing-cent.

Lat. decresco, to grow less and less (de cresco, to increase; -se- inceptive).

Decree', an edict, to determine by edict; decreed', decree'ing; decreer, de.kree'er, one who decrees; decre'tal (one e), a decree, a book of decrees (also adj.); decre'tive, de.kree'tiv, having the force of a decree; decre'tory, de.kree'to.ry, judicial, decided by a decree.

French décret, décretale, verb décreter; Latin decrétalis, decrétorius, decre'tum (from decerno, supine decre'tum, to decree).

Decrepit, de.krep'.it (not decrep'id). Infirm from age.

Decrepitude, de.krep'.i.tude. Infirmity from age.

Fr. décrépit, décrépiditude; Lat. decrétitus (from de crep'o, to crack like burning salt; de crépo, to crack, hence "to break down").

Decrepitate, de.krep'.i.tate; to crack like burning salt; decrepit'at-ed (Rule xxxvi.), decrepit'at-ing (Rule xix.); decrepitation, de.krep'.i.tay'shan, a crackling.

French décrépitation, v. décrépiter; Latin decrepitación (frequentative of crêpo, to rattle or crack).

Decrescent, de.kres'.sent (adj.) Becoming smaller and smaller. (-sc- is inceptive. Latin decress'sens.) See Decrease.

Decre'tal, decre'tive, decre'tory. (See Decrease.)

Decry', decries' (2 syl.), decreied' (2 syl.); decri' al, a clamorous censure; decri' er (R. xi.), one who decries; de cry'ing (with a y, R. xi.) French décrer, to cry down.

Dedicate, de.dék.ate, to devote; dedicat-ed (R. xxxvi.), dedi-cat'ing (R. xix.), dedicat'or, dedicatory; dedication, ded'icay'shan, the act of devoting or consecrating, a complimentary address prefixed to a book, &c.

Latin dedicat'io, v. dedic'are, to devote (from de dic'are, to vow to).

Deduce, de.duss'e, to infer; deduced' (2 syl.), deduc'ing (R. xix.), deduc'ible (not -able. Not of the 1st Latin conjugation); deducible-ness, deduc'ing-ment (R. xvii., xviii.)

Latin deduc'ere, (to draw down from) hence, "to infer."
AND OF SPELLING.

187

Deduct', to subtract, to take from; deduct'ed (R. xxxvi.), deduct'ing; deductive, de.diik'.tiv; deductive-ly; deduction, de.dia'k'.shun, subtraction, inference.

French dédication; Latin dēdūctio, dedūcere, sup. dēductum (v.s.)

Deed, an action (Old Eng. dēd, a deed; dēdla, a doer). Indeed, in fact; In very deed, in very fact, in reality.

Deem, to be of opinion; deemed (1 syl.), deem'ing.

Deem'ster. A Judge in the Isle of Man and in Jersey.

Old English dēmā, a judge; v. dēm[an], to deem or judge; past dēmdē (2 syl.); past part. dēmed, deemed. (Ster both genders.)

Deep, far to the bottom, cunning; (noun) the sea; deep'er (comp.), deep'est (sup.), deep'-ly, deep'-ness.

Deep'en, deep'n, to make deeper; deep'ened (2 syl.); deep'en-ing, deep'en-ing (2 syl).

Old English dēdp, deep, profound, ; deep'nes, doppetan, to sink.

Deer, sing. and plu., the stag, &c. Dear, beloved, expensive.

"Deer," Old English deor; "Dear," Old English deor-e, v. deōr[an]. ("Deer," "sheep," and "swine," are both singular and plural.)

Deface' (2 syl.), to disfigure; defaced' (2 syl.), deface'ing (Rule xix.), defacing-ly; defac'eer, one who defaces; deface' ment (Rule xviii. §.), injury to the surface.

De face, to destroy the face or surface. (Latin facies, the face.)

Defalcation, de'fäl.kay''shun (not de'fäl.kay''shun), fraudulent deficiency; defalcator, de'fäl.kay''tor.

French défection; Latin defalcatio (de falcis, a pruning knife).

Defame', (2 syl.), to slander; defamed' (2 syl.), defam'-ing, defam'-ing-ly; defam'er (Rule xix.), one who defames.

Defamation, de'fam.ay''shun, slander; defamatory, de.'fam.a.tory, slanderously.

(The first syl. of these words in Fr. and Lat. is dif-)

French diffamation, di.ffama.tion, verb di.ffamer; Latin di.ffama.tio, di.ffama.re (di[f]d'fama), to deprive one of his fame.)

Defaulter, de'fōl'ter. A peculator.

Old French defauter, now défaut, defect; Low Latin de.fαl.tum.

Defeasible, de.fee'sh.b'l, alienable. Indefeasible, inalienable.

Low Latin de.fεsibilis (Latin deficio, to undo; de facio).

Defeat, de.fεct, to frustrate, to vanquish, a frustration, an overthrow; defeat'ed (Rule xxxvi.), defeat'ing.

(The -ea- of these words is indefensible.)

French défaite (de faire, to undo; Latin de.factus, undone).

Defect', a fault; defection, de.fεk'.shun, a revolt; defective, de.fεk'.tiv, imperfect; defective-ly (R. xi.), defective-ness, defect'-ible; defectibility, de.fεk'.ti.bi''li.ty.

Latin defectus, defectio, defectivus (de facto, to undo).
Defence', (2 syI.) a protection, a vindication; defence'less, defence'less-ness; defences, de.fën'sëz. (Rule xxxiv.) (This is one of the worst anomalies of the language. The “c” ought to have been an s, and has been preserved in the compounds. See Defensive.) See also Condense, note.

French défense; Latin defensus, defendo, supine defensum, and also defenso (from de fendo, to drive away).

Defend', to protect, to vindicate; defend'ed (Rule xxxvi.), defend'ing, defend'-er, defend'-able (Rule xxiii.), defend'-ant (Rule xxv.), the person who defends or replies to a charge in a law-suit. The person who makes the charge is called the plaintiff.

French défendre, défendable, défendeur; Latin defendere. (As usual the wrong conjunction defendable is French.)

Defensive, de.fën'sëv, the side or posture of defence; defen'sive-ly; defensible, de.fën'sëb'l, what may be defended: defensibility, de.fën'sëb'li.ty. (See Defend.)

French défensif; Latin defendere.

Defer', to postpone, to submit; deferred, de.fër'; deferr'ing; deferr'-er, one who postpones, one who submits in opinion.

Deference, def'er.ense, respect to another; deferential, def'er.en'shul, respectful; deferential-ly.

French déférer (both verbs), déférence, défèrent, deferential. Latin deferre, to defer; part. déférens, gen. défér entis; différer, to submit; part. différens, gen. différentis.

Defiance, de.fë'änse, menace. (See Defy.)

Deficient, de.fish'ënt, not perfect; deficient-ly (adverb).

Deficiency, plu. deficiencies, de.fish'ëns'iz (Rule xliiv.), state of imperfection. (-cy denotes state, &c.)

Deficit, de.fish'sët. Deficiency in a money balance.

French déficient, déficit; Latin deficient, genitive deficientis, verb déficio (de facio, to reverse of “making complete”).

Defile (noun), de.fël', a narrow pass; (verb) de.fël' (Rule 1.) to pollute, to march with a narrow front or in single file

Defile', defiled' (2 syI.), defil'ing (both meanings), defil'-er (R. xix.), one who pollutes; defile'-ment, pollution.

“Defile” (to pollute), Old Eng. defyl(an).

“Defile” (to march in single file), Fr. défiler; Lat. flum, a thread.

Define' (2 syI.), to explain, to circumscribe; defined (2 syI.), defin'-ing (R. xix.), defin'-er, defin'-able (R. xxiii.), defin'-ably; definition, de.fë'finish'ën, meaning explained.
AND OF SPELLING.

Definite, défn. (not déf'unit), precise, exact; definite-ly; definite-ness (Rule xvii.), exactness.

Definitive, def ꞌinit.itive, positive; definitively; definitiveness, exactitude.

French définir, définitif, définition; Latin définir, definitely; définir definitivus, define, to define (from finis, a limit).

Deflect', to turn aside; deflect-ed (Rule xxxvi.), deflect-ing.

Deflection, better deflexion, deʃlect'ion. Aberration.

Deflexed, deʃlext' (Bot.) Bent down in a continuous curve.

French deflexion; Latin deflexus, deflecto, supine deflexum (de flecto, to bend downwards, to bend away from).

Deform', to distort; deformed' (2 syl.), deform-ing, deform-er; deformation, deform'ation. shun, disfigurement.

Mal-formation. Abnormal formation, misformed.

Deformity, plu. deformities, deʃorm'i.ties. Distortion.

French deformation, verb to deform. Latin deformatio, deformatas; deformatum, to disfigure (de forma, the reverse of beauty or form).

Defraud', to cheat; defraud-ed (Rule xxxvi.), defraud-ing; defraud-er, one who defrauds.

Latin defraudare (de fraudo, to cheat thoroughly; fraud, fraud).

Defray', to bear the expenses; defrayed' (2 syl.), defray-ing (R. xiii.), defray-er; defray-ment, payment.

Fr. défraiser (de frais, [to cancel] a charge); Low Lat. redum, charge.

Defunct, deʃunct', dead. (Lat. defunctus, discharged [from life].)

Defy', to dare, to challenge; defies, deʃize; defied' (2 syl.), defy-ing (not def'y-er), defy-ance, defy-ant, but defy-ing.

French défier, défiance, défiant; v. défier, to defy or challenge.

Degenerate, deǥe'nerate, to grow worse; degenerated (Rule xxxvi.), degenerate-ing; degeneration, deǥe'nera.tion. shun; degeneracy, deǥe'nera.ty (-cy denotes a "state"); degenerate-ly; degenerate-ness, degenerate condition.

French dégénération, v. dégénérer; Latin dégénérer (from dégener, unlike his ancestors; de gens, to fall away from one's race).

Degrad', to disgrace; degrad-ed (Rule xxxvi.), degrad-ing; degradation, deǥ'rad.a.tion. shun, dishonour, loss of rank; degrad-er, one who degrades another; degrad-ing-ly.

Fr. dégradation, dégrader: Lat. degradus, [to reduce] from grade.

Degree'. A measure applied to circles, rank, relationship, &c.

By degrees. Little by little, gradually. (French dégré.)

Deify, deʃify, to exalt to the gods; deifies, deʃife; deified, deʃide; deifi-er, deʃi'er, one who deifies; deification, deʃi.ka.tion, shun, exaltation to divine honours.

Deism; deʃism, belief in a creator but not in revelation;

16—2
deist, deíst, one whose creed is deism; deistical, deíst'ikl; deistical-ly, deíst'iklIy.

Deity, plu. deities, deístiz. (Rule xi.)
(Dei- is pronounced di-, except in this set of words and in the word "deign," where it has the sound of "a.")

French déification, v. déifier, déisme, déiste, déité; Latin déitas.

Deign, dain', to vouchsafe. Dane, a native of Denmark.

Deign, deigned (1 syl.), deign'-ing. Dis'dain, to contemn. ("Deign" and "disdain" should be spelt in one way; both are from the Lat. dignus, Fr. daigner.)

French daigner, to deign; dé-daigner, to disdain. Latin dignus.

Deino-, di.no- (Greek prefix meaning terrible from hugeness of size, marvellously great in bulk).

Deinornis, di.nor'nis. A huge fossil bird. (Gk. ornis, a bird.)

Deino-saurus or deino-saurian, plu. deino-saurians, di'no-saw'rus dí'no.saw'.ri.an, dí'no.saw'.ri.anz. A huge fossil lizard. (Greek sauros, a lizard.)

Deino-therium, plu. deino-theria, di'.no.thee''ri.um, plu. di'.no.thee''ri.anh. A huge fossil animal with a trunk.

Greck deinos thérion, a terribly-huge beast.

(These words are sometimes spelt di- instead of dei-.)

Deject', to dishearten; deject'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), deject'ed-ly, deject'ed-ness, deject'-ing; dejection, de.jek'.shun.

Fr. déjection; Lat. dejectio, sup. dejectum (de facio, to throw down).

Delay', to defer; delayed' (2 syl.) not delaid. (It is not a compound of lay, R. xiv., but the supine of différo, Lat.)

delay'-ing, delay'-er (R. xix.), one who delays.:

French délai; Latin différo, supine dilatíum, to defer.

"Defer" is from the root and "delay" from the sup. of the same verb.

Delectable, de.lek'.ta.bl. (See Delight.)

Delegate, dêl'.eg'ate, a representative, to send a representative; del'egát-ed (R. xxxvi.), delegat'-ing (R. xix.), intrusting a commission to another; delegation, dêl'.e.gay'.shun.

French délégation, v. déléguer; Lat. délégatio, v. délégare (de légare), to send away as ambassador or legate).

Delendum, plu. delenda, de.len'.dah (Lat.), to be erased. In printers' proofs written del or d.

Deleterious, dêl'.e.tee''.ri.ús, hurtful; dele'tious-ly, dele'tious-ness. (The de-, in Greek, is long.)

Greek déletérios, délêter, a destroyer: délênomai, to destroy.

Delf. Coarse earthenware, originally made at Delft (Holland).

Deliberate, de.lib'.ér ate, slow to determine, to weigh in the mind the pros and cons; deliberate-ly, deliberate-ness; delib'erát-ed (R. xxxvi.), delib'erát-ing (R. xix.), delib'- erat-or; deliberation, delib'er-ray'shon; deliberat-ive, delib'er-ative-ly, with deliberation.

Delicacy, plu. delicacies, dél'ís.ka.shy, dél'ís.ka.siz. A dainty, weakness, tenderness, consideration for others.

Delicate, dél'i.ket; de'licate-ly, de'licate-ness.

Delicious, délish'us, delightful to the taste; delicious-ly, delicious-ness. (Fr. délicieux; Lat. délicia, delights.)

Delight, pleasure, to please; delight-ed (R. xxxvi.), delight-ing; delight'-ful (R. vii.), delightful-ly, delightful-ness; delight'-some, full of delight (-some, Old English suffix, "full of"); delight'some-ness, agreeableness.

Delectable, déleck'ta.b'l; delectable-ness; delectability, déleck'ta.b'l'i.ty; delection, déleck'tay'shon.

Delinquent, délin'quent. One who commits a fault.

Delinquency, plu. delinquencies, délin'quen.siz. Missdeeds. French dél'inquant (wrong conj.); Latin dél'inquens, gen. -quen'tis, to fail in one's duty (de linquere, to leave behind).

Delirious, délir'i.us, wandering in mind from illness; delirious-ly, delirious-ness; delirium, délir'i.um, temporary aberration of mind; delirium tremens, délir'i.um treem, insanity accompanied with a trembling of the limbs, generally brought on by drunkenness.

Lat. délirium, dotag~ (de lira, to get out of the furrow in ploughing).

Delittante (no such word). See Dilettante.

Deliver, deliv'er, to set free, to save, to hand over, to disburden, to utter; delivered, deliv'er-ed; deliver'-ing, deliver'er, deliver'-able, deliver'er-ance, deliver'ery.

To deliver up, to surrender. To deliver over, to transfer.

French dél'iverance, v. dél'iverer, dél'ivereur; Latin de liber'are, to liberate from [bondage] (liber, free).

Dell (R. v.), a valley. (Old Eng. d ál, a dale; Welsh tu'wll, a pit.)

Delphian, dél'fían. Delphine, dél'fín.

Delphian. Pertaining to the oracle of Delphi, in Greece.

Delphine. A French edition of the Latin classics for the use of the "Grand Dauphin" (son of Louis XIV.)
Delphinus, del'fin. 'th. The dolphin genus.
Delphinium, del'fin. 'th.um. The larkspur species of plants. Called delphinium, from a fancied resemblance of the unopened flowers to an heraldic dolphin. Called larkspur from a fancied resemblance of the horned nectary to a lark's spur.

"Delphian," Greek Delphinios; adj. of Delphoi (oracle of Delphi). "Delphine," Greek delphin or delphis, a dolphin; Old Eng. delfin.

"Delphin-idæ," -idæ, a Greek patronymic, denotes a family or group. "Delphin-ium," -ium; a Latin termination, denotes a species.

Delta, del'tah, a triangular tract of land at the mouth of certain rivers, as the Nile, so called from the Greek Δ (d or delta). Deltic, del'tik, adj.; deltoid, del'toid, somewhat resembling a delta. (Greek delta eidos, delta like.)

Delude (2 sy.), to deceive; delud'-ed (3 sy., R. xxxvi.); delud'-ing (R. xix.); delud'-er, one who deludes; delud'-able (R. xxiii.), easily deceived, gullible.

Delusion, Illusion, delu'zhun, illu'zhun. Delusion is deception from want of knowledge. Illusion is deception from morbid imagination.

Delusion (R. xxxiii.); delusive, de.lu'ziv; delu'sive-ly, delusive-ness; delu'sory, de.lu'zory. Latin deludère, to cheat (de ludo, to play on one's credulity).

Delve (1 sy.), to dig; delved (1 sy.), delv'-ing (Rule xix); delv'-er, one who delves.

Old English delfan, to dig; past dealf, past part. delven.

Demagnetise, de.ma'g.netiz, to undo magnetic influence; demagnetised, de.ma'g.netized; demagnetis-ing, de-ma'g.netizing (R.xix); demagnetis-er, de.ma'g.netiz.er.

"Magnetise" is to affect with magnetism, or to make magnetic; de-reverses; and "de-magnetise" is to undo the former processes.

Demagogue, dém'a.g.g. Demigod, dém'i.gôd.

Demagogue. A factious mob orator.

Demigod. A man who has rank with the gods.

"Demagogue," French démagogue; Greek dém-ágógos, a popular leader (démos, the people); Latin demagōgus.

"Demigod," French démî, half, and our native word "God." The word half or half is the native word for demi, as heatf-clytiend, a semi-vowel, heatf-bryndel, a semi-sphere.

Demand', a request, to claim or seek with authority; demand'-ed (R. xxxvi.); demand'-ing, demand'-er, demand'-a ble (not -ible); demand'ant, the plaintiff in a law-suit.

French demandé, v. démânder; Latin demândâre (mandâ, to order).

Demarcation, dé'mær kar'zhun. A line of separation. French démârcation; Old English mear, a mark, a boundary.
Demean', to behave, to 'debase; demeaned' (2 syl.), demean'-ing; demeanour, dé.mean'. or, behaviour.

“Demean” (to deport oneself). “De-port” is Latin de porto, to carry; and “demean” is French de mener, to lead or carry.

“Demean” (to debase oneself) is Old English ge-menc, common.

Demi-, dém'-i. (French prefix), half. Demy, de-mú [paper], q.v.

Greek hemi-, Latin semi- (from Greek hémisus, Latin sémis, half).

Demi-god. A deified man.

This hybrid word is partly French and partly Anglo-Saxon.

Demi-lune. A term in Fort. (French demi lune, half moon.)

Demi-semiquaver, dém'-t sém'-i-qua'ver. Half a semi-quaver, the shortest musical note.

This is French demi; Latin sēmi; Spanish quichro, a trill!!

Demi-volt (Fr.) One of the seven movements in manège.

Demise, dé.misz', death; to bequeath; demised’ (3 syl.), demis'-ing (Rule xix.), demis'-able (Rule xxiii.)

Latin démittere, supine démissum, to send down [to the grave], hence "death"; to send down [to heirs], hence "to bequeath."

Democracy, plu. democracies, dé.mök'.ră.sy, dé.mök'.ra.stz, a republic; democratize, dé.mök'.ra.tiže, to make democratic; democratized’ (4 syl.), democratiz'-ing (R. xix.)

Democrat, dém'.o.krát, a favourer of democracy; democratic, dém'.o.krát'is, or democratical, dém'.o.krát"i.kăl (adj.); democratical-ly, in a democratic manner.

Greek démokratia (démös kratéo, to govern by the people), démokratikós.

(The last syllable is -cy, “state, office, rule”; not -sy. Similarly "aristocracy," "autocracy," and the hybrid "monocracy." )

Demobilise, dé.mō'.b'iliz. To “mobilise” troops is to render them liable to be moved out of their quarters to serve against an enemy. To “demobilise” them is to send them home, as not required for active service.

Demobilise, demobilised (4 syl.), demobilis'-ing (R. xix.); demobilisation, dé.mō'.b'il.i.zay'shun.

(These words came into popular use in the Franco-Prussian war, but have not yet found their way into dictionaries.)

Demolish, dé.mō'.lish, to pull down; demolished (2 syl.), demol'ish-ing, demol'ish-er; demolition, dé.mō'.lish' on.

French démolition, v. démolar; Latin demollitio, v. demoliri (moller is to heap up, de mollor is the reverse of “heaping up”).

Demon, dé.mō.n, a fiend; demonism, dé.mō.n.zm, belief in the active agency of demons; demonology, dé.mō.nō'l'o.gy, a systematic treatise on demons (Gk. λόγος, discourse, &c.), demonolatry, dé.mō.nōl'.a.try, the worship of demons (Gk. latreia, worship), demoniac, dé.mō'.ni.ák, one possessed; demonical, dé.mō'.ni.āl' (adj.); demon'ical-ly; demonize, dë'mô.nîzë, to make one like a demon; de'monized (3 syl.), de'moniz-ing (Rule xix.), de'moniz-er.

French démon, démoniaque, démonographe, démonologie; Latin daemon, daemoniacus; Greek daïmôn, daïmoniakos, daïmonizōmat.

Demonstrate, de'mon.strate (not dëm.'on.strate), to prove; demon'strated (Rule xxxvi.), demon'strat-or (not -er, Rule xxxvii); demonstrat-ive, de'mon.strati-ve; demonstrative-ly, demonstrative-ness; demonstrable, de.mon'stra.b'il; demonstrable-ness, demon'strably (1st Latin conj.) Rule xix. demonstration, dëm.'on.stray'shun.

French démonstratif, démonstration; Latin demonstrativus, demonstrātor, dēmonstrāre (monstrō, "to point out").

Demoralize, de.mor'al.ize, to injure the morals, to disorganize; demoral'ised (4 syl.), demor'al.ising (Rule xix.), demor'al.is-er; demoralisation, de.mor'al.iz.ation.

French démoralisation, v. démoraliser; Latin de.morēs.

Dem'ster. A judge in the Channel Isles, and in the Isle of Man.

Old English démə, a judge; dém[an], to judge; -ster is not a feminine suffix, but is used in both genders).

Demulcent, de.mül'.sent. Soothing, (Lat. demulcens, gen. -centis.)

Demur', to hesitate from doubt; demurred' (2 syl.), demurr'-ing, demurr'-er (R. i.), in Law, an issue raised on some legal question in a suit, one who demurs; demurr'-able; demurr'-age, a fixed charge for the detention of trunks, &c., belonging to another railway company; an allowance made to the owners of a ship by the freighters for detention in port beyond time.

French demeure, v. demeurer; Latin démōrāri (mōra, delay).

Demure, de.meur', coy; demure'-ly, demure'-ness.

French des mœurs (avoir des mœurs, to have proper morals).

Demy, plu. demies, de.mi', de.mize'. Dem'i. Demise' (2 syl.)

Demy', a size (in paper) between "royal" and "crown," a "scholarship" in Magdalen College, Oxford; demyship, de.my'ship, the possession of a demy scholarship (-ship, Old Eng. affix, "tenure of," "state," "jurisdiction," &c.)

Demi, dëm'i (Fr. prefix), half; Lat. sēmi; Gk. hēmi.

Demise, de.mize', death.

"Demy" [paper], that is, demi-royal 20 in. by 15, instead of 24 by 19.

"Demy" [Oxford], is a demi or inferior fellowship.

Den- (Old Eng. postfix) a valley, a wooded place; as Tenter-den.

Den, a cage for wild beasts, &c. (Old Eng. den or denu, a den.)

Denationalise, de.nash'.on.al.ize. To deprive of nationality. The Poles are denationalised, being incorporated into Russia, &c.; denationalised, de.nash'.on.al.ized; denationalis-ing.

Dene (1 syl.), a valley. Dean, a church dignitary.

"Dene," Old English dene. "Dean," Latin decānus, Denial, den'i:ál. (See Deny.)

Denizen, dén'.i.zen. A naturalised citizen.
Denizen is one made a citizen ex donatio:ne regis (by royal gift or charter). A denizen was a trader within the walls of a town; a forein was a trader without the walls (Lat. foris, abroad).

Denizen is one made a citizen ex donatio:ne regis (by royal gift or charter). A denizen was a trader within the walls of a town; a forein was a trader without the walls (Lat. foris, abroad).

Low Latin denizewus; Old French donaison (Latin donum, a gift).

Denominate, de.nom'.i.nate, to designate; denom'inat-ed (R. xxxvi.), denom'inat-ing (R. xix.); denom'inat-er, one who denominates; denom'inat-or, in fractions, the figure below the line, as ½ (here "2" is the denominator because it "designates" into how many parts the unit is divided.

Denomination, de.nom'.i.nay'.shun, name, a society (chiefly applied to religious sects); denominational, de.nom'.i.-nay'.shun.al, sectarian; denominational-ly; denomina'tive, de.nom'.i.iva.tiv.

French dénominateur, a denominator, dénominatif, dénomination; Latin denominatio, denominativus, denominátor, that which gives the name (to a fraction), denomináre (from nomen, a name).

Denote' (2 syl.), to indicate; denot'-ed (R. xxxvi.), denot'-ing (R. xix.), denot'-able; denotation, de'.no.tay'.shun; denotative, de.nó'.ta.tiv, having the power to denote.

Fr. dénotation, v. dénoter; Lat. denotátio, denotáre (nóta, a mark).

Denouement (French), da'.nou.mah'n (not da.nou.'emong), the winding up or final catastrophe of a drama, &c.

Denounce, de.noun'se', to inform against; denounced' (2 syl.), denounc'-er, denounce-ment.

Denunciation, de.nun'se.a'.shun, a public denouncement; denunciar (not -ter), one who denounces; denunciation, de.nun'.she.a.t'ry, containing a denouncement.

French dénoncer, dénonciation; Latin denunciation, denunciáre, to denounce (de nuncio, to inform against).

Dense, dence, thick. Dens, denz, plu. of den; dense'-ly, closely; denso'-ness, dens'ity. (Rule xix.)

French dense, densité; Latin densus, densitas, v. densáre.

Dent, a notch. Dint, force, power.

"There is a dent in the [teapot]," not dint.
"He did it by dint of [kindness], by the power or force of..."

Dent (verb), dent'-ed (R. xxxvi.), dent'-ing. The more usual forms of this verb are indent', indent'ed, indent'-ing; indentation, ind'ent'a.t'ion (has no simple form).

Dent'-al, pertaining to the teeth; dent'-ist; dentistry, the art and profession of a dentist; dentition, den.tish'.un, the "cutting" of teeth,
Dentate, dēn'tate (in Bot.), toothed [applied to leaves];
dentated, dēn'tā'ted (R. xxxvi.); dentate-ly.

Dentelle, dahn'.tell. Lace, lace-work.

Denticle, dēn'.ti:k'l, a small projecting point like a tooth;
denticulate, dēn'.ti:k'.u-late (in Bot.), finely toothed;
denticulate-ly; dentication, dēn'.ti:k'.u-ly'.shun.

Dentifrice, dēn'.ti.fr'is. Tooth-powder.

Latin dentes frīco, to rub the teeth.

Dentine, dēn'.ti:n. The tissue which forms the body of a tooth. (-ine Lat. "substance.")

Dentils, dēn'.ti:ls (in Arch.). Little square projections in the bed-mouldings of cornices, &c.

French dent, a tooth; dental, dentelle, denticule, dentifrice, dentiste, dentition; Lat. dens, gen. dentis, denticular, dentifricium, dentitio.

Denude' (2 syl), to strip; denū'd-ed (R. xxxvi.), denū'd-ing (Rule xix.), denū'd-er, denudation, de.nū'.dā'ly'.shun, divestment.

French démulation, v. démuder; Latin dénudatio, v. denudare, to make entirely naked (from nūdus, naked).

Denunciation, de.nūn'.se.ə'ly'.shun. (See Denounce.)

Deny', to refuse, to contradict; denies, de.nīz; denied, dē.nīd;
deny'er, dē.nī-able, denī'-al, but deny'-ing (Rule xi.)

French denier, to deny; déni, a denial; Latin dēnīgāre, to refuse.

Deodand, dē'.o.dand. A fine on the master, when one of his chattels has caused the death of a human creature.

Latin deo dandus, given to God. As the person thus killed died without absolution, the money was given for "masses for the dead." Abolished in 1846.

Deodorise, dē.i.do.′rīz, to disinfect, to neutralise bad odours; deo'dorised (4 syl.), deo'orīs-ing (R. xix.); deo'orīs-er, a disinfectant; deodorisation, dē.ı'.do.′ri.iz′.ay'.shun.

Latin de odeo, i.e. deo, to stink (de reverses).

Deoxidate, dē.ox′.ı.date. to deprive of oxygen; deox′idat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), deox′idat-ing (Rule xix.), deoxidation, dē.ox′.ı.day′.shun, deprivation of oxygen.

Deoxidise, dē.ox′.ı.dı.z, to deprive of oxygen; deox′idis-ed (4 syl.), deox′idis-ing, deox′idis-er, that which deoxidises.

Dexygenate, dē.ox′.ı.j′.en.ı.t, to deprive of oxygen; deox′igenat-ed, deox′igenat-ing, deox′igenat-er, that which deprives of oxygen; deoxigenation, dē.ox′.ı.j′.en.ı.t′.ay′.shun. (It is usual to spell these words with 'x' instead of '*ks' but as "oxygen" is spelt with a "y", the change should never have been made.)

French de-oxydable, -oxydation, -oxyder, to deoxidise, -oxydénation, v. -oxygéner; Greek oxigos genos, to generate sour or acid [compounds].
AND OF SPELLING.

Depart', to leave; depart'-ed (R. xxxvi.), depart'ing, departure, de.par'.tchur, a going away, death.

Depart'ment, a specific branch of a business; depart­mental, de.part.men'.tiil, limited to a department.

French départ, v. départir, département, départemental;
Latin de partire or -iri, to separate from [others].

Depend', to rely on; depend'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), depend'-ing, depend'-ent (not dependent), dependent-ly, depend'ence (not dependence); depend'ency, plu. dependencies, de.pên'.den'.siz; depend'able (R. xxiii). Independence, in· depend'ency, in'depend'ent, in'depend'ently (in-, neg.)

Dependent on [another]; Independent of [all others].

Pendent from [the ceiling], i.e., hanging down from.

French dépendance, dépendant (wrong conj.); Lat. dependens, gen. dependentis, v. dependere (de pendeo, to hang on or from).

Depict', to paint, to describe; depict'ed (Rule xxxvi.), depict'ing; depict'er, one who depicts. (Latin depictus, painted.)

Depilatory, de.pil'.a.to.ry, an ointment or lotion for removing hair [from the face and arms].

French dépilatoire; Latin depilare, to remove the hair (pilus, hair).

Depletion, de.plee'.shun, exhaustion; depletive, de.plee'.tiv.

Latin deplere (plea, to fill, de reverses).

Deplore' (2 syl.), to lament; deplored' (2 syl.), deplor'-ing (R. xix.), deplor'ing-ly (adv.); deplor'-er, one who deplores; deplor'able, deplor'ably, de-plor'ableness; deplora­bility, de.plor'·a·b·i·ty, deplorable state.

French déplorable, v. déplorer; Latin deplorare (pluro, to wail).

Depolarise, de.po'.lar.ize, to deprive of polarity; depo'larised (4 syl.), depolar'ising (R. xix.), depolarisation, de.po'. lar.i.zay'.shun. To polarise light is to split each undula­tion into two, each split undulation is “polarised light.”

Polarity, po.lar'rt.ty, the “state of being polarised.”

French polarisation, polariser, polarité; Latin polaris, polar.

Depopulate, de.pop'.u.late, to lay waste, to deprive of inhabit­ants; depop'ulat-ed (R. xxxvi.), depop'ulat-ing (R. xix.), depop'ulat-or (R. xxxvii.); depop'ulation, -lay'.shun.

French dépopulation; Latin depopulatio, depopulátor, depopulare (populus, people), to deprive of people, de private.

Deport', to behave; deport'-ed (R. xxxvi.), deport'ing; deport­ment, behaviour. The verb deport [to behave] must be followed by a reciprocal pronoun, as oneself, himself, my­self, herself, themselves, yourself, yourselves, &c.

French dépor'ter; to banish; Latin deportare, to carry away (porto, to bear or carry). We talk of a man’s bearing [way of conducting himself], his carriage [figure and bearing], &c.
Depose, *de.poze', to degrade from office (s between two vowels = z); deposed (2 syl.), depōs'-ing (Rule xix); depōs'-er.

French déposer, déposition; Latin depositio, depositor, depositus, depōsēre, supine depōsum (de pono, to lay [something] down).

Deposit, *de.po·sit, something intrusted to another, a pawn, to give something as a pledge, to lay by money in the bank; deposit-it-ed (R. xxxvi.), deposit-it-ing, deposit-it-or (R. xxxvii.); depository, *de.po.zi·to.ry, place for deposits. (This word ought to be depositary; Fr. dépositaire; Lat. depōsētorius.)

Depot, *plu. depōts, dé.pō', dé.pó'ze' (Fr.), not day'po, nor dép'po, a place where stores of a specific sort are kept.

Depra've (2 syl.): to corrupt; depraved (2 syl.), deprav'-ing (R. xix.), deprav'-er; depravity, *plu. depravities, de-prav'.tiz, moral turpitude; depravedness, *de.prav'd'.ness.

French déprécation, déprécatif; Latin de precati, to pray against.

Depreciate, *de.pree'st.ate, to lessen in value; depre'ciat-ed (lt. xxxvi.), depre'ciat-ing (Rule xix.), depre'ciating-ly, depre'ciat-or (not -er, R. xxxvii.); depreciatory, *de.pre'.ka'try; depre'cative, *de.pre'.ka'tiv, depre'cative-ly.

Depreciation, *de.pree'.s'a.shun, dejection, concavity.

French dépréciation, v. déprecier; Latin deprecatiūrum, the price).

Depredate, *de.pre'ed, to plunder; dep'redat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dep'redat-ing (Rule xix.), dep'redat-or (Rule xxxvii.); depredatory, *de.pre'.da'try (adj.), plundering; depredation, *de.pre'.day'.shun, spoliation.

French dépréda tion; Latin de predataio, predator, praedatorius (from praeda, prey, booty).

Depress', to lower in spirit or in value; depressed (2 syl.), depress'-ing, depress'ing-ly, depress'-or (not -er, R. xxxvii.); depression, *de.presh'.un, lowness, dejection, concavity.

French depression; Latin depressio, depressor, v. deprimō, supine depressum (de prēmo, to press down).
Deprive', to take away, to lose; deprived', depriv'-ing (R.xxxvi.), depriv'-er, depriv'-able, deprivation; dépriv'.vay'.shun.

Latin de- privare, to take away from; privatio.

Depth. Observe these four words, Length, breadth, depth, and height (not heighth, as it is often pronounced).

Deep; -th, Old Eng. postfix, converts adj. to abstract nouns.

Depurate, de.pū'.rate, to free from impurities; depur'at-ed (R. xxxvi.), depur'at-ing (R. xix.); depuration, de.pū'. ray'.shun; depurative, depu'.ra.tiv.
(The accent of these words is often thrown on the first syllable, but the way given is the more correct.)

French dépurier, dépuration; Latin depuratio (purus, pure, clean).

Depute' (2 syl.), to appoint; depu't-ed (R. xxxvi.), depu't-ing (R. xix.), depu't'-er; deputy, plu. deputies, dép'.u.tiz, persons deputed; deputation, dep'.u.tay'.shun.

French députation, v. députer; Latin depūtāre, to lay off (πύτο, to prune). A "deputy" is one cut off from others for a given object.

Derrange, de.rang'j (not de.rāng'), to disorder; deranged' (2 syl.), derang'-ing (R. xix.), derang'-er, derangement (only five words drop the e final before -ment. Rule xviii. §).

French derrangement, v. derranger (ranger to put in rank, de reverses).

Derelict, der'elikt, abandoned, goods forsaken by the owner; dereliction [of duty], der'elik'.shun (not de'rection), neglect [of duty] involving guilt.

Latin dērēlictio, dērēlictus (de relinquor, relictus, to leave).

Dercetis, dēr'.ē'tis. A fossil eel-like fish in the chalk formation.

Greek Derkētis, a Syrian goddess, like a mermaid, similar to Dagon.

Derelict, der'ry.likt, abandoned, goods forsaken by the owner; dereliction [of duty], der'ry.lik'.shun (not de'rection), neglect [of duty] involving guilt.

Latin dērēlictio, dērēlictus (de relinquor, relictus, to leave).

Derride' (2 syl.), to laugh at; derid'-ed (R. xxxvi.), derid'-ing (R. xix.), derid'-er, one who derides.

Derision, dē.ri.z'j.un, ridicule; derisive, dē.ri'.siv; deri'.sive-ly, derisive-ness (Rule xxxiii.)

French dēridier, dērision; Latin déridere supine dérisum, to laugh at; derisio.

Derive' (2 syl.), to acquire, receive, draw from a source; derived' (2 syl.), deriv'-ing (R. xix.), deriv'-er, deriv'-able.

Derivation, der'ry.vay'.shun, tracing to the root, descent.

Derivative, dē.riv'.a.tiv, a word formed from another, not fundamental; derivative-ly. Rule (xvii.)

French dērīvatif, dērivation, v. dērīver; Latin dērīvātō, dērīvātus, dērīvāto (de rīvo (to draw) from the river or source).

Dernier ressort, derr'.ne.a res'.sor (French). The last expedient or resource. (Not dernier resort, which is one word French and one English, and ought not to be tolerated. Either say dernier ressort or the last resource.)
Derogate, der'ro-gate, to disparage; der'og-āt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), der'o-gāt-ing; derogation, der'ro-gāt'-shun.

Derogator, der'ō-gā'tor; a detractor; derog'at-ory, derog'- at-or-i-ly (Rule xxxvi.), derog'at-or-i-ness (Rule xi).

French dérogation, dérogatoire, v. déroger; Latin derogātio, derogātor, derogātēns, derogātōrius, derogāture (frequentative), derogāre.
("Regāre" is bring in a bill or propose a law; "de-regāre" is the reverse, i.e., to repeal a law.)

Der'rick. A temporary crane for removing goods from a vessel.
So called from Derrick, the Tyburn hangman (17th century).

Dervish or dervise, der'vis. A Mohammedan "monk" of great austerity. (Persian, derwesh, poor.)

Descant, des.'kant', to comment, to talk to oneself; descant'-ed
(R. xxxvi.), descant'-ing, descant'-er.
(The first syllable should be dis. The word is "dis-cant.")

Spanish aiscantar, to desca11-~; Latin, dis:canUire, to s~ng. apart.

Descend; de.senel (not des, send'. The word is .compounded of de and scando, to climb down); descend-ed, de.send'.ed
(R. xxxvi.), descend-ing, de.send'.ing.

Descendant. One proceeding from an ancestor. (This word should be "descendent;" but, as usual, we owe our error to the French.) Descendent (in Astr.), is the opposite of ascendant. (Here again is a marvellous confusion. It should be "The star is in the ascendent or descendent;" but if the French error is preferred, then take the French words ascendant and descendent, and not one right and one wrong.)

Descend'-ible (not -able); descendibility, de.send'-i.-bil'-i.ty.

Descension, de.sen'.shun, a falling, hence a quarrel or falling out (verbs in -d and -de, add -sion, instead of -tion, R. xxxiii.); descensional, de.sen'.shun.al (adj.)

Descent; de.sent'. (not dis.sent), slope, progress down; but Dissent, dis.sent', a disagreement, to differ.

French descendant, verb descendre, descends; Latin descendens, gen.
 descendentis, descensio, descendère (de scando, to climb down).
"Dissent" is Latin dissentio, i.e., dis sentio, to think differently.

Describe, de.skrīb'ē (not des.kribe). (The word is compounded of de and scribo, to write down, not des-cribo.)

Described, de.skrīb'd'; describ-ing, de.skrīb'-i.ng (Rule xix.); describ-er, de.skrīb'er, one who describes; describable, de.skrīb'-a.ble (Rule xxiii.) The negative is indescribable, that which cannot be described.

Description, de.skrīp'.shun (not dis.krip'.shun); descriptive, de.skrīp'.tiv (not dis.krip'.tiv); descriptive-ly; descriptiVe-ness; de.skrīp'.tiv.-ness.

French descriptif, description; Latin descriptēre, description (de scribo, to write down, to limit or define).
AND OF SPELLING.

Descry, to espy. Decry, to cry down.

Descry, des·kry' (not des·kry', nor yet dis·kry'); describe, des·kri·ze' (not dis·krize); descried, des·kri·de' (not dis·kride); descrier (not descrier; R. xi.), des·cri·er.

(The first syll. ought to be dis-as it is usually pronounced.)

"Descry" is a corruption of the Norman discrifer; Latin discern, supine discrētum, to discern.

"Decry" is the French dé crier, to cry down.

Desecrate, dés·ék·rate, to profane what is sacred, the opposite of consecrate; des·ecrat-ed (R. xxxvi.), des·ecrat-ing (R. xix.); des·ecrat-er, one who desecrates; desecration, dés·ék·ra'·shun, profanation. (One of the few words in -tion which is not French.)

(This word must not be confounded with execrate, "to detest," "to curse.")

Latin dés·ec·rare, dés·ec·ratus (sacrare, is to hallow, de reverses).

Desert, dés·er·t; desert, de·zert'; dessert, des·zert'.

§ Desert, dés·er·t (noun); de·zert' (verb). Rule I.

Desert, dés·er·t, a wilderness, a solitude; de·zert', to abandon; desert'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), desert'-ing, desert'-er (should be desertor); desertion, dés·er·tion.

§ Desert, dés·er·t'. That which deserves reward or punishment.

§ Dessert (with double s). The course of fruit at dinner.

"Desert" (a wilderness, to abandon): French désert, verb désertor, déserteur, désertion; Latin desertum, a des'ert; desertor, desertio, desertāre (frequentative of servus, to knit together, and de- which reverses, hence to unbind, forsake, abandon).

"Desert" (merit), Latin déservire, supine déservitum, contracted to déserv'um, something deserved.

"Dessert" (of fruit), French dessert, what is brought on after the table is cleared (desservir, to clear the table).

Deserve, de·zerve', to merit; deserved, de·zerv'd; deserving, de·zerv·ing (Rule xix.); deserv'er, de·zerv·er ("s" between two vowels = z).

Deservedly, de·zerv'd·ly, more often de·zor'·ved·ly.

Deserv'ing-ly (only in a good sense).

Latin de·servio, to merit for service (servio, to do a service).

Deshabille, properly pronounced days'-a·bee'·ya, but generally called dis·a·beel, undress. (French.)

Desiccate, des·ik·kate, to dry up; des·iccat-ed (Rule xxxvi.) des·iccat-ing (Rule xix.); desiccant, des·ik·kant, a medicine to dry a running sore; desiccation, des·ik·ka'·shun, the act of making dry, or state of being dry.

Desiccative, de·sik'·ka·tiv (adj). Drying or tending to dry.

("Desiccation" is one of the few words in -tion not French.)

Latin desiccatio, desiccāre (ticco, to dry; siccus, dry).
ERRORS OF SPEECH

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Definition</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Desiderare, desiderat-ed</td>
<td>to want; desiderāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.); desiderā-ting; desiderative, desiderā-tiv. (These words are not much used.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desideratum, plu. desiderata, desiderat-ed</td>
<td>Something needed to supply a deficiency.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desideration, desiderat-ed</td>
<td>Something required to supply a deficiency.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Latin désiderātio, désideratūs, désiderāre, to crave for.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Design, design</td>
<td>a scheme, a plan, to intend, to plan, &amp;c.; designed, design-ed; design-ing, design-ing; design-er, desiner; design-ed-ly, design-ly; design-able, design-able; design-less, design-less; design-less-ly; design-ment, design-ment. (In all the examples given above the “g” is silent, but is pronounced hard in the following derivatives, and “s” is no longer = z.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Designate, designate</td>
<td>to point out, to name; designated, designate-ed (Rule xxxvi.); designate-ing, designate-or. (R. xxxvii.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desination, designation</td>
<td>A name, &amp;c. (Rule lx.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French désigner, désignation; Latin désignatio, désignator, désign[or], to mark out (signum, a sign or distinguishing mark).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desire, desire</td>
<td>to wish for (“s” between two vowels = z); desired’ (2 syl.), desire-ing (R. xix.), desire-er, desire-able, desirably, desire-able-ness.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desirous, desire-us</td>
<td>wishful; desirous-ly.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French désir, desire-able, v. désirer, désireux; Latin désiderō, which furnishes the verb désiderāre, to crave for; désiderium, desire, craving for.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desist, desist</td>
<td>to leave off (Rule lx.); desist-ed (Rule xxxvi.); desist-ing; desistance, desisṭ-tance, a ceasing to act. (The first “s” in “desist” is pronounced between s and z; but in “resist” it is decidedly = z.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French désister; Latin desistēre, desistens (sisto, to continue).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desk, a sloping table. (Old Eng. disc, a table, a board, a dish.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desolate, desolate</td>
<td>lonesome, in a ruinous state, to lay waste; desolat-ed (R. xxxvi.), desolat-ing (R. xix.); desolat-er, one who lays waste; desolat-ly; desolatory, desolat-ry.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desolation, desolate-shun</td>
<td>a state of ruin and gloom.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French désolateur, désolation, verb désoler; Latin désolatio, désolatūs, désolāre (from sólus, alone).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Despair, despair</td>
<td>(not dispair), hopelessness, to be without hope; despair-ed (2 syl.), despair-ing, despair-ing-ly, despair-er.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desperate, desperate-rate</td>
<td>reckless, without hope; desperate-ly, desperate-ness (Rule xvii.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desperation, desperate-shun</td>
<td>Recklessness, hopelessness.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
AND OF SPELLING.

Desperado, plu. desperadoes (Rule xlii.), des'pe ray" doz (not des'pe rah doz), a bravo. (Spanish.)

Latin desperatio, desperatus, desperare (de spes, without hope).

Despatch' (not dispatch). Haste, a special message, to send on special business. Despatches (plu.), written documents sent to or from a public servant on business of state, (R. liii.), despatched (2 syl.), despatch' ing.

Spanish despachar verb, despacho noun; Latin de spatiior, to travel from [one person or place to another].

Despicable, des'.p'i:k'i:i.b'l (not des.p'k'.i:i.b'l). See below.

Despise' (2 syl.), not dispizc, to contemn; despised' (2 syl.), despis' ing, despis' er; despis' able, contemptible; despicable, des'pi ka b'l (not des pik' a b'l), worthless, vile; despis' ing ly, with disdain; des'picably, contemptibly; despicable ness, des"pi ka b'l ness (not des pik' a b'l ness).

Latin despicabitis, despicio (de specio, to look down on one).

Despite, des.p'ite'. An act of malice, notwithstanding. (It is never used as a verb, the verb is "to spite.")

Latin despicio, supine despectum (de specio, to look down on one).

Despoil' (2 syl.), to plunder; despoiled' (2 syl.), despoil' ing; despoil' er, one who despoils.

Despotation, desp6l1Uirc, to pillage; spoliare, spolUUio, &c.

Despond', to fail in hope; despond' ed (R. xxxvi.), despond' ing, despond' ing ly; despond' er, one who desponds; despond' ent (not -ant), low spirited; despond' ent ly, despond' ence, despondency.

Latin despondens, gen. despondentis, despondere (spondeo is "to answer [one's expectation]," de reverses, hence de spondeo is to disappoint one's hope, "to lose hope.")

Despot, des'.p'ot, a tyrant, an autocrat; despotic, des'.p'ot ik, absolute; despot' ical, despot' ical ly; despot' ism, des'.p'o.tizm, autocracy.

French despote, despotique, despotism; Greek despotes, despotikos, verb despod, to obtain mastery.

Dessert, de.zert'; desert, de.zert'; desert, des'.ert.

Dessert, de.zert'. A course of fruit after dinner.

Desert, de.zert'. What is deserved (good or ill).

Desert, de.zert. A solitude, a wilderness.

Desert, de.zert'. To abandon (q.v.)

"Dessert." French dessert, the course served after the table is cleared; desservir, to clear the table.

"Desert" (what is deserved), Latin deservio, sup. deservitum, to do one a service, hence "to deserve [payment]."

"Desert." (a wilderness), French desert; Latin desertum.

"Desert" (to abandon), the same. (Sero is to join, as de reverses de-sero is to disjoin, and hence "to forsake."
Destine, dës'tën (not des'tine), to design or purpose; destined' (2 syl.); destining, des'tin-ing (Rule xix.)

Destination, dës'të.nay'shun. The ultimate goal.

Destiny, plu. destinies, dës'të.ni, dës'të.niz. Fate, doom.

French destination, destinée, v. destiner; Latin destinatio, destinare.

(Greek sténo to bind fast.)

Destitute, dës'të.tute. Friendless, needy, without.

Destitution, dës'të.ti.tishun. Utter want, distress.

French destitution, destitué; Latin destitutio, destituere (stitua is to erect, as de reverses de-stitua is to pull down. A "destitute" person is one "pulled down.")

Destroy' (not destroy), to demolish; destroyed' (2 syl.), destroy'-ing (Rule xiii.), destroy'-er, one who destroys.

Destruction, des.trük'shun (not destruction), demolition; destructive, des.trük'tiv; destructiv-ely, destructiv-eness; destructible, des.trük'ti.b'l (not -able), liable to...; destructibility, des.trük'ti.b'il'.i.ty, capable of destruction.

French destructibilité, destructible, destructif, destruction; Latin destruéctio, destruére (struo is to pile up, de reverses).

Desuetude, des'sue.tude. Disuse, discontinuance.

(If ought to be pronounced in four syllables, des'sue.tude.)

Fr. desuétude; Lat. desuetudo. (Suco is "to be in use," de reverses.)

Desultory, des'ul.to.ry, unconnected; des'ultori-ly (R. xi.), des'-ultori-ness (R. xi.), running from one subject to another.

Latin desultorius, (destitio, de sultio, to leap from one thing to another). "Desultor" was a rider who leaped from one horse to another, as a rider in a circus. An Insulier is one who leaps on you.

Detach, de.tatch', to separate; detached' (2 syl.), detach'-ing, detach'-ment, ships or troops sent to the main body.

French détachement, v. détacher; Italian di staccare, staccato in music is when each note is isolated.

Detail, de'tail (noun), de'tail' (verb); Rule l.

De'tail. Minute particulars [of a narrative].

De'tail', to narrate particulars, to deal out piecemeal; detailed' (2 syl.), detail'-ing, detail'-er.

French détail, v. détailleer (tailler, to cut; German theilen, to divide).

Detain', to keep back; detained' (3 syl.), detain'-ing; detain'-er, one who detains, a writ to a warder to continue to keep a prisoner in prison.

Detention, de.tén'shun (-tion not -sion, Rule xxxiii.)

Deténœ (Latin), makes "detentum" not detensum, in the sup.

French détention, v. détêter; Latin detenœ (de ténœ, to hold back.

(The pseudo diphthong -at- is indefensible. Probably it arises from some confused notion that tain is a contraction of taken (ta'en.)
Detect', to discover; detect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), detect'-ing, detect'-er (should be detect-or); detective, de.tek'.tiv; detection, de.tek'.shun; detect-ible.

Latin detector, détectio, détégère supine detectum (Lego is "to cover," de reverses, hence de tégo is "to uncover").

Deter', to hinder by fear, &c.; deterred' (2 syl.), deterrr'-ing (Rule i.), deterrr'-er, deterrr'-ent (adj.), deter'-ment (one r, because -ment does not begin with a vowel).

Latin déterrère (de terreo, to frighten from [doing a thing]).

("Deter" ought to be spelt with double "r." It is not from the verb détêro, to bruise, but from déterreo, to frighten).

Detergent, de.tēr'.gent (n. and adj.), that which cleans, cleansing; detersive, de.tēr'.sīv, having the power to cleanse; deter-sion (not determination), de.tēr'.shun, the act of cleansing.

French détergent, v. déterger, détersif; Latin détersus, gen. détersus, sup. -tersum (de térgo to scour out [a stain]).

Deteriorate, de.tēr'yō.strate (not de.tēc'.ri.ō.rate), to degenerate; deteriorated, de.tēr'yō.strate.ēd (Rule xxxvi.); deteri-or-āt-ing (Rule xix.); deterioration, de.ter'yō.strate.ēn. (French déterioration, v. déteriorer; Latin détērius [adv] worse. Not a derivative of "de terreo," but of dé tëro, to wear away.

Determine, de.tēr'.mīn, to decide; deter'mined (3 syl.), deter'-min-ing (Rule xix.), deter'min-er, deter'min-able.

Determinate, de.tēr'yō.mīn.ate (verb and adj.), to limit, limited; deter'minated (Rule xxxvi.), deter'minat-ing (Rule xix.), deter'minat-or (Rule xxxvii.); determinative, de.tēr'.min.ā'tiv; deter'minat ive-ly, specifically.

Determination, de.ter'yō.mīn.ay'.shun. A fixed resolution.

French déterminatif, détermination, v. déterminer; Latin deter'minatio, deter'mināre [termīnus, a boundary].

Deter'sive, de.tēr'.sīv, &c. (See Detergent.)

Dестe', to hate; destest'-ed (R. xxxvi.), destest'-ing, destest'-er, destest'-able (not -ible, 1st Lat. conj.), destestably, destest'-able-ness; destestation, de'tēs.tay'.shun, abhorrence.

French détestable, détestation, v. détester; Latin destētabilis, destētārio, destētāri (de testor, to bear witness against one).

Dethrone' (2 syl.), to drive from a throne; dethroned' (2 syl.), dethrōn'-ing (Rule xix.), dethrōn'-er, dethrōn'-ment.

Latin de thronus, [to remove] from a throne.

Detonate, de.to.nate, to explode; de.to.nat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), de.to.nat'-ing (Rule xix.); detonation, de.to.nay'.shun. (Very often pronounced dét-; but the "e" is long.)

French détonation, v. détoner; Latin dé-tēnārio, to thunder mightily.

Detour (Fr.), da.toor'. A roundabout or circuitous way.
Detract, de.träkt (not de.träk), to depreciate; detract'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), detract'-ing, detract'-or (not -er, Rule xxxvii.), detract'-ing-ly; detract'-ive, de.träkt'.iív, deprecative; detract', de.träk'.shun, deprecation.

French v. detracter, détaction; Latin detractor, detractio, de-trahère, supine de-tractum, to draw off, hence, to lessen. There is a Low Latin verb de tracto, meaning "to tear limb from limb with horses."

Detriment, dé.tri.ment, injury; detrimental, dé.tri.men't.al.

French détème, détère; Latin dé.trēmen'tum, act of wearing away. (We perversely disregard Latin quantities, Rule lii.)

French détition, détirius; Latin de-trahere, supine de-trahent, to draw off, hence, to lessen. There is a Low Latin verb de tracto, meaning "to tear limb from limb with horses."

Detriment, dé.tri.ment, injury; detrimental, dé.tri.men't.al.

French dé.triment, détération, detritus; Latin dé.trahere, supine dé.trahent to bruise.

Detritus (should be *dé.trīt*us, but generally called dé'.trī.tus), débris; detrition, dé.trish'.un, the act of wearing away. (We perversely disregard Latin quantities, Rule lii.)

French dé.tri.de; Latin dé.trōtum, sup. tritum, to bruise.

Detrude', (2 syl.), to thrust down; detrūđ'-ed (R. xxxvi.), detrūđ'-ing; detrusion, dé.trūž'.shun (sion not -tion, R. xxxiii.) ("De-truđe" is to thrust down; "intrude," to thrust oneself in.)

Latin de trudere, supine trusum, to thrust down or away.

Detruncate, de.trünk'ate, to lop off the limbs; detrun'cât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), detrun'cât-ing (Rule xix.); detruncation, de.trun'.kay'.shun, mutilation.

("Detruncation" is one of the few words in "-tion" not Fr.)

French dé.trunkatión, détuncère, sup. détuncátum, to lop off.

Deuce, duse, two of cards or dice, the devil; deuced, du'.sed, devilish, very; deuced-ly, du'.sed.ly, devilishly, very.

"Deuce" (two), French dœus; Latin dua, two.

"Deuce" (the devil), "quosdam daemones quo dūsios Galli nuncipant" (St. Aug. xv. 23); Danish dœus, the deuce.

Deutero-, du'.tē.ro-, (Greek prefix meaning "second.").

Deutero-gamy, du'.te.ro'.gamy. A second marriage on the death of the first husband or wife. (Gk. gāmos, marriage.)

Deut - (contraction of deutero-, see above). In Chem., it indicates two equivalents of oxygen to one of the metal named: as Deutoxide, du.tē.o'.ide [of copper, &c.], two equivalents of oxygen to one of copper (deuto oxide).

Devastate, de'.vast.ate, to lay waste; de'vastât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), de'vastât-ing, de'vastât-or (not -er, Rule xxxvii.); devastation, de'vast'.tay'.shun*, a state of ruin, havoc. (The first syl. is often pronounced dē-, but the "e" is long.)

French dē.vast'ation, v. dévaster; Latin dē.vastātio, dévastātor, dévastāre (de vaste, to lay thoroughly waste).

Develop, de.vēl'.op, to disclose. Envelop, to inclose. (The noun envelope [for letters] has a final "e;" "develop" has no noun. Bear in mind the two verbs.)
Developed, developed; developing, development (R. iii.).
Fr. déveoppement, v. développe; Ital. sviluppo, a bundle or intricacy; de reverse, hence develop is to undo a bundle or intricacy.
Deviate, de.viate, to vary, to turn from the right way; de'viat-ed (R. xxxvi.), de'viat-ing (R. xix.) de'viat-er; deviation, de.vi.a".shun, a difference; devious, de.vi.us; de'vi-ous-ly, de'vi-ous-ness.
French déviation, v. dévier; Latin devius (de via, out of the way).
Device (2 syll.) A contrivance, a motto, a symbol. (See Devise.)
Devil, dëv'il, Satan; dev'il-ish, maliciously wicked, very; dev'ilish-ly, maliciously, exceedingly; dev'ilish-ness; dev-il-ism, dëv'il.izm, devilish conduct; dev'il-ment, dev'il-ry, mischief and malice fit for a devil.
Dev'il, to grill with cayenne pepper; dev'iled (2 syll.), dev'il-ing. (Old Eng. deoul, deu)le, deu.)
Devise, de.vize', to scheme; device, de.vise', a scheme (R. li.); devised' (2 syll.), devis-ing, devis'er, devis'able (R. xxiii.); devisee, dëvi.zee', the person to whom "real estate" is devised; devisor, de.vi.zor', the person who bequeaths or leaves by will. Divisor, dëvi.zor, the figure by which a sum is divided.
Fr. devise, a motto. Ital. divisa, a coat of arms; -divisare, to devise.
Devoid' (2 syll.), empty, destitute. (Lat. de viduus, wholly void.)
Devolve' (2 syll.), to become the duty of, to pass over from one to another; devol'ved (2 syll.), devolv'-ing (Rule xix.), devolv'-ment; devolution, dëv'o.lüt'.shun.
(“Devolve" is followed by on: "The duty devolves on me.")
French devolution, the falling of property to relations in default of proper heirs. Latin devolvo, to roll down; devolutus, devolved.
Devonian, de.vii.ni.ian. The Old Red Sandstone formation; so called from Devonshire, where it is largely developed.
Devonite, dev'.onite. A mineral found at Barnstaple in Devonshire ("-ite" in Geo. means a "stone" or "fossil").
Old English Defene, a Devonshire man; Defe-na-scir, Devonshire. Latin Dumnonii, British Dyvonii, the glen people.
Devote' (2 syll.), to consecrate; devôt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), devôt'-ing (R. xix.), devotion, dëv'ôt.shun; devotion-ist, devotion-al, devotional-ly; devotional-ist, a devotee; dev'o'ted (3 syll.), strongly attached; dev'o'ted-ly, dev'o'ted-ness.
Devotee, dëv'o.tec'. One abandoned to religious exercises.
Devout, piou.s; devout-ly, devout-ness.
French dévot, dévotion. Latin dévó'tio, dévúsus, dévólère whereas "devote;" dévò're, supine devótum, whence devout.
Devour', to eat up; devoured' (2 syl.), devour'ing, devour'ing-ly, devour' er. Devoirs, d'voirs (French), respects.
(“I pay my devoirs to you,” is a jocose civility.)
French dévorer; Latin devoráre (vóre; vorax, voracious).
Dew, a deposition of the moisture of the air. Due, owing (q. v.); dewed (1 syl.), dew' ing, dew'y (adj.), dew-less, dew-drop, dew' 1-ness (with i, R. xi). Germ. thau; Dan. dug.
Dexter (in Her.) The right side of a shield or coat of arms (to a person standing behind it, not to one in front of it).
Dexterity, dex' ter'i ty, expertness; dexterous, dex' ter'us (not dex' trus); dex' terous-ly, dex' terous-ness.
It means “right-handed” (Latin dexter, the right hand); “left-handed is awkwa'ard (awke, the left hand), sinister (Latin), and gauche = gosh (French), the left hand.
Dextrine, dex' trín. British gum made from starch, Latin dexter, the right hand (“-ine,” in Chem. denotes “a simple substance”). Dextrine is so called, because it turns the plane in polarised light to the right hand.
Dey, the native title of the governor of Algiers. Day [time].
“Dey,” Turkish dái, seignor; “Day,” Old English dag.
Di- (contraction of the Greek prefix dis-, “asunder”; and sometimes of din-, “through”). The ordinary meaning of di-in composition is “two,” “twice,” “double,” especially when it forms a distinct syllable; as Di-an'drian. Having two stamens.
Di-cceph' al'ous. Having two heads.
Di-dac' tyloüs. Having two fingers or toes.
Di-gyn' ian. Having two styles or pistils.
Di-hed' ral. Having two surfaces.
Di-lac'e rante. To tear in two.
Di-pet'al ous. Having two petals.
Di-sper'mous. Having two seeds.
Di-theist. A believer in two gods, one good and one evil.
In a few cases it bears the force of dis-, “asunder”; as Di-gress'. To walk asunder or wide of the path.
Di-var'icate. To stretch the legs asunder.
Di-vert'. To turn the mind asunder or aside.
The original idea of “asunder” or separation, gives the meaning above (two), and also the negative force of the prefix, one example of which is
Di-vest'. To unclothe.
In a few examples di- represents the Greek preposition dia,
“through,” “throughout,” “thorough”; as
Di-aoustics. That part of acoustics which treats of sound passing through different mediums.

Di-electrics. Substances which allow electricity to pass through them, and not over their surface.

Di-optics. That part of optics which treats of the refraction of light in passing through glass.

Di-rect. Right throughout.

\[\text{Chemistry Di- denotes a double equivalent of the base, and Bi- a double equivalent of the gas : as “Di-sulphate of silver,” = two equivalents of the base (silver) to one of sulphuric acid; but “Bi-sulphate of silver” would be two equivalents of sulphuric acid to one of the base (silver). See Dis.}\]

\[\text{Dis- The force of dis- is almost always privative. Before “f” dis- becomes dif-.}\]

\[\text{Dia- (Greek preposition, meaning through). In composition it means “through,” “throughout,” “thorough.”}\]

\[\text{Diabetes, } \text{di'-a-bee'-teez. A disease in which saccharine urine flows too freely.}\]

\[\text{Latin diabetes; Greek dia baino, to go through one.}\]

\[\text{Diabetic, } \text{di'-a.b6v'.tk; diabolical, } \text{di'-a.b6v'.i.k6l, devilish; diabolical-ly; diabolism, } \text{di'-ab'.o.lism.}\]

\[\text{French diabolique; Latin diabolicus; Greek diabolikos (diabolos, the devil, from dia ball6, to fling-out at you, i.e., to slander).}\]

\[\text{Diachylon, } \text{di-ak'.i.l6n (not diachilum). An adhesive plaster made of oil and the oxide of lead.}\]

\[\text{French diachylon; Greek dia ch6los, through i.e. by means of a juice. It was originally made of the juices of herbs.}\]

\[\text{Diaconal, } \text{di-ak'.o.nal, pertaining to the office of deacon; diaconate, } \text{di-ak'.o.nate, the office of deacon (q. v.).}\]

\[\text{French diaconal, diaconat; Latin diaconus, a deacon.}\]

\[\text{Diadem, } \text{di'-a.dem, a royal crown; di'ademedy (3 syl.)}\]

\[\text{French diadema; Latin diadema; Greek de6, to bind.}\]

\[\text{Di6resis, plu. di6reses, di.6'.r6.sis, di.6'.r6.seez. Separation of two contiguous vowels. The mark (‘) is placed over the latter vowel: as arial (not aerial).}\]

\[\text{Latin di6resis; Greek di-air6sis (di-aireo, to divide.)}\]

\[\text{Diagnosis, plu. diagnoses, di.ag.n6'.sis, di.ag.n6'.seez. The art of distinguishing one disease from another. Many use the word for “symptom,” which is an error; thus “What are the ‘diagnoses’ of the case?” is nonsense. A medical man may say “My diagnosis informs me the disease is not so and so,” and also that “The diagnostic symptoms of the case are those of [measles].”}\]

\[\text{Diagnostic, di.ag.n6'.st6k, distinguishing [applied to symp-}\] toms of diseases]; diagnostics, di.ag.nōs'.tiks, the science of disease-symptoms.

Diagnosticate, di.ag.nōs'.ti.kate, to determine a disease by its symptoms; diagnostic-ate-ed (R. xxxvi.), diagnostic-i-ting. The verb diagnose, di'.ag.nose, di'agnosed (3 syl.), di'agnos-ing, is sometimes used.

Greek diagōnĭs, discriminating; v. dia-gignōskō, to distinguish.

Diagonal, di.äg'.o.nāl, a straight line drawn through a figure with not less than four sides. The line must run from any angle to the opposite one. Diagonal-ly.

(The "o" is omega in Greek and long in Latin.)

French diagonal; Latin diagōnios; Greek dia gonía, an angle.

Diagram, di'.a.grām. A plan or figure shown by lines.

Diagraph, di'.a.grāf, an instrument used in perspective drawing; diagraphic, di.a.grāf'.ik.

French diagramme; Latin diagramma; Greek dia gramma, that which is marked out by lines, v. dia-grāphō.

Dial, di.äl. An instrument for measuring time.

Dialing, di'.a.il.ing. The art of constructing dials.

Latin dialis, pertaining to day (dies, a day).

Dialect, di.a.lek'tik, provincial speech; dialectic, di.a.lek'.tik; provincial, subtle. Dialectics, di.a.lek'tiks, the science of arguing on ideal subjects where word-fencing is more important than physical facts. Dialectician, di.a.lek'.tish'an, a skilled arguer; dialectical; dialectical-ly.

French dialecte, dialectique; Latin dialectica, dialecticus, dialectos; Greek dia-lektikē, dia-lektikōs, dia-lektos (dia légo).

Dialogue, di'.a.log; plu. dialogues, di'.a.logos, generally applied to the conversations of a drama.

(The Fr. termination -ue is useless and out of character.)

Fr. dialogue; Lat. dialógus; Gk. dia-logos, discourse between [persons].

Diameter, di.äm'.er.tēr, a straight line running through the centre of a circle, and bounded each end by the circumference; diametrical, di.'a.mēt'.ri.kēl; diametrical-ly.

Latin diamēter, diamĕtro [opposite], directly [opposite]; Greek diamētrōs (a measure through [a circle]).

Diamond, di'.a.mīn'd (not di'.mi'n).

French diamant; Latin adamas; Greek a-damas, unconquerable. The diamond cannot be cut or overcome by other materials.

Diana, Dir'.än'a (not Di'a.nah). A Roman goddess.

Diandria, di.an'.drī.a (in Botany). Having two stamens. The "stamens" belong to male plants (Greek anēr, a male). The "pistil," or seed-bearing organ, belongs to female plants.

Diandrian (adj.) Pertaining to plants with two stamens.

French diandrie; Greek di [di] andres, two men.

(The Greek anēr means man as opposed to woman.)
Diapason, diˈ.a.pən (in Music), an octave, the whole compass of a musical instrument; an instrument for tuning organ pipes. (In Philosophy) the universe, which Pythagoras conceived to be a complete musical octave beginning from Deity and ending with man. The eight notes are Deity, the planets, and man; man touches earth and Deity, and as the planets intervene, they influence his lot. (Greek dia pāsa, through all things.)

Diaper, diˈ.a.pər, a figured linen cloth; diapered, diˈ.a.pərd. French diapré, diaper work; (Flemish) d’Ypres, in Flanders.

Diaphragm, diˈ.a.frəm. The midriff.

Diarrhoea, diˈ.ər.reeˈ.əh, a violent flux; diarrhoeitic, diˈ.ər.reeˈ.tɪk, purgative. Diuretic, a medicine to increase the discharge of urine.

Diastole, diˈ.a.sto.lə (not diˈ.a.stələ). The lengthening of a syllable naturally short, the dilatation of the heart, &c.

Diastase, *diˈ.a.təs.ə*e* (not diˈ.a.taˌsə). A substance which converts starch into dextrine and grape sugar.

Diatom, plu. diatoms, diˈ.a.təm, diˈ.a.təmz (not diˈ.a.təˌm, diˈ.a.təˌməz). It has nothing to do with the word “atom”). A sub-order of algae; a diatom is a single specimen.

Diatomaceae, diˈ.a.təm.əˈsəˌsəˌməˈsəˌsəˌ (not diˈ.a.təˌməˌsəˌməˌ). The order which contains the above sub-order.

Diatonic, diˈ.a.tənˈək (in Music). By tones. The diatonic scale is the ordinary musical scale, the chromatic scale proceeds by half-tones. The “diatonic scale” does not, strictly speaking, proceed by tones throughout, for the intervals between E and F, B and C are only half of those between C and D, F and G, A and B, but they are all called tones in ordinary speech.

Greek diētônas (dia tônōs, proceeding) by tones.

Diatribe, di’atribe, a tedious disputation, an acrimonious harangue; diatribist, di’a.trî’bist, one who...

(In Gk. and Lat. the second “i” is short. French error.)

French diatribe: Latin diatribe; Greek dia tribê, a wearing away (of time or patience), (dia tribê) to wear thoroughly away.

Dibble, di’b’b’l, an instrument used by gardeners for making holes in the earth; dib’bled (2 syl.), dib’bling, dib’bler. Welsh tip, a point; Dutch tip; German züpfel.

Dice, plu. of die (dî), a small cube used in play; dic-ing, dice-ting, playing at dice.

French dô, corruption of “ta’;” Latin tālus, a die or solid cube.

Dicotyledon, di’côt-y.lee’-dôn, plu. dicoty’lédons or dicotyldôna. Plants with two seed lobes for their embryo; “exōgens.”

Dicotyledonous, di’côt-y.lee’-do-nus (adj.)

Greek dî [di] kôutûdôn, two sockets, or lobes (see Acotyledon).

Dictate, dik’tate (noun), dik’tate’ (verb). Rule l.

Dictate, dik’tate. A bidding, telling another what to write.

Dictate’. To order imperiously, to tell another what to write; dictat’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dictat’-ing (Rule xix.)

Dictation, dik’ta’shun. The act of dictating.

Dictat’-or, fem. dicta’trix; dictâtor-ship, the office of dictator (-ship, O. E. postix, “tenure of office or state”); dictatorial, dik’t.â.tôr’ri.dal, imperious; dictatorial-ly.

Diction, dik’shun. Way of expressing oneself.

Dictionary, plu. dictionaries, dik’ shun.ér.ri, plu. dik’shun-er.riz. A lexicon.

Dictum, plu. dicta, dik’tum, dik’tâh. A positive or dogmatic assertion.

Ipse dixit, ip’se dif’it. Dogmatic assertion. Used in all persons as a noun (Latin).

French dictatorial, diction, dictum; Latin dictâtor, dictâtrix, dictâtorius, dictio, gen. dictiônis, dictionarium, v. dictate, supine dictatûm (frequentative of dicô, to say), dictum.

Did, past tense of Do. Old Eng. present tense ic dô, past ic dyde, past part. gedôn. Modern Eng. I do, I did, done. As an auxiliary it is chiefly used in asking questions, in which case it stands before the noun or pronoun, as did [you] speak? In common speech it is used to add emphasis or force, as “I do very much wish it,” “I did indeed love him.” In poetry it is used without any special purpose beyond helping out the metre or rhyme.
Didactic, di'dak'tik, designed to teach; didactical, di'dak'- ti.käl; didact'ical-ly, in a didactic manner.

Fr. didactique; Gk. didaktikós, fit for teaching (didasko, to teach).

Didactyrous, di'dak'ti.lüs, having two toes; didactyl, di'dak'-tül, an animal with two toes.

Greek di [dis] daktülos, two fingers or toes.

Didelphys, di.del'fi.s, a generic name for such animals as have two wombs, like the opossum family; didelphidæ, di.del'- fi.de, same as didelphys; didelphoid, di.del'.foid, ani-imals with an abdominal pouch less perfect than that of the true opossum. (Gk. eidos, resembling the didelphys.)

Greek di [dis] delphus, double womb.

Die, a stamp, to expire; dye, tincture, to tincture (both di).

Die (to expire), dies, dize; died (1 syl.), dy'-ing; di-er, one likely to die soon (Rule xix.); dead, déd, lifeless, q.v.; death, déth, q.v. Die of disease (not from nor with).

Die, pln. dice (1 syl.) A cube with six faces marked with spots from one to six.
The die is cast. The last chance is ventured.

Die (a stamp), pln. dies, dize (1 syl.)

Dye, tincture, (verb) to tincture; dyes, dize; dyed (1 syl.), dy'-ing (Rule xix.), dy'-er, one who dies.

(It is a pity that the original vowels have been changed in the verb “die,” thereby causing confusion between words wholly different; the anomalous spelling of “die, dead, death; and the necessity of breaking Rule xix. in dyeing to distinguish it from dying.)

“Die” (to expire), Old Eng. deað[ian], past deeddod, past part. deeddod: dead, defunct: death, death.

“Die” (a cube with six faces), French dé = day; Latin tabus, a die, strictly, with four faces only. Our spelling of this word is foolish and indefensible.

“Dye” (tincture), Old Eng. deag, v. deag[ian], past deagode, past part. deagoed.

Dielectric, di'.el.eÞ’trik. Dialectic, di'.a.leÞ’tik.

Dielectric is a body that admits the force of electricity to act through it. (Greek di [dia] with the word electric).

Dialectic is the adj. of dialect, provincial.

Dielectrics, di'.e.lék’tri ks. The plural of dielectric.

Dialectics, di'.a.lék’ti ks. The art of word-fencing, or arguing with words rather than with solid proofs; it has no scope in experimental philosophy, but its true province is in a prærí or speculative reasoning.

“Dielectric.” Electric adj. from the Greek elektron, amber, the root of our word “electricity,” q.v.; di [Greek dia] through.

“Dialectics” is from the verb dialégo, which gives our word dialogue, and means to converse. In Platonic philosophy it means the highest kind of speculative reasoning; Aristotle uses the word to signify that reasoning which leads to probability but falls short of proof.
Diet, dj'et. Food, to feed by regimen. A German parliament.

Diet (verb), dj'et-ed (Rule xxxvi.); dj'et-ing, dj'et-er; dietary, dj'et-er-ry, rules of diet, allowance of food; dietetic or dietetical, dj.e.tet'ik, dj.e.tet'.i.kül (adj.), pertaining to diet; dietet'ical-ly (adv.)

Dietetics, rules of diet, that branch of medical science which treats of diet. (All sciences from the Greek -ika except five] terminate in English in -ics. The five exceptions are "logic," "magic," "music," "physic," and "rhetoric," which come to us through the French. R. lxi.)

"Diet" (food), French diète, di'etétique; Latin dieta, di'etarius, di'etetica, di'eteticus; Greek diaita (diaitánmai, to live).

"Diet" (a parliament), French diète (from Latin diès indicia [representatives which meet on] appointed days).

Diff- the prefix dis- before the letter "f."

Differ, dif'fer, to disagree. Defer, de'fer, to postpone.

Differ, differed (2 syl.), differ-ing, differ-ence, differ-ent, differ-ent-ly; differential, dif'.fër-ën'.shül (adj. and noun), a quantity too small to be represented by figures, but which nevertheless constitutes a difference; adj. measuring minute differences; differential-ly.

(The French form "differentiel" is better. We write correctly differ-ence and differ-ent.)

Observe the difference in the verb "Defer," which makes deferred (2 syl.), deferr'-ing (Rule i.) —See Defer.

Differ from or with ?
One person differs "with" another in opinion, but
One thing differs "from" another in quality, &c.

Different to or from ?
Both forms are used: "This rose is very different 'from' that;" or, "very different [unlike] 'to' that."

Difference of or between ?
Differences "of" the same articles, as "differences of opinion," "differences of sovereignty," &c.; but differences "between" different articles, as, "There is no difference between Jew and Gentile." (Romans x. 12.)

Differentiate, dif'.fër.ën'.shü'].ate, to find the difference or the "differential"; differen'tiat-ed (R. xxxvi.), differen'tiat-ing (R. xix.); differentiation, dif'.fër.ën'.shü'].e'.shun, determination of difference or "differential."

French différence, différent, différentiel, différentier, to differentiate; Latin differentia, genitive differentis, differentia, verb differento, supine dilatum (our "delay").

Difficult, dif'.fëk.üll, not easy to be done; difficult-ly (adv.); difficulty, plu. difficulties, dif'.fëk.üll.tis (Rule xliv.)

French difficileté; Latin difficultas, difficuler (adverb), difficultis (dif. fig. difficultis, not easy).
Diffidence, difˈʃəndəs (Rule xxvi.), want of confidence; difˈfident, distrustful of oneself; difˈfident-ly.

Diffinitive, difˈʃənˌtiv (double f), or definitive (see Define).

In Latin there are the two forms definitius, &c., from "definio" and diffinitus, &c., from "diffindo.

Diffraction, difˈrækˈshən (not diˈfrakˈshən), the turning aside of the rays of light; difˈfracted (3 syl.)

Diffuse (noun), difˈʃəs, (verb) difˈzuː'. (Rule li.)

Diffuse, difˈʃəs, not compact; diffuse-ness, difˈʃəsˌness.

Diffuse, difˈzuː to spread, to circulate, to send in all directions; diffused, difˈzuːd'; diffusi-ing (Rule xix.), diffusi-er, diffusi-ible (not -able); diffusibility, difˈzuːˈzi·bilˈəti, capability of being diffused; diffusion, difˈzuːˈshən, a spreading; diffusely, difˈzuːˈzdəli, in a diffuse manner; diffusedness, difˈzuːˈzdənsˌesh; diffusive, difˈzuːˈsiv; diffusive-ly, diffusive-ness.

French diffus, diffusible, diffusion; Latin diffusus, diffusio, diffusor, diffundere, supine diffusum, to spread far and wide.

Dig, past dug [or digged, 1 syl.], past part. dug; digg-ing (R. i.), digg-er, one who uses the spade.

Danish dige, to make a ditch or dike.

Digest (noun), diˈjɛst, (verb) diˈjest. (Rule I.)

Digest, a compilation of civil laws methodically arranged. Digest, to dissolve food in the stomach, to think well on a subject and arrange it in the mind; digest-ed (R. xxxvi.), digest-ing, digest-er; digestion, diˈjɛstˌiʃən; digest-ible (not -able); digestibility, diˈjɛstˌiˈbilˌəti; digestive, diˈjɛstˌi vəl.

French digeste, digesteur, digestif, digestion; Latin digesta, Justinian’s code of laws, digestio, digestum, supine digestum.

Dight, to adorn (only used in poetry). Old English diht[an].

Digit, diˈjit, any single figure, a twelfth part of the diameter of the sun or moon; digital, diˈjιˈtel.

French digit, Latin digitus, the finger; digitālis.

Digitalis, diˈjɪˈtæl. The fox-glove.

"Digitālis," Latin, the finger-flower (from digitus, a finger).

"Fox-glove," Old English foxɝ-glofa.

Dignify, diŋˈniˌfi, to exalt in honour or rank; dignifies, diŋˈniˌfiz; dignified, diŋˈniˌfaid (R. xi.); dignify-ing.

Dignity, plu. dignities, rank, loftiness of mien. (R. xlv.)

Dignitary, plu. dignitaries, diŋˈniˌtɛrɪz, a clergyman who holds some clerical “dignity,” such as prelate, dean, archdeacon, prebendary, canon, &c.

French dignitaire, a dignitary, dignité; Low Latin dignitarius; Latin dignus facto, to make worthy, to dignify.

Digynia, di.gi.n'.i.âh (-gin hard as in "begin"), plants with two pistils or styles; digynian, di.gi.n'.i.an (g hard), having two pistils. Plants with pistils are called "female," plants with stamens are called "male."

Greek dî gunê, double female (or pistil). Plants with two stamens are diankría; i.e., dî andres, double males (or stamens).

Dike (1 syl.), a mound, a ditch; a large mineral vein.

Old English dîc.

Dilapidate, di.lap'.i.date (not delapidate), to fall to ruin; dilap'idât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dilap'idât-ing (Rule xix.); dilap'idât-or (not -er, Rule xxxvii.), one who lays waste; dilapidation, di.lap'.i.day'.shun, decay, injury. Charge for "dilapidations" charge to cover necessary repairs.

French dilapidation, v. dilapider; Latin diläpidatio; v. diläpidârâc (lapido is to stone, or heap up stones; dilapidó is to remove stones, "dî" in this example has the force of de (it reverses).

Dilate, di.late', (not delate), to enlarge; dilât'-'ed (Rule xxxvi.), dilât'-'ing (Rule xix.); dilât'-'er, one who dilates; dilât'-'or (applied to certain muscles of the nose); dilatable, di.late'.a.bl', (1st Latin conjugation); dilatability, di.late'.a.bl'.i.ty; dilatation, di.lat'.ay'.shun. French dilatabilité, dilatable, dilatation, verb dilater; Latin dilatío, dilatâre (latus, broad; Greek plátus).

Dilatory, di.la.to.ry, full of delay; dil'ator.i-ly (Rule xi.), dil'ator.i-ness.

French dilatoire; Latin dilatâtorius (dif-ero, to defer, sup. di-latum).

On the horns of a dilemma. Between two perplexities.

French dilemma; Latin dilemma, an argument that leads to two opposite conclusions; as "a Boeotian said, all Boeotians are liars." If all Boeotians are liars, the Boeotian told a lie when he said all Boeotians are liars. Query, Are they liars or not?

Dilettante, plu. dilettanti (Italian), di.l'.et. tan'.te, an amateur of the fine arts but not a proficient, a dabbler in literature or the arts; dilettanteism, di.l'.et.tan'.te.izm, affection of art-loving, without any real knowledge of the subject.

Diligence, di.l'.i.jence (R. xxvi.), industry; dil'igent, dil'igent. ly.

French diligent; Latin diligens, gen. diligentis, diligentia, v. diligio; to love dearly. Diligence is working with good will.
AND OF SPELLING.

Dill. The seed of an aromatic plant. (O. Eng. dille, dill or anise.) "Dill" is the Anethum Graveolens; "Anise" is the Arabic anis. "Anethum," Greek anethon (an thein, to grow rapidly).

Dilute' (2 syl.), to reduce the strength of a liquid by adding something else; dilüt'ed (R. xxxvi.), dilüt'-ing (R. xix.); dilüt'-er, that which dilutes, one who dilutes; diluent, di'l.ü.ent (not di'l.ü.ent), that which dilutes; di'lu.ents, water drinks to dilute the animal fluids; dilüt'ion.

French diluer, dilution; Latin diluere, dilutum, dilutio.

Diluvial, di.lü.vi.äl, pertaining to the Deluge; diluvialist, di.lü.vi.äl.ist, one who ascribes to Noah's flood such geological phenomena as the boulder-clay, ossiferous gravels, and so on; diluvium, di.lü.vi.üm, earth, sand, &c., deposited by the action of running water.

Diluvian, di.lü.vi.än, pertaining to the Deluge; ante-diluvian, prior to "Noah's Flood."

Dim, obscure, to obscure; dimm'-er (comp.), dimm'-est (super.); dimm'-ish, rather dim (-ish added to adj. is diminutive, added to nouns it means "like"); dimmed (1 syl.), dimm'-ing (Rule i.); dim-ly, dim-ness.

Old Eng. dim; dimite, dimnish; dimme, dimly; dimnes.

Dimension, di.men'.shun. The measure or extent of a surface.

French dimension; Latin dimensio (dimetior, to measure).

Diminish, di.min'.ish, to make smaller; dimin'ished (3 syl.), dimin'ish-ing, dimin'ish-er, dimin'ishing-ly.

Diminuendo, plu. diminuendos (R. xlii.), di.min.u. en'.doce (in Music), softer and softer. (Italian.)

Diminution, di.min'.u. shun, decrease; diminutive, di.min'.u. ti.v; diminutive-ly, diminutive-ness.

French diminuif, diminution; Latin diminüüio, diminüüum, verb diminuo (-ish added to verbs means "to make").

Dimissory, di.mi.sör.ry (not [letters] demisory or demisso). French dimissoire (lettres dimissoriales); Latin dimissorius (verb di [dis] mitto, supine dimissum, to send away).

Dimity, plu. dimities, dim'i.ty, dim'i.tiz, a cloth originally woven with two threads. Similarly samite, a corruption of xamite, cloth woven with six threads.

Greek di [dis] mitos, two threads; hex mitos, six threads.

Dimorphism, di.mor'.fism, the property of assuming two distinct crystalline forms; dimorphous, di.mor'.fus; dimorphic.

French dimorphie; Greek di [dis] morphé, two-fold form.

Dimple, di.mpl' (noun and verb); dimpled, di.mpl'd; dimpling, di.mpl.ing; dimply.
Din, a confused continuous noise, to pester with repeated noise or demands; dinned (1 syl.), dinn-ing (Rule i.), dinn-er. (See below Dine.)

Old English dýn[ian], to din; dys, a din; dinung, a dunning, a tinkling. Latin tinnio, to prattle, to tinkle.

Dine (1 syl.), dined (1 syl.), din-ing (Rule xix.), dinner (this is a blunder in spelling, the word ought to be diner, as in French), dinner-less, &c.

Old English dýnan to dine; French diner, verb and noun.

Ding, to knock; dinged (1 syl.), ding'-ing (not din-ging).

Ding-dong. The sound of bells. (An imitative word).

Old Eng. dencg[an], past deaneg, past part. donegen, to knock or ding.

Dingle, din'.g'l, a glen; dingle-dangle, hanging slovenly.

"Dingle," a glen amidst hills. Old Eng. dynig, hilly (with dim.)

"Dingle," to hang loosely. Danish dingle, to dangle or bob about.

Dingy, din'je, soiled; din'gi-ness, din'gi-ly (Rule xi.)

Dinornis. (See Deinornis.)

Dinotherium. (See Deinotherium.)

Dint, effort, force. By dint of (industry), by the power of...

Dent. An indentation.

"Dint," Old Eng. dýnt, a stroke or blow.

"Dent," Lat. dens, gen. dentis. To dent, "dentium more incidere."

Diocese, di'o.sis (not diocess), the circuit over which a bishop has jurisdiction; diocesan, di.ós'.esán (not di.o see'.sín), a bishop, one who holds a diocese, adj. belonging to a diocese, as diocesan inspector.

French diocese, diocése; Latin dioecésanus, dioecesis; Greek dioikískos, administration, v. dioikéo, to administer.

(Misled, as usual, by the French, our words are ill-spelt and ill-pronounced. They should be diocese, dioecesan.)

Diöcia, di.z'si.àh, a class of plants, like the willow, having male flowers on one plant and female on another; diöcian or diöcious (adj.), diös'.a.n, diös'.i.us.

French diöcie; Greek diá [dis] oïbos, two houses.

Dionæa, di.o.neé'.ah. Venus's fly-trap.

Venus was called Dionæa, and the flower is called after her from its grace and elegance.

Dioptrics, di.op'.triks, that part of optics which shows how light is refracted in passing through glass, air, water, &c. (Rule lx.i.), dioptric (adj.).

French dioptrique, noun and adj.; Greek diáoptroñ, something transparent (di [dia] optómai, to see through).

Diorama, di'o.râh'mâh. Panorama, pán'.o.râh.mâh.

A "diorama" is a series of pictures "seen through" an aperture. A panorama is one large picture stretched on a cylinder, the axis of which is the point of view.
(Both these words, borrowed from the French, are mis-spelt. They should be Diorama and Panorama.)

"Panorama," Greek pan horâma, a view of all [at a glance].

"Diorama," Greek di [dia] horâma, a view through [an aperture].

Dioscorea, di.ös.kör’re.äh. The yam, &c.

So named from Dioscôrîdes, the Greek botanist.

Diotis, di.öt.is. A shrub, the sea-cotton weed.

Dip, a plunge in water, the incline of a stratum, a candle made by dipping a wick in tallow, to plunge into water; to incline downwards, &c.; dipped (I syl.) or dipt, dipping (II syl.), dipper.

Old English dip[an], past dippede, past part. dipped.

Diphtheria, dif.ther’i.äh (not dip.theria), a throat disease; diphtheritic, dif’.ther’i’t’ik, adj.

Greek diphthera, leather. The disease is characterised by the formation of a leathery membrane in the throat.

Diphthong, dif’.thong (not dip.thong), two vowels pronounced together with a different sound to either of them separately, as saucë, where -au- has a sound different to either "a" or "u." If two vowels are pronounced together, without producing a new sound, it is an improper diphthong, as ea in beat, where "a" serves only to lengthen the "e," and ie in believe, where the sound of e only remains; diphthongal, dif’.rhôn’gal; diphthongal-ly.

French diphthonque; Latin diphthongus; Greek diphthoggos (di [dis] phthoggos, double sound; phthegômai, to utter a sound).

Diploe, dip’.lô.e. The network of bone-tissue between the tables of the skull; the cellular substance of leaves.

French diploe; Latin diploës, a doublet; Greek diplôs, two-fold.

Diplomatic, di.plô.mä’t’ik; diplomatical, diplomatical-ly.

Diplomacy, di.plô.mä’sy, the art and practice of state-craft; diplomatist, di.plô.mä’tist, one employed in....

Diplomatics, di.plô.mä’tiks. The art of deciphering ancient documents, and determining their age and authenticity.

French diplomatique, diplôme, diplomatîte; Latin diploma; Greek diplôma. Every sort of ancient charter, donation, bull, &c., was called a diploma, being inscribed by the Romans on two tables of copper folded together; in early English history, a diploma is often called "a pair of letters" (diplôs, double, duplicate).

Dipper, dipping, dipped. (See Dip.)

Diprotodon, plu. diprotodons, di.prô’tô.dôn. A gigantic fossil animal allied to the kangaroo, with more than one pair of incisor teeth.

Greek di [dis] prólos-ôdous, duplex incisors or "first teeth."
Dipteran, pl. dipteras or diptera, dip'te.ran, dip'te.rən, insects, like the blow-fly, with only two wings; dipterid, dip'te.rid; dipterous, dip'te.ruəs (adj.)

French dipère; Greek δίσ pýron, two wings.

Dire, direst, di.ər'st (most dire). The comparative form [direr] is not in use.

Direful (2 syll.), direful-ly, direful-ness.

Direct, adj. straight, plain, express, verb to command, regulate, show the way; direct-er (more direct), direct-est (most direct); direct-ed (Rule xxxvi.), direct-ing.

Direct-ly, immediately, openly, in a straight course; direct-ness; direction, di.rɛk'tʃən; directive, di.rɛk'tiv.

Director, fem. directress, manager; director-ship.

Directorate, di.rɛk'to.rıt; the office or body of directors; directory, di.rɛk'tə.rɪ.

French direct, direction, directoire; Latin directus, directio, director (rectus, right).

Dirge, durj (contraction of the Latin dirige (3 syll.), the first word of a Latin funeral hymn), a funeral hymn.

Dirk, durk. A dagger. (Scotch durk, a dagger.)

Dirt; dirty, not clean, to defile; dirties, dur'əz; dirtied, dur'əd; dirty-ing (Rule xi.), dirti-ness, dirti-er (more dirty, one who dirties), dirti-est (most dirty).

Old Eng. de-rit[ə]l, faces; German dreck (by transposition dreck).

Dis- (Greek and Latin prefix, meaning “asunder”). The most usual signification in English is not or the reverse of, but not unfrequently it denotes apart, sometimes it means two, and in a few examples it is simply emphatic.

Dis- and Un-; Dis- denotes separation of what has been united; Un- that union has never existed. Dis- ought to be joined only to Lat. or Gk. words, un- only to native words.

Disable, unable, un.a'bl (adj.) not able, dis'a'bl (verb), to render unable; disabled, dis'a'bld; dis'abling.

Disability, dis'a.bəl'i.tɪ, incapacity; disabilities, dis'a.-bəl.i.tiz, legal disqualifications; dis'a'ble-ment.

Latin dis habi'tis, not habile, not able.

Disabuse, (noun) dis'a.buə', (verb) dis'a.buz. (Rule l.)

Disabuse (verb), to undeceive; dis'abused* (3 syll.), dis'a-bəz-ing (Rule xix.)

French désabuser; Latin dis ab-usus, to rid of abuse.
AND OF SPELLING. 221

Disacknowledge, ˌdɪsˈæk.nəldʒ (not ˌdɪsˈæk.ˈknəldʒ), to disown; disacknowledged (4 syl.); disacknowledg-ing.

Unacknowledged (4 syl.), not owned, not answered.

Old English cniævinæg, knowledge, with the Latin dis, ad [ad]. Un-is the better prefix for this word.

Disadvantage, ˌdɪsˈadv.vənˈtæдж, the reverse of advantage, to injure in interest; disadvantageous, ˌdɪsˈadv.vənˈtæʤəs; disadvantageous-ly, dis′advantageous-ness.

French advantage, with dis. Latin ad vénio, to come to. “Advantage” meant originally “the portion of goods which came to a child from the will of his father, or from the law’s award.”

Dis’affect’, to alienate affection; dis’affect’-ing;
Un’affect’-ing, having no power to move the passions.
Disaffect’-ed, estranged in affection;
Un’affect’-ed, of simple unartificial manners.
Dis’affect’-ed-ly, in an ill-disposed manner;
Un’affect’-ed-ly, without artifice in speech and manners.
Dis’affect’-ed-ness, being ill-affected and discontented;
Un’affect’-ed-ness, being without affectation.

Disaffection, ˌdɪsˈæf.fek’shən, want of goodwill.

French désaffection; Latin dis of [ad] fæcit, ill acted on.

Disagree, disˈə.gri (not disˈə.gri), to differ; dis’agreed’, dis’agree’-ing, disagree’-ment, dis’agree’-able (not disagreeable as many write the word), dis’agree’-ably, dis’agree’-able-ness.

Un’agree’-able, un’agree’-ably, unagree’-able-ness, indicate less aversion. Dis’agree’able means positively distasteful; un’agree’able not positively pleasing.

French désagréable; Latin dis a [ad] gratus, not pleasing to us.
(The French spelling of “disagreeable” must be carefully avoided.)

Disallow, disˈə.ləw (low to rhyme with now), dis’allowed’
(3 syl.), dis’allow’-ing, dis’allow’-able; dis’allow’-ance, refusal to allow or permit.

Dis and Fr. allow or; Lat. dis al [ad] locare, to refuse to place to [your share].

Disannex, disˈə.nɛks (not disˈə.nɛks’), to separate; dis’annexed’
(3 syl.), separated;

Unannexed, not joined together;

Dis’annex’-ing, severing what is annexed.

Latin dis an [ad] nexus, the reverse of tying to (necto, to tie).

Disannul, disˈə.nʊl’, to abolish or annul; dis’annulled’ (3 syl.), dis’annull’-ing (Rule 1.), dis’annul’-ment (one l, because-ment does not begin with a vowel).

Un’annulled’ (3 syl.) Not repealed.
(Disannul ought to be abolished, the prefix “dis” is quite useless, and “annul” is the better word.)

French annul or; Latin dis an [ad] nōllum, [to bring] to nothing.

18—2
Disappear, dis'.appeer' (not dis'appeer'), to vanish, to cease to appear; dis'appeared (3 syl.), *dis'appear'-ing, *dis'appear'-ance (ought to be disappear-ence, R. xxiv.)

Dis and French *apparence; Lat. dis ap [ad] pārēre, part. pārens, to discontinue to appear to [sight].

Disappoint, dis'.ap.point' (not dis'.a.point'), to fail expectation; *dis'appoint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), balked in expectation;

Un'appoint'-ed, not elected or appointed.

Dis'appoint'-ing, dis'appoint'ment.

Disappointed of a thing not obtained.

Disappointed in a thing obtained.

French déappointer, déappointement (4 syl.); Lat. *dis ap [ad] pōndus, not to add to the main sum. "Appoint" is the "odd money" of a bill, or the balance of an account. To dis-appoint is to cut off the odd money er to fail in paying the balance.

Disapprove, dis'.ap.proov (not dis'.a.prove'; dis'approved (3 syl.), *dis'approv'-ing (Rule xix.), *dis'approv'-ing-ly, dis'approv'-al; disapprobation, dis'.ū.p.ro.bay'.shun.

French désapprover, désapprobation; Lat. *dis ap [ad] probāre, to fail to prove to [one], or to satisfy one's judgment.

Disarm', to divest of weapons of offence; disarmed (2 syl.), divested of arms;

Unarmed, not having any weapon of offence.

Disarm'-ing; disarmament, dis'.ar'.ma.ment.

French désarmer, désarmement; Lat. *dis arma, deprived of arms.

Disarrange, dis'.ar.rānge'(not dis'.a.rānge'), to put out of order; dis'arranged (3 syl.), put out of order;

Un'arranged' (3 syl.), not yet put into order.

Disarrangement, dis'.ar.1'anj'.11'ent. (Only five words drop the final e before -ment. Rule xviii.)

French désarranger, désangement; Lat. *dis arma, deprived of arms.

Disarray, dis'.ar.array, to put out of order, to divest of raiment; dis'arrayed (3 syl.), *dis'array'-ing, dis'array'-er (R. xiii.)

Un'arrayed' (3 syl.) Not dressed, not put in array.

Low Lat. *dis array, to put out of military array.

Disassociate or dissociate, dis'.as.so'.si.ate, dis.so'.si.ate, to dis-unite; dis'asso'ciat-ed or disso'ciat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), separated from companions;

Un'asso'ciat-ed, not joined to a society.

Dis'asso'ciat-ing or disso'ciat-ing (Rule xix.)

Fr. désassocier; Lat. dis [ad] socīāre, to cease being a companion of one.

Disaster, dis.as'.tē.ter, a mischance, an accident; disastrous, dis-.as'.trous (not dis.as'.te.rus), calamitous; disas'trous-ly, disas'trous-ness.

French désastre; Mid. Lat. *dis astrō'sus, not fortunate (astrum, a star); Greek *dē astron, ill starred (dē always denotes evil or the subversion of good).
Disavow, dis'a.vow, to disclaim; dis'avowed (3 syl.), dis'avowing, *dis'avow'al, dis'avow'er, dis'avow'-ment (-vow to rhyme with now). Un'avowed (3 syl.), not owned.

French désavouer; Latin dis a [ad] vōveo, to refuse to vow to [one].

Disband', to dismiss from military service; disband'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disband'-ing, disband'-ment.

French désbander, débânement (3 syl.); Latin dis bandum, ([to send] away from the banner).

Disbar', debar', unbar'; -barred, -bard; -barr'-ing, &c. (R. i.)

Dis-bar, to deprive a barrister of his right to plead;

De-bar, to forbid;

Unbar, to draw back a bar, as to “unbar the door.”

The “bar” to which barristers are called is the rail which divides the counsel from the “lay[ty].”

Un- is a native prefix, denoting privation, opposition, or deterioration.

Disbelieve, dis'.be.leve' (R. xxviii.), not to believe a statement;

disbelieved (3 syl.), dis'believ'-ing (R. xix.), not believing a statement; un'believ'-ing, not believing in Revelation.

Disbeliev'er, one who distrusts a statement;

Unbeliev'er, one who does not believe in Revelation.

Disbelief, *dis'.be.leef', distrust in a statement;

Unbelief, scepticism, having no faith in Revelation.

Unbeliev'able (not disbelievable), unworthy to be believed.

Old Eng. un-geleðfa, un- or dis-belief; two very pretty words might be restored, viz., ungeleðfæm, unbelieving, and ungeleðfæmnes.

Disbowel or disembowel, dis.bow'.el, dis'.em.bOw'.el (bow to rhyme with now), to take out the entrails; dis- or disem-bowelled (-bow'ed), -bowelling (R. iii. É.), -boweller.

Dis and French boel: Latin botellus, a gut.

Disbud', to deprive of buds; disbudd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disbudd'-ing (Rule i.) Unbudd'-ed, not budded.

Dis and the French bouton, a bud.

Disburden, disburthen, unburden, unburthen, dis- or un-bur'.den, -bur'.then, to remove a load;

Disburdened or disburthened, dis- -bur'dend, -bur' thend, relieved of a load;

Unbur'dened or unburthened, without a load.

Disbur'den-ing, disburthen-ing, unbur'den-ing or unbur' then-ing, removing a load.

Dis- or un- with Old Eng. byrden or byrthen (byrd, heavy, byr[an] or bér[an], to bear). Our words should have been spelt byrden or berden to preserve the derivation more correctly.
Disburse, *disburse’, to lay out money; disbursed’ (2 syl.), dis­burse’-ing (Rule xix.), disburse’-ment (Rule xviii.), the act of paying out money; disburse’-ments, money paid out; disburs’-er, one who pays out money.

French dévour, dévourer (3 syl.), v. devour (burse, a purse, the [money] exchange).

Disc, disk, the face of the sun or moon, the face of a shield or any round flat body. Disk (in Botany), a ring or scale between the bases of the stamens and ovary.

Discous, dis’küs (adj.), broad, flat; disciform, dis’iform (not dis’ki.form), in the form of a flat round body; discoid, dis’koid [pitch], in Botany that which is divided into cavities by discs.

French disque; Latin discus.

Discanl, *disJ”irch’, to reject; discard’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dis­card’-ing; discard’-er, one who discards.

Spanish descartar, to discard, or reject cards; descarte, the cards rejected or thrown out of one’s hand.

Discern, *diz.zern’, to see, to discriminate; discerned, *diz.zernd’; discern’-ing, discern’-ing-ly; discern’-er, diz.zer’er; discern’-ment, discern’-ible (not -able), discern’-ible-ness; discern’ibly, diz.zem’.i.bly.

Discernment and discretion are both from the same root-verb (Latin discern), but now Discernment means insight, and discretion, prudence.

French discernement (3 syl.), verb discerner; Latin discernère, supine *discerent*um (dis cerno, to sift and separate, hence to distinguish).

Discharge’ (2 syl.), to dismiss; discharged’ (2 syl.), discharg’-ing (Rule xix.); discharg’-er, one who discharges.

Discharged’ (said of firearms); shot off;

Uncharged’ (said of firearms), not “loaded.”

French décharger, to unload (charger, to load); Low Latin cavarre, to freight a ship. To “discharge” means to unload.

Disciple, dis.si’p’l (not de.si’.p’l), a pupil, a follower; disci’ple­ship (-ship, Old English, “office,” “state of being…”).

Disciplinarian, dis.si.pl’er.‘ri.an, one strict to enforce discipline; disciplinary, dis’.si.pl’nery.

Discipline, dis.si.plin, subjection to rules and masters, to train to obedience; disciplined (3 syl.), disciplin’-ing (Rule xix.); disciplin’-er, one who trains.

Disciplinable, dis.si.pl’nabl; disciplin’able-ness.

French disciple, disciplinable, disciplinatre, discipline, v. discipliner; Latin disciplina, disciplinabilia, disciplinus, a scholar (câpula [in composition cîpulo] is to pour liquor from one vessel into another, and a disc’iple is one into whom instruction is poured).
AND OF SPELLING.

Disclaim, dis.klæm, to disavow; disclaimed' (3 syl.), disclaim'-ing, disclaim'-er, disclaim'-ant. Unclaimed, not claimed.

Declam', to spout, to recite; declared (2 syl.), &c.

"Disclaim," Latin dis clamāre, to refuse to call for [one].

"Declam," French déclamer; Latin déclamāre, to make set speeches.

Disclose, to reveal; unclose, to open what is closed; dis- or un- closed' (2 syl.), clos'-ing (R. xix.), disclose'-er, one who reveals or tells some secret; disclosure, dis.klu.zhur.

Dis and Old Eng. clusa; Latin daustrum, a prison. To dis-close is "to discharge from confinement" or secrecy.

Discolour, dis.kuł'.er, to stain; discoloured, dis.kuł'.er'd, injured in its colour; uncoloured, un.kuł'.er'd, not coloured; discoloration, dis.kuł'.er'd.

("Discolour" would be better without the "u," which is dropped in "discaloration.")

French décoloration, décolorer; Latin dēcolor, dēcolorātio, v. dēcolo- rāre (cōlorō, to colour).

Discomfit, dis.kuł'.fit, to defeat. Discomfort (see below).

Discom'fit-ed (Rule xxxvi.), discom'fit-ing, routing; discomfiture, dis.kuł'.fit.chur, defeat in battle.

French déconfort; Latin confectus, finished (con fūcēo, completely done), dis- in a bad sense.

Discom'forted, made uneasy;

Uncom'forted, not consoled.

Uncomfortable, un.kuł'.for.ta.b'l, not easy; uncomfortableness; uncom'fortably, uneasily.

French déconfort, v. déconforter; Latin dis confortāri, the reverse of being strong or comforted (fortis, strong).

Discommode. (See Incommode.)

Discompose, dis.kəm.poz, to unseetle; de-compose', to reduce a compound body to its elements or ingredient; dis'composed' (3 syl.), dis'comps'-ing, dis'comps'-er; discomposure, dis.kəm.po'zhur, agitation.

Un'composed' (3 syl.) Chiefly applied to literary work.

French dēcompozer, to discompose and decompose; Latin de-composite, to de-compose, dis componere, to discompose.

Disconcert, dis.kən.sert, to disturb, to put out of countenance; disconcert'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disconcert'-ing.

Un'concert'ed, not concerted.

French dēconcerter; Latin concertāre is "to strive together," hence "to be in harmony," dis-concertāre is "to strive contrary ways," hence "to be out of harmony," "to be disturbed," &c.
Disconnect, *dis'kōn.nēkt', to separate; *disconnect'-ed (4 syl.), separated; *unconnect'-ed, having no connection; *dis'-connected-ly, unconnected-ly, disconnect'-ing, disconnect-er; *disconnection, *dis'kōn.nēkt'shun; *disconnective, *dis'kōn.nēkt'.tiv; *disconnective-ly.

*Dis- and French connection, connectif; Latin *dis connecto, to unbind what is bound together (necto, to bind).

Disconsolate, *dis.kōn.so.late, sorrowful; *disconsolate-ly, *dis·con'solate-ness; *disconsolation, *dis.kōn.so.lay'shun.

The rest of these words are compounded with *in- or *un-.

*Un'consoled' (3 syl.), not consoled, *unconsōl'-ing (R. xix.)

French *inconsolable, *inconsolé; Latin *dis·consolātus, &c.

Mal'content', one politically discontented or inclined for sedition; *malcontent'-ed, *malcontent'ed-ly, *malcontent'-ed-ness, *malcontent'-ment.

Non'content, plu. *non'contents. Lords who negative a "bill." Those who approve of it are called "Contents."

French verb *malcontenter, *mécontentement, *mécontent; Latin *mal'contentus, &c., *dis contentus, &c.

Discontinue, *dis'.kōn.tin'.u, to cease; *discontinu'ed (4 syl.), *discontinu'ed (Rule xix.), *discontinu'ance; *discontinuation, *dis'kōn.tin'.u.shun; *discontinuity, *dis'kōn.tin'.u.ə.ti; *discontinuous, *dis'kōn.tin'kən.səs.

Dis'cord, want of harmony; *disc'oardance, *disc'oardant; *disc'oardancy, plu. *disc'oardancies, *dis.kōr'dən.siz (Rule xlv.); *disc'oardant-ly.

Discount, (noun) *dis'.kōnt, (verb) *dis.kōnt' (Rule 1.)

Dis'count, abatement for ready money.

Discount', to make an abatement for ready money; *dis'count'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), *dis'count'-ing, *dis'count'-er.

Uncount'ed, not counted.

French *décompte, verb *décompter = da.kōn.tay; Latin *dis comptātī, not to be reckoned [in the account].

Discountenance, *dis.kōnt.nən'cənce, to discourage; *discountenanced (4 syl.), *discountenanc'ing (Rule xix.); *discountenanc'er, one who discountenances.

French *faveur, the countenance; *défaveur, the exact equivalent of *dis·countenance. French *contenance (2 syl.); Latin *continens, containing, continentia. The word "countenance" means the "contents"; hence the "outline" or "contour," and by still further licence "the superficial aspect." (Our word is ill formed.)

Discourage, dis.kür'rage, to dissuade, to dishearten; discour-aged (3 syl.), discour'ag-ing (Rule xix.), discour'ag-ing-ly, discour'ag-er, discour'age-ment (Rule xviii.)

French découragement, verb décourager; Latin dis cor ago, to act on the heart the wrong way.

Discourse, dis.ko'rse, conversation, to converse; discours'ed (2 syl.), discours'-ing (Rule xix.), discours'-er; discours'ive, dis.ko'r.st. Discours'ive means "desultory."

French discours; Latin discursus (discurro, supine discursum), to run over. A discourse is a "running over" [some subject]. A discus'sion is a shaking about [of some subject].

Discourteous or Uncourteous, -kor.të'us (not -kur'.teh us), impol'ite; discour'teous-ness or uncour'teous-ness, discour'teous-ly or uncour'teous-ly, rudely; discourtesy, plu. discourses, dis.kor't.e siz (never un-) (not dis.kür'.te. sy) (Rule xliv.), want of courtesy.

French discourtois, discourtoisie. (See Court.)

Discover, dis.këv'.er (not dis.köv'.er). Uncover.

Discover, to find out what was unknown; Uncover, to remove a covering from some object.

Dis-, or un- covered, -këv'.erd, -cov'er-ing, -cov'er-er, discover-able; discovery, dis.kuv'.e.ry.

French découvrir, to discover and uncover, découvrir. Low Latin eOer a; Latin cóphìnu s, a coffer. To eOLcr is "put into a coffer."

Discredit, dis.krëlt'.it, disgrace, not to credit or believe; discred'it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), discred'it-ing, discredit-able, (Rule xxiii.), discredit'ably.

Incred'ible, not credible; incred'ible-ness, incredibly; incred'ibility, in.krë'.li. ty, state of disbelief.

Incred'ulous, not believing; incred'u'ous-ness, incred'u'ous-ly; incred'ulity, in'.kre. du'.li ty.

French dircrédî, v. discreditier, incrédibilite, incrédul, incrédulité; Latin dis creditre, incrédibilitas, incrédulitas, incrédulus, incrédulitas, incrédulus.

Discreet'-ly, discreet'-ness; discretion, dis.krësh'.un (not dis.kree'sh.un); discretion'ary, dis.kresh'.un.á ry.

French dircet, discrétion, discrétionnaire; Latin discrétus, discrétia, v. dis.cerno, supine discrétum, to discern [right from wrong].

Discrepancy, plu. discrepancies, dis.krëp'.a.n. st. (Rule xliv.) Disagreement in a statement.

Latin dircrèpanita (dis crépäre, to creak or jar sadly)
Discrete', (2 syl.), disjoined; discrete, dis.kreet'.iv; discrete-ly. (See Discrete.)

French discreet and discrete; Latin discreetus, severed.

Discretion, dis.krēsh'.un; discretion-ary. (See Discreet.)

Discriminate, dis.krēm'.in.ate, to mark the difference of objects; discrim'ina.ted (R. xxxvi.), discrim'ina.ting (R. xix.), discrim'ina.ting-ly, discrim'ina.tor (not -er, R. xxxvii.); discriminatory, dis.krēm'.in.a.tö.ry; discriminative, dis.krēm'.in.a.tiv; discrimination, dis.krēm'.in.a'.shun.

(‘Discrimination’ one of the words in -tion, not Fr.)

Latin discrimen, genitive discriminis, differentiated; discriminating, dis.krēm'.in.a.tör, judgment between things.

Discrown', to depose a sovereign or deprive him of his crown; discrowned' (2 syl.), discrown'-ing.

Uncrowned' (2 syl.), not crowned.

To “crown” is to invest a person with a crown as a symbol of royalty. To “discrown” is to remove from him that symbol.

Discursive, dis.kur'.siv, desultory; discursive-ly, discursive-ness; discursory, dis.kur'.so.ry, argumental.

French discursif; Latin discursus, supine discursum (dis curro, to run hither and thither).

Discus, dis'.kus, a quoit. Discous, dis'.kus, broad, flat.

Discuss, dis.kis'. To talk argumentatively on a subject.

“Discus,” Latin; Greek diskös, a round flat plate of metal, &c.

“Discus,” see next article.

Discuss, dis.kis', to ventilate a subject. (See Discus.)

Discussed' (2 syl.), discuss'-ing, discuss'-er.

Discussion, dis.kis'.sh'un, a debate; discussive, dis.kis'.siv; discutient, dis.kis'.sh.ient, having the power to disperse morbid matter.

French discussif, discussion, verb discuter; Latin discussio, discussor, verb discutir, supine discursum (dis quatuor, to shake thoroughly).

Disdain' (2 syl.), contempt, to scorn; disdain'd (2 syl.), disdain-ing, disdain'ingly, disdain'er, disdain'ful (Rule vii.), disdain'ful-ly, disdain'ful-ness. (See Deign.)

French dédaigner, dédaîn; Italian disdegnò, disdegnare; Latin dis dignàre, to deem unworthy (dignus, worthy).

Disease, dis.ēz', illness. Diseize, dis.ēz', to oust.

Disease is more applicable to man; distemper to brutes.

Disease' (2 syl.), plu. diseases (3 syl., Rule liii.)

Diseased' (2 syl.) Afflicted with disease.

Uneasy, un.ēz'.y, not easy, uncomfortable; uneasi-ly, uneasi-ness (Rule xi.)

Old English cat, easy; unēth, uneasy; unēthnes, uneasiness; unēthic, uneasily. French malaise. Latin dis or male otioque-
Disembark or debark, dis'.em.bark', de.bark', to land from a ship; disem- or de- barked, -barkt, -bark-ing; disembarcation or debarkation, dis.em- or de- bar.kay'shun;
disem- or de- barkment, dis.em- or de- bark'ment.

"Bark" (French barque, Low Latin barca, a little ship). Em or en converts nouns into verbs, hence embark, to ship or put on board (French embarquer). Dis reverses, hence dis-em-bark, to unship.

French débarque, débarquement, v. débarquer, formed on another principle. Low Latin de barca, [to take] out of a ship.

Disembarrass, dis.em.bar'rass, to free from perplexity; disembar'assed (4 syl.), disem-bar'assing, disem-bar'ass-ment.

Unembarrassed, un'em.bar'mast, not troubled with perplexities or pecuniary difficulties.

French débarrass, v. débarrasser; Low Latin barra, a barrier. Em or en converts nouns into verbs, hence embarrass, to hamper with barriers. Dis reverses, hence dis-em-barrass, to remove the barriers.

Disembellish, dis.em.bell'ish, to strip off decorations; disembell'ished (4 syl.), dispell'ish-ing, dispell'ish-ment.

"Bell," a beauty (Latin bellus, pretty). Em or en converts nouns into verbs, and ish added to verbs means "to make," hence embellish, to make beautiful. Dis reverses, hence dis-em-bellish, to strip off that which makes beautiful.

Disembody, dis'.em.bod"y, to free from the body; disembodies, dis'.em.bod"iz; disembodied, dis'.em.bod"zd (Rule xi.), disembodi-ment (Rule xi.), but disembod'y-ing (with y).

Old English bodig, the body. Em or en converts nouns to verbs, hence embody, "to give a body, or put on a body." Dis reverses, hence dis-em-body, to put off a body, to take the body away.

Disembogue, dis'.em.bög", to pour out through the mouth [as a river, into the sea]; disembogues, dis'.em.bög's"; disembogued, dis'.em.bög'd; disembogu-ing, dis'.em.bög"ing (R. xix.); disembogue-ment, dis'.em.bög"ment (R. xviii.)

"Bogue" (French bouché, Spanish boca), the mouth. Em or en converts nouns into verbs, hence em-bogue, to put into the mouth (French emboucher, Spanish embuchar). Dis reverses, hence dis-em-bogue, to put out of the mouth, to disembogue (Norman-French dispémboucher, Spanish desembuchar).

Disembowel, dis'.em.böw.el (-böw- to rhyme with now), to take out the entrails; disemböw'elled (4 syl.), disemböw'ell-ing (R. iii. el); disemböw'ell-er, disemböw'ell-ment (one l). These words are also used without the prefix dis-: as Embowel, em.böw'.el, to take out the entrails; emböw'elled (3 syl.), emböw'ell-ing (R. iii. el), emböw'ell-er, embow'ell-ment (one l).

"Bowel" (French boët; Latin botellus, the gut). Em or en converts nouns into verbs, hence em-bowel, to gut, i.e., take out the entrails. In this example dis is pleonastic.
Disenchant, dis.en.chant (not dis.cn.chant), to free from enchantment; disenchant'ed (R. xxxvi.), disenchant'ing, disenchant'er (should be -or), disenchant'ment.

French désenchanter, désenchantement; Latin dis incantāre, -incantāmentum, -incantātōr (canto, to sing often the same tune).

Disencumber, dis.en.küm'Brien to remove an encumbrance; disencum'bered (4 syl.), disencum'ber'er, disencum'ber-ing; disencum'brane (not disencumberance).

Disencumbered, having an encumbrance taken off;

Dis and French encombre, v. encombrer; Latin in cumbēre, to lie or lean upon; dis reverses.

Disengage, dis.en.gage', to free from work or entanglement; disengag'ed' (3 syl.); disengag-ing, dis.en'gage'·ing; disengag'er, dis.en'gage'·er; disengag-ment, disengagedness, dis.en'gage'·ed.ness, state of being at leisure.

Dis'engaged' (3 syl.), set free from an engagement;

Un'engaged' (3 syl.), without any engagement.

Disengaging, setting free something entangled;

Unengaging, not adapted to engage the heart of anyone.

French dégager, dégagement, verb dégager; Low Latin vadium, a pawn; German wagen, to weigh; money weighed out for service, hence wages; goods for which money is weighed out, hence a pawn. En converts nouns into verbs, hence engage, to pawn; therefore, "not to be free or unoccupied." Dis reverses, hence dis-engaged, taken out of pawn, free, at leisure.

Disnoble, dis.en.nō.b·l, to deprive of nobility; dis'enno'bled (4 syl.), dis'enno'bling. Un'enno'bled, not ennobled.

"Noble," a nobleman. En converts nouns into verbs, hence en-noble, to make noble. Dis reverses, hence dis-ennoble, to deprive one of that which gives nobility.

Disenroll, dis.en.roll, to erase from a roll; dis'enrolled' (3 syl.), dis'enroll-ing, disenroll'ment, generally disenrolment. Un'enrolled' (3 syl.), not enrolled. Unroll, to open something rolled; unrolled' (3 syl.), unroll'ing (R. viii.).

"Roll," a list of names. En converts nouns into verbs, hence enroll, to put a name on a roll. Dis reverses, hence dis-enroll, to take a name off a roll. ("Roll," Latin rōtula, a reel.)

Disentail, dis'en.tail', to free land from entail; dis'entailed' (3 syl.), dis'entail'-ing, dis'entail'-ment, dis'entail'er.

French entailler, to cut off, hence to limit; Law Latin feudum tallitātum, a fee curtailed or limited (to a particular heir). Dis reverses, hence dis-entail, to abolish the limitation of entailment.

Disentangle, dis.en.tān.g·l, to unravel; dis'en'tāng'led (4 syl.), dis'en'tāng'ling, dis'en'tāng'ler, disen'tāng'le-ment.

Unentangled, un.en.tān'·g·l'd, not entangled;
Disentangled, dis'ent.tän'ld, with the tangle removed.

Disenthrall, dis'.en.thraul', to free from thraldom (Rule viii.); dis'enthralled (3 syl.), dis'enthrall-ing (Rule i.), dis'enthral'-ment (only one l).

Unenthralled, ün'.en.thraul'd, not in thraldom;

Disenthralled (3 syl.), set free from thraldom.

Thral, Old English, "a slave." En converts nouns into verbs, hence enthrall, to make one a slave. Dis reverses, hence dis-enthrall, to set free one who has been made a slave.

Disenthrone, *dis'.en.thron'ye" or dethrone, de.throne', to depose a sovereign; dis'enthroned" (3 syl.) or dethroned" (2 syl.), dis'enthrön'ing or dethrön'ing (Rule xix.), dis'en-thron'e'-ment or dethron'e'-ment.

"Dethrone" is formed on another principle: de throne, [to remove] from the throne.

Disentitle, dis'.en.ti'.ti'l, to deprive of title or claim; disentitled, dis'.en.ti'.ti'ld; dis'enti'tiling.

Untitled, without title; Disentitled, deprived of title.

"Title" (Old English titul), a denotation of rank. En converts nouns into verbs, hence entitle, to confer a title. Dis reverses, hence dis-entitle, to remove the name denoting rank.

Disentomb, dis'.en.toom' (b mute), to remove from a tomb; disentombed, dis'.en.toomd; disentomb-ing, dis'.en.toom'-ing; disentomb-ment, dis'.en.toom'.ment.

Untombed (2 syl.), without a tomb, not committed to a grave;

Disestablish, dis'.es.tiib".lish, to break up; dis'established (4 syl.), dis'establish-ing, dis'establish-ment.

Unestablished (4 syl.), not established;

Disestablished, deprived of that which gave establishment.

"Stable," a thing fixed (Latin sto, to stand or fix). En converts nouns into verbs, and ish added to verbs means "to make," hence es [en] establish, to make firm. Dis reverses, hence dis-establish, to unfix what was firm.

Dis'esteem", to disregard; dis'esteemed" (3 syl.), dis'esteem'-ing; dis'estimation, dis.es'.ti.may".shun.

Latin dis aestimäre; French m être (Latin male aestimäre).
Disfavour, dis'fā'vered (3 syl.), disfā'vering, disfā'verer.
Other negative compounds are made with un-: as—
Unfa'vour-able, unfa'vourable-ness, unfa'vourably,
Unfa'vered, un. fā'verd, not favoured;
Disfa'vered, spited, discountenanced.
French défausser, défavorable; Latin dis fāvīor, removal of goodwill.
Disfigure, dis'fig'uer (not dis'fig'ieur), to deface; disfig'ured (3 syl.), disfig'ur-ing (Rule xix.), disfig'ur-er, disfig'ure-ment (only five words drop the “e” final before -ment, Rule xviii.); disfiguration, dis'fig'ūr'ā'shun.
Unfigured, not figured, plain; disfigured, defaced.
French défigurer; Latin dis figūrāre, to mar the form; figūrātio, &c.
Disforest, dis'for'rest or disafforest, dis'af'for'rest, to take from a forest its royal privileges; dis- or disaf- for'ested (Rule xxxvi.), dis- or disaf- for'est-ing.
Old French fōrêt, French forêt. Af converts the noun into a verb, hence afforest, to convert into a forest with certain privileges. Dis reverses, hence dis-afforest, to remove the privileges of the forest.
Disforest is to reduce a forest from being a forest.
Disfranchise, dis'frān'chize, to take away the franchise; disfran'chised (3 syl.), disfran'chis-ing (Rule xix.), disfran'chise-ment, dis'frān'shiz'měnt (Rule xviii.)
Unfranchised, not franchised;
Disfranchised, deprived of its franchise.
Dis and French franchise; Low Latin franchesta, a franchise; dis'franchisátus, disgranchised.
Disgorge’ (2 syl.), to yield up; disgorged’ (2 syl.); disgorg-ing, dis'gorge'ing (Rule xix.); disgorge' -ment.
Ungorged’ (2 syl.), not sated or gorged;
Disgorged’ (2 syl.), vomited out or ejected from the stomach.
French dégorgomend, verb dégorger, to discharge from the throat (gorge, the throat; Latin gurgulātio the windpipe).
Disgrace’ (2 syl.), dishonour, to be out of favour; disgraced’ (2 syl.); disgrac-ing, dis'grase’ing (Rule xix.); disgrace’-ful (Rule viii.), disgrace’ful-ly, disgrace’ful-ness.
Ungraced’ (2 syl.), not embellished;
Disgraced, reduced to shame.
Ungraceful, without grace; disgraceful, shameful.
Ungraceful-ly, inelegantly; disgraceful-ly, shamefully.
Ungraceful-ness, inelegance; disgraceful-ness, shamefulness.
Ungracious, un'grās'shus, surly; ungracious-ly.
(Un- denotes simply the absence, dis- denotes actual privation of something before possessed.)
French disgrace, verb disgracter, disgracieux; ungracious; Latin dis gratia, favour, grace, honour.
AND OF SPELLING.

Disguise, dis.giz', a false appearance, to have a false appearance; disguised, dis.gized; disguised-ly, dis.gized'.ly or dis.gize'.ed.ly; disguis-ing, dis.gize'.ing (Rule xix.); disguise-ment, dis.gize'.ment (Rule viii.)

Old French desguiser, &c.; French déguiser, déguisement.

(Old English wise, manner, guise; Welsh gwis, mode, guisg, dress.)

Disgust', aversion, to excite aversion; disgust'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disgust'-ing, disgust'ing-ly, disgust'ful (Rule viii.), disgust'ful-ly, disgust'ful-ness.

Italian disgustare, disgusto; Latin dis gustare (gustus, taste).

Dish, plu. dishes, dish.\'es (Rule liii.), noun and verb; dished (1 syl.), dish'ing. To dish up [dinner], to put food on the dishes ready for [dinner].

Old English disc, a plate or dish.; Latin discus; Greek diskos.

Dishabille. (See D eshabille.)

Dishearten, dis.hart'.en, to dispirit; disheart'ened (3 syl.);

dishearten-ing, dis.hart'.ing.

Dish and Old English heorte, the heart.

Dishevel, di.shnev'.el, more correctly dechev'el, to let the hair loose; dishev'elled, more correctly dechev'elled (3 syl.), dishev'ell-ing, more correctly dechevel-ing.

(The spelling of "dishevel" is disgraceful.)

French cheveu, the hair; chevelure, the hair dressed; de chevel, to "derange the dress of the hair" (Latin capill'us); but dishevel must be either de-chev el or dis-hevel, both nonsense.

Dishonest, dis.on'.est, not honest; dishonest-ly, dis.on'.est.ly; dishonesty, dis.on'.est.ty.

(Only three simple words begin with h-mute: (1) heir = air, (3) honest = on'.est and honour = on'.er, (3) hour = our (Rule xlviii.); all taken from the French.)

Old French h onneste, French honnete, desshonnete; Latin hon' estus, unhonestus. (We have avoided the French double n, but have followed the French in dropping the h.)

Dishonour, diz.on'.er, disgrace, to disgrace; dishonoured, diz.-on'.er.d; dishonouring, diz.on'.er.ing; dishonour'er, diz.-on'.er.er; dishhonourable, diz.on'.er.a.bl; dishonnourable-ness, diz.on'.er.a.bl.ness; dishonnourably, diz.on'.er.a.bl.ly.

Unhonoured, un.on'.er.d, not honoured, disregarded;

Dishonoured, positively disgraced or discredited.

French d eshonnoeur!1 but d eshonorable (one n), verb d eshoner;

Latin honor, dehonestus, verb dehonestare, to discredit.

Disincline, dis'.in.kline", not willing; disinclined" (3 syl.), dis'inclin"-ing (Rule xix.); dis'inclination, dis'.in.kli.-nay"shun, dislike, unwillingness.

Latin dis inclinare, dis inclinatio (clino, Greek klinó, to bend).
Disincorporate, dis’in.kor”.po.rate, to deprive of corporate rights; dis’incor”porät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dis’incor”porät-ing (Rule xix.); disincorporation, dis’.in.kor.po. ray”.shun.
Un’incor”poräted, not corporated;
Dis’incor”poräted, deprived of corporate rights.
French désincorporer, désincorporation; Latin dis incorporatio, -incorporare (corpus, a body [corporate]).

Dis’infect”, to deodorise, to purify; dis’infect”-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dis’infect”-ing; dis’infect”-er, a person or substance that disinfects; dis’infect”-ant, a substance which disinfects; disinfection, dis’.in.fék”.shun.
Un’infect”-ed, not contaminated;
Dis’infect”-ed, cured of its contamination.
Uninfectious, un’.in.fék”.shus, not communicating [disease]; Disinfectious, dis’.in.fék”.shus, neutralising infection.
French désinfecter, désinfection; Latin dis infectus, -infector (infectio).

Disingenuous, dis’.in.jen”.us (not dis’.in.jee”.us), not frank; dis’ingen”uous-ly, dis’ingen”uous-ness; disingenuity, dis’.in.je.iw”.i.ty, want of candour.
Latin dis ingénuitas, -ingénus, verb ingener, to be of good extraction or well-born. “Disingenuous” is “ill-bred.”

Disinherit, dis’.in.hel”rlt, to deprive of hereditary rights; dis’inher’it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dis’inher’it-ing, dis’inher’it-er (ought to be -or); disinheritance, dis’.in.her”rl·ioson, the act of disinherit; dis’inher’itance.
(The French and Latin privitive in this example is ex.)
French exhéridation, disinherition; verb exhéredére; Latin exhéré-dare, to disinherit; exhéré-dátor, exhéré-dáto, disinherition.

Disintegrate, dis.in’.te.!Jl'i’té, to pulverise; disintegréat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dis’integrat”-ing (Rule xix.); disintegration, dis’in.te.gray”.shun; disintegrable, dis’.in.te.gray”.b'l; dis’integrable-ness.
Latin dis intégräre, -integratío (integer, entire and whole).

Dis’inter”, to exhume; dis’interred” (3 syl.), dis’interr”-ing (Rule i.), dis’interr”-er, dis’interr”-ment.
Uninterred, not buried; Disinterred, exhumed.
“Disinter” should have double “r” (Latin terr[a]).
“Ter,” for terra, the earth. In or en converts nouns into verbs, hence inter, to put into the earth. Dis reverses, hence dis inter, to take out of the earth.
Italian interrare, to bury; French déterrer, to exhume.

Disinterested, dis’.in.ter. est”.ed, without selfish motive; dis’in­teres’ted-ly, dis’interest’ed-ness.
Un’interest’ed, not concerned [in the matter].
Un'interest'ing, dull, unable to excite the mind.

Un'interest'ing-ly, in a dull lifeless manner.

French désintéressé, disinterested and uninterested; Latin interest, it concerns [me]; dis interest, it does not concern [me]; hence "unselfish," and also "unexciting."

Disjoin', to sever; disjoined' (2 syl.), disjoining.

Disjoined' (2 syl.), severed. Unjoined', not united.

French déjoindre and disjoindre; Latin disjungere, supine disjunctum.

Disjoint', to put out of joint; disjoint-ing, disjoint'ed (Rule xxxvi.), disjoint'ed-ly, disjoint'ed-ness.

Disjointed, put out of joint. Unjointed, not jointed

Disjunct'; disjunction, dis'junk'.shun, disunion, severance; disjunctive, dis'junk'tive; disjunctive-ly.

"Disjoin" and "disjoint" are from the same root-verb. A "joint" is a contrivance to join together two parts.

French disjoint, disjonctif, disjonction, disjunctive (in Grammar). Latin disjunctus, disjunctio, disjunctivus.

Disk (in Bot.) 'In a daisy the disk is the yellow eye, and the white petals are called the "rays."

Disc. The face of the sun or moon.

Both French disque; Latin discus; Greek diskos, a round plate.

Dislike' (2 syl.), aversion, to feel aversion to: disliked' (2 syl.), dislik'-ing (Rule xix.)

Unlike', not like, dissimilar; unlike'-ly, not probable; unlike'ness, improbability; unlike'-ness, want of resemblance; unlike'li-hood (-hood Old Eng. suf., "state").

Dis- or un- and Old English geal, like; lacked, likened.

Dislocate, dis'lo.káte, to put out of joint; dis'locat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dis'locat-ing; dislocation, dis'.lo.kay'.shun.

Dis'located, put out of joint;

Un'located, not having a fixed place assigned.

Uncaloted Land (American), land not yet appropriated.

Fr. dislocation, v. disloquer; Lat. dis locáre, to put out of place.

Dislodge' (2 syl.), to remove from its place; dislodged' (2 syl.), dislodg'-ing (R. xix.), dislodg'-er; dislodg'-ment (one of the five words which drop the e before -ment, R. xvili., ¶)

Fr. déloger, délogement; Lat. dis locáre, to displace (locus, a place).

Disloyal, dis'loy'al, or unloy'al, not loyal.

Disloy'al denotes an active demonstration of disloyalty;

Unloy'al denotes simply the fact of not being loyal.

Disloy'al-ly; disloyal-ty, dis'loy'al-ty.

French déléléal (loi, a law); Latin légális (lex, a law).

Loyal means "obedient to law;" disloyal, disobedient to law.
Dismantle, dis.man'tl, to strip [a house, &c., of its furniture]; dismantled, dis.man'tld; dismantling, dis.man'tling.

Dismantled, deprived of mantle or furniture;

Unmantled, without a mantle.

French démanteler (military term); Latin dis mantelâ, a mantle.

Dismantle, to break down or carry away the masts of a ship;

dismast'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dismast'-ing.

Dismantled, deprived of mantle or furniture.

Dismantling, dis.man'tling.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismay, dis.may', terror, to be in terror; dismayed (R. xiii.)

Un'dismayed (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismay, fear, to be in terror; dismayed (2 syl.), dismay'-ing (Rule xii.);

Dismay', to break down or carry away the masts of a ship;

dismast'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dismast'-ing.

Dismay', to break down or carry away the masts of a ship;

dismast'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dismast'-ing.

Dismay, dis.may', terror, to be in terror; dismayed (3 syl.), dismay'-ing (R. xiii.). Un'dismayed (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismay, dis.may', terror, to be in terror; dismayed (3 syl.), dismay'-ing (R. xiii.). Un'dismayed (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismay', to break down or carry away the masts of a ship;

dismast'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dismast'-ing.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.

Dismayed, (3 syl.), not dismayed.
Disor'ganised (4 syl.), thrown out of methodical arrangement.
Or'ganised (3 syl.), having organic structure;
Inor'ganised (4 syl.), not having organic structure.

French désorganiser, désorganisation, désorganisateur; Latin or-gānum; Greek orgānon, an organ adapted to some work or function, hence “organised” also means methodised, and “disorganised” thrown out of methodical arrangement.

Disown, diz.own', to ignore; disowned' (2 syl.), disown'-ing.
Unowned' (3 syl.), having no recognised owner;
Disowned' (2 syl.), disclaimed.

Unowed, un owed, not owed, not due.
Old English igan, to own; undigan, to disown.

Disparage, dis.par'rage, to depreciate; dispar'aged (3 syl.), dispar'ag-ing (Rule xix.), dispar'aging-ly, dispar'ag-er, dispar'age-ment (Rule xviii.)
Latin disparāre (dis par, unequal); French parage, lineage; [dis] parag, of unequal lineage. To “disparage” meant originally “to consider another of meaner rank,” hence “of meaner value,” and hence “to depreciate.”

Disparity, plu. disparities, dis.pār'ri.tiz (not disparaty).
Latin disparītītias, adj. disparītis (par, gen. pars, equal).

Dispassionate', dis.pass.ate, without emotion, impartial; dispassionate-ly.
Unpassionate, not of a passionate temper.
Latin dis passio, without passion.

Dispatch'. (See Despatch.)

Dispel', to disperse; dispelled' (2 syl.), dispell'-ing.
(It would be better if the double l had been preserved.)
Latin dispell(o, to drive away).

Dispense' (2 syl.) not dispence, to administer, to do without; dispensed', dispens'-ing (Rule xix.), dispens'-er.
(“Dispense” is one of the six words ending in -ence, between two and three hundred end in -ence, Rule xxvi.)

Undispensed, un'.dis.penst', not dispensed.

Dispense to, administer to;
Dispense with, to part with or do without.

Dispensable, dis.pēn'sa.b'l, that may be dispensed with;
In'dispensable, that cannot be dispensed with;
Indispensably, absolutely, positively.

Dispensary, plu. dispensaries, dis.pēn'sa.riz (Rule xlv.), a place where medicine is dispensed;

Dispensatory, dis.pēn'sa.tōry, a dictionary of medical prescriptions, &c.; adj. having the power to grant dispensation.

Dispensation, dis.pēn'sa.shun, exemption, a system of rules (as the Mosaic dispensation), God’s mode of dealing with his creatures;

Dispensative, dis.pens.a.tion; dispens’ative-ly.
Fr. dispenser, dispensaire, dispensation; Lat. dispensare, dispensatio.

Dispensatory, dis.pens.atory; dispensatory-ly.
Fr. dispensateur, dispensatrice; Lat. dispensatrix.

Dispensous, dis.pens’ous (in Botany), having two seeds.

Greek δίσσος sperma, twofold seed.

Disperse’ (3 syl.), to scatter; dispersed’ (2 syl.), disperse’-ing (Rule xix.), disperse’er, disperse’able (Rule xxiii.); dispersion, dis.per.shun; dispersive, dis.per.shiv.

Undispersed, un’dis.perst’, not dispersed.

French disperser, dispersion; Lat. dispersus, supine dispersion, dispersio, dispersus (spargo, to scatter).

Dispirit, dis.pir’t, to dishearten; dispir’it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dispir’it-ing, dispir’it-ed-ly. Un’dispir’it-ed, not...

Dispirited, disheartened. Unspirited, tame, without spirit.

Latin dis spiritus (spirio, to breathe).

Displace’ (2 syl.), to remove from its place; displaced’ (2 syl.), displace’-ing (Rule xix.), displace’-ment (Rule xviii., §), displace’-able (-ce and -ge retain the e final before the postfix -able, Rule xx.) Un’displaced’, not displaced.

French déplacer, déplacement; Latin plantae (Greek plátos, wide).

Displant’, to remove a plant; displant’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), displant’-ing; displantation, dis’.plant’ation.

Displant’ed, removed from where it was planted;

Unplant’ed, not planted, of spontaneous growth.

French déplanter, déplantation; Lat. displicere, displicentia.

Display’, show, to exhibit; displayed’ (2 syl.), display’-ing (Rule xiii.), display’-er. Un’displayed’, not displayed.

French déployer, déplaisir; Latin display’, to unfold.

Displease, dis.pleaz’, to offend; displeased’ (2 syl.), displease’-ing (Rule xix.), displease’-er.

Displeasure, dis.pleaz’ur; displeasure-able.

Unpleasant’, un.pleaz’ant, not pleasant; unpleas’ant-ly, unpleas’ant-ness.

Displease’-ing, offensive; Unpleas’-ing, not pleasing.

French déplaisant, déplaisir; Lat. displicentia, displicere (dis placer, to displease).

Dispose, dis.pos’es’, to arrange, to feel willing; disposed’, arranged, inclined; disposed’-ing (Rule xix.), disposed’-er, disposed’-al, disposed’-able (Rule xxiii.), disposed’-able.

Undisposed, not disposed.

Disposition, dis’p.oz’ish’-un. Arrangement, temper.

Indisposed, in.dis.pos’esd, unwell, not inclined; indisposition; indisposed’-able, not saleable.
Undisposedness, un·dis·pō·zed·ness, unwillingness.

Disposed of. Parted with, sold. (See Depose.)

Undisposed of. Not parted with, not sold.

French disposer, disposition; Latin dis·po·tu·tio, dispo·tu·tus, dis·po·tu·ere (dis posu, to set aside, to distribute).

Dispossess, dis·pō·zes' (not dis·pō·zēs'), to deprive of; dispossessed, dis·pō·zes·sed' (not dis·pō·zes·sed'); dispossess·ing, dis·pō·zes·sing·ly (not dis·pō·zes·sing·ly); dispossessed, dis·pō·zes·sh·un (not dis·pō·zes·sh·un'); dis·possess'·or.

Dis'possessed' (3 syll.), turned out of possession;

Un'possessed' (3 syll.), not having in possession.

Fr. dépossession; Latin dis·pos·se·sio, possi·sio, sup. pos·se·sum, (pos [po·tis] sedco, the right of settling down. Dis reverses).

Dispraise, dis·pra·ze', censure, to censure; dispraised' (2 syll.), disprais'·ing (Rule xix.), disprais'·ing·ly, disprais'·er.

Dispraised, dis·pra·ze′d', censured;

Unpraised, un·pra·ze′d', not praised.

Dis and German preisen, to praise; preiser; French priser, to value; Latin prœ·tium, price or value. To praise is “to value.”

Disproof' (noun), confutation; disprove' (verb), to confute (R. li.)

Disprove, dis·pro·ov' (not dis·pro·vē), to confute; disproved, dis·pro·ovd'; disprov·ing, dis·pro·ov·'ing (not dis·pro·v·ing, Rule xix.); disprov·able, dis·pro·ov·val;'

Indisprovable, not to be disproved.

Disprov·al, dis·pro·ov·val, refutation;

Disapproval, dis·ap·ro·ov′·val, displeasure.

Disapprobation, dis·ap·pro·bā′·shun, displeasure.

Unproved, un·pro·ovd' (not un·pro·vēd), not proved;

Disproved, dis·pro·ovd' (not dis·pro·vēd), confuted;

Disapproved, dis·ap·pro·ovd', not pleased with.

Dis and Old English proffian, to prove: past pro·fod, past part. pro·fod; Latin prō·bāre (prō·bus, honest, upright).

Disproportion, dis·pro·por′·shun, want of proportion; disproportion·able, disproportion·able·ness, disproportion·ably, disproportion·al, disproportion·al·ly, disproportion·ate, disproportion·ate·ly, disproportion·ate·ness.

French disproportion, disproportion·al; Latin dis·pro·por·tio, proportio·nātus (portio, a portion).

Dispute′ (2 syll.), a contention, to contend; disput′·ed (Rule xxxvi.), disput′·ing (Rule xix.), disput′·ing·ly, disput′·er; disputable, dis·put·a·b'l (not dis·put·a·e·a·b'l); dis·put·able·ness, dis·put·ably, dis·put·ant.

Disputation, dis·pu·tā′·shun. Controversy.

Disputations, dis·pu·tā′·shus. Contentious.
Disputative, dis".pu.ta.tiv; dis'putative-ly.
Undis'put'ed, not disputed; undisputed-ly.
Indis'putable (not un-), in.dis".pu.ta.ble; certain;
Indis'putable-ness, indis'putably, certainly.

French disputable, disputant ("Disputation" is not a French word); Latin disputabilis, disputabilis, disputátor, v. disputāre (pūlo, to prune or dress vines, to think; dis pūlo, to think differently. "To think" is to prune or dress the thoughts).

Disqualify, dis.kwöl'.i.fy, to render unfit; disqualifies, *dis.kwöl'.
i.fie*; disqualified, dis.kwöl'.i.fide; disqualifi-er, *dis.
kwöl'.i.fi.er* (Rule xii.); disqualification, *dis.kwöl'.i.fi.kay".

Disqualified. Having something which destroys fitness;

Unqualified. Not having what is required.
Dis and French qualification, v. qualifier (Latin qualitas fácio, to make of the quality or nature required).

Disquiet, dis.kwi'.et (not dis.kwoi'.et), uneasiness, to disturb; disqui'et-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disqui'et-ing, disqui'et-er, disqui'et-ly, disqui'et-ness; disquietude, dis.kwi'.e.tude.

Unquiet, un.kwi'.et, restless; unquiet-ly, unquiet-ness.

Inquietude, in.kwi'.e.tude. Anxiety.

French inquietude; Latin inquiētudo, inquiētus, v. inquiētāre. Our word is formed from (Latin) dis quies, the reverse of rest.

Disquisition, dis'.kwi.zis'.hün, discussion; disquisition-al.

Disregard, dis'.re.gard'; slight, to neglect; disregard'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disregard'-ing, disregard'ing-ly, disregard' er, disregar'd-ful (Rule viii.), disregard'ful-ly.

Un'regard'ed, neglected; Dis'regarded, slighted.
Dis and French regarder; Low Latin regimentum, "gard" = ward
(one under a guardian, one guarded or looked after). To "guard" is to look after one as a guardian, disregar'd is to neglect so doing.

Disrelish, dis.rel'.i.sh, a dislike of the taste, to dislike the taste; disrel'ished (3 syl.), disrel'ish-ing.

Dis'rel'ished (3 syl.), aversion to the taste;

Un'rel'ished (3 syl.), having no fondness for the taste.

Greek dis [re] leicho, leicho, to lick; re leicho, to lick again; dis re leicho, to lick over and over again. It is a badly compounded word.

Disrespect, dis'.re.spec't, want of respect, to show want of respect; disrespect'-ed (R. xxxvi.), disrespect'-ing, disrespect'ful
(R. viii.), disrespect'ful-ly, disrespect'ful-ness.

Dis'respect'ed, dishonoured. Un'respect'ed, not respected.
Irrespective, *ir.re.spec'.tiv*e*; without regard to; irrespect'iv'e-ly, independently of other considerations.

Dis and French respect, verb respecter; Latin respectum (re specio, to look back upon). Dis reverses.
Disrobe' (2 syl.), to undress; disrobed', disrōb'-ing (Rule xix.), disrōb-er. Unrobe', unrōb'-ing (same meaning).

Disrobed' (2 syl.), divested of robing;
Unrobed (2 syl.), without robes, or dress.

Dis and French robe, a state dress; Low Latin roba, a robe.

Disrupt', to burst asunder; disrupt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), disrupt'-ing; disruption, disrup't-shun, fracture.

Latin disrumpo, supine disruptum (dis rumpo, to break asunder).

Dissatisfy, dis.satisfy, to leave discontent; dissatisfies, dis.satisfy (Rule xi.)

Dissatisfied, dis.satisfied; discontented;
Unsatisfied, unas.satisfied, not contented.

Dissatisfy-ing, leaving discontent behind;
Unsatisfy-ing; not contenting.

Dissatisfactory, dis.satisfactory, giving dissatisfaction;
Unsatisfactory, not giving satisfaction.

Dissatisfac'tor-ly, in a way to cause dissatisfaction;
Unsatisfactori-ly, in a way not to satisfy.

Dissatisfac'tor-ness, a state of being dissatisfied;
Unsatisfactori-ness, failure to produce satisfaction.

Dissatisfaction, dis.satisfactory, discontent.

Un'satisfiable, un.satisfiable, not satisfactory.

Latin dis satisfac'tio, satisfac'tro (satis facio, to do enough).

Dissect, dissect' (not de'sect'), to anatomise; dissect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dissect'-ing, dissec't-er (not -er), dissec't-ible (ought to be -ble); dissection, dissec't-shun.

Fr. dissec'tion; Lat. dissec'tio, dissec'are (dis seco, to cut to pieces).

Disseize, disseeze', to dispossess. Disease, diz.eze', malady.

Disseized, dis see'zed; disseiz'-ing (Rule xix.), dispossessing wrongfully; disseiz'in, the act of disseizing;

Dissez'-or, one who takes possession unlawfully;

Disseizee, dis see'zeed, the person disseized.

(These words are also spelt with "-s" instead of "-z," but as seize is always spelt with "z," there is no reason why its compounds should adopt a different spelling.)

Low Latin disseg'ina, discharge; disseg'sio, to disseize; dissegis'tor.

Dissemble, dis.zem'ble, to conceal by equivocation; dissembled, dis.zem'bled; dissem'bling (Rule xix.); dissem'bler, one who conceals by equivocation.
Dissimulation, dis.sim.u.lay".shun, the act of dissembling.
Dis and French sembler. The French corresponding words are dissimuler, dissimulation; Latin dissimulâre, dissimulâtio (simulâ, to feign; dis in a bad sense, similis, like).
(It would have been better if we had adopted the word “dissimulate” instead of the bad French form “dissemble.”)

Disseminate, dis.sèm'.i.nate, to scatter as seed, to diffuse;
dissem'inât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dissem'inât-ing (Rule xix.), dissem'inât-or (Rule xxxvii.); dissemination, dis.sèm'.i-nay".shun; disseminat'ive, dis.sem'.i.na.tive.
French disséminer, dissémination; Latin dissimnâtio, dissimnâtâtor, dissimnâre (sêmen, seed).

Dissent, dis.sent', disagreement, to disagree. Descent, dè.sent', generation, a going down.

Dissent' (noun), dissent'-er.
Dissent' (verb), dissent'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dissent'-ing.

Dissentient, dis.sèn'.shè.ent; dissension, dis.sèn'.shun (not French dissension; Latin dissentiens, gen. -entis, dissensus, verb dissentire, supine dissensum (dis sèntio, to think differently).

Dissertation, dis.sèr.tay".shun (not des'er.tay".shun), a disqui-sition; disserta'tion-al, disserta'tor, dis'.ser.ta.tor.
French dissertation, dissertâtor; Latin dissertâtio, verb dissertâre frequentative of dissidére, supine dissertum (dis sero, to scatter seed).

Dissever, dis.sèv'.er, same as “sever”; dissever'ed (3 syl.), dissever'-ing, dissever'-er, dissever'-ance; disseveration, dis.sèv'.er.nay".shun. (Not French).

Dissevered, dis.sèv'.erd, separated, severed;

Unsevered, un.sèv'.erd, not separated or severed.

Dis intensive and Fr. sever, to wean, to estrange. Lat. sépârâre.

Dissident, dis.si.dent (not dis.si.dant), one who dissent, (adj.)
dissenting; dis'sidents, dis'sidence, dis'sident-ly.
French dissidence, dissident; Latin dissidentia, dissidens, genitive dissidentis, verb dissidere (dis sèdeo, to sit apart).

Dissimilar, dis.sim'.i.lar, unlike; dissim'lar-ly; dissimilarity, dis'.sim.i.lar".rit.y; dis'simil'itûde.
French dissimilâtre, dissimilitude; Latin dissimilitudo (dis similis).

Dissimulation, dis.sim.u.lay".shun. (See Dissemble.)

Dissipate, dis'.si.pate, to disperse, to squander; dis'sipât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dispersed, squandered, adj. dissolute; dis'sipât-ing (Rule xix.); dissipat'ion, dis'.si.pay".shun.
French dissip' er, dissipat'ion; Latin dissipâto, dissipâre (dis stpe, to scatter abroad; Greek siphôn, a siphon).

Dissociate, dis.so'.si.ate, to disunite; disso'ciat-ed (R. xxxvi.), disso'ciat-ing (R. xix.); dissociation, dis.so',si.a".shun.
AND OF SPELLING.

Dissociable, dis.sō' shə.b'l, ill-assorted;
Unsociable, un.sō' shə.b'l, not sociable.
Unsociably, un.sō' shə.bly, with reserve, unfriendly.
Dissociability, dis.sō' shə. bil' .ə. ti, unfitness for society;
Unsociability, sullenness, living an unsociable life.
Unsocial, un.sō'. shəl; unsociableness, want of sociability.

French insociabilité, insociable; Latin dissociabilis, dissociatio, dissociare (dis sócio, sócns, a companion).

Dissolute, dis.so.lute, dissipated; dis'solute-ly, dis'solute-ness;
dissolution, dis'. so.lu' shun.

Dissoluble, dis'. so.lu.b'l. (See Dissolve.)

French dissolu, dissolution; Latin dissolutus, dissolutio, v. dissolvere, supine dissolutum. (See next article.)

Dissolve, dis.zōlv', to melt; dissolv'-ing (Rule xix.)

Dissolved, dis.zōlv'd, melted. Un'solved, not solved.
Dissolv'er, that which melts something.
Dissolvent, dis.zōl'. vent, that which has the property of melting something;
Insolvent, a debtor unable to pay his debts, not solvent;
insolvency, the state of being insolvent.

Dissolvable, dis.zōl'. va.b'l (Rule xxiii.), or Dissoluble, dis'. so.lu.b'l, capable of being melted;
Insolvable, in.sōl' va.b'l (Rule xxiii.), or Insoluble, in.so.l' u.b'l, incapable of being melted;
Unsolvable, un.sōl' va.b'l, incapable of being solved;
Unsolvable, same as insolvable,
Dissolubility, dis'.sōl.uk'.bl' .ə. ti, having a solvable nature;
In'dissolubility, having a nature which resists solution.

Dissol'vable-ness, negative Insol'uble-ness.

French dissoluble, dissolvent (wrong conj.), insolubilité, insoluble, insolvable; Latin dissolvere (dis solvo, to loose thoroughly; Greek sōn luo, to loose altogether).
(The wrong conj. -able has been borrowed as usual from the French, but has been avoided in dissolvent.)

Dissonance, dis'.so.na.nse, discord; dis'sonant, discordant.
Fr. dissonance, dissonant; Lat. dissōnans, gen. -sonantis (dis sōnare).

Dissuade, neg. of persuade, dis.swade', per.swade'; dissuad'-ed (Rule xxxvi), dissuad'-ing (Rule xix.), dissuad'-er;
dissuasion, dis.sway'. shun, neg. of persua'sion (R. xxxiii.);
dissuasive, dis.swa'.siv; dissua'sive-ly.

French dissuader, dissuasion; Latin dissuāsio, dissuāsor, v. digsuādere (dis. suādeo, Greek Ionic hudeó, to delight).
Dissyllable, dis'sil'lab'bi, a word of two syllables (double l); dissyllabic, dis'sil'lab'i*ek* (adj.); dissyllabification; dis'sil'lab'i-fi*ek'shun*, making into two syllables. (Lat. words containing a "y" are borrowed from the Gk.)

Fr. dissyllabe, dissyllabique; Lat. dissyllabum; Gk. dissos syllabê.

Distaff, plu. distaffs (not distaves). A staff used in hand-spinning. (An exception to Rule xxxviii.)

Old Eng. distaf(thistle [staff], a thistle resembling a bunch of tow).

Distance, dis'tanse, remoteness, to leave behind in a race; distanced (2 syl.), distanc-ing (Rule xix.); distant, remote; distant-ly, remotely.

French distance, distant; Latin distantia, distant, gen. distantis (di[dis]to, to stand apart).

Distaste′ (2 syl.), dislike (followed by for: as “Many have a great distaste for cheese," not of).

Distaste′-ful (Rule viii.), distasteful-ly, distasteful-ness.

Distem′per, disease, to disorder; a preparation of colour with water (not oil) for walls, &c., to use this preparation.

Distempered, dis'tem'perd; distem-per-ing.

“Distemper” is used most frequently for disease in dogs, and other dumb animals. (See Disease.)

It was once thought that the body contains four “humours,” that the just balancing of these fluids constitute health, and that disease is a disturbance of the balance (Latin dis temperârê). The adjustment of the fluids gave rise to the expressions good and ill “temper.” “Good temper” being the effect of a good or just mixture of the fluids, and “bad temper” the effect of a bad or unjust mixture. If bile prevailed the temper was “fiery,” if air prevailed the temper was “sanguine,” if earth it was “melancholy,” if water it was “phlegmatic.”

The countenance is the facial index “containing” (Latin contenens) the outward manifestation of the “temper” or mixture of the four fluids: it is yellow if “bile” [fire] prevails, red if “blood” [air] prevails, grey if “melancholy” [earth] prevails, and dead white if “phlegm” [water] prevails. (See Complexion.)

“Distemper” (paint), Italian distemperamento, v. distemperare, to dissolve, tempra or tempera, water colour; Latin temperare, to mix, dis temperârê, to dissolve.

Distend′, to stretch; distend′-ed (Rule xxxvi.), distend′-ing, distension or *distension′, dis'ten'shun; disten'sible.

French distendre, distension; Latin distendere, supine distentum, disten'tio, distentio or distensus (tendo, to stretch).

Distich, dis'sتك (not dis'titch), two lines of poetry making complete sense. (Ch = "k" shows it to be from the Gk.)

Latin distichon; Greek di-stichos, two lines, an elegiac couplet.

Distil′, to let fall in drops; distilled′ (2 syl.), distill′-ing (R. i.); distill′-er, one who distils; distill′-able (not -ible, 1st Latin conj.); distillation, dis'il.lay'shun; distill′-ery, the place where distilling is carried on; distillatory, dis-till·a-to·ry (adj.), pertaining to distillation.

("Distil" would be better with double "l")

French distiller, distillable, distillation, distillatoire, distillerie; Latin distillatio, distillare, stilla, a drop; Greek stazo, to drop.

Distinct', separate, hence clear, &c.; distinct'-ly, distinct'-ness; distinction, dis-tin·k·shun; distinct-ive, dis.tin·k·tive; distinctive-ly, distinctive-ness. Verb distinguish, q.v.

Indistinct, not distinct. Distinct followed by from.

French distinct, distinction, distinctif; Latin distinctus, distinctio.

Distinguish, dis.ting guish, to note difference by certain marks (followed by between): distinguished, dis.ting'guished; distinguish-ing, dis-tin'guishing-ly, dis-tin'guish-able (R. xxiii.), dis-tin'guishable-ness, dis-tin'guishably, dis-tin'guish-ment, dis-tin'guish-er. (See Distinct.)

Undistin'guished, un- or in- -distin'guishable.

French distin·guer; Latin distinctus, supine distinctum, to notify by a mark (Greek stigma, a mark, v. stizo, to prick or mark).

Distort', to pervert; distort'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), distort'-ing, dis-tort'-er; distortion (not -sion), dis·tor' shun (Rule xxxiii.)

Undistorted. Not distorted.

French distorsion (wrong); Latin distortio, v. distoruere, supine distortum, not distortum (dis torqueo, to twist away).

Distract', to harass; distract'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), distract'ed-ly, distracted-ness, dis·trac'ting, distract'-er, distract'ing-ly; distraction, dis.träk'shun; distracting, dis.träk'tiv.

Undistracted, un· dis.träk't·ed. Not distracted.

("Distraight" is sometimes used in poetry as past part.) Lat. distracto, distrahó, sup. distractum (distrahó, to draw two ways).

Distrain' (2 syll.), to seize chattels for debt; distrained (2 syll.), distrain'-ing; distrain't' (noun); distrain'or; dis-train'-able, subject to distrain't. (Rule xxiii.)

Distress', same as distrain't', the act of seizing for debt.

Lat. distringère, to strain hard (stringo, to grasp).

Distress', affliction, destitution (see Distrain); distress'-ing (part. and adj.); distressed, dis.trést', afflicted; dis-tress'-ful (Rule viii.), distressful-ly.

French détresse; Welsh traís, rapine; treisiant, oppression.

Distribute, dis·trib'·u·te, to dole out; distrib'ü·ed (Rule xxxvi.), distrib'ü·ing (Rule xix.), distrib'ü·er (ought to be -or); distribution, dis'.trib'ü·shun; distrib'ü·able (Rule xxiii.); distrib'ü·tive, dis.trib'ü·tiv; distrib'ü·tive-ly.

Undistributed, un.dis.trib'·u·ted, not distributed.

Indistributive, in.dis.trib'·u·tiv, not to be distributed.

French distribuer, distribuer, distribution, distribut; Latin distribu·tio, distributór, distribuère (dis tribuo, to give in parts)
Distrust', want of confidence, to doubt or suspect; distrust'-ed, distrust'-ing, distrust'ing-ly, distrust'ful (Rule viii.), distrust'ful-ly, distrust'ful-ness.

Distrust'-ed, suspected; Untrust'-ed, not trusted.

Untrust'y, not trusty; untrust'ing, untrust'i-ness, unfaithfulness in the discharge of a trust; untrust'worthy.

Old English untrœw, untrustful; untrœwstan, to deceive.

Disturb', to discompose; disturbed' (3 syl.), disturb'-ing, disturb'er, disturb'ance.

Perturb', to disquiet (a stronger term than disturb); perturbed', perturb'-ing; perturbation, per'turb.ay'-shun, agitation from disquietude.

Perturbations of the planets, deviations from their usual course from some external influence.

Undisturbed (3 syl.), not disturbed; undisturb'-ed-ly (3 syl.)

French perturbation; Latin disturbatio, a disordering; perturbatio, great trouble or disturbance; disturbare, to throw into disorder; perturbare, to trouble, to turn topsy turvy (turbo, to disturb).

Disunite, dis-unite', to disjoin; disunit'ed (Rule xxxvi.), disunit'-ing; disunit'er, one who severs what was united.

Disunion, dis.u'nion, want of union; disunity, dis.uni'ty.

Disunite'd, separated after having been united;

Ununite'd, not united.

French désunion, désunir; Latin dis unire (unus, one).

Disuse, (noun) dis.use', (verb) dis.use' (Rule li., c).

Disuse (noun), neglect of use; disusage, dis.u'sage; disuse (verb), disused, dis.âzd'; disus-ing (Rule xix.)

Unused, un.âst, unaccustomed; unused, un.âzd, not used;

Disused, dis.âzd, the use discontinued.

Unuseful, un.use'.ful; unus'ual, unusu'al-ly.

Latin dis usus, v. utor, supine usus, to use; Greek eîôthás, usual.

Ditch, plu. ditch'-es (R. iii.), a trench; ditch'-er, one who makes a ditch; ditch'-ing, making a ditch.

Old English dic, a dike or ditch, v. dic[ian], dic[ing], ditching.

Dithyramb, dîr'k.i.râm', a song in honour of Bacchus; dithyrambic, dîr'k.i.râm'.bic (adj.)

Latin dithyrambus, dithyrambicus; Greek dithurambos.

Dittany, dît'.ta.ni, a corruption of dic'tanny, garden ginger; the leaves smell like lemon-thyme. Also called dittander.

Lat. dictannus; Gk. dictamon or dictamon (from Dicté, in Crete).

Ditto, also written do., but always pronounced dit'to, same as above, same as aforesaid. (Italian detto, said, spoken.) (Used in bills and books of account to save repetition.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Ditty, plu. ditties, dī'tīz (Rule xli.), a short poem intended to be sung. The word is almost limited to "love-songs."

Welsh dīt, to utter: dītad, an utterance.

"Composition" is from the Latin compono, "to set in order," and the Anglo-Saxon dihītan is "to set in order;" whence dihītig.

Diuresis, di.u.rē'sis, excessive flow of urine; diæresis, q.v., the mark (""') over the latter of two distinct vowels.

Diuretic, di.u.re'tīk, provocative of the flow of urine.

Fr. diurétique; Lat. diureticus; (Gk. dia ouρo, whence "urine").

Diurnal, dī.ur'nal, daily, pertaining to a day; diur'nal-ly.

French diurne, journal; Latin diurnus (diu, dies, a day).

Divan, di.vān', a coffee and smoking room fitted up with sofas.

French divan, a sofa-bedstead; Persian divan, the imperial council or chamber where the council is held.

Dive (1 syl.), to plunge under water; dived (1 syl.), div'-ing (Rule xix.); diver, one who dives; diving-bell.

Dive (2 syl.), to spread from the central point, to recede from each other (the opposite of Converge'); diverged' (2 syl.), diverg'-ing (R. xix.), diverg'-ence (not -ance), diverg'-ent; diverg'ency, plu. divergencies, di.ver'jen.siz (R. lxiv.); diverg'ent-ly or diverg'ing-ly, in a diverging manner.

French diverger, divergence, divergent; Latin divergnum, the parting of a river into two streams; Latin vergens, gen. vergentis (divergo, to bend different ways).

Divers, dī'vērz, plu. of diver (see Dive); (adj.) sundry.

Diverse, dī'vērs', not alike, not identical.

"History supplies divers examples" (sundry), not diverse.

"Squares and diamonds are diverse forms," different.

"There are divers nations on the earth, but each one diverse from the others."

Divers-ly, dī'vērz.ly, in many different ways;

Diverse'-ly, not in the same way.

Diversity, plu. diversities, di.ver'si.tīz, differences.

Diversify, di.ver'sī.fye, to vary; diversifies, di.ver'si.fize; diversified, di.ver'sī.fide; diversify-ing (Rule xi.), diversify-er; diversification, di.ver'sī.fik'shun.

French divers, plu. diverses [personnes, &c]. ("Diversification" is not French), diversifier, diversité; Latin diversus, in different parts, diversitas, diversëre, sup. diversum (di verto, to turn different ways.)

Divert, di.ver't, to turn aside, to amuse; divert'-ed (R. xxxvi.), divert'-ing, divert'ing-ly, divert'-er; diversion, di.ver'-shun (Rule xxxiii.), amusement.

Divertisement, di.ver'tīz.mënt, (not dē.vait.tīz.mong).

Fr. divertir, diversion, divertissement; Lat. divertère (see above).
Divest, divest', to strip, to dispossess; divest-ed (Rule xxxvi.), divest-ing; divestiture, divest'-tūr, the act of surrendering one's chattels (the opposite of Investiture); divesture, divest'-ūr, the act of stripping or depriving.

Old French divestir; French devêtir; Italian divestire, to undress; Latin di [dis] vestiō, to deprive of clothing (vestis, raiment).

Divide, divide, to part; divide-ed (Rule xxxvi.), divide-ing (Rule xix.), divide'-ing-ly; divide'-er, one who divides; dividers, divider'-z, compasses; divide-able (Rule xxiii.)

Divisible, diviz'-i.əl, what can be divided; divisible-ness, divisibly; divisibility, diviz'-i.əl'ə.ti;

Division, diviz'-i.ən; divisional, divisional'-ly.

Divisor, diviz'-or, the number which divides another;

Dividend, diviz'-i.dənd, the number to be divided by the divisor, the share to each creditor of a bankrupt's effects, the interest paid on public "stock."

Divine, divine, a man set apart for the sacred ministry; (adj.), sacred; (verb), to guess, to predict.

(The French spell the verb with "de", but fall back to "di" in the noun "divination.")

Divine (adj.), divin'-er (comp.), divin'-est (super.); divine'-ly (adv.), divine'-ness; divinity, divin'-i.ə.ti, theology; divinity, plu. divinities, divin'-i.əti.z, deity.

("Divine" and "supine" are the only adj. in "-ine" which can be compared with the suffixes -er and -est.)

Divine (verb), divined (2 syl.), divin'-ing, divin'-ing-ly, divin'-er; divination, divin'-i.nay*'-shin*, prediction.

French *divin, divinité, deviner, to predict; devincur, fem. devineresse, divination!! prediction; Latin divinitas, divinus, divine, (from *divo, Greek diós, god), divinatio, divinus, a divine; divinare, to predict (predictions being supposed to come, de dire, from deity).

Divisible, diviz'-i.əl; divisibly (see Divide).

Divorce, divorce (not divorce), dissolution of marriage, to annul a marriage; divorced (2 syl.), divorce-ing (R. xix.), divorce-ment, divorce-able (-ce and -ge retain the e before -able, Rule xviii.), divorce-less.

Divorce'-er, one who divorces; divorcee, the person divorced.

Divorce Court, plu. divorce courts; Court of Divorce, plu. courts of divorce (Rule liii.)

French divorce: Latin divortium, v. divortēre (diverto, to turn away).

Divulge, divulj, to make public, to disclose; divulged (2 syl.), divulg'-ing (R. xix.), divulg'-er, divulg'-ence (ought to be divulge-ance. It is the 1st Latin conj.)

French divulguer, divulgation is a word we might adopt; Latin divulgatio, divulgāre (vulgus, the common people).
AND OF SPELLING.

Divulsion, di¼vüls'ëshën, laceration; divul'sive, di¼vülsëv. ("Divulsion," one of the few words in -sion not French.)
Latin divulsiō, divello supine divulsum, (di vello, to pluck asunder).

Diz'zy, giddy; diz'zi-ly (Rule xi.), diz'zi-ness.
Old English dïsig, dïsignes dizziness, dïsigilce dizzyly.

Djerrid, jër'xid, a Turkish javelin. (Arabic.)

Do, doo, to perform an act; past did; past part. done, dän; do-ing;
pres. tense I do, thou dost, dust [or doest, doo-est], he does, dux, plur. do, doo, all persons; past tense I did, thou didst, all other persons did.

Doer, doo'er, one who performs or achieves [something].
As an auxiliary, the verb do, is chiefly used in asking questions, in which case it stands before its noun, as do you wish to ride this morning?

§ As a representative verb "Do" acts the part of a pronoun, and stands for any antecedent question asked with the auxiliary, as "does Caesar come forth to-day?" "Yes, he does" [understand come forth to-day].

§ Occasionally it is used for the sake of emphasis, as I do very much wish to go.

§ In poetry it is used with the present and past tenses merely to help the metre or the rhyme.

Doings, doo'ingz, behaviour. Pretty doings, very censurable conduct.

Done, dun, achieved, finished. Done with [it], finished with it, want it no longer.

Done up, quite exhausted.

To do for [him], to manage, (threateningly) try to ruin.

To do away, to erase.

To do with [it], to employ or use [it].

To do up, to pack up, to tie together.

How do you do? How are you in health, how do you thrive? A corruption of How do you do? [dugæn], to thrive]. (Equal to the Latin valeo.) The full question is, How is it that you do thrive [in health]?
Old English ic dë ð, thi dën, he dëth, plur. döth; past ic dyde thi dydest, he dyde, plur. dydon; past part. gedöñ; Infinitive döñ.
Dugæn, to thrive, makes past döhtæ, later form dowed, Scotch dow.

Do., pronounce ditto, of which it is a contraction. Used in bills and account books to save repetition. It means the "same as the foregoing." (See Ditto.)

Do (to rhyme with no); the note C in Music.

Docile, dö'sile or dös'ile, tractable; docility, dö'sil'i-ty.

French docile, docilité; Latin docētis, docilias.
Dock, a place for ships, a place where persons under trial stand in a law-court, a plant, to cut off; docked, dok't, curtailed; dock'ing. Dock'-age (2 syl.), charge for the use of a dock.

Old English docee (for ships); French dock; German docke.

"Dock" (a plant), Latin daucus; Greek daunbos. This word ought to be spelt dauc or daub (not dock).

"Dock" (to curtail), Welsh tocaw, to clip; toci, something clipped; German docken.

Docket, dōk'.ēt, a ticket, a label; dock'et-ed, dock'et-ing. To "docket" goods is to mark the contents on a label or set them down in a book, to summarise.

Welsh tocyn, a ticket; tocymiad, a ticketing; tocynu, to ticket.

Doctor, dōk'.tôr (not doctor, Rule xxxvi.), fem. doctor-essa or doc'tress; doc'torate, possessing the degree of doctor; doctor-ship (-ship Old Eng. suffix "tenure" of office or degree); doc'tor, to give medicine in illness, to adulterate, to falsify; doc'tored (2 syl.), doc'tor-ing.

Doctor of Divinity, plu. doctors of divinity (Rule liii.).

Latin doctor, doctus, one instructed (doceo, supine doctuin).

Doctrine, dōk'.trrn, a tenet, what is taught; doctrin-al, dōk'.tri.näl (not dōk.tri.näl), pertaining to doctrine, containing doctrine; doctrinal-ly.

French doctrine, doctrinal; Latin doctrina, theory, learning.

Document, dōk'kum.ént, a record; doc'ument-al; documentary, dōk'kum.en.tar.y, certified in writing.

French document; Latin dōcumen, dōcumentum (docceo, see above).

Dodder, a parasitic weed. (German dotter.)

Dodge (1 syl.), a quibble, an artifice, to track, to evade, to quibble; dodged' (1 syl.), dodg'-ing, dodg'-er, one who dodges.

Old Eng. doég-at, sly, doég[elian], to act slyly, doég[lian], to hide.

Doe, dō (to rhyme with no), the female of a buck, also a gender-word, as doe rabbit, (male) buck rabbit, doe hare, (male) buck hare. (Old English dá. See Buck.)

Doff (Rule v.), to take off; doffed (1 syl.), doff'-ing.

A contraction of do-off; similarly "don"="do-on, "dup"="do-up.

Dog, either male or female; bitch, only a female dog; dogg'-ish, churlish, like a dog (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is diminutive), doggish-ly, doggish-ness; dogged, dog'.ged, sullenly, self-willed.

Dog, to track; dogged (1 syl.), dogg'-ing (Rule i.)

Dog-cart, a one-horse cart with a box behind for dogs.

Dog-fly, a fly very troublesome to dogs.

Dog-louse, a louse which infests dogs.

Dog-star, the Latin cânićula (dim. of cânis, a dog).

Dog teeth, the eye-teeth of man, resembling dogs' teeth.
Dog-weary, tired as a dog after a chase.
Dog’s-bane, a plant supposed to be fatal to dogs.
Dog’s tail, a grass, the spikes of which resemble a dog’s tail.
Dog’s ear, the corner of a leaf bent down, like the ear of a spaniel, &c.; dog’s eared, dogz e’ard.

Dog-, meaning “worthless,” “barbarous,” “pretended.”
Doggerel, dog’ger.el, pretended poetry in rhyme.
Dog-Latin, barbarous or pretended Latin.
Dog-sleep, pretended sleep.
Dog-cabbage, dog-violet, dog-wheat.

Dog-hole, a vile hole only fit for a dog.
Dog-trick, a vile trick, only fit to serve a dog.

Dog’s-grass, grass eaten by dogs to excite vomiting.
Dog-rose, a rose supposed to be a cure for the bite of mad dogs (Pliny viii. 63, xxv. 6).
Dog-brier, same as dog-rose.

Dog-cheap, a perversion of the Old English göd-ceəp, (French bon marché), good bargain.
Dog-watch, corruption of dodge-watch, the two short watches which dodge the routine of the watches on board ship; that is, prevent the recurrence of the same watch at the same time.

Gone to the dogs, gone to the bad. The Romans called the worst throw at dice canis (dog), hence the word came to signify “ill-luck,” “ruin,” &c.
Danish dogge, French dogue (a bull-dog); Spanish dogo, a terrier; French doguin, a puppy or whelp.

Doge, doje, captain-general and chief magistrate of the ancient republics of Genoa and Venice.
Italian doge; Latin duces, gen. ducis, leader (duco, to lead).

Dogma, plu. dogmas, dog’mat.h, dog’.mat.hz, a tenet, an arbitrary dictum on some matter of faith or philosophy.
Dog’matic (noun), a dogmatic philosopher.
Dogmatics (Rule lxii.), dog’.mat.iks, dogmatical theology.
Dogmatic or dogmatical (adj.), dog.mát’.i.kül, dictatorial; dogmatical-ly, dogmatical-ness.

Dogmatize, dog’.mat.ize (not dogmatise, R. xxxii.), to assert dogmatically; dog’matized’ (3 syl.), dogmatiz’-ing (R. xix.), dogmatizing-ly, dogmatiz’-er; dog’matist, one who speaks upon matters of faith or philosophy dogmatically; dogmatism, dog’.mat.ism.

Greek dogma, dogmatiko, dogmatikōs, dogmatistès; Latin dogma, dogmatīco, dogmaticus, dogmatistès; French dogmatiser, whence, as usual, our error of spelling with s.
Doily, doil·ly, a small napkin used at dessert.

Dutch doek, a towel; in Norfolk a house-cloth is called a doek·ch and the cloth dwi·cl·ing.

Doings, doings, conduct, behaviour.  (See Do.)

Doit (1 syl.), the eighth of a penny.  *(French d'huiit.)

Dolce, dol·ch (in Music), sweetly and softly.  (Italian.)

Dolce far niente (Italian), dol·ch far· ne·en·te, agreeable idleness [sweet doing-nothing].

Dole (1 syl.), a share, to distribute in shares, to give grudgingly; doled (1 syl.), dol·ing (Rule xix.), dol·er.

Old English dol or dēl, a share, a portion.

Doleful, dol·ful (Rule vii.), dismal; dole·ful·ly, dol·ful·ness; dolesome, dol·sum, dismal, querulous (some O. E. suffix, "full of"), dole·some·ness (ness denotes abstract nouns).

French douleur, douleux, devile; Latin doleo, to grieve.

Dolerite, dol·er·ite (not dolorite), a variety of greenstone.

Greek dolerés, deceitful. So called from the difficulty of distinguishing between felspar and augite (its compounds).

Doll, a child’s plaything.  Contraction of idol.

Latin idōlum, an image; Greek eidōlon (eidοs, form or figure).

Dollar, dol·lar, an American coin = 4s. 2d. (marked thus $, meaning scūtum). The line drawn through the "S" denotes that a contraction has been made. For a similar reason lb (a pound weight librum), has a line through it.

German thaler = tōh·ler; Danish daler. (So called from thal a valley; the counts of Schlick extracted from Joachim’s thal or valley, the silver which they coined into ounce pieces. This money became standard, and was called valley-money or thalers.)

Dollman, dolmen.

Dolman, plu. dolmans, dōl·mänz, a long Turkish robe, the summer jacket of the native Algerian troops.

Dolmen, plu. dolmens, dōl·mênz, a cromlech.

“Dolman,” Hungarian dolnang; Turkish dolaman.

“Dolmen,” Celtic dol men, table stone. It consists of a stone superposed on two stone standards; French dolmen.

Dolomite, dōl·omite (not dolomite), a magnesian limestone. So called from M. Dolomieu, the French geologist.

Dolorous, dōl·or·ous (not dōlorus), doleful; dol·orous·ly, dol·or·ous·ness; dolour, dōl·lör (not dōler).

Dolphin, fem. dolphinen, dōl·fin, dōl·fin·ēt, a sea mammal.

Delphine, dēl·fin (adj.), applied to certain French classics edited for the Dauphin or eldest son of Louis XIV. (Our word is a jumble of bad French and Latin.)

French dauphin; Latin dolphin or dolphīnus; Greek dolphin.
AND OF SPELLING.

Dolt, a blockhead; dolt'-ish, stupid (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj, it is dim.); dolt'ish-ly.
Old English dol, foolish; doldrun, immersed in stupidity.
-dom (Old English suffix meaning "possession," "right," "dominion"), kingdom, the dominion of a king; freedom, the power or right of a free man; wisdom, the possession or property of a wise person.

Domain' (2 syl.) or demesne, dë.me'ni, estate in lands. "Domain" is also used for dominion, empire, in which sense demesne is never employed.
French domaine; Old French domäne; Latin dominium, lordship (dominus, lord and master).
Demesne is de.me~san [maison], a house, and was applied to the manor-house and its lands, kept by the lord for his own use.

Dome (1 syl., rhymes with home). Doom (rhymes with room), dôme, a cu'pôla; domed (rhymes with foamed, 1 syl.), fitted with a dome. Doomed (1 syl.), fated, destined.
French dôma; Latin dôma, a solarium or roof terrace, where persons went to sun themselves, a gallery on the house-top.

Domesday, dooms'.day, the day of judgment.
Old English dôndaeg, judgment day.

Domesday-book, dooms'.day book. Two volumes containing a record of the estates and chattels of all the British dominions over which William the Conqueror reigned (1086). Kept in the Record Office, London.
Old English dômboc ("liber judicialis"), to which appeal was made in the Saxon times to settle disputed claims of property. Stow derives the word from domus-dei~ "book,; the book kept in the "domus del" of Winchester cathedral; but "dome-books" were well known before the time of the Conquest.

Domestic, do.mës'.tik, a house-servant, (adj.) pertaining to a private house, tame; domestically, do.mës'.ti.käl.ly.

Domesticate, do.mës'.ti.kate, to tame, to habituate to home-life; domesticated (Rule xxxvi.), domesticating (Rule xix.), domestication, do.mës'.ti.kay' shên.

French domestique, domestiquer ("domestication" is not French); Latin domestica (domus, a house and home).

Domicile, döm'.i.cile (in law), the place where a person has resided at least forty days.

Domiciliary, döm'.i.si.lë'ri, A "domiciliary visit" is one paid by authority in search of some person or thing.
Domiciled, döm'.i.si.lëd, located as resident.
French domiciliaire, v. domicilio; Latin domiciliium.

Dominant, döm'.i.nant, ruling, as the "dominant spirit," the "dominant party," the "dominant power"; (in Music) the "dominant" is the fifth from the key note: thus, in the key of G, the dominant is G.
Predominant, prevailing or most observable, as the "predominant colour," the colour which is most observable; the "predominant passion," the master passion.

Dominate, dom'inate, to rule. Predominate, to prevail or be most observable; dom'inat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dom'inat-ing; domination, dom'inat'shun.

Domineer, dom'ineer, to tyrannise over; domineered' (3 syl.), dom'ineer'ing.

Dominical letter, or "Sunday letter," the letter used in the "Prayer Book Calendar," &c., to denote Sunday ([dies] Domini, Lord's day).

French dominant, domination, v. dominer, domin'tcal; Latin dom'nan, gen. dom'nnatis, dom'nnatio, dom'nnalis.

Domino, plu. dominos, dom'nos (Rule xlii.), a dress used at masquerades. (French domino, plu. dominos.)

Dominos (not dominoes), a game. (French jeu de dominos.)

Dön, a Spanish title of rank. In Portugal dom.

Don, fem. donna. A "don," a man of rank; in university patois the heads of colleges, fellows, and noblemen, are called "dons."

"Don," Latin dom[inus]; "donna," Latin domina.

Dön, to put on. Done, dun, past part. of do, finished; don (to rhyme with on), donned (1 syl.), donn'ing (Rule i.)

Contraction of do-on; similarly "doff" is do-off: "dup" do-up, &c.

Donation, do'nay'shun, a gift; donative, do'nativ, a vested donation; a benefice given to a clergyman without the form of presentation, institution, or induction.

Donor, fem. donatrix, do'nor, do'n.trix, the person who gives; donee, do'nee, the person to whom a gift is made.

French donation, donatif; Latin donatio, donätivum, donátor, donä'tria, donäre, to give (dönum, a gift).

Done, dün, finished; agreed. (See Do.)

Donjon, dö'n jön, the keep or strong tower of an ancient castle, below which were the prison vaults. Dungeon, dö'n jon, a dark underground prison.

French donjon; Latin dominium, contracted to dom'jum, the apartment of the dominus or master. Ducange gives the Celtic dön, a fortified place, whence dun-ion. Old French dognon, donjon.

Donkey, plu. donkeys (Rule xlv.), dön'.ky, dön'.kiz, corruption of dunkey (-ey diminutive), the little dun [animal]. Similarly jock-ey, little Jack; monk'-ey, &c.

Donna, dön'mah, fem. of don (q.v.) Donor, dön'or, one who makes a gift. (See Donation.) Prima donna, prö'.mah dön'mah, the best lady performer in any specific public line, as the "prima donna" of the opera.
AND OF SPELLING.

Doom (1 syl., rhymes with room), judgment. Döme (1 syl., rhymes with home), a cu'pöia.

Doom, to judge, to destine; doomed (1 syl.), doom'ing.

Doomsday, doomz'.day, the last or judgment-day.

Old English döm, trial, judgment; dömdeg, judgment-day.

Door, dör (not dôr) (rhymes with floor, core, gore, not with poor = po'or, nor with for). See below.

Old English dör, a door, a gate; German thür; Greek thura.

-dor (Spanish suffix = Latin -tor), an agent.

Dor or dorr, dör (rhymes with or, nor), an insect.

Old English dora, a drone-bee, a dor:beetle. (See Door.)

Doree, or John Dory, dör'.y, a fish.

Either the French jaune dorée (yellow gilt), from its golden lustre, or the Gascon jaun dorée (the golden cock), or sea-chicken. According to one tradition it was the fish with the stater caught by St. Peter; by another tradition that fish was a haddock.

Dormant, dör'.mánt, latent, suspended: a "dormant peerage" is one in abeyance; dormancy, dör'.män.cy.

Dormer-window, dör'.mer win'.dow, an attic window placed in the roof, and lighting a bed-room.

Dormitory, plu. dormitories, dör'.mi.tö.ríz (Rule xlv.), a cubicle, the sleeping compartment.

("Dormant" should be dormient or dormitant.)

Latin dormiens, gen. dormientis and dormitans, gen. dormitantis, dormitorium, v. dormio, frequentative dormito, to sleep.

Dormouse, plu. dormice, dör'.mouse, dör'.mice.

French dormeuse, the sluggard [animal]. It resembles a mouse, whence the corruption, and is torpid in winter.

Dorsal, dör'.sål, pertaining to the back, as the dorsal fin of a fish; dorsiferous, dör.sif'.e.rus (Botany), applied to ferns which bear fructification on the backs of the fronds.

French dorsal; Latin dorsualis, dorsum, the back.

Dose, doze, does, does, doss.

Dose, döce, plu. doses (2 syl., Rule xxxiv.), a quota of medicine, to give in doses, to give to satiety: dosed (rhymes with boast, coast), drenched, physicked; dos-ing, doce'.ing (Rule xix.), dös-er, döce'-er.

Dözé (rhymes with those, rose), to slumber; dözéd (1 syl.); doz-ing, döz'.e.ing (Rule xix.); doz-er, döz'-er.

Does, döz, plu. of doe, the female of the fallow deer.

Does, düz, the third per. sing. of Do, q.v.

Doss, döös, a hassock stuffed with straw [to kneel on].

"Dose," Fr. dose; Gk. dōsis, a thing given; Lat. dōsis, a dose. "Doze," Dan. doze; Old Eng. duwes, dull; Welsh duw, heavy, dull.

Dost, dōst, second per. sing. of do. A corrupt form of dēst.
Dust, dry and finely pulverised earthy matters.
Dōt, a point [as a "full stop," the mark above the letter i, &c.], to make a dot; dott'ed (Rule xxxvi.), dott'ing (Rule i.)
Dōt (in familiar language), a dowry, a dotation.
"Dōt" (a point), same as tot, a little thing; Dan. tot, a small bunch.
"Dōt" (a dowry), Latin dos, gen. dot(is), a dowry.

Dotage, dōt'age, second childishness. (See Dote.)

Dotation, dōt'ā'shun, money funded for some charity.
French dotation; Latin dōtātio, an endowment

Dote (1 syl.), to love fondly (followed by on or upon), to show the childishness of old age; dōt'ed (R. xxxvi.), dōt'ing, dōt'er; dōt'age, the childishness of old age; dōt'ard, one in second childishness (-ard, Old Eng. suffix, "one of the species or kind," dotard, "one of the doting kind").
French radoter, to dote or talk childishly; radotage, radoteur, one in his dotage. Welsh dotan and dotio, to puzzle, to confuse.

Doth, dōth, third per. sing. of do, now does, dūz, except in poetry. Old form ic dō, thū dēst, he dēth, plu. dōth all persons. (The substitution of s for th is post-Norman.)

Double; dōb'bl, twofold, to fold, to increase twofold; doubled, dōb'bl'd; doubling, dōb'bl'ing; doubly, dōb'ly; doubler, dōb'ler; double-ness.
French double, doubteur; Latin duplum (duo pleo, to fold in two).

Doublet, dōb'let, a man's garment of former times.
(This is one of our perverted French words. In French, a "doublet" is pourpont, and the word doublet means "a false stone," Rule lxii.)

French doublure (l'étoffe dont une autre est doublé).

Doublon, dōb'blon', a French form of the Spanish word doblon, a "double pistole."
(It would be more consistent to keep the Spanish form for Spanish words, and not to disguise them by French spelling.)

Doubt, dout, uncertainty of mind, to be uncertain in mind; doubted, dout'ed (Rule xxxvi.); doubting, dout'ing; doubting-ly; doubt-er, dout'er; doubt-ful, dout'ful (Rule viii.); doubt'ful-ly, doubt'ful-ness; doubt-less, dout'less; doubt'less-ly.

"I doubt not but [that] you are right," is the Latin form non dūbito quin...but "I have no doubt you are right" is also good English. The two ideas are not identical: the former phrase means "I have no doubt [notwithstanding all that may be said to the contrary] that nevertheless you are right.” The latter simply expresses the opinion of the speaker without regard to opposing statements.

A Latinised-French word. French douter; Latin dubito. We have borrowed the diphthong from the French, and inserted the Latin i, which is ignored in sound.

Douceur, a bribe for “place.”

(We use this word in a sense almost unknown in France. In French douceur means “sweetness,” and gratification is used for “gratuity.” Few Frenchmen, unacquainted with English, would understand such a sentence as: Faites cela, et il y aura quelque douceur pour vous.)

Douce bath, doosh bath, a shower bath.

French douche; Latin duōrcē, to conduct or direct. (The shower is “directed” to any part of the body, to relieve local suffering.)

Dough, dōw (to rhyme with grow, low), bread, &c., before it is cooked; dough’-y, sticky, “stodgy”.

Old English dég or dāh. We have strangely combined both forms, without preserving the sound of either.

Douse (1 syl. to rhyme with house, mouse). In sailors’ language, to “extinguish instantly” [a light], to “lower suddenly” [a sail]; doused (1 syl., to rhyme with soused = sōvst); dous-ing, dōwse’-ing (Rule xix.)

Greek dūd (n. dusis), to sink, to set [as the sun, &c.]

Dove, dōv, a pigeon; dove-cot, dōv·cōt, a pigeon house.

Dove-tail; dōv·tāl (in Joinery); to unite by a “notch” shaped like a “dove’s tail”; dove-tailed, dōv·tailed; dove’-tail-ing (French en queue d’aronde).

Old English dūv = dvea; German taube.

Dowager, dōw·a·ger (dow to rhyme with now, not with grow), the widow of a person of rank; if the mother of the present peer, she is termed the duchess dowager of...; the countess: dowager of...; but if not the mother, she is termed “Louisa” duchess of..., or countess of...; both are referred to in common speech as the dowager duchess, the dowager countess, &c.

Queen-dowager; widow of a king, but not a reigning queen.

French douairière (douairièr) “veuve qui jouit du douaire,” i.e., a jointure or dowry. “Douair,” is a corruption of the Low Latin dotarium (dotarium). Latin dos, gen. dotis, a dowry.

Dowdy, dōw·dy (dow to rhyme with now), slovenly in dress; dow’di-er (comp.), dow’di-est (super.), dow’di-ly, dow’di-ness; dow’dy-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means “like”), dowdy-ness.

Scotch dowdie, a dirty sloven (daw and the dim., a little sluggard).

Dower, dōw’-er (dow to rhyme with now, not with grow), property settled on a widow for life, the fortune brought by a wife; dowry, dōw'ry (same as dower); dowered, dōw'ered, having a dowry; dōwer-less.

Dowager, dōw'ager. (See above, Dowager.)
French dounaire, corruption of Low Latin dotarium (dōtarium).
Dowlas, dōw'las (dow- to rhyme with now), a coarse linen cloth, used for towels, &c.
So called from Dourlais, in France, where it is manufactured.

Down, fine soft feathers, any fine hairy substance light enough to float in the air; (adv.) tending towards the ground, on the ground, towards the mouth of a river, into the country [from London]. Persons in the provinces go up to London; downward (adj.), tending to a lower position, as downward motion; downwards (adv.)

“Downward,” used as an adverb is grammatically incorrect. It should be either adownward or downwards, “a-” being an adverbial prefix, and “-s” an adverbial postfix. In the words [now] “adays,” [sleep] “anights,” we have the double adverbs, so that one of the signs may be omitted without affecting the adverbial form; accordingly we have in Old English degrees “daily,” nights “nightly,” and Shakespeare uses anight for “anights.”

Downfall (not downfal), downhill (not downhill) (Rule viii.); downfallen, dōwn, fall'n.

Down-train, the train from the provinces to London, or from some minor station to the chief terminus. Up-train, the train from London to the provinces, or from the chief terminus to some inferior station.

“Down” (feathers), German daume; Danish duun.
“Down” (adv. and prep.), Old English adān, down, adānward, downwards. It is the prefix a- which converts ān into an adverb, and this significant letter has been unwisely dropped.

Downs, dōwns (to rhyme with towns, clowns), large open hilly sheep pastures contiguous to the sea.

The Downs, a well-known road for shipping in the English Channel, near Deal in Kent.

Old Eng. ān, a hill; French dunes. It would have saved obscurity if we had made the following distinctions:—

Dawn (feathers, called down), or “dove,” French duret.
Adown (adverb), and down, preposition.
Dunes (the hilly sheep-walks and sand-hills).

Doxology, plu. doxologies, dox. o7. oS. (Rule xliv.)
French doxologie; Greek dōxolōgia (dōxa logos, glory words).

Doze, dose, does, does, doss.

Dōze (1 syl.), a nap, to take a nap; dōzed (1 syl.), dōz'-ing (Rule xix.), dōz-er; dōz'-y, dōz'-ness (Rule xi.)

Dose, dōce (1 syl.), a quota of medicine, to give medicine, to give anything so largely as to produce disgust; doses, dōs'ces (R. xxxiv.); dōsed (1 syl.), dōs-ing, dōce'ing (Rule xxxvi.); dōs-er, dōc'-er. (See Dose.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Does, doze, plu. of doe, the female of the fallow deer.
Does, düz, third pers. sing. pres. of Do (q.v.)
Doss, düs, a straw hassock to kneel on.

"Doze," Dan. doz; Old Eng. doze, dull; Welsh duyz, heavy, dull.
"Dose," French dose; Greek ἄσις, a thing given; Latin dōsis, a dose.
"Doe" (female deer), Old Eng. dú, a doe. "Does," düz (see Do).
"Doss," A. r. chass, a bundle of straw, dosser, a straw basket.

Dozen, düz'än, twelve [articles].

A baker's dozen, thirteen, i.e., twelve and a "vantage loaf."
French douzaine; German achtzehn, contraction of the Latin duo decem (duo 'cem), duo + decem, two + ten.

Drāb, a slattern, a brownish colour, a brownish cloth; drab, drāb'ish (Rule i.), -ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is diminutive); drāb'ish-ly.

Old English drabbe, a slattern, dregs, lees of wine.

Drachm, drām, the eighth part of an apothecary's ounce. A fluid drachm is a tea-spoonful. Contraction, dr. or drm.

Dram, the sixteenth part of an ounce avoirdupois (dr.)
(The distinction in spelling should be preserved, although the apothecaries' weight is sometimes written dram.)

"Drachm," French drachme; Latin drachma, the eighth (or rather seventh) of an ounce, 34 = 1 lb of 12 oz ; Hebrew drachmon.

"Dram" is the Italian dramma.

Draft, draught (both drāft, to rhyme with craft, laughed).

Draft, a cheque for money, a bill of exchange, a plan drawn in outline, a copy, an abstract; to transfer men from one company to another.

Draught, a stream of air, a portion of liquor drawn off, liquor drunk at one potation, a catch of fish, force necessary to draw, traction.

Draughts (no sing.), a game played with little flat round
"men" of two colours.

Draughtsman, drāfts-mān, one of the little flat round pieces used for "men" in the game of draughts;

Draftsman, one who makes a draft or draws a plan.
(These are the distinctions usually observed, but there is no rigid rule, and the two words differ only in spelling.)

Old English dra[gan], to draw; past drēg or drōh, past part. dragen.
The word draught is an absurd amalgamation of drōg and drēh, disguised by the diphthong au. The final t is a "weak" affix added to a "strong" verb.

Drag, to pull along, to trail; a cart, a harrow, a skid, an obstacle;dragged (1 syr.), dragg'ing (Rule i.)

Old English dra[gan], past drēg or drōh, past part. dragen.

Dragle, drēg'gal, to trail through the mire; draggled, drēg'- g'ld; draggling, drēg'ling; draggle-tail, a slattern who suffers her gown to trail through the mire; draggle-tailed, one dressed in a gown which has been trailed through the mire; also daggle-tail and daggle-tailed.

“Draggle” is dim. of drag, and “daggle” of dalg, to dangle, but the idea is not identical. Draggle-tail is one who drags the skirt of her gown through the mire; but daggle-tail is one who has her gown in jags or “dags” from being trailed through the mire.

Dragman, plu. dragomans (not dragomen; it is not a compound of “man”), an Eastern interpreter or guide.

French and Spanish dragoman; Italian dragomanno; Chaldean targam (targum), whence “targum” an exposition of the Old Testament.

Dragon, drag' on, a fabulous monster.

French dragon; Latin draco, gen. draconis; Greek drakon (from derko), to look at one [with fiery eyes]. In Welsh dragon is a commander, and gen-dragon a chief commander. Many encounters “with dragons” in ancient story were fights with Welsh dragons.

Dragoon, drag'oon, a horse soldier, to persecute with violence; dragooned’ (2 syl.), dragoon’-ing.

Dragonnade, a persecution under the “tender mercies” of dragoons. “The dronnades” were a series of religious persecutions by Louis XIV., “to root out heresy.” (The double n in “ dragonnade” is at variance with R. iii.)

French dragon, dragonnade. Originally a company of soldiers who fought on foot or horse, with arquebuses called dragons, because the head of a dragon was wrought on the muzzle. (The suffix -ade means “the act of,” “to act with.” Latin ago, actum, whence “cannou-ade,” “to act with cannon,” “dragon[na]de,” &c.

Drain (1 syl.), a sink or sewer, to draw off liquids, to empty, to leave dry; drained (1 syl.), draining, drain’-er, drain’-age, arrangement for draining off water, drain’-able.

Old English drenian, to drain.

Drake, fem. duck. In common speech, ducks and drakes are all called “ducks,” and as food both are termed “ducks.” “Duck” means the fowl that ducks or dives, the dipping-fowl. “Drake” is a contraction of duck-rice (d’rice). So in German ente is duck, and ente-rich a drake.

Dram, the sixteenth part of an ounce Avoirdupois. Drachm, dram, the eighth part of an apothecary’s ounce.

Drama, dray’-náh (is more usual than dráh-náh, and accords better with the derivatives), a theatrical piece for representation; dramatic or dramatical, dray-mát’i.k, dramat’tík; dramat’ical-ly; dramatis, dram’át.ize, to adapt to the stage (Rule xxxi.); dramatised (3 syl.), dram’á.tis-ing (Rule xix.); dramatist, dram’át.ist.

Dramatis Persona, dram’át.i.s per’só.ne (not per’so.ne), characters introduced in a drama or play.

French drame, dramatique, dramatiser; Latin dráma, drámaticus; Greek dráma, drámatikós (drao, to do or act).

Drank. (See Drink.)
Drape (1 syl.), to cover with folds; draped (1 syl.), drāp'-ing; drāp'-er, one who deals in cloth; drapery, dra'p.ē.r-y.

French drap, cloth, draper, a draper, draperie; Low Latin draparius; Spanish ropa, cloth; ropería, old clothes; ropaje, drapery.

Drastic, drās'.tik, violently purgative; drastics, drās'.tiks, powerful purgative medicines.

French drastique; Greek drastērīos, vigorous (draō, to accomplish).

Draught, drāft (to rhyme with craft, laughted). Draft.

Draught, a stream of air, a portion of liquor drawn off; liquor drunk at one potation, a catch of fish, traction.

Draughts (no sing.), a game played with draughtsmen.

Draft, a cheque for money, a bill of exchange, a plan in outline, a copy, an abstract; to transfer men from one company to another; draft'-ed, draft'-ing.

Draftsmen, one who draws drafts or plans;

Draughtsmen, drafts-man, one of the “men” or pieces used in the game of draughts.

“Draught is the amalgamated forms of drōg and drōh with t interpolated. Old English drag[an], to draw; past drōg or drōh, past part. drogen. “Draft” is a phonetic spelling of “draught.”

Draw, past drew, past part. drawn, to pull, to raise [water from a well], to suck, to delineate, to take out [money from a bank], to write out [à cheque]; draw'-ing, pulling, raising [water], &c.; (noun), a picture “drawn” with pencils, &c. A drawing room, the chief reception room to which ladies “withdraw.”

Drawer, draw'r; a tray which “draws” out of a frame.

Chest of drawers, a set of drawers including the frame.

Drawers (no sing.), draw'rз, linen or cotton trousers “drawn on” the legs, and worn as an under garment.

Drawer, one who “draws” with a pencil, one who “draws” a bill of exchange, &c. Drawee, draw'.ee, the person on whom a bill of exchange is “drawn.”

To draw back, to retreat, to move for the sake of avoiding.

To draw in, to contract, to pull in.

To draw near, to approach.

To draw off, to decant, to draw away, to retreat.

To draw on, to put on [gloves, stockings, &c.], to bring on, to write a cheque or bill of exchange on a person named.

To draw out, to extract, to prolong, to array soldiers.

To draw together, to collect.

To draw up, to raise, to array, to compose.

Drawn [battle or game], one in which neither side wins.

Old English drag[an], to draw or drag; past drōg or drōh, past part. dragan; Latin traho. “Drag” and “Draw” are different forms of the same verb.
Dray, a brewer's cart;
dray'man, dray'horse.

Old Eng. dreg, a drag (v. dreg[an]);
Lat. trahea, a drag, (v. traho).

Dread, drē'd, terror, to fear greatly;
dread'ed (Rule xxxvi.),
dread'-ing, dread' -er, dread' -ful (R. viii.),
dread'ful-ly,
dread'ful-ness, dread-less,
dread'less-ly, dread'less-ness.

Old English drē'd, v. drē'd[an], past drē'd, past part. drē'den.

Dream, drē'm (1 syl.), noun and verb; dreamt, drēn't (not dreampt), or dreamed (1 syl.), dream'-ing, dream'-ing-ly,
dream'-er, dream'-y, dream'i -ly (R. xi.),
dream'i -ness,
dream' -less, dream'less-ly, dream'less-ness,dream' -land.

German traum, v. träumen (träumersi would give us a new and useful word, "dreamery," the "stuff dreams are made of").
The Anglo-Saxon drē'm means "joy," dread'mless "joy'less."

Drear, drē're (1 syl.), gloomy;
dreary, dree'ry, dismal;
dreari-ly,
dree'ri -ly (Rule viii.); drearine's, dree'ri -ness.
"Drear" means properly that gloom and dismal feeling which comes over us at the sight of blood.

Old English dreór, blood, gore, dre6rig, bloody, gory; dreorilice, drearily, &c.

Dredge (1 syl.), to sprinkle [flour on meat], to deepen a river, dredged (1 syl.), dredg' -ing (Rule xix.), dredg' -er, a box for dredging [flour on meat].
Drudge, a menial.

"Dredge" (to sprinkle flour), Old English dred[an] or dreg[an], to dry.
The flour sops up the moisture: Greek tragō, to dry.

"Dredge" (to deepen a river), Old English drage, a drag, v. dreg[an],
to drag; Fr. dragging, draguage.
(The second -d is interpolated.)

Dregs (no sing.), sediment, refuse;
dregg'-y (Rule i.), muddy;
dregg'i -ness, dregg'i -ness;
dregg'-ish, foul with lees.

Old English dredgen, drawn (the part drawn off);
Danish dreg, rubbish;
Greek tregos, gen. tregos, lees of wine.

Drench, to wet thoroughly;
drenched (1 syl.), drench'-ing, drench'ing-ly, drench' -er.

Old English dren[an], to drench, past drencht, past part. gedrenched.

Dress, plu. dress'-es (Rule xxxiv.), raiment, to put on clothes, to trim; past. dressed (1 syl.), past part. drest or dressed (1 syl.), dress'-ing, dress'er, one who dresses another, a bench on which food is "drest" for meals; dress'-y, showy in dress; dress'i -ly (R. xi.), dress'i -ness; dress'ings, arctitectural ornamentation in relief, manures.

This is an example of a French word which has acquired with us quite a strange meaning.
To clothe oneself in French is s'habiller, and dresser means to trim trees, dress food, iron linen, garnish a table, &c., but not to "put on clothes (see Rule lii.).
Latin dirigo, supine directum, to set in order, to make straight (rego).
We have the familiar expressions "I must go and make myself straight," "I must put myself in order" (i.e. dresser).

Dribble, drī'bl, to oose in drops;
dribbled, drī'b'ld;
dribbler,
drib'bler;
dribblet,
a small quantity.
To pay in dribblets, to pay piece-meal in small sums.

French driple, drip, with dim. Old English drip(an), to drip, to distil in drops. Danish draabe, a drop.

Dried, dride (1 syl.); drier, dri’er. (See Dry.)

Drift [snow, sand, &c.] driven in heaps by the wind, covert meaning, to drive in heaps, to float down running water; drift’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), drift’-ing.

Old English drif(an), to drive; past drif, past part. drifen.

Drill (Rule v.), an instrument for boring holes, an instrument for sowing seed, military exercises; to pierce with a drill, to sow with a drill, to drill soldiers, &c.; drilled (1 syl.), drill’-ing, drill’-er; drill-sergeant, drill sur‘jént.

Old English thirll(an), to perforate; past thirlode, past part. thirlod, thirll, a hole; German drillen, to bore holes, to train soldiers.

Drink,

Drill (Rule v.), an instrument for boring holes, an instrument for sowing seed, military exercises; to pierce with a drill, to sow with a drill, to drill soldiers, &c.; drilled (1 syl.), drill-ing, drill’-er; drill-sergeant, drill sur‘jént.

Old English drill(an), to drive; past drill, past part. drillen.

Drove (1 syl.), a herd of cattle or flock of sheep on their way to market, &c.; drov’-er, one who conducts a drove.

Driving (Rule xix.), guiding horses, urging on, tunnelling from the shaft into the mine.

To drive a bargain, to make hard terms.

To drive a trade, to carry on a trade with energy.

Old English drivel(an), past driv’n, past part driv’-en.

Drivel, driv’-el. to slaver, to talk listlessly and sillily; driv’elled (2 syl.), driv’ell-ing (Rule iii. -EL); driv’ell’er, a dotard, one who drivels.

This is from the verb drip with -el dim.

Drizzle, driz’z’l, fine rain, to rain in fine drops; drizzled, driz’z’led; drizzling, driz’z’ling; drizzly, driz’z’ly*.

German rieseln, to drizzle, rieselregen, a drizzling rain.

Droll, dröl(e) (not dröl, R. v.), a wag, funny; -drollery, dröl’ëry (not dröl’ëry); drollish, dröl’eish, somewhat droll (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means “like,” added to verbs it means to “make”).

French drôle; German drollig, droll.
Dromedary, drōm-ēdār-y, the Arabian camel (with one hunch); the Bactrian camel has two hunches.

French domadaire (French -ma-, English and Latin -me-); Latin dromedarus; Greek dromas [kamēlos], the running camel.

Drone, fem. bee (both 1 syl.), the male of the honey-bee, an idler, to emit a humming noise; droyed (1 syl.), dron'-ing, dron'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), dron'-ish-ly, dron'-ish-ness.

Old English drōn or drēn, a drone.

Droop, to hang down, to flag, to languish; drooped (1 syl.), 'droop'-ing, droop'ing-ly.

Old English dropelēnd, to drop.

Drop, a liquid globule, the platform of a gallows, to fall in drops, to lower, to let fall; dropped (1 syl.), drop'ping (R. i.); droppings (noun), the excrements of birds, &c.; drop'-let, a little drop; drops, liquid medicine, mother's milk.

Old English dropa, a drop, v. dropētan or dropían.

Dropsy, drop'sy, a disease; dropsi-cal, drop'si-kāl (Rule xi.); dropsied, drop'si-dēd, diseased with dropsy.

A contraction of hydropsy, but the loss of the first syllable has spoilt the significance of the word.

French hydropsia; Latin hydrops; Greek hudrops (hudos ὅψ, water manifestation).

Drosky, plu. droskies, drōs'-ky, drōs-kīz (Rule xlv.)

Russian droskāt, a four-wheeled open carriage.

Drossy, plu. drosses, dros'-sēz, dros'-sēz (Rule xii.)

Dross (R. v.), refuse; dross'-y, dross'i-ness (R. xi.) (Old Eng. dros.)

Drought. Neither the spelling nor the pronunciation of this word is settled. The most common pronunciation is drōwt (to rhyme with out), but many call it draut (to rhyme with thought, taught).

Drought'-y, drought'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Another spelling of the word is—

Drouth, drouth'y, drouth'i-ness.

Sometimes we hear the words—

Dryth; dryth'y, dryth'i-ness (y long).

Old English drugath or drugath (changed to drouth; drouth). "Drought" is a double metathesis of "drugath" (first into drough, and then into drought).

In regard to the pronunciation: every other word in the language spelt in a similar way is pronounced -ort, and uniformity is desirable. We have bought, [drought], fought, nought; ought, sought, thought, and wrought.

"Dryth": -th added to adj. converts them into abstract nouns, as leng-th, bread-th, deep-th, dry-th.

Drove (1 syl.), a herd of cattle or flock of sheep on their road to market; past tense of drive; drōv'-er, one who drives cattle to market. (See Drive.)
Drown, drown (to rhyme with down, noun), to kill by submersion in water; drowned (1 syl.), drown’-ing.

Norman drůkne, to drown; German töten.

Drowsy, sleepy; drow’-si-er (more sleepy), drow’-si-est (most sleepy), drow’-si-ness (Rule xi.), drow’-si-ly, drow’-si-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); drowsing, drow’se’-ing.

(Dutch dromen, to doze.)

Drub, to beat; drubbed (1 syl.), drubb’-ing (Rule i.), drubb’-er.

Old English drōban, to beat; Greek lēthos, to thresh.

Drudge (1 syl.), a menial, to toil; drudged (1 syl.), drudg’-ing (Rule xix.), drudging-ly; drudgery, drudg’-er, ignoble toil.

Old English drgōtan, to toil; past drga or drea, past part. dregen.

(The d is interpolated for phonetic use.)

Drug, a substance used for medicine, an article slow of sale, to dose, to put poison into food or drink; drugged (1 syl.), drugg’-ing (Rule i.); drugg’-ist, one who deals in drugs.

French drogue, droguiste (‘druggeries, druggery, is a word we might adopt); Old English driu, dry. "Drugs" were once "dry herbs."

Drugget, a coarse woollen cloth. (This word ought to have only one g, it is not a "little drug," as the spelling indicates, but the French droguet.)

Druid, fem. druidess, drú’id, drú’id’ess, a Keltic priest; druid-ism, the rites and faith of the Druids; druidic or druidical, drú’id’ik, drú’id’ik.

Welsh derwydd (derw, an oak; derwen, oaken; udd, a chief; Keltic wydd, a priest; Anglo Saxon wit, a prophet or wise man).

Drum, a musical instrument; the tympanum of the ear, a package [of figs in a wooden cylindrical box]; a crowded reception, to beat a drum, &c.; drummed (1 syl.), drum’-ing (Rule i.), drum’-er, drum’-ma’jor, kettle-drum.

German trommel, a drum; Norse drum, a booming sound.

Drunk, intoxicated; drunken, given to intoxication; drunk’en-ness; drunk’-ard, one of the drunken kind (-ard Old Eng. suffix, "one of a species," "of the kind." (See Drink.)

Old English drinccan, past drencen, past part. drencen.

Drüpe (1 syl.), a pulpy stone-fruit; drüpel, drü’pel, a pulpy fruit with seeds like the raspberry and blackberry; drupaceous, drü’pay’shus, producing drupes, like drupes.

French drupe; Latin drūpa; Greek druppa, overripe olives.

Dry, dri-er (comp.), dri-est (super.) (Rule xi.), dries, drüze (1 syl.), dried (1 syl.).

Dry’-er, one who dries; dri-er, more dry; dry’-ing.

Dry-ly or dri-ly, dry-ness or dri-ness.

("Dry," "shy," and "sly," are uncertain in their spelling, but it would be well to reduce them to the general rule (Rule xi.).
Dryad, dry'ād, a wood-nymph.

French dryade; Latin dryādes; Greek ἄδε (drus, an oak.)

Duel, du'ēl, a plu. consisting of only two. Du'el, a fight between two.

Du'el-ist, one who believes in dualism;

Du'el-ist, one who fights a duel.

Dual-ism, du'ēl-izm, the system which presupposes the nature of man to be twofold, the system which presupposes that there are two reigning principles in nature.

Dual-istic, du'ēl-ist'ik, adj. of dualism, as the dualistic system of Anaxagóras and Plato, who taught that there are two principles in nature, one active and the other passive; duality, du'ēl'i.ty, the state of being two, &c.

French duel; Latin duātūs (dua for due, two); Greek duas, duality.

Dub, to confer knighthood, to give [one] a title; dubbed' (1 syl.), dubb'-ing (R. i.) (Old Eng. dūbb[an], to dub, to strike.)

Dubious, du'ēb.'i.u.s, doubtful; du'bious-ness, du'bious-ly; dubiety, du'ēb.'i.e.ty, doubt; dubitable, du'ēb.'i.tāl.'i; dubitably, du'ēb.'i.tāl.'i.bly.

Latin dubiētas, dubiosus, dubiētātis, dubius (dubium, doubt).

Ducal, du'ēk.'kāl, adj. of duke. (French ducat. See Duke.)

Ducat, du'ēk.'āt (not du'ēk.'kāt), a coin once common in Italy.

The first appeared in Venice, and bore this inscription "Sit tibi, Christe, datus, quem tu regis, iste ducatus." ["May this duchy [ducat-us] which thou rulest, O Christ, be devoted to thee."] The word "ducatus" gave name to the coin.

Duchess (not dutchess), duch'-ess, fem. of duke; duchess's (poss. sing.), duchesses (plu.), duchesses' (poss. plu.) French ducce, fem. duchesse (Latin dux, gen. ducis, a leader).

Duck, the female of drake; duck'-ling, a young duck or drake. (.ling, Old Eng. suffix, "offspring of," or simply diminutive). When sex is not an object of the speaker both are termed ducks, when killed for table both are called ducks.

To duck, to dip, to pop down for the sake of avoiding something; ducked (1 syl.), duck' -ing.

Ducking-stool, a stool once employed for the punishment of scolding and brawling women, also called cucking-stool (chuck, to throw), the stool "chucked" into the water.

Duck-legged, du'ēk.lēg'd, having short waddling legs.

To make ducks and drakes, to throw stones &c., on the surface of water so that they rebound repeatedly.

To make ducks and drakes of your money, to spend it as idly as if you threw it into water for amusement.

German ducken, to duck, to dip the head. A "duck" is the fowl that "ducks" or dips its head [in water]. "Drake" is a contraction of duck-rake or rica (d'rake or d'rie), the duck master. So in German ente, a duck; ente-rich, a drake.
AND OF SPELLING. 267

Duct, a tube for conveying [water]; aque-duct (not aquaduck), a duct for water. (Latin aque ductus, a duct for water.)

Latin ductus, a duct (v. dico, supine ductum, to lead or convey).

Ductile, dûk’tîl (not dûk’tîl), easy to draw out into lengths, like wire; ductility, dûk’ti’lî.ty.

French ductile, ductilité; Latin ductilis.

Dudgeon, dûd’jôn, a sword or dagger, inward displeasure.

To take [a thing] in dudgeon, to look on it as an offence.

"Dudgeon" (a dagger), German degen, a sword, a rapier.

"Dudgeon" (displeasure), Welsh dygen, grudge, malice.

Due, duty, owed. Dew, moisture of the air condensed. Do, doo, q.v.

Du’ly (du-ly, true-ly, and whol-ly drop the final e before the suffix -ly, Rule xviii.)

Due, duty, owed. Dew, moisture of the air condensed. Do, doo, q.v.

Dues, dûz’e, custom-house taxes, &c. Dews, plu. of dew.

French dû, past part. of devoir; Latin debère, perf. debit.

Duel, dûz’e’l, a fight between two. Dual, dûz’al, a num. in Gram.

Du’el-ist, one who fights a duel;

Du’al-ist, one who believes there are two principles in nature, one who believes man to possess a twofold nature.

Du’ell”er, du’ell’ing. (Rule iii., -el.)

French dûet; Latin duetum [dûetum].

Duenna, dûn’’næh, an elderly woman whose duty in Spain is to look after some young lady under her charge (Span.)

Duet, dû’et”, a song for two voices. Duetto, plu. duettos (Ital.)

Dug, the udder of a cow, &c.; the past tense of dig (q.v.)

Duke (1 syl.), fem. duch’ess; duke-dom (-dom = “dominion”);

duch’-y; ducal, dû’kal; du’cal-ly.

French dûce, fem. duchesse; Latin dux, gen. duxis, a leader.

Dulcamara, dûl’ka.mar’räh (not dûl’käm’’rah), the plant called “bitter-sweet,” or “woody nightshade.”

Latin dulcis amârus, sweet bitter. The stalks and root taste at first bitter, but after being chewed a little time they taste sweet.

Dulce, dûl’set, sweet [applied to sound].

Dulcify (-ci- not -si-); dulcifies, dûl’si’fizë; dulcified, dûl’si’fïdë; dulcify-ing.

Dulcimer, dûl’si.mer, an ancient musical instrument.

French dulcifer; Latin dulciferus, dulcis. (The two words “dulci-fuer” and “dulcify” might be introduced.)

Dulia, dûl’ia (not dûl’’liah, as it is generally called), the reverence paid to saints.

Latria, la.trï’ah, adoration paid to God.

Latin dûlia; Greek douleia or doulê, the reverence paid by a slave (doulos) to his master.

Latin latria; Greek latreia, the service of a free workman (latrise, a hired servant).
Dull, stupid, obscure; duller (comp.), dullest (super.); dullest (ard, Old Eng. suffix meaning “species,” “kind”), one of the dull kind; dullness, dull-ly (Rule v., b).

Dull, to make dull; dullest (1 syl.), dullest- ing.

Old English dol, foolish, doltic, dully; Welsh dowl, stupid.

Duly, dūl-ly, fitly (see Duce). Dully, dūl-ly, stupidly (see Dull).

Dumb, dūm -ly (b silent), mute, wanting the power of speech;

Dumb-animals, all quadrupeds are so termed in contrast to man, who is a “speaking animal.”

Dumb-ly, dūm'-ly; dumb'-ness, dūm'-ness.

Dumb-show, signs and gestures without words.

Dumb-waiter, a piece of furniture.

Dumfound’er (without b), to strike dumb with amazement; dumfound’ered (3 syl.), dumfound’er-ing.

Dummy, plu. dummies, dūm'miz, one who is dumb, an empty bottle. In three-handed whist, the hand exposed is called “dummy,” and in French mort.

(Either the “b” should be struck out of “dumb,” or it should be retained throughout. It is rather remarkable that “dumbness” has no “b” in the Anglo-Saxon dumnys.)

Old English dumb, dumnys, dumbess; German dumm.

Dumps, a fit of the sullen; dump-ish, rather stupid and sullen; dump’ish-ly, dump’ish-ness.

Norse dump, dull; German dumm, stupid, sottish; dumpf, dull.

Dumpy, dūn’py, squat, short.

Dumpy-dumpy, any person or thing small and thick-set.

Dumpling, dūm’pling, dough leavened with yeast and boiled. Heavy or Suffolk dumplings have no yeast. There are several varieties.

Norse dump, low, squat. (b) thumb, the short squat finger, called “dumpy.” Anglo-Saxon thūma; German däumen.

Dun, a brown colour, one who importunes a creditor for payment, to din, to importune for payment; dunn-ing (Rule i.), rather brown (ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means “like”).

Dun (a.), dunned (1 syl.), dunn’-ing (Rule i.)

Dune (1 syl.), a sand hill near the sea-coast.

Old English dun, a black-brown colour; dunung, a noise; dūn[ian], to make a noise; dūn, a hill.

Dunce (1 syl.), a dolt; one backward in book-learning.

Dunars, disciples of Dunæ Scotus, the schoolman, who clamoured against “the new learning” which was fatal to the quiddities of Dunsery. The new school called those who opposed them dunars, corrupted to dunes; German duns, a dunce.
Dunderhead, dunder-headed; dunderhead-ed.
Norse tung, tunt, heavy, slow, lumpish, which enters into composition with hand, head, heart, speech, hearing, &c., &c.
Dune (1 syl.), a sand-hill near the sea-coast. (Old Eng. dún.)
Dung (noun and verb), dunged (1 syl.), dung-ing, dung-y, dunghill (double l, Rule viii.) (Old Eng. dung.)
Dungeon, dü'n jün, a dark dismal prison, underground; donjon, the strong keep of an ancient castle.
The prison of the ancient castles was under the donjon (q.v.)
Dunned (1 syl.), dunning, &c. (See Dun.)
Duodecimal, du'o.des'ə.məl (adj.), computing by twelves; duodecimals, cross multiplication, each lower denomination being the twelfth of the one next higher, just as a penny is the twelfth of a shilling; duodecimal-ly.
Duodecimo, plu. duodecimos (not duodecimoses, Rule xiii.), du'o.des'ə.ə.moze, the size of a book in which each sheet is folded into twelve leaves.
French duodecimal; Italian duodecimo; Latin dúŏdēcimus (due + decon, two + ten).
Duodenum, du'o.dee'num (not duod'e.ə.num, an intestine about twelve fingers long, in the human body; duodenal, du'o.dee'nal (adj.); duodenitis, du'o.de.ni'.tis, inflammation of the duodenum (-itis, Gk. suf., inflammation).
Dup, [the door] to open, past dupt or dupped (1 syl.), dupping.
"Then up he rose... dupped the chamber door,
[And] let in the maid..."—Ham. iv. v.
"Dup" is Ang. Sax. do-yp, "do-open," or do-up, lift up [the latch].
Dupe (1 syl.), one deceived, to cheat; duped (1 syl.), dúp'-ing (Rule xix.), dúp'-er, dúp'-ery.
French dupe, v. duper; Latin duplex, wily ("Cursus duplicis per mare Ulyssae," Hor. Od., 1. 6, 7, "of the wily or duping Ulysses").
Duplicate, dú'.pli.kət, a copy, a pawnbroker's ticket, to fold or double; dup'licate-ed (Rule xxxvi.), dup'licate-ing (Rule xix.); duplication, dú'.pli.kət.ən; dupl'icate, dú'.pli.ə.tʃər; duplicity, dú'.pli'.ə.tə.tə.tə.
French duplicata, duplication, duplicaté; Latin duplicatio, dupli-ca're, supine duplicatūm, duplicitās.
Durable, dú'.ra.ðət, lasting; dú'rable-ness, dú'rably, durability.
Fr. durable, durabilité; Lat. dūrābilis, dūrāibilitās (dūrus, hard).
Dura-mater, dú'.rə ma'fə.tər (not mət.ər), the outer membrane of the brain. The inner membrane is the pia-mater.
Latin dura-mater. Called "hard" (dura), because it is more tough than the other two membranes of the brain. Called mater or "mother" from the supposition that all the other membranes of the body were "born" out of it, or were simply elongations of it.
Duramen, dú'ra'men, heart-wood. (Latin durāmen.)
Durance, \textit{dū'ran-se}, imprisonment. Endurance, tolerance.
Duration, \textit{dū-ra'\textsuperscript{.}shun}, continuance. (Not French.)
Duress, \textit{dū-re\textsuperscript{s}}\textsuperscript{,}, constraint, restraint of liberty.
Latin \textit{durāre}, to custom to hardship; Old French \textit{duru\textsuperscript{s}}; Latin \textit{dūrī\textae}, \textit{dūrī\textsuperscript{a}}.

\textbf{Durst}, \textit{past tense of dare}, to be bold to do. (See Dare.)

\textbf{Dusk}, dim light, partially dark; dusk'\textsuperscript{-ish}, rather dusk (-\textit{ish} added to adj. means \textit{rather}, added to nouns \textit{like}); dusk'\textsuperscript{-ish}-ly, dusk'\textsuperscript{-y}, dusk'\textsuperscript{-i-ly} (Rule xi.), dusk'\textsuperscript{-i-ness}.
Old English \textit{du\textsuperscript{e}sc\textsuperscript{a}}, to extinguish; \textit{past du\textsuperscript{e}sc\textsuperscript{ed}}, p.p. \textit{du\textsuperscript{e}s\textsuperscript{ed}}.

\textbf{Dust (noun and verb)}. Dost, dust, second per. sing. of \textit{Do (q.v.)}
Dust'\textsuperscript{-ed} (R. xxxvi.), dust'\textsuperscript{-ing}, dust'\textsuperscript{-er}, dust'\textsuperscript{-y}, dust'\textsuperscript{-iness}.

To bite the dust, to fall dead in battle.
To kick up a dust, to make a disturbance.

To throw dust in one's eyes, to bamboozle. The allusion is to the Mahometan practice of casting dust into the air for the sake of "con founding" the enemies of the faith. "When the English king pursued the Imam who had stolen his daughter for Allah, Allah threw dust in his eyes to check his pursuit." \textit{A Gort Legend}.

"Dust," Old Eng. dust, dust\textsuperscript{e}g, dusty. "Dost," Old Eng. d\textsuperscript{e}st.

\textbf{Dutch (adj.)}, pertaining to Holland or the Netherlands, the language of the Hollanders.

\textbf{The Dutch}, the people of Holland or the Netherlands.

\textbf{A Dutchman}, plu. Dutchmen. "Dutchmen" is the definite \textit{plu.}, as two, three, &c., Dutchmen, but "The Dutch" the indefinite \textit{plu.} (R. xlvi. &). \textbf{Dutch-clocks}, German clocks.

\textbf{German Deutsche}. "Dutch clocks," corruption of \textit{Deutsch} clock.

\textbf{Duty}, \textit{plu. duties}, \textit{dū\textsuperscript{e}tiz}; du\textsuperscript{i}-ful (Rule xi.), du\textsuperscript{i}-ful-ly, du\textsuperscript{i}-ful-ness (R. viii.); du\textsuperscript{i}-able, subject to excise duty.

\textbf{Duteous}, \textit{du\textsuperscript{e}t\textsuperscript{u\textsuperscript{s}}}; du\textsuperscript{e}-ous-ly, du\textsuperscript{e}-ous-ness.
("Duty" and "beauty" have this change of vowel, for which there is no sufficient reason.)

French \textit{dé}, past part. of \textit{devoir}; Latin \textit{dēveo}.

\textbf{Duumvir}, \textit{plu. duumvirs or duumviri, du\textsuperscript{e}m\textsuperscript{.}verz or du\textsuperscript{e}m\textsuperscript{.}\textsuperscript{.}vi\textsuperscript{.}ri\textsuperscript{,}. In ancient Rome, the supreme magistracy vested in two men; duumvirate, du\textsuperscript{e}m\textsuperscript{.}vi\textsuperscript{.}rate, the form of government or office of a duumvir; duum\textsuperscript{e}m\textsuperscript{.}vir\textsuperscript{al}.\textit{Latin duumvir, plu. duumviri, duumvir\textsuperscript{a\textsuperscript{.}}\textsuperscript{tis}, duumvir\textsuperscript{a\textsuperscript{.}}\textsuperscript{tus}.}

\textbf{Dwarf}, \textit{plu. dwarfs} (not dwarves, Rule xxxix.), dwarf'\textsuperscript{-ish} (-\textit{ish} added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), dwarf'\textsuperscript{-ish}-ly, dwarf'\textsuperscript{-ish}-ness; dwarf'\textsuperscript{-ing}, keeping small; dwarf\textsuperscript{e}d (not dwarf\textsuperscript{e}d), hindered from growing.

Old English \textit{du\textsuperscript{e}corh or du\textsuperscript{e}c\textsuperscript{ory}}, a dwarf.
AND OF SPELLING.

Dwell (Rule v.), past dwelt, past part. dwelt, to live, to abide; dwell'ing, living, abiding, a house, a residence; dwell'er.

To dwell on [a subject], to continue talking on it.

Norse deole, to dwell, to tarry; dweler, a dweller, a loiterer. The Anglo Saxon dwel[lan] means "to deceive" (dwel an error).

Dwindle, dwin'dl, to diminish; dwin'dled (2 syl.), dwin'dling.

Old Eng. dwin[an], to pine away, to dwindle; past dwain, p.p. dwinen.

Dwt., pronounced penny-weight. It is D (penny, denarius), and wt (contraction of weight). Similarly Cwt., hundred-weight is C (hundred, centum), and wt for "weight."

Dye, to tincture. Die, to lose life. (Both di.)

Dyes, dyed, dye-ing (violation of R. xix.), dy'-er (from Dye).

Dies, died, dy-ing (Rule xix.), di'er (from Die).

Dyes, tinctures, third per. sing. of Dye.

Dies, plu. of die, a stamp, third per. sing. of Die.

Dice, plu. of die, a cube for playing "dice."

"Dye." Old Eng. dodg, v. dodg[tan], past dodgod, past part. dodgod.

"Die," Old Eng. dedd[tan], past deddode, past part. dedded.

"Die" (a cube), Fr. dé, plu. dés.

Dyke (1 syl.), a geological term. Dike, a trench, a mound.

A "dyke" is the material which fills up a fissure in a rock. Old English díc, a dyke; French dyke (in mines).

Dynamics, di'nám'iks, that science which treats of force acting on moving bodies. (All sciences terminating in the Greek -ika, except five, are plural, Rule lxi.) Dynamic or dynam'ic (adj.), dynam'ical-ly.

Dynam'eter or dynamometer, di'ná.möm".e.ter, a (mechanical) instrument to measure the relative strength-indraught of man and other animals;

Dynameter, an (optical) instrument for determining the magnifying power of telescopes; dynamet'ical.

Dynamite, di'nám.ít, an explosive agent, consisting of porous silica saturated in nitro-glycerine.

Fr. dynamique, dynamomètre; Lat. dynamis; Gk. dynamis, power.

Dynasty, plu. dynasties, din'á.stíz, a race of monarchs from one common head; dynastic, di'nás'tík (adj.)

French dynastie, dynastique; Latin dynastia; Greek dynastea.

Dys- (Greek dus, a prefix always denoting evil, opposed to eu-, which always denotes what is good).

Dysentery, dis'en.tér ry, severe diarrhœa; dysenter'ic.

Fr. dysentérie, dysentérique (double s, a blunder); Lat. dysenteria, dysentericus; (Gk. dus entéra, bad [state of] the bowels).

Dyspepsia or dyspepsy, dis'pép's.tíh, dis'pép's, indigestion; dyspep'tic, one who suffers from dyspepsia.

French dyspepsie; Greek dus pepēs, bad digestion (pepto, to cook).
Dysphagia, dis.fæg'.i.ah, a difficulty of swallowing.
Greek dus phagætæ, difficulty in swallowing.

Dysponeæ, dés.pn.œ.-ah, a difficulty of breathing.
French dyspneæ; Latin dyspneeæ, asthma; Greek dus pneon, difficulty of breathing.

Dysuria, dés.sù.ri.ah, difficulty of passing urine; dysuric.
Fr. dysuric; Lat. dysuria, dysuricus; Gk. dus ouria difficulty of urine.

E-:, Ef-, Ex-, in composition, means out of.
E- or Ex- means out of, hence
"Privation" or "pre-eminence";
'Tis ex- before a vowel, e-
The aspirates, p, q, t, s;
'Tis ex- before an f: but e-
With liquids, c, d, g, j, v.

-ea, -ea, -ia (in Bot.), denote a genus or division.
Every word (except eager and eagle) beginning with ea- is Anglo-Saxon.

Each, ëach, every individual of a number treated separately.
Each other: as "Be to each other kind and true," that is,
Each [one] be to [every] other one kind and true. "Each" is nominative case, and "other" objective, governed by to.
"It is our duty to assist each other," that is, It is our duty each [one] to assist [every] other [one]. (In Latin, alter alterum adjuvare.)

Eager, e'.gar, desirous; eager-ly, eager-ness.
Welsh eýgr; French aigre: sharp, sour; Latin acer, sharp, brisk.

Eagle, e'.g'l, a bird of prey; eaglet, e'.glet, a young eagle.
French aigle; Latin ãquilæ (ãquilus, a dun colour).

Ear, e'r, ere, hear, year, earing, ear-ring, hearing.
Ear, e'r, organ of hearing, appreciation of musical sounds, spike of corn, to form into seed corn; eared, e'rd; earing, e'r'-ing, forming into ears of corn, time of ploughing (as opposed to harvest).
"There shall be neither earing nor harvest" (Gen. xlv. 6).

Ear-ring, a ring for the ear. Hearing, perception of sound.
E'er, e'ér, a contraction of ever.
Ere, air, before in time, sooner than; erst, at first.

Hear, hér, to perceive by the ear.
Year, ye'r, a period of twelve months.
"Ear" (organ of hearing), Old English ãræ.
"Ear" (of corn), Old English ædr or æchtæ.
"Earing" (time of ploughing), Old Eng. æriæng, ploughing, v. æriæn.
"Ear-ring" (ring for the ear), Old English ædr-ræng.
"E'er" (ever), Old English æfer or æfre.
"Ere" (before in time), O. Eng. æor ær, (comp.) ærea, (super.) ærest.
"Hear," Old English hér(a)n or hér(a)na), to hear.
"Year," Old English gæor; German jahr.
AND OF SPELLING.

Earl, fem. countess, m., count*ess*.

Earl, the title and rank of earl (-dom, rank; estate, &c.)

Old English eorl. The title was first used by the Jutes of Kent.

The Norman-French count is no English title, although we retain the words county and countess. French comte, comtesse.

Early, ur.ly; earli-er (comp.), earli-est (super.), soon, before the time; earli-ness, ur.li-ness (Rule xi.)

Old Eng. dr, before, in time; aridic (adj.), early; arildic (adv.)

Old English *earn*ian or *earn*ian, to earn; earn*ung* or earn*ung*, earnings, wages. "Ur", Latin urna, a pitcher.

("Earnest" [money], ought to be ernes or eraest.)

"Earnest" (noun), Welsh ernes, a pledge.

Which is correct:

"Day and night are produced by the earth’s revolving on its axis," or

"Day and night are produced by the earth revolving on its axis"?

(In the former case, "revolving" is a verbal noun, not a participle, the sentence is Day and Night are produced by the revolving of the earth.... Here "revolving" = revolution, and would have been better with the old spelling revolving. Similarly we have the phrases, "by the preaching [i.e. preachment] of repentance," or "by John’s preaching repentance," where "preaching" is a verbal noun. The second example is not incorrect, but it is less idiomatic, and more German than English. [The] earth-revolving-on-its-axis being one word. The former is decidedly to be preferred.)

Earwig, *er*wig, an insect. (Old Eng. eär wigga, ear [shaped] insect. The hind wings being in shape like the human ear.)

Ear’wigg-ing (Rule i.), whispering slander to gain favour.

Ease, *e*ze, comfort, freedom from pain; easy, *e*zy; easi-ly, easi-ness (R. xi.); eased, ezd; easi-ing, *e*zing (R. xix.); ease*ment* (only five words drop -e before -ment, R. xviii.)

Easy, *e*zy; (comp.) easi-er, *e*zi-er; (super.) easi-est.

Old English *ed*th and *ed*thle, easy, (comp.) edthere, (super.) edthost, (adv.) edthe and edthelice; French oise.

Easel, *e*z*l, a frame with a shoulder, used by artists.

Old English esel, a shoulder; less likely esol, German esel, an ass.
East, ēst; eastern; easterly, ēst.ēr.lē.
East-ling, a native of the East.
East-ing, the distance a ship makes good in an eastward direction. The eastward (noun), the east direction.
Eastward (adj.), eastwards (adv.)
(The use of eastward as an adverb is objectionable. It is the final -s which is the adverbal badge.)
Old Eng. east (noun and adj.), eastern-ward, eastern wind, eastern and eastward, in the east, eastward, from the east, eastward.
East, ēst.tēr (noun and adj.), the season commemorative of "The Resurrection" of Christ; Easter-tide, Easter-week.
East'ing, the distance a ship makes good in an eastward direction.
Old English Easter, Easter-day, Easter-week; Easter-wine, Easter wine, Easter-mon day, Easter.
(April was the time of the annual Scandinavian festival in honour of the moon called "Eastar," "Eastre," "Easter.")
Easy, easier, easiest. (See Ease.)
Eat, past ate (not eat, nor ete), past part eaten; eat, ēte (1 syl.); eat'-ing, eat'-er, eat'-able.
Eatable, fit to eat. Eatables, things to eat or for food.
Edible, ēdībl, possible to be eaten.
("Eatable" means suitable for food; "Edible," possible to be eaten, but not ordinarily used as food.)
To eat one's words, to retract them. The idea is from Proverbs xxvi. 11.
Old English ētan, to eat; pres. tense is ēte, past ēt, past part ēten.
"Edible," Latin ēditus (ēdo, to eat).
Eaves (no sing.), ēvz, the part of the roof which overhangs the walls. Eavesdropper, a sneak who listens surreptitiously to what is said in private; eavesdropping.
Old English ēfes, eaves; v. ēfesian, to make eaves; ēfes droopa.
Ebb (noun and verb), (14 monosyllables not ending in f, l, or s, double the final letter: viz., add, odd; bur, err; but, butt; egg, egg; buzz and whizz); ebbed (1 syl.), ebbing. The reflux of the tide. The contrary of flow or flood, as ebb-tide, flood-tide, ebb and flow.
Old English ēbb or ēbe, v. ēbbian, past ēbbode, past part, ēbbod.
Ebony, ēbōnē, a tree, the wood of the tree.
Ebony, ēb.ōnize, to make black like ebony; eb'onisèd (3 syl.), eb'onis-ing (Rule xix.), eb'on (adj.)
(The "o" of these words is a blunder. It should be "e.")
French ēbène, v. ēbèner, ēbner, the tree; Latin ēbēnum, the wood; Greek ēbēnos, ēbēntos (adj.)
Ebriety. (See Inebriety.)
Ebullition, ēbul.īt'shin, the operation or state of boiling.
French ēbullition; Latin ēbullio, v. ēbullio, to boil.
AND OF SPELLING. 275

Ec- (the Greek suffix ek, before “e,” and in one example ec.centric, it represents the Latin ex.)

Ecarte, a.kar’tay (French), a game at cards.

Ecce Homo, ek’se ho’mo (not ek’ke), a picture of Christ crowned with thorns, when Pilate said to the people, “Ecce Homo” (Behold the man).

Eccentric, ek.sen.trık, strange in manner, deviating from what is customary; eccentrical, ek.sen.tri.kəl; eccentrical-ly; eccentricity, ek’sen.tris’.ti.

This is the only Latin word in which “ex” is changed to ec, but there are above thirty examples of “ex” before c. It would therefore be better to abolish this solecism, altho’ sanctioned by the authority of the Lat. “eccentricus.”

French ec.centric, eccentricité; Latin ex centrum (out of the centre).

Ecclesiastes, ek.kle.sist’se, one of the books of the Old Testament, also called The Preacher, from the introductory sentence, “The words of the Preacher,” i. 1.

Ecclesiasticus, ek.kle.sist’se.tik, a book of the Apocrypha, Ecclesiastic, ek.kle.sist’se.tik, a person in “holy orders”; ecclesiastical, ek.kle.sist’se.tik.al (adj.); ecclesiastical-ly.

French ecclesiastique; Latin ecclesiastes, a preacher; ecclesiasticus; Greek ekklesiastikos, ekklesiastikos (ekklesia, the church).

Echinus, ek’sinus (not ek’h’nus), the sea-urchin, &c., a mollusc.

Echinate, ek’i.nate, set with bristles. Echinite, ek’i.nite, a fossil of the chalk formation. (ate = “full of;” -ite (in Geo.) means “fossil,” “stone,” Greek lithos).

Echinordea, ek’i.nor’.de.ah, the family of radiata which contains sea-urchins, &c.

Echinoderm, plu. echinoderms or echinodermata, ek’i.no. derm, ek’i.no’der’ma.tah, a class of radiata resembling star-fish and sea-urchins.

Latin echinus, a sea-urchin; Greek ekhinos.

Echo, plu. echoes, ek’o, ek’o.zee (“o” slightly aspirated), Rule xlii. To echo, ec’hoes, ec’hoed (2 syl.), ec’ho-ing (Rule xix.); echometer, ek’.om’.e.tër; an instrument for measuring the distances and intervals of echoes; echom’etry.

French écho; Latin echo; Greek échó (échó, a sound).

Eclaircissement, a.kla’.sese.mah’n (Fr.) not eclairisment, the clearing up of a plot or any other romantic adventure.

Eclat, a’.klà’k (French), applause, renown.

Eclectic, ek.lék’.ti.k, one who adopts the best parts of different systems; eclectic or eclectical, ek.lék’.ti.kəl (adj.); ecletic’al-ly; eclecticism, ek.lék’.ti.sizm.

French éclectique, éclectisme; Latin eclectic, things selected; Greek eklektós (ek lego, to pick out).
Errors of Speech

Eclipse, ek.lip's (n. and v.); eclipsed (2 syl.), eclips'ing (R. xix.)

Ecliptic, ek.lip'tik, the apparent annual path of the sun through the heavens. So called because the moon to be eclipsed must be near this hypothetical path.

French eclipse, v. éclipser, écliptique; Latin eclipsis, eclipticus; Greek ékleipsis (ek leipo, to leave out).

Eclogue, pln. eclogues, ék.'log, ek.'logz, a pastoral poem.

(The French termination of this word is foolish, seeing we have discarded this very un-English ending in a host of other words, and "log" is all-sufficient.)

French éclogue; Latin ecloga; Greek ek'log, to pick out.

Economy, pln. economies, ekon.'om'iz, careful expenditure of money. Political economy, the way of ruling a people so as to increase their wealth. Vegetable or Animal Economy, the usual operations of nature in the growth, preservation, and propagation of vegetables or animals.

Econom'ics, the science of household management.

Econom'ic or economical, ek'kon.o.m'ik; economical-ly.

Economise, ek.o.n.omi'za; to manage household matters with frugality; economised (4 syl.), economising (Rule xix.), economis'er (Rule xxxI).

French économique, économiste, v. économiser, économies; Latin oikonomia, oikonomikos; Greek oikonomos, to manage a household; oikonomia, management of a house; oikonomikós, to oikonomika, economies; oikonomos, economist. (There is no such Greek word as oikonomize.) "Economy" is that frugal and careful expenditure of money which is shown in a well-managed household.

Ecstasy, pln. ecstasies (not ex- and not -cy, -cies). It is the Greek ek'hand stasis (a standing out of oneself). So apostasy is the Greek apo stasis (a standing off from the faith). Ecstasy, a trance, rapture, a fit.

(II is not the Latin "ex-", but the Greek "ek-", which is always written ec-. The last syl. is not -kis [-cis], but -sis.)

Ecstatic, ek.stät'ik; ecstatical, ek.stät'ik-l, rapturously, in an ecstatic manner.

The French forms of these words should be carefully avoided; they are extaté, extatique, part Latin and part Greek.

Latin estásis; Greek ekstasis, ekstatikós.

Ecumenic or ecumenical [Council], ek류운'mén'ik, ek. kü. mén'i.kül, a general [council of the Roman Catholics].

Fr. ecuménique; Gk. oikouméntikos (oikoumené, the habitable world).

Eczema, ek.'ze.mah, a skin eruption, without fever.

Greek ek zéma, a boiling out (ezo, to seethe).

-ed, the suffix of the past tense and past part. of verbs of the weak conj. Old English -ed, -ed, Latin -et[um] or -at[um]. In adj. it denotes the "subject of some action," as renoun-ed the subject of "renown."
§ When added to a word ending in -d or -t it forms a distinct syl., as aid-ed (2 syl.), pound-ed (2 syl.), fit-ed (2 syl.)

§ When followed by -ly or -ness, it generally forms a distinct syl., as confused (2 syl.), confused-ly (con.fused.ly, 4 syl.), blessed (1 syl.), bless-ed-ness (3 syl.)

Edacious, ed-a'cious, voracious; ed-a'cious-ly, ed-a'cious-ness; ed-a'cious-ty, voracity.

Latin eda'tius, edax, gen. eda'tis (gluttonous).

Eddish, ed'ish, aftermath, the grass which serves for pasture after the main crop has been removed.

Old English edisc, the aftermath, -isc converts verbs and adjectives into nouns. Ed is a corruption of elt[an], to eat, hence ed-isc or el-isc, food or [grass] fit for pasturage.

Eddy, plu. eddies, ed'diz, a whirl of wind or water, to form a whirl, &c.; ed'dies (third person singular, present tense); eddied, ed'did; ed'dy-ing.

Old English ethu or sjhu, a wave or flood (ethan or sjthan, to flow).

Edentate, plu. eden'tata, e.den'.tate, e.den'tay'.tah, animals like the sloth, armadillo, and anteater, which have no incisive teeth; eden'tat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), without front teeth.

French edents; Latin eden'tatum, extraction of teeth, eden'tatus, e[ex]dentes, without teeth.

Edge, noun and verb. Hedge, noun and verb.

Edg'-ing (R. xix.), making edges, edge-trimming, outside row; Hedg'-ing (Rule xix.), making or trimming a hedge.

Edged (1 syl.), having an edge, sharp; Hedged (1 syl.), inclosed with a hedge.

Edge-less, without an edge. Hedge-less, without a hedge.

To edge in, to insinuate something into, to get in;

To hedge in, to surround with a hedge.

Edgewise (2 syl.), not edge-ways.

Old English wis[an], direction, manner.

To edge on, a corruption of egg-on.

Old English eg[an], to incite, to urge on.

Old English eg, an edge; egged, edged, sharpened; Welsh hogi, to sharpen; hogiad, a sharpening; hogal, a whetstone.

"Hedge," Old English hege, a fence; hege-reve, a hedge-row. (The d is interpolated in both cases.)

Edible, e'di.b'l, capable of being made food; Eatable, fit or suitable for food. Edibles, e'di.b'lz, things which may serve for food; Eatables, foods.

"Edible," Latin ed'i, to eat; e'dilis or e'dalis, e'dalium, food.

"Eatable," Old English ef[an], to eat; and -able.

Edict, a decree, a proclamation. (Latin edictum, e-dico.)
Edify, ed′i.fy, to instruct; edifies, ed′i.fize; edified, ed′i.fied; ed′i-er (R.xi.); edification, ed′i.fikay′.shun; ed′ify-ing.

Edifice, plu. edifices (Rule xxxiv.), ed′i.fis, ed′i.fis.iz., buildings. Applied to large public buildings.

French édification, édifice, v. édifier; Latin edificatio, edificium, edificare (ades facio, to make a building).

Edile, ed′i.lé, an officer of ancient Rome; edile-ship, office of edile. (-ship, Old English suffix = "office of.")

Latin edilis. This officer had charge of the streets and public buildings, supervised the sewers, weights and measures, plays and processions; regulated the price of food, &c. (ades, sing., temple).

Edit, ed′i.t, to revise a book for republication; ed′i-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ed′i-ing.

Editor, (not -er), f em. ed′itress or ed′itor; one who revises a book for republication, one who controls the literary part of a periodical or serial; ed′itor-ship, office of editor. (-ship, Old English suffix meaning "office of.")

Edition, ed′i.sh′on, a reprint of a book. An edition consists of no definite number of copies. In novels about 500, in school books about 2,000, in popular reprints about 10,000, in newspapers about 20,000, while in books of doubtful sale 100 copies, would be fair average numbers. In large reprints it is usual to state the number of copies an edition covers, as "31st edition, 157th thousand."

French éditeur, édition; Latin édicio, éditer, v. édo, supine éditum, to publish. (Note—édo, to eat, has e short.)

Educate, ed′u.cat, to teach; ed′ucat-ed (R. xxxvi.), ed′ucat-ing (Rule xix.), ed′ucat-or (not er, Rule xxi.), education, ed′u.ka′shun; ed′ucation-al; ed′ucational-ly.

French éducation; Latin educatio, educator, educare, supine educatum, to teach (educare, to pilot forth).

It is curious to trace the ideas represented by words used to signify education. For example:

To edify (Lat. ades facio), to "make a temple" of the body.

To instruct (Lat. in struo), to "cram" or "pile up" in the mind.

To educate (Latin e-ducare, dūcātor), to "pilot forth" the mind, or guide it safely through the dangers which beset it.

To train (Lat. traho), to "draw" or "drag" out the powers.

To teach (Anglo-Saxon tēcan), technical education, "to show" or teach by "showing" how things are to be done.

To learn (Ang.-Saxon læran, lær), to obtain "lore" or wisdom.

To inform (Latin informo), to "form in" the mind.

Tuition (Lat. tueor), to put the mind in a state of "defence."

School (Greek) "spare time."
Educe, edus, to extract, to bring to light; educed (2 syl.), educing (Rule xix.).

Latin educere (not the same verb as "educate," educción) (e- and -ing to lead forth, to draw out).

-ee (Fr. suffix), denoting the object of some action: as legatee, the object of a legacy; payee, one to whom money is paid.

Eel, heel, heal, ell, hell.

Eel, ėl (1 syl.), a fish. (Old English ēl, an eel.)

Heel, hēl (1 syl.), part of the foot. (Old English hēl.)

Heal, hēle (1 syl.), to cure. (Old English hēl[an].)

Ell = l, a measure of length. (Old English eln.)

Hell, the place of future torment. (Old English hēll.)

Every word (except eager, eagle, and hearse) beginning with ce-, he-, hē-, and hē-, is Anglo-Saxon.

E’en, ēne (1 syl.), contraction of the adv. even.

-eer (Fr. suffix -ier, -ieur, termination of nouns), denotes one employed for or on a work, as engineer.

E’er, ere, air, are, ear, hear, here, hair, hare, heir, year.

E’er, air, contraction of ever. (Old English ēfere or ēfer.)

Ere, air, before in time. (Old English ēr, before.)

Air, air, atmosphere. (Latin aer, the atmosphere.)

Are, ār (to rhyme with far). (Norse plu. of Ang-Sax. beō.)

Ear, ēr, organ of hearing. (Old English eare and ear.)

Hear, hēr, to apprehend with the “ear.” (Old Eng. hēr[an].)

Here, hēr, in this place. (Old English hēr.)

Hair (1 syl., to rhyme with air), of the head. (Old Eng. hēr.)

Hare, hair, an animal. (Old English hara.)

Heir, air, the next male successor. (Latin hēres.)

Year, yēr, a period of twelve months. (Old English gear.)

-e (Latin prefix for ex-) before the letter -e.

Every word beginning with e- (except effendi) is from the Latin.

Efface, e-fās’ (not e-fāse’), to strike out, to rub out; effaced’ (2 syl.), effacing (Rule xix.), effacing-er, effacing-able (-ce and -ge retain the final -e before -able), effacing-ment (only five words drop the final -e before -ment).

French effacer, effasable; Latin ex facies, [rubbed] from the surface.

Effect (noun and verb), e-fēkt’ (not e-fect’), the result, the outcome of a cause, influence, to accomplish.

Affect, to assume, to move the affections;

Effects, chattels; in effect, really, in reality.

Effected, e-fēkt’ed, accomplished;

Affected, a-fēkt’ed, moved in the heart, artificial.
Errors of Speech

Effect-ing, accomplishing; Affect-ing, pathetic.

Effect'er, better effect-or; effect-ible (not -able).

Effective, ef.fect'.tiv; effective-ly, effective-ness.

Effectual, ef.ect'.tu.al; effect-ual-ly.

Effectuate, ef.fect'.tu.ate, to accomplish, to bring to pass; effectuated (Rule xxxv.), effectuating (Rule xix.).

Efficacious, ej'.fik'.shus, producing the effect expected; efficacious-ly, efficacious-ness.

Efficacy, plu. efficacies, ej'.fik'.shus.'z (R. xliiv.)

Efficient, ef.'fsh.end; efficient-ly, efficient-ness.

Efficiency, ef.'fsh.'en.'s; efficiency, ef'.fsh'.en.'sy.

French effet, efficace, effectuer, efficacité, éfficace; Latin effectio, effectus, efficacitas, efficax, gen. efficacis, v. effecto (ef [ex] facio, to make out of).

Effeminate, ej.fern'.i.nat (adj. and verb), womanish, feeble, to make womanish; effeminat-ed (R. xxxvi.), effeminat-ing (R. xix.), effeminat-or, effeminat-ely, effeminat-ness; effeminacy, plu. effeminacies, ej.fern'.i.na.'z.

French effeminer, v. effeminer; Latin effeminatus, effeminatio (femina, a woman).

Effendi (Master), a Turkish title which follows a proper name, about equal to our Esq.; as "Ali Effendi."

Effervesce, ej'.fer.ves', to froth up; effervesced' (3 syl.), effervesco-ing (R. xix.); effervescence, ej'.fer.ves'.sense; effervescent, ej'.fer.ves'.sent; ef'fervesc'-ible.

French effervescence, effervescent; Latin effervescens, gen. effervescens, effervescens, effervescens (incept. of effervescere, to grow hot).

Effete, ej.'feet', worn out, sterile. (Lat. effetus; fatus, offspring.)

Efficacious, ej'.fik'.shus.shus; efficacy, &c. (See Effect.)

Effigy, plu. effigies, ej'.fi.jje, ej'.fi.j'tz, one's representation.

To burn (or hang) in effigy, to burn (or hang) the image.

French effigie; Latin effigie, v. effigirére (fingo, to fashion).

Effloresce, ej'.flor.ves'.sent, flowering; efflorescence, ej'.flor.-rës'.sense. (sc- denotes inceptive action.)

Effluvia, plu. (the sing. effluvium is not much used), efflu'.vi.ï, exhala-tion, the disagreeable smells which rise from ill-drainage and putrefying matters.

Effluent, ej'.flu.ent; effluence, ej'.flu.ence.

French effluence, effluent, efflues; Latin effluvium, effluentia (ef [ex] flueus, flowing out from).

Effort, ej'.fort, endeav'our, exertion; ef'fort-less.

French effort; Latin ef [ex] foris, the strong [thing] put forth.

Effrontery, ej'.fron.tery (not e fron.'te.ry), impudence.

French effronterie; Latin ef [ex] fronte, out-countenancing.
AND OF SPELLING.

Eft or efet, ef.fet, a newt or small lizard.

Old English efete. In Sussex, &c., called efet by the peasantry.

Eftsoons (only used in poetry), soon, soon after.

Old English eft-sóna, soon after.

Egg, one of the 14 monosyllables (not ending in f, l, or s) with the final consonant doubled (Rule vii.)

To egg (followed by on), to incite; egged, egd; egg-ing.

"Egg" (noun), Old English eg; æges hwite, the white of an egg.

"Egg" (verb), Old English eg(t)ían, to incite.

Eglantine, eg.tán.tine, the sweet briar.

Fr. églantier, the tree; églantine, the flower; Lat. rosa eglanteria.

Egotist, ég.o.tist, one who talks about himself; egoist, ég.o.ist, one who believes nothing to be certain except that he himself exists.

Egotism, ég.o.izm, the habit of self-praise; egoism, ég.o.-izm, the faith of an egoist.

Egotistical or egotistical, ég.o.tis’tik, ég’o.tis’tik.kul, self-conceited; egotistical-ly; eg’tise, eg’otised, eg’otis-ing. French égotisme; égoïste; Latin ego (-ist Greek suffix “one who,” -ism Greek suffix “system.”

Egregious, egre’ge.us, supereminent (in a bad sense).

Egregious-ly, egregious-ness.

Latin egregiús (eg grég [lectus], picked out of the flock).

Egress, é.gress, act or right of departing. Ingress, the act or right of entering; eggression, é.gré.shún; ingress-ion.

Latin egressus; egresio, v. egrédior (é [ex] grádior, to walk out).

Egret, é.grét, a small white heron. (French aigrette.)

So called from the “aigrette” or plume in the head.

French égyptienne; Latin Egyptius, Egyptius; Greek Aiguptós.

Éh = a? interrogative of doubt. Is it not so?

Ah = r! exclamation of pain, surprise, &c.

Hey? What is it you say?

Ha, hah! take care. Ha! ha! laughter.

Heigh-ho, hay.ho or hi.hó! expresses weariness.

He! or he! he! expresses scorn.
Eider [down], e'.*d*er (not e'.*d*er), down of the eider duck.

German eider; French éder, édredon, eider-down.

Eight, ate, a number. At, ate, a river-island. At (1 syl.), past tense of eat. Hate, to dislike.

Eighteen, ate'.teen; eighteenth, ate'.teenth; eighteen-mo, plu. eighteen-mos (R. xliii.), ate'.teen'.moze. -mo is the last syl. of deci'-mo (ten) added to the English teen (ten).

Either, e'.ther. Either, e'.ther (a volatile liquid),

Either, e'.ther, one of two, correlative of or.

Neither, ne'.ther, not either, correlative of nor.

Each, etch, both one and the other of two articles.

§ It is wrong to use either when the choice lies between more than two things.

§ Either you or I am wrong; Either you or I are wrong (?). Either you or I are wrong is the better grammar, that is, either you or I [we] are wrong [one of us]; but custom has sanctioned the rule, that the verb is to agree with the noun or pronoun nearest it: “Either you [are wrong] or I am wrong.” Similarly, “Either you [...] or he is wrong;” “Either he [...] or you are wrong.” In French, the same construction is observed with or, &c., as with and.

Ejaculate, *ej*āk*'.u.'l*āte*, to call out; ejac’*ul*ā*’*t*ēd (Rule xxxvi.), ejac’*ul*ā*’*t*ē*’ng, ejac’*ul*ā*’*t*ē*’or; ejaculation, *ej*āk*’.u.'l*ā*’shūn, vociferation; ejaculatory, *ej*āk*’.u.'l*ā*’*t*ē*’ry.

French éjaculer, éjaculation, éjaculatoire, éjaculateur.

Latin ejaculatio, ejaculăre (e jaculo, to hurl out).

Eject, to cast out; eject'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), eject'-ing, eject'-or (Rule xxxvii.); ejection, *ej*ēk*'.shūn; eject'-ment (in Law), a writ to recover possession of land.

Latin iectio, iector, iecto, supine iectum (e jacio, to throw out).

Eke (1 syl.), to add; (noun), a piece added to a hive to hoist it and increase its capacity, (adverb) likewise; ekes, ekz;

eked (1 syl.), ek-ing (Rule xix.), e'.king.

Old English ēdc, likewise; ēdro, an addition; ēd[an], to eke.

-el, -eel, (Latin el[īr*], belonging to, capable of: cru'-el, belonging to the cru'[de], raw or fierce; höt'-el, belonging to the höt or host; genteel, belonging to the gentry [gens].

-el (Latin el[īr*] diminutive), lib'-el, a little book (liber, a book).

Elaborate, *el*āb*’.o.'rate* (adj. and verb), highly finished, complicated, to bestow much labour on; elab’*or*ā*’t-ed (R. xxxvi.), elab’*or*ā-’*t*ē*’ng (R. xix.) elab’*or*ā*’*t*ē*’or, elab’*or*ā-’*t*ē*’ness (R. xvii.); elab’*or*ā*’*t*ē*’ly; elab’*or*ā*’*t*ē*’ion, *el*āb*’.o.’ray’shūn.

Fr. élaborer, élaboration; Lat. élab’*or*ā*’*t*ō*’, élab’*or*ā*’*t*ō*’, élab’*or*ā*’*t*ō*’r.
AND OF SPELLING.

Elain or Elaine, e.lay'n (3 syl., not e.lane' nor e.lay'ine), the liquid principle of oils and fats. Also written Olein and Oleine, or e.in. The fatty principle is Stearine, sté'a.rin.

"Elain," Greek elaion, olive-oil ( elaia, the olive-tree).

"Olein," Latin oleum, oil with the termination -ine, which denotes a simple substance, as chlorine.

Elapse, e.laps, to intervene, to pass away; elapsed, elapst'; elaps'-ing (Rule xix.)

Latin elapsio, elábor, supine elapsum (e [ex] labor, to slip away).

Elastic, e.las'tik, resilient; elastical, e.las'ti.kál; elas'tical-ly; elasticity, e.las'tis'ti.ty, resiliency.

French élastique, élasticité; Greek elaunó, to draw out.

Elate, e.late', to puff up; elá't-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elá't-ed-ly, elá't-ing (Rule xix.); elation (not elasion), e.lay'shun (not a French word), joy and pride of success.

Latin elatio (cf [ex] fero, suf. e [ex] lárum, to carry out [of oneself]).

Elbow, e.l'bow, the joint of the arm between the shoulder and wrist, a turn like the arm bent, to push or jostle;

Elbowed, e.l'bow'ded; el'bow-ing; el'bow-room, ample room.

At your elbow, close at hand.

Out at elbows, shabby, reduced in circumstances.

Old Eng. elboga, the elbow (elno boga, bow of the arm; Lat. ulna).

Elder, e.l' dér, a tree, a ruler of the Presbyterian church, a senior.

Eld, old. Eld, an old person (noun); old, aged (adj.)

El' der, prior in years; Older, more aged.

El'dest, first born; Oldest, most aged.

"Elder" [tree], corruption of Ellar. Old Eng. elbora, the elder-tree.

"Elder" (senior). Old English eald, old; eldor (an elder), yldra (comp.), yldest (super.)

El Dorado, el dor'á' do or el dor'ay' do, a country of fabulous wealth. The country which Orella'na, lieutenant of Pizarro pretended to have discovered in South America.

Spanish el dorado, the golden [country].

Elecampane, e.l'e.ká'm.pain, the plant helé'nium. So called, says Pliny 21, 33, because it is feigned to have sprung from Helen’s tears. The French call it oël de cheval.

Latin inula (for helé'niu'm) campána, Helen’s bell-flower.
Elect, elkt, to choose. The elect, those who are chosen.

Elect-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elect-ing, elect-or, fem. electress, one who has a right of electing, one elected to rule in a German electorate; elector-al.

Election, elk'shun; electioneer, elk'shun-er, to use exertion to promote the election of an M.P., &c.

Elect'ioneer-ing; electioneer'-or, one who electioneers.

Elective, elk'tiv; elective-ly; electorate, elk'tor-ate.

Elite, a.leet, the flower of society. (See Eligible.)

French election, electif, electorate, electeur, electress, elite.

Latin electio, elector, electus; electus, electress.

Electricity, *elk'tris'i*ty; electrical-ly; electrician, elk'tris'an, one skilled in the science of electricity;

Electrify, elk'trij; electrifies, elk'tri.fiz; electrified, elk'tri.fayd; electrify-ing (Rule xi.); electrifiable, elk'tri.fayd; electrification, elk'tri.fayd.shun;

Electrise, elk'triz; electrised (3 syl.), electrises-ing (R. xix.); electrises-or; electrification, elk'trizay'shun; electrises-able (these are French forms, Rule xxxi.);

Electrine, elk'trin, pertaining to amber.

Latin electron, amber; -ine (-inus), pertaining to.

Electrode, elk'trode, the direction of the electric stream.

Greek elektron and hodos, the road or way [of the electric stream].

Electrolysis, elk'trol'sis, decomposition effected by electricity. (Greek elektron and hasis, dissolution.)

Electrolyte, elk'trol'ite, a substance which can be decomposed by electricity; electrolytic.

Greek elektron and thomai, to be loosened or decomposed.

Electrophorus, elk'troj'rus (not elk'tro.jus), an instrument for collecting or condensing electricity.

Greek elektron and phoréo, to convey or carry [electricity].

Electroscope, elk'troskop; an instrument for taking the existence, character, and force of electricity; electroscopic or electroscopical, elk'troskop'i.kal (adj.)

Greek elektron and skōpéo, to survey, to examine [electricity].

Electrotype, elk'tro.tipe, a deposited metallic impression obtained by electro-galvan'ism.

Greek elektron tipos, a type or image [obtained by electricity].

Electrum, better electron, elk'trum, a natural alloy.

Electro-, -chemistry, -biology, -dynam'ics, -mag'netism, -metal'lurgy, -plating.
Electrometer, elık.trəm.ē.tər, an instrument for measuring the tension or quantity of electric fluid; elektrométrical.

Greek ηλεκτρόν and μετρόν, a metre or measure [of electricity].

French électrique, électricité, électrisable, électrisation, électriser, électromètre, électrophore, électroscope; Latin electrum; Greek ηλεκτρόν, amber. Thalès (B.C. 600) noticed the electrical property of rubbed amber in attracting small substances.

Latin electuarium; Greek ηλεκτρύχω, to lick up.

Eleemosynary, el.ē.e.mōs*.i*.ner ry (seven syllables, not six).

Latin eleemosynarius, eleemosynaria, an almoner; Greek ηλεκτρόμονας, pity (ηλεκτρύχω, to have pity).

Elegance, el.ē.γ.ανς; el.ē.gάν.t′ly; el.ē.gανς′icities (no sing.); el.ē.gάν.sinz, embellishments.

Fr. élégance, élégant; Lat. elegans, eleganta (elego, to pick out).

Elegy, plu. elegies, el.ē.gίς, a funeral or mournful song; elegiac, el.ē.jί.άκ (not el.ē.jί.άκ); elegist, one who writes elegies.

Elegise, el.ē.jίς (Rule xxxii.); elegised, el.ē.jί.sin′ed.

Fr. elegier, elegiaque; Lat. elegia, elegiæ (Gk. ηλεγία, elegiōs).

Element, el.ē.mέ.nent, an undivided or simple body; el.ē.mεntal, pertaining to first principles; el.ē.mεntary, rudimentary.

The elements (of Aristotle), fire, air, earth, and water; (of alchemists) salt, sulphur, and mercury.

Out of one's element, out of one's sphere.

French élément, élémentaire; Latin elementum, élémentarius.

Elemi, el.ē.μ.ύ (not el.ē.μ.ι.), a resinous substance brought from Ethiopia; elemine, el.ē.mίν, the crystallised resin of elemi sometimes used in lacquer.

French élémi; Italian, Spanish, &c., elemi.

Elephant, (male) bull elephant; (fem.) cow elephant.

Elephantine, el.ē.fάν.t′i:n, very large, pertaining to elephants; elephantoid, el.ē.fάν.t′i:oid or elephantoidal, el.ē.fάν.t′i:oid.āl, having the form of an elephant.

Elephantiasis, el.ē.fάν.t′i.ə.sίς, a disease affecting the legs and feet which swell and look rough like an elephant's.

French éléphant, éléphantiasis, elephantin; Latin elephantidus, éléphantidēs, elephantus; Greek élēphos.

Elevate, el.ē.vά.tε, to raise up; el.évά.ι.έ (Rule xxxvi.), el.évά.ι.ι.γ (Rule xix.), el.évά.ι.ο; el.évά.τορ; el.évατορy; elevation, el.ē.vά.τον′.shun, height, exaltation.

French élèver, élèvation, élèvateur, élèvaloire; Latin élēvātio, élēvare (ē levo, to raise from [a lower state]).

Eleven, ē.lév.en (a numeral); eleventh, ē.lév.entn (an ordinal), eleventh-ly (adv.).

Old English endleof, eleven; ēndlyfia or endfie, the eleventh.
Elf, plu. elves (not elfs). Nouns in -elf make the plural by changing -f into -ves, as "elf" elves, "self" selves, "shelf" shelves, "calf" calves, "half" halves, "wolf" wolves (Rule xxxviii.).

Elfin, əlˈfɪn; elfish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); elfish-ly, elfish-ness, elf-lock. Old English elf, plu. elfas, elfen; French elf and elfe, plu. elfes.

Elgin marbles, elˈgɪn (-gin as in "begin"), Greek, sculptures in the British Museum collected by Lord Elgin.

Elicit, əˈlɪsɪt, to draw out; elicit-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elicit-ing; elicitation, əˈlɪsɪtəˈkeɪʃn (not :French). Latin elicitation, elicio, supine elicium (e [ex] lacio, to lure out).

Elide, əˈlɪdə, to "strike out" a vowel or syllable; elid-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elid-ing (Rule xix.); elision, əˈlɪzhən. Fr. éluder, élision; Lat. elidio, elidēs, sup. elisum (e [ex] laco).

Eligible, əˈlɪdʒəbəl, suitable, qualified; eligibly; eligible-ness, əˈlɪdʒəˈbələs; eligibility, əˈlɪdʒəˈbiləti, suitableness. French éligible; Lat. eligibilis (e [ex] eligo, to pick out).

Eliminate, əˈlɪməˌneɪt, to cast out, to get rid of; elim'inate-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elim'inate-ing (Rule xix.), elimination, əˈlɪməˈneɪʃn, rejection, a getting rid of. French élimination, éliminer; Lat. eliminatio, eliminäre (e [ex] limen, to turn) out of doors.

Elision, əˈlɪzhən. (See Elide.)

Elite, əˈlɪt, the "pick" of society, the best men of the army. French élite. Lat. electus (e [ex] lego, to pick out).

Elixir, əˈlɪksər, a compound tincture; elix'ate, to extract by boiling; elix'ate-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elix'ate-ing (Rule xix.); elixation, əˈlɪksəˈkeɪʃn, decoction into tincture. Fr. élixir ("elixation" is not Fr.); Lat. elixir, elizāre, to seethe.

Elizabethan, əˈlɪzəˌbeθən, the style in vogue in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. (Chiefly applied to architecture.)

Elk, a moose-deer. (Old English elch.)

Ell, ɛl, hell, eel, heel, heal.

Ell, a measure of length; L, one of the four liquids. Hell, the place of future torment. (Old English hell.) Eel, ˈɛl (1 syl.), a fish. (Old English ël.) Heel, part of the foot. (Old English hēl.) Heal, ˈhɛl (1 syl.), to cure. (Old English hāl[an].)

Ellipse, plu. ellipses, əˈlɪpsəs, əˈlɪpsəˈsiz (not eˈlɪpsə; an oval figure. Ellipsis, plu. ellipses, əˈlɪpsəs, &c. (not eˈlɪpsəs, &c.) Ellipt'ic or ellipt'ical, pertaining to an ellipse; Ecliptic, əˈklɪptɪk, the apparent annual path of the sun.
AND OF SPELLING.

Elliptical-ly (not e.lip'ti.kâ'li). Ellipsoid, e.lip'soid, a solid figure formed by the revolution of an ellipse about its axis. (Gk. elleipsis eidos, ellipse-like.) Ellipsoidal, el'ips o'i'dâl, adj. of ellipsoid.

Ellipsograph, e.lip'so.grâf, an instrument for describing a semi-ellipse. (Gk. elleipsis grapho, to describe.)

French ellipse, ellipsode, elliptique, ellipticité; Latin ellipsis; Greek elleipsis, a defect (et leipo, to leave behind).

Ell (1 syl., not el'm), a tree. (Old English elm; Latin ulmus.)

Eluc'dation, el'u'si.dat, oratory; eloc'u'tion-ist, a teacher of elocution; elocutionary, el'o.kâ'nu.ary.

Elocu'ent, el'o.quent; el'oquent-ly; el'oquence, oratory.

French élocution, éloquence, éloquent; Latin elocutio, elôquium, eloquentia, eloquens, gen. eloquentis, v. elôquier, to speak out.

Elongate, e.lon'gate, to extend; elon'gate-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elon'gate-ing; elongation, e.'lon.gay'.shun.

French élongation (term in Astron.), the angle at the earth made by a line drawn to the sun and some other planet; Lat. elongâre (longus).

Elo'pe, e.lope', to run away with a man with the view of marrying him, without the consent of parents or guardians; eloped' (2 syl.), elôp-ing (R. xix.); elopement, élope'ment.

German entlaufen, to run away; entlaufung, elopement.

El' Quentin, el'oquent-ly; el'oquence. (See Elocution.)

Else (1 syl.), besides, otherwise, other person or thing; elsewhere. Old English elles, else; elles-hwer, elsewhere.

Elucidate, e.lu'si.date, to make clear, to explain; elu'cidat-ed, elu'cidat-ing, elu'cidat-ory; elucidation, e.lu'.si.day'.shun; elucidative, e.lu'.si.day.trv.

French éclüider, elucidation; Latin elucidatâo, elüdâtreu (lu, light).

Elude', e.lû'de', to evade, to escape; elû'd-ed (Rule xxxvi.), elû'd-ing (Rule xix.), elû'd-er, elû'd-ible.

Delude', to deceive, delû'd-ed, delû'd-ing, delû'd-er. Elusion, elû'.shun, evasion. Delu'sion, deception.

Elusive, e.lu'.siv, evasive; elu'sive-ly. Delu'sive, deceptive.

Elusory, e.lu'.sô.ry, unreal; elu'sori-ness, unreality.

Delusory, de.lu'.sô.ry, tending to deceive; delu'sori-ness.

French éluder; Latin clâsio, clâdère, sup. elâsum (lûdô, to play).

Elvan, el'van (in mines), a dyke of porphyritic rock crossing or interfering with the metal.

Elves, el'uz, pl. of elf. (See Elf.)

Elysian, e.lîz'.i.an (not e.lizh'.an nor e.lizh'.e.an).

Elysium, e.lîz'.i.wm (not e.lizh'.e.um), the abode of bliss. (The "y" shows the word to be of Greek origin.)

Lat. Elysium, elyssiu (adj.); Gk. elu'sion (bud, to loose [from the body]).
Em- (Latin in-, French and Greek en-), a prefix 'before -b, -p, or -m, and meaning in, into, on.

Em- (Old Eng. prefix), means "to make," "to collect into". (Much confusion arises from the slipshod use of em- and im-, but they are widely different in meaning. "Em-" (our native prefix) means to make, to collect into; but "im-" is either the preposition in softened before b, p, and m, or else a negative joined to an adjective.)

'EM, a contraction of them.

(See under im- for words not inserted under em-.)

Emacerate or macerate, e.máš'ér.ate (q.v.)

Emaciate, e.máš'ē.á.tate, to become thin, to lose flesh; emaciated, e.máš'ē.á.tét (Rule xxxvi.); emaciat-ing (Rule xix.); emaciation, e.máš'ē.á.tishun, leanness.

French émacié, émaciation; Latin emaciáre (e macer, to make lean).

Emanate, em.á.ná.tate (not eminate), to issue from; em'aná-ted (Rule xxxvi.), em'aná-t-ing; emana-tion, em'.áná.tishun, em'aná-tor; emanation, e.má.á.nay'.shun.

French émaner, émanation; Lat. emánátió (e mánare, to flow out).

Emancipate, e.mán'sé.pi.tá.te, to set at liberty; em'an'é.pi-tá.ed (R. xxxvi.); em'an'é.pi-tá-ing (R. xix.), em'an'é.pi-tá-or; emancipation, e.mán' sé.pi.tar'.shun; emancipationist.

Emancipist, e.mán'sé.pi.st, an Australian convict who has regained his liberty and become a free man.

French émanciper; émancipation; Latin emancipátio, emancipáre. Manúcipium is manu-cápio; taken in the hand as a rightful possession; e-manúcipium, is "delivered out of" the hand. In Rome, a father freed his son thus: He first sold him to a stranger, whereupon he lost all rights over him, and the stranger had him as a "slave-chattel." The stranger then manumitted him as he would any ordinary slave. Hence to emancipate is "to give up possession," but manumit is to "set free" (manu mittère).

Emasculate, e.máš'ku.lá.te, to unman; emas'cu-lát-ed, emas'cu-lá.t-ing, emas'cu-lá.t-er; emasculation, e.máš'ku.ta'lar'.shun.

French émasculer, émasculaton; Latin emascúlator, emascúlare (e mas, to remove) from the male kind.

Embalm, e.má.lém', to fill a dead body with spices, &c.; embalmed, e.má.lém'd; embalming, e.má.lém'ing; embalmer, e.má.lém' er; embalm'-ment.

French embuamé, embuameur, embuament; Latin in (in) balsémum, (to put) balsams or balms in [a body].

Embark', to inclose or protect with a bank; embanked' (2 syl.), embank'-ing, embank'-ment.

Old English bane, a bank, and prefix em- "to make" [a bank].

Embargo, plu., embargoes (Rule: xlii.), em.bár'goz, an order to prohibit a ship's leaving port or trading for a stated time, to put this restraint on a ship; embar'goed (3 syl.), embar'go-ing. (See Quarantine.)
(Followed by on; “There is an embargo on...” “to put an embargo on...” French mettre embargo sur...)
Spanish embargo, v. embargar; French embargo.
Embark', to go or put on board ship; embark'ed (3 syl.), embark'-ing; embarkation, em'bar.kay'.shun.
(There is no reason why the “k” should be changed to e in “embarkation.”)
French embarquer, embargo.ment (“embarkation” is not French).
Embarrass, em.bar'rás (double r and double s), to perplex; embarr'assed (3 syl.), embarr'ass-ment.
French embarras, embarrasser (barre, a bar).
Embassy, plu. embassies, em'bas.siz, the charge of an ambas. sador, an ambassador and his suite, an express message sent officially to a foreign nation; em'passage (3 syl.)
(It is very inconsistent to spell “ambassador” with “a” and “embassy” with “e.” See Amend, Emendation.)
Fr. ambassade, ambassador; Med. Lat. ambascia; Keltic ambac, a minister; in Italian both are spelt with a, but in Spanish with e.
Embattled, em.bat'ld, to put in battle array; embattled, em.bat'.tld; embattling, em.bat'.tling;
Em-battle-ment, an indented parapet; embat'tlement-ed or embat'tled, furnished with battlements.
Fr. embatailler; Welsh batael with em-, “to collect into” [battle array].
Embays', to enclose in a bay; embayed' (2 syl.), embay'-ing.
Old English byge, a bay; French baie, with em- “to make.”
Embed', to lay in a bed of sand, earth, &c.; embed'd-ed (Rule xxxvi.), embed'd-ing (Rule i.), embed'-ment.
Old English bed or bed, with em-, “to collect into” [a bed].
Embellish, em.bell'.ish, to beautify; embell'ished (3 syl.), embel'lish-ing, embel'lish-ment, embel'lish-er.
French embellir, embellisseur, embelissement; Latin bellus, “pretty,” with em- “to make” [pretty].
Ember days, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of Ember weeks.
Ember Weeks, corruption of German quatember, a con tra.
tion of quat’ uor temp’pora (quat’: tempor’), four times [a year], Quadragesima Sunday, Whit Sunday, Holyrood Day in September, and St. Lucia’s Day in December.
Embers (no sing.), em’berz, cinders or ashes still hot.
Old English emyris, hot ashes.
Embezzle, em.bez'.z, to pilfer; embezzled, em.bez'.zld; embez'zling; embez'.zle-ment, embez'ler.
Norman embesaler or beseler, to sitch.
Embitter, em.bit'.ter, to make bitter or sad; embittered, em.-.
bit’.terd; embit'ter-ing. (Not imbitter, see Em-)
Old English bit, bitter, with em- “to make” [bitter].
Emblazon, em.blay'zon (not em.blās'zon), to make heraldic designs, to deck in gorgeous colours, to laud, to reveal; emblazoned (3 syl.), emblazon-ing, emblazon-er, emblazon-ment, emblazon-ry.

French blasonner, blason (German blasen, to proclaim by herald, who announced the coat armour of each knight, hence called blasonry).

Emblem, ém.blēm, a type; emblematic or emblematical, ém.blē.mat'ik, ém.blē.mat'i.kal; emblematical-ly.

Emblemise, ém.blem'ise, to represent emblematically; emblemised (3 syl.), emblem-is-ing (Rule xix.).

French embleme, emblematic; Latin emblema; Greek emblema.

(There is no such Greek word as emblemize, Rule xxxii.)

Embody, ém.bōd'yo, to incorporate; embodied, ém.bōd'id (Rule xi.); embodiment.

Old English bōd, a body, with em- “to make.”

Embolde, ém.bōl'den, to make bold; emboldened, ém.bōl'den·ed; emboldening, embold'en·ing.

Old English bōld, with em- “to make” [bold].

Embonpoint (French), an.bo'nu.pwoin’, in good plight.

Emboder, ém.bōrd'er, to adorn with a border (not emboarder); embordered (3 syl.), embor'der-ing.

(“Border” should be bordure. It is not an agent.)

Old English bōrd, a border; French bordure, with em- “to make.”

Embosom, ém.bōs'um (not ém.bōz'um nor ém.bōζ'um), to surround with trees; embosomed (3 syl.), embos'om·ing. More correctly imbos'om, imbos'omed, imbos'oming.

Old English bōsm, the bosom, with em- for in [to hold] in the bosom.

To “embosom” means to “collect into the bosom,” or “to make a bosom.” A church is imbosomed in trees, but children embosom flowers; i.e., collect them into their bosom.

Emboss', to ornament with stamped patterns in relief; embossed' (2 syl.), emboss'-ing, emboss'er, emboss'-ment. (Not im-.

French bosse, a “knob” or “protuberance,” with em- “to make.”

Embouchure, em'boo.shu'ru (in French an'boo' shūr’). (As the word is quite naturalised, it is mere affectation as well as wrong to call it arm- or ang'-boo-shoor’. The mouth of a river, the opening of a chimney, &c.

Embrow (not imbrow) (“bow” to rhyme with grow), to make into a bow; embowed' (2 syl.), embow'-ing.

Old English *beā", anything made into a ring, hence a “bow,” with em- “to make” [a bow or bay].

Embowel, em.bōw'el (“bow” to rhyme with now), to take out the bowels; emboweled (3 syl.), embow'el·ing, embow'el·er, embow'el·ment, evisceration.

An ill-formed word, from Latin e [to take] “out,” and the French *bois", a bowl. Debowel (de privative) would be better, for embowel can only mean “to put bowels in,” and not to “take them out.”
AND OF SPELLING. 291

Embower, *em*bower*er* (“bow” to rhyme with now), to shelter with a bower; embowered (3 syl.), embower-ing.

Old English būr, “a bower,” with em—“to make” [a bower].

Embrace*’* (2 syl.), to hug, to clasp in the arms; embraced’ (2 syl.), embrac’-ing (R. xix.), embrac’-er, embrace’-ment.

French embrasser, embrassement (bras, the arm, Latin brāchium).

Embracery, *em*brac’e.ry, an attempt to bias a trial by bribery.

Law Lat. embraceator; Law Fr. embrasour, one guilty of subornation.

Embrasure, *em*bray’.zhur, an opening in a wall designed for men to shoot through at persons outside.

French embrasure, v. embraser, to fire from.

Embrosation, em’bro.kay”.shun, a fomentation, a lotion.

Fr. embrocation; Gk. em-bresshe, to foment (brēcho, to wet the surface).

Embroider, *em*broid’er, to ornament with needlework; *embroidered, em*broy’.der’d; *embroy’-der-ing, embroy’-der-er, embroi’dery, ornamental needlework.

French broder, broderie; Welsh *brodia, to embroider; brodiog, embroidered; brodiad, embroidery. Em—“to make” [broderie].

Embroid* (2 syl.), to involve in a quarrel; embroided’ (2 syl.), *embroi’-ling, embroi’-er, embroi’-ment, disturbance.

Fr. embroutilier, embroutillement (brouiller, to throw into confusion).

Embrown’, to make brown; *embrowned’, embrown’-ing.

Old English brān, “brown,” with em—“to make” [brown].

_Embrue, *em*bru’* (not embrue), to stain with blood; embrue’-ing (Rule xix.); *embrued, em*bru’d’. (See Em-.)

Greek brō[i]os, “gore,” with em—“to make” [gory].

Embryo, plu. embryos, em’bri.oze (Rule xlii.), the rudiments of organic bodies, a crude form, (adj.) rudimentary; *embryonic, em’bri.ō’nik, relating to embryos; embryology, *em’bri.ō’lō’gy, the science which treats of embryos; embriologist, em’bri.o.ō’list, one skilled in embryology.

Greek embriōn logos, a discourse about embryos.

Embryotomy, em’bri.ō’lō’my, a Cæsarian operation.

Greek embriōn tōmē, a cutting out of an embryo or fetus.

Em’broyo-sac, the cellular bag which contains an embryo.

(The “y” shows that these words are from the Greek, but embryo would be more correct than “embryo,” which is a phonetic spelling of the French word.)

French, Spanish, Latin embryon; Italian embrione; Greek embrūda.

Emendment, em’mend.day”.shun, correction of faults; emendator, e’mend.a’tor; emenda’ry.

Amend’, to correct faults; amend’-ed (R. xxxvi.), amend’-ing, amend’-ment, amend’-able, amenda’ry.

This double form of prefix is to be regretted, the “e” form is Latin, the “a” form French. A menda means “without fault” or “faultless;” e menda means “purged of faults.”

Latin emendare, to purge of faults; French amender, amendement, amendable. The Latin prefix is to be preferred.
Emerald, ˈemərd (not ˈemrəd), a precious stone (green);
Emerald Isle, Ireland, noted for its verdure.
Gk. smaragdos; Lat. smaragdus; Itat. smaraldo; Span. esmaraldo.

Emerge, ˈemərj, to rise up to the surface, to issue from;
Immerse, ˈɪmərse (2 syl.), to plunge under water.
Emerge', emerged (2 syl.), emerg'-ing (Rule xix.), emerg'-ent, emerg'-ent-ly; emerg'-ence.
Emergence, plu. emergences, e.mer'-jənsiz (Rule xliv.), a special case unexpectedly “merging out of” the usual routine, a pressing necessity (not immurgence).

Emersion, ˈemərshən, a rising out of water, &c.;
Immersion, a plunging into or under water.
("Emerge" is followed by from. “Immerse,” “Immerse,” by in.)
French emergent; Latin emergens, gen. -entis, emergo, supine emergence (emerge, [to rise] out from a plunge under water).

Emeritus, ˈemərətəs (not ˈemərətəs), one pensioned off after long services. Generally applied to college professors.
Latin emeritus, a pension for service; emeritus, (adj.)

Emerods (plu.), em’.ərdz (ought to be hemorroids), bloody piles.
Gk. haimorroides (haimorroid, bloody flux, haima rheó, to flow blood).
(In compound words ending with rheo, the “h” is dropped. Thus Liddell and Scott very properly give the word al思索, and not the vicious form al思索, hemorrhoids.)

Emersion, ˈemərshən. (See Emerge.)

Emery, ˈemərē, a hard mineral substance used for polishing metal wares. Emery paper, Emery cloth.
French émeri; Latin smurīs; Greek smurīs or smūrīs.
The rocks of Emery, cap. of Naxos (Cyclades), abound in this mineral.

Emetic, ˈemətık, a provocative of vomiting; emetically.
French émétique; Latin emēticus; Greek ἐμέτο, to vomit.

Emeute (French), əˈmut, a riot, an uprising. (Latin emotus.)

Emigrate, ˈeməɡrət (same as mig′rate), to leave one’s native place to settle in another; em′igrat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), em′igrat-ing (Rule xix); emigrant, one who emigrates; emigration, em′iɡrəˈʃən; em′igrater.
French emigrer, emigration, émigrant; Latin emigrans, gen. emigrantis, emigratio, emigrare (e migrate, to migrate from.)

Eminent, ˈemənənt, famous. Imˈmənent, threatening.

Em′inence, celebrity. Imˈmənence, an impending danger.

Eminency, plu. eminencies, emˈənənsiz (Rule xliv.)

Em′inent-ly, conspicuously. Imˈmənent-ly, menacingly.

Your Eminence, the title of address given to cardinals.
French éminent, éminence; Latin eminens, gen. eminēntis, eminēntia (e mineo, to hang out conspicuously).
French imˈmənent, imˈmənence; Latin immīnens, gen. immīnentis, immīnentia (in mineo, to hang over menacingly).
Emir, 'meer', a Turkish title. The descendants of Mahomet are called emirs. (Arabic amir, a commander.)

Emissary, plu. emissaries, em'.is.sa.riz (R. xli v.), a secret agent.

Emission, e.mish'un. (See Emit.)

Emit, e.mit', to discharge, to throw out. Em'met, an ant.

Emit't-ed (Rule xxxvi.), emit't-ing (Rule i.); emission, e.mish'un; em'issary (q.v.)

French émettre, émission, émissaire; Latin emissarius, emissio, emitto, supine emissions (e mittto, to send forth).

Emmet, em'met, an ant. Emit, e.mit', to discharge.

Old English emete or emette, emeto-hyll, an ant-hill.

Emolliate, e.mol'.li.ate, to soften; emol'liat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), emol'liat-ing (Rule xix.); emollient, e.mol'.li.ent; emol'liation, e.mol'.li.un, the act of softening.

French émollient; Latin emolliens, gen. emollientis, emollitio, emollire (mollio, to make soft, with e intensive).

Emolument, e.mol'.u.ment (only one l), profit, stipend; emolu'ment-al, e.mol'.u.ment-al.

French émolument; Latin emolümentum, profit arising from grist (emolle, to grind thoroughly; mola, a mill).

Emotion, e.mo'.shun, excitement; em'o'tion-al, sensational.

Fr. émotion; Lat. emotio, emoveo, sup. emodum (movere, to move).

Empale, em'pale' (not em'pail), to put to death by driving a stake through the body; empaled' (2 syll.), empäl'-ing (Rule xix.), empäl'-er, empale'-ment (Rule xviii. b).

French empaler empalément; Latin patum, a stake. Being French, em- is better than the Latin prefix im-.

(See Em-.)

Empannel. Should be impanel (q.v.) It means [to 'put'] in the roll or parchment. (See Em-.)

Latin pannus, cloth of any sort; Greek πένος, with im- = "in."

Emperor, fem. empress, em'.pé'ror, em'.press (not emperess).

French empereur, impératrice; Latin imperator, imperatrix, v. imperare, to command (im [in] para, to provide for [getting a thing done]), hence "to give orders", "to command."

Emphasis, plu. emphases, em'.fás.is, em'.fás.see; stress of voice on a word or syllable;

Emphasis, em'.fás.is; em'phasised (3 syll.), emphasis-ing (Rule xix.), em'phasis-er (Rule xxxiii.)

Emphatic, em'.fá.tik; emphatical, em'.fá.ti.kál; emphatic'al-ly. (The ph- points to a Greek source.)

Greek emphasis, empháticoς; Latin emphasis, emphaticus. There is no Greek verb corresponding to emphasis (Rule xxxi.)

Empire' (2 syll.), em'peror, fem. empress, but imperial, imperial-ly; imperial-ness.

Latin imperium, imperator, fem. imperatrix; French empire, empereur, imperatrice, impiérial.
Empiric, em′prɪ.ɪk (ought to be em.pi′rɪk), a quack; empirical, em′prɪ.ɹ̩.ɪ.kəl, tentative, unscientific; empir′ical-ly; empiricism, em′prɪ.ɹ̩.ɪ.sm.
French empirique, empirisme; Latin empiricus; Greek empirιkοs, empirιa, experience (em [en] peirα, to try [some one]).

Emplead', em′pleed′, to indict, to charge with a crime.
Fr. plaid, Lat. placere, a "plea," with em, "to make" [a plea].

Employ′, to keep at work, to use; employed′ (2 sy1.), employ′-ing (Rule xiii.), employ′-ment; employ′-er, one who employs another; employee, em′ploy′ee, or employé (French), an′plo′i.yɑ̃, one employed by another.

French employer, emploi′; Latin em in plieo, to fold in.
This word ought to be spelt with im, but we have taken it with its faulty spelling from the French.

Emporium, plu′ emporia, or emporiums, a place of trade.

Empower, em′pou′er ("-pow′-" to rhyme with now), to authorise; empowered′ (3 sy1.), empower′-ing.
French pouvoir, "power," with em, "to give to one" [power].

Empress fem. of emperor, em′press, em′pιrιor; empire (2 sy1.), but imperial, im′pιrι.al; imperially; imperious, im′pιrι.əs; imperiously, imperious-ness.
French empire, empereur, impιrιal.

Empty, plu′ empties, em′ty, em′ty′z, void, to exhaust of contents; emptied, em′ted; empti′ness (R. xi.), empty′ing.
Old English emptē or emtīg, v. emptī [ian] or empti[ian].

Empyema, em′pi.ɪ′.m̩.ah, a collection of purulent matter in the cavity of the chest.

Empyrean, em′pi.r̩.e′.n̩.an (not em′pi′r̩.ri′.an), the highest heaven, supposed by Ptolemy to be pure elemental fire.
Empyreal, em′pi.r̩.e′.r̩.al (ought to be em′pi′r̩.e′.r̩.al).
Lat. empυ̂r̩.ea, Gk. empυ̂rιdοs [ουρριάς], i.e. em [en] pur, made of fire.

Empyreuma, em′pi.ro′.m̩.ah, the smell which rises from organic substances burnt in close vessels; empyreumatic, em′pi.ru.m̩.a′.ɪ.ɪ̱k; empyreum′atical.
Fr. empυr̩.e′.m̩.e, empυ̂r̩.e′.m̩.a′.t̩.ique; Gk. empυr̩.e′.uν, to set on fire (p̩.r̩., fire).

Emu or emeu, ɛ′.m̩.u, the ostrich of Australia.

Emulate, em′u.ˈwat.lɛt, to vie with; em′u.ˈlæt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), em′u.ˈlæt-ing (Rule xix.), em′u.ˈlæt-or; emulation, em′u.ˈlæt.ˈʃuν; emulative, em′u.ˈlæt.ˈtɪv; emulative-ly.

Emulous, em′u.ˈlʊs; em′ulous-ly, em′ulous-ness.
French énumération; Latin emπιlātiο, emπιlātοr, emπιlus, v. emπιlāri.

Emulsion, em′u.ˈlɪs.ˈʃuν, a lubricating milky liquid; emulsive, em′u.ˈlɪs.ˈəv; emulgent, em′u.ˈlɪ.ˈʃənt, the artery and vein.
which supply blood to the kidneys, where the ancients thought it was milked or strained.

Fr. émulgent, émulsion, émulsi; Lat. emulgère (mulgo, to milk).

En- (a French form of the Anglo-Saxon em-), signifying "to make," "to collect," it stands before any letter except b, p, and m. (See Ém-.)

En- (a Greek and French form corresponding to the Latin in-), sometimes it is intensive, and sometimes means in or into. It should never be attached to Latin words, except they come through the French.

-en (affixed to nouns). Latin -en[us], -an[us], "one of," "one belonging to": ctitiz-en.

-en (affixed to verbs), denotes causation, "to make:" as falt-en, sweet-en, length-en, short-en.

-en (affixed to adj.), means "made of": gold-en, lead-en. It is also the affix of the past part. of "strong" verbs, as "rise," risen; "break," broken.

Enable, ena'b'l, to make able; enabled, ena'b'ld; ena'bling.

Latin habitis, "able," with en- "to make" [able].

Enact, en.act' (not e.nact') to decree, to pass into law; enact'-ed (R. xxxvi.); enact'-ing, enact'-or (R. xxxvii.); enact'-ive, en.ac't'iv; enact'-ment, a measure made into law.

Lat. acta, "legal acts or decrees," with en- "to make" [an act or law.]

Enamel, en.am'.el, a hard glossy surface resembling crystal, to coat with enamel; enam'elled (3 syl.), enam'eU-ed (Rule i.), enam'eU-er.

French émail, a composition made of calcined glass, &c., with en-.

Enamour, en.am'.er, to charm; enam'oured (3 syl.), enam'our-ing.

French amour, "love," with en- "to make" or create [love].

Enarthrosis, én.ar.rhrii'.sis, the insertion of one bone into another, so as to make a ball-and-socket joint.

Fr. enarthrose; Gk. arthrón, "a socket-joint," with en- "to make."

Encage (2 syl.), to coop in a cage; encaged' (2 syl.) encág'-ing (R. xix.) Better incage, to shut up in a cage. (Fr. cage.)

Encamp', to pitch tents, to dwell in tents; encamped, en.campt'; encamp'-ing, encamp'-ment.

Latin campus, "a tent," "a camp," with en- "to make" [a camp].

Encase' (2 syl.), to put into a case, to enclose; encased' (2 syl.), encás-ing. Incase-ment, a putting into a case or cases.

French encaisser (en caisse). Not incase, as it is a French word.

Encaustic, en.kaus'.tik, a method of painting with wax burnt in with hot iron (adj.), as encaustic tiles.

French encaustique; Latin encausticus, encaustico; Greek eγκαυστικός (eγ [en] kaid, to burn into).
Encave' (2 syl.), to hide in a cave; encaved’ (2 syl.), encavr’-ing (Rule xix.), encave’-ment. (Better incave, being Latin.)

Latin cāvea, a cave, with the Latin prefix in- not the French en-

-ence or -ency (Latin -entia) added to abstract verbal nouns: as excell-ence, excell-ency.

-ence forms the termination of between 200 and 300 words, but there are not above half-a-dozen ending in -ense: as condense, immense, dispense, expense, prepejus, and recom pense (Rule xxvi.)

Encinte (French) ah’n.saint’ (-nt nasal, but not ang.sangt).

Encephalon, en.sef’-a.lōn, the brain, the contents of the cranium.

Encephala (plu.), en.sef’-a.lah, limpets and other molluses with a distinct head; encephalous, en.sef’-a.lūs (adj.)

Encephalic, en.sef’-i.lik (not en.sef’-a.līk), belonging to the brain.

Encephalgia, en.sef’-i.ji.ai (not en.sef’-a.ji), chronic pain of the head.

Encephalitis, en.sef’-i.lli’tis, inflammation of the brain (-ītis, Greek termination, denotes inflammation).

Encephaloid, en.sef’-a.loi’d, resembling the materials of the brain. (Greek eıkaphalōs eido’s, brain-like.)

French encéphale; Greek eıkaphalōs (ek[en] kaphalē, in the cranium).

Enchain’, to bind with chains; enchained’ (2 syl.), enchain’-ing, enchain’-ment. (Not in-, being French.)

French enchainner (chaine, Latin cātēna, v. cātēnāre, to chain).

Enchant’, to charm, to fascinate, to bewitch; enchant’-ed (R. xxxvi.); enchant’-ing; enchant’-ing-ly, delightedly; enchant’-er, fem. enchant’ress; enchant’-ment. (Not in-, being French.)

French enchanter, enchanter, fem. enchanteress, enchantment; Latin iunctūre, iunctūdor, iunctūmentum.

Enchase’ (2 syl.), to set in a frame, to adorn with embossed work; enchase’d’ (2 syl.), enchais’-ing. (Not in-, being Fr.)

French encha’isser (chassis, a frame; Latin capsula, a box, v. capio).

Enchiridion or enchiridium, plu. enchiridia, en’ki.ri’d’i.ōn (or -um), en’ki.ri’d’i.ah, a manual.

French ench’iridion; Greek enchiridion; Latin enchiridium (en cheir [what can be held] in the hand).

Enchorial, en.kō’ri.dul, applied to the ordinary writing of the ancient Egyptians. The sacred writing was in hieroglyphics, hi’-e-ro.gli’fiks.

.Greek eıkōrōs, domestic (choros, a district, a place).

Encircle, en.ser’-kīl, to surround; encircled, en.ser’-kīld; encircling, en.ser’-kīling.

Old Eng. circol or circul; Fr. cercle, with env- to make [a circle].
AND OF SPELLING.

Enclitic, en. klī’t.āk, a word joined to another so closely as to seem a part thereof: as “pr thee,” where the pronoun thee is thrown on the verb pray; “willy nilly,” where the pronoun ye is joined to the verbs will and will—not. Other examples are isn’t, sha’n’t, won’t, mus’n’t.

French enclitique; Latin encliticus; Greek ἐγκλίτικος (ἐγκλίνω, to lean on another).

Enclose, en. klō’zē’; enclosed (2 syl.), enclōs’-ing (Rule xix.)

Enclosure, en. klō’zhur, envelopment; as the “enclosure” of letters in envelopes saves much trouble; that which is enclosed, as your letter with its “enclosure” came to hand this morning; that which encloses, as an envelope is the “enclosure” of a letter.

French clos. (Latīn claudō, to shut up; Old English clusa, close).

Encomium, plu. encomiums (very rarely encomia), en. ko’mi.ān- (en. ko’mi.ah); high praise; encomiastic; encomiastic, en. ko’mi.as’t.īk; encomiastic’al, encomiastic’al-ly.

Latin encomiastes, encomiasticus, encomium, plu. encomia; Greek ἐγκομίω, plu. ἐγκόμια, ἐγκόμιος (κομίς, a revel) in honour of [Bacchus], en. kō’mōs, a hymn to the victor in a [Bacchic] revel, hence a eulogy or panegyric.

Encom’pass, en. küm’past (not incom’pass), to surround; encompassed, en. küm’’past; encompass’-ing, en. küm’’pās.ing.

French en compas’ser, to compass-in [on all sides].

Encore, ong. kör’é’ (not en. kore’), a call for a repetition; to demand a repetition; encored, ong. kō’r’d; encour’-ing (Rule xix.)

This is one of the French words quite perverted in our language. What we call “encore,” is bis in French, and encore in French means yet, still (adv. a continuation), as il n’est pas encore venu, he is not yet come; j’attends encore, I am still waiting; je ne l’attends pas encore, I do not expect him yet.

Encounter, en. koun’ter, a chance meeting, a combat, to meet unexpectedly, to meet in a hostile manner; encountered, en. koun’terd; encoun’ter’-ing.

French en contre (en contre, in contrary [directions], in opposition).

Encourage, en. kō’ra’ge, to embolden; encouraged (3 syl.); encour’-ag-ing (R. xix.), encourage’-ment (only five words drop the -e before ment, viz. acknowledg’-ment, abridg’-ment, lodg’-ment, judg’-ment; and argu’-ment, Rule xviii., 4).

French encourager, encour’-age’ment. (See Courage.)

Encrinite, en’ kri’nitē, the stone-lily, and other similar fossils; encrinitic, en’ kri’nit’īk, (adj.) or en’crinit’al.

Crinoidean, plu. crinoideans, crinoidea, kri’no’dē.an, kri’no’dē.an’z, kri’no’dē.ah, fossils having a lily-shaped disc supported on a jointed stem; they are—

Encrinites, en’ kri’ni.tēs, when the stem is cylindrical; and Pentacrinites, pen’-tā.kri’ni.tēs, when it is pentagonal.

Greek kri’now, plu. kri’néa, “a lily,” with -ite for lithos a stone, and the prefix en- “to make into” [a lily stone]. -oid is eidos, like.
Encroach' (2 syl.), to intrude upon another's rights (followed by on or upon); encroached' (2 syl.), encroach'ing, encroach'ing-ly, encroach' -er, encroach' -ment.

French encrocher, to hook on [something] (croq, a hook). The French prefix is preferable, and -croach is a very vicious form of "crook." Low Latin encrochamentum.

Encrast (should be incrust, Latin incrustare, French incruster).

Encumber, en.küm'.ber, to burden, to clog; encum'bered (3 syl.), encum'ber-ing, encum'bering-ly, encum'ber-er.

Encumbrance, en.küm'.branse (not encumber-ance).

Encumbrancer, en.küm'.bran.ser.

French encombrer; Latin incumbère, to lie upon.

Encyclical, en.sik'.li.kal, sent round, as the Pope's encyclical letter, the letter "sent round" to all his bishops.

French encyclique; Latin encyclius (The -y shows it to be Greek). Greek eikuklētos, circular (ey [en] kuklo, to move in a circle).

Encyclopædia, encyclopædia, cyclopædia, cyclopedia, en.sy'-klo pee'-di-ah, sy'-klo pee'-di-ah, an alphabetical summary of every branch of knowledge; ency'clope'dian (adj.) or ency'clope'dical; ency'clope'dist, one who compiles an encyclopedia, one who aids in such a compilation; ency'clope'dism, en.si'.klo pee'-dizrn.

The better form is without the prefix en-; the word is then Greek kuklētos paideia, a round of instruction. "Encyclopædia" means "encyclopedic instruction," or instruction sent round like a circular (ey [en] kuklos, revolving, going in succession, periodical). The idea is "a book or number of books containing the whole range or round of knowledge," and not an "encyclopedic dictionary of instruction." It is not sent round like a circular at all.

Encyst' (not incyst. It is Greek not Latin), to enclose in a cyst; encyst'ed (Rule xxxvi.), encyst'ing, enclosed in a cyst, consisting of cysts.

Insist, insist'-ed, insist'-ing, to urge with authority.

"Encyst," Greek en kustis, a bag or pouch (the -y shows it is Greek). "Insist," Latin in sīto, to make a set stand on [what you say].

-end (an Anglo-Saxon termination of masculine nouns), denotes "an agent." Surviving examples very rare.

-end, Old English ende, Latin end[us], termination of active participles, as rever-end, Latin rever-endus, to be revered.

End, the finish, to finish; end'ed (R. xxxvi.), end' -ing; end' -less, without end; end'less-ly, end'less-ness; end'wise (not endways, German weise, Old English wēs, direction).

The be-all and end-all, the only state of being and its entire termination.

Old English ende, v. end[an], past ended, past part. ended, endless, endless; endleaslic, endlesly; endleasnes, endlessness; endmost, endmost; endung, an ending; endwise, endwise.
Endamage, endām'age, to injure; endām'aged (3 syll.), endām'āg-ing (Rule xix.), endām'age-ment (Rule xviii., ?).

Old English dem; Latin damnum, “hurt,” with en- “to make or confer” [injury]; French endommage.

Endanger, endān'jēr, to expose to danger; endān'gered (3 syll.), endān'ger-ing, endān'ger-ment.

French danger, with en- “to make or put into” [danger].

Endear, endār'e, to make dear; endeared (2 syll.), endear-ing, endear-ing-ly; endeared-ness, endear-ed-ness (Rule xxxvi.); endeared-ment (-ment, the “cause of,” “the state of”), that which produces fondness, the state of being dear.

Old English dor, “dear, beloved,” with en- “to make” [dear].

Endeavour, endēv'or, an effort, to use effort, to attempt; endeavoured, endēv'ord; endeavour-ing.

Fr. devoir, “duty,” with en- “to make;” i.e., faire devoir, to attempt.

Endemic, endēm'ik [disease], a local [disease].

French endémique; Greek endémēs, in the place, at home, v. endémê, to live in a place. In Greek the -de- is long.

Endermic, [medicine] to be applied to the skin.

Greek en derma [to be used] on the skin.

Endive, endiv, a vegetable. (Fr. endive, Lat. intībus or intūbum.

Endorse’, (2 syll.), to write on the back of a document; endorsed (3 syll.), endors-ing (Rule xix.), endors'-er, the person who writes his name on the back of a bill, and makes himself liable for its payment; endorsee, the person to whom the bill is assigned or delivered; endorse'-ment.

French endos, endosser, endossement, endosseur (dos, Lat. dossum or dorsum, the back, [to write] on the back).

Endogens, en'do.jenz, plants like palms, grasses, and rushes, whose growth takes place from within, and not by external concentric layers; endogenous, en.dōj'.enēs (adj.)

Greek endon genē, to produce within.

Endogenite, en.dōj'.e.nite, a fossil palm, rush, &c.

Greek endon genē, with -ite; that is, lithos, a stone or fossil.

Endophloëum, en'.dōf.fo'lem, the inner bark.

Greek endon phloēs, the inside bark.

Endophyllous, en.dōf'il.lōs, evolved within a leaf or sheath.

Greek endon phyllôn, within the leaf. (Should be en.dō ful'lus.)

Endopleura, en'do.plō'ra, the inner covering of seed.

Greek endon plo'ra, the inner side [of the seed sheath].

Endorhizal, en'do.rǐ.zal, applied to those rootlets which burst through the coverings of the seed before they elongate downwards. (Better without h, being a comp. word.)

Greek endon rhiza, root within [the seed]. (See Emerods, note.)
Endosmose, en.dō.s.mose, the transmission of gases, &c., to the interior of porous substances.

Exosmose, ex.dō.s.mose, the transmission of gases, &c., to the exterior of porous substances.

Gk. endō ὑδός, impulsion inwards; ex ὑδός, impulsion outwards.

Endosperm, en.dō.sperm, albumen of seeds.

Greek endō sperma, within the sperm or embryo-sac.

Endosporous, *en.dō.spōr*us, applied to those fungi which have their spores (1 syl.), contained in a case.

Greek endō spōra, spores [contained] in [a case].

Endostome, en.dō.stom, the passage through the inner integument of an ovule (2 syl.) (στόμα, a mouth).

-endous (Latin termination -endus), "calculated to produce": as trem-endous, "calculated to produce trembling or tremour."

Endow, en.dow (-dow to rhyme with now), to settle a permanent fund on [an institution], to furnish; endowed (2 syl.), endow-ing; endow-ment, a fund settled on [an institution]; talents; endow-er, one who endows. (See Endue.)

Norm. enduer; Fr. doyer; Lat. dōs, "a dowry," with en-" "to make."

Endue, en.due to invest; endued* (2 syl.), endū'-ing, R. xix. (Gk. form). Indue, induced, indu'ing, endue-ment, a fund settled on [an institution]; talents; endue-er, one who endues. (See Endue.)

Greek endo (Latin termination -endo), "to put on [clothes]."

Endure (2 syl.), to bear, to suffer; endured* (3 syl.), endū'-ing, endur'-ing-ly, endur'-er, endur'-able, (1st-Latin conj.), endur'-able-ness, endur'-ably, endur'-ance; but Indurate, in.dū.rate, to harden; in''duràt-ed, in''duràt-ing; induration, in.dū.ra.tion, shun.

Fr. endurer; Lat. induratio, endurâre to grow hardened (durus, hard).

Eneid, better Eneid, e.nee'.id (not el.nee'.id), Virgil's epic poem about Aeneas (E.nee'.as).

-id (a patronymic), "pertaining to," "concerning" [Eneas].

Enema, e.nee'.mah (not en'.e.mah), a clyster, an instrument used for medical injections.

This word, being the Greek en hiēnt, "to send into," ought to be enēmas, according to our English custom of forming such words.

Enemy, e.n.emies, e.n.emiz, a foe; en'mity; plu'.enmities.

Inimical, in.im'.i.kāl, hostile; inim'i-cal-ly.

French ennemi (wrong); Latin inimicus; inimicitia, inimico. Our word enemy is bad, and the French word worse. "As en means "a friend" (Latin amicus), en-emy "should mean "to make a friend," the Latin in- (negative) amicus (not a friend) is consistent.

Energy, plu'.energies, en.ers.giz (Rule xliv.); vigorous effort; energetic, en.ers.jet"'ik*; energetical, en.ers.jet'.i.kūl.

Energyse, en.ers.giz; to infuse vigour into; energised, en.erg-is-ing (Rule xix).

Fr. énergie; énergique; Lat. energia; Gk. ergon, work. (See R. xxxii.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Enervate, en'erv-ate (not en'er-vate), to enfeeble; en'er-vát-ed (Rule xxxvi.), en'er-vát-ing (Rule xix.), enervation, en'er-vay't-shun; en'er-vator (Rule xxxvii.);

French enverer, énervation; Latin enerváto, enervátor, enervás (enervus, to deprive of nerve).

Enfeeble, en'fee-b'l, to weaken; enfeebled, en'fee-b'ld; en-fee'bling, enfeeble-ment, en'fee-b'ld-ment.

French affaiblir, affaiblissement; faible, older form foible, "feable," with en- "to make" [feable].

Enfeoff, en'feоф (by lawyers), en'feоф (by others), to invest with a fee or fief; enfeoffed' (3 syll.), enfeoff'ing, enfeoff'ing-ment, the deed which conveys a fee or fief.

French fief Low Latin foedum, a fee or feoff, foofflamentum, a feoff-ment, foeddar, a feoffer, foeddatus, a feoffee. Our word is feodum, "a fee or feoff," with en- "to convey" [a fee].

Enfilade, en'f-ilá'dé, to rake with shot or shell lengthwise; enfiláéd' (Rule xxxvi.), enfilá-ing (Rule xix.).

French enfilade, v. enfiler; Latin filum, "a thread or line," with en- "to make" [a line with shot and shell].

Enforce' (2 syll.), to constrain; enforced' (2 syll.), enforce'-ing (Rule xix.), enforce'-er, enforce'-ment, enforce'-able.

French force, with en- "to make or impart" [force].

Enfranchise, en-frán'chiz, to invest with civil and political rights, to liberate; enfranchised (3 syll.), enfran'chis-ing (Rule xix.), enfran'chis-er, enfran'chis-ment (R. xviii.).

French affranchir, affranchissement; Low Latin franchise, franchisitus (francus "free," with en- "to make" [free]).

Engage, en'jage', to occupy; engaged' (2 syll.), occupied, bespoke in a dance, promised in marriage; engag-ing, en'jage-ing (Rule xix.); engag'ing-ly, engage'-ment (Rule xviii.); engaged-ness, en'jage-ed-ness (Rule xxxvi.).

French engager, engagement; Old English wed, "a pledge," with en- "to make" [a pledge]; Latin vaddimenum.

Engarrison, en'gar'ris-on (a corruption of engarnison), to put into garrison, to furnish with garrison; engar'risoned (4 syll.), engar'ris-on-ing (double r).

French, and German garnison, a "garrison," with en-, "to make," "to supply with" [a garrison]; Low Lat. garnisio; Dutch waarrison; Anglo-Saxon warp, an enclosure, v. wardian, to ward or guard.

Engender, en'jên'.der; to form, to produce: as Meteors are en-gendered in the atmosphere; angry words engender strife.

Engendered, en'jên'.derd; engen'der-ing, engen'der-er.

Fr. engendrer; Lat. genère, supine, génitum, to beget; Gk. gên, ἐγένομαι or ἐγένηθα, to be produced in [something].

Engine, en'jîn, a machine composed of several parts; engineer, en'jîn'er, a maker of engines, one whose vocation is the construction of roads, forts, docks. &c. Military engi-neer, one employed on military works; Civil engineer, 23—2 one employed on works not of a military character;

Engineer’ing, the business of an engineer.

Engine-man, en’-jiner-man, one who works an engine;

Jinny, contraction of engine, with -y, diminutive, a little engine; as a spinning jinny.

French ingénieur, génie, engin; Latin ingenium, a contrivance.

Engird’, past engird’-ed, past part. engirt [or engirded], to gird.

Old Eng. gyrd[an], past. gyrded, p. p. gyrded, with en- for emb., about.

English, In’-glish, pertaining to England (Ingland), the language.

The English, the people of England.

An Englishman, plu. Englishmen. “Englishmen” is the definite plu., as 2, 3, 4, &c., Englishmen, but The English is the indefinite plu. (Rule xlvi., §).

Anglicise, an’-gliciz.e, to make English, to convert to the form and character of English words, &c.; anglicised, an’-gliciz.ed; an’glicis-ing (Rule xix.);

Anglicism, an’-gliciz.ism, an English idiom.

Anglice, an’-glic.e (adv.), in English.

Anglican, an’-glik.an (adj.), English: as the Anglican Church.

Old English Englisc, Englisc-man, Englisc-land, Angol, one who lived in Anglen. It is a pity that the initial A- has been substituted for E- in these latter words, as it dogmatises on a doubtful question.

Engorge’ (2 syl.), to swallow greedily; engorged’ (2 syl.), en-gorg’-ing (Rule xix.), engorge’-ment (Rule xviii.)

French gorger, to gorge; Latin gurgesc, a glutton, gurgitio, the windpipe. En gorge means [to put] into the gorge or throat.

Engraft’, better engraff, to insert a part of one tree into another;

engraft’-ed, better engraffed’ (2 syl.), engraff’-ing, better en Griff’-ing, engraff’-ment, better engraff-ment, engraft-er better engraff-er.

French en greffer, grefeur, greffe (Greek grapho, to scratch). Applied originally to budding, “Greffe,” being French, the prefix en- is better than the Latin prefix in-.

Engrain’ (2 syl.), to dye deeply, to dye in grain; ingrained’

(2 syl.), engrain’-ing, engrain’-er.

French en gréner, to grain leather, grener, to grain; Latin granum, the coccus or scarlet dye, hence the phrase: A knave in grain, a knave though dressed in scarlet.

Engrave, past. engraved, past. part. engraved or engraven;

Engrave’ (2 syl.), to cut characters or drawings on metal, stone, or wood; engraved’ (2 syl.), engrav’-ing (R. xix.), engräven, engrav’-er. An engraving, a design engraved.

Chalcography, kal’kog’ra.fy, engraving on copper.

Greek chalkos grapho, to write on brass or copper.
AND OF SPELLING.

Glyptography, glip'.tōg.rra.fy, engraving on precious stones.
Greek glyptôs graphô, to write on a precious stone.
Lithography, li.řhôg'.rra.fy, engraving on stone. (Gk. lithôs.)
Xylography, xy.lōg'.rra.fy, engraving on wood. (Gk. xulôn.)
Zincography, zîn.kog'.rra.fy, engraving on zinc.

Aquatinta, a'-kwa.tin'-tah, engraving to resemble Indian ink drawings. (Aquatortis is used instead of gravers.)

Mezzotinto, plu. mezzotintoes, med'-zo.tin.'toze, middle or half-tint engravings. (Italian mezzo tinto.)

Old English gra[an]; Greek grapâin; French graver, graveur.

Engross, en.grōs' (not en.grós'), to monopolise, to copy documents in lawyers' writing; engrossed, en.gröst; engross'-ing, engross'-er, engross'-ment.

French grosse, grossir, grossoyer (engrosser has quite another meaning). Our word is gross "large," with en- "to make" [a copy in large writing], "to make or occupy" [a large or undue share].

Engulf' (being French, en- is better than in-, which is Latin) to swallow up; engulfed', engulf'-ing, engulf'-ment.

French engouffrer, to swallow up; Latin gurgês, a whirlpool. Our word is a total mistake. To "engouf" has nothing to do with gulf, a bay (Greek kalpos, a bosom), but is a French perversion of the Latin gurgês, a whirlpool, from gûla, a gullet. Greek gulios or gaulos, a long-necked wallet.

Enhance' (2 syl.), to increase [the value or price]; enhanced' (2 syl.), enhance'-ing, enhance'-er, enhance'-ment (R.xviii.)

Norman enhauencer (hauncer, to raise; French, hausser. Similarly, hausière is the old form of haussiere, a hawser.)

Enharmonic, en'.har.môn'.tk (in Music), applied to notes which change their names only: thus C♯ = D♭, C♮ = A♭.

On keyed instruments, these notes are identical, but theoretically C♯ = D♭ = 1♯ : 4♭ = ♩ : ♯. (See Diatonic.)

Greek enharmônikos [modus], the enharmonic mode, which proceeded by quarter tones. The three "modes" of Grecian music proceeded (1) by whole tones, (2) by half tones, and (3) by quarter tones.

Enhydrous, en.hy'.drus, containing water;

Anhydrous, an.hy'.drus, without water.

Greek enudôs, with water (êvôpos not évôpos); anudôs, without water (dûvôpos not dvôpos); hudôr, water has an aspirate, but it is lost in the compound, and could not be expressed.

Enigma, enîg'.mah, a riddle; enigmatic, e.nîg.mat'.tk; enigmatical, e.nîg.mat'.i.kal'; enigmatical-ly, e.nîg.mat'.ist.

Enigmatisse, e.nîg.ma.tïz', to reduce to an enigmatical form; enigmatisèd (4 syl.), enigmatis-er, enigmatis-ing.

Enig'ma, a riddle in which the puzzle lies in remote or obscure resemblances.

Conun'drum, a riddle in which the puzzle lies in a pun.
Charade, a word dissected, so that each syllable forms a word. If of two syllables, the first syllable is called my first, the next my second, and the entire word my whole.

Logogriph, a word which, deprived of different letters, makes other words: as glass, lass, ass, gas, sal, gals, &c.

Re'bus, a puzzle expressed in hieroglyphics.

Riddle, a general term, including any puzzling question of a trivial nature, the solution of which is to be guessed.

Puzzle, a sensible object, the intricacy of which is to be discovered, or the parts of which are to be pieced together.

"Enigma," French enigme, enigmatique; Latin enigma; Greek aenigma, aenigmatistes, &c. (a enaid, a riddle).

"Conundrum," Old English cunnam dredan, clever-fun.

"Charade," so named from the first syllable.

"Logograph," Greek logos grifhds, a word puzzle.

"Rebus." These were political squibs by the basochiens of Paris, de rebus quae geruntur (on the current events of the day).

"Riddle," Old English rædels, from radan, to interpret.

"Puzzle," Welsh poslad, a questioning, v. postwa.

Enjoin" (2 syl.), to command, to bid; enjoined" (2 syl.), enjoin-ing; enjoin-er, enjoin-ment, but injunction.

French enjoiindre; injonction; Latin injungo, to command, injunctio. (It would be better to retain the same prefix throughout, and write injoin for enjoin. French is our great source of error.)

Enjoy', to take pleasure in; enjoyed' (2 syl.), enjoy-ing (R. xiii.), enjoy-ing-ly, enjoy-ment, enjoyable (Rule xxiii.)

Fr. jouir; Lat. gaudeo (Ennius uses gau), with en-, "to make" [joy].

Enkindle, enkin'dle, to set on fire; enkindled, enkin'dling; enkin'dling.

Welsh cynne, "ignition," with en-, "to make" [an ignition].

Enlarge" (2 syl.); to increase in size; enlarged" (2 syl.), enlar'g-ing (Rule xix.), enlarge-ment (Rule xviii.).

Latin largus; "large," with en-, "to make" [large].

Enlighten, enlit'é'en, to throw light on; enlight'ened (3 syl.), enlight'en-ing, enlight'en-er, enlight'en-ment.

Old English lihtung, "lighting," with en-, "to make" [a lighting]. (The -g- is interpolated, and the term en- stands for -un- [ung].

Enlist', to enroll; enlist'ed (R. xxxvi.), enlist-ing, enlist-ment, voluntary enrollment.

Old Eng. list; Fr. liste, "a roll," with en-, "to make up" [a list].

Enliven, enliv'en, to cheer; enlivened (3 syl.), enliv'en-ing.

Old English lif, "life," with en-, "to make, to give" [life]. The term -en is for -un- [ung] added to verbal nouns.

Enimity; plu. enimities, enmi'tites (Rule xi.), hostility; enemy, plu. enemies, en'mies (Rule xi.), a foe.

Inimical, in'im'i kal, hostile; inimical-ly.

"(It is to be regretted that the Latin prefix in- has not been preserved throughout. The French have a similar inconsistency, though not in the same derivatives.)

French inimité, enemité [1]; Latin inimititia, inimicus (in amicus, not a friend).

Ennoble, en.nô.bîl, to make noble; ennobled, en.nô.bîld; ennoble-ment.

French ennoblier or anoblier, ânoblissemens; Latin nobilitis, "noble," with en- "to make" [noble].

Ennui, ah.nû'we' (not ang'I-we nor ong'I-we), weariness.

French ennui, Italian notiare, to weary.

Enormous, e.nor mâs, very great; enor'mous-ly.

Enormity, plu. enormities, e.nor mâ.tîz, an atrocious crime.

French enormité, énorme; Latin enormitas, enormis (æxnorma, out of rule.)

Enough, sufficient in quantity. Enow, sufficient in number.

Sugar enough, cups enow; tea enough, spoons enow.

(This distinction, very general 40 years ago, is now almost obsolete.)

The adverb and adj. differed in the Anglo-Saxon period, genow (adv.), genah (adj.). "Enough" very absurdly combines both forms.

En passant, ak'n paah's sah'n (Fr.) in passing, cursorily.

Enquire' (2 syl.), to ask; enquired' (2 syl.), enquir'ing (R. xix.), enquir'er, enquiry, plu. enquiries, e.nkwîr'iz; better Inquire (2 syl.), inquired' (2 syl.), inquir'ing, inquir'ing-ly, inquiry, plu. inquiries, in.kwîr'iz (Rule xlv.)

Inquisition, in.kwîz'i.sh'un; inquisitive, in.kwîz'i.tîv; inquisitive-ly, inquisitive-ness, inquisitor, inquisitory. (It is far better to spell all these words with the Latin prefix in- although we have in French the word enquirir. Lat. inquirère, supine inquisitum, to inquire; inquisitio, inquisitor.

Enrage' (2 syl.), to exasperate; enraged' (2 syl.), enräg'-ing.

Fr. enrager; Lat. râvi're, râbies, with en- "to make" [in a rage].

Enrapt', thrown into an ecstacy:

Enrapture, en.râp'.tîchûr, to delight greatly; enrapt'ured, enrapt'ur-ing (Rule xix.)

Enravish, en.ràv'.îsh, to throw into an ecstacy; enravished (3 syl.); enrâv'ish-ing, enrâv'ish-ment (generally used without the prefix en-).

Latin raptus, raptûra, râpio, supine raptum, to ravish.

"Ravish" is from the French ravir, ravissant, ravissement.

Enrich', to make rich; enriched', enrich'ing, enrich'-er, enrich'-ment, accession of wealth.

French enrichir, enrichissement (richesse, riches).

Enrobe' (3 syl.), to array, to invest; enrobbed', enrob'-ing (R. xix.)

French en robe, to put in robes; Low Latin roba.

Enroll (not enrol, Rule x.), to put on a roll or list; enrolled' (2 syl.), enroll'-ing, enroll'-ment.

French enrôler, rôle; Latin rôbûla, with en- "to make" up [a roll].
Ensanguine, en.săn’-guin, to make bloody; ensan’guined (3 syl.), ensăn’guin-ing (Rule xix.)

Latin sanguineus, "bloody," with en- "to make" [bloody].

Ensconce, en.shōnse (no word in the language ends in -onse, and only six words in -ense, Rule xxvi.), to hide, or cover behind a sconce or screen; ensconced, en.shōnöst; ensconcé-ing (Rule xix.)

German schanze, "a fortification," with en-, "to make" [a sconce].

-onse, the termination of only six words in the language, four of which are compounds of "pense": condense and im-mense; dispense, expense, prepense, and recompense. There are nearly 300 words ending in -ence, most of which would have been better in -ense.

Enshrine’ (2 syl.), to put into a shrine; enshrined’ (2 syl.), enshrin’-ing (Rule xix.)

Old English scrin, with en- "to make" (the subject of a shrine).

Enshroud’ (2 syl.), to put into a shroud; enshrouded’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), enshrroud’-ing.

Old English scrud, "a shroud," with en-, "to make" [a shroud].

Ensign, en’.sine, the flag of a regiment, an infantry officer who carries the ensign; ensigncy, en’.sine.sy (-cy, "office").

French ensigne; Latin signum [militare], "an ensign," with en- "to make or carry" [the ensign].

-ensis (Latin ensis, an office), as aman’tensis, a-manu, one at hand; -ensis, one who holds the office of an "a manu."

Enslave’ (2 syl.), to make a slave; enslaved’ (2 syl.), enslāv’-ing (Rule xix.), enslāv’-er, enslavo’-ment (Rule xviii.)

German slave; Low Latin sclavus, with en-, "to make" [a slave.]

Ensnare’ (2 syl.), ensnared’ (2 syl.), ensnār’-ing (Rule xix.)

German schneid: Latin schnārē, "a snare," with en-, "to make" [one the prey of a snare].

Not being Latin, the prefix en- is preferable to in-.

Ensure, ensu’, to follow; ensued’ (2 syl.), ensu’-ing (Rule xix.)

Fr. ensuaire; Lat. insequi, to follow as a consequence (in sequor). Meaning "to arise out of," it is followed by from (French de). Meaning "to come next," it is followed by on.

Ensure, Insure, Assure, en.shure’, in.shure’, as.shure’.

En-, in-, or as-sured’ (2 syl.), en-, in-, as-suring, -shure’-ing.

Ensurance, insurance, assurance, *-shure’-ance. En-, in-, as-surer, *-shure’-or."

Of these three forms insure is by far the worst.

"Ensure," Fr. sûr (Lat. secūrēs), "sure," with en-, "to make" [sure].

Strictly speaking the policy "holder" ensures, the policy "giver" assures; the former "makes his property sure" by taking out a policy, the latter "secures to him" certain sums of money on fixed terms. Similarly from the standpoint of a policy holder the office is an "ensurance," i.e. an office which makes him secure against loss, but from the standpoint of the actuary it is an “assurance,”
AND OF SPELLING.

t. e. an office which “secures to its clients” certain sums of money in proportion to annual payments.

“Insure” is bad Latin, bad French, and bad English.

-ent, -ant (Latin participial endings), an agent: as student,
  informant. -ant denotes a word of the 1st Latin conj.,
-ent a word of some other conj., but the rule is very loosely followed, especially when we have gone to the French for our Latin. (See Rule xxv.)

Entablature, en.tāb.la.tchur (not entableture). It is not tablet, a little table, but Latin tabūla, contracted to tab'la), the whole top part of a pillar, including the architrave, frieze, and cornice.

Latin tabālātum, a scaffold, stage, or storey: en-, “to make,” hence entablature, that which makes a stage, storey, or complete part.

Entail’ (2 syl.), lands, &c., fixed on certain descendants, to fix lands, &c., on certain descendants [as the eldest son]; entailed’ (2 syl.), entail’-ing, entail’-ment, followed by on or upon, but in French by à.

French tailer; Low Latin talliatum [feudum], a fee-tail, tallium, “a fee-tail,” with en-, “to make” [a fee-tail].

Entangle, *entān'g'l, to ravel; entangled, *entān'g'ld; en-tan'gling, entan'gler, entan'glement.

Norse tang, tangle, sea-wrack, called tang in Germ., en-,” to make”
[a tangle like sea-wrack].

Entertain’, en'terén, to come in. Inter, in'ter, to bury.

En'ter, en'tered (2 syl.), en'ter-ing, en'trance (2 syl.), en'try.

Inter’, interred’ (2 syl.), interr’-ing, inter’-ment.

“Enter,” is used both transitively and intransitively: Thus we say
He entered the house, or entered into the house; but when used to signify “engage in,” to be “an ingredient of,” it is always followed by into: as I entered into partnership with …; teat enters into the composition of pewter; and when it means to “begin,” it is followed by on; as I enter on my tenth year …

French entrer, entrée; Latin in'terare, intrans.

“Inter” would be better with double r; Lat. in-terra (in the earth).

Enteritis, en'terītis, inflammation of the intestines.

Gr. entera, the bowels; -itis, denoting “inflammation” [of the bowels].

Enterprise, *en'ter.priz̩*e, an adventure, an undertaking; en'ter-pris-ing (adj.), adventurous, bold; en'terprising-ly.

French entreprise; Latin inter prōhendo supine prōhensum, to take in hand with others (entre is reciprocal in composition).

Entertain’, to treat with hospitality, to amuse; entertain’ed
(3 syl.), *entertain’-ing, entertain’-ing-ly, entertain’er; entertain’-ment, a feast, an amusement.

French entretenir, entretenion, maintenance, to hold things together.

(Our use of this word is widely apart from that in France. No Frenchman would consider “entretenir” = donner l'hospitalité, or directir. The French idea of “keep” conveyed by this word is not complimentary, except when applied to things.)
Enthral, *en.thrawl', to make captive; enthralled' (2 syl.), enthral'ing (Rule iv.), enthral' er, enthral' ment.
Old English *thrall, "a servant," with *en- "to make" [a thrall]. "Enthral" is nonsense. The double * should be restored.

Enthrone, to invest with sovereignty, to install; enthroned' (2 syl.), enthron' ing; enthron'e ment; enthronization (R. xxxii.), en 'thrō.ni.zay'shun, installation of a bishop.

Lat. *thrōnus; Greek *thrōnos (thrānos, a bench, v. *thrō, to sit down), Enthronize, to seat on a throne. "Our word is from the Greek.

Enthusiasm; enthu' si.azm,' zeal, fanaticism ; Enthusiast, en'thu.si. ast" one ardently devoted' to some object; enthusiastic, en' plus.a.ti.ik; enthusiastical, en' plus.a. ti. kal; enthuasiastical-ly.

Latin enthusiasmus, enthu'siasta; Greek enthousiasmós, entho' siasticós, enthusiasticós; French enthousiasme, entusiaste, enthousias'me (en theos -anos, the state of being in a god, i.e. inspired.)

Enthymeme, *en. thei.mem, a syllogism with one of the premises suppressed: As, [dependent creatures should be humble] We are dependent creatures, and therefore should be humble. The major prop. in brackets being suppressed.

French enthymème; Lat. enthymēma; Greek enthūmēma (en thumo - one premise] in the mind [only].

Entice (2 syl.), to allure; enticed' (2 syl.); entic-ing, en'ti.cing'il; entic-er, en'tic.er; entice'-ment (R. xvii.).
This is a French word which has received with us quite a new meaning. In French it means to incite, not to allure or seduce." The word is *attiser, to stir a fire, or rather to "touch the burning logs to make them burn better" (tison, a burning log). Spanish atisar, to stir a fire; tison, smouldering wood; tizono, a poker. Italian tizzone, a firebrand. Our idea seems to be derived from the custom of enticing birds, &c., by lighted brands, i.e. [to attract] to the firebrand, at [to] or en [into] tison, [the burning brand].

Entire' (2 syl.), complete, unadulterated; entire ly, entire ness; entire ty, integrity, entire state.

French enter; intéger, entire (in tango or tango, not touched).

Entitle, *ent.i.t'il, to qualify, to give a title or a right to [someone]; entitled, en'ti.t'il'd; entitling, en'ti.t'il.ing.
Old English titil, "a title," with en-, "to make or give" [a title]; French entitulier; (Latin titulātus, a title).

Entity, plu. entities, en'ti.ti.tiz (R. xliiv.), existence, a real being.
Non-entity, plu. nonentities, what has no real being, a person of no influence (a no-one).
French entité; Latin ens, gen. entis, an entity or real being.

Ento- (Greek prefix), within.

Entozoan, plu. entozoaa, en'to.zo" oh, en'to.zoo" ah (not en'to.zoon"), an animal which lives within the body of other animals, especially in the intestines; entozoic, en'to.zo" ik, adj. (not en'to.zoik).
Greek entös zoan, an animal within [the body of other animals].
Entomology, entomölog".o.gy; treats of the history and habits of insects; entomologist, ent-omöl".o.jist; entomological, ent-omö-loj"-i-kal; entomölogical.

Greek entomon lógos, a discourse about insects; French entomologie.

Entomoid, ent-omoid, like an insect. (Gk. entomôn eidos.)

Entomolite, entom".o.lite, a fossil insect.

Greek entomôn lithos, an insect [of] stone, i.e. fossilised.

Greek entomon phuao, to devour insects.

Entomobranchiathan, entomostométhan, one of the entomostométhans, pertaining to the...; entomós".-trá.kanz; entomosteora, entom".os".trá.kah, a sub-class of crustaceans.

It will be observed that these words beginning with ento- are not connected with the Greek prefix ento- within, but with entomon, an insect, which is en-temnein, to cut into [parts], as "insect" is insectum (Latin), cut into [parts].

Entozoon, ent-ozoon; entozoa, ent-ozö".ah.* (See above, Ento-*) Entrails (pl.), ent".trálz, the intestines. (Sing. rarely used.)

French entrailles; Low Latin enteralium; Greek entéra; intestines.

Entram'mel, to obstruct, to entangle; entram'melled (3 syl.), entram'mell-ing (Rule iii., -e), entrammell-er.

(These words should not have double l.)

Fr. tramail, a drag-net, with en-，“to make”[the captive of a drag net].

Entrance, entrance (noun), entrance (verb).

Entrance’ better *entrance’, to ravish with delight; entranced’ better entransed’ (3 syl.), entrânc’-ing better entrâns’-ing, entrânc’-ment better entrâns’-ment.

“Entrance,” French entrer; Latin trans, into; to enter.

"Entrance." If this is from the French trans, the meaning has been quite perverted. Trans means "a panic," not an ecstasy: but probably it is the Latin transsecro, transitus, another form of "transport," which is transporto. (Transitus; past or gone over; transportus, carried over.) The allusion is to the notion that the spirit, in a "transc" is carried or passes out of the body.
(See 2 Cor. xi., 2-4.)

Entrap’, to catch in a trap; entrapp’ed (3 syl.), entrapp’-ing (Rule iii.), entrapp’-er.

Old English troppe or *trappe", “a snare,” with *en-", “to make” [the captive of a snare].

Entreat, entreet’, to solicit; entreat’-ed (3 syl., Rule xxxvi.), entreat’-ing, entreat’-ing-ly, entreat’-er.

Entreat’y, plu. entreaties, entreet".tîz (Rule xliv.)

French en trailer; Latin in tracto, to struggle for something.
Entree, ah'n' tr ay' (French), the right of entry, a "subsidiary" dish of meat handed round to the guests.

Entremets, ah'n' tr.may (French), dainty side-dishes.

In French an entrée is a relish served at the beginning of dinner to "whet the appetite," and an entremets a relish served after the main joints have been removed (entremets, a dish between [dinner and dessert]). Our use of these words is very slip-shod.

Entrepot (French) ah'n' tr'pō, a warehouse, a storehouse.

This is entre dépôt, a half-way dépôt, lieu où l'on met en dépôt des marchandises que l'on veut porter plus loin.

Entresol, ah'ntr'sole (French), a room between the ground-floor and the premier étage [prémn'.e.ā a. tay'].

Sol, the ground-plot or floor; entre sol, between the ground-floor and the first floor or best apartment.

Entrench' (not intrench), to make a trench round [something]; entrenched' (2 syl.), entrench' ing, entrench' ment.

Intrench' chant, not to be cut or wounded.

This last word shows that intrench should mean "not cut," and therefore never should have been used for the word entrench which is tranchée (French) "a trench," with en-, "to make" [a trench].

Entroplum, en.trōp't.um, a turning inwards of the eyelashes.

Greek en trōpē, a turning inwards.

Entrust, to confide to another; entrust'ed, entrust' ing.

Old English treoth, "a pledge," with en-, "to make" [a pledge]. To "entrust," is to confide something to another "as a pledge."

Entry, plu. entries, en'tris (Rule xliv.), a place by which persons enter, the right of entrance, registration in a book, taking possession of real property, a writ of possession.

Single Entry, a system of book-keeping in which the items are posted only once, generally under the buyer's name.

Double Entry, a system of book-keeping in which every item is posted twice, once on the Dr. side and once on the Cr. side, under reverse conditions.

French entrée (by double entry, en partie double; by single entry, en partie simple). (See Enter and Entrance.)

Entwine, en.twille', to wreath; entwined' (2 syl.), 'entwine' ing (Rule xix.), entwin' er, entwine' ment (better with in-).

Old Eng. tun,[an], to twine ; in-twine, to twine together.

Enumerate, e.nu'm.re.ate, to reckon up one by one; enu'mere-rat-ed (R.xxxvi.), e.nu'mèrati-ing, e.nu'merat-or (R.xxxvii.); enumeration, e.nu'm.re.ay'.shun; enumerative, -tiv.

French numérer, numération, numératif; Latin ennumeratio, enumératio, supine ennumération, to reckon up.

Enunciate, e.nu'n.s.at.e, to make known; e.nu'n.ciät-ed (R.xxxvi.), e.nu'n.ciät-ing; enunciation, e.nu'n.si.ay'.shun; enu-n(ciati-ve, e.nu'n.si.ativ; enu'niciator, enu'niciatory.

Latin enunciation, a proposition; enunciativus, enu nciator, enunciāre (enuncio, to announce aloud, to disclose.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Enure, én.úrés’ (better than inure), to habituate; enured’ (2 syl.), enúr’-ing (Rule xix.)
Norm. Fr. uré, “practice,” with en-, “to make or effect” [by practice].

Envelope (noun), en’ve.lope. Envelop (verb), en’vel’op (R. li.)
Envel’op, en’vel’oped (3 syl.), envel’op-ing, envel’op-ment, to cover with a wrapper, to cover entirely. (One t, one p.)

En’velope, a wrapper for letters, &c.
French envelopper (with double p), enveloppe, enveloppement; Italian viluppo, a bundle or packet; inviluppàre, to wrap up.

Enven’om, to impregnate with venom; enven’omed (3 syl.), enven’om-ing.
Fr. envenimor (!?); Lat. venenum, with en-, “to infuse” [poison].

Enviable, en’vi.ábel; envious, en’vi.ús. (See Envy.)

French environner, environs (plu.), évier, to turn round.

En’voy, plu. envoys, en’voiz (Rule xlv.), a state messenger; en’voy-ship, the office of envoy (-ship, Old Eng. office).

En’vy, vexation at another’s good, to feel vexed at another’s good, to grudge; en’vies, en’v’z (3rd pers. sing.); en’vied, en’vi’ed; en’vi-er, en’vi-able, en’viable-ness, en’viable; envious, en’vi.ús; en’vious-ly, en’vious-ness, envy-ing.
French envie, envier, envieux; Latin invidia, invidiósus, r. invidéo (to see into one). “Envy” means a looking too closely into another.

Enwrap, en’rap’, to cover (and tie up with string or cord); en’wrapped, en’rap’t; enwrapp-ing, en’rap’-ing (Rule i.)
Old English rág, “a cord,” with en-, “to fasten” [with a cord]. The force of en- is to convert the noun into a verb.

Eocene [period], é.ó.seen (in Geol.); the earliest of the four tertiary periods, which consist of the following divisions:

Plistocene, pli’s. sto. seen, nearest the earth’s surface.
Greek pleisís kainós, the most recent.

Pliocene, pli’o.seen, more recent than the group below.
Greek pléion kainós, more recent than the “miocene.”

Miocene, mi’o.seen, less recent than the two groups above.
Greek melón kainós, less recent than the “pliocene.”

Eocene, é.o.seen, the dawn of modern [times].
Greek éós kainós, recent dawn; i.e., the dawn of modern times.

Eolian, é.o’.li.an (ought to be e.ól’.i.an), pertaining to Ηelos (E’.ól.us), god of the winds; Ηolic, e.ól’.ik (not e.ó’.ik), pertaining to Ηelia (E.ól’.i.a), in Greece.

Eolipile, e.ól’.i.pile, an hydraulic instrument.
Latin Ηeolí pile, the ball of Ηelos. Its object is to exhibit the convertibility of water into steam.

-eon (Fr. termination of nouns), an instrument: as truncheon.
E' on (in Platonick philosophy), an attribute. The Platonists taught that Deity is an assemblage of eons (attributes); the Gnostics taught that eons are corporeal “out-comes” of deity, fellow-workers in creation. (Greek atón.)

Ep-, for epi-. (Greek prefix before a vowel), on, upon, during.

Epact, e' pakt, the excess of the solar over the lunar year. The annual excess is nearly eleven days.

Greek epaktós, adventitious (epi agd, to bring upon or add).

Epaulet, ep'aulé't, a badge worn on the shoulder; epaulétt-ed (Rule iii., -x), furnished with epaulets.

French épaulotte (épaule, Latin scápula, the shoulders).

Epergne, e.pern', an ornamental dish for the centre of a dinner table, generally elevated and furnished with branches. This is an example of a French word used by us in a sense quite foreign to its French meaning. What we call an “epergne,” the French call a sortout; what we call a “sortout” they call a par-dessus. The word should be spelt epargne.

French épargne, parsimony, a treasury. Our epergne is a little “treasury” of sweetmeats, fruits, and flowers. Caisse d’épargne, a savings bank where very small deposits are taken. (Germ. sparen.)

Eph- (Greek prefix epi-), before an aspirate.

Ephemeris, plu. ephemérides, ephémé.riis, ephémé'ry.dees, an almanac of the daily positions of a heavenly body: as the epheméris of the sun, &c.; ephemérist, ephemé'rist, one who studies the daily motions of the planets by means of an epheméris. (phe-long in the Greek.)

Greek éphéméria, éphéméris, ephemérides; Latin epheméris, epheméron, plu. epheméra; French éphémeré, éphémérides.

Ephesus, Efiζ.ου.αν., pertaining to Ephesus (Ef'fe.sus).

Ephod, e' hod, a garment worn by the Jewish priesthood.

Epi- (Greek prefix), on, upon, during, consequent on.

Ep- before a vowel: as epact (ep agd).

Eph- before an aspirate: as ephemera (eph hé'mera).

Epi- before a consonant: as epiderm (epi derma).

Epic [poem], a narrative in heroic verse: as Homer’s Iliad and Odyssey (Greek), Virgil’s Ænēid (Latin), Tasso’s Jerusalem Delivered and Dante’s Divina Comédia (Italian), Camões’s Lusiad (Portuguese), and Milton’s Paradise Lost.

Latin epicus: Greek epikós; French épique (Greek épós, a word).

Epicarp, ep' i.karp, the outer skin of fruits;

Sarcocarp, sar'ko.karp, the fleshy or edible part of fruits;

Endocarp, the stone or kernel of fruits.

Greek epi karpos, upon the fruit; sark nó karpos, fleshy fruit; endo karpos, inside the fruit.
Epicene, ep'ic'en (in Gram.), common to both sexes.
Latin epičenus, of both genders; Greek epi koínōs, in common.

Epicure, ep'ik'yur (Gr., "eating to both extremes.
Latin epi kōrē, the habits of an epicure;
Epicureanism, ep'i.kur.e-iz'm, the tenets of Epicurus.
Epicureize (R. xxxii.), ep'i.kur.iz, to live like an epicure; epicurized (R. xix.), ep'i.kur.iz-ing.
Latin Epicurus; Greek Epikouros, a Greek philosopher who taught that "happiness is the end and aim of life," but "happiness" has been perverted into the pleasures of the table.

Epicycle, *ep'i.s'ik*l, a little circle whose centre is on the circumference of a greater circle.

Epicycloid, ep'i.s'ik'l'oid, a curve described by the movement of the circumference of one circle on the circumference of another; epicycloidal, ep'i.s'ikl'idel (adj.).

Greek epi kuklōs, upon [another] circle; "epicycloid" is epicycle eidos, resembling an epicycle.

Epidemic, ep'i.de'm (Gr., "upon the people"); epidemic, ep'i.de'm (Gr., "upon the people"); epidemic, ep'i.de'm (Gr., "upon the people"); epidemiological, ep'i.de'm.o.lo'ji, a medical treatise on the subject of epidemics; epidemiological, ep'i.de'm.o.lo'ji.

Epidemic disease, a disease of a temporary character not limited to one locality.

Endemic disease, a temporary disease limited to a locality.

Contagious disease, a disease communicated by contact.

An epidemic is diffused by disease spores (1 syl.) in the air. Greek epidēmos, popular, general, diffused throughout the nation.

An endemic is due to bad drainage, or other local conditions. Greek endēmos, at home, local, limited to one spot.

A contagion is communicated, like the plague, by contact.

Latin contágio (con tago, i.e. tanjo, to touch together).

Epidermic, en'der.m (Gr., "purpur").

Epidermic (adj.), pertaining to the outer skin or cuticle.

Endermic (adj.), something put on the skin, to be absorbed by it. (Greek en derma, [put] on the skin.)

Epidermal, *ep'i.der.m*l, same as epidermic.

Epiderm or epidermis, ep'i.dér'm or ep'i.der.∗m (Gr., "purpur", the scarf, the cuticle (kū'ti.kū'l) or outer skin of the body.

Gk. epi derma, [the skin] upon the skin; Fr. épidermique, épiderme.
Epigastric, pertaining to the upper part of the abdomen.

Epigastrium, ep'i.gāstr'ium, popularly called “the pit of the stomach.” (No connection with the word gas.)

Gk. epi gastér, upon or above the paunch; Fr. épigastre, épigastrique.

Epigee, ep'i.jē, same as Perigee (q.v.)

Epigenesis, ep'i.jēn'ē.sis. Evolution, ē.vo.lū.shun.

Evolution is that theory of generation which considers the germ to pre-exist in the parent, or “Whose seed is in itself” (Gen. i. 11, 12), and this germ being “evolved” becomes an offspring.

Epigenesis, the theory which considers that the germ does not pre-exist, that “the seed is not in the parent stock,” but is produced. Thus, in a flower, according to this theory, the “embryo” does not pre-exist in the parent flower, but is generated as well as evolved by the fecundating organs of the plants.

Gk. epigénesis, [the germ] born after [the parent stock had existence].

Epiglottis, ep'i.glōt'tis, the valve which covers the orifice of the windpipe when food or drink is swallowed; epiglot'tic.

(The “-o-” is long in the Greek glōttis.)

Greek epi glōttis, on [the root of] the tongue; French épiglotte.

Epigone, *ep'i.gō.nē (in Bot.), the cellular layer which, in mosses, covers the young seed-case. Epigoni, e.pig'o.ni, the seven sons of seven Grecian chiefs, who conducted, without success, the first mythical war against Thebes.

“Epigone,” Greek epi gōnē, upon the seed [case].

“Epigoni,” Greek epi-gōnōi, offspring.

Epigram, ep'i.grām, a single idea in verse so contrived as to surprise the reader with a witticism or ingenious turn of thought; epigrammatic, ep'i.grām.māt'ic (double m), of the nature of an epigram; epigrammatical (double m), ep'i.grām.māt'i.čl; epigrammatic'al-ly.

Epigrammatist, ep'i.grām'-ma.tis't, a writer of epigrams.

Gk. epigrama (epigrapho, [an inscription] written upon [something]). “In-scription” (Latin in scribo) and “epi-gram” (Greek epi grapho) both mean “written-on” [something].

Epigraph, ep'i.grāf, an inscription on a building, a citation heading a chapter, a motto on the title-page of a book.

Greek epi graphō, written upon [the building, chapter, &c.]

Epilepsy, ep'i.lēp'sy, the “falling-sickness”; epileptic, ep'i.lēp'tik, affected with epilepsy; epileptic (-tīk, long in Gk.)

Greek epilepsia, epileptikōs (epi lamba nó, to seize on [one]).

Epilogue, ep'i.lōg, an address in prose or verse made to the audience at the close of a drama.
Prologue, proˈlɒg, an address in prose or verse preceding a poem or drama.

The vile ending of these words shows we have taken them from the French. The -ue is quite un-English and worse than useless.

French épilogue and prologue; Greek epílógos and prólogo; Latin epílógos and prólogo.

Epiphany, eˌpɪfəˈni, a church festival held on the 6th January, to commemorate the visit of the "wise men from the East" to the child Jesus.

Greek epífánia, the manifestation [of Christ to the Gentiles]; épi phainó, to show oneself, to present oneself to others.

Epiphyte, eˌpɪfɪt, a parasitic plant; epiphytic, eˌpɪfɪˈtɪk (adj.) A parasitic animal is an epizoon, eˌpɪˈzoʊn.

Greek epí phytoN, [a plant growing] on a plant.

Episcopacy, eˌpɪsɪkˈɒpəsɪ, church government by bishops, the order of bishops in a country; episcopal, eˌpɪsɪˈkɒpəl; episcopalian, eˌpɪsɪˈkɒpələn; a member of the episcopal church of England; episcopalianism, eˌpɪsɪˈkɒpəliənɪzəm, the system of church government by bishops; episcopate, eˌpɪsɪˈkɒpt,ət; the office, order, or rank of bishop.

Episode, eˌpɪˈsoʊd, a digressive narrative interwoven into the main narrative of an epic poem, &c.; episodic, eˌpɪˈsoʊdɪk; of the nature of an episode; episodical, eˌpɪˈsoʊdiəl; episodically. (Has no connection with ode.)

Greek epeisódion, an adventitious part of a narrative poem (epi eisodós). The entrances of the chorus in the ancient Greek dramas were called eisodoi (the roads in), the epi-eis6doi is the part between these eisodoi, hence called epi-eis6doi, or intervening matter.

Epistle, eˌpɪsˈlɪt, a letter; epistolary, eˌpɪsˈtələrɪ (adj.); epistolographer, eˌpɪsˌtoʊˈloʊɡrɛfə; epistolraphy.

Greek επιστολή; Latin epistōla, epistolare; French épistolographe.

Epithalamium, eˌpɪtəˈlæmiəm, a bridal song.

Greek επιθαλάμιον (epi thálāmiōn, [a song] on the bridal subject).

Epithet, eˌpɪthɛt, an elucidative word; epithetˈɪc.

Greek επιθέτος (epi thē tômi, [a word] added to [another]).

Epitome, eˌpɪtəˈoʊmɪ,ə; an abridgment, a summary.

Epitomise, eˌpɪtəˈmɪz, epitomised ([syl.], epitomis-ing (Rule xix.), epitomˈɪsər; epitomist.

Greek επιτόμο (epi tómο, to cut into, to gash); Latin epitóma.

Epizoon, eˌpɪˈzoʊn (not eˌpɪˈzoʊn), a parasitic animal; epizootic, eˌpɪzʊˈtɪk. A parasitic plant is an epiphyte, eˌpɪˈfɪt. 24
Entozoon, en'to.zō'ən, an animal which lives inside another.

Greek epi zdōn, [an animal living] upon [another] animal.

(Every word beginning with epi- is from the Greek.)

Epoch. Era; e'pōk, ə'rah, age (1 syl.)

An epoch is not continuous, but is simply that point of time marked by some important event, from which future years are counted.

An era is continuous. It starts from some epoch, and continues till a new epoch introduces a new era.

An age is a period of time distinguished by some characteristic, but not ushered in by any epoch or striking event:

Thus the birth of Christ was the epoch from which the Christian era began.

The present period is the “age of coal.” We have had the golden age, silver age, iron age, and age of bronze.

Greek epocēd (*epi*ō*ē*chō); to hold back, to stop, to pause, because the preceding era “stops” at the new epoch, from which a new era begins; Latin epocha; French époqüe.

Epode, ep'ōdē, the third and last part of an ode; epodé, ep'o.dē.ik.

Greek epōdē (epi ἀδό, i.e. aēdō, to sing an addition song).

Eponym, ep'o.nīm, a race or tribe name from some founder.

Anonym, an'o.nīm, one without a name.

Pseudonym, su'do.nīm, a false or assumed name.

Synonym, sin'o.nīm, a word of the same meaning as another.

(We have followed the Latin forms in these words, but it would be hard to say why ōnāma was preferred to the more regular ōnāma.)

“Eponym” is no Latin word, but is formed on the Latin type.

Greek ep (epi) ōnāma for ōnāma, from [a man’s] name.

“Anonymous,” Lat. anōnymus; Gk. an [another ōnāma], without a name.

“Pseudonym,” Lat. pseudōnymus; Gk. pseudes ōnāma, false name.

“Synonym,” Greek sun ōnāma [another name] with your own name.

Epsilon, ep'sōlōn (not ep'sō.lōn), the Greek short e (e). Greek psēlō, naked, bare; v. psēlō, to rub quite bare.

Epsom Salt (not Epsom salts), sulphate of magnesia, originally obtained by evaporation from certain springs in Epsom (Surrey). The manufactured article is called Epsomite.

(-ite, in chemistry, denotes a salt formed from an acid with a salifiable base. Epsomite has magnesia for its base.)

Equable, ek'wō.bl, even, uniform; equable-ness, equably (adv.); equability, ek.wō.bil'·tē.

Equal (noun and verb), ek'wōl; e'qualled (2 syl.; Rule iii., -el), e'quall-ing, e'qual-ly (adv.), equal-ness.

Equal-ise, e'kwōl'iz (Rule xxxi.); e'qual-ised (3 syl.), e'qualis-ing; equalisation, e'kwōl'i.zay'shun.

Errors of Speech
Equality, \textit{plu. equalities} (\textit{L}atin \textit{aequalis}), \textit{equiv.} \textit{\ae quall} (\textit{Rule xliv.).}

("Equalled" and "equalling" ought to have only one "l.")

Latin \textit{aequalis, æqualitas, æqualitis, æquabilitas}, \textit{v. æquare.}

Equanimity, \textit{æequantimity}, steadiness of temper.

Latin \textit{æquanimitas} (\textit{ánimus}, evenness of mind).

Equation, \textit{ækwâ'shun}, an algebraic process for discovering an unknown quantity. Take this very simple example: \textit{If 10 lbs. of sugar cost 5s., what is that per pound?}

Let \( x \) represent a pound of sugar. Then by the terms given \( 10x = 5s. \), or \( 60d. \). That is the equation, and \( x \) the unknown quantity whose value is to be discovered. \textit{Divide both sides by 10, and we get 10 \div 10x = 50d. \div 10, or \( x = 6d. \).—Ans.}

\textit{Equate, ækwâ'te\', to reduce to an equation; equâted (Rule xxxvi.), equâting (Rule xix.).}

\textit{French equation; Latin æquilîo (æquus, equal).}

\textit{Equator, ækwâ'tor, the great circle which hypothetically divides the globe into two hemispheres, one N. and the other S.; equatorial, ækwâ.tor'ri.ûl; equator'ial-ly.}

\textit{French équateur, équatorial; Latin æquâtor (æquus, equal).}

Equerry, an officer in \textit{a prince's} household, who has charge of the horses. \textit{(Double \( r \) a blunder.)}

\textit{(This is a disgraceful word, being in the first place a perversion of the French écurie, a stable; and next a blunder for ecuyer, the gentleman master of the royal stables.) Latin æquus, a horse.}

\textit{Equestrian, ækwâ's.tri.ûn, a horseman.}

\textit{Lat. æquestris, pertaining to a horse; Fr. équeire. Our word is ill-chosen, because æquestria (Lat.) means the benches in the theatre appropriated to the knights, and équestrian should be its adj.}

\textit{Equi-, ækwî. (Latin æqui-), equal.}

\textit{(Every word, except equip and its derivatives, beginning with equi-, is from the Latin, or has been formed of Latin elements.)}

\textit{Equiangular, ækwî.i.ùn'gu.lar, having equal angles.}

\textit{Latin æqui-angulâris (æquus angûlis); French équangle.}

\textit{Equidistant, ækwî.dis'tant, at equal distances.}

\textit{Latin æqui-distans (æ quo distans); French équidistant.}

\textit{Equilateral, ækwî.lât'érál, having equal sides.}

\textit{Lat. æqui-latéralis (æquus lâtûs, gen. lâtûris); French équilateral.}

\textit{Equilibrium, ækwî.li.ûm, equal balance.}

\textit{Latin æqui-librum (æquus libra, a balance); French équilibre.}

\textit{Equimultiple, ækwî.mûl'ti.pûl, an equal multiple, a number multiplied by the same multiplier as another.}

\textit{This word exists neither in Latin nor French. It is compounded of æqui- and -mûl' (French). Latin multipûco, to multiply.}

\textit{Equine, æk'wine, pertaining to the horse. Equidæ, æk'wû.de, the horse tribe. (Latin æquìnus; æquus, a horse.)}
Equinox, e.kwɪ.nɒks, the time when a solar day has the sun twelve hours above the horizon, and twelve hours below (March 21st and September 23rd).

Equinoctial, e.kwɪ.nəkˈtʃəl, occurring at the time of the equinoxes, pertaining to the equinoxes; equinoctial-ly.

Latin equi-noctium, equi-noctialis; French équinoxe, équinéxial.

Equip, e.kwɪp, to fit out with all that is required; equipped* (2 syl.), equipp-ing (Rule iv. "Qu" = kw, is treated as a consonant); equip-ment; equipage, e.kwɪ.ˈpɑːdʒ. Fr. équipier, équipage, équipement (équip, a boat or skiff). It originally meant a ship furnished with its complement of boats. Roquefort.

Equipoise, e.kwɪ.ˈpoɪs, equilibrium, equality of weight.

This word exists neither in Latin nor French. It is compounded of aequi- and pondus. French poids (weights). "Avoirdupoise" shows the same word, poids for ponds.

Equiponderant, e.kwɪ.ˈpɔn.ˈdər.ənt, being of the same weight; equiponderance, e.kwɪ.ˈpɔn.ˈdər.əns, equipoise.

French équiponérant, équiponérance; Latin aequī ponderāris, v. ponderāre, to weigh [equally].

Equisetaceae, e.kwɪ.ˈsɛt.əˌziː.əˌsiː, the horse-tail and other plants of the same order; equisetum, e.kwɪ.ˈsɛt.əˌtə.ˈtum, a single specimen of the order; plu. equisētā or equisētūms.

Equisetite, e.kwɪ.ˈsɛt.əˌtɪt. a fossil equisetum.

Latin aequisētum and aequisētis (aequi sētā, horse's bristle). In Bot., -aceae denotes an order of plants. In Geol., -ite denotes a fossil.

Equitable, e.kwɪ.ˈtə.bəl, just, fair; equitable-ness, equitably.

Equity, e.kwɪ.ˈtɪti, justice even if not in conformity with the rigid letter of law; Court of equity, plu. Courts of equity, courts in which justice is administered according to previous judgments, with discretionary power in the judge.

Latin aequitas (aequus, equal); French équitable, équité.

Equivalent, e.kwɪv.ˈə.lent, equal in value, compensation; equiv'alent-ly, equiv'alent, equiv'alency, plu. -encies. Lat. æquivalentia, æquivalentes gen. æquivalentis; Fr. équivalent.

Equivocal, e.kwɪv.ˈə.kəl, doubtful, bearing two meanings; equiv'ocal-ness, equiv'ocal-ly.

Equivocate, e.kwɪv.ˈə.kɑːt, to quibble; equivocat-ed (R. xxvii.), equivocat-ing (R. xix.), equivocat-or (R. xxvii); equivocatory, e.kwɪv.ˈə.kɑː.tɔr.ə, equivoque, e.kwɪv.ˈə.vɑːk.ə, a quibble; equivocation, e.kwɪv.ˈə.kɑː.ʃən.

Latin æquirocōnis, æquirocātio, æquirocātor (æque vōco, to call two things equally [by our names]); French équivoque.

-er (termination of verbal nouns) means an agent, a doer: as ruler; (added to nouns) and meaning an agent, it is sometimes -ster: as walt-ster; (added to names of places) it...
AND OF SPELLING.

means an inhabitant of that place: as London-er; (after t- and s-) the termination of verbal nouns from the Latin is generally -or: as act-or, spons-or.

-er, the comparative affix (Ang.-Sax. ær, before, superior): as great-er. (The superlative affix is -est.)

This comparative is used with almost all monosyllables capable of comparison: as full, full-er.

With most dissyllabic adjectives accented on the final syl.; as genteel', genteeel' er.

With adjectives of two syllables in which the last syllable is elided: as able, abl-er.

With many adjectives of two syllables ending in -y.

If an adjective comes under Rule i., the final consonant is doubled: as red, redd-er.

If it comes under Rule xi., the -y is changed to -i: as happy, happi-er.

If it comes under Rule xix., the final -e is dropped: as polite, polit-er.

Era, epoch, age; e'.rah, e'.pök, age (1 syl.)

Era, a succession of years dating from some important event.

Epoch, an important event from which an era begins.

Age, a period of time characterised by some leading feature.

The birth of Christ was an epoch, from which the Christian era begins.

The iron age is a period of history characterised by incessant wars.

Latin æra, epōca; French ére, époque, age (Latin aias).

Eradicate, e.rād'-i.kate, to root out; erad'icat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), erad'icat-ing, erad'icat-or (Rule xxxvii.); eradicable, e.rād'-i.kā.b'l; erad'icable-ness, erad'icably; eradication, e.rād'-i.kay'-shun; eradicative, e.rād'-i.kā.t'iv.

Latin erad'icāre, supine erad'icātum (e radix, [pulled up] from the roots); French eradication.

Erase, e.rās'-e, to scratch out; erased' (2 syl.), erās'-ing (R. xix.); erās'-er; erasure, e-ray'-zhur; erasable, e-ray'-sa.bl (Rule xxiii.); erase'-ment, effacement.

Latin erādērē, supine erādēsus; French raser, to shave.

Ere, air; e'er, air; ear, ē'r; air; are, ēr; heir, air; here, hē'r; hear, hē'r; hair; hare (1 syl.)

Ere, air, before in time, sooner. (Old English ēr.)

E'er, contraction of ever. (Old English ēfer.)

Ear, ē'r, organ of hearing. (Old English cār.)
Air, atmosphere. (Latin aer.)

Are = r (Norse plural of the Anglo-Saxon beð).

Heir, air, the next male successor. (Latin hærēs.)

Here, hēr, in this place. (Old English hér.)

Hear, hēr, to apprehend with the “ear.” (Old Eng. hēr [an].)

Hair of the head. (Old English hār.)

Hare (1 syl.), a quadruped so called. (Old English hāra.)

Erect, e.rekt’, upright, to raise, to build, to set up; erect’-ed (R. xxxvi.), erect’-ing; erect’-ness, erect’-ly, erect’-able (R. xviii.); erectile, e.rekt’il, that which may be erected.

Erect’-er, one who erects; erect’-or, a muscle which erects.

Erection, e.rek’shun, an uprising, a building, &c.

French érection, érecteur (muscle); Latin erectio, erector, erectus, v. erigere, supine erectum (e rego, to guide forth).

-erel (diminutive): as cock, cockerel, a little chantecler.

Eremite, e.re‘mīt, a hermit. (The -re- is long in Greek.)

Gk. erēmites (erēmia, a desert). “Hermit” is a perversion of eremite.

Erin, e‘rin, Ireland. (Keltic Eri or Iar and innis, Western island.)

Erīsa, e.ri’sah, a flower.

Greek ereiko, to break. Supposed to break the stone in the bladder.

Ermine, er‘mīn, one of the weasel kind, a fur; ermined (2 syl.)

French hermine, I.e. d’Arménie, the animal from Armenia.

Erone, e.rode’, to gnaw away; erōd’-ed, erōd’-ing; erōd’-ent.

Eroton, e.ro’tion, pertaining to love: as erotic poetry, love songs.

French érotique; Greek erōtikos (poetry of éros, love, o long).

Erpetology better herpetology, her’pe.tōl’ogy, that part of natural science which treats of reptiles; herpetologist better herpetologist, her’pe.tōl’ogist.

(The erroneous spelling, as usual, is from the French.)

French erpetologie; Greek herpeton, a reptile (herpō, to creep), with logos, a discourse on [reptiles]; -ist, Greek -istēs, one who.

Err, to wander, to be in error. (One of the 14 monosyllables [not in f, l, or s] which double the final letter: as add, odd; berr, err; bitt, butt; ebb, egg; buzz and whizz, R. vii.)

Err, erred (1 syl.), err’-ing, err’-ing-ly, err’-er, one who errs;

Error, ēr’‘er, a mistake; erroneous, ēr’ō.neus; erro’neous-ly, erro’neous-ness; erro’ne-ist.

Errand, ēr’‘and, a message; errand-boy, a boy messenger.

Errant, ēr’‘ant, wandering; errantry, ēr’‘ant.ry.
Erratic, ērrāt'īk, having no fixed orbit; erratical, ērrāt'-i-kāl (not ērrāt'-i-kāl); erratical-ly.

Erratic, plu. errat'ics or erratic blocks (in Geol.), boulders.

Erratum, plu. errata, ēr-rā'tā, a printer’s error.

Fr. ērr, ērrant, ērrante, ērrantry, erratum, and ērrata; Lat. ērrans, ērrantis, ērrantiae, ērratum, and ērrāta, errāre, to wander.

Erse (1 syl.) same as Gaelic (gāy'-lik), native Irish and Highland Scotch. (Erse, a contraction of Erinisch, Irish.)

Erst, first (super. of ēr, Ang.-Sax. ēr, ērra (comp.), ērest (sup.)

Erudite, ēr'ū-dētē, learned; erudite-ly; erudition, ērū-Did'ēn;

French ērudit, erudition; Latin ērūditō, ēruditē, sup. eruditum (ē [ex] ēru'dēs doctus, [to convert] from ignorance to learning).

Éruginous, ērjō'jēnōs, resembling the rust of brass or copper.

French ērugi'neux; Latin ērugō, rust, of brass, ērugōnōsus.

Eruption, ērjūp'shun, an outburst of a volcano, flood, &c., a breaking out of spots or pustules on the skin; erupt've.

Irruptive, a bursting in; as the sudden invasion of a country; irruptive, ēr-rūp'-tīv; irruptive-ly.

French ēruption, ērup'tif, irruption, irruptive; Latin ēruptio, ēruptus, supine ēruptum (ē rumpo, to burst out from); ēruptio, ēruptus, supine ēruptum (ē [in] rumpo, to burst in).

Eryngo, ēr-n'go (not erynga), the sea-holly and similar plants.

Gk. ērruggi'gnōs, the beard of goats), referring to the thistly head.

Erysipelas, ēr'i-sip'-ēlās, a fiery redness of the skin; erysipela-tous, ēr'i-sip'-ē-lōs, adj. (y- shows it is Greek.)

Greek ērūs'ēs plēs, drawing near. “Parce que cette maladie s’étend ordinairement de proche en proche.”—Bouillet. Latin ērysipelas, St. Anthony’s fire; French ērūs'ēs plēs (wrong); ērūs'ēs plēteuse.

Erythema, ēr'ithē'-mā, a superficial redness of the skin; erythematous, ēr'ithē'-mātōs, adjective of the above.

Erythrine, ēr'ithrīn, a mineral of a red colour.

Erythrite, ēr'ithrītē, a flesh-coloured variety of felspar.

(The y- shows that these words have a Greek origin.)

Greek ērūthēmā, a blush (ērūrthōs, red).

-es, the plural termination of nouns ending in -s, -sh, -ch (soft), and -x: as “gas,” gases; “glass,” glasses; “fish,” fishes; “church,” churches; “fox,” foxes. When ch = k only -s is added: as “monarch,” monarchs (not monarchs).

In the 3rd-pers. sing., pres. tense, indic. mood, the same rule holds: as to “bias,” he biases; to “guess,” he guesses; to “clash,” clashes; to “enrich,” enriches; to “box,” boxes.

-as was the plural masc. of one of the two “strong” Ang.-Sax. declensions. It was changed to -es after the Conquest, in conformity with the French plural, and ultimately supplanted other forms.
Es-, the prefix en- or ex- before *-p, -s, and sometimes -c, -t.

Escalade, ës.hë.lëdə”, an attack on a town, &c., by scaling-ladders, to scale by ladders; ës'kalâd"-ed, es'kalâd"-ing.

French escalade; Latin scala, with es- [en], to attack with ladders.

Escape, ës.kapə, avoidance, to evade; escaped (2 syl.), escâp'-ing (Rule 3xx.), escâp'-er.

Escape'-ment, a contrivance in clocks and watches by which the circulating motion of the wheels is converted into a vibratory one;

Escapade, ës'kalad"-ed (not ës'kalad"-ed), the “fling” of a horse, a freak involving impropriety and mischief.

French escalade, echapper, eschappement; Latin é [ex] private or negative, and capio to take, to fail to take.

Escarp, ës.karp' (in Fort.), the steep slope, to form a slope; escarped (2 syl.), escârpy-ing, escârpy'-ment, ground cut away nearly perpendicularly to prevent an enemy from climbing up it into the fort above.

The noun is generally called the escarp, and is opposed to counterscarp. The scarp of a rampart slopes down to the ditch or fosse, and the counterscarp is the exterior slope of the ditch. Thus in \( V \), the long line is the “scarp,” the short one the “counterscarp,” and the space between the “ditch.”

Fr. escarper, escarpement; Ital. scarpa, a slope; (Lat. scalpo, to cut).

-ese (Lat. -ese[ə], added to verbs) is inceptive: as effervesce.

-escence (Latin -escentia), -sc- is inceptive, and -ence added to nouns indicates an inceptive state: as convalescence, a state of health gradually improving more and more.

Escheat, ës.chëtə, real property which lapses to the overlord through failure of heirs or by forfeiture, to revert to the overlord or to the crown; escheat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), escheat'-ing, escheat'-or (Rule xxxvii.), escheat'or-ship (-ship, Old Eng. “office of”), escheat'-able; escheat'-age.

French échoir; Low Latin eschata, escaetor, escutia, eschatorship.

Eschew, ës.tèhu, to avoid; eschewed (2 syl.), eschew'-ing.

German scheuen, to shun, with e, “from”; Norman eshever, to avoid.

Escort, (noun) ës'.kôrt, (verb) ës'.kôrt. (Rule 1.), an attendant, a cortége; to conduct someone as an attendant, to attend on a person as a guard of honour; escort'-ed, escort'-ing.

French escorte, escortor; Latin escorta, a traveller’s bag or cloak.

Escritoire. ës'.kôp.tôor, a writing-case or desk.

French écrïtoire (écritures; Latin scriptûra), scripturärius, v. scribo.

Escent, es'.kël.lënt, fit for food. (Fr. esculent; Lat. escûlendus.)
Escutcheon, èz.kiūt.shūn, the shield of coat-armour, the ornamental shield of a key-hole; escutcheoned, èz.kiūt.shűn.d.
Fr. écusson, écussonné; Lat. scutum, a shield; Gk. skilos, a hide.
-cse (French -is, -ois, -ais; Latin -ensis), means “belonging to,” “a native of”: as Chinese.

Esophage, ès.ōf.a-gūs, the gullet; esophagotomy, ès.ōf.a-got'-'ō-mý, the operation of cutting the gullet.
Fr. esophage. This wretched compound is made up of the future tense of phēro [vis], I shall carry, and phūgos, a glutton. The meaning is “I convey food” [to the stomach], but phūgos, “I eat,” has no noun like phūgos, meaning “food.”

Esophagotomy is asophagos temnō, to cut the esophagus.

Esoteric, ès.o.tër'ri̇k, private. Exoteric, èx'o.tër'ri̇k, public; esoterical, ès.o.tër'ri̇k.t; esoter'ical-ly.

Esoterics, ès.o.tër'ri̇ks, mysterious or hidden doctrines; Exoterics, èx'o.tër'ri̇ks, those parts of mysteries which may be taught to the general public.

Fr. esotérique; Greek esoterikós (esoterós, inner).

Pythagóras stood behind a curtain when he lectured. Those disciples who were admitted within the veil were termed esoteric, and the rest exoteric.

Aristotle called those who were admitted to his abstruse morning lectures his esoteric disciples, and those who came to his popular evening discourses his exoteric auditors.

Espalier, ès.pål.yer, a fruit tree trained to stakes.
Fr. espalier; Lat. palus, “a stake,” with es-[en-], trained to a stake.

Especial, ès.ēesh.iˌl, chief, particular; especial-ly.
Fr. spécial; Latin speciālis. (The initial e is to soften the s.)

Espionage, ès.ōp.o.narj; espied, espies, &c. (See Espy.)

Esplanade, ès.pla.nūd̄e (in Fort.), an open space outside the glacis, a promenade between the sea and the houses facing it, or between the ramparts and the town.
Fr. esplanade; Lat. planum, with es-[en-], “to make” [a level plane].

Espouse, ès.pūwz' (-pouse, to rhyme with cows), to betroth, to adopt an opinion or cause; espoused' (2 syl.), espous'-ing (Rule xix.), espous'-er, espous'-al;

Espousals (no sing.), ès.pōw.zūlz, marriage, betrothal.

Fr. épousailles, épouser; Latin sponsalia (sponsa, a bride).

Esprit de corps, ès.'prē dē-kō̄r̄', the spirit of clianship.
This is Eng.-Fr.; the French phrase is esprit de parti, party spirit.

Espy, ès.p'y, to discern; espies, ès.piz̄e'; espied, ès.pide'; espy'-er (Rule xi.), espy'-al, but espy'-ing.

Espionage, ès.pē.o.nāje or ès.pē.o.narj̄e, a prying into the acts and words of others, the employment of a spy.
Fr. épier, espionnage; Ital. spiare, to spy; Lat. spēcio, to view.
-esque (French termination of adj.; Latin -iscus), “like,” “after the manner of”: as picturesque, picture-like.
ERRORS OF SPEECH

Esquiman, plu. Esquimaux, or Eskimo, plu. Eskemos, Es'.ké.mó, Es'.ké.móze, natives of the northern seaboard.

Esquire, és.kwír', a young gentleman attendant of a knight, to carry his shield, &c. (escu, Latin scutum, a shield); now appended to the address of the untitled younger sons of the nobility, to untitled officers of the royal court and household, to counsellors of law [not serjeants], to untitled justices of the peace, sheriffs, gentlemen holding a commission in the army or navy below captain, graduates of the universities not in holy orders, &c. By courtesy, appended to the address of lawyers, surgeons, professors, merchants, bankers, gentlemen living on their means, and to almost everyone above the lower middle class.

-ess, the female of a male animal: as lion-ess.

1. All the twenty-two nouns which add -ess to the male without change or contraction are French, and -ess = -esse (Fr.)

2. Ten of the words which contract the masculine noun by omitting the last vowel before adding -ess are French, and -ess represents -icc. The exceptions are "chantre-ess" for chantreuse, with enchantress[e], negress[e], ogreis[e].

3. Three are Anglo-Saxon: huntress, mistress, and songstress.

4. Six have a common basis, to which -er or -or is added for the male, and -ess for the female: adulter-er, adulter-ess; cater-er, cater-ess; emper-er, empr-ess; govern-er, govern-ess; murder-er, murder-ess; sorcer-er, sorcer-ess.

5. The following are irregular: duke, duchess; lad, lass; marquis, marchioness; master, mistress and miss.

French -esa, -ie, and -esse; Italian -essa; Spanish -esa and -esa; Anglo-Saxon -esse; Latin -ix and -issa, &c.; Greek -issa.

Essay, (noun) és'sy, (verb) és.say' (Rule I.); Assay'.

Es'say, plu. es'says (Rule xlv.), a short prose composition on some practical or moral subject; es'say-ist.

Essay' (verb), to try; essayed', (2 syl.), essay'er, essay'-ing.

Assay', to prove metals; assayed', assay'er, assay'-ing.

French essayer, n. essay (both meanings); Latin exig, to try, to prove; (ex ago, to drive out [what is dross, &c.])

Essence, és'sence (Rule lix.), a volatile oil; the concentrated virtues of a plant, drug, &c., the real being divested of all logical accidents; essential, és'sen'shul, necessary; essen'tial-ly; essenti'al-ity, és.sen'.shul.áli'ty.'

French essence; Latin essentia, essentials. Essence is the opposite of absence; the one is es [in] ens "being in," and the other abs-ens "being without." Ens is the present part. of esse, to be.

Establish, és.táb'.lish, to settle, to found permanently; estab'lished, estab'lish-ing, estab'lish-men't.

French établir, établissement; Latin stábbilis, stábbilimentum,
Estate, əˈsteɪt; real property, condition, caste.
French état; Latin status.

Esteem, ɪˈstіm; respect, to respect; esteemed (2 syl.), esteem-ing.
Estimable, əˈstіməbl; estimable-ness, estimably.
Estimate, əˈstіmіt; estimated (R. xxxvi.), estim-ating (R. xix.), estim-ator (R. xxxvii.); estim-ative, əˈstіmətɪv.
Estimation, əˈstіməˈʃən; regard, esteem.

French estimer, estime, estimable, estimation, estimateur; Latin estimātus, estimātor, estimāre (Greek eis timá, to hold in honour).

Esthetics (no sing.), ese.ˈrɛθɪ.ks, the perception of good taste in nature or art. (The second syllable in Greek is long.)
Greek aisthētikós [beauty as it is] appreciated by the senses.

Estrange, ɪˈstræŋ; to alienate; estranged (2 syl.), estrang-ing, estrange-ment (Rule xviii.), withdrawal of affection.
(Followed by from.) (Strange with es- [en], “to make”.)

Estrapade, ɪˈstrэ.ˈpэrd (French), the violent jerking of the hind legs when a horse tries to get rid of its rider.

Estreat (2 syl.); a duplicate of the fines, &c., in the rolls of court, to make...; estreat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), estreat-ing.

Latin extractum, a extract: extrahe, supine extractum, to draw out.

Estuary, əˈstrу.əri; the mouth of a tidal river, a frith.
French estuaire; Latin estuarium (estuāre, to boil or rage).

-et (Latin -el[us] added to nouns), “one who,” “a place where or with”: as prophet, banquet.

-et (French -ette), diminutive, as locket, packet, pocket.

Et cætera, et selˌe.ˈrэ (written thus &c. or etc.); and so on.
Put at the end of a list of articles to denote that all similar ones are to be included. (Latin, “and the rest.”)

Etch, to engrave by the action of an acid; etched (1 syl.), etch-ing, etch-er, etching, plu. etchings, designs etched.
German aetzen, to etch, corrode, or fret.

-ete (Lat. et[us], added to adj.), “subject of an action;” complete.

Eternal, ɪˈtɛr.ˈnэl; everlasting; eternal-ly; eternity, ɪˈtɛr.ˈnэti.

Eternise, ɪˌtɛr.ˈnaiz (R. xxxi.); etern-ised (3 syl.), etern-ising.

French éternel (wrong), éterniser, éternellement, éternité; éternitas, v. éterniser, éternum (ætum and the affix -turnus, as in duo-turnus).

Etesian, əˈtɛs.ˈzэn, [winds], the Mediterranean monsoons.

Artesian, arˌte.ˈzi.ən, [well], one made by boring till a perpetual spring of water has been reached.

Fr. étésien (wrong); Lat. êtēsia; Gk. ētēsia (ētēsianémōs, yearly wind). “Artesian,” so called from Artesium, t.c., Artois, in France.

Ether, əˈθэ.ˈɛr; a light volatile liquid obtained by distillation of alcohol with an acid; a fluid which pervades the atmosphere, and is supposed to be connected with light and heat; ethereal, *ēther-*ēl, celestial, extremely rarefied; ethereal-ly, ethereality, *ēther-*ēli*ty.*

Etherealise, *ēther-*ēl-ize; etherealised (5 syl.), etherealising (Rule xix.), etheriform, *ēther-*i*rm.

Fr. ether, éther; Lat. aether, aethereus and aethérus; Gk. aithēr, aithéritos. It will be seen that etherial would be the better spelling.

Ethics (no sing.), ethiks (Rule lxii.), moral philosophy.

Ethical, ethi-*kal, pertaining to morals; ethical-ly.

Fr. éthique, éthiques; Lat. ethica, ethicus; Gk. éthikos (éthēs).

Ethiopian, *ēthi-*opian, a native of Ethiopia; Ethiopian, *ēthi-*op, pertaining to Ethiopia. An Éthiop.

French Ethiopien; Latin Éthiopia, Éthiopius, Éthiops; Greek Aithiopía, Aithiopios (aithos ós, burnt face).

Ethnical, *ēthn-*ical, relating to the different races of man; ethnical-ly, ethn'ic; ethnicism, *ēthn-*ism.

Anthropology, Ethnology, Ethnography, Archaeology.

Anthropology, *ēn-thro-*ogy, the general term which embraces the other three, treats of man in his social condition. (Greek anthropós lógos, treatise on man.)

1. Ethnology, *ēthn-*ology, that part of Anthropology which treats of the origin and dispersion of the different races of man, their characteristics, physical features, &c.

Greek ethnós lógos, treatise on nations.

2. Ethnography, *ēthn-*ography, that part of Anthropology which treats of the works, the geographical position, the cities, literature, and laws, of the different races of man.

Greek ethnós grapho, to describe [physically] the nations.

3. Archaeology, *ar-*chae-*ogy, treats of the antiquities of a people. (Greek archaiós lógos, treatise on antiquities.)

Ethnography; ethnographic, *ēthn-*ographic; ethnographical, *ēthn-*ographical *ēthn-*ographer, *ēthn-*ographer.

Ethnology, ethnological, *ēthn-*ological; ethnologist.

French ethnique, ethnographique, ethnographie, ethnographe, ethnologie; Latin ethnicus; Greek éthnós, a race or tribe.

Ethology, ethnology, etiology.

Ethology, *ēth-*ology, the science of ethics, shows the bearing of external circumstances on the character.

Greek ethós lógos, treatise on manners and habits.

Ethnology, *ēthn-*ology, treats of the human race in its social condition, or as a family of nations.

Greek ethnós lógos, treatise on nations.

Etiology, *ēti-*ology, treats on the causes of disease.

Greek aitia lógos, treatise on causes.
AND OF SPELLING.

Ethology; ethological, ēthōl̅.ŏl̅j̅'{ĭ}.k̅ūl̅, adj. of ethology.
Ethnology; ethnological, ēth̅nŏl̅j̅'{ĭ}.k̅ūl̅; ethnologist.
Etiology; etiological, ē.ti.ŏl̅j̅'{ĭ}.k̅ūl̅, adj. of etiology.
Etiolate, ē.ti.ŏl̅āt̅.ē, to Blanch by exclusion of light; ē.ti.ŏl̅āt̅-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ē.ti.ŏl̅āt̅-ing; ē.ti.ŏl̅āt̅-ion, ē.ti.ŏl̅āt̅-i.ŏn. shun.
French ēt̅i.ŏl̅ē.ĕr, ēt̅i.ŏl̅ā.ĕment; Greek aith̅h̅ŏ, to light up, to glisten.
Etiquette, ē.t̅.i.ĕt̅.ē (Fr.), the conventional forms of polite society.
The word means a ticket containing directions to be observed by those who attend court.
Etymology, plu. etymologies (Rule xliiv.), ē.t̅.i.ŏmŏl̅'ŏ.ŏ.j̅ĭ.z̅, the derivation of words; etymologist, ē.t̅.i.ŏmŏl̅'ŏ.ŏ.j̅ĭ.st; etymological, ē.t̅.i.ŏmŏl̅'{ĭ}.k̅ūl̅; etymological-ly.
Etymologise, ē.t̅.i.ŏmŏl̅'ŏ.ŏ.j̅ĭ.z̅ (Rule xxxxi.), to search out etymologies; etymologised (5 syl.), etymologis-ing (Rule xix.); etymon, ē.t̅.i.mŏn̅, the root from which a word is derived. (The -y- points to a Greek origin.)
French ét̅y.ŏmolog̅î.ĕ, ét̅y.ŏmolog̅î.ĕque, ét̅y.ŏmolog̅î.ĕste, ét̅y.ŏmolog̅î.ăs; Latin et̅y.ŏmologi̅a, et̅y.ŏmol̅ŏgŭs, et̅y.ŏmŏn; Greek ét̅y.ŏmol̅ŏg̅îa, ét̅y.ŏmŏn̅, the real word.

Eu- (Gk. prefix), good, well, easy. It is opposed to dys [dus].
Every word beginning with eu- is derived from the Greek.
Eucharist, u̕.k̅.a.ř.ĭ.st̅, the communion; eucharistic, u.̕.ka.ř.ĭ.st̅.ĭk̅.
French eucharistique, eucharistique; Latin eucharistia, eucharisticus; Greek eucharistia, an act of gratitude; (charis, gratitude, favour).
Eudiometer, u.̕.dı.ŏ.ı.ŏ.m̅.ĕ t̅.ŏr̅, an instrument for analysing atmospheric air; eudiom'etry, the usage of the eudiometer; eudiometric, u.̕.dı.ŏ.ı.ŏ.m̅.ĕ.t̅.ı.k̅̅̕: eudiometrically.
French eudiométrique; Greek eu̕ıt̅.ıs̅ métr̅.ŏn̅, the metre of good air.

Eulogy, plu. eulogies (Rule xliiv.), u̕.l̅.o.ģ̅.i.ș, an encomium; eulogist, u̕.l̅.o.ģ̅.i.ș̅.ĭst̅, the praiser of another; eulogistic, u̕.l̅.o.ģ̅.i.ș̅.ĭk̅̕, eulogistical, u̕.l̅.o.ģ̅.i.ș̅.ĭ.k̅ūl̅; eulogistically-ly.
Eulogise, u̕.l̅.o.ģ̅.i.ș̅ (Rule xxxxi.), to laud; eulogised (3 syl.), eulogis-ing (Rule xix.), eulogis-er, one who eulogises.
Eulogium, plu. eulogiums, u.ł̅.ı.ŏ.j̅.i.ș̅, same as eulogy.
Latin eul̅.o.g̅.i.ă and eul̅.o.g̅.i.ŭm; Greek eul̅.o.g̅.e.o, to eulogise; eul̅.o.g̅.i.a, eul̅.o.g̅.i.os (eu lego, to speak well of one).

Eunuch, u̕.n̅.ők̅, a man who has charge of the women's apartments in the East; eunuchism, u̕.n̅.ők̅.î.z̅.in̅.
"I eunuch," not an eunuch. A precedes u- or eu- pure, that is, making a distinct syl. without the aid of a consonant. In un-der, up-er, use-ful, the u- is not pure.

Euonymus, plu. euonymuses, u̕.ŏn̅.ı.m̅.ůs, the spindle-tree.
Greek eu̕.n̅.ŏm̅.a (the plant with) the good name. The tree being poisonous, this euphemism was given to it to avert the evil omen of calling it deadly; so the "Furies" were termed eu̕.m̅.ên̅.ûd̅.ès (the good tempered goddesses), to propitiate them by flattery; similarly a grave-yard was called a "sleeping-place" (cemetery).
Euphemism, ù.femizm, a word or phrase less objectionable used to soften down one more offensive; as a help or employee (for "a servant"); euphemistic, ù.fenित.īk.

"Euphemize" (a good Greek word) might be introduced.

French euphémisme; Latin euphēmismus; Greek euphēmia, euphe-mos (euphēmenē, to speak well of one).

Euphony, ù.fon.in, an agreeable sound of words; euphonic, ù.fon.īk; euphonical, ù.fonित.kīl; euphonical-ly.

Euphonious, ù.fonित.īs, sounding agreeably; eupho'nious-ly.

Euphonise, ù.fonित.īze (Rule xxxi.); eu'phonised (3 sy!.), eu'phonis-ing (Rule xix.), eu'phonis-er.

French euphōnique; Latin euphōnicus; Greek eu-phōne, good sound.

Euphorbia, ù.for'.bhī.ah, the spurge.

So named from Euphorbos, physician to Juba, king of Libya.

Euphrasy, ù.frā.sī (in Bot.), the plant "eye-bright."

Greek eurhpaino, to give joy. Called "eye-bright" because it once had the repute of repairing vision.

Euphony, ù.fon.in, an agreeable sound of words; euphonic, ù.fon.īk; euphonical, ù.fonित.kīl; euphonical-ly.

Euphonious, ù.fonित.īs, sounding agreeably; eupho'nious-ly.

Euphonise, ù.fonित.īze (Rule xxxi.); eu'phonised (3 sy!.), eu'phonis-ing (Rule xix.), eu'phonis-er.

French euphōnique; Latin euphōnicus; Greek eu-phōne, good sound.

Euphorbia, ù.for'.bhī.ah, the spurge.

So named from Euphorbos, physician to Juba, king of Libya.

Euphrasy, ù.frā.sī (in Bot.), the plant "eye-bright."

Greek eurhpaino, to give joy. Called "eye-bright" because it once had the repute of repairing vision.

Euphuism, ù.fu.zīm. Euphemism, ù.femizm.

Euphuism, high-flown diction, affected conceits in language; euphuist, ù.fu.īst; euphuis'tic, euphuis'tical.

Euphemism, a softening down of unpleasant expressions; euphemist, ù.femizt; euphemis'tic, euphemis'tical.

The word comes from John Lilly's book, entitled Euphués (graceful [phrases and periods]. Greek eu phuē, well-formed [periods]).

Eureka, ù.ree'.kāh (not u'rē.kāh, as Dryden writes the word in the line: “Cries Eureka! the mighty secret’s found.”

A discovery made after long and laborious research. (The word should be heureka, Greek ἥεορκα, not ἥεορκα.)

The tale is that Hīpēro asked Archimēdēs to test a golden crown, which the monarch believed to have been alloyed with some baser metal. The philosopher one day stepping into his bath observed...

Euroclydon, ù.rōk'.lidōn; a tempestuous wind in the Mediter-ranean Sea (Acts xxvii. 14), now called the Levant'er.

Greek eurōkhudōn (eurōs khudōn, east or south-east-wave-maker).

The word "seems to mean a storm from the east." (Liddell and Scott).

European, ù.rō.pee'.dān, a native of Europe, pertaining to Europe.

French européen; Latin Europēus; Greek Ἐυρωπής (eurōs for eurōn ἐπός, wide-spread, vision, so called because it beholds many nations.

Eury- (the Lat. spelling of the Gk, euru-); broad, wide, ample.

Eurynotus, ù.rō.nō'tūs, certain extinct fishes in the coal formations, noted for their high bream-like back.

Greek eurynō'tōs, the big-back [fish].
Eurypterite, /əˈriptəˈraɪt/, a fossil crustacean, noted for its broad swimmers; eurypteridæ, /əˈriptəˈraɪd/ɪ, the genus.
Greek cursus pleuron, wide wing, i.e., the “creature with wide ear-like feet” (to in Geology, means a fossil; Greek lithos, a stone).

Eustachian, /əˈstaɪ.ən/ [tube], a tube which forms a communication between the back of the mouth and the ear.
So named from Bartholomew Eustachius, who discovered it in 1574.

Euterpe, /əˈtɜːp/ɪ, the muse of music and inventor of the flute.
Calliope, /ˈkæli.əp/ (not /ˈkæli.əp/), the epic muse.
Clio, /ˈkli.əʊ/ (not /ˈkli.əʊ/), the Muse of history. (Gk. kleid [kleid, rumour, news].)
Eratō, /əˈræ.təʊ/ (not /əˈræ.təʊ/), muse of love and the lyre.
Greek χρήτα, from χρήτας, beloved; χρής, love.

Euterpe, /əˈtɜːp/ɪ, the Muse of music.
Greek euterpe, delightful muse.

Melpomene, /mɛlˈpɒm.ən/ (not /mɛlˈpɒm.ən/), the Muse of tragedy.
Greek melpoménē [mousa], the singing [muse], from melypō, to sing.

Polyhymnia, /pəʊ.ˈli.hɪm.ən/ (not /pəʊ.ˈli.hɪm.ən/), the Muse of sacred poetry.
Greek pōlē·hum·nē [polus humnos, [muse of] many hymns).

Terpsichore, /tɜr.ˈpɪsk.ə.ri/ (not /tɜr.ˈpɪsk.ə.ri/), the Muse of dancing.
Greek τερπσι·χορέ, delighting in the dance (terpē, to delight).

Thalia, /ˈθal.i.ə/ (not /ˈθal.i.ə/), the Muse of comedy.
Greek theietēa [mousa], the blooming muse.

Urania, /ˌuˌrə.ni.ə/ (not /ˌuˌrə.ni.ə/), muse of astronomy.
The Latin form of the Greek ourānta, the heavenly [muse].

Evacuate, /ɪˌvek.ˈkeɪt/, to empty, to quit, to eject; evacuēt-ed (R. xxxvi.), evacuēt-ing (R. xix.), evacuēt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Evacuative, /ɪˌvek.ˈveɪ.tɪv/; evacuēt, a purgative.
French evacuant, evacuatif, évacuer, évacuation; Latin evacuātio, evacuāre (e vadis, to empty out).

Evade, /ɪˌvæd./, to elude; evadē-ed, evadē-ing, evadē-er.

Evasion, /ɪˌvæ.ʃən/, a subterfuge, a slipping aside; evasive, /ɪˌvæsɪv/; eva’sive-ly, eva’sive-ness.
French évástif (“evasion” is not French); Latin evādēre, supine evāsum, evāsio (e vadis, to escape from).

Evaluation, /ɪˌvəl.ˈeɪ.ʃən/, a complete valuation.
Fr. évolution; Lat. evōtio, vīlor, value (e-means “thorough”).

Evanescent, /ɪˌveɪ.nəsˈsənt/, fleeting; evanesˈcent-ly; evanesˈcence, /ɪˌveɪ.nəsˈsəns/ (only six words end in -ense, R. xxvi.)
French évanescent; Latin evanescens, gen. evanescentis, v. evanesce (all verbs in -sec are inceptive (e vanesco, to vanish wholly).

Evangelize, /ɪˌvæn.ˈdʒel.i.z/ (not evangelise, Rule xxxii.), to convert to Christianity; evan’gelized (4 syl.), evan’geliz-ing (Rule xix.), evan’geliz-er; evangelization, /ɪˌvæn.ˈdʒel.i.ˌzaʃən/; evan’gelist; evangelism, /ɪˌvæn.ˈdʒel.i zinc/.
Evangelical, é.vän.jél‘.ik, orthodox; evangel‘ical-ly, evangelic, é.vän.jel‘.ik, of gospel tenour.

French évangélique, évangeliste, évangéliste; Latin évangélicos, evangelista, evangelium, evangelus, evangeliza; Greek evangelia, evangelikos, evangelion, evangelistés, evangelés, evangelizo (euaggelia, good tidings). From the announcement to the shepherds, “I bring you good tidings” (évaggelizomai ὑμῖν).

Evaporate, é.vær‘.p.Š.rate (not é.vær‘.p.Š.rate), to pass off in vapour; evaporat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), evaporat-ing (Rule xix); evaporation, é.vær‘.p.Š.š.Š.ün; evap‘orat‘ive, é.vær‘.p.Š.Š.Š.iv; evaporable; evaporometer, é.vær‘.p.Š.Š.Š.š.Š.ē.tēr, an instrument to measure the amount of evaporation made.

French evaporable, évaporer, évaporation; Latin evaporatio, evap‘orē (e vapōro, to send out vapours: vapōr, vapour).

Evasion, é.vay‘.zhün; evasive, é.vay‘.ziv. (See Evade.)

Eve (1 syl.); even, é.v‘n; evening, eve‘ning; from midday to sunset, in popular language the glooming which precedes night. The first half of the day is called morning. Eve (1 syl.), evening, a vigil, the evening preceding a church festival: as Christmas eve (the evening of December 24th), Midsummer eve (the evening before Midsummer day). This is because the church begins the day from sunset of the preceding day; even-tide, evening time.

Old English efn or efn, æfn-tide, even-tide.

Evection, é.vek‘.š.Š.Š. (in Astron.), the libration of the moon.

Even, é.v‘n (noun, adj., and adv.) Even (noun), evening.

Even (adj.), level, not odd; even-ly, é.v‘n.l‘.y; o’even-ness. (The degrees are: nearly even, more nearly even, very nearly even, quite even. “More even” and “most even” are the degrees of not even.)

Old English æfn, efn or efn; (adj.) efent‘ic, smooth, equal; efents, evenly, plainly; efeness (n.), evenness. The adv. is efent‘ic.

Evening, eve‘ning (2 syl.), not é.vén‘ing (3 syl.)

Evening song, &c. In this and all similar phrases, evening is not an adjective, but a noun in regimen. It is in fact the “possessive case,” but as we have abolished the possessive affix, except in nouns denoting animal life and nouns personified, the ‘s is omitted.

Event, é.vén‘t, an incident, a result; event‘-ful (Rule viii.),

Eventual, é.vén‘t.ú.úl, consequential; event‘u-al-ly;

Eventuality, é.vén‘t.ú.úl‘.ú.ty, contingency. In Phren. it denotes a quick perception of events and their results.

Eventuate, é.vén‘t.ú.auté, to happen as a result or consequence; event‘u-at-ed (R. xxxvi.), event‘u-at-ing (R. xix.)

French eventuel; Latin eventus, evan‘ire, supine eventum (e vēnē, to come out [as a consequence]).
Ever, ēv′.ēr, always, at any time; For ever, always, eternally;
For ever and ever, duration without beginning or end.
Ever and anon, occasionally, from time to time, frequently.
Ever so, or Never so (?). Which is correct: Be he ever so wise, or Be he never so wise? Both are correct. The former states the sentence affirmatively, and the latter negatively. "He refuses to hear the voice of the charmer, charm he never so wisely," means "though he charms as no charmer ever did before," or "as never a charmer charmed before." "... charm he ever so wisely," means "though he charms as wisely as [the best] charmer ever charmed." The latter form is now the more usual, and is certainly more in accordance with English idiom.
Old English ēfer or ēfre, ever, always.
Ever- (a prefix), without intermission, never ending, perpetually.
Evergreen, ēv′.ēr green, perpetually green, not deciduous.
Everlasting, endless; everlasting-ly, everlasting-ness.
Evermore, ēv′.er-more (3 syl.), always.
Evert, ē-vert′, to turn aside, to overthrow; evert′-ed (R. xxxvi.), evert′-ing; eversion, ēvēr′.shun; eversive, ēvēr′.siv′.
Latin evertēre, supine eversum, eversio (e verte, to turn away from).
Every, ēv′.er-ŷ, all taken one by one, each one of several.
Everyday, common, usual. Everywhere, in every place.
A compound of the Ang.-Sax. ēfer and ēlce, ever-each, all one by one.
Evesdropper, ēv′.ez′.drop.ėr (is the better spelling, but eavesdropper is the more general), a sneak, a surreptitious listener.
Old English eves, eaves; eves dropa (not afese).
Evict, ēvik′t, to dispossess by legal proceedings; evict′-ed (Rule xxxvi.), evict′-ing; eviction, ēvik′.shun.
Fr. éviction; Lat. eviction, evictus (e vincō, sup. victum, to expel from).
Evidence, ēv′.i.dense, testimony, proof; evident, ēv′.i.dent; ev′ident-ly; evidential, ēv′.i.dēn′.shül; ev′idential-ly.
To evidence, ev′.i.dense, to show by proof; ev′idenced (3 syl.), ev′iden′c-ing (Rule xix.)
French évidence, évident; Latin evidentia (video, to see).
Evil, ē′.vil (noun and adj.), wickedness, calamity, wicked, calamitous; e′vil-ly, e′vil-ness; evil-doer, a wicked person.
Evil-eye, a malicious look, a look which has an evil influence. It was supposed at one time that certain persons possessed the power of darting noxious rays into the object glared at.
Evil-minded, wrongly disposed, malicious.
The-Evil-One, the devil, Satan.
Old English ēfel or yfel, yfel, evilly; yfel′nes, evilness; v. yfel′ian].
Evince, $\text{"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}i\hspace{0.1cm}n\hspace{0.1cm}c\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}'}$, to make evident; evinced' (3 syl.), evinc'-ing (Rule xix.), evinc'-ible, evinc'-ibly; evince, $\text{"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}i\hspace{0.1cm}n\hspace{0.1cm}c\hspace{0.1cm}i\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}'}$.

Latin evincere, to prove, to evince (e vincere, to vanquish wholly). The word means to show what is right by the argumentum ad absurdum, that is, by proving the contrary to be wrong.

Eviscerate, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}i\hspace{0.1cm}s\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}r\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}t\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}'}$, to disembowel; eviscerat-ed (R. xxxvi.), eviscerat-ing; evisceration, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}i\hspace{0.1cm}s\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}r\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}t\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}n\hspace{0.1cm}t\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}t\hspace{0.1cm}i\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}'}$.

Fr. éviscé rer, éviscération; Lat. eviscé rator, evisce ro (viscéra, bowels).

Evolve, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}o\hspace{0.1cm}l\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}'}$, to unroll; evolved' (3 syl.), evolv'-ing, evolv'-er.

Evolution, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}o\hspace{0.1cm}l\hspace{0.1cm}u\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}'}$. (in Algebra) the extraction of roots. The reverse process is Involution.

Thus: $\sqrt[3]{27}$, that is, find the cube root of 27 (viz., 3) is an example of Evolution; but $3^2$, that is, raise 3 to the cube or third power (viz., 27) is an example of Involution.

Evolutionary, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}o\hspace{0.1cm}l\hspace{0.1cm}u\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}n\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}r\hspace{0.1cm}y\hspace{0.1cm}}$, pertaining to evolution.

Evulsion, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}u\hspace{0.1cm}l\hspace{0.1cm}u\hspace{0.1cm}n\hspace{0.1cm}s\hspace{0.1cm}h\hspace{0.1cm}u\hspace{0.1cm}n\hspace{0.1cm}a\hspace{0.1cm}}$, the act of pulling or plucking out.

Ewe, Yew, You (pronounced alike). Yew, a tree. You, a pron. Ewe, pronounced $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}w\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}}$ (not $\text{\"y\hspace{0.1cm}o\hspace{0.1cm}w}$ to rhyme with $\text{\"g\hspace{0.1cm}r\hspace{0.1cm}w}$), a female sheep.

Ram or Tlap, the sire; female ewe; offspring, lamb; if a male it is a tup-lamb, fem. a ewe-lamb. After being weaned, lambs are called hoggets [or hoggs]; the male is a tup-hogget, the fem. a ewe-hogget.

After removal of the first fleece both are shearlings. After removal of the second fleece the male is a two-shear-tup (if castrated a wether); the fem. is a ewe.

Old English coww, plu. coww, a cow; cow, you; iww, the yew-tree.

Ewer, $\text{\"u\hspace{0.1cm}c\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}}$, a toilet jug, a cream-pot. -Your, $\text{\"u\hspace{0.1cm}c\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}}$ (pron.)

Every, $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}v\hspace{0.1cm}e\hspace{0.1cm}}$. (Lat. and Gk. prefix), out of, out, proceeding from, of off, beyond. Occasionally it is intensive. Added to the names of office it means that the office was once held by the person named, but is no longer so: as ex-mayor.

Ex- is written ef- before an $\text{\"e\hspace{0.1cm}f}$, and e- before the liquids and the consonants c, d, g, j, and v.

The Greek prefix is written ec- before c, and in one example (eccentric) the Latin prefix is so written also.
Exact, ex.act', precise, to extort; exact'-ly, exact'¬ness; exact'¬ed, exact'¬ing; exact'¬ion, ex.âk'shun; exact'¬or.

Exactitude, ex.âk'ti.tüde, precision.

French exact, exaction, exactitude, exacteur; Latin exactia, exactor, v. exigo, supine exactum (ex ago, to drive on [to the end]).

Exaggerate, ex.aj'jé rats, to overstate the truth; exag'gerat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), exag'gerat-ing (Rule xix.), exag'gerat-or, exag'geratory; exag'gerative, ex.aj'jé.ra.tiv; exaggera-tion, ex.aj'jé ray'shun, overstatement.

French exagé rer (wrong), exagération, exagé ratif; Latin exagé ratio, exagé rator, exagé räre (anger, a pile or heap). The French word is nonsense, being a compound of ager, a field.

Exalt, ex.olt', to elevate; exalt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), exal'ted-ness, exalt'-ing, exalt'¬er; exaltation, ex'.ol.tay'.shun.

Examine, ex.'mihn, to scrutinise, to test by trial; examined, ex.'mihn'nd; exam'in-ing, exam'in-er, exam'inant.

Examination, ex.'mih.nay'.shun; exam'en, the tongue or needle of the beam of a balance, examination.

Fr. examination, examiner; Lat. exam'nen, exam'iuni're.

Example, ex.'mpl, a pattern. (Fr. exemple; Lat. exemplum.)

Exasperate, ex.'sper ate, to irritate; exas'perat-ed (R. xxxvi.), exas'perat-ing; exaspera-tion, ex.'sper ay'.shun.

Fr. exaspérer, exaspération; Lat. exasperálio, exasperáre (asper, rough).

Ex cathedra, ex kath'.édrah, with dogmatic authority.

Latin ex cathedra; Greek ex kathédra, from the [papal] chair.

Excavate, ex.'ká vate, to dig out; ex'cavat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ex'cavat-ing, ex'cavat-or (Rule xxxvii.), one who excavates; excavation, ex.'ká vay'.shun, a digging out.

French excaver, excavation; Latin exca'vatio, exca'vare (cavea, a cave).

Exceed, to go too far, to excel; exceed'¬ed (Rule xxxvi.); exceed'¬ing, going too far, excelling, (adj.) very large, (adv.) extremely; exceed'ing-ly.

Excessive, ex.'sês'siv; excessive-ly, excessive-ness; ex cessive-ly, extremely; excess, superabundance.

(Exceed, proceed, and succeed, end in -ced, but all other compounds of cedo end in -cede. Rule xxvii.)

Latin excédo, supine excessum (ex cedo, to go forth [too far]). French exces, excessif; Latin excessus.

Excel, ex.'sèl, to surpass; excelled' (2 syl.), excell'¬ing (R. iv.)

Excellent, ex.'cell ent; ex'cellent-ly, ex'cellence.

Excellency, plu. excellencies (Rule xlv.), ex.'sèlt.lëns.siz. A title of address given to viceroys, ambassadors, etc.

French exceller, excellence, excellent; Latin excellens, gen. excellentis, excellentia, v. excellère (ex cello, to break or go beyond).
("Excel" ought to have double-1, as it comes from the Latin cello; "to go beyond"; and not from cello, "to hide.")

Excelsior (Lat.) Longfellow's poem has given to this word the meaning of "my aim is always higher still."

Excentric (ex.sent'.trik) is the better spelling, but eccentric the more general. (See Eccentric.)

Except, ex.sept', unless, without, exclusive of, to pass over, to leave out; except'ed (R. xxxvi.), except'-ing; except'-or;
Exception, ex.sép'.shun, not according to rule, an objection; Exception-able (Rule xxiii.), liable to objection;
Unexception-able, free from objection;
Exception-al, forming an exception.

Except, Unless. I will not let thee go except thou bless me, or "unless" thou bless me. Both these are grammatical. "I will not let thee go, Except this proviso; viz. that thou bless me." Here except is the imperative mood of the verb. "Unless" is preferable.

French excepter, exception, exceptionnel; Latin exceptio, v. exceptus, supine exceptum (ex Ēdipo, to take out).

Excerpted, ex.serp'-ted, expurgated, selected; excerpt'-or.

Excerptions, ex.serp'-shuns, [literary] selections; excerpta.

Latin excerpto, to pick out (carpo, to call), excerptio, excerpta.

Excess', superfluity; excess'ive, ex.se's'.shuv. (See Exceed.)

Exchange, ex.tchange', to barter, to give one thing for another; exchanged' (2 syl.), exchang'-ing (R. xix.), exchang'-er.
Exchange'-able (-ae and -ge retain the -e final before -able, Rule xx.); exchangeability, ex.tchange'.a.bil'i.ty.

Bill of Exchange, a written promise on stamped paper to pay a stated sum of money within a stated time.

'Change, the Royal Exchange for money brokers.

French échange, echangeable; Latin cambiare, to exchange; cambium, a change; cambitas.

Exchequer, ex.tchēk'.er, a treasury, (colloquially; funds in hand. Court of Exchequer, has jurisdiction in all cases affecting the public revenue; Exchequer Chamber.

French échiquier, cour de l'échiquier. "It was denominated Scaccarium, from scaccum (a chess-board), and was so called from a checkered cloth laid on the table of the court."—Madox.

Excise, ex.size' (Rule lxi.), a tax on articles of home production, (adj.) pertaining to such a tax; excisable (Rule xxiii.), ex.size'.a.bil'; excised, ex.size'd; excis'-ing (Rule xix.)

Excision, ex.size'k'.un, amputation, a cutting off.

French excisse, excision; Latin exciso, excidère, to cut off (ex corde).
Excite, ex-site (to stimulate; excit-ed (Rule xxxvi.), excit-ing; excit-ing-ly, excit-er, excit-able, excit-able-ness, excit-ably; excitability, ex-site-a-bil”-i-ty; excit-ant; excitation, ex-site”-at”-shun; excite”-ment.

French excitabilité, excitable, excitant, excitation, excitatif, exciter;
Lat. excitātio, excitans, gen. excitantis, excitāre (ex cico, to stir up).

Exclaim’ (2 syl.), exclaimed’ (3 syl.), exclaim-ing, exclaim’-er.

Exclamation (not exclamation), ex”-klə-may”-shun.

Exclamative; ex-klə-m”-a.tiv; exclam”atory.

French exclamation; Latin exclamatio, exclamāre (clamo, to call).

Exclude, ex-klə”-də (to shut out; exclud”-ed (Rule xxxvi.), exclud”-ing (Rule xix.), exclud”-er;

Exclusion, ex-klə”-shun; exclusion-ary, exclus”ion-ist;

Exclusive, ex-klə”-siv; exclus”ive-ly, exclus”ive-ness.

French exclusion; Latin exclusio, exclū”do (ex cludo, to shut out).

Excogitate, ex-koj”-i-tate, to think deeply on a subject, to think till the solution is discovered; excog’itati”-ed (R. xxxvi.), excog’itati”-ing (R. xix.); excogitation, ex-koj”-i-tay”-shun (one of the few words in -tion which is not French).

Latín excogitātio, excogitāre (ex cogito, to think out).

Excommunicate, ex”-kom”-mə-nə”tə (to exclude from church “communion”; excommu’n’icat”-ed (R. xxxvi.), excommu’n’icat”-ing; excommunication, ex”-kom”-mə”-nə”-kay”-shun.

Excommunication, Interdict, Anathema.

Individuals are “excommunicated,” or excluded from church privileges;
The clergy is “interdicted,” or forbidden to administer to persons under excommunication, and persons excommunicated are interdicted or forbidden to receive the sacraments. A nation is laid under an “interdict,” or deprived of church privileges, but not “excommunicated.”

“Anathema,” the curse accompanying excommunication.

Lesser excommunication, prohibition to receive the Eucharist.

Greater excommunication, exclusion from all the rites, ceremonies, and services of the church.

Fr. excommunication, excommunicier; Lat. excommu’n’icātio, excommu’n’icāre (communio, communion; comm unus, a mutual benefit).

Excioriate, ex-kə”-ri-atə (to abrade the skin; exco’riat-ed, exco’riat”-ing; excoriation, ex-kə”-ri-at”-shun, abrasion.

French excorticatio; (Latín ex cortex, [deprived] of its bark).
Excrement, ex.'kré.mént, animal soil; excrement'al, voided as excrement; excrementitious, ex.'kré.mén.ti.sh'ás, of the nature of excrement.

Excrete, ex.'kreet', to discharge from the body; excret'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), excret'-ing; excretion, ex.'kreet.shun; excretive, ex.'kreet.tiv; excretory, ex.'kreet.tóry.

Fr. excrement, excrement'ité, excrétion, excrétoire; Lat. excrementum, excretio, v. excrenère, supine excretum, to purge from [the body].

Excrescence, ex.'krés.sense (not ex.'kreet.sense); a tumour.

Excrescent, ex.'krés.sént (not ex.'kreet.sént).

Lat. ex crescens, gen. ex crescens, ex crescere, to grow out [of the body].

Excrete, ex.'crete'; excretion, ex.'cret.shun. (See Excrement.)

Excruciate, ex.'kruát.state, to torment; excru'ciat-ed (R. xxxvi.), excru'ciat-ing (R. xix.); excruciable, ex.'kruát.stá.b'l.

Excruciation, ex.'kruá.tion. (Not a French word.)

Latin excruciabilius, excruciáre, sup. excruciátum (crux; a cross).

Exculpate, ex.'kulp.até, to exonerate; excul'pate-ed (R. xxxvi.), excul'pate-ing (R. xix.); exculpatory, ex.'kulp.atóry; exculpation, ex.'kulp.shun. (Not a French word.)

Latin exculpáre (ex culpa [to free] from blame); French disculper.

Excursion, ex.'kúr.shun, a pleasure trip; excurs'ion-ist.

Excursive, ex.'kúr.sív; excurs'ive-ly, excurs'ive-ness.

Fr. excursion; Lat. excursio, excurs'áre (cursus, a running [about]).

Excuse, (noun) ex.'küze', (verb) ex.'küze' (Rule II.), an apology, to pardon, to dispense with; excuse'-less, ex.'küze'.less.

Excused, ex.'küzd'; excus'-ing (Rule xix.), excus'-er, excus-able, ex.'küze'.a.b'l; excus'able-ness, excus'ably.

Excuse my writing more, or Excuse my not writing more (?).

Both these are correct, but the former is more agreeable to our English idiom: Excuse [dispense with] my writing more, so excuse [dispense with] my attendance; but excuse [pardon] my not writing more, excuse [pardon] my absence. The rule is excuse [dispense with] the performance; excuse [pardon] the non-performance.

French excusable, excuser, excuse; Latin excus'àre, excusábilis (ex causa, [free] from motive).

Excrerate, ex.'é.kráté, to detest, to curse; exce'rát-ed (R. xxxvi.), exce'rát-ing (R. xix.); execrable, ex.'é.krá.b'l; detestable; exce'rably; execration, ex.'é.kray.shun; exe'cratory.

French excrétable, exécration; Latin excrétibilis, excrétitio, excrúri (ex sacro, the reverse of "consecrate"; easier, sacred).

Execute, ex.'ékют', to perform, to put to death; exe'cut-ed (R. xxxvi.), exe'cut-ing (R. xix.); executory, ex.'ékют.tóry.
Executive, exék'útriv, the governing body; executive-ly.

Executor, fem. exēk'útrix, exék'útor, exék'útrix, one appointed to carry out the “Will” of a deceased person.

Executive-ship, exék'útor-ship (ship, “office.”)

Executioner, ex'ek'-shun-er, an official hangman.

Execution, ex'ek'-shun, capital punishment, performance.

Exegesis, ex'ējē'sis, a critical explanation [of a Scripture text]; exegetical, ex-ejet'-i-kal, expository; exeget'cal-ly.

French exégèse, exégétique; Greek exégēsis (exégètes, a guide).

Exemplar, exemplar, something to be copied, a model;

Exemplary, ex'mplar (not exemplar), worthy of imitation; exemplar-ly (Rule xi.), exemplar-i-ness.

Exemplify, exempli fy (not exemplify), to show by example; exemplifies (Rule xi.), *exempli fy', exemplifi'cation, exemplifi'er (Rule xi.), exemplify-ing (Rule xi.), exemplification, ex'mplif'y-shun (not a French word).

Exempli gratia (contracted to e.g., or ex.gr.), exempli ple gva'she-a, for instance, take for example.

Example, ex'em pl (the one exception) is ill-spelt.

French exemple, exemple; Latin exemplum, exemplar, exempla.

“Exemplify,” exemplum facio [see -fy], to give an example.

Exempt, to except, not included; exempt'-ed, exempt'-ing.

Exemption, ex'mp'shun, immunity. (Followed by from.)

French exempt, exempler, exemption; Latin exemptio, v. eximno, supine exemptum (ex uno, to buy out).

Exequies (no sing.), ex'ek-iz, funeral rites. (See Obseques.)

Latin exequia (no sing.); French obsèques.

Exercise, ex'er'size (Rule lx.), bodily exertion to promote health, a written lesson, something to be practised; (verb) to exert, to discipline; *ex'er cis*ed (3 syl.), exer cis-ing (Rule xix.), exer cis-er, exer cis-able; exer citation, ex'er si'tay'-shun, practice. (Not a French word.)

French exercice (with -es), exercer; Latin exercitatio, exercitio and exercitium (ex arceo, to drive forth).

Exergue (French), ex e'rg (in Numismatics), the lower limb of a coin or medal, separated by a line from the face, and used for the date, and other subsidiary matter.

Greek ex ergon, out of the work proper. (It would be far better without the French -ne, which is quite un-English, and misleading.)

Exert, to use effort; exert'-ed (R. xxxvi.), exert'-ing, exert'-er.

Exertion (not exersion), ex'er'shun, effort. (Not a Fr. word.)

Latin exercitare (frequentative of exérca, ex séro), to thrust out or put forth. This word has no connexion with exercise, although in French the two are confounded.
Exfoliate, ex·fo·li· ate, to scale off; ex·fo·li·at·ed (Rule xxxvi.), ex·fo·li·at·ing (Rule xix.); exfoliation, ex·fo·li· at·ion.

Fr. exfolier, exfoliation (Lat. ex·fol·i·um, [to throw] off leaves or scales).

Exhale, ex·hal· e (not ex·a·l· e), to reek, to send forth vapour; exhaled (3 syl.), ex·hala· ing (Rule xix.), ex·hal·ant.

Exhalation, ex·hal·a·tion (not ex·a·la·tion).

French exhalation, exhaler, exhalant; Latin exhalans, gen. exhalantis, exhala·tio, exhala·ratio (halitus, breath, vapour).

Exhaust, ex·haul·t (not ex·a·lust), to expend; exhaust·ed (Rule xxxvi.), exhaust·ing, exhaust·er, exhaust·less.

Exhaustion, ex·haust·ion; exhaust·ive.

French exhaustion; Latin exhaus·to, cxhaurio, cxhauri·um (cxhaurio, to draw from, to draw out liquids).

Exhibit, ex·hib·it (not ex·hibit), to show, to display; exhib·it·ed (Rule xxxvi.), exhib·it·ing; exhibit·ive, ex·hibi·t·or.

Exhibiter, ex·hib·it·er (better—or, R. xxxvii.), one who exhibits;

Exhibition, ex·hi·b· i·tion, a public show, a pension for scholars; exhibitory, cxh i·bi·to·ry.

French exhiber, exhibition, cxhibitoire; Latin exhibitio, cxhibitor, cxhibiere, supine cxhibitum (cx habeo, to have out).

Exhilarate, ex·hil·i· rate (not ex·hil·i· rate), to cheer; exhilar· at·ed, exhila·rat·ing (Rule xix.), exhilarating·ly.

Exhilaration, ex·hil·ar·a·tion (not a French word); exhilar· at·or (Rule xxxvii.), exhilar·ant.

Latin exhil·i·ratio, cxhil·i·ratio, cxhil·i·ratio (cxhil·i·ratio, to make merry).

Exhort, ex·hor·t (not ex·ort), to incite to good works; exhort·ed, exhort·ing, exhort·er; exhortative, ex·hor·t·at·ive.

Exhortation, ex·hor·ta·tion (not ex·hor·ta·tion), to incite to good works; exhortation, cxhortat·io, cxhortat·io (cxhortato, Greek cxrto, part of the verb cxrto, to stir up).

Exhume, ex·hum·e (not ex·hume), to disinter; exhumbled (2 syl.), exhum·ed (Rule xix.); exhumation, cxh·um·a·tion.

French exhumation; cxhuma·tion, cxhuma·tion; Latin cxhumare, to disinter (cxhuma).

Exigency, plu. exigencies, cx·i·j·e· n·s·iz, a necessity; exigence, cx·i·j·ence; exigent, cx·i·j·ent; exigible, cx·i·j·i·bl.

Lat. exigen, gen. cxignitus, cxigere; Fr. exigeant, exigence, exigible.

Exile, ex·i·le, one banished, place of banishment, to banish; exiled, cx·i·l·ed; exil·ing (Rule xix.), exil·ent, exil·ent.

Fr. exiler, cxil; Lat. cxilium, cxil·a·re, cxil (cx solum, from the soil).

Exist, to live, to be; exist·ed, exist·ing, exist·ence, exist·ent.

Fr. exist, existant (wrong); existence, gen. cxist·es, cxist·are.

Exit, plu. exuent. “Exit,” a stage direction for the speaker to leave the stage. Exsunt, cx·e·unt, more than one to leave.

Exsunt omnes, cx·e·unt om·n·es, all the actors to leave.
Exo- (a Greek prefix), out of, on the outside, out from.

Exodus, ex'ó.düs, a departure from a place. (Should be exodus according to our English system.)

Greek ex hêdônê, the way out; in Greek ἔξοδος.

Ex officio (Lat.), ex of.fish'ā.o (not o.fish'ā.o), by virtue of office. As the Lord Mayor of London is “ex officio” member of the privy council.

Exogens, ex'o.jēns, plants (like timber trees) which grow in bulk by concentric layers, each year being marked by a layer outside the previous ones.

Endogens, en'do.jēns, plants (like reeds) which increase in bulk by pith formed within the plant.

Exogenous, ex'ō.jēn'ēus; exog'ênite, a fossil plant of the exogenous structure. (-ite (in Geol.), a fossil, Gk. lithos.)

Greek exo-gênê, to produce from the outside; endo-gênê, ..., inside.

Exonerate, ex ön'èrate, to exculpate; exonerät-ed (R. xxxvi), exonerät-ing (R. xix.); exonation, ex'ō.nè.ən'ay'shun.

Lat exonerâre (ōnus, a burden) “Exonation” not French.

Exorbitant, ex.or'bi.tant, enormous, unreasonable; exor'bitant-ly, exor'bitancy (4 syl.), exor'bitancy.

French exorbitant; Latin exorbitâna, gen. exorbitântis, exorbitare (ex orbîta, out of the way).

Exorcise, ex'or.size (not ex.or' size.) Ex'ercise, to practise.

Ex'orcise, to expel evil spirits; exorcised (3 syl.), ex'orcis-ing.

Ex'orcis-er, an exorcist; exorcis-er, one who exercises.

Exorcism, ex'or siz'm, the act of exorcising; exorcist.

French exorciser, exorciste, exorcisme; Greek exor'kívo, exor'kístès (orkós, an oath).

Exordium, plu. exordiums (not exordia), ex.or'dium, the introduction of [a speech]; exordial, ex.or'dial, introductory.

Latin exordium (ordinor, to begin, from orior, to arise); Fr. exorde.

Exosmose, ex'ō.smôsè, the transmission of a fluid to the outside of a membrane or other porous substance; exosmotic, ex'ō.smôt'ik (adj.)

Endosmose, en'dō.smôsè, the transmission of a fluid to the interior surface of a membrane or other porous substance.

Gr. exo-ōsmôs, impulsion outwards; endo-ōsmôs, impulsion inwards.

Exostome, ex'ō.stôm (in Botany), the passage through the outer integument of the ovule (2 syl.)

Greek exô stô'ma, out of the foramen or mouth.

Exostosis, ex'ō.stô.sîs (not ex.ō.stô' sîs), a tumour of the bone.

Greek exōstô- (and the affix), a growth out of the bone.
Exoteric, ex·o·tēr·"rik, public; exoterical, ex·o·tēr·"rik.rik; exotericism, ex·o·tēr·"ryˌsēzm. Opposed to Esoteric, ē·sō·tēr·"rik. (The o in these words is long in the Gk.)

Pythagoras stood behind a curtain when he lectured; those admitted "within the veil" were called his exoteric disciples, those outside his exoteric.

Aristotle applied the word esoteric to the disciples who attended his abstruse morning lectures, and exoteric to those who attended only his popular evening ones.

Greek esōtērikós (esōtērós, outer); esōtērikós (esōtērós, inner).

Exotic, ex·ōt·'ik, foreign, applied to hothouse plants.

Indigenous, in·di·jˌe·nuς, native, applied to native plants. (The -o- in “exotic” is long in the Greek.)

French exotique; Greek exōtikós; Latin exōticus, from a foreign land.

Expand’, to spread; expand’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), expand’-ing.

Expanse, ex·pan·sēˌ, extent; expansion, ex·pān·shun; expansible, ex·pān·sī·vēˌ, expansible-ness; expansibility, ex·pān·sī·bĭl·ˈi·tēˌ.

Fr. expansibilité, expansion, expansif; Lat. expandère, supine expansion, expansio, firmament (ex pando, to open out).

Ex parte (Lat.), ex·par·ˈte, one-sided: as an ex parte statement.

Expiatiate, *ex·pi·əˈtātˌe*ˌ, to enlarge on; expatiation-ed (R. xxxvi.), expatiation-ary, *ex·pā·ˌtā·ˈteˌriˌ*ˌ.shun.

Latin expatiāri,” to wander forth; expatriātor (passus, a footstep).

Expatiate, *ex·pā·ˌtēˈriˌ*ˌ, to banish; expatriation-ed (Rule xxxvi.), expatriation-ary, *ex·pā·ˌtēˈriˌ*ˌ.shun, banishment.

Fr. expatrier, expatriation (Lat. *expatriāt*ˌ, [driven] from one’s country).

Expect’, to look out for; to hope; expect’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), expect’-ing, expect’-ing-ly; expect’-er, one who expects; expect’-ant, one who expects a berth; expectation, ex·pēkˌtayˌˌ.shun; expect’-ance; expectancy, *pluˌ*ˌ, expectancies (Rule xlv.), ex·pēkˌtāˈnēˌsizˌ.

Expect, Suspect. Expect is often misused for suspect (to be of opinion): as I expect [suspect] he is wrong. I expect [suspect] he was disappointed. ... was guilty.

Fr. expectation; Lat. expectātio, expectāre (ex specto, to look out for).

Exectorate, *ex·pēkˌtōˈrātˌe*ˌ, to spit out; executorial-ed (Rule xxxvi.), executorial-ling (Rule xix.), executorial-ary, ex·pēkˌtōˌˈraˌtāˌˈteˌˌ.shun; executorial-ative, *ex·pēkˌtōˌˈraˌtāˌˈteˌˌ.ˈteˌˌ.ˈtivˌˌ*ˌ; executorial, a medicine to promote expectoration.

French expectorant, expectorer, expectoration; Latin expectorāre (pectus, the chest).

Expedit, exˌpēˌdiˌentˌ, proper, necessary, a shift; exp’o·dience.

Expediency, *pluˌ*ˌ, expediencies, exˌpēˌdiˌenˌsizˌ.
AND OF SPELLING.

Expedite, ex'pédite, to hasten; expedite-ed (R. xxxvi.), expedite-ing (R. xix.), expedite-ly; expedition, ex'péd-i·shún; expeditions, ex'péd-i·shún-s; expeditious-ly.

French expédient, expédition, expédition; Latin expéditionis, v. expédire, supine expéditionum (pes, gen. pédis, a foot, "to put the foot forth").

Expel', to drive out; expelled' (2 syl.), expel·ling, expell·er.

Expulsion, ex'pul'shun; expulsive, ex'pul'siv.

("Expel" would be better with double l, Latin pell[ō]).

French expulsion, expulsif, v. expulser; Latin expulso, expello, supine expulsum, to drive out or away.

Expend', to lay out money; expended (R. xxxvi.), expend·ing.

Expenditure, ex'pen'di·tú·re, disbursement of money.

Expense' (2 syl.) not expence, cost. (One of the six words in -ence, and one of the four compounds of -pense (Rule xxvi.) "Expense" is not a compound of "pence," which is a contraction of pennies. (German phennig.)

Expensive, ex'pen'siv; expensive-ly, expensive-ness.

Latin expensa, expensum, v. expendere (pendo, to weigh out money).

Experience, ex'pe·ri·encee, practical knowledge, to know practically; experienced (4 syl.), expé'rienc·ing. (See Expert.)

Experiment, ex'per·iment, trial, to try, to essay; experiment-ed, experiment·ing.

Experimentist, ex'per·i·ment·ist, one who tries experiments;

Experimental, ex'per·i·ment·al; experimen'tal-ly;

Experimentation, ex'per·i·ment·a·tion, experimental practice;

Experimentative, ex'per·i·ment·at·ive; experimentative-ly.

Experimentum crucis (Latin), ex'per·i·ment·um krū'sis, a crucial experiment, a severe or decisive test.

(Lord Bacon says that two diseases or sciences may run parallel for a time, but will ultimately cross.)

The weather has experienced a change is nonsense, as to "experience" is to learn by trial or personal knowledge.

French expérience, expérimenter, expérimental; Latin experientia, experimentum, experír, expertus (péritus, skillful).

Expert, ex'pert (n.), one skilled in deciphering...; ex'pert' (adj.), skilful; expert'·ly, expert'·ness.

French expert; Latin expertus (v.s.)

Expiate, ex'pi·ate, to atone for; expiáted (R. xxxvi), expiáting (R. xix.); expiation, ex'pi·a·ti·shún; expiative, ex'pi·a·tiv

Expiable, ex'pi·a·b'l, that may be atoned for;

Expiatory, ex'pi·a·tór·y, having power to make atonement.

Expiator, ex'pi·a·tor, one who makes atonement.

Fr. expiation; Lat. expiádi·lis, expiáatio, expiáre (pio, to purge).
Expire' (2 syl.), to die; expired' (2 syl.), expir'-ing (Rule xix.);
Expiration, ex'.pi.raj".shun, exhalation, conclusion;
Expirable, ex.pi'.rā.b'l; expiry, the end; expiratory.
Fr. expirer, expiratio; Lat. expirātio, expirāre (expiro, to breathe).
Explain', to explain; explained', explain'ing, explain'er;
explain'-able (1st Lat. conj.), capable of being explained.
Explanatory (not explainatory), ex.plān.ā.tō.r'y.
Explanation (not explanation), ex'.pla.nāy".shun (not Fr.)
Latin explanābilis, explanātio, explanāre (plānus, plain).
Expletive, ex'.pi.ē.tiv (not ex.plee'.tiv), a supernumerary word (oaths and exclamations are expletives); expletory, -t'ry.
Fr. expléatif; Lat. explēitus, explēo, supine explēum (pleo, to fill).
Explicate, ex'.pli.kate, to explain; ex'plicat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ex'plicat'-ing; explicable, ex'.pli.kā.b'l (not ex.plik'ā.b'l).
Explanation, ex'.pli.kā.y".shun; explicative, ex'.pli.kā.tiv.
Ex'plicat-or; explicatory, ex'.pli.kā.t'ry (not ex.plik'ā.tor'ry).
Explicit, ex'.plik's't, distinct, plain; explic'it-ly, explic'it-ness.
Fr. expliquer, ex'plication, explicatif, explicateur, explicite; Lat.
ex'plicātis, ex'plicatio, explicātor, explicāt, explicāre (ex pico, to unfold).
Explode, ex'.plō.de', to burst forth with sudden violence; explō'd-ed
(R. xxxvi.), explō'd-ing, explō'd-er; explō'd-ible(not-able).
Explosion, ex'.plō.shun; explosive, ex'.plō'siv.; explō'sive-ly, explō'sive-ness, liability to explode.
Fr. explosion; Lat. explōsio, explōdēre, sup. explōsum (plaudo, to clap).
Exploit' (2 syl.), an heroic deed, an achievement (Fr. Lat. explētio).
Explore' (2 syl.), to examine; explored' (2 syl.), explō'r-ing, explō'r-er; exploration, ex'.plō.rāy".shun; explorator, ex'.plō.rā.tor (not ex.plō.raj. 'tor); exploratory.
French exploration, explorer; Latin explorātio, explorātor, explorāre.
Explosion, ex'.plō.shun; explosive, ex'.plō'siv. (See Explode.)
Exponent, ex.pō.nēt, an interpreter, the index of a number:
thus in a³, 2⁵ the 3, 5 are the exponents of a and 2.
Latin expōnens, gen. ex'pō.nentis (ex pōnēre, to put or spread out).
Export, (noun) ex'.port, (verb) ex'.port', goods sent to a foreign market, to send goods to a foreign market; export'ed (Rule xxxvi.), export'ing, export'-er, export'-able (1st Latin conjugation), exportation, ex'.por.tāy".shun.
French exporter, exportation; Latin exportātio, exportāre (ex porto).
Expose, ex'.pō.zē', to exhibit; exposed' (2 syl.), expōs'-ing, expōs'-er, one who exposes or discloses.
Exposure, ex'.pō.zē.shūr; expositor, ex'.pōz'ē.tor, expositor.
Exposition, ex'.pō.zish".shun, an interpretation, a public display.
Expositive, ex.poz'.tiv; exposedness, ex.poz'.zessed.
Exposé, ex.poz'.za (French), a laying bare of secret acts.
Expound' (2 syl.), to interpret; expound'ed, expound'er.
French expos'er, exposition; Latin expōsītio, expōsātor, expōnere.
Expostulate, ex.pōs'.tā.late, to remonstrate. (Followed by with);
expos'tulat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), expos'tulat-ing (Rule xix.)
Expostulation, ex.pōs'.tu.la'tion; expos'tulat-or (Rule xxxvii.); expostulatory, ex.pōs'.tu.la'tory.
Latin expostulātio, expostulātōr (postūlo, to beseech).
Expound'; exposure, ex.po'.zhur. (See Expose.)
Express', a special railway train, a special messenger, to utter, to delineate in words or otherwise, to squeeze out;
express'ed (2 syl.), express'ing, express'ly, express'ness.
Expression, ex.prēs'.shun, a mode of speech, the phase of the countenance, the soul of music, the representation of a quantity, a squeezing out; expressive, ex.prēs'sive;
express'ive-ly, expressive ness, express'ible, expressibly.
Fr. exprés, expression, expressif; Lat. expres'sio, exprēmo, sup.expressum (ex prēmo, to press out, to draw out, hence to portray).
Expulsion, ex.pul'.shun; expulsive, ex.pul'.sive. (See Expel.)
Expunge' (2 syl.), to efface; expunged' (2 syl.), expung'er.
Latin expungēre (ex pungo, to prick out).
Expurgate, ex.pur'.gate (not ex.pur'.gate), to purify; ex'pur-gāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), ex'pur-gāt-ing, ex'pur-gāt-or (R. xxxvii.)
Expurgation, ex.pur'.gāt'shun; ex pur-gatory.
Index expurgatorius, in'dex ex.pur'.ga.tor'ri'æs, the list of books condemned by the Roman Catholic Church.
Lat. expurgātio, expurgātor, expurgātorius, expurgāre (purgo, to purge).
Exquisite, ex'.kwiz.sit (not ex'.kwiz'ite), excellent, a dandy; exquisite-ly, exquisite ness.
Lat. exquisītus, exquirēre, sup. exquisītum (ex quere, to search out).
Exsiccate, ex.sīk'kate, to dry; exsīc'cat-ed (R. xxxvi.), exsīc'cat-ing (R. xix.), exsīc'cant, exsiccation, ex'.sīk'kay'.shun.
Latin exsiccāre (ex siccō, to dry out). (See Desiccate.)
Extant, ex'.tant, in existence.
Latin extant, gen. extantis, standing out (ex stāre).
Extacy (no such word. See Extasy).
Extempore, ex.tēm'.po're (not ex.tēm'.pore), offhand, without preparation; extemporaneous, ex.tēm'.po.ray'ni'.ēus; extemporaneous-ly, extemporaneous ness, extem'por-
arily (Rule lxvi., eous and -ious).
Extemporise (R. xxxi.), ex.tēm'.po.rīz, to improvise; extem'pōrised (4 syl.), extem'pōr'is-ing (R. xix.), extem'pōr'is-er.
Errors of Speech

Extemporality, ex.tëmp′.po.ràl′.i.ty (Latin extemporalitàs) might be introduced, the art of improvising.
Lat. extempóráncus, -órius, extempo-ráre (without time [to prepare]).
Extempörate, to prolong; extend′-ed, extend′-ing, extend′-er, extend′-ible; extend′, size; ex′tant, in existence.
Extermination, ex.tem′.n′.shun; extensive, ex.tem′.sív; extensive-ly, extensive-ness; extensible, ex.tem′.sí-bí (not -able); extend′-sor [muscle], opposed to the flex′or [muscle].
French extension, extensive, extensibilité, extenseur: Latin extendēre, supine extension, extensio, extensīvus (ex tendo, to stretch out).
Exterminate, ex.tem′.nu.ate, to lessen; extend′-nate′-ed (Rule xxxvi.), extend′-nating-ly, extend′-nator (R. xxxvii.).
Extermination, ex.tem′.nu.ation; extenuatory, ex.tem′.n′.u.á.t′.ry.
Fr. ex†enuation; Lat. extenduātio, extenduātūr, extenduāria (tenuis, thin).
Exterior, ex.te′r′i.or, outer, the outside. Interior, inner, the inside; exter′i.or-ly. Exter′iors (plu.), outward parts.
Lat. ex′tēri̇or (extra, on the outside); in′tēri̇or (intra, within).
Exterminate, ex.tér′.mi.n.ate, to eradicate; exterminat′-ed (R. xxxvi.), exterminat′-ing, exterminat′-or (R. xxxvii.).
Extermination, ex.tér′.mi.n′.ation; exterminative, ex.tér′.mi.ná.t′.iv; extrematory, ex.tér′.mi.ná.t′.ry.
French extermination, exterminating; Latin exterminātio, exterminātūr, exterminēra (ex terminus, [to drive] out of the border).
Exter′nal, outward; exter′nals (plu.), the outward parts and forms; exter′nal-ly; exter′n, an out-patient. Internal.
Lat. exter′nus, v. exter′nare; French externe.
Extil′ (better extill), to distil; extilled′ (3 syl.), extill′-ing (Rule iv.), extill′-er; extillation, ex′til.la′tion′.shun (Rule viii.).
Lat. extillātio, extillāre [ex stillo, to fall out in drops].
Extinct′, extinction, ex.tÎn′.shun. (See extinguish.)
Extinguished, ex.tin′.gus.his, to put out; extin′gs.hished (3 syl.), extin′gs.hing-ing, extin′gs.hing-er, extin′gs.hing-able.
Extinct′, no longer in existence; extinction, ex.tÎn′.shun.
Fr. extinction; Lat. extinctio, ex′tinguus, supine extinculum (stingo).
Extirpate, ex′tîr.pâ.te (not ex`tîr.pate), to root out; extirpāt′-ed (Rule xxxvi.), extirpāt′-ing, extirpāt′-or (Rule xxxvii.); extirpatory, ex′tîr.pâ.t′.ry; extir′pable.
Extirpation, ex′tîr.pâ.t′.shun (-t′., not `-ter.-)
Fr. extirpation; Lat. extirpātio, extirpātio, extirpāre (stirps, a root).
Extol′, to laud; extolled′ (3 syl.), extoll′-ing (R. iv.), extoll′-er.
(“Extol” would be far better with double l. Lat. extoll[ο].)
AND OF SPELLING.

Extort', to wrest from; extort'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), extort'-ing, extort'-er; extortion, ex. tor'. shun; extor'tion-er, extor'tion-ist, extor'tion-ary; extorsive, ex. tor'. siu.

("Extortion" ought to be spelt extorsion.)

French extorsion; Latin extorqueo, sup. extorsum (torqueo, to twist).

Extra, ex'. trah, in addition; extras, ex'. trahz, additional charges.

Extra- (Lat. pref.), beyond, in excess, additional. (With a hyphen.)

Extra-judicial, -ju.dish'. al, in excess of court business.

Extra-mundane, -mün'. dane, not of this world.

Extra-mural, -mu'. räl, outside the city walls.

Extra-parochial, -par’.o'. khäl, not of the parish.

Extra-professional, -pro'. fësh'. on. al, not professional.

Extra-tropical, -tröp’. äkäl, beyond the tropics.

Extract, (noun) ex'. tract, (verb) ex. tract'. (Rule I.)

Extract (noun), a tincture, a selection.

Extract' (verb), to draw out, to select; extract' -ed (Rule xxxvi.), extract'-ing, extract'-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Extraction, ex.trak'. shun; extract'-ible; extrac'tive, extr. -tiv.

Fr. extraction, extractif; Lat. extractum (ex traho, to draw out).

Extraneous, ex.trii:. ne.us, foreign; extra'neous-ly.

Latin extraneus (extra, without, beyond).

Extraordinary, ex’. tra.or'. di.nër ry (not ex. tro'. di.nër ry), unusual; ex’traor’dinari-ly (Rule xi.), extraordinaries (plu.) ex’traor’. di.nër riz, extras, things very unusual.

French extraordinaire, extraordinaires; Latin extra ordinarius.

Extravagant, ex.träv’. a.günt, wasteful, prodigal; extrav’agant-ly;

Extravaganza, ex.träv’. a.gan’. zäh, a musical or dramatic piece in which extravagant licence has been taken.

Fr. extravagant, -gän’. Less; Lat. extravagari, to wander beyond [bounds].

Extravasate, ex.träv’. a.sate, to get out of the proper vessels [as blood]; extrav’asät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), extrav’asät-ing (Rule xix.); extravasation, ex.träv’. a.say’. shun (-tion, "a state of being" [out of the proper vessels]).

Fr. extravaser, extravasion; Lat. extra vása, out of the [proper] vessels.

Extreme, ex.trëm’. furthest (extremest, ex. treem’. est, in poetry only); extremes (plu.), ex. treemz’, the two extreme ends; extreme’-ly; extremity, plu. extremities, ex. treem’. itiz.

French extrême, extrémité; Latin extrénum, extrémitas, extrémus.

Extricate, ex’. trë.kate, to free from difficulties; extricât-ed (R. xxxvi.), extricât-ing (R. xix.); extricable, ex’. tri.kü. b’l, Extrication, ex'.tri.kay' shùn, liberation from difficulties.

Latin extricabilis, extricare, extricare (trīca, hairs, &c., wrapped round the feet of birds to prevent them from wandering. "To extricate," to get the feet out of these trīca or impediments).

Extrinsic, ex' trik.in'. stik, independent; extrinsically, ex' trik.in'. sti. kū' lī.ly.

French extrinsèque; Latin extrinsècus, acting from another source.

Extrude' (2 syl.), to thrust out; extrū'd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), extrū'd'-ing (R. xix.); extrusion, ex' trū' shun. (Not a Fr. word.)

Latin extrū'dere, supine extrū'dsum (ex trudo, to thrust out).

Exuberant, exւ'.bè.rant, boisterous, luxuriant; exhuberant-ly.

Exuberance, ex' .bè. ran'shùn; exuberant, ex' .ber. ant; Latin exūberans, gen. exūberantis, exūberare (uber, a dug or udder).

Exude' (2 syl.), to issue through the pores (1 syl.); exū'd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), exū'd'-ing (R. xix.), exudation, ex'.u.day' shun.

A corruption of exuđe, Latin ex sūdo, to sweat out.

Exult', to rejoice exceedingly; exult'-ed (R. xxxvi.), exult'-ing-ly; exultation, ex' .ul.tay' shun; exult'-ant, exult'-or.

Lat. exultantia, exultatio, exultare (ex salto, to leap about).

Exuviae, ex' .uv'e (in Geol.), all fossil animal matter, the cast-off skins, &c., of animals. (Latin eJ'ill', things left off.)

Eye, plu. eyes, ī, īze (1 syl.), organ of sight, to watch; eyed, īde (1 syl.); eye-ing, ī.ing. ("Eye-ing" and "dye-ing" are exceptions to Rule xix.)

Old Eng. īg or edge; edg-appel, the apple of the eye; edg-tōth, &c.

Eyre, ī' r, a circuit, as Justices in Eyre, itinerant judges.

Latin īrc, to go.

Eyrie, ī'.ry, the nest of birds of prey. (Welsh īyr, an eagle.)

Fable, fa' .b'l (noun and verb); fabled, fa' .b'ld; fa' bling, fa' bler.

Fabulist, fa' .b'. əlist; fabulous, fa' .b'. ə.lūs; fab' ulous-ly, fab' ulous-ness; fabulise (not -ize, R. xxxi.), fab' ulize; fab' ulised (3 syl.), fab' ulis-ing (R. xix.).

French fabule, fabuliste; Latin fabūa, fabūāris, fabūāri.

Fabric, fa' .b' rik, texture, &c.; fabrication, fa' .b' rik'. kāt; fa' .b' rik-.kate; to manufacture, to falsify; fabric- cat-ed, fabric- cat-ing (R. xix.), fabric- cat- or (R. xxxvii.).

French fabriquer, fabrication; Latin fabricātio, fabricātor, fabricāre (fāber, a forger or smith).

Facade, fa' .sard' (French), the front of a building.

Face (1 syl.), the visage, a surface. Phase, fāz, the disc of the moon, &c., the shape of a wave, &c. Face, to stand opposite, to encounter; faced (1 syl.); fac-ing, face'-ing; facial, fa' .stīl, pertaining to the face, as facial angle.
Facet, fæs'et (not fay'.set), one of the little flat surfaces of a cut diamond. (Fr. facette, face; Lat. fāces, a face.)

Facetious, fæs'e.shúz, jocose; facetious-ly, facetious-ness.

Facetive, fæs'e.shív.e, witticisms, merry conceits.

Fr. facétie, facetieusement; Lat. fācītics, fācītosus, fācētus. merry.

Facilitate, fæs'il'at.at, to make easy; facilitate-ed (R. xxxvi.), facilitate-ing (R. xix.); facilitate, dexterity; facilities (plu.) fæs'il'.a.tíz, means of reducing difficulties.

French facilité, faciliter; Latin facilitas (fácilis, easy).

Fac-simile, fæk'sim'.il (Fr.), an exact copy. (Lat. factum símillis.)

Faction, fak'shún, a cabal'; faction-ist, an unscrupulous opponent; factious, fak'shús; factious-ly, factious-ness.

French faction; Latin factio, factiosus mutinous, (fació, to do).

Factor, fæk'tor, an agent; factor-ship (-ship, office of).

Factory, fæk'to.ry; factorage, fæk'to.ráge, a factor’s dues.

French facître, factorage; Latin factor (fació, to make or do).

Factotum, fæk'to.tum, an employee who does all sorts of work.

Fr. factotum; Lat. factū tum, to do everything.

Faculty, plu. faculties, fæk'.u.líz, capacity, skill, science.

The faculty, medical practitioners collectively considered.

French faculté; Latin facultas (facul for fácilis, easy).

There are four “faculties” or sciences, viz., arts, theology, law, and medicine, but the word faculty is now restricted to the last.

Faddle, fæld'.d'l, to trifle; fiddle-faddle, purposeless nonsense.

Fade (1 syl.), to droop, to lose colour; faded, fading (R. xix.).

French faide, insipid; Latin vādo, to go; Greek badēs, a walk.

Fag, a drudge, to drudge. A fish-fag, a female fish-hawker.

The fag-end, the selvage, the worst end.

Fagged (1 syl.), fagg'-ing (Rule i.), fagg'-er.

Fagot, fæg'.ót, a bundle of sticks, cakes made of pork scraps.

Fahrenheit, Færen'hít, the inventor of the thermometer which marks 32° as the freezing point of water, and 212° as its boiling point (difference 180°). Reaumur’s thermometer, used in Germany and Russia, divides the distance between these extremes into 80 parts. The centigrade thermometer divides it into 100 deg.

Fall (1 syl.), to become bankrupt, to miss; failed (1 syl.), fail'-ing; failure, fail'yér, insolvency, defeat.

Welsh fael, to fail or miss; fael, a failing. Germ. fehlen, to fall.
Fain, fane, feign (all pronounced fane, 1 syl.)
Fain, desirous. (Old Eng. fegn[ian], to desire; Fr. fain.)
Fane, a temple. (Latin fānum, a temple.)
Feign, to pretend. (Fr. feindre, Lat. fingère, to feign.)

Faint, feint (both faint, 1 syl.)
Faint, languid, to swoon; faint'-ed (R. xxi.), faint'-ing, faint'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns means "like"); faint'-ly.
Feint, a pretence. (Fr. feinte, Latin fingère, to feign.)

Fair, fair, free market, delicate. Fare, cost of a journey, provisions.
Fear, fear, terror. Fair; fair'ing, a present from the fair; fair'-ish, rather fair (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); fairish-ly, fair'ly.
"Fair" (a free market), French foire; Latin fēria, a holiday.
"Fair" (just, beautiful), Old English fēgr, fair; fēger, beauty.
"Fare," Old Eng. fēr, a journey, hence cost of a journey; provision.
"Fear," Old Eng. fēr[a], to fear from being startled (fēr, sudden).

Fairy, plu. fairies, fair'riz. Spenser's word is Faery [Queen].

Falkirk, fa.lker', a Mahommetan monk. (Arab, a poor man.)

Falchion, faivl'shun (not fūl'shun nor fawv'.shē'oon).
French fauchon, a curved sword; Latin falx, a reap-hook.
Falcon, faw'.kōn (not fū.l'.kōn nor fawv'.kōn), a female hawk; falconer, faw'.kōn'er; falconry, faw'.kōn'ry.
Fr. favicon, a falcon; Lat. falx, gen. faelicis, a reap-hook. So called from its curved beak. The male is called a tassel or tarsel (Fr. tiercelet, a tierce, or third smaller).

Faldstool, fald'stool, the bishop's chair within the altar rails.
Old Eng. fal'd stōl, a folding stool; Fr. fauteuil, i.e., faudesteul; Low Lat. faldistorium; Germ. feldstuhl.

Fall, fawv; past fell, past part. fallen, fawv'n; fall'ing, fall'er. ("Fall" retains double 1 in all its compounds: as befall, downfall, windsfall, falling-in, falling sickness, &c.) (R. x.)
Old English feallan, past folk, past part. ge-fallen, to fall.

Fallacy, plu. fallacies, fāl'.la.siz, an error; fallaci'ous, fū.llay'-sīus (Rule xi.); falla'cious-ly, falla'cious-ness.

Latin fallācia, fallāciōsus (fallax, deceitful); French fallacieux.

Fallible (not -able), liable to fall; fallibility, fū.l'ī.ble'-li.ty. Lat. fallère, to deceive; Grk. phallo, to make to fall; Fr. faillible.

Fallopian [tube], fal'lo.pi.an (not fal'lō.pī.ī.an), so called from Gabriel Fallopius, of Modena (1523-1562).
Fallow, reddish bay colour, uncultivated, ploughed but not sown.

“Fallow [deer],” Old Eng. fealo, yellowish brown (seawian, to ripen).

“Fallow land” is land left to “ripen.”

False, false, not true; false’-hood, a lie; false’-ly, false’-ness;

Falsify, fōl.ˈst.ɪˌfɪ ʃ; falsifies, fōl.ˈst.ɪˌfɪz; falsified, fōl.ˈst.ɪˌfɪd; falsifier

Falsification, fōl.ˈst.ɪˌfɪˌkeɪˈʃən, misrepresentation.

Old English false; Latin falsus, v. fallō, supine falsum, to deceive.

Falsetto, plu. falsettos (R. xlii.), fōlˌsɛˌtəz (Ital.), a false voice.

Falter, fōlˈtər, to hesitate; faltered (2 syl.), faltering, etc.

Spanish fallar, to be at fault (falla), hence sin falla, without fail.

Fame (1 syl.), renown; famed (1 syl.), renowned; fame’-less.

Famous, fōˈməs; famous’-ly, famous’-ness.

Latin fama, famōsus; French fame, famen.

Familiar, faˈmilˌər, intimate, an attendant demon; familiar’-ly;

familiarity, plu. familiarities (R. xliv.), faˈmilˌɪərɪˈtɪz.

Familiarise (Rule xxxi.), faˈmilˌɪərˌɪzə, to accustom;

Familiarised, faˈmilˌɪərˌɪzd; familiarising (Rule xix.)

Family, plu. families (Rule xliv.), jæmˈliəz.

French famille, famillier, familiarité, familiariser; Latin fāmilia, familiāris, familiāritas (familius, a household servant).

Famine, jæmˈi.ˈn; famish, jæmˈi.ʃ, to starve; famished (2 syl.), fam’ish-ing (-ish, “to make” [hungry]). Rule lxvii.

French famine, fam, hunger; Latin fāmes, dearth, hunger.

Fan, (noun and verb), fanned (1 syl.), fam’-ing (R. i.), fann’-er.

Old Eng. fann, a fan; Germ. vane; Lat. vannus, a winnowing fan.

Fanatic, faˈnætˌɪk (not faˈnætˌaˌtɪk), a visionary; fanatical, faˈnætˌɪkl; fanatic’-ly; fanaticism, faˈnætˌɪzəm.

French fanaticque, fanatisme; Latin fānāticus (fānun, a temple. Fanatics were persons who haunted temples and pretended to utter predictions).

Fancy, plu. fancies, faˈnɛs, a whim, a liking, to like, to imagine; fancied, faˈnɛd; fan’ci-ful (Rule viii.), fan’ciful-ly, fan’ci-ful-ness, fan’ciy-ing (Rule xi.) (See Fantastic)

The spelling of “fancy” for phansy is disgraceful.

Gk. phantāsia (phaino, to appear); Lat. phantāsia; Fr. fantaste.

Fandango, plu. fandangos, faʊˈn.dænˌɡoʊz, a Spanish dance.

Fane, a temple; fain, desirous; feign, fane, to pretend.

“Feign,” French feindre.

Fanfare (not faˈnfɛr), faˈnɛˌfɛr (Fr.), a flourish of trumpets (Arab.)

Fang, improperly applied to the root of teeth, a pointed tooth.

Old Eng. fæng-tōth, a tusk; (fæn, to seize, the tooth which seizes hold).

Fantasia, faʊˈn.təˈzi.ə (not faʊˈn.tə.ˈzi.ə), a musical composition unrestricted by rules (Ital.)
Fantastic, fän.täs.tik; fanciful; fantastical, fantastical-ly, fantastical-ness; fantasy, plu. fantasies, fän.tsiz

Better with ph-; Gk. phantais; Lat. phantasia. (See Fancy.)

Far, (comp.) far’ther, (super.) far’thest, the most distant.

Forth, (comp.) fur’ther, (super.) fur’thest, most in advance.

Fore, (comp.) former, (super.) foremost or first, ordinal.

(A has walked farther than B, has read further, and stands first or foremost in his class.)

(Of the planets, Neptune is farthest from the Sun; one of the poles of our Earth is advanced to the Sun further than the other; the planet Jupiter is the first or foremost in size.)

"Far," Old English fer or fyr, (comp.) fyrr, (super.) fyrrest.

"Forth," Old English forth or furth, (comp.) furder, (super.) furthest.

"Fore," Old Eng. für, (comp.) formér, more to the fore, (sup.) formest.

Farce (1 syl.), a dramatic burlesque; far’cical, far’cical-ly.

Fr. farse; Lat. farsia, to stuff. (A drama crammed, i.e., exaggerated.)

fare (Old Eng. postfix), "way," "wanderer," "getting on."

Field-fare, a bird. (Feola-fer, the migratory flock.)

Thorough-fare, thür’rüh-fare, a through way.

War-fare, war-going.

Way-farer, a way-wanderer.

Welfare, well-going, well [or ill] getting-on (Rule x.)

Fare (1 syl.), passage-money, provision, to get on (see Fair); fared, fair’d; far’ing, fare’ing, getting on; but

Fairing, fair’ing, a present from the fair.

Farewell (not farewel), May it go well [with you].

("Well retains double l in all its compounds, except welfare, which retains its more ancient spelling with one l."

Old English faran, to go; fare, a journey, hence cost, provision.

Farinaceous, für’rínay’shus, made of flour, yielding flour.

Fr. farinaë; Lat. farinarius (better than "farinaceous"); färina.

Farm, farmed (1 syl.), farm’ing, farm’-er.

Old Eng. form[ian], to procure food (forn, food), fearn[ian], to farm.

Farrago, plu. farragoes, far-ray’göze (Lat.), a medley, meseceline.

A farrago is meal [far] mixed with offal, for pigs, &c.

Farrier, für’rër, one who shoes horses; far’riery, the trade.

Misspelt, the first syl. is ferrum, iron, and not far, bread corn.

Latin ferarius [fauber], a worker in iron, a blacksmith.

Farrow, für’ro, a litter of pigs, to bring forth a litter of pigs; far’rowed (2 syl.), far’rowing.

Old English færb, a litter of pigs.

Far’ther, more remote. Fur’ther, more in advance. (See Far.)

Far’thest, most remote. Fur’thest, most in advance.

Foremost (not formost), most to the fore.
Farthing, farth'ing, the fourth part of a penny.

Old English feorthling, one of the earliest English coins.

Fascinate, fās'si.nate, to charm; fās'cināt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), fās'cināt-ing (Rule xix.), fās'cināt-er (better -or).

Fascination, fās'si.nay'-.shun, enchantment.

Fr. fascination; Lat. fās'cinātiō, fās'cināndra (fascinum, witchery).

Fascine, fās'see'n (not fās'seen), a fagot used in sieges.

French fascine; Latin fasciae, a bundle (fascio, to bind with a truss).

Fashion, fāsh'ōn, the mode, to mould, to form; fashionned, fāsh'.ōnd; fashion-ing, fāsh'.ōn-ing; fashion-er.

Fashionable, fāsh'ōn.a.b'l; fashion-able-ness, fashionably.

Fashionables (plu.), fāsh'.ōn.a.b'lz, persons of fashion.

French fashionable, fa'çon; Latin fācio, to make or fashion.

Fast, firm, unbroken, hence swift (without interval) secure; from swift we get dissipated (to live fast), to hold fast (secure), and hence parsimony, abstinence.

Fasten, fāk'.s'n, to bolt, to fix; fastened, fāk'.s'nd; fasten-ing, fāk'.s'ning, fixing, bolting, that which fastens.

(-en added to nouns = "to make." Fasten, to make fast.)

-fast (as an affix), "firm." Stead-fast, standing firm.

Old Eng. fret, firm; fret or fast, swift; fāsten, a fast.

Fastidious, fās.ti'd.i.ās (not fās.ti'djē's), squeamish; fastid'ious-ly; fastidious-ness.

Lat. fāstitius (fāstium, disdain, fāsus, pride); Fr. fâtitieux.

Fat, (comp.) fatt'-er; (super.) fatt'-est (R. i.), fatt'y, fatt'i-ness (R. xi.), fatt'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); fât'-ly, fatt'-ing, fatt'-ness.

Fatten, fāt'n, to make fat (-en added to verbs means "to make"); fattened, fāt'ned; fatt'en-ing, fatt'en-er.

Fata Morgana, fā' tā Mor'gar.nah, a mirage occasionally seen in the Straits of Mess'īna, &c.

Italian fata (fairy) Morgana, sister of Arthur and pupil of Merlin.

She lived at the bottom of the sea.

Fatal, fā'.tāl, deadly, inevitable; fā'tal-ly; fā'tal-ist; fatalism, fā'.tāl.i.sm; the notion that everything is fixed by fate; fatality, fā'.tāl.ī.ty; fatalistic, fā'.tāl.i.tik (q.v.)

Fate (1 sy1.), doom, lot; fated, fā'.tēd, doomed, allotted.

Fr. fata, fatality, fatalisme, fataliste; Lat. fatālis, fataliter, fatum, fate.

Father, fem. mother, both parent; far'.ther, muth'er, pair'rent.

Father-in-law, plu. fathers-in-law. The husband's father is the wife's father-in-law, and the wife's father is the husband's father-in-law.
Step-father, plu. step-fathers, the second father of a child who has lost her first father; fem. Step-mother.

Grandfather, fem. grandmother, the parents of parents are grandparents to the third generation.

Great-grandfather, &c., the parents of grandparents are great-grandparents to the fourth generation.

Godfather, fem. Godmother, sponsors at baptism.

Son, daughter [both child], offspring of father and mother.

Sire, fem. dam, father and mother of a quadruped.

Old English fader, módor (common to the whole Aryan family of languages), faderic, fatherly; step-fader, step-móder (steop[ean]), to bereave, the father, &c., of a child bereaved. “Grandfather” is French grand (père), great grandfather. (Anglo-Saxon great.)

Fathom, a measure of six feet, to sound the sea, to penetrate; fathom, fáth’un; fath’omed (2 syl.), fath’om-ing, fath’om-er, fath’om-able, fath’om-less.

Old English fethum, a cubit; v. fethm[an], to fathom; fethrmrm.

Fatigue, fa.teeg’, weariness, to weary; ‘fatigued, fa.teeg’d; fatigu-ing (Rule xix.), fa.teeg’ing; fat’iga’tion, -shun.

French fatigue; Latin fatiga, to weary (fátim, overmuch).

Faubourg, fo’.boo’ryg, a suburb. (Old French forbourg).

Low Latin foris burgium, the borough beyond [the town].

Fault, fółt, offence; faulty, föl’ty; fault’i-ness, fault’i-ly.

French faute, now faute; Latin faulo, to slip; fálitas, falsehood.

Faun, a woodland deity. Fawn, a young deer, to cringe.

Fauna, faw’.nah, the collective animals (Flora, fó’.rah, the collective plants) of any given region.

Favour, fa’.vor, a kindness, to befriend; fa’voured (2 syl.), fa’vour-er, fa’vour-ing, fa’vour-ing-ly, fa’vour-er, fa’vour-able, fa’vourable-ness, fa’vourably; favourite, fa’.vor.it; fa’vourit-ism, fa’vour-less.

French favoir, favorable, favorite, favoritisme; Latin fácior, favórabilis, fásco, to befriend. (Our apology for the u in these words is that it marks their French origin, but the French do not interpolate u after e, and it would be far better to follow the Latin.)

Fawn, a young deer, to cringe. Fawn, a woodland deity.

Fawn, fawn-ed (1 syl.), fawn’-ing, fawn’ing-ly, fawn’-er.

Fr. fawn = faun, a fawn; Old Eng. fawn[an], to cringe or flatter.

Fealty, fe’.ál.ty (not feel’.ty), loyalty.

French féal, trusty; Latin fidélis, faithful.

Fear, fér, terror, to feel terror; feared (1 syl.), fear’-ing, fear’-ful (Rule vii.), fearful-ly, fearful-ness, fear’-less, fear’less-ness, fear’less-ly; fear-nought, fér’.nort.

Old English fér[an], to startle; fér, terror from sudden danger.
Feasible, *feas’i*b1, practicable; feas’ibly; feasibil’ity.
French faisable (wrong); Latin fācere, fāctus, easy to do.
Feast, feest, a banquet, to eat sumptuously; feast’-ed (R. xxxvi.)
French fête now fête; Latin festum, a holiday, a banquet
Feat, feet, an exploit. Feet, plu. of foot. Fête, fate (French.)
Feather, feel’er (noun and verb); feather’ed, feather’ing.
Old Eng. feather or father; feather’d or feather’d, feathered.
Feature, fee’ter, the five members of the face, a characteristic.
Norman faiteur; Latin factūra, the make-up of a thing (facio).
Febrile, fēb’rıl (not fēb’rile nor fēb’ril), relating to fever.
Febrifuge, fēb’ri.jíf, a medicine to mitigate fever.
Fr. fēbrile; Lat. febrūis, febr’i fitga (febris fuge, to put to flight fever).
February, *fēb’ru.á*ry (not *fēb’v.á*ry). Latin februárius.
The month, among the Romans, of the lustralia (fēbrēo, to cleanse).
Fecula, fēk’u.lah, starch; fec’ulent, feculency. (See Facule.)
French ficule; Latin feciūla, diminutive of fex, sediment.
Fecund, fēk’űнд, fruitful; fecundate, fēk’u.ánd.a’t; fec’undat-ed (Rule xxvi.), fec’undat-ing (Rule xix.), fec’undat-or.
Fecundation, fēk’u.ánd.a’’hun; fecundity, fēk’u.ánd.i.ty.
French fécondation, fécondation, fécondite; Latin fecunditas, fecundus.
Federal, fēd’e.riil, leagued together. The fed’erals, states leagued together; fed’eral-ism, fed’eral-ist; federal-ise, fēd’e.rii.ž; fed’eralised (4 syl.), fed’eralis-ing (R. xix.), federative, fēd’e.ri.a.tiv. Confederate, con fēd’e.ri.te.
Federation, fēd’e.ray.‘hun and Confederation, a league.
Fr. fédéral, fédéraliste, fédération, fédératif; Lat. fēces, a league.
Fee, a payment, to pay; feed, fee’ing. Land held under an overlord; fee-simple, land not entailed; fee-tail, lands entailed; fee-farm, a farm held on payment of rent.
Feeble, *fee’b*l, weak; fee’ble-ness, fee’bly.
French faible; Spanish fleb; Italian febile.
Feed, past fēd, past part. fed; feed’-ing, feed’-er. (See Feed.)
Feel, past fēlt, past part. felt; feel’-ing, perceiving by touch, sense of touch; feel’ing-ly, tenderly; feel’-er.
Old English fēl, past fēle, past part. *fel*ed; fēling.
Feet, plu. of foot. Feat, an exploit. Fête, fate, a festival.
Feign, fane, to pretend. Fain, desirous. Fane, a temple.
Feign, feigned (1 syl.); feigned-ly, feign-ed-ly; feign-ing.
Feint, faint, a pretense. Faint, inclined to swoon.

"Feign," Fr. feindre, feint; Lat. fingere, supine finctum, to counterfeit. "Fain," Old Eng. fegnian, to desire; fegnung, a desiring, a wish.
"Fane," Lat. fanum, a temple (from fari, to speak, quod pontifices sacrando fanum "funtur," quod vocabant e.ffecrii templa (Varr.)

Felicitv, felici-tät-ly, happiness; felicitous, felici-tous-ly, felicitous-ness.

Fr. feliciter, felicitation, felicité; Lat. felicitas, felicitare (felix, happy).

Fell, the skin; [fell of hair], a hilly moor, cruel, to bring to the ground, did fall. Fell-monger, dealer in hides; fell.

To fell, felled (1 syl.), fell-ing, fell-er, one who fells wood. ("Fell" retains double l in its compounds, R. viii., as befell.). Old Eng. fell, skin, fur; fell [for hats]: Germ. fell, a hide. Germ. felin, a rock, hill, cliff. Old Eng. fell, cruel; full, death. (Verb) Old Eng. fellan, to cut down; past feald, past part. felt.

Felly, plu. fellies, fel-liz, one of the parts of the rim of a wheel. This is a better spelling than felloe. (Old Eng. felge.)

Felon, fel-on, one who has committed felony;

Felony, plu. felonies, fel-on-iz, a capital offence; felonious, fel-no-ious-ly.

Felo de se, fel-lo de se, suicide, a self murderer.

Low Lat. felonia, felo de se, felony on oneself [by suicide]: Fr. felon.

Fel'spar (in Geol.), a volcanic product the basis of many rocks. German felspar, feld spar. Kirwin says fel spar, rock spar.

Felt, the hide and its fur, used for hats. Past tense of feel.

Old English fell, a hide, fur; felt. a hide with its fur.

Fenucca, fe-lük' kah (Italian fenuca), a small sailing vessel.

Female, fe' mail, the feminine sex. Male, the masculine sex.

Feminine, fém'i.nin (not fém'i.nine), pertaining to the female sex. Masculine, mas'i.kilin, pertaining to the male sex.

Female screw, the nut or indented spiral. Male screw, the part with the thread in relief.

Femme-sole, fém-söle, an unmarried woman.

Fr. femelle, femme, a woman, fém'min; Lat. fém'minus, femella or femina, a woman (a feminum partibus, quibus [femina] distinguitur a vira. — Leidore of Seville (Originum s. Etymologic., lib. xx).

Femoral, fém'o.rål, pertaining to the thigh.

Lat. fém'ur, gen. fém'öris, outside of the thigh; fèmen, gen. fém'inis, the inside of the thigh.
AND OF SPELLING.

Fen, land wholly or partially covered with water; fenn-y (R. i.).
Old English fenn, a marsh or fen; fennig, fatty, muddy.

Fence (1 syl.), a hedge, to enclose with a hedge, to fight with foils; fenced (1 syl.), fence-ing (Rule xix.), fence-er.
Latin defensio, a defence; v. defendo, supine defensum.

Fen'nel, a pot-herb. (Old Eng. fenol; Lat. fenniculum, fannum, hay.)

Feod, feud, fee, feoff, fief, feudal.
(At present the uncertain spelling and meaning of these words is most perplexing. The French fief is not wanted and might be discarded. Feud should be restricted to the quarrels of clans and tribes. It is a very corrupt spelling of the Old English feafth or faeth, a deadly feud.)

The words retained and their meanings would then be—

Fee, property held for service; fee-simple, fee-tail, base-fee, conditional fee, fee-expectant, fee-farm (Law terms).
Old English fēh or fōh, property, goods, any medium of exchange.

Feod, fyde, the right of a tenant to a fee; feodalty, fealty; feodary, fū'da.ry, an officer of the court of wards (abolished); feodatory, fū'da.tō.ry, the tenant of a fee.

Feoff, fēf (same as fee, but not a law term), whence feoff-or, fēf'-or, one who gives possession of a fee; feoff-ee, fēf'-ee, one who is put in possession of a fee; feoff-ment, fēf.ment, a deed conveying a fee.

Feud, a deadly quarrel between clans or families; feud-bote, fyde.bote, money paid for engaging in a "feud" quarrel; feud-ist, a writer on family feuds.

Feudal [system]. Unhappily the spelling is too firmly established to be disturbed, otherwise feodal would be better, and then feudal would be the adj. of feud.

Low Latin feodum, fo'famementum, fo'siator, fo'situs; French fēodal.

Ferment, (noun) fer'ment, (verb) ferment (Rule 1.), ferment-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ferment-ing, ferment-able.

Fermentation, fer'ment'ay'shun; fermentability, fer'-mēnt'.ta'bi'y; fermentative, fer'mēnt'.ta'tīv.

French fermenter, fermentation, fermentable, fermentatif; Latin fermentatio, fermentum, fermentāre, to leaven.

Fern, a family of cryptogamic plants; fern'-y (Old Eng. fearn).

Ferocious (Rule lxvi.), fer'o'shūs, savage; ferocious-ly;

Ferocity, fer'o'shī'ty, inhuman cruelty, savageness.

Fer'rel (better ferrule, fer'rule, q.v.)

Ferret, fēr'ret, an animal of the weasel kind, a narrow woollen tape, to drive out of a hole, to tease; ferret-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ferret-ing, ferret-er.

French furet, furter; German frett; Old English fretan, to gnaw. "Ferret" (tape), German florret, [band], a coarse silk ribbon.
Ferruginous, fë.rü.gin.ùs (not fë.rü.gin.ùs), containing the properties or colour of iron[rust]; ferruginated, fë.rü.gina.ted, impregnated with iron (not fë.rü.gina.ted).

Latin fë.rū.gō, iron rust (forum rubīgo, rust of iron).

Ferry, plu. ferries, fë.rìz, a boat for conveying passengers across a river, to convey passengers across a river in a boat; ferries, fë.rìs; ferried, fë.rìd; fë.rìy-ing.

Fertile, fër.tìl (not fër.tìle), more fertile (comp.), fër.tìl-est, or most fertile (super.); fër.tìl-ly; fertility, fër.tìl’.ì.ty.

Fertilise (not fërtilize, Rule xxxi.), fër.tìl.ìz; fër.tìl.ìs-ed (3 syl.), fër.tìl.ìs-ing (Rule xix.); fër.tìl.ìs-er, a rich manure, &c.; fertilisation, fër.tìl.ìz.”shūn.

French fër.tìl.ìt, fertilite, fertiliser; Latin fër.tìlit.ìs.

Ferula, fër.ìl.ùh, a small pallet of wood or leather for striking children on the hand by way of chastisement.

Latin fërülà, fërvio, to strike. (Ferulae tristes, secta pedagogorum cessen.—Martial, 10, 62, 10.)

Ferrule, fër.rìl.ù, a small metal hoop for walking canes, &c.

Spanish bírola; French bírola.

Fer’vent, ardent; (comp.) fër.vènt-er, (super.) fër.vènt-est; fër.vènt-ly, fër.vènt-ness; fervency, fër.vèn’.sy.

Fervour; fër’.vör; fër.vëd, fër.vëd-ly, fër.vëd-ness.

Latin fër.vèns, gen. fër.vènt.is; fër.vèo, to be hot; fër.vèd.us, fervor.

Fesse (1 syl.), a band crossing an heraldic shield horizontally, and equal to one-third of its entire field. It is one of the nine honourable ordinaries. (Latin fascia, a band.)

Latin fës.tìvìt.às, festivus, festivare; French fëstè; now fête.

Festoon, fës.tùn’ (noun and verb); festooned (2 syl.), festoon-ing.

Ital. festone (festa, a festival); Fr. fëstòn (Lat. fëstùm, a holiday).

Fetch, the apparition of a living person, to go and get; fetched'.

To fetch a compass, to make a circuit in order to reach a point.

Old English fëset[an]j, to fetch. Fëtich (q.v.), a kind of demon.

"Fête," French fëtè for festa; Latin fëstum, a festival.

"Fëtë,” Old English fòt, plu. fèt.

Fëtich, fë.tìsh, a West African idol; fëtich-ism or fëtichism, fë.tìch.ìz.m, the worship of a fëtich.

AND OF SPELLING. 337

Fetid, fe'tid, ill-smelling; fe'tid-ly, fe'tid-ness, fe'tor.
French fetide; Latin fetidus, fector, v. fæteo, to smell offensively.
Fetlock, fe'tlök, the tuft of hair behind the pastern of a horse.
Old English fet locc, a lock of hair [on the] feet.
Fétter, a chain for the feet. Man'acle, a shackle for the hands.
Old English fetor or fater. French manacles; Latin mánæca.
Feud, the quarrel of a clan or tribe. (See Feod.)
Old Eng. foftian, past foftic, to be at enmity, fëgth or fëghth, a feud.
Feudal [system], by which lands were held for military service; feudal-ism, fu'dal-is’m, the feudal constitution; feudal-ist or feud'ist, one versed in feudal laws; feudality, fu'dal-i’ty, state of being feudal; feudary, fu'dal-’ri, (adj.), holding lands for service; feudatory, su'da.tá’ri, one who holds lands for service.
Fr. feudiste, feudataire, foalal, feudalité; Span. feudal, feudalidad, feudatorio, feudista, feudo, a feoff; Ital. feudataria, feudo.
Fen-de-joie (French), feu'da'zi’, a joy-volley.
Feuilleton, fu'Z'.ton[’g'], that part of [French] journals devoted to literary articles, as critiques, tales, and so on. (Fr.)
Fever, fe'ver; fe'ver-ish, having a slight fever; fe'verish-ly, fe'verish-ness (R. lxvii.) (Old Eng. fefer; Lat. febris.)
Feverfew, fe'ver füw, a corruption of Old English fefefuge, to drive off fever; the pyre'thun [Parthecium].
Latin febřtφu. Pyrethrum (Greek πυρηθρυμ, fever).
Few, (comp.) few'er, (super.) few'est; few'-ness.
Old English feuw, (super.) seuwosta, seuwostes, fewness.
Fiat, fi'at (Latin “let it be done”), an order to do something.
Fib, a falsehood, to tell a falsehood; fibbed (1 syl.), fibbing-er. (Irish fiabbare, to tell flim-flam tales.)
Fibre, plu. fibres, fi'ber, fi'bž, the solid part of animal flesh, a hair-like root, &c.; fibrous, fi'brüs; fibrine, fi'brën, that which forms fibre; fi'brén-ous.
French fi'bre, fibrine, fibreux; Latin fibra (fiber, an extremity).
Fibula, fi'bu.lah (in Lat. fi‘büla), the small bone of the leg; fibular, adj. of fibula; fib’ulated. (Lat. fibŭlāre, to button.)
Fickle, fi’k’l, inconstant; fickly-ness. (Old English fiçol.)
Fico, plu. ficoes (Rule xlii.), ji’ko, ji’köze, a snap of the finger. Italian fico, a fig, &c. ’I don’t care a fig or fico.
Fictile, fi’k’til, pertaining to pottery; fector. (Latin fìctilis.)
Fiction, fi'k shen; fi'action-ist, a writer of fiction.
Fictitious, fi'k.tish’ž: fictitious-ly, fictitious-ness.
French fiction; Latin fictio, fictitus. (See Rule lxvi.)
Fiddle, fi’d’d’, a violin, to play the violin; fiddled, fi’d’d’d’d; fiddling, fi’d’ling; fiddler, fi’d’lér; fiddle-stick, a bow for playing a fiddle, a sword, a term of contempt signifying that what is said is unworthy of notice.

Fiddle-faddle, trifling matter, much ado about nothing.

German fiedel, v. fiedeln, fiedler; Latin fidès, a fiddle.

Fidelity, fidel'ty, faithfulness. (Fr. fidélité; Lat. fidelitas.)

Fidget, fidget, a restless person, worry, to annoy with petty annoyances; fidget-ed (R. xxxvi.), fidget-ing; fidgety, fidget'y, restless; fidgets, a fidgety fit or conduct.

German fiekhauen, to fidget; fiekhacker, fiekhackerei.

Fiduciary, plu. fiduciaries (Rule xlv.); fidü'ty, faithfulness. (Fr. fidélité; Lat. fidelitas.)

Fieldfare (2 syl.), a corruption of feal-fare, a kind of thrush. Old English fea-fer, the migratory flock (feor, past part. fir, past part. feren, to travel); and feala, many). These birds flock to Britain in October, and leave in February.

Fiend, feend (not seen), the devil; fiend-ish-ness added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); fiend'ish-ly, fiend'ish-ness, fiend'ish-like.

Fierce, fierc'-er, fierc'-est, fierc'-ly; fierce'-ness, ferocity; fierce-minded.

Fier fierce (so dit d' un lion hérissé); Latin férus, savage.

Fiery, f'eer'y, passionate, like fire. (See Fire.)

Fife, plus. fifes (1 syl., Rule xl.), fif'-er, fif'-ing, fifed (1 syl.)

Fifteen, fif'teen', a numeral; fifteenth, fif'teenth', an ordinal;

Fifth, ordinal of five; fifth'-ly, in the fifth place;

Fifty, fif'ty', fifty times ten; fiftieth, fifti'th, its ordinal.

Fig, a fruit, a snap of the fingers: as I don't care a fig.

Old English fis; Latin ficus, a fig. Fico (Ital.), a fig, a snap of the fingers. Fr. Faire la figure à quelqu'un, to make a butt of one.

Fight, past fought, past part. fought, fite, fawt; [foughten, adj.: as the foughten field, used in poetry], fight-ing, fite'ing; fighter, fite'er.

Old English feol[tan], past feoth, past part. fohnen. (The -g- is interpolated, and is worse than useless.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Fig'ment, an idle dream. (Lat. figmentum; fingo, to imagine.)

Fig'ure, fig'ür (not fi'geur'), shape, form, to shape, to make figures; figured, fig'ürd (not fi.geurd'); figur-ing, fig'üring; figurative, fig'gu.rä.tiv; figur'ative-ly, figur'ative-ness, fig'ur-ist.

Figurante, fig'gu.rant, a female ballet-dancer.

Fr. figurante, figuratif, figure, figuriste; Lat. figūra, figūrātivus, figūrāre (fingo, to mould, to fashion).

Filamen't, fil'm.end, a thread; fil'a-men'tary; filature, fil'.a.-tchür, spinning [silk from the cocoons].

French filamen't; Latin filamenta (filum, thread).

Filbert, fil'.bert, the hazel nut. Corruption of fillberd.

Old English fill berd (fill-beard), so called because the nut exactly fills the cup made by the "beards" of the calyx.

Filch, to pilfer; filched (1 syl.), filch'-ing, filch'-er.

Probably a corrupt contraction of pillage (pilge, filch).

File (1 syl.), a tool for rasping, a line of soldiers, a wire on which bills are strung, to use a file, to put a [bill] on a file, to march in file; filed (1 syl.), fill'-ing (Rule xix.), fill'-er; rank and file, the privates of the army.

French fill and file; Latin filum, a thread.

Old English fcel or fyl, a file or rasp; Norse fill v. file, to file or rasp.

Filial, fil'.i'al, becoming in a son or daughter; fil'i-al-ly.

Lat. fillātis (fillus, a son; fillia, a daughter: Gk. φίλλος, to love).

Filibuster, fil'i.buster (not fill ..), a piratical adventurer.

Spanish filibuster; French filibuster.

Filigree, fil'i.gree, thread-like work with gold or silver wire.

French filigrane; Spanish filigrana (the grain [made] with wire).

Fill, to make full; filled (1 syl.), fill'-ing, fill'-er.

To fill full, to fill completely; To fulfill, to accomplish.

Six words (all, thrall, full, fill, still, and mass) drop one of their double letters in those compounds which do not come under R. iv., thus fulfil, fulfill-ment, but the double l is resumed in fulfill-ed, fulfill-ing, fulfill-er, ft., viii.

Old English fyl[lan], past fylle, past part. fylled.

Fil'let, an astragal; meat boned, rolled, and tied with a string; a band for the head, to bind with a fillet; fill'et-ed (not fillett-ed), fill'et-ing (not fillett-ing), Rule iii.

Every effort should be made to reduce the irregularities of Rule iii.)

French filet, fil and dim. et, a little thread (Latin filum, a thread).

Fillibeg, fil'i.bég (not philibeg), the pouch of the Scotch kilt, the kilt is also called a fillibeg.

Gaelic filleadh-bég, a little plait or fold.

Fillibuster (should be filibuster, q.v.)
Fill’ip, a jerk with finger and thumb, to give such a jerk.

Philip, a man’s name. Fill’iped, fill’ipt (not fillipp-ed); fill’ip-ing (not fill’ipp-ing). Same as flip, flap, &c.

(Gossip, kidnap, and worship are the only verbs ending in “p” which absurdly violate R. iii., and they ought at once to be reduced to order.)

“Flip,” a dim. variety of flap. We have a large number of these vowel changes, as pit, pat, hit, chat, flim, flan, mich, smack, flip, flap, wiggle, waggle, and many more.

“Flap” is allied to Latin dlāpa, German klappe, Welsh flaciu, clay, slap, &c.

Filly, (mas.) colt, (both) foal, filé, the young of a horse.

Latin fillia, a daughter; Old English colt and fota.

Film, a thin skin, to cover with a film; filméd (1 syll.), film’-ing; film-y, fil’my; fil’mi-ness, R. xi. (Old English film.)

Filter, fil’ter; a strainer, to strain. Philter, fil’ter; a love-potion; filtered, filter-ing; fil’ter-er, one who filters.

Filtration, fil’tray’.shun, the process of filtering; fil’trage.

French filtre, filtre, filtration, filtrage; Low Latin filtrum.

Filth, dirt; filthy, fil’Th; fil’thi-ly, fil’thi-ness (Rule xi.)

Old English fillth or fillth, filth, impurity.

Fin (of a fish), finned (1 syll.), having fins; fin’-y (R. i.), fin’-less.

Old English fin or fën, finth, finny. Finns, the people of Finland.

Final, fi’näl, last; fi’nal-ly; finality, fi’näl’i ty.

Finial, fi’n’i.al, an ornamental top to pinnacles, &c.

Finale, fi’nál’le (not fi’nay’le; nor fi’nál’-ly); the close.

Finis, fi’níz, the end; in finé (1 syll.), in conclusion, once for all. (French enfin.)

Finish, fin’ish, the end, to end; fin’ished (3 syll.), fin’ish-ing, fin’ish-er, (-ish in verbs means “to make”):

Finite, fi’nite, terminable; finite’-ness, finite’-less.

Infinite, in’finit, without end; definite, déf’i nit, precise.

Indefinite, in’déf’i nit, not definite.

Latin finis, finitimus, finitio, finitus, finire, finitis; Italian finale (3 syll.); French final.

Finance, fi’nánse’ (not fi’nánse), revenue; finan’ces, ready cash; financier, fi’nán’se’r.

Fr. finances, financier: Low Lat. finäre, to fix a fine. “Finance” meant originally duty, tax (of the nature of a fine).

Finch, a singing bird; bullfinch, goldfinch. (Old Eng. finch.)

Find, (past) found, (past part.) found; find’-ing, find’-er.

Finding of the court, sentence of the court.

To find fault, to censure. How do you find yourself? In what state do you find your health? (In Latin we have; me male habère sentió, I find or perceive myself ill.)

Old English findan, past find, past part. founden.
AND OF SPELLING.

Fine (1 syl.), a forfeit, delicate, beautiful, flashy, to impose a forfeit;
Fine (adj.), fin'-er (comp.), fin'-est (super.); fin'-er, one who refines metal; finery, fìn'-er-y, flashy clothes; finary, a forge at iron mills; fine'-ly, fine'-ness.

Finesse (Fr.), fìn'-es', petty artifices; finesse'-ing (Rule xix.), practicing petty artifices.

Fine (v.), fined (1 syl.), fin'-ing, fin'-able. (See Final.)
Low Lat. finis, a fine; finäre, to refine. Fr. fin, delicate; originally the amount of pure gold or silver found by assay; fìn'es'.

Finger, fin'-ger (not fing'-er), noun and verb; fin'gered (2 syl.); fin'-ger-ing, touching with the fingers, the right use of the fingers in playing on musical instruments. At my fingers ends (not finger's nor fingers' end), familiarly known; fin'ger-board, fin'ger-post.

Finial, fin'-i-al, a decoration. (See Final.)

Finical, fin'-i-kl; fin'-ical-ly, fin'-ical-ness.

-ical (Latin termination), "pertaining to" [what is fine or elegant].

Finis, liinis (Lat.), the end, the conclusion. (See Final.)

Finish, fin'-i.sh, the end; fin'ish, rather fine (fine with the dim. -ish). Finnish, pertaining to the Finns. (See Final.)

Finn, a native of Finland. Fin (of a fish). See Fin.

Fiord, fù'or', a bay, frith, or inlet (Norw., Swed., Dan.)

Fir, name of a tree; its timber is deal. Fur, a soft short hair.

Fire (1 syl.), fired (1 syl.), fir'-ing, shooting, fuel; fiery, fù'ery.

Old English fir or zur, fùron, fiery; furpance, a fire-pan; fur-scoft, a fire-shovel; fur-tange, fire-tongs; fur-tholle, an oven.

Firkin, fùr'-kin, a quarter-barrel or nine gallons [of beer], a tub of butter containing fifty-six pounds.

Kilderkin, two firkins or eighteen gallons [of beer].

Barrel, four firkins, or thirty-six gallons [of beer].

"Firkin," German füt and kin, dim., a little barrel; or Dutch vier with dim. a little four or quarter barrel. "Kilderkin," Dutch, a little baby [barrel or tub].

Firm, substantial, strong, a mercantile company; adj. (comp.) firm'-er, (super.) firm'-est; firm'-ly, firm'-ness.

Lat. firmus, steady; firmāmen, an establishment (Gk. herma, a prop).

Firmament, fir'-mān.ment, the sky; firmāmen'tal.

Latin firmamentum, the prop of the fixed stars (Gk. herma, a prop).

Firman, fir'-mān, a royal license or passport. (Turk. firmaun.)

First, foremost; first'-ly, a modern innovation for first (adv.)

At first, or at the first (?). If adverbially used, meaning "immediately," most decidedly; at first is to be used. It is the Anglo-Saxon adverb ætfōre (before), ætfrumen at first. At first sight, here first-sight is one word like first-fruits, first-rate, first-born, and "at" is the adverbial prefix as in after.

Old English fur, far; forre, farther; farrest or furst, farthest or first. Our word is a contraction of the Old English farrest (furst), foremost.

Firth, a corruption of frith, q.v. (Lat. frētum, a frith.) Fiscal, fis'kāl, pertaining to revenue.

Latin fiscus, a money-bag, the money put in the bag; fiscalis.

Fish, plur. (collective) fish, plur. (partitive) fishes, fis'hēz; fish's (poss. sing.), fis'hēz; fishes', fis'hēz. (Rule xxxiv.)

Fish (verb), fis'hēz (third per. s. pres. Ind., Rule xxxiv.); fished (1 syl.), fish'ing, fish'er.

Fish'y, fish'y-ness (R. xi.), fish'ery, plur. fisheries, fis'hērēz.

Fish'er-man, one whose occupation is to catch fish.

Fish-mon'ger, a fish-dealer. (Old English monger, dealer.) Fish'-tail, to shape like the tail of a fish.

Fish's tail, the tail of a fish.

Old Eng. fis, fis, fisces, fisceere, a fisher; fisus, fis-hēz, v. fis[ean].

"Fish" (a card counter), a blunder for the French word fiche (a five sou piece). The two points allowed for the rub are called in French la fiche de consolation (see Rule lxiv.).

Fissure, fis'hēr, a crack or cleft. Fisher, fis'hēr, one who fishes.

"Fissure," French; Latin fis'ūra (fīnō, supine fissum), to cleave.

"Fisher," Old English fisceere (fīsc[ian]), to fish.

Fit, a paroxysm, a canto, suitable, to adapt, to qualify; (adj.) fit, (comp.) fitt'er, (super.) fitt' est, fitt'ing, fitt'ing-ly (Rule i.); (v.) fitt'ed, fitt'ing; fit'ly (adv.), fit'ness; fit'ful (Rule viii.), capricious; fit'ful-ly, fit'ful-ness; by fits and starts, intermittently.

"Fit" (of illness), Fr. fai te, the point or summit: paroxism, means much the same thing, being from the Gk. o'kus, pointed; oksi'tes, to make pointed, to sharpen; par-oksi'totes.

"Fit" (a canto), Old Eng. fit, a song; fis[ean], to sing.

"Fit" (suitable), Fr. fait, comely, well made, as un homme bien fit, il est bien fait dans sa taille, c'est le père tout fit. (Lat. factum.)

Five, a numeral; fifth, an ordinal; fifteen, fifteenth; fifty, fiftieth (Rule xi.); five-fold, one and four times more.

Old Eng. fif, five; fifa, fifth; fifen, fifteen; fifeleuha, fifteenth; fifty or fifty, fifti, fifty; fiftieth, fiftieth; fifty-fold, five-fold; &c.

Fix, to fasten; fix'ing, fixed (1 syl.); fixed-ly, fix'ed-ly; fixed-ness, fixed-ness; fixity, fix'ity; fixture, fix'chur; fixation, fix'chur; fix'chun; fix'-able.

French fixe, fixit, fixation; Latin figo, supine fīxum, to fix.

Fizz, one of the few monosyllables (not in f, l, or s) ending with a double consonant: as add, odd; burr, err; bit, butt; cob, egg; buzz, fuss; jizz, frizz and whizz (Rule vii.); fizz'ing, fizzed (1 syl.) An imitative word.
Flab'by, flaccid; (comp.) flab'bi-er, (super.) flab'bi-est (Rule lxvii.); flab'bi-ly (Rule xi.), flab'bi-ness.

Welsh llubin, flaccid, limber; llub, a flaccid state.

Flaccid, flăk'sid, limp; flăc'cid-ly, flăc'cid-ness, flăc'cid-ity.

Fr. flaccidité; Lat. flaccidus, flacci, flap-er, flacci, to wither.

Flag, an ensign, a’ water plant, a paving stone, to droop; flagged (1 syl.), flag-g’-ing (Rule i.), flag-g’-ing-ly, flag-g’-er, flag-g’-y, flag-g’-ness (Rule xi.); flag’stone, flag’ship.

To unfurl the black flag, a token of distress.

To unfurl the red flag [with the Rom.], a signal for battle.

To unfurl the white flag, to sue for quarter, to give in.

“Flag” (an ensign), German flagge; Danish flag, flagen, to flutter.

“Flag” (the water iris), so called from its resemblance to a flag.

“Flag” (a paving stone), Danish flak, flat; German flach, level.

“Flag” (to droop), Latin flaccido, flaccus; Welsh llein, to flag.

Flagellate, flăj’-ellät, to scourge; flag’elláted (Rule xxxvi.), flag’ellát-ing (Rule xix.), flag’ellant, one who scourges himself; flagellation, flăj’-ellät’-ing, flagel’ium.

Fr. flageller, flagellants, flagellation; Lat. flagellum, flagellare.

Flagoelet, flăj’-o-lät (not flăj’-i. o-lät), a wind instrument.

Fr. flagoelet; Gk. plagiaulos, a flute (plagii’l o’lus, the cross flute).

Flagitious, flăj’ti-sh’-us, villainous; flagitious-ly, flagitious-ness.

Lat. flagitiosus, flagitium, flagrum [a crime deserving] a scourge.

Flagon, flăj’-ön, a tankard; the word is now chiefly employed to designate the large metal vessel which holds the sacramental wine before it is poured into the chalice.

French flacon, a small bottle, with a stopper of the same material.

Flagrant, flăj’-rät, notorious; fla’grant-ly; fla’grancy.

Latin flagrantia, flagare, flagrans [flagrum, [deserving] a scourge].

Flail (not freil), an instrument for thrashing corn.

Latin flægelum, flægellare, to thrash.

Flake, anything put loosely together: as a flake of snow; flák-y, flák’-ky (R. xix.), flák’-ness, fláked (1 syl.), flák’-ing.

Old English flæcea, flakes of snow; Latin flaccus, a flock of wool.

Flambeau, flăm’-bo, flam’-böse. (Lat. flamma.)

Flame (1 syl.), a blaze, to blaze; flamed (1 syl.), fläm’-ing (Rule xix.), fläm’-ing-ly, fläm’-y; flame’-less; flam’beau (q.v.)

Flamingo, flăm’-in’goes (Rule xlii.), flăm’in’-göse, a bird.

Inflamm’a’mble (double m); inflammability, in’flăm’-ma- bil’-ity; inflammation, in’fläm-ma’tion, in’fläm-ma’tion.

French flamme, flambeau, inflammable, inflammabilité, inflammation.

Lat. flamma, inflammatio, inflammare (Gk. phlegma, Æol phlemma).

Flamen, fläm’-män, a Roman priest devoted to the service of one god only. It is an error to suppose that “flamen” has any connexion with flame, and that these priests were so called because they "set flame to" the sacrificial fires.
Varro says (De Ling. Lat., iv. 15) "quod caput cinctum habebant filo" (fillet), from "filum" we get filamines contracted to filamines.

Flannel (double n), not flan’nen, a woollen cloth; flannelled, flan’ned; flan’nell-ing (Rule iii., -er).
(The double n is a blunder peculiar to our own language.)

French flannelle; filum lanaeus, woollen thread; whence flan’ with -et "pertaining to," "made of" [woollen thread]; Welsh gwelan,. flannel; melan, wool; German flanell; Spanish flanca; Italian flanella; Danish flanel or flané.

Flap, anything which opens as it were on a hinge, as the flap of a garment, the flap of a shutter, the flap of a table, the flare of the ear, &c., a disease on the lips of horses; to flap or move the wings backwards and forwards, to hang loose; flapped (1 syl.) or flapt, flapp’-ing, flapp’-er (R. i.)
German klapp, a flap or slap; klappe, a valve; French frapper.
"Flap" (in the lips of horses), German flabbel, a large hanging lip.

Flare (1 syl.), a glare, to glare; flared (1 syl.), flär’-ing (R. xix.), flaring-ly. (German flackern; Danish flagre.)

Flash, a sudden burst [of fire, wit, &c.], to burst suddenly on the sight; flashed (1 syl.), flash’-ing; flash’-y, showy; flash’-ily (R. xi.), flash’-ness, flash’-man, flash’-pipe.
French fleche, a arrow. A "flash" is a dart of light.

Flask, a bottle, a powder-horn. (Old Eng. flasc, a leather bottle.)

Flat, level, insipid, a sign in music, a storey or floor; flat’-ly, flat’-ness, (comp.) flat’t’-er, (super.) flat’t’-est (R. lxviii.), flat’t’-ish (-ish dim.); flat’t’-ed, made flat; flat’t’-ing (R. i.)

Flatt’-en (-en means "to make" [flat]), flatt’ened (3 syl.);
flatt’-ing, flatt’-ing; flat’-wise (not flat’ways).
German platt, flat, plain; platten, to flatten; French plat.

Flatter, to praise falsely, comp. deg. of flat; flattered, flat’-erd; flatt’-ing, flatt’-ing-ly, flatt’-er.

Flattery, plu. flatteries, flat’-er’ies, overwrought praise.
Fr. flatter, flatterie (Lat. plaudo, or falso-laudo, to praise falsely).

Flatulence, flat’tu’en’ce, wind in the stomach; flatulency, flat’tu’en’cy; flat’ulent, flat’ulent-ly, flat’us.

Latinflatulentus (flatus, a gust of wind, flare, to blow).
("Flatulence" and "flautant" would be more correct. 1st Lat. ccn.)

Flaut (to rhyme with aunt, is the more general pronunciation, but -au- as in "cause" is far more analogous to the general pronunciation of this diphthong), to give one-self pert airs, to parade fine clothes; flaut’-ed (R. xxxvi.), flaut’-ing, flaut’-ing-ly, flaut’-er.

Flauto, plu. flautos (Rule xli.,) the flute, music for flutes (Ital.); flautist, flau’tist, a flute-player.
Flavour, \textit{flavour} (noun and verb); flavoured, \textit{flavoured}; flavouring; flavourous, \textit{flavourous}; flavourless.

Correction of \textit{savour}; Lat. \textit{sapor}, relish; \textit{sápico}, rapid taste or smell.

Flaw, a blemish; flawed (1 syl.), flaw'-ing, flaw'-less.

Welsh \textit{flaw}, a burst, a crack; \textit{flea}, a parting from.

Flax, a plant; \textit{flax}-en, made of flax, yellow [hair], \textit{flax'-y}.

Old English \textit{fleas}, \textit{flax}; \textit{fleaxon}, \textit{flaxon}.

Flay; to strip off the skin of an animal (not \textit{fleas}); flayed (1 syl.), flay'-ing, flay'·er (Rule xiii.).

Old English \textit{fleas}, to flay; past \textit{fleande}, past part. \textit{fleand}.

Flea, \textit{fle}, an insect; Flea, to take to flight. Flay (not \textit{flea}).

Fleas, \textit{fleas}, plu. of flea. Flees, \textit{flee}z, runs away.

Flea-bite, a spot caused by the bite of a flea, a trivial evil.

Old English \textit{flea}, a flea; \textit{fleon}, to flee; \textit{flecan}, to fly.

Fledge (1 syl.), to be in feather; fledged (1 syl.), covered with feathers; fledg'·ing (Rule xix.), fledg'·ing, a young bird just fledged. (-ling Old Eng. affix, a dim., an offspring.)

Old English \textit{fleogan}, to fly; German \textit{fliegen} or \textit{flueken}, fledged.

Flee, to run from danger. Flea, \textit{fle}, an insect.

Flee, (past) fled, (past part.) fled; fle'·er (R. xix.), flee'·ing (when a word ends in two vowels it retains both before -ing: as baa-ing, see-ing, agree-ing, coo-ing, woo-ing, dye-ing, eye-ing; except -ue: as argu-ing, pursu-ing, ensu-ing).

Flee, fly. Flea, an insect. To fly is to use wings or speed quickly, to flee, to run from danger. When great speed is to be expressed, or the idea of "running away" is not indicated, we say fly not flee, as:

The "express" flies along; the boy flew like lightning; fly hence to France with the utmost speed. Even running from danger, if great dispatch is to be expressed, as "Whither shall I fly to escape their hands (3 Hen. V., i. 3.)"

Old English \textit{fleogan} or \textit{fliegan}, to flee or fly; (past) fleiht, (past part.) fleohten, fleohten. "Flee," Old English \textit{flea}.

Fleece (1 syl.), the entire coat of a sheep; fleeced (1 syl.), coated with wool; fleec'·y (R. xix.), comp. fleec'er (R. xix.), super. fleec'·est (R. lxviii.); (verb) to plunder by exactions; fleeced (1 syl.), fleec'·ing (R. xix.); fleec'er. (The idea is "cutting off the wool," hence "plundering.""

Old English \textit{fles} or \textit{flys}, a fleece.

Fleet, a navy, swift, to be transient, to skim [milk]; fleet'·ly, swiftly; fleet'·ing, transient, hastening away; fleet'·ness.

"Fleet" (a navy), Old English \textit{flet}, a ship.

"Fleet" (swift, to flow away), Old Eng. \textit{fleotan}, to float or flow away.

"Fleet" (to take the cream off), Old English \textit{flet} or \textit{flet}, cream.

27—2
Flem'ing, a native of Flanders; Flem'ish, pertaining to Flanders.

Flesh (noun), to flesh [one's sword], to draw blood with it for the first time; fleshed (1 syl.), flesh'ing. Flesh'ings (plu.), flesh-coloured clothes worn sometimes by actors; flesh'ly, carnal; flesh'-y, full of flesh; flesh'ness; flesh'less.

Old Eng. flesc, flesecht, fleshy; fleselle, fleshly; fleschiones, fleshiness.

Fleur-de-lis, plu. fleurs-de-lis (Fr.), fliehr d'lee, the water iris or fleur-de-luce. The French word is nonsense, as the plant in nowise can be termed a lily [lis]. From this blunder arises the erroneous emblematic term the lily of France. The word means the "flower of Louis."

Flow, the large chaps of a deep-mouthed hound, past tense of fly. Flue [of a chimney], fluff. Flewed (1 syl.)

"Flow" [large chaps], Welsh flw, a tendency to spread.
"Flow" (did fly), Old English fles, past tense of floggan, to fly.
"Flue" (of a chimney), formed from the Latin flue, to flow.
"Flue" (fluff), Welsh plf for pluf, feathers.

Flexible, flex'a·ble, pliant; flexible-ness, flex'ibly; flexibility, flex'a·bil'·i·ty; flexible, flex'·i·le; flexion, flex'·i·shun; flex'or, a muscle for contracting or bending a joint; exten'sor, a muscle for extending or straightening a joint; flexuous, flex'a·u'sus, tortuous; flexuous, flex'u·us (in Bot.), zigzag [stem]; flexure, flex'·ur.

Fr. flexibilité, flexible, flexion; Lat. flexibilitas, flexilis, flexio, flexuosus, flexuosa, flexus, flexëre, supine flexum, to bend.

Flicker, fl交错'r, to flitter; flick'ered (2 syl.), flick'er-ing, flick'er-ing-ly. Flick, to strike with a smart jerk; flicked (1 syl.), flick'ing.

Old English flecerian, to flicker; flacor, a flickering.

Flier, fl交错'er, the regulator of a machine. Fly'-er, one that flies. Fliers, fl交错'erz, stairs which do not wind. (See Fly.)

Flight, fliate, hasty removal; flight'-y, eccentric; flight'i-ly (Rule xi.); flight'i-ness, eccentricity, levity.

Old English flheit, v. fligan, to fly (y- of flight is interpolated).

Flim-flam, mere nonsense, a worthless trifle (Rule lxix.)

Flim'sy, limp; flims'i-ness, flims'i-ly (Rule xi.)

Welsh ilmysl, ofickle motion, weak.

Flinch, to shrink, to draw back [from pain or fear]; flinched (1 syl.), flinching, flinching-ly, flinch'·er.

Welsh flïIch, to squeal out.

Fling, (past) flung, (p. p.) flung, to cast; fling'-ing, fling'-er.

Old English flïç, flying, as flïç-pil, a flying dart, v. fligan, to fling.

Flint, a stone; flint'-y, flint'i-ness (Rule xi.) (Old Eng. flïnt.)

Flip'pant, pert in speech; flip'pant-ly, flip'pancy.

Welsh ilipanu, to make glib; ilipan, a glib person.
AND OF SPELLING.

Flirt, a coquette, to coquette, to flick; flirt'·ed (Rule xxxvi.), flirt'·ing, flirt'ing·ly; flirtation, flî.·tay'.·shun.
Welsh flî.twn, a flighty girl; flî.tyn, a giddy man; flî.t, a jerk; or Old English fî.ird[ian], to play the fool; fî.erd, folly.

Flit, to fly away; flî.t'·ed (Rule xxxvi.), flî.t'·ing (Rule i.)

Flî.t'er, flî.t'er·ing, flî.t'er·flî.t'er (Rule lxxix.)

Danish flî.tte, to remove; (flî.tteř [flî.trér], "the bustle and confusion of removal" would be a good word to introduce).

Flitch, the side of a hog salted and cured. (Old Eng. flî.cce.)

Float, flî.t (1 syl.), a buoy, to be buoyed on the top of water; float'·ed (R. xxxvi.), float'·ing, float'ing·ly, float'·able, float'·er; floatation, flî.tay'.·shun; float'·age (2 syl.)
Old English fî.t, a float; v. fî.t[an] part. fî.t, past part. fî.teen.

Flock, a lock of wool, a collected number of sheep or birds. A collected number of large cattle is a herd, of horses [strung together] a string, of horses or oxen [driven] a drove, of hounds a pack, of bees a swarm, of whales a school, of mackerel, a shoal, of netted fish a haul or take, of human beings a crowd, of children a posse (pō's·sy), of soldiers a troop, of stars a galaxy.
Old English fî.c, a company. (A Christian congregation is called a flock by Dissenters, the minister being their pastor [shepherd]). "A flock of wool," German flocke.

Floe, a mass of floating ice; an ice-berg, of stationary ice.

Old English fî.d, a fragment broken off.

Flog, to whip; flogg'·ed (1 syl.), flogg'·ing (Rule i.), flogg'·er.

Lat. fî.g[a], to flog; flagrum, a scourge; Gk. piêgê, Dor. plaga, a blow.

Flood, flî.d, a deluge, to deluge; flood'·ed (R. xxxvi.), flood'·ing.

Flood'·tide, full tide; ebb'·tide, low tide.

Old English fî.d, a flood.

Floor, flî.r, not flî.re (noun and verb); floored (1 syl.), floor'·ing (n. and part.); floor'·er, a knock-down blow.

Old English fî.r or flî.re, a floor.

Flop, to bounce, to bob; flopped (1 syl.), flopp'·ing (Rule i.)
(Another spelling of the word flap, as "strop" is of strap.)

Flora, flî.·ra, all the plants of a country. Fauna, all the animals.

Floral, flî.·ral, adj. of flower; flî.·ral·ly; flî.o·ret, a little flower; florescence, flî.o·rë'sense, the flowering of plants.

Florid, flî.·rîd, highly ornamented; flî.·rid·ly, flî.·rid·ness, flî.·rid·ly; floridity, flî.o·rë·.të·.ty; floriferous, flî.o·rë·.ë·rës, bearing flowers (flores ferens, Lat.); floriform, flî.o·rë·.fërm (Latin flî.ò.rës forna, form of a flower); flo'rest.

Floriculture, flî.o·rë.kë.nl.ë.chûr (Lat. cultûra), cultivation of flowers; floricultural, flî.o·rë.kë·.të.ro', fî.so'cûle (3 syl.)

Latin Flora, goddess of flowers; flos, gen. flî.öris, a flower; flî.öralis, florescens, gen. flî.örescentis (inceptive of flî.öro, to blossom), flî.öridus.
Florentine, flō'r.en.tin, a native of Florence, pertaining thereto.

Florid, flō'r.id (not flo'red), flowery. (See Flora.)

Florin, flō'r.in (not flo'ren), a two-shilling silver coin.

This very un-English word was first applied to a coin struck in Florence in the thirteenth century. It had a lily on one side, and the head of John Baptist on the other. There was an English florin (value 6s.) issued by Edward III., in 1337, probably the German florin (value 2s. 6d.) suggested the word to us.

Florist, flō'r.ist (not flor'est), a cultivator of flowers. (See Flora.)

Flotage, flō'tage, the act of floating; flotation, flō'ta.shûn.

Flotsam (not flotsom), flō't.sûm, goods found floating on the sea after a wreck. Jetsam, jēt'sûm, goods cast into the sea to lighten a ship in distress. (French jeter, to cast out.)

Old English flōtan, to float; flōta, anything that floats.

Flotilla, flō't.tî.lah, a fleet of small vessels. (Spanish flotilla.)

Flounce (1 syl.), a trimming, to bounce about; flounced (1 syl.), flounce-ing. (Norman flunsa, to bluster.)

"Flounce" is one of the French words misspelt and missapplied. Francis is a gather as franc un franc de la maine, cette chemise n’est pas assez floncée par le collet. What we miscall a flounce is volant in French.

Flounder, floun'der, a flat fish, to struggle in water.

"Flounder" (the fish), German flünder; Danish flynder.

"To flounder" is to flay about in water like a flounder.

Flour, ground corn. Flower, the blossom of a plant (both flō'ur); flour'-ing, dredging flour on; flour'-y, like flour; flower-ing, flous'ing, blossoming; flower-y, full of flowers.

French fleur de farine, flour; fleur, a flower.

Flourish, flō'r.ish, an ornamental scrawl with the pen, a salutation with trumpets, to brag, to thrive, to make a flourish; flourished, flō'r.ished; flourish-ing, flō'r.ish-ing; flourishing-ly; flourish-er, flō'r.ish.er.

Latin floresco (inceptive of florreo, to flourish; flores, flowers), hence "ornament," a flourish with a pen is an ornamental scrawl, a flourish with trumpets is an ornamental turn by way of honours, to flourish a sword is to use it ornamentally not serviceably.

Flout, to mock; flout'-ed, flout'-ing, flout'-ing-ly, flout'-er.

Old English flō[tan], to quarrel, to wrangle.

Flow, flō, (past) flowed (1 syl.), (past part.) flowed (not flōwn).

Fly, (past) flew, (past part.) flown.

The river has overflowed its banks (not overflown).

Old English flō[wan], past flōw; ofersfōwan, to overflow.

Flower, the blossom of a plant. Flour, ground corn (both flō'ur).

Flower-stalk, flower-garden; flower-y, flō'ur'yi; flower-li'-ness, flō'ur-li'-ness (Rule xi.); flower-et, flō'ur'et.

To flower; flowered, flō'erd; flower-ing, but

Flour, ground corn; flour'-y, flour'-ing.

Welsh flour, bloom; v, flur; Fr. fleur, fleuri; Lat. flores, flowers.
Flown, past part. of fly. (See Fly, and note to Flow.)

Fluctuate, flūk'tu-ate, to waver; flūc'tu-āt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), flūc'tu-āt-ing; fluctuation, flūk'tu-ā'tiōn. (Not Fr.)

Latin fluctuātio, fluctūōre (fluctuōsus) "full of waves" or "wavy" might be introduced, fluctus, a wave (fluo, to flow).

Flue [of a chimney], fluff. Flew, the large chaps of a deep-mouthed hound, past tense of the verb to fly.

"Flue" (of a chimney), a noun formed from the Latin fluō, to flow.

"Flue" (fluff), Welsh plu' for pluf, feathers.

"Flew" (large chaps), Welsh flw, a tendency to spread.

"Flew" (did fly), Old English flēd, past tense of flēogan, to fly.

Fluent, flū'ent, ready of speech, flowing freely; flū'ent-ly.

Fluency, flū'-en.sy. Fluid, flū'id; fluidity, flū'id'i-ty.

Fluff, the abrasions of cloth, fine down; fluff'y, fluff'i-ness.

Welsh plu', feathers. "Fluff" also called flué, q.v.

Flugelman (not flugleman), flū'.gel'man, the soldier who sets the drill exercises which the rest imitate.

(Sometimes but incorrectly called a fugleman.)

German flugalmann, leader of the file (flugel, a wing).

Flu'id, fluid'ity, flū'id'i.ty. (See Fluent.)

Fluke (1 syl.), that part of an anchor which fastens in the ground, a flounder, hap-hazard, an irregular proceeding.

"Fluke" (of an anchor), German pflick'en, to pick, pfug, a plough.

"Fluke" (a fish), Old English flōc, a plaice or other flat fish.

"Fluke" (hap-hazard), a flounder. To flounder is to stumble about, hence a stumble. To get through an examination by a fluke is to stumble through it irregularly; to "flounder" through it.

Flummery, flūm'e.ry, empty compliments.

German pflaum'erci, food made with plums (pflaum, a plum).

Flunky, plu'. flunkies, flūn'ki.z, a servant in livery (a term of contempt); flun'kyism, pretentiousness, consequential airs; flunk'ky-dom, the state politic of flunkies.

German flunkern, to glitter. A flunky is one gorgeously dressed.

Fluor, flū'or, a menstrual flux; flu'or-spar, a mineral used for ornamental vessels. "Derbyshire-spar" is a fluor-spar; fluoric, flū'or-ič; fluorine, flū'.or'in.

Fr. fluor, spath fluor. (In Chem.)-ine denotes a simple substance.

Flurry, commotion, to agitate; flurried, flūr'red; flurry-ing.

Hurry, skurry, worry, and flurry, are cognate words.

Welsh herwa, to harry, to prowl; Lat. urgo, to urge on (curvo, to run).

Flush [of a mill], an entire suit of cards of one sort, a reddening of the face, well supplied, well adjusted, to inundate, to elate; flushed (1 syl.), flush'-ing.

German fluss, a flow, flux, or flush [at cards].

A flux of water is a flush, a flow of blood to the face, a flow of money into the pockets, &c. Carpenters call their work flush when the parts fit properly and all is level; thus a door is "flush" with the wall when it stands on the same plane. (Russian ploskei, flat.)
Fluster, to flurly; flustered, flūster’d; flust’er-ing, flust’er-er.

Fluster and bluster are cognate words: (as Latin flō and English blow; Latin fluo and Greek bhlō; blastan, to puff; hence a “blustering wind.” Fluster may be a variety of the same word, or may indicate a similar “disturbance” in water.

Flute (1 syl.), a wind instrument, channel in a pillar, to “flute” a pillar; flüt’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), flüt’-ing (Rule xix.), flüt’-ist, one who plays the flute.

Fr. flûte (the musical instrument); Germ. flöte (Lat. flō, to blow). A “fluted” column is one with concave stripes, being like “a flute” cut in halves; a “Doric column has twenty such channels; and a Tuscan column has as many convex stripes called “cables.”

Flutter, to flap the wings; fluttered, flūter’d; flut’er-ing, flut’ering-ly, flut’er-er; flitter-flutter (Rule lxix.)

Old English flōegan; German flöten.

Fluvial, flūvi.al, connected with or pertaining to a river.

Latin flāviālis, flāvius, a river (flōu, to flow).

Flux (in Metall.), anything used to promote the fusion of metals; &c.; (in Med.) a too-abundant evacuation, fusion;

Flux’-ible (not -able); fluxibility, flūx’i.ι.ι.ty;

Fluxion, flūk’shun, the act of flowing, matter which flows;

Fluxions, flūk’shanz, now called Differential calculus;

Flux’ion-al, flux’ion-ary, fluxed (1 syl.), flūx’-ing.

French flūs, flūsions, fluxions; Latin flēre, supine flōsum, to flow.

Fly, plu. flies, an insect. Fly, plu. flys, a sort of hackney carriage.

Fly, the index of the mariners’ compass, a sort of wheel, to move with wings, to run with great speed, to burst asunder.

To fly, (past) flew, (past part.) flown; flies, flize; fly’-ing.

To flee, (past) flōd, (past part.) flōd (not flown): as the man has fled, the bird has flown; flees, flee’-ing;

Fl’er, one who flies, the regulator of a machine;

Fly’-ers, stairs which do not wind.

Fly-blown, fly-wheel, flying-buttress;

To fly in one’s face, to scold insolently, to insult;

To fly in a passion, to get into a passion;

To come off with flying colours, to come off triumphantly;

To let fly, to discharge, to let loose;

To fly out, to attack with angry words; to fly at, to attack;

To fly open, to start open: as the door flew open;

The [glass] flew, cracked suddenly. Will it fly, ...crack.

Old English flēgan or flōgan, to fly or flee, past fleah, past part. flōgan, flig, a fly; German fliegen, to fly, fliehen, to flee.

Fcal, fōl, a colt or filly. Fool (to rhyme with cool), a simpleton.

Focal, to bring forth a focal; foaled (1 syl.), focal’-ing.

Old English fōla, a colt or filly.
AND OF SPELLING.

Foam, fo̓me, surf, to froth; foamed (1 syl.), foam-ing, foam-ing-ly, foam-y, foam-less. (Old English fám, foam.)

Fob, a trouser watch-pocket, to “prig,” to trick; fobbed (1 syl.), fobbing (Rule i.) Also called To fub [marbles], &c.

“Fob” (to trick); German feppen, to play upon.

Focus, plu. focuses or foci, fo̓.küs, fo̓.küs.e̓z, fo̓.si, the point in which light or heat rays meet; (in mathematics we talk of the foci of an ellipse, parab'ola, hyper'bola, and so on, but never of the focuses); fo'cus-ing, fo'cal (adj.)

Latin fōcās, the hearth (fō short); French fœcal.

Fodder, food for horses, to feed with fodder. Foth'er, 2184 lbs. of lead; foddered, fö̓d.erd; fö̓der-ing.

Old English födder or föder (fōda, food); föther, a load, a foliage.

Foce, plu. foecs, fō, föze, an enemy. Foh! an interj. of disgust.

“Foe” Old English Ñd., the hearth (Ñ-short); French pouah; German pfui.

Foétus, the embryo of animals; foétation, fē.tay' shōn.

French fœtus; Latin fœtus (Greek phoūao, to have pains of travail).

Fog, dense vapour; fogg'-y (Rule i.), (comp.) fogg'i-er, (super.) fogg'i-est, fogg'i-ness, fogg'i-ly (Rule xi.)

Italian sfogo, exhalation; v. sfugare, to exhale.

Fö'gey, a prosy old man. Generally old [fogey].

The term is derived from the old pensioners of Edinburgh Castle.

Foible, foy'b'l, a failing. (French foible, now faible, weak.)

Foil (1 syl.), a blunt sword used in fencing, leaf-metal, to frustrate; foiled (1 syl.), foil'ing, foil'er.

“Foil” (a blunt sword), Welsh fīcyl, a foil.

“Foil” (leaf-metal), French feulle, a leaf; (Latin folium).

“Foil” (to frustrate), French afolé, said of a “compass” when the needle points wrong.

Foist (1 syl.), to insert surreptitiously (followed by in), to palm something off upon another (followed by on); foist'ed (Rule xxxvi.), foist'ing. (A corruption of forced.)

Föld, a plait, to double; föld'-ed (R. xxxvi.), föld'-ing, föld'-er.

Old English fe ald[an], past feol, past part, ge-fealden (feald, a fold).

Foliage, fo̓.li.a.ge, the leaf-hangings of trees; foliaceous, a'shō̓s.

Foliate, fo̓.li.a.te, to beat [metal] into leaf, to cover with leaf-metal; fo̓liāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), fo̓liāt-ing (R. xix.)

Foliation, fo̓.liā.t'shō̓n, the leafing of plants.

Folio, plu. folios (R. xli.), fo̓.lio, fo̓.liō̓.ze. In bookkeep-ing the left and right hand pages of a ledger, &c., a book of the largest size in which the paper is folded only once. Latin foliātio, foliāceus, foliālus (folium, Greek phyllēn, a leaf.

Folk, fōk, people; folk-mote, an assembly of the people.

Old English fōk, folc-gemōte, a popular assembly.
Follicle, föl′lik (in Bot.), a dry seed-vessel opening on one side only, and having the seeds loose; follicalous, föll′lik′u,li,üs; or follicular, föll′lik′u,lar; folliculated.

Fr. folicule; Lat. folicula (follis, a bag, purse, or seed-vessel).

Fol′low, to come after; followed, föl′lawd; fol′low-ing.

Old English foljan or fylia [past fylyde, p. p. fylliged, folgore].

Ital. folia; Fr. folie; Welsh ffol, foolish; ffolis, a wind-bag.

"Folly" (a mansion), French foltic, extravagance. (See Fool.)

Foment, *föment′*t, to dab with a wet sponge or rag, to encourage; foment′-ed (Rule xxxvi.), foment′-ing, foment′-er; Fomentation, fo′men,tay′shUn, a lotion, its application.

Fr. fomenter, fomentation; Lat. fomentum, fomentari, to foment.

Fond, foolish, partial; fond′-ly, fond′-ness.

Fondle, fon′dıl, to caress; fondled, fon′d,lid; fond′ling.

Fon′dling, a pet. Found′ling, a child deserted by its parents. Chaucer fonne, a fool; Irish fonna, a longing. Originally "fond" meant a foolish weakness, foolishly partial.

Font, a baptismal basin, a complete set of type. Fount, the source.

Fr. fonte; Lat. fons, gen. fontis. "Font" (type), Fr. fonte, fondre.

Food (1 syL), victuals. (Old Eng. föda. See Feed.)

Fool (1 syL), a simpleton, a jester; to delude; fooled (1 syL), fool′-ing, fool′-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), fool′ish-ly, fool′ish-ness.

Foolery, plu. foolishies, fol′lo,iz, absurd acts; fool′-hardy, foolishly daring; foolhar′di-ness, foolhard′i-ly; fools′cap (not fool′scap), paper the size of an ordinary day-book, so called because originally its trade-mark was a fool's head and cap; fool's errand, a purposeless errand.

Welsh föl, foolish; foledd, folly; foles, a silly woman; foli, to delude.

Foot, plu. feet (each 1 syL.), not führt, nor foote to rhyme with boot, but "foot" to rhyme with put. Footfall (not footfal.)

Foot, (verb) foot′-ed, foot′-ing. Foot′ed, having feet, as four-footed beasts. Foot′ing, position, standing, as He has a good footing. Foot′-note, a note at the bottom of a page. To foot it, to dance. To set on foot, to originate.

("Foot" and "put" are the only two words in the language with this vowel sound. All other words in -oot have the usual diphthongal sound of -oo-: as hoot, moot, root, and shoot. "Soot" is at present vacillating, some make it to rhyme with foot, some with root, and others with hut. So with "put," it stands alone, all other words in -ut have the short ū sound, as but, cut, gut, hut, jut, nut, sud, smut, tut, &c.)

AND OF SPELLING.

Fop, a dandy; fopp'ish (Rule i.), like a fop (-ish added to nouns means like); fopp'ish-ness, fopp'ish-ly.

Foppery, plu. fopperies, fôp'ëriáz, over-dressiness.

Germ. fopperie; Span. guapo, spruce, foppish; Lat. vappo, asimpleton.

For. (Old Eng. prefix of verbs), privation, deterioration, against, aside, away; in former, forward, it stands for for.

German vor and vor; Latin foris, out of doors; French hors.

For, prep. and conj., on behalf of, because; in as much as,

Old Eng. for; Germ. für; Span. por; Fr. pour; Lat. pro; Gk. pro.

Forage, for'rage (not für'ridge), fodder, to collect food for horses, &c., to strip of fodder; for'aged (2 syl.), for'aging (R. xix.), for'ag'er, for'aging-cap, a light military cap.

Spanish foragido, robbing in woods and forests; Fr. fourrage; Lat. forragio, i.e. far ago, to drive or carry off provisions.

Foramen, plu. foramina, for'ay'mên, for'amä'tnah, a hole by which nerves, &c., obtain a passage through bone. (In Botany) the opening in the ovulum; foraminated; foraminous, for'amä'tnahëz, full of perforations.

Foraminifera, for'amön'i fë'rah, the rhizopoda (vi.zôp'-ô.dah or root-footed animals), microscopic animals with shells having numerous chambers communicating with each other by apertures or foramin'ina.

Lat. forämen, plu. forämina, a perforation. "Foraminifer" is for'amä'tnah foräns, bearing [many] perforations.

Forasmuch as, for'as.much' as, because, seeing that.

Forbade, for.bâd', past tense of forbid (which see).

Forbear', (past) forbore', (past part.) forborne' (not forborn), to refrain, to cease; forbear, for.bar'; forbear'ing, forbear'ing-ly; forbear'ance, restraint of temper, &c.

Old English forðær(an), past forbær, past part. forbören. The idea is "to bear aside," i.e., to lay aside. (See For-)

Forbid', (past) forbade', (past part.) forbid'd'en; forbid'd'ing (R. iv.), forbid'd'ing-ly, forbid'd'er; forbade, for.bâd'.

Old Eng. forbeddan, past forbadden, past part. forboden. To bid is to command, "for" (negative), to command not. (See For-)

Forbore, for.bôr'; forborne'. (See Forbear.)

Force (1 syl.), plu. forces, for'sez (R. xxxiv.), violence, troops, to compel, to violate; forced, forst; force'-ing (R. xix.) for'sing; force-er, for'ser; force'-ful (R. viii.), force'-ful-ly; forcible, for stash'; for'cible-ness, for'sicly; perforce', of necessity; by main force, by sheer force; forcemeat, force'-meet, stuffing of meat.

French force, forcier; Latin for'tis, strong.

"Forcemeat," a blunder for farce-meat (Latin farcio, to stuff).

For'ceps (plu.), surgical pliers. A for'ceps, or a pair of for'ceps (not a forcep). When the two parts of a pair are inseparable the word is used in the plu. number only: as scissors, trousers, crackers, pliers, tweezers, drawers, tongs, &c.; but if the two parts are separable, the word has both numbers: as glove, gloves; sock, socks; boot, boots. Latin forcepts, tongs (formus capio, to take up what is hot).

Ford, a pass through a river, to ford a river; ford-ed (R. xxxvi), ford-ing, ford-er; ford-able. (Old Eng. ford, a ford.)

Fore- (Old Eng. prefix), beforehand, preceding. In two instances (former and forward) the -e has been dropped, and fore-close is a blunder, the prefix being the Lat. for[um].

Fore, the front, the fore part; fore and aft, the fore part and hind part of a ship, from end to end.

Old English ḕore; German tọr.

Forearm, (n.) for- arm, (v.) for-arm’d (R. 1), from elbow to wrist, to arm beforehand; forearmed’ (2 syl.), forearm-ing.

"The forearm," Old English fore arm.

"To forearm" the Teutonic foro-joined to the Latin armo, to arm.

Forebode, for-bode’, to presage; forebōd-ed (Rule xxxvi.), forebōd-ing (Rule xix.), forebōd-er.

Old English fore beoðian, to fore warn.

Forecast’, (past) forecast’, (past part.) forecast’ed, forecast’-er, forecast’-ing, to foresee and provide against what is for-seen. Forecast’, (3 syl.), foresight, &c.

Danish for kaste, to guess beforehand; blind kast, a rough guess.

Forecastle, for kas’t, the short upper deck in the forepart of a ship. Ships were at one time turreted, hence the Latin phrase naves turricula (the part before the turrett).

Forechosen, for chōze’n, chosen beforehand.

Old English fore cōsan.

Forecited, for si’-tē’d, before said. (Latin citāre, to quote). (An ill-compounded word, part Teutonic and part Latin.)

Foreclose (ought to be forclosse), for klōze’, to compel a person to redeem a mortgage under pain of losing his rights therein; forclosed, for klōz’d; forclos’-ing (Rule xix.)

Foreclosure (ought to be forcloser), for klōz’-shur, a legal proceeding to compel a mortgagor either to redeem the pledge or submit to the loss of the property mortgaged.

To foreclose a mortgage (i.e., to shut out a mortgagee from redress) is nonsense, although not unfrequently used.

We foreclose a mortgagor, not a mortgage.

(This prefix is the Latin för[um], a law-court.)

Latin forclusio (e föro clusio, exclusion from the law-courts).

Foredoom, for doom’, to doom beforehand; foredoomed’ (2 syl.), foredoom’-ing. (Old Eng. fore dōm, judgment beforehand.)

Forefather, for’-far’ther, an ancestor. (Old English fore faeder.)
Forefinger, for'jîng' gér, the finger next the thumb.
Old English for-ge-nger.

Forefoot, plu. forefeet, for-foot, for-fee, one of the front feet of an animal with more than two. Forfeit, for- fit, q.v.

Forego, (past) forewent' [not in use]. (past part.) foregone; for-goi.ing, for-go', for-gân', för-go'.ing.
Old English for-gán, past part. for-ga-gen.
Forego, to "go away from," would express the idea more simply, but for-go means to "go before you enjoy a thing," hence to give it up.

Foreground, för-ground, that part of a picture which is supposed to be nearest the spectator. (Old Eng. for-ground.)

Forehead, för-réed (not för-re-héd), that part of the face which lies between the eyebrows and the scalp-hair.
Old English for-head.

Forehorse (2 syl.), the leader of a team. (Old Eng. for hor-s.)

Forehand, for-hand, more frequently beforehand, in anticipation.
The idea is that it is in hand or ready before it is required.

Foreign, för-rén (not för-rén), belonging to another nation.
Fr. forain, foreign; Lat. foris, from abroad (Gk. thura, the door).

Forejudge, för-judge', to judge before the facts are proved.
(This hybrid ought to be dropped. Prejudge (French préjuge) is sufficient.)

Foreknow, för-know' (-now to rhyme with grow); past foreknew, for-new'; (past part.) foreknown, for-noun' (-noun to rhyme with grown); foreknow-ing; foreknowledge, for-nol'.idge (not for-no'.lege).
Old Eng. for-e-nûw-an, past -nûw, past part -nûw-ên fore e-nûw-ên.

Foreland, för-lönd, a point of land which juts into the sea.
Old English for-lân, land in advance of the general coast.

Forelock, for-lék [in a horse], the hair which hangs over the forehead. In man, a lock left on the forehead when the head is nearly bald. Take Time by the forelock, make the best of the present opportunity.
The idea is taken from the picturesque representations of old Time with one "forelock" on his bald pate. (Old English for loc.)

Foreman, plu. foremen; fem. forewoman, plu. forewomen; for-mân, för-mén; för-wō mân, for-wim'ın, the principal employee, from whom others take their directions. The "foreman of a jury" is the name first called, this man sits first and makes the report.
Old English for-mân, plu. -menn; for-wîf-mann, plu. -wîf-menn.

Foremast, för-mast, the mast nearest the bow of a ship.
German fockmast, focksegel, foresail; fockstag, foestay, &c.

Foremost, för-most, first in rank or repute. (Old Eng. for-mest.)
Forenamed, för'namd, mentioned before. (Old Eng. forneman.)
Forenoon, för'noon', morning to midday. (Old Eng. for nó'n.)
Forensic, för'en'sik, pertaining to the law courts. (Lat. forænsis.)
Foreordain, för'ordän', to predestinate; för'ordained' (3 syl.), fo'reordain'ing; foreordination, för'or di'nay'ing. (These are ill-formed, forö- being Teutonic and -ordain Latin. "Pre-ordain" and "preordination" are better compounds.)
Forepart, för'part, the first part (fore-, Teut.; pars, partis, Lat.)
Forerun, (past) foreran, (past part.) forerun, för'run', för'run'; forerun'ing (Rule iv.); forerunn'er, för'run'er, one sent before to announce the coming of another, a courier.
Old English fore-renn[an], past foreran, fore-ryn, a forerunner.
Foresaid, för'sed, mentioned before, set forth in the previous part.
Old English fore-séd, past part. of -sæd[an], past sád.
Foresee, (past) foresaw, (past part.) foreseen, för'se'en', för'saw', för'seen', to see beforehand; foresee'ing (R. xix., -ing);
foresee'er, för'see'er (R. xix.), one who sees beforehand.
Old Eng. foreseeán, past-seáh, past part. -seégan, foresent, a foreseer.
Foreshadow, för.shád'o, to typify; foreshadowed (3 syl), foreshadow'ing, foreshadow'er. (Old Eng. foreséado.)
Foreshow, (past) fore-showed, for.shówd' (not for-show), (past part.) fore-shown or fore-showed', to predict; foreshowing, foreshow'er (-show- to rhyme with grow).
Old English forescéw[ian], past-scéwode, past part. -scéwod.
Foreship, för'ship, fore part of a ship. (Old English fore scip.)
Foreshorten, for.short'en, to draw objects in an oblique direction
(the fore part being shortened): foreshortened, förshort'nd; foreshorten'ing, for.short'ning.
Old English foarseort[ian].
Foresight, för'sít, preview. (Old English for ge-stíht.)
Forest, för'st, land covered with trees.
For'ested, covered with forests. Affor'ested, converted into a forest and protected by forest laws. Disfor'ested or dis'for'ested, deprived of its forest privileges.
Forester, för'réster, a forest warden or keeper.
Forestry, för'restr', the right of foresters; for'esty.
Forestage, för'restr'tage, service paid to the king by foresters.
(All these words are spelt with one r, not double r.)
French forest now forêt, forestier; Latin foàre, to pierce [with darts] forests being set apart in feudal times for hunting purposes.
Forestall (not forestal, Rule viii.), för'stawl', to anticipate;
forestalled' (2 syl.), forestall'ing, forestall'er.
To "forestall" is to buy up goods before they are brought to the market-stall. (Old English for stæl[an], stæl, a stall.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Foretaste, (noun) für·täste, (verb) für-täste (Rule 1.), a taste in anticipation, to taste before possession is obtained, to anticipate; *foretäst-*ed (R. xxxvi.), *foretäst-*ing (R. xix.)

Fore added to taste. Germ. tasten, to feel; Fr. taster now tâter; Ital. tastare, to touch; Lat. tactum, to touch; Gk. thiggano, pronounced thingano, contracted to thingo; Lat. tango, sup. tactum.

Foretell (not foretel, R. viii.), to predict; (past) foretold, (past part.) foretold, för·töld, fore-told; *foretell-*ing, *foretell-*er.

Old English fore tell[an], past fore-telde, past part. fore-teald.

Forethought, für·thocht, provident foresight. (Old Eng. fore thõht.)

Foretoken, för·tökh'n, an omen or sign beforehand, to foreshow; foreto'kened (3 syl.), foreto'ken-ing. (Old Eng. fore lácen.)

Foretooth, plu. foreteeth, för·tooth, för·teeth, a tooth in the fore-part of the mouth. (Old Eng. fore tõth, fore thú.)

Forever, für·ëv'er, always. (Old English for ëfer.)

Forewarn, för·warn, to give notice beforehand.

Old English fore warn[an].

Forewoman, plu. forewomen, för·wo'man, -wim'en, chief woman in a shop, from whom others take their directions.

Old English fore wëfmann, fær wëfmen. (See Foreman.)

Forge (1 syl.), a smithy, a furnace, to form by the hammer, to counterfeit; forg'-ed, for'feiting, to for'feiting-er, for'feiting-able; * forfeiture,* für. fi.čhur.

Fr. forfait, forfaiture; Low Lat. forisfactw'a, alienation of a thing.

Forgery, plu. forgeries, für·jeˈrēz. (Fr. forge, forger, forgeur.)

Forget, (past) forgot, (past part.) forgott' en; *forgett-*ing (R. iv.), forgett' er; forgett'ful, forgett'ful-ly, forgett'ful-ness.

Old English for-gīf[an], past for-gët, past part. for-geten.

To forget is to get out of or away from [the mind or memory].

Forgive, för·giv' ; (past) forgav, for·gäv' ; (past part.) forgiven, för·giv'n; forgiv'ing forgiv'ing-ly, forgive' -ness.

Old English for-gif[an], past for-gæf or gaf, past part. for-gif'en.

To forgive [an offence] is to give it away, not to keep it; in Latin re-nittit, to remit, to send it back or away.

Fork, an instrument with prongs, to divide into two branches;

Forked (1 syl.), *fork-*ing; forkedness, för·kéd'ness, forkedly, för·kéd'ly, forketail, a salmon in its fourth year.

Forlorn, forsaken, solitary; forlorn'ly, forlorn' -ness, forlorn hope (ought to be spelt forlorn).

Old English for lóran, to send away, hence to forsake.

"Forlorn Hope" is for-lóran haufe, the troop sent forward.

In German haufe = a multitude as ein haufe freunde, a troop of friends; haufen gehen, they troop to their standards, &c.
Form, shape, to shape; formed (1 syl.), form'-ing, form'-er.

Formal, done in due form, ceremonious; formal-ly, ceremoniously; former-ly, in times past.

Formality, plu. formalities, for.mál'-i.tiz, ceremony; formalism, for.mál.ism; formal-ist.

Formation, for.máy'.shün; formative, for.má.tiv.

Formalise, for.mál.ize; formalised (3 syl.), formalis-ing (Rule xix.), formalis-er (Rule xxxi.).

Former, prior, one who forms; former-ly, in times past; formal-ly, ceremoniously; foremost, for'.most, first.

Our word “former” is compounded of fore more [to the] fore; and “foremost,” most [to the] fore; both words ought to have the e in fore. In Anglo-Saxon fur, far, made furre, farther, furrest, furrest, furst, and fyrnest, farthest; from furth, forth, was fyrder, fyrder, fyrdra, fyrna, first; from forth, was forth, forthor, forthmost, foremost; from foreméra, illustrious, was foremárest; from foror, far [v.ierce, to go a journey], forrest or farst.

Formic, for.mik, pertaining to ants; formic acid, an acid originally obtained by bruising red ants in water.

Formica, for.mi'.kah, the ant genus.

Formicidae, for.mi'.st.de, the family containing the Formica genus (-ide, a group or family, a Greek patronymic); formination, for.mi'.kay'.shün, a sensation like that of ants crawling over the skin.

Latin formica, an ant; formicatio (Greek murmex, an ant).

Formidable, for.mi'.dil.b'l, dreadful; formidable-ness, for'.midably. (Latin formidábilis, formido, férar.)

Formula, plu. formulm or formulas, for.mú lah, plu. for.mú.la or for'.mú.lahz, a pattern rule.

Formulary, plu. formularies, for.mu. lúr'tz, a book of forms, a ritual; formulate, for.mú.lat, to reduce to a formula; formulát-ed, for.mulat-ing (Rule xix.).

Latin formula, a rule, a pattern (forma, a form).

Fornicate, for'.nú.kate; fornication, for'.nú.kay'.shün; fornic-ator (not -er, Rule xxxvii.), fem. fornicátress.

Latin fornicatío, fornicátor, fornicatriz, fornicare (Greek pornikos, porné, a harlot).

Forsake' (3 syl.), (past) forsook', (past part.) forsá'ken, forsák'-ing (Rule xix.), to desert.

Old Eng. for [negative] sók[an], to seek, past sóhte, past part. gesóht.

Forsooth, in truth. (Old English tosóthe, truly; sóth, truth.)

Forswear, for.swá're; (past) forswore', (past part.) forsworn', forswear'-ing; forswear'-er. To swear falsely.

Old English forswerti'an], past forswór, past part. forswóren.
AND OF SPELLING.

Fort, a fortified place. Forte (1 syl.), special faculty. Fought, fort, did fight. Forte, for'te, loud. For'ty, a numeral.

Fort, a small fortified place for security or defence.

Fortress, a natural fort strengthened by art, like the fortress of Gibraltar; fortressed, for'trēst, having a fortress.

Fort'let, a small fort. Fortalice, for'tā.lis, a small fortress.

Fortification, all the works erected in defence of a place.

It may include the other four terms. (See Fortify.)

French fort, for'teresse; Low Latin for'talitium (Latin fortis, strong). "Forto" (a strong point), French fort; as la critique est son fort.

"Fought," Old English feoh[an], past feah, past part. folkēn.

Forte, for'te (Ital.), loud. Forty, for'ty, a numeral.

Fortissimo (Ital.), loud as possible. (Forty, O. Eng. feowertig.)

Forth, forward, abroad. Fourth, forth, an ordinal.

Forthcoming, forth-kum'ing, soon about to appear; forthwith, forth'with (not forth.wirh), without delay.

Fortify, for'ti.ify; fortifies, for'ti.ifiz; fortified, for'ti.ifide; fortify-ing; fortification, for'ti.ifikay'shun. (See Fort.)

Fr. fortification, fortifier; Lat. fortificatio, fortificare (fortis facio).

Fortitude, fort'tude, strength of mind. (Latin fortitudo.)

Fortnight, for'tnite, not for'tn't (contraction of fourteen night[s]), two weeks. Day was reckoned by the ancient Britons from sunset to sunset. Hence also se'nnight, sēn'ät, that is, seven nights or one week.

Tacitus says of the Britons: Non diērum numerunt, ut nos, sed noctium computant.

Fortress, for'tress, a natural fort aided by art. (See Fort.)

Fortuitous, for.tū.tī,tūs, accidental; fortu'tous-ly, fortu'tous­ness; fortuity, plu. fortu'ties, for.tū.'tīz.

Latin fortuitus (fors, chance); French fortuit.

Fortune, for'tchūne, chance, portion, fate; fortu'te-less.

Fortunate, for.tchū.nate, lucky; for'tunate-ly.

French fortune; Lat. fortūna, fortunāus (fors, luck).

Forty, numeral; for'ti-eth (Rule xi.), ordinal, 4 x 10.

Old English force, four; feowertig, fourteen; feowertig, forty.

Forward, for'ward, advanced, in the front, to promote, to send on; for'ward-ed (R. xxxvi.), for'ward-ing, for'ward­ness, for'ward-er. Forwards (adv.), onwards.

(The prefix ought to be fore-, Old English foreweard.)

Foss or fosse (1 syl.) In Fort., the moat between the scarp and counterscarp; V the long line is the scarp, the short one the counterscarp, and the space between the fosse.

French fosse; Latin fossa, a moat or trench.
Fossil; fós·sil, the petrified remains of plants and animals; fossiliferous, fós·sil·if "fós·sil·i·f*🔗, containing fossils; fossilise (not fossilize, R. iii., -11); fossilised (3 syl.), fossilising (R. xix.), fossil-ist; fossilisation, fós·sil·i·za"ˌshün, the process of converting to a fossil.

Fr. fossile; Lat. fossilis (fodio, sup. fossum, to dig [out of the earth]).

Foster, nursing or nursed, to nurse, to bring up; fostered (2 syl.), fostering, fosterer; fostering, a foster-child.

Foster-child, a child nursed and brought up by one not its parent. Foster-mother, the nurse who brings up the child. Foster-father, the nurse's husband. Foster-brother, foster-sister, the foster-child is foster-brother or foster-sister to the children of its foster-mother.

Old English fóstər, fóstər-dild, -brother, -sweostor, -fa:d01', -môdor.

Fother, fóthər, 218.4 lbs. of lead. (Old English forth.)

Fought, fort, did fight. Fort, a fortified place. Forte, fort, a special faculty. (See Fort, Fight.)

Foul, filthy, to defile. Fowl, a bird.

Foul-er, more filthy. Fowl-er, a sportsman who pursues wild fowls. Foul'-est, most foul.

Foul-ing, defiling Fowl-ing, pursuing or taking wild fowls. Foul'-ly, foul-ness. Fowling-piece, a light gun.

Found (1 syl.), did find, to cast metal, to endow, to lay a foundation; found'-ed (R. xxxvi.), established, &c.; found'-ing;

Found'-ling (not fould'ling, q.v.), a child "foud," its parents being unknown (-ling Old Eng. dim., an "offspring").

Foundery, founderies, or foundry, foundries, *foun'dri*ˌes.

Foundation, foun·day'.shün, the base of a building. &c.

Founder, fem. found’dress (not founder-ess), one who endows [an institution, &c.]. Founder, to sink as a leaky ship, to lame a horse by hard riding.

"Found" (did find), Old Eng. fændan, past fænd, past part. fænden. "Found" (to establish), Latin fandare, fundatio; French fondation. "Found" (to cast metal) and "founder" (to sink or lame), Lat. fundere.

Fount, the spring, the source, contraction of fountain, foun't’.n; fountain-head; fount, better font, a complete set of type of any one size, with all the usual points and accents, about 100,000 characters in all; w.f., wrong font.

"Fount" (fountain), French fontaine; Latin fons, gen. fontis. "Fount or font" (type), French fonte, v. foudre, to melt or cast.

Fourth, förth, a cardinal. Forth, out, forwards; fourfold. Fourteen, för’t.teen, a numeral; fourteenth, a cardinal. Forty, fore'te, a numeral; fortieth, for'tieth, a cardinal. Forte, fore'te (in Music), loud.
AND OF SPELLING.

Old English: four, fourth; fourfold; fourteen, fourteenth; fowertig, forty; fowertigeth or fowertigetha, fortieth.

Fowl, a bird. Foul, impure. Fowling, catching or shooting birds; fowler, one whose trade is to catch or kill birds; fowling-piece, fowl'ing-piece, a light fowling-gun.

Old English: fugel, a fowl; fugelere, a fowler. "Foul," fût.

Fox, fem. vixen (or fox), bitch fox; fox'y.

Fouglove (2 syl.), a plant called digitalis (dij'tay's'lis).

Old English: foax, foaxen, fozglofa, a corruption of folceglofa, fairy-glove; the Latin digitalis is from digitus, a finger.

Fracas, fra'kah', a brawl. (Fr. fracas, a crash; Lat. fractus).

Fraction, frük'shün, a broken part, part of a unit; fraction-al, fraction-al-ly; fractions, frük'shunz, an arithmetical rule for the treatment of broken numbers.

Fractious, frük'-shüs, fretful; fraction-ous-ly, fraction-ous-ness.

Fracture, frük'tchür, a break, to break; frac'tured (2 syl.), frac'tur-ing (Rule xix.).

Fr. fraction, fracture; Lat. fractio, fractura, frango, sup. fractum.

Fragile, fraj'.il (not fraj'ile, nor fray'jil), brittle; (comp.) more fragile, (super.) frag'il-est or most fragile.

Fragility, fraj'jil'.tý, brittleness; frag'ile-ly. (See Fragile.)

Fr. fragile, fragilité; Lat. fragilitas, fraj'til-itas (frago for frango).

Fragment, an imperfect part; fragment-al, fraj'g'men'tül; fragment-al-ly; fragment-al-ly; fragment-al-ly; fragment-al-ly; fragmentary, fraj'g'men'tar-iry.

Fr. fragment, fragmentaire; Lat. fragmentum (frango, to break).

Fragrant, fraj'gränt (not fraj'gränt), sweet-smelling; fraj'-grant-ly; fragrance, fraj'gränc (not fraj'gränc); fraj'gräncy, plu. fragrances, fraj'gränc'siz.

Latin fragrans, gen. fragrantis, fragrantia (frango, to smell sweet).

Frail, a kind of rush, hence frail basket, a basket of raisins about 75 lbs., weak, one who yields to temptation.

Frailty, plu. frailties, frail'tiiz; frail'-ly. (See Fragile.)

Flail (not frail), for thrashing corn.

French frèlé (contraction of fragile); Latin frégiles, fraj'giltas.

Fraise (in Fort.), fraze, a chevaux de frise, a frieze.

Fr. fraise; Ital. fregio, a frieze. (See Chevaux de frise.)

Frame (1 syl.), a border, a state of mind, to enclose in a frame, to feign, &c.; framed (1 syl.), främ'-ing (R. xix.), främ'-er.

Old English: fremm(a), to frame, past fremmide, past part. fremmed.

"Frame" (to pretend), Old Eng. fremed, foreign, artificial, not genuine.

Frank, frauk, a French silver coin, worth about 10d. Frank, g.v.
Franchise, frän'.chīz (not frän'.shēz), freedom to vote for members of parliament. The verb is enfranchise.

French franchise; Low Latin franchesia (francus, free).

Franciscan, frän'sis'.kān, the order of "Grey friars," so named from St. Francis, of Assisi, the founder, 1209.

See fragile and frail, from frāgo, the older form of frango.

Frank, a Christian name, one of an ancient tribe which settled in Gallia (France); the Turks call all the inhabitants of Western Europe "Franks"; open, candid; to exempt from postage; franked (1 syl.), frank'-ing. Franc, a coin.

German Franke, a Frank, a Francoian; frank, free.

Frankincense, *frän'.ləns*ense*, a gum resin which exhales a fragrant odor when sprinkled on hot ashes.

An English compound, meaning "free-incense."

Frantic, frän'.tīk, furious, distraught; fran'tic-ly or fran'ti-cal-ly. (Ought to be phrenetic or phlectic.)

Frenzy, frän'zē, violent agitation of mind; frenzied, frän'.zēd, affected with frenzy. (Properly phreny.)

Latin phrēnāsis, phrēnēticus; Greek phrēnēsis, phrēnētikos.

French frénetique (Greek phrēn, gen. phrēnos, the mind).

Fraternal, frə.tə.nəl, brotherly; frater'nal-ly, frater'ni'ty.

Fraternise (Rule xxxi.), fra'tel'nize, to treat as comrades; fra'ternised (3 syl.), fra'ternis'-ing (Rule xix.), fra'ternis'-er. Fraternization, fra'.ter.ni'zay.shun. (Not Fr.)

Fraternal, fraternit,  fraterniser; Lat. fraternalis, frater.

Fratricide, fra'.tri.side, brother-murder; fra'tricidal.

French fratricide; Latin fratricida, fratricidum (frater cadam).

Fraud, fraud, crafty dishonesty; fraud'-ful (R. viii.), fraud'-ful-ly, fraudfulness; fraudulent, fraud'·u·lent; fraud'·u·lent-ly; fraudulentness, fraud'·u·len·ce; fraud'·u·len·cy.

Fraught, fraut, filled, laden. (See Freight.)

Fray, a brawl, to frighten, to wear away by friction; frayed (1 syl.), fray'-ing (Rule xiii.)

"Fray" (a brawl), Low Latin affrāia; French fracas.

"Fray" (to frighten), French effrayer, to frighten.

"Fray" (to rub away), French frayer; Latin fricāre.

Freak, freek, a whim, a prank; freak'-ish, capricious (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); freak'ish-ly, freak'ish-ness. (A saucy or rude trick.)

Danish fræk, impudent, rude; German frech, saucy.

Freckle, frēk'.kl, a spot on the skin, to spot with freckles; *freckled, frēk'.kəld; *freckling, frēk'ling; freck'ly.

Welsh brychu, to freckle; brychni, covered with freckles; brych.
AND OF SPELLING.

Free, (comp.) fre'-er, (super.) fre'-est, freed (1 syl.), free'-ing, free'-ly, free'-ness; free'-booth'eer, one who roves about for plunder; free'-booth'eing, pillaging; free'-dom.

Free'-man, one who enjoys civic or political franchise;
Free'd-man, a slave set at liberty.

Free-school, a school free to a given number of the sons of freemen; free'-mind'ed, free'-mas'lon; free'-stone, a variety of sandstone, easily or freely cut; free'-think'-er, a sceptic; free'-trade', commerce with home and foreign customers without duty or restriction; free'-will, liberty of obeying the will independent of predestination or fate.

To make free [with...], to take without permission.

Old English freô, freô-bearn, free-born; freôdom, freôlic, liberal; freôtes, freely; freômann, freônes, freeness; v. freô, to free.

Freeze (1 syl.), to congeal with cold. Frieze, freeze, a coarse woolen cloth, that part of an entablature which lies between the architrave and the cornice.

Freeze, (past) froze (1 syl.), past part. fro'zen, freez'-es (R. xxxiv.), freez'-ing (R. xix.), freez'-able. Frost (q.v.)

Old English freos(an), past freos, past part. frozen (our froze). “Frieze” (cloth), French fraîse (sorte d’étoffe de laine à poil froide). Also a cloth “qui vient de la province de Fries en Hollande.”

“Frieze” (in Architecture), French frise; Italian freqio.

Freight, fraite, cargo of a ship, to load a ship with “goods”; freight'-ed, (past part.) freight'-ed and fraught, frort; freight'-ing, freight'-er, freight'-age, freight'-less.

German fracht, frachter; French frel, fréter, affréteur.

French, the language spoken in France, adj. of France.

French leave, taking without leave, the allusion being to the raids of French soldiers in their numerous wars.

French'man, plu. French'men, or The French, the former is partitive, as two, three, four, some Frenchmen, the latter collective (R. xlvii.); Frenchwoman, plu. -women.

Land of the Franti ("the freemen"), a confederacy of German tribes.

Frenzy, frenz'y, distraction allied to madness: frenzied, frén'-zèd; frenz'y-ing. Frantic, frán'tik; fran'tic-ly, fran'tic-ality. (Ought to be spelt with P;.) See Frantic.

Latin phrenēsis, phrēnēticus; Greek phrēnēsis, phrēnētikos. As usual our error arises from copying the French frénésie.

Frequent, (adj.) fre'quent, (verb) fre'quent' (Rule 1.)

Frequent', to visit often; frequent'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), fre'quent-ing, frequent'-er. Frequentative, fre'quent'-ative.

Fre'quent, often; fre'quent-ly, fre'quent-ness; frequency, fre'quent-ence; frequence, fre'quent-ity.

French fréquence, fréquenté, fréquent, v. fréquenter; Latin frquens, gen. frquentis, frquentare, supine frquentâtum.

Al fresco, in the open air. (Italian, in the cool.)

Italian disegnare a fresco, to paint on fresh [plaster].

Fresh, new, not stale, not salt, cool, brisk; fresh'-ly, fresh'-ness.

Fresh'en, to make fresh (-en converts nouns into verbs); freshened, fresh'·end; freshen-ing, fresh'·ning.

Fresh'et, an overflow of river-water; fresh'man, a university student of the first year. (Old Eng. forse, fresh.)

Fret, to vex, to eat away; fret'-ed (R. xxxvi.), fret'-ing (R. i.), fret'-er, fret'-ful (R. viii.), fret'ful-ly, fret'ful-ness.

Old English fretten, to gnaw; past fret, past part. fretten.

Friable, frī'.a.b'l, easy to be crumbled; friable-ness; friability, frī'.a.bīl'·a.ty, the state of being easily reduced to powder. French friable, friabilité; Latin frīabilis (frīare, to crumble).

Friar, Monk, Nun.

Fri'ar, a member of one of the Mendicant Orders: viz., Francisc'ans (Green friars), Carmel'ites (3 syl., White friars), Domin'icans and Augus'tines (3 syl., Black friars); friarly (adj.), frī'.ar.ly.

Monk, munk, a hermit or member of a monastery.

Nun, a woman who lives in a nunnery or cloister.

“Friar,” French frère; Latin frater, a brother.

“Monk,” Greek monachos (monos, alone); Old English munc.

Fribble, frīb'.b'l, a trifle, to trifle; fribbled, frīb'.b'ld; fribbling, fribbler. (French frivole; Latin frivōlus, frivolous.)

Fricassee (French), frīk'.ə.sē'_., a ragout of meat stewed in a frying-pan, to make a fricassee; fric'assee", fric'assee"-ing. (Words which end in two vowels retain both when -ing is added Rule xix.), fricandeau (French), frīk'.änd.do", a ragout of veal larded. (Latin frigo, to fry; Gk. phrugo.)

Frication, frīk'.shān, resistance produced by bodies rubbing against each other, attrition; fric'tion-al, fric'tion-less.

Latin frictio, fric'tre, to rub; French friction (medical term).

Friday, frī'.day. (Old English frīge-daJg, Friga’s day.)

Friend, frēnd: friend'-ly, friend'li-ness (Rule xi.), friend'-less, friend'less-ness, friend'·ship, attachment (-ship, state of.)

Old Eng. frōnd, frō'ndle·cas, friendless; frō'ndle·cs, -ly, frō'ndle·ce·pe.

Frieze, freeze, a coarse woollen cloth. Freeze, to congeal.

“Frieze,” French frise (étôff e de laine à poil frisé), also toil de Friese.

Frigate, frīg'.ate, a ship larger than a sloop or brig. (Fr. frégate.)

Latin aphractus, Greek aphractos (a phractos, not fortified), a ship without hatches, similar to those used by the ancient Rhodesians.
AND OF SPELLING.

Fright, frite, sudden terror; fright'ful (R. viii.), fright'ful-ly (R. xi.), fright'ful-ness. A fright, an untidy person.

Fright-en, frite'n, to terrify; fright'ened, frite'nd; fright-en-ing, frite'n-ing (-en converts nouns to verbs).

Affright, af, frite' (not a-frite''), to startle with fear; affright'ing (R. xxxvi.), affright'ing (not a-fright-ing).

Old English forht, fort'hful, fort'tian, fort'tlices, frightened; afyrt, changed by metathesis to a-fyrt (the -g- is interpolated).

Frigid, frj'ld, cold; frig'id-ly, frig'id-ness. The frigid zones, that part of our earth enclosed by a circle, the centre of which is one of the poles, and the radius 291 deg.

Frigerific, f'·i.go.r'i.jik, that which produces cold.

Latin frigidus, frigor'ificus (frigor, gen. frigoris ficio [for facio]).

Frigid, frj'ld, cold; frig'id-ly, frig'id-ness. The frigid zones, that part of our earth enclosed by a circle, the centre of which is one of the poles, and the radius 291 deg.

Frill (Rule v.), a ruffle, to ruffle with cold [as a hawk does]; frilled (1 syl.), frill'ing.

Welsh fril, a trifling thing; v. frill, to twitter.

Fringe (1 syl.), a border, to adorn with a fringe; fringed (1 syl.), fring'-ing (Rule xix.), fringe'-less.

French frange, v. franger, to fringe.

Frippery, plu. fripperies (R. xlv.), frj'p.për.riz, finery, triviality.

French friperie, friper, a dealer in old clothes (friper, to rumple).

Frisk, to gambol; frisked (1 syl.), frisk'-ing, frisk'-y, frisk'i-ness (Rule xi.), frisk'i-ly. (French frisque, roliesome.)

Fris'ket, the light frame which holds the sheet of paper on the tympan of a printing press. (French frisquette.)

Fritter, a small fried pudding, to waste on trifles; frit'tered, frit'ter-ing, frit'ter-er. (French frit'me, a frying.)

Latin frictus, fried; frigo, sup. frictum, to fry; frigo, sup. frigus, to boil.

"To fritter," is to lose by dicing; Latin frclitus, a dice-box (from fric'tus). A corruption of frill, should have only one -t.

Frivolous, friv'o.lus, trifling; friv'olous-ly, friv'olous-ness.

Frivolity, plu. frivolities, friv'o.litriz, acts of folly or trifling.

Latin frivolus; French frivolité, frivolé.

Friz, to curl; frizzed (1 syl.), frizz'-ing; frisure, friz'zhér.

Friszle, friz's'l, to curl; frizzled, friz's'ld; frizz'ling, frizzler.

("Frizz" is one of the monosyllables (not ending in f, l, or s) which double the final consonant: as add, odd; burr, err; bit, but; crib, egg; buzz, fuzz; jizz, frizz, and whizz, Rule viii.)

French friser, to curl; Greek phrasso, to bristle, to ruffle.

Fro (not a contraction of from), back, backwards. To and fro, there and back, backwards and forwards.

Norse fra, Danish, Norwegian, &c., fra.
Frock, a dress; frocked (1 syl.), dressed in a frock; frock'-less.
Frock'-coat, a man's garment; smock'-frock, a carter's slop.
To unfrock, to suspend a clergyman for ill-conduct.
French froc; Low Latin floccus, corruption of floccus, woollen.
Frog, a reptile, a foot and tongue disease of horses, a coat-tassel; frogged (1 syl., Rule i.)
"Frog" (a reptile), Old English froga or froga.
"Frog" (a tassel), Low Latin floccus (floccus, a lock of wool).
"Frog" (disease), German frosh, lampass [of horses], &c.
Frolic, fröl.ık, fun, to play; frolicked fröl.ık; frolick'ing; fro'lic-some, full of fun (-some, Old Eng. affix, "full of"), fro'lic-some-ly, fro'lic-some-ness. (The -k- is inserted to prevent the c from coming before e and i, in which cases it would have the sound of s.)
German fröhlich, gay, merry; frohlocken, to rejoice.
From (preposition). Old English fram.
From hence, from henceforth, from thence, from whence.
"From " in these phrases is redundant, but nevertheless is too well established to be wholly dislodged.
Similar pleonasms exist in Latin; as ex-nnde and de-inde, "from thence"; ab-hine and de-hinc, "from hence," &c.
Frond, a union of leaf and stem, as in ferns and palms; frondescence, frön.des'ense; frön'dose.
Fr. fronde; Lat. frons, gen. frondis, a green bough with its leaves.
Front, frön't (not frön't), the forepart, to face, to stand foremost; front'-ed (R. xxxvi.); front'ing, frön't'ing (not frön't'ing); front'ing-ly; front-age, frön't.äj (not frön't.äj), the front of a building; front-less, frön't.less; front-view.
Frontispiece (ought to be frontispice), frön'tis'pece (not frön'tis.pecece), the "view" or picture in the front page of a book; front'-let, frön't.let (not frön't.let).
"Frontispieces" is a blunder. It is the French word frontispice, Latin frontispicium [frons specio], the view in the front [page]; and not the hybrid frontis-piece, the piece of the front [page].
Frontier, frön.teer', border-land; frontiered' (2 syl.)
Fr. front, frontal, frontière, frontispice; Lat. frons, gen. frontis, the front, the forehead; frontispicium, the "view" in a title-page. (There is no sufficient reason why the "o" of the last three words should have a different sound to the "o" in the other seven.)
Frontigniac [grape], frön.tin'.yäk (not fön'.tin.yäk), from the valley of Frontignan, between Montpellier and Agde.
Frost, frost'-ing, the sugar composition on the outside of cakes; frost'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), frost'-y, frost'-ly (Rule xi.), frost'-ness; frost-bitten, fröst'.bit'n, affected by frost.
Freeze (verb), past fröze, past part. frozen, frö'.z'n; freeze'-ing (Rule xix.), freeze'-able.
Frőth, foam, to throw up froth; frothed (1 syl.), froth'-ing, froth'-y, froth'-i-ly (Rule xi.), froth'-i-ness, froth'-less.

Greek aphros, spume; Latin frētum; Scotch fr Lith.

Frouzy, frōw'-zy (frōw- to rhyme with now), musty, dirty, and untidy; frou'zi-ness. (Dutch vrou, a slattern.)

Froward, frōw'-ard (frōw to rhyme with grow), perverse; frow'ard-ly, frow'ard-ness. (Old English fraeward.)

Frown (to rhyme with clown, not with grown), a wrinkle in the forehead expressive of displeasure, to make a frown; frowned (1 syl.), frown'-ing, frown'ing-ly.

French refrogramend, v. se refroguer, to knit the brows.

Froze (1 syl.), frozen, frō'.z'n. (See Freeze, Frost.)

Fructify, frük'.ti fy, to make fruitful; fructifies (Rule xi.), frük'.ti.fiz; fructified, frük'.ti.fid; fructify-ing.

Fructification, frük'.ti.fik'y.shun, fecundation.

Fructuation, frük'.tu.shun, fruit, produce of plants.

Fructiferous, frük'.tif'.er.ūs, producing fruit.

Fructuous, frük'.tu.ūs, fertile, impregnating.

Fructescence, frük.tes'.sense, the time when the fruit of a plant reaches maturity, and its seeds are ripe. (See Fruit.)

French fructification, fructifier; Latin fructificare, fructuosus (fruc'tus, fruit). Fructuary (Latin fructuarius), "produce which yields a profit," might be introduced.

Frugal, fru.gl, economical; fru'gal-ly; frugality, froo.gāl'i.ty.

French frugal, frugalité; Latin frugalis, frugalitas (frugi, thrifty).

Frugiferous, frük'.jif'.er.ūs, fruit-bearing.

Frugivorous, frük'.jiv'.ər.ūs, fruit-eating.

Latin frugifer (fructus ferens), fruit-bearing.

"Frugivorous," Fr. frugivore; Lat. fruges voraens, fruit-devouring.

Fruit, fru't; fruit'-ing [season]; fruit'-age, the fruit produce of a season; fruit'-ful (Rule viii.), fruit'ful-ly, fruit'ful-ness, fruit'-less, fruit'less-ly, fruit'less-ness.

Fruiter, plu. fruiteries, frute'.ē.rēz, a place for keeping fruit; fruiterer, frute'.ē.rēr, a fruit-merchant.

Fruit'-y, juicy, like fruit; fruit'i-ness. (See Fructify.)

French fruit, fruitier, fruiterer; Latin fructus, fruit.

"Fruiterer" is ill-formed, "fruit'er" would be a fruit-agent, and "fruiter-er" is about as absurd as hatter-er, glover-er, printer-er, &c.

Fruition, frō'.ish'.un, the pleasure of possessing. (Latin fruor.)

Frumentaceous (Rule lxvi.), fru'.men.tay'shūs, made of wheat, resembling wheat. Frumentarious, fru'.men.tair'yūs, pertaining to wheat. Frumenty, frum'.tay.ty (for frumenty), a food made of new wheat boiled in milk.

Frumentation, fru'.men.tay'shūn, a gift of corn made to the ancient Romans to prevent bread-riots.

Latin frumentum, frumentaceus, frumentarius, frumentatio; French froment (la meilleure espèce de blé).
Frustrate, frus'trate, to defeat, to render futile; frus'trat-ed (R. xxxvi.), frus'trat-ing (R. xix.), frus'trat-or (R. xxxvii.)

Fry, a swarm of small fish, a swarm of young children, to dress meat in a frying-pan; fries, frie; fried, fride (R. xi.); fry'ing, fry'ing-pan; fritter, a fried pudding.

Out of the frying-pan into the fire, from bad to worse.

French frire, friture; Latin frigere, to fry; Greek phrugo, to broil. "Fry" (fish), French frit, spawn; Italian fregola.

Fuchsia, ju'shif.ah (not joo'.shah); a flowering shrub. Named after Leonard Fuchsius, a German botanist (died 1596).

Fucoidea, the generic name for fossil sea-weeds. (As Geological terms are Greek, these words should have been spelt phukus, ph'ukoid, &c.; "fucoid" is part Latin and part Greek.) "Fucoid." Gk. phukos eidos, like sea-weed; Fr. and Lat. fucus.

Fuddle, jiid'.d'l, to make tipsy; fuddled, jiid'.d'id; fuddling, jud'.ling. (Norse fild, full to repletion.)

Fudge (1 syt.), an exclamation to express incredulity, blague, to vamp up; fudged (1 syt.), fudg'-ing (R. xix.), fudg'-er.

Welsh fug, pretence; fugiad, a disguising; fugier, a fudger.

Fuell, fire-food, to supply fuel; fu'elled (2 syt.), fu'ell-ing (Rule iii., Ex.), fu'ell-er.

French fuel, fire; Latin focuss, v. focillo, to warm.

Fugacious (Rule Ixvi.), fu.gay'.shils, fleeting; fugacious-ness; fugacity, fu.gas'.i.ty, the act of flying away, uncertainty.

Fugleman, plu. fuglemen, fu.g'l.mun, fu.g'l.men (a corruption of bugelman), the leader of a line of soldiers on march, drill, &c. (German flügelmann, flügel, a wing.)

Fugue, fuge (in Music), a piece where the parts follow or chase each other; fugist, fu'.gist, a composer of fugues. These French forms are quite unsuited to our language, fuge would be far better; Latin fuga; Spanish fuga; Italian fuga; &c.

Fulcrum, plu. fulcrum, fulcrums [or fulcra], fü.krüm (ful.- to rhyme with dull). (Latin fulcrum, v. fulcio, to prop.)

Fulfil, to accomplish (better fulfill), fulfilled (3 syt.), fulfill'-ing (Rule viii.), fulfill'-er, fulfillment (better fulfillment). The second 1 has been restored of late years to such compounds as befall, befell, recall, &c., and there is no reason why fill, still, and thral should not follow suite. There may be some little difficulty with full, as it is often followed by -ly, but this does not apply to the other three words. As for still-y, the affix is not -ly but -y.

Fulgorite, plu. fulgorites, fūlˈgərətəs (fūl to rhyme with dull), sand vitrified into tubes by lightning.

Latin fulgur, lightning. “Fulgorite” is quite incorrect, as fulgor means glittering brightness or sheen.

Full (like bull and pull, rhymes with wool, but all other words in -ull have short u: as cull, dull, gull, hull, lull, null, skull, trull, &c.)

Fool (a simpleton), rhymes with tool, not with wool.

Full, (comp.) full-er, (super.) full-est.

In all its other compounds “full” drops one “l”: as—

Fulʿ-ly, fulʿ-ness, spoonful, brimful, careful, &c.

Added to “fill,” each word drops an “l”: as—

Full-fill’, (the “l” of fill is restored in) fulfilled (2 syl.), fullfill-ing, full-fill-er, but not in fulfil-ment.

When joined by a hyphen, the double “l” is retained: as—

Full-age, full-blown, full-bodied, full-dress, full-drive, full-length, full-pay, full-size, full-soon, full-speed, &c.

Full (verb), to thicken cloth, to gather into plaits or puckers, to whiten; retains the double l always; fulled (1 syl.), full-ing, full-er, full-er’s-earth, &c.

“Full” (adj.), Old English ful, in composition full and ful.

“Full” (verb), Old Eng. fullian, to fill, to whiten; fullere, a fuller.

Fulminate, fūlˈmənət (fūl to rhyme with dull), to send abroad denunciations, to censure; fulminat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), fulminat-ing (Rule xix.), fulminat-ory;

Fulmination, fūlˈmənəˈʃən; fulminant;

Fulminator (Rule xxxvii.), fūlˈmənətər.

French fulminer, fulminat-ion, fulminant; Latin fulminator, fulminatio, fulminare (fulmen, a thunderbolt).

Fulsome, fūlˈsəm (ful to rhyme with dull, not fulsome, with ful to rhyme with wool), obsequious, nauseous; fulsome-ness, fulsome-ly. (No compound of full.)

Old English fūl, foul, corrupt, and some, full of (what is foul).

Fumble, fūmˈbl’l, to handle much and listlessly; fumbled, fūmˈblid; fumbling, fumbling-ly, fum’bler.

Norse famle, to fumble; Low German fummelen.

Fume (1 syl.), smoke, fuss, perturbation, to fume; fumed (1 syl.), fum-ing (Rule xix.), fum-ing-ly, fum’-er, fum’y, fumi-ness (Rule xi.), fumi-ly; fume-less.

Fumigate, fūmˈɡeɪt (Rule xxxvi.), fumigat-ing, fumigat-ing-ly, fumigat-or.
Fumigation, fuˈmiˌgæˈshən; fumigatory, fuˈmiˌgæˈtər.iˌte.ry.
French fumier, fumiger, fumigation; Latin fumigatio, fumipar, fumipare, to perfume a place; fumare, to smoke (fumus, smoke).
Fūn, sport; funnˈ-y (Rule i.), comp. funˈni-er, super. funˈni-est, funˈni-ly (Rule xi.), funˈni-ness, oddity.
German wonne, mirth, delight.
Function, fuˈnıkˌshən, faculty, special office or work.
Functionary, plu. functionaries, fuˈnıkˌshənˈer.iˌris, an official; function- al, function-al-ly.
Latin functio, v. fungor, to discharge an office.
Fund, a store, to place money in the public funds; funds, available money; the funds, money lent to government on interest; fundˈ-ed (Rule xxxvi.), fundˈ-ing.
French fonds, money, the public purse; Latin fundo, to found.
Fundament, fuˈnəˌdəˌment; fundamentˈ-al, essential, a primary principle; fundamentˈal-ly.
Latin fundamentum (fundāmen, a foundation); Fr. fondamental.
Funeral, fuˈnəˌnəˈrəl; funereal, fuˈnəˌrēˈəl, gloomy; funeˈreal-ly.
Latin funerāle, funerāris, funerāre, fānus, a corpse.
Fungus, plu. fungi [or funguses], fuˈnɪˌgəs, fuˈnɪˌj i, a mushroom, a toadstool, and similar plants.
Fungi, fuˈnɪˌji, an order of plants containing the above;
Fungia, fuˈnɪˌj iˌə, the genus containing the fungi;
Fungoid, fuˈnɪˌgoĭd, a plant resembling a true fungus;
Fungous, (adj.) fuˈnɪˌgəs, spongy, fungus-like.
Latin fungus, plu. fungi, fungōsus; Gk. sphoggos; Fr. fungi.
Funˈnel, a vessel used in decanting liquids, a chimney-flue.
“Funnel” (for decanting), Latin fundūtus, fundo, to pour out.
“Funnel” (of a chimney), Welsh ffynnonell, an issue, a vent-hole.
Funny, fuˈnəˌniˌ ny, odd, curious. (See Fun.)
Fur, soft short hair.
Fir, a tree, the timber of which is deal.
Fur, to line with fur; furred (1 syl.), furˈrəŋˈing; furrˈ-y.
Furrier, furˈriˌer (furri- to rhyme with lurry).
Furriery, furˈriˌeˌriˌ, fur mongery.
The tongue is furred, furd, covered with morbid matter.
The fur of a kettle, a deposit of boiling water.
“Fur” (hair), Welsh fwer; Fr. fourrure, v. fourrir, to line with fur.
“Fur” (of the tongue and kettle), Latin furfur, scurf, bran, &c.
“Fir,” Old English furh-wadu, fir-wood; Welsh yfur, fir.
Furbelow, fuˈrəˌbəˌlo, a sort of flounce, originally made of “fur.”
Corrupted into French fulbalas, Italian and Spanish falbala.
The word is furˈbelˌəˌ, at the lower part of the dress, a fur-flounce.
AND OF SPELLING.

Furb'ish, to rub to brightness. Fur'bish-up, to mend, clean, and make serviceable; fur'bished, fur'bish-ing, fur'bish-er.

French fourbir, fourbisseur, fourbissire; Latin furvus (from furus), a furnace. Furbish, like bran-new, means "made bright by burning heat," the two words illustrate each other.

Furcate, fur'kate, to fork or branch off; fur'cât-ed (R. xxxvi.); furcating, fur'kay'ing.

Latin furca, a fork. "Furcation" is not a French word.

Fur'rious, fu'ri'ous; fu'ri'ous-ness. (See Fury.)

Furl, to roll up a sail; furled (1 syl.), furl'ing, furl'er.

French ferler, to furl; a variety of fermer, to close.

Fur'long, half-a-quarter or the eighth of a mile.

Old English fur-lang, furrow-long, the length of a furrow.

Furlough, fur'lo, leave of absence from military duty.

Danish forlo, leave of absence; German urlaub.

Fur'nace (2 syl.), an enclosed fireplace, where great heat is required. (Latin furnus; French fournaise.)

Fur'nish, to fit out; fur'nished (2 syl.), fur'nish-ing; fur'nish'er; furniture, fur'ni'chur.

Low Latin furnitura; French fournir, furniture (Rule lii.)

In French, fourniture means "provision," "trimmings," house furniture is meubles; so fournir means to supply soldiers with their kit, &c., and to stock a house with furniture is garnir (Rule lii.)

Furrier, fur'ri'er (fur'ri o to rhyme with hurry). See Fur.

Furrow, fur'ro (not fur'rer), a ridge made by ploughing; to form a furrow; fur'rowed (2 syl.), fur'row-ing.

Old English fur or furh, a furrow (fur, a short journey).

Fur'ther, more distant, to promote. Fur'thest, most distant.

Fur'ther-more (adv.), besides, moreover.

Fur'ther-most, utmost (not often used).

Fur'ther (verb), fur'thered (2 syl.), fur'ther-ing, fur'ther-er.

Fur'therance, helping forward.

"Furth'er," "furthest," comp. and super. of the obsolete "furth;" the positive "forth" remains, but its comp. "forther" is obsolete.

The original distinctions of the following words are lost, and the several words are now almost interchangeable.

"Far" (a long way off), comp. far'ther, sup. far'thest. "Fyr" (of old), comp. fyrré, super. fyrest or fyrest [first]. "Fore" (in front), comp. for(e)-mer (i.e., more), super. fore'most.

To these add foreméra, more illustrious; super. foremérrest.

Furtive, fur'tiv, by stealth; fur'tive-ly.

Latin fur'tivus, furtive (fur, a thief); French furtif.

Fury, rage. The Furies (class. mythol.), three avenging female deities; fu'rore, an ardent admiration or fashion.

Furioso, fu'ri'o-so (in Music), with vehemence.

Furious, fu'ri'ous; fu'ri'ous-ly, fu'ri'ous-ness.
Infuriate (not enfuriate), in\textit{fu}\textsuperscript{ri}iate, to enrage; infu-ri\textsuperscript{at}-ed (R. xxxvi.), infu\textsuperscript{ri}at\textsuperscript{ing} (R. xix.), infu\textsuperscript{ri}at-or. (Being Latin, the Latin prefix in-, and not the English, French, and Greek prefix en- should be employed.)

Latin \textit{furi}a, \textit{Furia}, \textit{furi}ösus, inf\textit{furi}ōre; French \textit{furie}, \textit{furur}.

Furze (1 syl.), gorse. Furs, plu. of \textit{fur}. Firs, plu. of \textit{fjr}.

Furry, \textit{fur}\textsuperscript{zy}, like furze, full of furze. Fuzz\textsuperscript{y}, fluffy.

Furze, "Old English \textit{fyre}, furze or brambles.

Fir," Old English \textit{furh-wudu}, deal or fir-wood.

Fuzz," German \textit{ausfusen}, \textit{fuseln}, to tease or unravel.

Fuse, \textit{fūce}, a tube filled with combustible matter for blasting and firing shells, to liquefy metal, to blend by heat; fused, \textit{fūced} (1 syl.); fus\textsuperscript{ing}, fus\textsuperscript{ing}; fūs\textsuperscript{er} (R. xix.).

Fusion, \textit{fūshn}, the act of melting, the state of being melted.

Fusible, \textit{fūziel.ūl}, able to be melted by heat; fusibility, \textit{fūzībīlīti}, the property of being fusible.

Fusee, \textit{fūxe}, a small firelock, a fuse, the cone round which the chain of a clock or watch winds.

Fuse" (to melt), Latin \textit{fungo}, supina \textit{fūsum}, to cast or melt metal.

"Fuse" or "Fusee," French \textit{fuser}, \textit{fusee}; Latin \textit{fusus}, a spindle.

Fusil, \textit{fūsil}, a fusee or light musket; fusilier, \textit{fūsil.eer"}, a soldier armed with a fusil. The word still remains in our army, as The Scotch Fusiliers (the third of the three household regiments of Foot-Guards), and The Royal Fusiliers (the seventh regiment of the line).

French \textit{fusil}, \textit{Fusilier} (from the Italian \textit{focile}; Latin \textit{focus}, fire).

Fusion, \textit{fūshn}, the act of melting or joining by heat, the state of being melted or joined by heat. (See Fuse.)

Fūss (Rule v.), ado about trifles; fūss\textsuperscript{-}y, interfering and bother-some about trifles; fūss\textsuperscript{e}ness, fūss\textsuperscript{e}ly (Rule xi.).

Greek \textit{phūsaō}, to snort, to puff and blow, to be inflated.

Fūst, mouldiness, to become mouldy; fūst\textsuperscript{-}ed. (Rule xxxvi.)

fūst\textsuperscript{-}ing; fūsty, fūst\textsuperscript{e}ty, musty; fūst\textsuperscript{e}ly, fūst\textsuperscript{e}ness.

French fūst, now fūt, a cask or barrel, the taste of the cask, fust.

Fustian, \textit{fūstīn}, a strong cotton cloth, bombast.

We use the names of many cloths to express styles of writing: as shoddy, sloozy compilations; fustian, inflated composition; stuff, rubbish; silk\textsuperscript{e} words, &c.

Span. \textit{fuslun} (name of a place); Ital. \textit{fustago}; Fr. \textit{fustaine} for \textit{fustains}.

Fusus, \textit{fūsūs}, a genus of shells, as the red-whelk, &c.

Fusulina, \textit{fūsūlī.tī}.nah (in Geol.), a genus of foraminifera.

Lat. \textit{fusus}, a spindle. The \textit{fusulina}, so called from their cell-growths.

Futile, \textit{fūtīl}, trifling; futīl\textsuperscript{-}ly; futility, \textit{fūtilī.ty}.

Futtocks, fūl’tōks, the curved ribs of a ship between the floor and the top timbers.

Old English fēl hōc. "Hōc," a curved stick or piece of iron, the curved timbers at the foot or bottom of a ship.

Future, fūr’tōhur; futurity, fūr’tōr’tē; the time to come.

French futur; Latin fūtūrus, v. fuo, to be.

Fuzz, light particles, to fly off in minute particles; fuzzed (1 syl.), fuzz’-ing; fuzz’-ball, a kind of fungus full of dust.

Fizz, to froth, to go off with a whizz.

Furze, gorse; furzy, like gorse; fuzz’y, fluffy.

Fuzz is one of the few monosyllables (not in f, l, or s) with the final consonant doubled, like add, odd; burr, err; bit, butt; cōb, egg; buzz, fuzz; fizz, frizz, and whizz.

"Fuzz," a corruption of faes, ravelins; German fasseln, to unravel.

"Fizz," German pfise, to whistle or whizz.

"Furze," Old English fyre, brambles, gorse.

-fy (Latin termination "to make"), contraction of fic that is fac, for facio in composition becomes ficio (to make or do).

Fy! an exclamation of reproof. Fy upon you! Fy! for shame! German pfui, pfal schaune dich, fy upon you!

G is sounded like j before e, i, and y; otherwise it retains its normal sound, except in the word gaol = jail.

Before e in the following examples, and their derivatives, "g" is not sounded like j; viz., gang’-er, gear, gecko, geese, Gehenna, geld, gemara, gemote, get, geum, and gew-gaw.

Before i in the following examples, and their derivatives, "g" is not sounded like j; viz., gibberish, gibbons, gibelune, giddy, gift, gig, giggle, giglot, gild, gills [of a fish], gilt, gimlet, gimp, geom, be-gin, gingham, gird, girdle, girl, girth, gittern, give, and gizzard.

Before "y," gyc and gypsum are pronounced both ways, but the g hard sound is more usual than the g soft or j sound.

In words derived from the Greek ge- ought to be hard, as geography, geology, &c., but custom has willed it otherwise, and we must submit to its dictates.

Gab, clack, to clack; gabbed (1 syl.), gabb’-ing (Rule i.)

Gabble, gab’b’l, chatter, to chatter; gabbled (2 syl.), &c.

Danish gab, the month; gabfäh, a chatterbox; French gaber.

Gad, to rove about; gadd’-er, gadd’-ing, gadd’-ed (Rule i.)

"Gad" (a goad or wedge), Old English gād, hence gad-fl.

"Gad" (verb), Old English gaderian, to assemble a crowd.

The Scotch Highlanders call themselves gaidheal, and their language gaelig. The Irish they call Gael.

Gaff (R. v.), a spar. (Old Eng. gaflas; *spars; Fr. gaffe, a boat-hook.)
Gag (noun and verb), gagged (1 syl.), gagging, gagger (R. i.)
Welsh cegio, to choke; ceg, a mouth.
Gage (1 syl.), a pledge, to pledge. Gauge, gage, an instrument;
gaged (1 syl.), gaging (Rule xix.), gager; gauged, gland (1 syl.); gauging (Rule xix.), gager.
French gage, gauge, a gauge, gager (Low Latin uadium).
Gaiety, gay'.ety; gaily, gay'.ly. (See Gay.)
These two words, with daily, are exceptions to Rule xiii.
Gain (1 syl.), profit, to acquire; gained (1 syl.), gain'-ful (Rule viii.), gainfully; gains, earnings.
Old English gynan; French gain, gagner; Low Latin uadium.
Gain'say, to contradict; gain'said, gain'saying, -saying'er. (Old English gean, opposite.)
To "say the opposite." It has no connexion with the verb gain.
Gait (1 syl.), manner of walking. Gate (1 syl.), a door.
"Gait," Old English gath, from gan, to walk or go.
"Gate," Old English gdt or gdt, a gate or door.
Gaiter, gaiters. When a "pair" can be separated, one of the articles can be spoken of in the sing. number: as a glove, a stocking, a shoe; but if the pair is joined together
there is no sing.: as tongs, trousers, nippers, &c.
French guêtre, i.e. guestre; Latin vestis; Greek esthes.
Galaxy, plu. galaxies (Rule xlv.), gal'.axies, the milky way.
Greek galaxias [kuklos], from gala, milk.
Galbanum, gul'.banum (not gulsbay'.num), a resin. (Latin.)
Gale [of wind]; Gall, gawl, bile. (See Gall.)
Danish kule, to blow; kulbing, a breeze. Norwegian gal, frantie.
Galiot (not galliot), gal'.i.ot, a small Dutch vessel.
French galiote; German galeote; Spanish galeota.
Gall, gawl, bile, to fret. Gaul, a native of ancient Gallia.
"Gall" (bile), Old English geala (gale, saffron).
"Gall" (the oak nut), French galle (noix de galle); Latin galla.
"Gall" (to fret), French gale (Latin galea, a helmet).
Gallant, gal'.lant, brave; gallant', courteous. (Rule 1.)
Gallantry, gal'.lantry, bravery; gallanty; gallanted, escorted; gallant,-ing, escorting ladies.
Gallavant, gal'.la.vant' (a corrupt variety).
French galant, both senses, galanterie (one l).
Galleon, gal'.le.on. Gallon, gal'.on. Gallow, gal'.leon'.
"Galleon," Spanish galeón; French gallon, a large ship (one l).
Gallery, plu. galleries (Rule xlv.), gal'.lery.
German galerie; French galerie.
Galley, plu. galleys (not gallies, Rule xlv.), gal'.ley.
The old Venetian galleys had thirty-two banks of oars, and each car was managed by six slaves, hence the term galleys-slaves. Italian galera; French galère (only one l).
Gallipot, gâl·li·pôt, an earthen pot used by druggists.
Dutch gey-pot, a clay-pot (French pot de faience).

Gallon, gal·lon, four quarts. Galleon, gâl·le·ôn, a ship.
French gallow (measures de litres 4.543158).
"Galleon," Spanish galeón; French gallow (with one l).

Gallow, gâl·loʊn, a narrow ribbon, for shoe-strings, &c.
French galon (tissu étroit, croisé, et très-épais).

Gallop (does not double the final letter, Rule iii., b), gal·loped
(3 syl.), gal·loper, gal·lop·er.

Galopade, gâl·o·pârd, to dance the gallop; galopad·ing.
(Only three words ending in p with the accent not on the final syllable violate the rule, and ought to be reduced to conformity with it. Gossip, gos·sipp·ing, &c.; kidnap, kid·napp·er, &c.; worship, wor·ship·ped, wor·ship·er, &c.
French galop, galoper, galopade (danser le galop) one l.

Gallows, plu. gal·lo·wses, gâl·loze, gâl·loze·ez (not gal·lerz).
Old English galga, a gallows or gibbet; galga·tre6, a gallows-tree.

Galoche, ga·losh', an overshoe. (Fr. galoche; Span. galocha.)

Galvanism, gâl·vân·izm; gal·van·ic.

Galvanise (Rule xxxi.), gâl·vân·i·ze; gal·vanised (3 syl.), gal·van·is·ing (Rule xix.), gal·van·is·er, gal·vanom·eter.

So called from Galvani, of Bologna, the discoverer, 1790.

Gamble, gam·bol, to play for money. Gam·bol, to frisk.
"Gamble," a dim. of game. Old English gam·ing, gam·erung.
"Gambol," French gambillier, to swing the legs about. ("Carol" and "gambol" are the two examples of words in -ol, not accented on the last syllable. "Carol" violates Rule iii., and "gambol" conforms to it. Thus-- Carol, car·rolled, car·oll·ing, car·oll·er, but
"Gam·bol," gam·boled, gam·bol·ing, gam·bol·er.

Game, play, animals protected for sport, to gamble; game·ster
(Rule lxii.); game·some, game·sium (-sium, "full of" play); game·d (1 syl.), gam·ing (Rule xix.)
Old English gam·ian, to sport; gam·ing, gam·en· sport.

Gamm·mon (of bacon). Gam·màn, a French street Arab.
"Gammmon" (of bacon), French jambon (Greek kampo, Roquefort).
"Gammon" (to hoax), Old English gam·en, sport, scoff, jest.

Gamm·mut (not gam·nut). The word is gamma ut (γ·ut).

In the eleventh century the musical scale was extended one note below the old Greek scale. The new note was termed gamma. The Sol-Fa notation begins with "ut," and starts from the new note gamma, so the scale is that of ut beginning from gamma.

Gander, fem. goose, plu. geese, offspring gosling. Except when gender is specially referred to, both the male and female are spoken of as goose or geese.

Old English gandré, fem. gös, plu. gös, gös·ling (-ling, offspring).
Gang’way, a passage way. (Old English gang, a passage.)

“Gang” (a company), comes from the custom of combining for safety on journeys, as in caravansaries (gang, a journey).

Gangrene, gan’green, an eating ulcer; gan’greened (2 syl.), gan’green-ing (Rule xix.); gangrenous, gān’grēnəs.

Fr. gangrène; Lat. gangræna; Gk. gangræna (græna, to feed on).

Ganoid, gān’oid, fish, like the sturgeon, with shiny scales.

Greek gānōs côdos [having horny plates], spendour-like.

Gantlet (better than gauntlet), gar’net, a military glove; gar’net-ed (Rule xxxvi.), not gauntlet-éd (Rule iii.).

French gantelet, dim. of gant, a glove. Words in -et, not accented on the last syll., are very irregular: Thus we have “carburèt,” car’burët-ed; “épanlet,” épanel’et-ed, &c., which ought to be deprived of the second t. On the other side we have carpet-ed, banquet-ed, coronet-ed, closet-ed, gantlet-ed, garrett-ed, &c.

To run the gantlet (a corruption of gantlope, or running-passage formed by soldiers drawn up in two lines).

German gang-laufen (gang, passage; laufen, to [be] run). The corresponding German word is gassen-laufen (aassc, a street or lane).

The French say passer les baguettes (the sticks).

Gaol, jail (the only exception to g hard before a); gaol’-er.

Spanish jaula; French geôle; Low Latin gaolta, gaolarius, a jailer.

Gape, gāpe (not garp), to yawn; gaped (1 syl.), gap’-ing (Rule xix.), gap’-er. (Old English geap[an], to gape.)

Garbage, gar’baj, offal (a contraction of garble-age).

Garble, gar’b'l, to sift, hence to mutilate by omissions; garbled, gar’bled; gar’bling, gar’bler.

Spanish garbillar, to garble (garbillo, a sieve).

Garden, gar’den (not gar’den); garden-ing, gar’d’ning; garden-er, gar’d’ner (not gar’d’ner); gardened (2 syl.).

Welsh gardd, a garden; garddwr, a gardener; German garten; French jardin; Spanish huerta; Latin hortus.

Gargle, gar’gl, a wash for the throat. Gargoyle, gar’goil.

“Gargle,” French gargariser; Latin gargarizo; Greek gargarizo.

“Gargoyle” (a water-spout made like the head of a monster), so called from the gargouille, or great dragon from the Seine which ravaged Rouen, and was slain by St. Romain the 7th cent.

Carrot (not garot), gar’rot’, to strangle; garrott’-ed (R. xxxvi.), garrott’-ing (R. iv.), garrott’-er.

Spanish garroté; French garrotte, v. garrotter.

Gar’ret, gar’ret-ed (not garrett-ed); so clos’et, clos’et-ed (R. iii.)

Corruption of French galletas, a garret.

Garrison, gar’ris’on, a fortified place, a body of soldiers in a garrison; gar’risoned (3 syl.), gar’rison-ing.

Corruption of Fr. garnison; Low Lat. garnisio; Old Ger. wahren.

Garrulous (not garrilous), gar’ru’ləs, talkative.

Garrulity, gar’ru’ləti; gar’ru’ləs-ly.

Latin garrulus, garrullitas, garrulāre (garrio, Greek γάρρω).
AND OF SPELLING.

Gas (one of the sixteen exceptions to Rule v.), găs; gasalier, găs′.ı.leer′; gaseous, găs′.e.us (not gay′.she.ıs). Gasify, găs′.ı.f.y; gasifies, găs′.ı.f.ıe; gasified, găs′.ı.f.ıde (Rule xi.), gasification, găs′.ı.f.ı.kay′.shun. Coined by Von Helmont (Saxon gas; German geist, spirit). Gasconade, găs′.ko.nade′, to boast; gas′.conad′-ed (R. xxxvi.), gas′.conad′-ing, gas′.conad′-er. (To boast like a Gascon.)

Gastric, găs′.trık, pertaining to the belly; gastron′omy.

Gastritis, găs′.trı′.tıs, inflammation of the stomach. (itis denotes inflammation.) Greek gastér, the belly.

Gastropod (better than gasteropod), găs′.тро.pōd, plu. gastropods or gastropida, găs′.tro.p′.ı.dah, snails, mollusces which walk by a ventral disc. Greek gastér, gen. gastérōs or gastros pōdēs, belly-footed. (In composition the Greeks always use gastro and not gasiero.)

Gate (1 syl.), a door. Gait, gate, a manner of walking.

Gau′dy, showy, (camp.) gau′di-er, (super.) gau′di-est, gau′di-ly, gau′di-ness. A gau′dy, a feast day. Latin gaudium, joy, v. gaudere, to rejoice.

Gauge, gage, a measure, distance between the rails, a workman's tool, a mixture for ceilings and mouldings, to measure liquids with a gauge; gauged, gaged (1 syl.); gaug-ing, gage′-ing; gaug-er, gage′.er; gaug′-able. (-ge and -ce retain the final e when -able is added.) See Gage.

French jauge, v. jauge (Latin jaculum, a stick, the gauge being "une verge de fer ou de bois pointue," which is thrust into the cask, and the part wetted indicates the quantity contained.

Gauntlet. (See Gantlet.)

Gauze, a thin fabric of linen or silk. Gorse, furze.

"Gauze," Fr. gaze; (Lat. gosstipinus, made of cotton, whence gausāpe). "Gorse," Old English gorst; gorse or furze.

Gawk, a cuckoo, a simpleton; gawk′-y, long-limbed, ungainly.

Old English geæc, a cuckoo, a beardless boy, a simpleton.

Gay (comp.) gay′-er, (super.) gay′-est (Rule xiii.); gay′-ness. Gaiety, gay′.e.tı; gaily, gay′-ly. (These two words and daily are exceptions to Rule xiii. French gai, gaieté.)

Gazania, ga.za′.ni.ah (not ga.zin′.ı.ah), a flower.

Gazelle (French), ga.zel′, a species of antelope. (Arabic gazal.)

Gazette, ga.zel′, a journal; gazett′-ed, officially announced. Gazetteer, ga.zel′.er′ (not gez′.el′.er′), a dictionary of geographical names. (Italian gazetta; French gazette.) "Gazette" de gazetta petite pièce de monnais de Venise, prix de chaque numero d'un journal qui paraissait en cette ville au commencement du XVIIe siecle. (Dictionn. Universelles des sciences, etc.)
Gear, ger (not jeer), tackle. Jeer, to scold. Gear-ing. (This is one of the exceptions to $g = j$ before e.)

Old Eng. gearwe, preparation, dressing; gearwe[ian], to make ready.

Gelatine, djēl'ē.tēn (the principle of animal jelly), djēl.a.tēn' (animal jelly); gelatinous, djēlē.tēn'ē.tēn'ē, resembling jelly.
Fr. gelatine, gélatineux; Lat. gelāre, supine gelātum, to congeal.

Gem, djēm, a precious stone, to bespangle; gemmed (1 syl.), gemm'ing (Rule 1.) (Old Eng. gem, a precious stone.)

Gender is formed in three ways: (1) By employing a different word for the two sexes; (2) by adding a gender-word to one or both of the sexes; (3) by a gender suffix. Only Anglo-Saxon words come into the 1st class, and most of the 3rd class are borrowed from the French, the suffix being -ess added to the masculine to make the feminine.

Genealogy, plu. genealogies, djēn'ē.e.āl'ē.o.jēz, pedigree; genealogical, djēn'ē.e.āl'o.jēk'ē.lē; genealogist, djēn'ē.e.āl'o.jēk'ē.st; genealogise (Rule xxxi.)
French généalogie, généalogiste; Greek γενεαλόγος, v. γενεαλογεῖο.

General, djēn'ē.rēl, usual, a military officer; general-ly.

General'ity, plu. generalities, djēn'ē.rēl'ē.tēz.
Generalise (Rule xxxi.), generalis-ing, generalis'a'tion,
Generalissimo, plu. generalissimos, djēn'ē.rēl'ē.sē.is'ēiomēze (Rule xiii.) The general, the common people.

General officer, plu. general officers.

Lieutenant general, plu. lieutenant generals.

Major general, plu. major generals (not majors general).
French générale, généralité, généraliser, généralisation, général, lieutenant-général: Italian generalissimo; Latin generalis.

Generate, djēn'ē.rēl'tē, to produce; generérat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), generérat-ing (Rule xix.), generérat-or (Rule xxxvii.); generative, djēn'ē.rēl'ē.tēv; generation, djēn'ē.rēl'ē.tēv'ē.shūn.
French génération, génératif; Latin generatio, generátor, générare.

Generic, djēn'ē.rērēt (not jēn'ē.rēt), relating to genus; generical, djēn'ē.rērēt'ē.lē; generical-ly.

French générique: Spanish genérico; Latin génus.

Generous, djēn'ē.rēvēs, liberal; gen'erous-ly, gen'erous-ness.

Generosity, djēn'ē.rēvēs'ē.tē, liberality. (French générosité.)
Latin generósitas, générosus. ("Generosity" is the conduct of a gentleman, or one belonging to the "gens," or patrician class.

Genesis, djēn'ē.ē.sēs. The Book of Genesis, or The Book Genesis (?). Both are correct, but the former is more idiomatic: thus we say, the city of London, the continent of Europe, &c., but we also say, the River Thames, and not the River of Thames. "Of" in these examples is adjectival: thus, the nation of France = the French nation, the continent of Europe = the European continent, so the city of London = the London city, the Book of Genesis, &c.
If not adjectival, "of" stands for of the name of, and then the phrases the city of London, the Book of Genesis, mean "called by the name of" (vulgo vocato).

Geneva, ʤe.nə.ˈvah, gin, a town in Switzerland.

Genevan, ʤe.nə.ˈvən (not ʃen.ə.ˈvan), adj. of Geneva.
Genevanism, ʤe.nə.ˈvən.ɪzm (not ʃen.ə.ˈvən.ɪzm), Calvinism.
Geneve, ʤe.nə.ˈveːz, a native of Gene'va.
The Geneve, the inhabitants collectively considered.

Genial, ʤe.ˈni.əl, social; geniality, ʤe.ˈni.əl.ə.tɪ.

Geneva, ʤe.nə.ˈvən, jin, a town in Switzerland.

Genevan, ʤe.nə.ˈvən (not ʃen.ə.ˈvan), adj. of Geneva.
Genevanism, ʤe.nə.ˈvən.ɪzm (not ʃen.ə.ˈvən.ɪzm), Calvinism.
Geneve, ʤe.nə.ˈveːz, a native of Gene'va.
The Geneve, the inhabitants collectively considered.

Genial, ʤe.ˈni.əl, social; geniality, ʤe.ˈni.əl.ə.tɪ.

Latin geniātūs, geniātūtas (genius, pleasantness).

Genii, ʤe.ˈni.i, fairies. (Arabic jinnie, m, jinnīyeh, f.)

Genitive, ʤe.nə.ˈtɪv. Only nouns denoting animal life and nouns personified have a genitive case in English, and this is expressed by the addition of 's in the singular, and of (') only in the plural, as genitive boy's, plural boys.

The double Genitive. The double genitive is used when the latter is partitive, the first genitive being made by of, and the second by the suffix, as A bust of Cicero's (partitive), one of Cicero's busts; a bust of Cicero would mean a bust representing Cicero. How many hired servants of my father's, how many of my father's hired servants.

Genius, plut. geniuses (people of talent), genii, fairies, ʤe.ˈni.i.əs, ʤe.ˈni.əs.ə z, jē.ˈni.i. (Latin genius, see Genii.)

Genus, plut. genera, ʤe.ˈnəs, djēnˈəs, djēnˈə.rah, a group.

Genoese, ʤe.nə.ˈsə.z, a native of Gen'oa. The Genoese, the inhabitants of Gen'oa collectively considered.

Genre [painting], zhärˈn, representation of every-day life.

French genre, man, his customs, habits, and ways of life.

Genteel, ʤe.ˈnti.əl, polite, refined; genteel-ly; gentility, ʤe.ˈnti.əl.ə.tɪ; gen'tleman, fem. gent'lewoman, plut. gentlemen, gent'lewomen, ʤe.ˈnti.əl.əmən, both gentlefolks, collectively considered the gentry.

Gentleman-at-arms, plut. gentlemen-at-arms.

Gentleman-usher, plut. gentlemen-ushers.

Gent., a contraction of gentleman, means one with the "show," but not the "birth" and position of a gentleman.

Latin gentilitās, gentilicis (gens, "family"). A "gentleman" means a man of family, a man of good birth.

Gentian, ʤe.ˈʃən, an herb named from Gen'ius, king of Illyria, who discovered its medicinal virtues.
Gentile, dién’tilé, not a Jew, a heathen. Gentle, dién’t’l.
Latin gentilis. The whole world is divided into two classes, viz., our own nation and the other nations (gentes), Christians and the rest of the world (heathens).
Gentle, dién’t’l, (comp.) gentler, (super.) gentlest; gently.
Genus, djén’úc.úsh’shún, a bending of the knee.
Genuine, real, not adulterated, not a forgery. Authentic, not a fiction. Genuine [book], one written by the person who professes to be its author. Authentic [book], one whose statements are facts.
Latin genuinus (Greek geno[mat], to begot), a genuine book is begotten by the person who fathers it.
"Authentic" Latin authenticus (Greek authentès [autos entéa], the self-same instruments), an authentic book contains the self-same facts or statements as really occurred.
Genus, plu. genera, djé’ní.ús, djén’ér’rah, the group containing species. Family or Order, the group containing génus.
Genius, a person of talent, plu. geniuses, genii, fairies.
Latin génus, plu. généra (Greek génous), a general or collective term. Latin genius, plu. gentis (gigne, to beget), a birth-endowment.
Geodesy, djé.ó’d’és’ě, the science of surveying and mapping.
Latin geodesia; Greek geōdaisia (ge,daio, to divide the earth).
Geography, plu. geographies, djé.ó’grá’f’ěz; geographer.
French géographie (Greek ge,graphê, a description of the earth).
Geology, djé.ó’l’é.ó’j’é; geological, djé.ó’l’é.ó’j’é.á’k’il; geologise, djé.ó’l’é.ó’j’é.iz; geol’ogis-ing (Rule xix.)
(French géologique (Greek ge,logês, a discourse on the earth). Technically, "geography" describes the external features of the earth's surface; but "geology" the phenomena beneath its surface.)
Geometry, djé.ó’m’é.tré, the properties of lines, surfaces, and volumes. Originally it meant "measurement of the earth."
Latin geometria; Greek géomêtria (ge, mêtros, to measure the earth).
Georgic, djér’dí.jék, a poem on husbandry, pertaining to agriculture.
Lat. georgica: Gk. geōrikos (gé ergon, earth work).
("Georgic" ought to be in three syll., djé.ó’rí.kék, but it has taken its pronunciation from George, the proper name.)
Geosaurus, djé’ó.sá’w’s’ Rüs, a gigantic fossil earth-lizard.
Greek gé sauros, an earth [or terrestrial] lizard.
Geranium, pelargonium, djé.rá’ní.ům, pé.ár.go’ní.ům, the stork-bill, plu. geraniums, pelargoniums. Pelargoniums are greenhouse geraniums. (Not pelargonium.)
Latin géraniun (Gk. pórundês, a crane). So called because the beak of the fruit resembles a crane's bill.
"Pelargonium?" (Greek pélaros, the stork), the stork-bill.
Gerfalcon, djéf’fáw’kön, the large "vulture" falcon.
German gétér fatke, the vulture or hawk [-billed] falcon.
AND OF SPELLING.

401

Ger'man, of the same stock. Germain, ējermane, appropriate. Cousin-german, plu. cousins-german, first cousins.

Germain or German [to the subject] ē propos.

French germain (both senses); Latin germānus, of the same stock.

German, plu. Germans; natives of Germany. (Lat. Germānus.) Probably both words are from germīno, to sprout out, for the Germans looked on themselves as indigenous, but some derive the word from ger (war), and others from heer- (a multitude).

Gerund, ējermund, a verbal noun. It may be the subject or object of a verb, may have an article before it, may be qualified by an adjective, may govern a noun, or be governed by a preposition: Seeing is believing, the toiling of the bell, in defending myself, the quoting of authors. If the comes before a verbal noun, of must come after it, otherwise not: as by the preaching of repentance, or by preaching repentance.

Gesture, ējermchur, a significant movement of the limbs, features, or body. (Latin gestus, v. gero, to behave.)

Get (not git), past got, past part. got [or gotten], gett'-ing (R. i.), gett'-er. To fetch; to obtain with effort; to induce. To get head, to advance. To get ahead, to overtake. To get along, to manage with difficulty. Get along; move on. To get asleep, to fall asleep with difficulty. To get at, to reach after having employed effort. To get away, to free from entanglement. Get away, be gone. To get between, to insert with effort or difficulty. To get clear, to disengage after effort made. To get drunk, to drink to inebriety. To get by heart, to learn by rote. To get home, to reach home after effort made. To get in, to bring under shelter, to enter with effort. To get loose, to disengage oneself with difficulty. To get near, to advance close, to approach with effort. To get off, to escape with difficulty, to remove. To get on, to progress, to put on with effort. To get out, to liberate, to free oneself with effort. To get over, to surmount; to climb over, to wheedle. To get quit or rid of, to part with, after effort. To get the day, to win after contest. To get through, to pass with difficulty, to succeed. To get to, to reach after overcoming obstacles. To get together, to amass with toil or effort. To get up, to rise from bed, to mount.
Gew'gaw, a showy trifle. (Old Eng. geejaw, vile; Fr. joujou.)

Geyser, gay'zër, spouting hot springs of Iceland.
Icelandic geysa, raging, roaring.

Ghastly, gäst'ly, death-like, pale, dreadful; ghast'li-ness (R. xi.)
Old English gäst, a ghost. The interpolated h is useless.

Ghaut, gört, a mountain pass, two mountain chains of India, stairs descending to the Ganges. (Hindustani ghêt.)

Ghebers, ga'berz, Persian fire-worshippers. (Persian ghebr.)

Ghee, gē (not jē), clarified butter. (Hindustani ghi.)

Gherkin, ger'kin (not jö'ring), a small cucumber fit for pickling.
German Gurke, cucumber.

Ghibelline, gib'ë.lë.ë (not jib'ë.lë.ë), the Imperialists of Italy and Germany, opposed to the Guelfs or papal faction.

At the battle of Weinsberg, in Snabia (1140), Conrad, duke of Franconia, rallied his followers with the war-cry hie Waiblingen, while Henry the Lion, duke of Saxony, used the cry hie Welshe (the family names of the rival chiefs).

Ghost, göst; ghost'ly, ghost'li-ness (Rule xL), ghost'like.
Old Eng. göst, gostle, ghostly; gostlës (adv.) h interpolated.

Ghoul, gool, a demon supposed to feed on human dead bodies.
Persian ghul, a mountain demon.

Giant, fem. giantess, dji'ant, dji'ant.es; gigantic, dji.gan'тик, in size like a giant; gigan'tical-ly.
French géant, gigantesque; Latin gigas, gen. gigantis, gigantëus.

Giaour, djöwr (Turkish), one not of the Mohom. faith.

Gib, djib, a male cat, to shy; gibbed (1 syl.), gibb'ë-ing, gibb'-er.

Gib, the foremost sail, to shift the boom-sail.

Gibe, djibe, sarcasm, to mock; gibed (1 syl.), gib'ë-ing.
"Gib" (a cat), Germ. gilbert, a male cat. "Gib" (to shy), Dan. gibba.

Gibber, djib'ber, to prate inarticulately; gib'bered (2 syl.), gib'ber-ing, gib'ber-er. (Some pronounce the g hard.)

Gibberish, gib'ber.ë.sh (not jib'ber.ish), unmeaning words.
Gaber was the chief alchemist of the eleventh century, and wrote several treatises in cryptogram to evade persecution.

Gibbet, djib'bet, a gallows, to hang; gib'bet-ed, gib'bet-ing.
French giber (de l' arabe djebel (montagne), parce qu' autrefois les exécutions se faisaient ordinairement sur les lieux élevés).

Gibbous, gib'bus (not jib'bus), the moon in the second and third quarter is so called. (Lat. gibbus, humped; Fr. gibbeaux.)

Gibe, djibe, a sarcasm, to ridicule; gibed (1 syl.), gib'ë-ing, gib'-ing-ly; gib'ë-er, djib'ber, a snarler. Gibb'er, one that shies.
Old English gabb[an], to scoff; French gaber
AND OF SPELLING.

Giblets, djib'.letz, the off-parts of a goose, duck, turkey, &c.; giblet [pie], made of giblets. (Fr. gibier, with dim. let.)

Old English gād. (The g is hard.)

Gift *(g hard, not jift), a present; gift‘-ed, talented; v. give, giv, (past) gave, (past part.) given, giv’n; giv‘er, giv‘ing.

Old Eng. gift, v. gif[ia]n. The e of “give” does not lengthen the i.

Gig (g hard), a two-wheeled open carriage. Jig, a dance.

Fr. gigue, *v. gigue,‘to frisk about; very similar to claviolate, a little caperer, French claviolate a scamper (cabri, a kid). “Jig,” the same.

Gigantic, dji.g,'in'.tlk, very large; gigan‘tical-ly, giant (q.v.)

Latin gigas, gen. gigantos, a giant, giganteus; French gigantesque.

Giggle (g hard), gtg’.g'l, to titter; giggled (2 sy!.), giggling, gig’gling-ly; giggler, gig’sler. (Old Eng. geagle, wanton.)

Gild (g hard), past gild‘-ed, past part. gilt, to overlay with gold; gild‘-ing, gold-leaf, overlaying with gold-leaf, the finished work; gild‘-er, one whose trade is to gild.

Guild (g hard), gild, a city company.

Guilt (g hard), gilt, criminality.

Old English aildean, past ailde, past part. ailded; ailden, gilt.

’hui*, Old English gild.

Gilt *(g hard), overlaid with gold-leaf. Guilt, criminality. (See Gild.)

Gimlet (g hard), a small auger. (French gibelet, a gimlet.)

Gin, a trap, to trap, a drink; ginned *(1 sy!.), ginn‘-ing (Rule i.)

“Gin” *(a trap), contraction of engine; so “spinning-jenny” is a little spinning engine.

“Gin” *(a spirit). A contraction and corruption of Fr. gentévre, Lat. junipéres, juniper-berry; these berries by fermentation make gin and Hollands, but oil-of-turpentine is generally used instead.

Gingham (g hard), ging’’dam, a cotton cloth dyed in the yarn.

French guingan or guingamp, so called from Guingamp (Brittany).

Gipsy, plu. gipsies, djip’siz. (A corruption of Egyptian.)

The Fr. call them Bohemians, Danes Tatars, Ital. Walachians.

Giraffe, *djê.rraf’, the camelopard. (Span. girafa, Ital. giraffa.)

Girandole, jir’ran.dole, a candelabrum, whose branches turn round.

Italian girandola; Latin gyrăre, to turn round.

Gird (g hard), to bind; gird‘-ed *(Rule xxxvi.), past part. girt.

Girdle, gur’d’l, a zone or belt; gir’dled *(2 sy!.), gir’dling. (“Girdel” is the more ancient and better spelling.)

Old English gyrd[an], past gyrde, past part. gyrd‘ed; gyrd‘el.
Girl (g hard), fem. of boy, both child; girl-ish, like a girl; boy-ish, like a boy (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), girl'ish-ness, girl'ish-ly.

Latin gērula, a nursemaid (gērō, to carry [infants] about).

"Boy," Old English byre, a son; v. byrītan, to raise or rear.

Girondist, dji.rōn'dist, a political party in the French revolution. So called from the department of La Gironde, in France.

Girth, a horse's girdle. Girt, girt-ed; girt'-ed •.. (See Gird.)

Old English gyrcl[an], gyrde, German yurt, yurtcl, v. JUrten.

Gist, dji.ist, the drift of un argumcnt.' Grist, cotn for grinding.

French gist, now gî (C'est là que gî le livre), v. gisir, to turn.

Give (g hard), giv, (past) gave (gave, not gâv), (past part.) given, giv' n; giv'-ing, giv'-er; gift.

To give away, to bestow gratis; To give back, to restore; To give chase to, to pursue; To give ear to, to hearken to; To give forth, to announce; To give in, to yield; To give in to, to adopt; To give off, to let out; To give out, to declare publicly; To give over, to cease, to abandon, to submit; To give up, to relinquish; To give up oneself to, to addict; To give way, to let pass; To give way to, to yield to.

Old Eng. gîft, v. gis[ar], past geaf or gaf, past part. ge'en, gîfa, a giver.

(It is a pity that we have substituted v for f in the verb, and the e final is worse than useless, it positively misleads.)

Giz'zard (g hard), the strong muscular stomach of a bird.

Welsh glasog; Fr. gesier; Lat. gîgeria, the gizzard (dîgerère, to digest).

Glacial, glâs'è.á (not glay'she.á1), icy.

Glacier, glâs'è.ârz (not gla'she.ârz), a field of snow-ice.

The rents of a glacier are called crev'asses, the mounds of debris deposited by the moving mass are moraines.

Glaciers, glâs'è.ârs, plu. of glacier. Glacieres, glâs'è.âriz (in Geol.), caves full of ice found in Alpine mountains.

Glacis, glâs'è.is (in Fort.), a smooth gentle slope.

French glaciai, glater, glacieres, ice-houses; glacis (glace, ice); Latin glaciālis, glacies, ice; v. glaciāre, to freeze.

Glad, pleased. Glade, glâde, an opening in a wood, &c.

Glad'-en, to delight (-en added to adj. means "to make"); gladdened, glâd'end; gladd- ing, glad' -ing (Rule i.); gladden-er, glâd'ner; glad'-some (some means "full of"); glad' -ness (-ness, a suffix added to abstract nouns).

Old Eng. glad, glâtlic (adj.); glâtlic (adv.), glâtlicnes, gladness.

Gladiator, glâd'è.t.á.tor (not glây'di.a.ter), a sword-player.

Gladiatorial, glâd'è.t.á.tor.i ál; glâd'i.atory.

Latin glâdâtor, glâdâtorius (gladius, a sword).
AND OF SPELLING.

Gladiolus, glā'di.o.lus (not glād.i.o.lus), the sword-lily.

Lat. gladiolus, a little sword. So called from the shape of the leaves.

Glair (1 syll.), the white of eggs. Glare (1 syll.), strong light.

Glamour allied to gleam, a shoot of light.

"Claymore," Gaelic claid-mor, great sword; Welsh clodd-mo.

Glance, a slight view, to have a glance; glanced (1 syll.), glanc-ing (Rule xix., glān'.sing), glan'cing-ly.

German glanz, v. glanzen.

Gland, an excretory or secretory vessel. Glans, a nut in bracts.

Glandule, glan'.du.le, a small gland (-ule, diminutive).

Gland, glan'ders, a disease in horses; glandered, glan'.derd.

Fr. glande, glandulaire, glandulceur; Lat. glandis, a corn.

Glare (1 syll.), dazzling light, to shine with a glare. Glair, white of egg; glared (1 syll.), glär'-ing (R. xix.), glar'ing-ly.

Glass (noun), glaze (verb). So "grass," v. graze; "price," prize; "cicatrice," cicatrize (R. li.); glass'-y, glass'i-ness (R. xi.), glass'-'ly; glazed (1 syll.), glāz'-ing (R. xix.).

Glazier, glā.zhēr, one who puts glass into windows.

Glass'-ful, phu. glass'fuls, two, three, &c., glass'fuls means a glassful repeated twice, thrice, &c., but two, three, &c., glass'es'-full means two, three, &c., distinct glasses, all filled.

"Glass" (Rule v.), unlike "mass" (Rule viii.), retains the double s in all its compounds: as glass'-y, glass'-ful, glass'-house, glass'-wort, crown'-glass, flint'-glass, plate'-glass, &c. "I singlass" is no compound of glass, but takes double s from sound-analogy.

Old Eng. glass, glass; glasen, made of glass; Lat. glastum, wood.

Glean, gleen, to pick up corn after the crop has been carried.

Welsh glân, clean; French glander, glaneur.

Glebe (1 syll.), the soil; gleb'-y, glee'.by, eloddy. (Lat. gleba.)

Gleditschia. (not gledeshia), gle.dee',she.ar, a flower.

So called in honour of Dr. Gleditsch, of Berlin (died 1786).

Glee, merriment, a song in three or more parts; glee'-man, a minstrel; glee'-some (-some, full of), glee'-ful, glee'ful-ly.

Old English gled, mirth; a song; ged-mann, gled-māden.
Glib, smooth; glib'-ly; glib'-ness, volubility, smoothness.
Lat. glaber, smooth; v. glabreo (Gk. glaphê, whence glaphûrês, smooth).
Glide (1 syl.), to slide; glîd'-ed, glîd'-ing, glîd'-er (Rule xix.)
Old English glîd[an], past glîd, past part. glîden.
Glim'mer, to send forth a feeble light. (See Gleam.)
Glisten, glîs'n (not glîs'ten), to sparkle; glistîned, glîs'n'd; glistîn-ing, glîs'n'ing; glister, glîs'ter (not glîs'er); glîs'tered (2 syl.); glîs'ter-ing.
Old English glîsm[ian]; German glîsen, glîs'ten.
Glît'ter, to sparkle; glîtt'ered (2 syl.), glîtt'er-ing.
Old English glîtten[ian], glîtten[ian], and glîtt[ian], to glitter.
Gloaming, glîo'me'ing, twilight. (O. E. glomun[ge], a interpolated.)
Gloat, glô'te, to gaze earnestly (followed by on); gloat'-ed, gloat'-ing, gloat'ing-ly, gloat'-er. (German gлотzen.)
Globe, Orb, Sphere, Ball, Globule.
Globe (1 syl.), a solid sphere, this earth, an artificial sphere representing the earth, or the starry heavens.
Sphere, sfê'r, a poetic and scientific word for globe.
Ball, a round mass, as a ball of cotton, a cricket ball; a globe is a ball, but a ball is not of necessity a globe.
Orb, a circle, hence the disc of a planet, and hence a planet.
Globule, glô'bûle, a little ball. (.ule, diminutive.)
"Globe," Latin glôbus, a bowl, a globe, glôbûre; glôbûlus.
"Sphere." Lat. sphêra, same as "globus"; Gk. sphaira, v. sphairêd.
"Ball," German ball; French balle; Latin pîla, a pill, a ball.
"Orb," Latin orbis, any round thing, a wheel, a circuit, a circle, &c.
Glomerate, glôm'e-rate, gathered into a head or heap; glom'erât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), glom'erât-ing (Rule xix); glomeration, glôm'e-ray''shun. (See Conglomerate.)
Latin glômératio, glomérâre (glômus, a ball of yarn, &c.)
Gloom, obscurity; gloom'-ing, becoming obscure. Gloaming, glô'mîng, twilight. Gloomy, glow'my; gloom'i-ly (R. xi.), gloom'i-ness. (Old Eng. glôm, gloom; glomun, twilight.)
Glory, plu. glories, glôr'rîz (not glô'rîz), honour, to honour; (verb) glories, glôr'rîz; gloried, glôr'rîd; glôr'y-ing; Glorify, glôr'rî-ify; glorifies, glôr'rî-fîze; glorified, glôr'rî-fîde; glôr'i-fi'er (Rule xi.), glorîfy-ing.
Glorification, glôr'rî-fi'kây''shun, act or state of glory.
Glorious, glôr'rî-ûs; glôr'i-ous-ly, glôr'i-ous-ness.
French glorification, glorifier; Latin glôriûsus, glôriûco, glôria.
Gloss'y, (comp.) gloss'i-er, (super.) gloss'i-est, gloss'i-ly.
Gloss (Rule viii.), a comment; gloss'ary, plu. glossaries,
AND OF SPELLING.

glös'a.riz, a dictionary of antiquated words; glossarial, glös'sair'ri.al; gloss'arist.

"Gloss" (lustre), Old English glæs, glass.
"Gloss" (comment), Germ. glösse; Old Eng. gles[an]; Lat. glosa.

Glottis, glöt'tis, the narrow opening at the upper part of the windpipe. Epiglottis, ép'i.glöt'-tis, the valve of the glottis.

Glottitis, glöt.ti.tis, inflammation of the tongue. (-itis, inflam.)

Fr. glotte, epiglotta; Lat. epiglottis; Gk. glóttta (long o), the tongue.

Gloucester, Glös'ter: (Old English Gleaw-ceaster.)

Gloze, to flatter. Glows, shines with heat. (See Gloss.)

Glucine, glu'sin, the oxide of glucinum. Glucinum, glu'si.num, the metallic base of glucine. Glucose, glu'kose, grape sugar; gluetic acid, glu'sik, acid obtained from grape sugar. (Gk. glükus, sweet; Fr. glucose. (See Glycerine.)

(These words retain the Gk. "u," generally changed to y.)

Glue, glu; glued (1 syl.), glu'ing. (All words ending with a double vowel (except -ue) retain both of them before -ing R. xix.), glu' er, glue'y; gluey-ness, glu'i.ness (R. xii.)

Gluten, glu't'n, a gluey substance obtained from wheat and other grain. Glutton, glu't'n, a great eater;

Glutinous, glu't'ni.us, viscous. Gluttonous, glu't'nu.us, greedy; glut'ious-ness. Glutinate, glu't'ni.te; glu'tinat-ed (R. xxxvi.), glu'tinat-ing (R. xix.), glutinative, glu't.inative; glutination, glu.t.ina.tion.

Fr. glu, bird-lime, v. gluer, gluten, glutinatif; Lat. gluten, glue.

Glüt, to gorge; glut't-ed (Rule xxxvi.), glut'-ing (Rule i.)

Glutt-on, glu't'n, a great eater; glutton-ous, glu't'n.us, greedy; glut'tonous-ly; glutt'ony, glu't'n.î.

Gluttonise, glu't'n.i.se (Rule xxxi.); glut'tonised (3 syl.), glut'tonis-ing (Rule xix.), glut'tonis.er.

Latin glut, gen. glutonis, a glutton; glutio, to swallow; glutus, the gullet; French gluton, glutonnérique.

Gluten, glu't'n. Glutinous, glu't'ni.us. (See Glue.)

Glutton, glu't'n. Gluttonous, glu't'n.us. (See Glut.)

Glycerine, gli'sे.e rin (not gli'se.reen), the sweet principle of oils and fat; glycercie [acid], gli'se.rik.

Nitro-glycerine, nî'tro gli'se.e rin, a powerful blasting oil.

Greek glükus, sweet. (These words convert the Greek u into y, and therein differ from their congeners Glucine, q.v.)

Glyptography, glyp.tôg'.ra.fy, the art of engraving gems.

Greek glyptos graphê, a treatise [on] the art of carving.

Glyptodon, glyp.tô.dôn, a huge fossil armadillo.

Greek glyptôs odontês, having carved, i.e. fluted, teeth.
Gn-.  G or K before n at the beginning of a word or syllable is silent. All these (except gnu) are Teutonic or Greek.

Gnarled, narld, knotted like the oak. (Danish knoldet, knotty.)

Gnash. nash, to grind the teeth. (Germ. knirschen, to gnash.)

Gnat, nat. (Old Eng. gnet.) Natt'y, spruce. (Ital. netto.)

Gnaw, (past) gnawed, (past part.) gnawn, now, 'nowd, nown, to pick with the teeth; gnaw'-ing (not nör'ring), corroding, painful, picking with the teeth; gnaw'er (not nör'ner), one who gnaws or picks with the teeth.

Old English gnag[ha], past gnōh, past part. gnagen.

Gneiss, nice (not nē'tiss), a slaty rock, differing from granite in having its crystals broken. Nice, as it should be.

Gnome, nume, a sylph who guards a mine. (Greek gnōmé.)

Gnomon, nō'mon, index of a dial. (Gk. gnōmon, an indicator.)

Gnostics, nō's'tiks, the knowers as opposed to the believers. A sect which tried to fuse Christianity and Platonism; gnosticism, nōs'tis'izim; gnostic, nōs'tik (adj.)

Greek gnōstikós (v. gnōskō, to know; Latin nosco, to know).

Gnu, nu, a South African ox. (The only word beginning with gn- which is neither Teutonic nor Greek.)

Go, (past) went, (past part.) gone, gōn; go-ing. "Went" is from the verb to wend; goes, gose; go'-er.

To go under the name of; to be called by a pseudonym.

So the story goes, so says common report.

It will go against him, will tell to his disadvantage, will be in his disfavour. To go against a town, to besiege it.

It will go hard with them, there's danger of a fatal issue.

A go-between, a middle man, a mediator.

Go about your business! mind your own affairs, and don't interfere with mine. To go by, to pass by or near.

To give one the go-by, to give one the slip, to shuffle off.

Go and Come. We go away from the place and come to the place where we are [or the speaker is].

Plants come up, and come into leaf or flower, but go out of flower and go to seed; because their leafing and flowering is coming to be with us, but their seeding and decay is going away from us.

The ship went to pieces. The jug came to pieces. Because the ship was away at sea, but the jug in our hand.

The sun goes behind a cloud, but comes out from it. It "goes" out of sight or away from us, but "comes" into sight and therefore where we are or where we can see it.
The sun goes down, but comes forth as a bridegroom to run his race; because at sun-set it "leaves" us, but at sunrise it "comes" into our hemisphere.

Go away, leave this place. Come away, leave that place.

Go to! a broken sentence meaning Go to — or get along with you. Do not talk so for I do not believe it.

When he came to, recovered from a fit. When he came to himself, recovered his senses. In the fit the "spirit" had left, but on recovery it returns back.

It wo'n't go down, it is not to be swallowed or believed.

It wo'n't come down, descend or yield to force.

To go on, to proceed, to fit [as a garment]. To come on, to grow [as a plant].

To go over to, he went over [to the other side or opinion].

To come over, to wheedle, to come to our side or opinion.

To go through, to undergo suffering or trouble. To come through, to get free from, to pass through.

Exception.—We use the word come [to the place where you are], when we reply to an invitation, or direct the idea to the act—to be performed or effort to be made, rather than to the intention formed in the mind of doing what is referred to at some future time.

In reply to an invitation: "Come here." Ans. "I will come [i.e., to you] directly." "When will you come and see me?" Ans. "I will come [i.e., to you] next week." "Will you come and dine with me to-morrow." Ans. "I shall be happy to come and dine with you to-morrow."

The stress on the act and not on the intention: "I am coming to pay you a visit on Monday," i.e., I will undertake the act of a journey to your house; but "I am going to pay you a visit on Monday" refers more to the intention formed, than to the journey to be made.

Effort to be made. This is a slight variation of the preceding idea; when our Lord was told about the Centurion's son, he replied, "I will come [i.e., to your house] and heal him." Here the main stress of the idea is on the effort Jesus was willing to make to heal the sick child. If he had said, "I will go and heal him," the main force would have been directed to the healing and not to the condescension of Jesus undertaking the mission.

Goad, gođe (noun and verb). Good (adj.) God, deity.

Old English god, a goad; göd, good; god, deity.

(These examples will show some of the shifts we have resorted to to represent the accent so unwise discarded.)
Goal, göle, the winning post. Ghoul, gool, a vampire. Gaol, jail, a prison. Gale, a high wind.

Goat, he-goat, fem. she-goat, (familiarly) Billy-goat, fem. Nanny-goat; goat'ish (-ish added to nouns means "like").

Old Eng. gât, a goat; gât-hyrde, a goat-herd; gãla-hüs, a goat-house.

Gobble, gô'b'le, to devour fast and noisily; gob'bled (2 syl.) gobbling, devouring. Gob'lin, a spirit. Gobelin, göb'-lin [tapestry]. See below. (French gober, to swallow.)

Gobelins, a famous manufacture of tapestry near Paris, so called from the brothers Gobelin who established it.

Gob'lin (see above). (Fr. gobelin; Germ. kobold; Gk. kôbôlôs.)

God, fem. god-ess (R. i.); god'-less; god'-ly, pious, piously; god'lli-ness (R. xi.), god'li-ly or god'-ly, god'less-ly.

Old English god, god-bearn, a god child; god-modor, god-sunu, &c.

Gofer, go'fer, to crimp, a cake baked in a go'fer'ing iron; go'fer'ing, crimping. Gopher, go'fer, the wood of which the ark was made, a species of turtle.

Goitre, go'i'tr (French), a large tumour in the neck; goitered, go'i'terd; goitrous, go'i'trus. (Latin gütur, the throat.)

Golden Reinette (not -Rennet), göld'n rain'et.

French Rein-ette, a little queen [of apples].

Golosh, go'lôsh', an overshoe. (Ought to be galoch.)

Fr. galuche; Span. galocha, a clog; Ger. galosche; Lat. gallica.

Gondola, gön'dô.lah (not gön.do.lah), a Venetian pleasure- barge; gondolier, gön'.do.leer', the barge-man.

Good, (comp.) better, (super.) best (from the obsolete positive bet, v. bet[an], to improve); good'-ly, good'lli-ness (R. xi.), good'li-est; good'y, mistress; good-man, master.

Good-bye, -bi (God be with you), farewell.

Good-looking [person], or Well-looking (?). "Good-looking" is sanctioned by usage and analogy; thus we have good-humoured, good-natured, good-tempered, &c. "Looking" is not a participle, but a verbal noun, and should be written looking, but the termination -ing has been unhappily converted into -ing, thereby confounding verbal nouns with participles.

Old English gôd, beter, betest or best; gôdnes, gôdlie, gôdleas.

Goose, plu. geese, (male) gan'der, (offspring) gosling (-ling denotes offspring). (Old English gôs, plu. gês.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Gooseberry, plu. gooseberries, goos. berr iz (no connection with goose). Gooseberry fool (a corruption of gooseberry foolé mashed. The French have foulé de pommes, foulé de raisins, foulé de grosselles, &c.)

A compound of goar t and berie, the rough berry. The French groseille is from the Latin grossula.

Gopher, goör* (Heb.), the wood of which the ark was made.

Gofer, goör,* to crimp, a cake baked on a gofering iron.

French gaufré, v. gaufrer.

Gordian knot, gor*diün nöt,* an inextricable difficulty.

The leather harness of Gordius, king of Phrygia, was tied into a knot so intricate, that an oracle said whoever untied it should become master of the world. Alexander cut the knot with his sword.

Gordonia (not gardonia), gor*do*ni.ah,* a plant.

So called from James Gordon, of Mile End, near London.

Gore, clotted blood, to wound with horns, a gusset; gory, gor*ry.*

Old English gor; to wound) gär, a dart; (a gusset) Welsh gor.

Gorge, a defile, to cram; gorged (1 syl.), gorg*ing* (Rule xix.)

Gauge, gae (not gorge), to mete the contents of a cask.

Gorgeous, gor*ge*us, showy (should be gaudious); gor*geous­ly,* gor*geous­ness. (An exception to Rule lxvi.)

Latin gaudium, joy; gaudialis, gaudet, to delight.

Gorilla, gor*ila,* a large ape. (An African word.)

Gormand; gormandise, gor*man*dise* (R. xxxi.), gormandised* (3 syl.), gormandis­ing* (R. xix.), gormandis*er.

Gormand, a glutton; gourmet, gour*may,* a high feeder.

French gourmand, gourmet, gourmandise; Latin gumia, a glutton.

Gorse (1 syl.), furze. Gauze (1 syl.), a thin transparent cloth.

Gos’hawk, the goose-hawk. (Old Eng. gos­hafoc, goose-hawk.)

Gosling, goz*ling,* a young goose. (Old English gos-ling dim.)

Gospel, gos*pêl; gospell­er (ought to be gospeler; (Rule iii.)

Gospelled, evangelized; gos’pell­ing. (These two words ought to be abolished.) Gospel­ise (R. xxxi.), gos’pelised* (3 syl.), gospelis­ing (R. xix.), gospelis*er.

(The double l of “gospeller,” &c., ought to be abolished, or else gospel should have its double l restored to it.)

Gospel for Gods­pel, Old English godspell, v. godspell[ian], godspel­lers, a gospeller; (spell, story, tidings) good tidings. The Greek word is eu-aggelion, good tidings.

Gossamer, goes*sa*mer* (not gossimer), a fine web.

Old English gos [god’s] seämere, god’s tailor. The tradition is that gossamer is a ravelling of the Virgin Mary’s winding sheet, which fell away when she was carried up to heaven.
Gossip, a tattler, a sponsor, a neighbour, to chat; gossipped (2 syl.); gossipping, gossiper, gossipy, chatty.

Old English Godsibb (sib-, related; as sibling, a related child).

(If one p is dropped in gossip, it ought to be omitted in all of its derivatives. The same remark applies to "worship," Rule iii.)

Got past tense of get. Much foolish prejudice exists against this very useful word. Has means the simple fact of possessing, but got implies that the possession, has been obtained by effort, exposure, gift, &c. Thus "I have a cold" states a fact only, but "I have got a cold" implies that it is the effect of exposure or bad weather. "I have the hammer" states a fact, but "I have got the hammer" implies either I have fetched it, or I have taken it in possession [without your knowledge or consent].

No doubt the word is often used in a very slip-shod manner as may be inferred by the following sentence: "I got on horseback immediately I got your message, and got to the train by ten o'clock, but got such a cold, as I shall not get rid of in a hurry. However, when I got home, I got my supper, and got to bed, got nicely warm, and soon got into a sound sleep. Next morning I got up and got dressed, and scarcely had I got into the bedroom, when I got a telegram, and got the boy to get a little refreshment, while I got ready my answer, which I hope you will get in good time."

Gouge, gooj (not gowj), a chisel for cutting grooves, to scoop out; gouged (1 syl.), gouging, gouger.

Fr. gouge, from the Low Lat. gavia, a gouge; Span. gubia.

Gourd, goor'd (not gord), a plant. Gored, gerd, wounded.

French goude and ouerge; Latin cucurbita, a cupping-glass, &c.

Gout, a disease. Gouty, gout'i-ness (R. xi.) Gout, goo, relish.

French goutte (the disease), so called because it was thought to proceed from a goutte or drop of acrid matter in the joints. "Gout" (relish), French gout; Latin gustus; Italian gusto.

Governor, a ruler, whether male or female; governness, a fem. teacher; governante, go'vernaunt, a lady who has charge of young girls of quality; governor-ship, the office of a governor (ship, Old Eng., office); govern-able, govern, governed (2 syl.), govern-ing, govern-ment.

French gouverner, gouvernement, gouvernemental, gouvernante; Latin gubernare; Greek kubernē, to guide or govern.

Gown (to rhyme with crown), gownsman (not gownman), a university student; a silk-gown, a Q.C.

Welsh gwun, a gown; v. gwemia, to sew.

Grab, to pilfer; grabbed (1 syl.), grabb'ing (R. i.), grabb'er.

Grabbler, grab'ler; to grope; grabbed, grabb'ld; grabbling.

Welsh cribddail, pillage; Danish grib, to seize (gribb, a vulture).
Grace, favour, elegance; to adorn, to honour; graced (1 syl.), grac'ing (R. xix.); gracious, grā'shūs; gra'cious-ly, gra'cious-ness, grace'ful, grace'ful-ly, grace'ful-ness.

Grat'iš, for nothing. Grat'i fy, grat'i fy. (See Gratify.)

French grace, gracieux; Latin gratia, gratiosus, gratis.

Grade (1 syl.), a degree, promotion; grad'ient, grā'di. en't, the slope or incline of a rail-road; grad'u'al, grad'u'al-ly, gradu'ate (3 syl.), grad'u-at-ed (R. xxxvi.), gradu'ate-ship.

Gradation, gra'daY'. shun, a series; graduation, grad'. u.a"'. shun; a marking into degrees, reception of a degree.

French gradu.el, gradu'ier, graduation, grad'. a'tio (gradus, a step; gradior, to go step by step).

Graff (Rule v.). The older and better spelling of graft.

Graft, a part of one tree inserted into another, to insert a graft' graft-ed (R. xxxvi.), graft' ing, graft' er. (Fr. grriffe.)

Grain, gran'ary (not grain'ery), a grange; granivorous, grā.niv'o. rus; granulate, gran'u. late; gran'ulat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), gran'ulat-ing (Rule xix.), gran'ular, gran'u. le (2 syl.), a little grain (-ule dim.), granulous, gran'u. lūs. (The blunder of i in "grain" (seed), we have taken from the French, but it is not perpetuated in its derivatives.

The derivatives of "grain," to imitate the grain of wood, retain the i throughout: as Grained (1 syl.), grain' ing, grain'er. Grains, refuse of malt after brewing. Grain, purple dye.

French grain, granuler, granulation, granule; Latin grānum, grān' nārium, grāntfer. "Granivorous" is granum voro, to eat grain.

Gramineous (not graninious, Rule lxvi.), gra.mīn'. e.ūs, grassy; gran' inivorous, grā.mīn'. i. o'. rus, grass-eating.

Graminaceae, grā.mīn'. i. o'. se.ē, the order of plants called grasses (-acee (in Bot.), denotes an order of plants).

Lat. grāmen, gen. grāmānis, grāmineus, "graninivorous" (voro, to eat).

Gram'mar (double m), gramma' rian, grammat' ical, grammat' ical-ly, grammat' ical-ly, grammat' icise (Rule xxxi.), &c.

Fr. grammaire, grammatical; Lat. grammaticus (Gk. gramma).

Grampus, plu. grampus, Rule xxxiv. (not grampi), a fish.

A corruption of French grand-poison, great fish (granpoisie).

Granary, plu. granaries, grān'. a.rīz; gran'ulate. (See Grain.)

Grand-father, -mother, plu. grand-fathers, -mothers. Parents' parents to parents' children.

French compounds adapted: grand-père, grand-mère.

Latin grandis, remote, as ovum grande, a remote age.

Grandson, -daughter, plu. grand-sons, -daughters. Sons and daughters children to sons' and daughters' parents.

The French say "petit": petit fils, petite-fille.
Grandchild, plu. grand-children, *-chil'.ärh\'.

Formed on the same model; no corresponding word in French.

Grand-jury, plu. grand-juries, -jur'.riiz, the jury which decides whether or not there is sufficient prima facie evidence of guilt in an accused to be worth "trial."

Special jury, plu. special juries, a jury for a special cause.

Grandee, grän'.dé'. (Spanish grande, a nobleman.)

Grandeur, grän'.dör, elevation. (French grandeur.)

Grand-jury, plu. grand-juries, -jii'.riiz, the jury which decides whether or not there is sufficient prima facie evidence of guilt in an accused to be worth "trial."

Special jury, plu. special juries, a jury for a special cause.

Grandee, grän'.dé'. (Spanish grande, a nobleman.)

Grandeur, grän'.dör, elevation. (French grandeur.)

Latin grandiloquentia (grandis loquens, gen: loquentis, grand talking).

Granite, grän'.it, so called from its granular-crystalline composition and appearance; granitic, grän'.it'.ik.

French granit, granitique; Latin granum, grain.

Granular, grän'.u.lar; gran'.ulate, &c. (See Grain.)

Graphic, graf'.ik, life-like, delineated; graphical, *graf'.ik'.al; graphic-ly. (The ph- points to a Greek word.)

Latin graphicus, Greek graphikos (grapho, to write or draw).

Graphite, graf'.it, black-lead, or rather carburet of iron.

Grapholite, graf'.olit, slate fit for school uses.

Grasp, grasp, a small anchor with four or five flukes.

Grapple, grap'.p'l, to struggle [followed by with]; grappled (2 syl.), grapp'ling, grapp'ling-irons, grapp'ler.

French grapin or grappin, a grapnel, a struggle.

Grass (noun), graze (verb), to feed on grass; similarly glass, glaze (Rule II.); plu. grass'-es (Rule xxxiv.), grass'-y, grass'i-ness (Rule xL)

Grass, to cover with grass; graze (1 syl.), to feed on grass; grassed (1 syl.), grass'-ing; grazed (1 syl.), graz'-ing; grazier, graz'.hër, one who pastures and rears cattle.

Old English geers or grccs, grass; gras[ian], to graze; gras-hoppa.

Grate (1 syl.), a fire-stove, to rasp. Great, grä't, large.

Grät'-er, a rasping, one who grates. Greater, grä'.tër, larger; grät'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), grät'-ing (Rule xix.), grät'ing-ly.

"Grate" (a stove), Ital. grata, Lat. crales, a hurdle, crate or grate. "Grate" (to rasp), French gratter, to scratch. (See Rule lxii.)

Grateful, grät'.fûl, thankful, agreeable; grate'ful-ly.

Gracious, grä'.sesh, kindly disposed; gra'cious-ly, -ness.
Gratitude, grati't.ā.tūde, thankfulness. (See Gratis.)
Lat. gratus, gratificāto, gratificāri, gratiosus, gratitūdo.
Gratis, grā't.īsē, for nothing; gratuitous, grā.tū'.tīsē, free [gift];
gratuitously, without compensation, without proof.
Gratuity, plu. gratuities, grā.tū'.tīz, a donation.
Lat. grātītūs, grātīs (i.e., grātīs, for thanks only); Fr. gratis.
Grauwacke, the German way of writing graywacke (q.v.)
Gravamen, plu. gravamina or gravamens, grā.vay'.mēn, plu. grā.vay'.mēn.nāh or grā.vay'.mēn.nūz, cause of complaint, chiefly used in ecclesiastical matters.
Lat. gravēmen, plu. gravāminā, a grievance (gravis).
Grave (1 syl.), a place of interment, solemn, to carve.
Grave (noun), plu. graves (1 syl.) Graves, food for dogs.
Grave, a place of interment, solemn, to carve.
Graves, gravez, leg-armour. Grieves, greevz, laments.
Grave-clothes, grave-digg'er, grave-stone, grave-yard.
Graves (1 syl.), should be greves, refuse of a melting pot, made into dogs' food. Greaves, greasez, leg-armour. Grieves, greevz, laments.
Grave (adj.), grāv.er (comp.), grāv.est (super.), grave'-ly, grave'-ness. Gravity, plu. gravities, grāv'.tīz. "Gravity" (seriousness) has no plural. (See Gravitate.)
Grave (verb), graved (1 syl.), grāv'.ing, grāv'-er, a tool for engraving, one who engraves. Engra'veing, a picture engraved, using a graving tool. Grāv'-en (adj.), chiefly used in conjunction with "images": as graven images.
"Grave" (for interment), Old English greg, also a graving-tool.
"Grave" (adj.), French grave, gravité; Lat. grāvis, gravitas.
"Grave" (verb), French graver; Lat. graphis, the art of engraving; graphium, an iron pen; (Greek grāpho, to write, &c.)
Gravel (noun and verb); gravelled, grāv'.eld; grav'ell.ing, grav'.el.ly, R. iii., -el. (Fr. gravier, gravelle, the malady.)
Graves (1 syl.), should be greves, refuse of a melting pot, made into dogs' food. Greaves, greasez, leg-armour for the legs. Grieves, greevz, laments (3rd sing. pres. ind. of Grieve); Graves. (See Grave.)
"Graves" (dogs' food), Danish grever, residuum of tallous, fibrous remains of lard. "Grave," Anglo-Saxon green.
"Graves" (leg armour), Spanish grevas. "Grieve," French grief.
Gravitate, grāv'.it.tāte, to tend towards a material body by attraction; grav'.it.tāt.ed, grav'.it.tāt.ing; gravitation, grāv'.it.tāt'.ay'.shūn; gravity, plu. gravities, grāv'.it.tīz.
Gravy, plu. gravies, grā'.vī, grā'.viz, the juice of cooked meat.
Gray or Grey, (comp.) gray'-er, (super.) gray'-est, gray'-ish (-ish added to adj. is diminutive, added to nouns it means "like"); gray'-beard, gray'-ness. (Old Eng. grēg, gray.)
Grayhound (better than greyhound), the hound that hunts the gray or badger without being trained to do so,
Graywacke, gray.wäk.'y, a kind of sandstone. (Germ. grauwacke.)

Graze (1 syl.), to pasture; grazed (1 syl.), gräz-ing; gräz-er, an animal sent to graze; grazier, gräy.'zhër, one who pastures and rears cattle. Glazier, see Glass.

Old English gra[ti]an, to graze. (See Grass.)

Greas[e], (noun) grëes '; (verb) greaze (Rule li.), fat, to smear with grease; greas-y, grëe'-zy (not greë.zy); greas'i-ness, greas'i-ly (s = z). Greece, the country so called.

French grasse, graisser; Latin crassus, fat (Greck kreas).

Great, large. Grate, a stove, to rasp. Greet, to salute.

Great, grate (not greet), comp. great-er, super. great'-est.

Old English great, greatnes, greatness.

“Grate” (to rasp), Fr. gratter. (A stove), Ital. grata; Lat. crates.

“Great” (to salute), Old English grë[ti]an, to bid welcome.

Greaves, greez, leg, armour. Grieves, greevz, laments.

Graves (better greves), dog’s food. Graves (1 syl), places for interment. (See Grief.)

“Graves” (dog’s food), Danish greer; residuum of fat. “Graves,” Anglo-Saxon grefas.

Green, a colour; green-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim.), greenness (double n). Greens (no sing.), cabbages dressed for food; green-gage (2 syl.), a sort of plum; green-sward, a grassy lawn; green-tea; Scheele’s green, a pigment; green-grocer, a dealer in fruits and vegetables.

Old English gréng, grénnnes, greenness; v. gré[ti]an.

Greet, to salute. Great, grate, large. Grate, a fire stove.

Greet’ed (R. xxxvi.), greet’-ing, greet’-er. Great’er, larger.

“Greet,” Old English grë[ti]an, past gretté, past part. grét, grét[ting].

Gregarious, grë.gair’ri.ës, living in herds (-ous not -ous, because “herd” is an abstract noun), gregarious-ly, &c.

Latin grégartus (grex, gen. grégis, a flock or herd).

Gregorian, grë.gor’ri.ën, adj. of Greg’ory.

Grenade, grë.nädé’, an instrument of war; grenadier, grën’a.der (-erre; (not grën’a.deer’), one of the Grenadier Guards, so called because, at one time employed to throw grenades.

Grenado, plu. grenadees, gre.näk’.doze. (A blunder for the Spanish granada, plu. granadas.)

Fr. grenade, grenadier: Ital. granata, grenadier; Span. granada.

Grey or gray. (comp.) grey-er or gray-er, (super.) grey-est or gray-est, grey-ish or gray-ish. (Anglo-Saxon grëg.)

The following are spell,with “e,” not “a.”

Grey-hound (the canis graius). Old English grig-hund.

This is a blunder for Grayhound, the badger-hound; so called because (unlike other dogs) it will hunt the grey or badger without being trained to do so.
The Scotch Greys or The Greys, the 2nd dragoons. So called because they are mounted on grey horses.
Grey-wethers, \textit{weth'ers}, huge boulders near Avebury.
Grey Friars, Franciscan friars (who wear a grey habit).

Gridiron, \textit{grid'iron}, a grated frame for broiling food.
Welsh \textit{greiddol}, a griddle, of which "gridiron" is a corruption.

Grief, \textit{grief} (Rule v.), sorrow; \textit{griev'ness} (Rule xxxix.)
Grieve, \textit{greev}, to mourn (Rule li.); grieved, greend; grieve'-ing (Rule xix.), griev'-er, griev'-ance; grievous, grieve'vus; griev'ous-ly, griev'ous'-ness.

French grief; Latin gravis, heavy; \textit{gravare}, to put to pain.

Griffon or griffin, \textit{grif'fin}, a fabulous animal.

Grill (Rule v.), a grate, to broil; grilled (1 syl.), gril'-ing.

Grise, \textit{grils}, a salmon not fully grown. (Scotch.)

Grim, fierce-looking; \textit{grimm'-er}, \textit{ggrim'-est} (Rule i.), grim'-ly, grim'-ness. Grime (1 syl.), dirt.

French griffe; Latin griffus; Greek grifos, gen. grifos.

Grime (1 syl.), dirt, to foul with dirt; grimed (1 syl.), grime'-ing (Rule xix.); grim'-ing, grim'-ly, grim'-ness.

French grime; Latin grime; Old English grime, past part. grime.

Grin, \textit{gr'in}, a snarling smile, to smile scornfully; grinned, grind.

Grind, \textit{grind}, (past) ground, (past part.) ground; grind'-ing, to reduce to powder by friction, to rub [the teeth] together; grind'-er; grind-stone, often called grind'stone.

French grinc; Latin grindus, Old English grindian, past grinde, past part. grined.

Gripe, \textit{grip}, a grasp, a fast hold, to give a grip; gripped, gript; grip'-ing (Rule i.), grip'ping-ly, grip'-er.

French gripe; Old Eng. gripean, to lay hold of; past gripe, past part. gripe.

Grisette, \textit{grizët'} (French), jeune ouvrière coquette et galate.

It means one who wears a gray or russet gown (grisette).

Grisly; grisli-ness, gris.li-ness, hideousness.

Grizzly; grizzle-ness, a stubby state of half-gray hair.

Gristle; grizzle-ness, the state of being cartilaginous.

“Grizzly,” Old English gristle.

Grist, grist, corn for grinding. Bringing grist to the mill, bringing gain or profitable work. (Old English grist.)

Gristle, gris’ly, cartilage; gristy, gris’ly, cartilaginous; gristle-ness, gris’li-ness (Rule xi.) (See Grisly.)

Old English gristel, gristle-bin, the gristle-bone.

Grit, grit, the coarse part of meal, sand; grit’-y (R. i.), gritt’-ness (R. xi.) Grits, gritz, prepared barley for ptisan.

Old English gryt, fine flour, mill-dust; grit, wheat or barley meal.

Grizzle, gris’-l, grey [hair] mixed with black; grizzled, gris’-l’d.

Grizzly, gris’ly, hideous. Grisly-ly, gris’ly, cartilaginous. Grizzle-ness. (Fr. gris.)

Groan, grööne, a cry of anguish. Grown, increased in size.

Groan, to utter a cry of anguish; groaned, grön’d; groaning, grön’ing; groaning-ly, groan-ful (Rule viii.)

Old English grön[an], past grönede, past part. gröned; grönung.

Groat, grin<ut, an ancient piece of silver coin worth fourpence.

Our modern coins are called “Four-penny bits or pieces.”

German grot (st.), a great penny, because prior to the coinage of groats by Edward III. our largest silver coin was a penny.

“Groat” (a small sum), Old English grö or grot, a particle, atom.

Greats, grötz, also called grits, oats prepared for ptisan.

Old English grin, wheat or barley meal; grit, fine flour.

Grocer, grö. cer, a dealer in grocery. Grosser, grö. cer, coarser.

Grocery, plu. groceries, grö. se-riz, housekeeper’s stores.

Green-grocer, a dealer in fruits and vegetables.

German grosser, a wholesale merchant; French grosse<er, wares.

Grog, grin<, spirit and water, originally applied to rum and water cold without sugar; grogg’-y (Rule i.), tipsy; grog germ.

Admiral Vernon was called Old Grog because he wore on deck in rough weather a grogram cloak. He was the first to serve water in the rum on board-ship, and the mixture acquired his nickname.

Grogram, a coarse stiff stuff. (Ital. grossagranu, Span. gorgorana.)

Groin, groyn, part of the human body; groined (1 sy1.), having an angular curve formed by the intersection of two arches.

Groom (1 sy1.), one who has charge of a horse, to tend and clean a horse; groomed. (1 sy1.), groom’-ing. Groom of the Stole, keeper of the royal state robes. (Gk. stolé, a robe.)

Old Eng. guma, a man. Gum-cynn, mankind; Low Lat. gometus.
AN OF SPELLING.

Groove (1 syl.), a furrow, to furrow. Grove, gröve, a small forest; grooved (1 syl.), groov'ing (Rule xix.)
Icelan. groof; Old Eng. grove, a grave. "Grove," Old Eng. grof.

Grope, gröpe, to search by feeling. Group, group, to arrange in batches. Gröped (1 syl.), felt in the dark; grouped, groopt, arranged in a group. Gröp'ing (R. xix.), searching in the dark; grouping, groop'ing, arranging in groups. Gröp'-er, one who gropes; group' er, one who groups.
Old English gröpfian], past gröpede, past part. gröped.

Gross, gröse (not grös), fat, thick, coarse, unrefined, whole or entire, twelve dozen; grös'-ly, grös'-ness.
A Gross, 12 doz.; A great Gross, 112 doz.
To sell or buy in the gross, the whole lot just as it comes; by the gross, one whole lot where there are several lots.
Gross weight, the entire weight including casks, dross, &c.
Tare, the weight of casks, packages, and so on.
Trêt, the weight of dross and refuse.
Net, the real weight with tare and tret deducted.
To buy or sell wholesale in large quantities [to sell again], as a whole pipe of wine, a whole cargo of goods.
To buy or sell by retail, in small quantities [for use].
Fr. gros; Span. gromo; Ital. grosso; Low Lat. grossum; (venditio in grosso, selling by wholesale); Lat. crassus, fat, thick.
Twelve dozen, French grosse, demi-grosse, six dozen.

Grot, gröt or Grotto, plu. grottos, gröt'töze, a garden cave.
Old English gröt; Italian grotta; French grotte.

Grotesque, gröt'esk' (French), whimsical, outré; grotesque-ly; grotesque-ness, gröt'esk'ness.
Outré ornaments such as were employed in the thirteenth century to ornament garden caves and bowers.

Ground (1 syl.), the earth, did grind, to lay on the ground, to stick fast [as a ship in shallow water], to teach the first principles, (in Paint.) the first colour; ground'ed, ground'ing; ground'age, toll for lying in port; ground'ing, a fish that keeps to the bottom of the water, hence the dregs of the people; ground'less, without foundation; ground'less-ly, ground'less-ness. Ground's, dregs, landed property, land in occupation (no sing.)

Ground-floor, the basement floor of a house. The first-floor, all the rooms above the basement floor. The second floor, the flat over the first-floor.
In France the ground-floor is called "le rez-de-chaussée"—le réd' shö'say, above which is a low flat called the "entre-sol," and the floors (étages) begin from the entre-sol. Thus persons who live "au premier" (o prém' ayr) occupy the first flat above the entre-sol; those who live "au second" (o'sköne) occupy the second flat above the entre-sol, and so on.

A floor is also called a storey (stör'ry), but great diversity of opinion exists on the use of this word. Some, like the Americans, call a house with ground floor and a flat above, a "two storey house," and a house with three tiers of windows (above the ground) a "three storey house," while others begin the storey with the first floor, and call a house with two rows of windows a "one-storey house," and a house with ground floor and two flats above it, a "two-storey house." Probably the majority would reckon every row of windows between the basement and the eaves a "storey" (but not a flat).

To gain ground, to advance. To lose ground, to recede.

Old Eng. grund; grundleas, groundless; grounded, groundedly.

Groundsel, ground’sel (not groundsil), the plant sēnēcio.

Old English grund-swēlge, the ground-swiller, so called because it greatly infects and impoverishes the soil. Called in Latin sēnēcio (from seece, an old man), because of its downy head.

Group (1 syl.), a cluster, to form a groupe. Grope, to feel one's way in the dark; grouped (1 syl.), arranged in group; group-ing, group-er. Groped, grōpt, searched for in the dark; grōp-ing (Rule xix.), grōp-er.

Grouse, grouce, the heath-cock. Grows, grōze, doth grow.

Grout, coarse meal, plaster for walls, to grout; grout'-ing.

Old English grut, wheat or barley meal, grout.

Grove, grōve, a small forest. Groove, groov, a channel.

Old Eng. grof; Low Latin grova (a grove). Icelandic grōf, a groove.

Grovel, grōv'l, to act meanly; grov'elled (2 syl.), grov'ell-er, grov'ell-ing (R. iii.), part. and adj., mean in character.

Icelandic grōva; Chaucer uses groff, flat on the ground.

Grōw, (past.) grew, (past part.) grown. Grown, grōne [of pain].

Grow, to increase in size, to vegetate; grow'-ing, grow'-er.

Grōwth, increase from growing.

Old Eng. grōwan, past grewe, past part. grōwen, grownes, growth.

Grōwl, an angry snarl, to grumble; grōwled (1 syl.), grōwl'-ing, grōwl'-ing-ly, grōwl'-er. (French grouiller, to grumble.)

Grub, a maggot, food (slang), to dig with the hands; grubbed (1 syl.), grubb'-ing (Rule 1); grubb'-er.

German grube, a ditch; gruben, to make holes, to dig.

Grudge (1 syl.), reluctance, to feel reluctance; grudged (1 syl.), grudg'-ing (Rule xix.), grudg'-ing-ly, grudg'-er.

Welsh gregvachus, to murmur; gregvachiad, a murmuring.

Gruel, grū'ēl (not grūle), oatmeal porridge. (Welsh grial.)
Gruff (R. v.), harsh, surly; gruff-ly, gruff-ness. (Welsh gruff.)

Grumble, grūmˈbl, to murmur; grumbled, grūmˈbləd; grumˈbling, grumˈbling-ly, grumˈbler.

Welsh grum, a murmur, with dim. French grımmerer, grımmerieux.

Grumous, grūˈməs, clotted. (Fr. grımmeleurs; Lat. grūmus.)

Grunt (noun and verb), gruntˈed, gruntˈing, gruntˈ-er.

Old English grun[an]; Welsh grwn, to grunt.

Gryphoea, grifˈfē.ə, a sub-genus of fossil oysters.

Gryphite, grifˈfīt, a specimen of the above sub-order.

Latin grīphēs; Greek grūpos, hooked. The beak of the shell is curved (sea in Geol. denotes a sub-genus).

Guaiacum, gwaiˈə.kəm, better gwaiˈə.kəm. (Spanish guayaco.)

Guano, gwəˈno, the dung of sea-fowls. (Spanish.)

Guarantee, gūˈrənt.ˈee (occasionally guarˈanˈty), one who warrants to perform a promise, the promise itself, to make the promise; guaranteed, gūˈrənt.ˈəd; guarˈanˌteˈing.

(Words ending with any two vowels, except -ie-, retain both when -ing is added. Obs. only one r.

A disgraceful French-looking word. We ought to have Guarantor, the person who stipulates, the warrantor.

Guarantee, the person to whom the promise is made.

Guarant, the assurance, the warrant.

Guaranty, guaranteed, guaranty-ing, the verb.

French guarantie, v. guarantir.

Guard, gard, defence, a body of men for defence, to protect; guardˈed (Rule xxxvi.), guardˈing, guarˈded-ly.

Guardian, gurˈdē.ən; guarˈdian-ship; guardˈ-able.

The Guards, the household troops; guards-man, a soldier of The Guards. Van-guard, the guard in advance of the army; Rear-guard, the guard behind the army.

Ital. guarˈdar; Span. guarˈdar; Old Eng. weard, v. weard[ian].

Guava, gwəˈvə, a tropical fruit. (Spanish guayaba.)

Gudgeon, gudˈjən, a small fish. (French goujon.)

Guelder-rose, gəˈlərˈroʊz (not gilˈdər), the snowball tree.

The rose of Guelders, i.e., of the ancient duchy of Guelderland (Holland).

Guelphs and Ghibellines, Guelfs and Gibˈəlˈlinz, two factions of Italy (11th to 14th century). The former espoused the papal cause, and the latter the imperial.

At the battle of Weinsberg, in Suabia (1140), Conrad, duke of Franconia, rallied his followers with the war-cry Hie Waellingen! while Henry, the Lion, duke of Saxony, used the cry of Hie Wels (the family names of the two chiefs).

Guerdon, gurˈdən, reward. (French guerˈdon, v. guerdonner.)
Guerrilla, guεε.ri'lah, [war] by skirmishes. (Should be guerrilla.)
Spanish guerrilla, a skirmish (guerra, war, v. guerrar).

Guess (Rule v.), a conjecture, to conjecture; guessed, gëst (Guest, a visitor); guess'-ing, guess'ing-ly, guess'er.
Danish gisse, to guess; Old English geseg(an), to explain.

Guest, gëst, a visitor. Guessed, gëst, discovered by guessing.

Gest, jest, a feat. Jest, a joke.
Old Eng. gest, guest, or guess; Welsh gwest, a visit; gwestai, a visitor.
"Gest," Fr. geste; Lat. gesta. "Jest," Span. chiste, fun, witticism.

Guide, gide, a director, to direct; guid'-ed (R. xxxvi.), guid'-ing (R. xix.), guid'-ance, guid'-able; guide-book, guide-less.
Fr. guider; Low Lat. guida; Germ. weiser, a guide, a leader.

Guild, gild, a corporate body. Gild, to cover with leaf-gold.
Old English geld or gild, a society (geldan, to pay). "Gild," geldan.

Guider, gil'dær, a Dutch "florin." Gilder, one who gilds.

Guile, aile, deceit; guile'-ful (Rule viii.), guile'ful-ly, guile'ful-ness, guile'less, guile'less-ly, guile'less-ness.
Old English wile, craftiness.

Guillotine, gil't.lo.teen (not guilotine), a decapitating machine, to decapitate therewith; guil'toned (3 syll.), guil'ton-ing.
So named from Dr. Joseph Ignace Guillotin, who, in 1791, greatly improved the old Italian mannaia.

Guilt, gëlt, crime. Gilt, covered with leaf-gold. Guilt-y, gëlt'y; guilt'-'ness (Rule xi.), guilt'-'ly, guilt'-'less, &c.

Guinea, gin'ny (g hard). A gold coin = 21s., not in use.
Guinea-pig, gin'ny pig; guinea-hen, guinea-fowl.
The gold pieces coined of the gold-dust from the Cape Coast Castle, in Guinea (Africa), captured from the Dutch by Sir H. Holmes, 1665.

Guipure, giip.pure' (not gue.pure'), an imitation old lace; guipeuse, giip.puze', one who makes guipure; guiper, giip'per, to make guipure; giip'ered (2 syll.), giip'ering.
A French corruption of the English word whip.

Guise, gize, deceptive dress; guisards, gi'zerts, masqueraders.
French guise; Welsh wysa, dress.

Guitar, gë.tar', a stringed instrument of music.
French guitare; Italian chitarra; Latin cithara; Greek kithara.

Güles (1 syll.). In Her. denotes red (represented by upright lines).
French guéules, red; Latin guta, [red like] the gullet.

Gulf, pUt. gulfs. (All other words in -If form their plural by changing -If to -ves: as "calf," calves; "half," halves; "elf," elves; "self," selves; "shelf," shelves; "wolf," wolves; Rule xxxviii.)
French golfe; Greek kelpos, a bosom or bay.
AND OF SPELLING

Gull (Rule v.), a sea-bird, a simpleton, to cheat; gullied (1 syl.), gull'-ing, gull'-ible; gull-ibility, gül'.i.bi'l'i.ty. (-able and -ability would be more consistent.)

Welsh gwylan, a gull or sea-mew. "Gull," to cheat, is very similar to the German beian (yellow beak), meaning a greenhorn.

Wilbraham says all unfledged nestlings are called gulls, from their yellow skin and beaks. (Anglo-Saxon geolo, yellow.)

Gullet, gül.lêt, the inside of the throat. (Fr. goulet, Lat. gûla.)

Gully, gül.ly, a channel for running water; gullied, gül.¿id, worn by running water; gul'ly-hole.

French couler, to run; couloir, a strainer, a drain.

Gulp, to swallow in large portions. Gulf, a bay.

Gulp'-ing, gulp'ing-ly; gulped, gulpt.

Danish gulpe, to gulp, n. gulp. "Gulf," a bay, Greek kôlpós.

Gum, a resin, to smear with gum; gummed, gümd; gumm'-ing (Rule i.); gumm'-y, gumm'i.ness (Rule xi.)

The Gums, the, fleshy part out of which the teeth protrude. Latin gummen or gumen, also gummis and gummi.

"The gums," Germ. gaumen, the roof of the mouth; Dan. gumme.

Gün, a fire-arm; gun-bar'rel; gun-carriage, -car'ridge; gun-cotton; gun-boat, -bote; gun-shot, gun-smith, gun-tackle, gun-powder; gunwale, gun'êl.

Gunn'-er (Rule i.), one appointed over guns; gunn'ery.

To blow great guns, to blow very violently.

Welsh gun; Low Lat. gunna; Lat. canna; Gk. kanna, a reed.

Gunter’s chain, a surveyor’s measure, 66 feet long, (4 poles), divided into 100 links; 100,000 of which forming each side of a square would inclose a acre of land.

So named from Edmund Gunter, of Hertfordshire (1580–1626).

Gurgle, guar'.gêl, to purl; gurgled, guar'.gêld; guar'gling.

Gurgoyle, guar'.gôyl, a fantastic stone waterspout.

Italian gorgoglio, a purling; Latin gurges, a whirlpool.

"Gurgoyle" or gurgoyle, French gargouille. (See Gargoyle.)

Gush, a sudden irruption, to rush [as water] suddenly and violently; gushed (1 syl.), gush'-ing, gush'ing-ly.

Gust, a sudden irruption [of wind]; gust'-y.

German giessen, to gush down.

Gusset, güs'.sêt, a triangular gore let into garments.

Welsh cuwedd, a gore or gusset; French gousset, a fob or gusset.

Gûst, a sudden blast of wind, sense of relish; gust'-y, windy; gust'i-ness (Rule xi.), gust'i-ly.

Gust (relish), güst'-able; gustatory, güs'.ta.tö ry, pertaining to the organs of tasting. Gusto, güce'.to, relish.

Welsh cuwithn, a gust or squall.

"Gust" (relish), Fr. goust now gout; Lat. gustus; Italian gusto.
Gütt, the intestinal canal, to take out the intestines; gütt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), gütt'-ing (Rule i.); güts, the stomach.

Old English gut or gitt; German gutted.

Gutta percha, gütt'tah për'.tchah (not për'.kah), a gum resembling caoutchouc (kë.tchook').

Lat. gutta, a drop [from the island of Pulo Percha].

Gutta serena, gütt'tah së.ree'nah, amauro'sis or blindness arising from palsy in the ret'ina.

It was once thought to be due to a transparent watery humour distilling on the optic nerve.

Gutter, gütt' ter, a channel for water; to run down [like the tallow or wax of a candle], to form a gutter; guttered, gütt'terd; gut'ter-ing.

French gouttière (goulette, a drop; Latin gutta).

Guttural; gült'ur'al, formed in the throat, a letter formed in the throat (as k, with c and g before a, o, u, as call, cot, cut; gall, got, gun. The sibilant sound of c and the j sound of g before e, i, was introduced by the French after the Conquest; guttural-ly.

French gutturale; Latin guttur, the throat.

Guy, plu. guys (gi, gize), a rope to guide and steady a body while hoisting or lowering, an effigy of Guy Fawkes, one dressed in a ridiculous fashion.

Spanish guia, a guide; v. guiar. 'The other is from Guy [Fawkes].

Guzzle, guz's'zl, to drink greedily; guzzled, guz's' zld; guzz'ling, guzz'ler. (Ital. gozzoviglia, v. gozzoviglione.)

Gymnasium, djim.nay'si.um, a school for athletic exercises.

Gymnastics, djim.na's.tiks, athletic exercises (Rule lxii.)

Gymnastic (adj.), gymnast'ical-ly (adv.)

Gym'nast, one who teaches gymnastics; gymna'siarch.

Latin gymnasion, gymnastic, gymnastics; from the Greek gymna'sion, gymnas'tes, gymnastikos, gymna'siarcha (gymnos, naked, because these exercises were performed naked).

Gymnosperm, djim'n.no.sper'm (in Bot.) Applied by Linnaeus to certain plants, the seeds of which he erroneously thought to be naked or without pericarp; gymnosper'mous.

Greek gymnos sper'ma, naked seed.

Gymnotus, djim.nö'.tüs, the electric eel of South America.

Greek gymnos nó'tos, naked-back. They have no dorsal fins.

Gynandrian, djin än. drì.ën (in Bot.), having stamens inserted in the pistils; gynandria, djin än' drì.åh, that class of plants which have stamens and pistils consolidated into a "column" (-ia in Bot., a class or order); gynander, djin än' der, a plant of the above order.

Linnaeus called "stamens" andria, the male organs of plants, from Greek ané, man; the "pistils" he called gynä, the female organs of plants, from Greek gyné, woman.

"Gynandria" is gyné and ané combined, meaning that the pistils and stamens are consolidated or combined in one column.

Gypsum, djýp.sým, plaster of Paris or sulphate of lime.

Lat. gypsum, white lime; Gk. güpeS. (The y shows it to be Greek.)

Gypsy, plu. gypses. (See Gipsy.)

Gyrate, djý.rá.té, winding, to revolve round a central point; gyrát-ed (Rule xxxvi.), gyrát-ing (Rule xix.).

Gyration, djj.rá.t'ýn, circular motion.

Gyratory, djý.rá.t'ý, moving with circular motion.

Latin gýrus, a circle; Gk. güros. (The y shows it to be Greek.)

Gyrfalcon, djýr.fáll.kjón, the large vulture-like falcon.

German ger-faulb, the vulture hawk.

Gyrodus, djý.ró.dýs, a genus of thick-toothed fossil fishes.

Greek güros odous, [the fish with] round teeth.

Gyromancy, djý.ró.mán.sí, divination by walking round and round in a circle.

Greek güros manteia, circuit divination.

Gyroscope, djý.ro.sko.pé, an instrument to exhibit the effects of rotary motion.

Greek güros skóped, rotary [motions] I exhibit.

Gyves, djývs, fetters; gyved, djivd, fettered. (Welsh gefyn.)

II. The initial h is wholly mute in only three simple words in the language, viz., (1) heir, (2) honest and honour, (3) hour. It is almost mute in three other sets of words, viz., human, humour, and humus.

The three simple words give birth to twelve compounds, in all of which the h is quite mute: thus

1. Heir, heir-ess, heir-less, heir-loom, heir-ship. (See Heir.)
2. Honest, honesty, honestly, with the neg. dis-honest, &c.
Honour, honorary, honourable, honourably, with the neg.
3. Hour, hour-glass, hour-hand, hour-ly.

The three in which the h is almost mute give birth to sixteen or seventeen derivatives in all of which the h is almost mute: for example

Humane, humane-ly, humane-ise.
2. Humour, humour-less, humour-ist, humour-ous, &c.
Humour-some, humour-some-ly, &c., humoral.
3. Humus, humate, humic, humulin.

When h follows initial w, the w is slightly aspirated as in whale; wharf, what, wheat, wheel, wheeze, whelm, whelp, when, whence, where, wherry, whet, whether, whey, which, who, whom, why, &c.

The loss of the h, like so many other of our irregularities, is due to French influence. There was no mute initial h in the language before the Norman Conquest. Half a century ago many words were similarly emasculated, but good taste has been gradually restoring the aspirate.

Ha! exclamation of surprise. Ha! Ha! laughter. Hah. hah, haw-haw [hedge], a sunk fence.

Old English ha! ha! ha!, and hæge, a hedge.

Haebas Corpus, ha'bæ.is.cor'pus, a writ in law, beginning with these words, one of the greatest securities of liberty. It provides that the person addressed in the writ shall produce the body of the person accused within twenty days, and prefer a charge against him of having broken some law of the land. If bailable, the person accused may be set free on finding bail, and if the charge is merely vexatious he may be at once released.

Haberdasher, håb'er. dash'er, a dealer in woollen, linen, and other cloths; haberdashery, håb'er. dash'er. cry.

From hapertas, a cloth, the width of which was settled by Magna Carta. A hapertas-er is a seller of hapertas-erie.

Habergeon, ha'ber'je.on, a coat of mail formed of rings.

French habergeon, from German hals-bürgen, to guard the neck.

Habilitment, ha.bi't.ment, clothing; habiliments, garments.

French habillement, v. habilier, to dress; Latin habilus, dress.

Habit, håb'.it. Cust'om. Habit is the effect of custom, and custom is that repetition which confirms a habit.

Habitual, ha.bi't. u.âl; habit'u'al-ly, habit'u'al-ness.

Habituate, ha.bi't. u.âte; habit'u-at-ed (Rule xxxvi.), habit'u-at-ing (Rule xix.); habituation, ha.bi't. u.â'.shûn; habitude, håb'i. tude.

French habit, habituel, habituate, habitude; Latin habitus, hábitudo (from hábère, to have). "Custom," French coutume.

Habitable, håb'.i.ta'b'l, that may be lived in; habit'able-ness; habituation, håb'.i.ta'y'.shûn; hábitat, the natural locality of a plant or animal; hábitancy, legal settlement.

French habitable, habituation; Latin hábitûre, hábitâtiô, hábitât.

Hack, a horse kept for hire, anything used in common, to cut into small pieces, to notch, to mutilate an author's meaning; hacked (1 syl.), hack'-ing, hack'-er.

Hackney, plu. hackneys (not hacknies, Rule xiii.), a horse kept for hire, to use overmuch; hackneyed, hack'neyd, common, worn out; hack'ney-ing; hack'ney-coach.

French haquenée, a cob-horse. The French were at one time accustomed to let out their cob-horses for hire, and these horses, at a later period, were harnessed to a plain vehicle called a coche-d'hauque. (Romance haque, a horse; Latin equus.)

"To hack," Old English hack[an], past haccode, past part. haccoed.
AND OF SPELLING.

Had, did have. (See Have.) Add, to sum together.

I had rather. I had as lief be... These are corrupt forms of I'd rather (I would rather); I'd as lief be... (I would as lief be...). Latin malo (magis-volo), I would rather. Old English hæfde and hæfd (of habban). "Add," Latin addo.

Haddock, hād'.dök, a fish of the cod kind.
Cod with -ock dim.; Latin gadus, a cod.

Hades, hā'dees, the abode of the dead in Greek mythology.
Greek Hadēs (from eídēs, invisible; a eídō, not to see).
Our word "hell" is Old English helle(n), to be out of sight.

Hadji, hōj', the pilgrimage to Mecca or Medina; hadji, hōj'.i, a Mohammedan pilgrim. (Arab. hadjāj.)

Hadrosaurus or hadrosaurian, plu. hadrosaurians, hād'.ro.-saw'ro.s or hād'.ro.saw'ro.ri.än, plu. hād'.ro.saw'ro.ri.änz, a huge herbivorous fossil reptile, first discovered in the chalk-marl of Haddenfield, New Jersey, in 1858. Greek hadrōs sauros, large or huge lizard.

Hāma- or hema- (Greek prefix), haima, blood.
Haima-chrome, hē'.ma.krome, colouring matter of blood.
Greek haima chroma, blood colour.
Haimanthus, hē'.māńt.ri.ús, the blood lily.
Greek haima anthōs, blood flower.
Haimat-emesis, hē'.ma.tēm'.esis, blood-spitting.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs ði.mē'sis, blood vomiting.
Haimat-ine, hē'.ma.ti.in, the colouring principle of logwood.
Logwood is called haimatoxylon, blood-wood, from its colour. -ine (in Chem.) signifies a simple substance (haima, blood).
Haimat-ite, hē'.ma.ti.tie, blood-stone, native oxide of iron.
Gk. haima, gen. haimatōs, blood, with -ite, stone-like (Gk. lithos).
Haimato-cele, hē'.ma.to.seel, a bloody tumour.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs κέλε, blood tumour.
Haimato-crya, hē'.ma.tōk'.ri.ah, cold-blooded animals.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs kruōs, blood-cold [animals].
Haimato-logy, hē'.ma.tōl'.i.ogy, description of the blood.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs λόγος, discourse on the blood.
Haimatos-ine, hē'.ma.to.in, colouring principle of blood.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs, blood, with -ine (in Chem.) a simple principle. The o is short in Greek.

Haimatos-is, hē'.ma.to.is, the formation of blood.
Greek haimatōbō, to make blood. The o is short in Greek.
Haimato-therma, -to.ther'.mah, warm-blooded animals.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs thermōs, blood-warm [animals].
Haimato-xlione, hē'.ma.tōx'li.in, the colouring principle of logwood; haimatoxylon, hē'.ma.tōx'.ilōn, logwood.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs xulōn, blood [coloured] wood.
Haimat-uria, hē'.ma.ri.u'ri.ah, discharge of bloody urine.
Greek haima, gen. haimatōs ourōn, blood urine.
Hæmoptysis, hæmōpt.'isēs, blood expectoration.

Greek haimo-phū, to spit blood (haima, blood).

Hæmorrhage, hæm'options, a bleeding or discharge of blood.

Greek haimorrāγēs, violent bleeding (haima rēgmānti, to burst).

In the compound word the h of rēgmānti should be dropped.

The Greek word is aμορpαγγίς not aμορραγγίς.—(Liddell & Scott.)

Haft, a handle. Aft, the stern. Halved; hārd, divided.

"Haft," Old Eng. heft, from habb[an], to hold; past part. hefted.

Hag, an ugly old woman; haggish (Rule i.), like a hag (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); hagg'ish-ly, hagg'ish-ness. Hagg'is, minced lamb's fry.

Old English hagesse, a witch; Welsh hag, ugly. (See Haggis.)

Hag'gard, gaunt and worn out; hag'gard-ly.

French hagard (Greek hagios, holy), like a "holy man."

Haggis, hāg'gis, a food made of minced lamb's fry.

Haggish, hāg'gish, like a hag. (See Hag.)

Scotch haggis; French hachis, hash or minced meat food.

Haggle, hāg'gl, to chaffer; haggled, hag'gled; haggling, hagg'ler. Same as Higgle.

Hagiographa, hāg'i.o gr.'fah, Old Testament "writings"; hagiographal, hāg'i.o gr.'fāl; hagiographer, hāg'i.o gr.'fār, a sacred penman; hagiographist, hāg'i.o gr.'fāst, one versed in sacred scriptures; hagiography, hāg'i.o gr.'fā'g-ri, sacred "writings" [of the Jews].

The Jews divided the Old Testament into three parts, (1) the Law or five books of Moses; (2) the Nevim or prophets, and (3) the Ketuvim or "writings," called in Greek hagiographa.

Greek hagiográphos, to hagiógrapha (biblia, hagíados grapho).

Hail, hale, rain frozen in descent, to salute, to call [a coach], to call to, to pour down: hail; hailed (1 syl.), hail-ing, hail-fellow, a companion; hail-stone, hail-storm;

Ail, to be affected with some illness. (Old Eng. égl, v. églan.)

Hale, healthy, to drag forcibly; haled (1 syl.), häl-ing;

Ale, malt liquor. (Old English eala or ealō.)

Haul, hawl, to drag; hauled (1 syl.), hau-l'ing, hawl'er;

Awl, a tool for piercing holes. (Old English eal or ēl.)

Hall, hawl, the entrance of a house, a mansion;

All, awl, every one, the whole. (Old English ēl.)

"Hail," Old English hagol; hagol, or hagl, hagol-stân.

"Hale," Old English hál, healthy, sound; French haler, to drag.

"Haul," Fr. haler; "Hall," Old Eng. heal, a mansion, a house.

Hair, Air. Ha're, Are. Here, Ere. Hear, Ear. Heir, E' er.

Hair, hare, a sort of wool; hair, a single filament, ptu. hairs, a definite number of filaments; hair-y, adj. of hair; hair-i-ness; hair-dye, -powder; -sieve, siv; -splitting.

Air, the atmosphere; air-y, air-i-ness. (Fr. air; Lat. aer.)

Hare, a quadruped. (Old English hæra.)

Are, r (not air), Norse plu. of the verb to be.

Here, hêr, in this place. (Old English hær or hér.)

Ere, air, before in time. (Old English ér.)

Hear, ér, to apprehend by the ear. (Old English hær.)

Ear, ér, the organ of hearing. (Old English éár.)

Heir, air, successor to real property. (Latin hæres.)

F'er, air, contraction of “ever.” (Old English éfer.)

Hake (1 syl.), a fish, an iron hook. Ache, ake, pain.

Hakeem or Hakim, ha'keem (Arab.), a wise man, a physician.

Halberd or Halbert, höl'berd or höl'bert, a battle axe mounted on a long pole; halberdier, höl'ber.deer". French hallebarde, hallebardier; German hallebärde, hallebärdier.

Haleyon, hál.se'ón, the kingfisher; hal'cyon days, days of prosperity and calm.

According to Sicilian legend, the kingfisher incubates fourteen days, seven before and seven after the winter solstice, during which time the sea is perfectly tranquil.

Latin haleyo; Greek hálkyon (hálkōn, to breed on the sea).

Hale (1 syl.), healthy, robust. (Old English hál.)

Hale, to drag by force; haled (1 syl.), hal'ing (Rule xix.), or Haul, hawl; hauled, haul'ing. (French haler.)

Ale, malt liquor. (Old English eala or ealo.)

Hail, rain frozen, to salute. (Old English hægl or hagol.)

Ail, to be in suffering. (Old English egl; v. eglan.)

Hall, hawl, a mansion, entrance of a house: (O. E. heal.)

All, awl, every one, the whole. (Old English al.)

Awl, a tool for piercing holes. (Old English eal or ál.)

Half, plu. halves, harf, harvz. (Nouns in -of and -lf form the plural by changing “f” into ves. The only exception is “gulf,” gulfz (Rule xxxviii.).

To halve, harv, to divide; halved, harvd; halv-ing, har'ving.

Halfpenny, plu. halfpence and half-pennies, hay'pén.ny, hay'pence, hay'pén.niz. “Half-pence” means copper money, either penny or halfpenny pieces; “half-pennies” means two or more halfpenny pieces.

Half and half; a mixture of beer and porter, or ale and porter.

Half-boarder, a pupil who dines at school, but goes home to sleep. Half-bound, the back and corners in leather.
Half-blood, born of the same father or mother, but not both.
Half-bred, a mongrel. Half brother, half sister, a brother or sister related by one parent but not both.
Half-caste, half European and half Hindû in parentage.
Half-cock, the lock of a gun raised half-way.
Half-crown, a silver coin equal to 2s. 6d.
Half-dead, almost dead, greatly exhausted.
Half-holiday, a school holiday from dinner time to tea.
Half-moon, the moon when half its disc is illuminated.
Half-pay, a reduced pay given to naval and military men.
Half-price, reduction of price to one half.
Half-seas-over, nearly intoxicated.
Half-sovereign, a gold coin worth 10s.
Half-tint, an intermediate tint.
Half-witted, weak in intellect.
Half-yearly, every six months.

Old Eng. half, thridde, half, three halves; healf ove, half alive.

Halibut, hōl′.i.būt, a large flat sea-water fish. (Germ. heilbutte.)
Hall, hōl′. Haul, hōwl′. Awl, all, awl.

Hall, a mansion, entrance to a house; hall-mark, the stamp on gold and silver articles. (Old Eng. heal.)
Haul, to drag by force; hauled (1 syl.), haul′-ing. (Fr. haler.)
Awl, an instrument for piercing holes. (Old Eng. eal or āl.)
All, awl, everyone, the whole. (Old English āl.)

Hallelujah, hāl′.le.lu′.ya h (Heb. halalu Jah, praise ye God).
Halliards, hāl′.yar dz, tackle for hoisting and lowering masts.
A compound of hale, to drag, and yards.

Halloo, hāl′.lo , a shout to dogs, to shout...; hallowed (3 syl.), hallowed′-ing. (Verbs ending in any two vowels, except ue, retain both when -ing is added, R. xix.) Span. haloo.
Hallow, hōl′.lo, to keep or make holy. (Old Eng. hālgian.)
Holla, hōl′.lah, shout. (French holla; Spanish hola.)
Hollo, hōl′.lo, a call to a fellow to stop. (German halloh.)
Hollow, hōl′.lo, a mere case, to excavate. (O. E. hol, v. holian.)
Halo, hāy′.lo; a luminous circle, “a glory.” (French halo.)

Hallo, hāl′.lo; hallowed, hōl′.lo de or hōl′.lo ed; hal′low-ing.
Halloo′, hallowed′, hallowed′-ing, to dogs. (Spanish haloo.)

Hallo, hal′.ler, or hollo, hōl′.ler, to shout to; halled, hōl′.lerd, or halled, hōl′.lerd; hal′low-ing, hāl′.ler′ing, or hollo′-ing, hol·ler·ing (followed by to or after), to call to one with a shout. (German hallohs.)

Halloween, hā'l. lo·se', holy eve; Hal'lowmas (Rule viii.)
All Hallows, aul hāl' lo·se, i.e., All Saints, Nov.1. (See Hallo.)
Old English hal·gian, past hal·god, past part. hal·gung.

Hallucination, hāl·lu·si·na'·tion, delusion of mind.

French hallucination; Latin hallucinatio (hallux, the great toe).

Halm or ham, harm or harm, a stalk. Harm, injury.

Germ. halm; Fr. chaume; Lat. culmus, a stalk. "Harm," O.E. hearm.

Halo, hay' lo, a "glory," a luminous circle; halooed, hay' lode, encircled by a halo. Hallo, hāl' lo, to call to.

"Halo," Fr. halo; Lat. halo; Gk. halos. "Hallo," Germ. hallohs.

Halt, hölt, lame, to stop; halt'-ing, limping, stopping; halt'-ed (R. xxxvi.) (Old Eng. healt, v. healt[ian], to limp.)

"Halt" (to stop), French halte; German halte, v. halten.

Halter, hölt'er, a rope [for horses, for hanging criminals].

Alter, ol'ter, to change. Altar, ol'tar, [for sacrifice, &c.]

Halve, harv, to divide into two equal parts; halved, harvd; halv'-ing (Rule xix.), harv'-ing; halves, harvz.

Half, plu. halves, harf, harvz, a moiety. (Old Eng. healf.)

Hām, the back part of the thigh. Am, part. of the verb to be.

Ham'string, to cut the sinews of the leg; ham' strung, ham'mstring-ing. Ham'mstrings, sinews of the thigh.

Old English ham or hamm; ham-elan, to hamstring.

Hamadryad, ham'a dri·ad, a tree nymph; plu. ham'adryads or hamadryades, ham'a dri' a deez.

Latin hāmādrys, plu. hāmandryades (Greek hama drus, so called because they are born with their tree and perish with it).

Hamburgh [grapes], Ham' bur rah. The city is Hām' burg.

Homburg, hōm' burg (in Bavaria).

Hamlet, hām' let, a small village. (Old Eng. hām, dim. -let.)

Ham'mer, an instrument for driving nails, to hammer; hammered, ham'm' ed; ham'm' er·ing, ham'm' er·er.

Ham'mer·cloth, the cloth which covers a coach-box.

To bring to the hammer, to sell by auction.

Old English hamor, hamor·wyrt, hammer·wort, a herb.

Hammock, hām' mōk, a hanging bed on board ship.

An Indian word: Columbus says, "A great many Indians in canoes came to the ship... to barter their... hamacas or nets, in which they sleep." German hange·matte.

Ham'per, a basket, to perplex, to shackle; hampered, hām' perd; ham'per·ing, ham'per·er.

Low Latin hamaperium, a hamaper; German haper, to impede.
Hand, the palm with its five fingers. And, a conjunction.

Hand, a suit of cards dealt to one "hand" or player, to deliver; hand-ed (R. xxxvi.), hand-ing, hand-y, (comp.) hand-i-er, (super.) hand-i-est; hand-i-ness, hand-i-ly; hand-bill, hand-book; hand-s-breath, four inches; hand-loom, hand-mill, hand-rail, hand-writing.

Handful, plu. handfuls (not handsful), two, three, ... handfuls means a handful repeated twice or thrice, but two, three, ... handsful means two or three hands all full.

Off hand, impromptu, without delay.

On hand, in the process of being done.

On all hands, on every side.

Come to hand, arrived, received.

To have a hand in, to be partaker in.

To lend a hand, to assist. To strike hands, to confirm.

To take in hand, to undertake.

Old Eng. hand, hand-bred, hands-breath; handsful. And, and.

Hand-cuffs, manacles; handcuff, to confine the hands with handcuffs; handcuffed, hand-kuft; handcuffing.

"Handcuffs" has no singular. The rule is this: if a pair is separable, each may be spoken of in the singular number, as a glove, a stocking, a shoe; but if the two articles are joined together there is no singular, as trousers, nutcrackers, handcuffs.

We see foot-warmers announced at the railway stations. "As well talk of hands-cuffs, eyes-glasses, and books-binder.

Handicap, hand-i-cap; the weighting of horses differing in age, &c., in order to place them in a race on an equality. The word is borrowed from a game of cards somewhat similar to Loo, only the winner is weighted with extra stakes.

Handicraft, hand-i-kräft, work done by the hand; hand-i-craftsman, an artisan; hand-i-work, work of skill.

Old English hand-kreft, handicraft; handicraftig, mechanical.

Handkerchief, plu. handkerchieves, hand’ker-cheef, plu. hand’-ker-cheezz. This wretched compound is half French and half English, and the plural is a foolish exception to a general rule, Rule xxxix. We had an excellent word in the language, hand-scats, or hand-syete, hand napkin, which in every respect is to be preferred. Old English hand and French couvre chef (ancien mot qui signifie bonnet, chapeau, coiffe de toile de paysanne; bandage pour envelopper la tete. Fleming et Tubbine).

Handle, hand-del’ (noun and verb); handled, han’dled; hand’ling, hand’ler. (Old Eng. handle, v. handle

Handsel, han’sel, earnest money; to pay earnest money; handselled, han’selled; hand’sell’-ing (Rule iii., -EL).

Old Eng: handsel’en, handyslen’, v. handysllan, to give into the hand.

Handsome, hand’-samm, beautiful; hand’some-ly, hand’some-ness,
Handy, ready; (comp.) hand’i-er, (super.) hand’i-est; hand’i-ly, hand’i-ness, R. xi. (Old Eng. hand, with the adj. suffix -y.)

Hang, to suspend on a gallows; (past and p. p.) hanged (1 syl.)

Hang [not on a gallows], (past and p. p.) hung; hung [beef]; hang’-ing. Hang’-ings (no sing.); house drapery.

Hang’-er, a short broadsword; hang’-er-on, a dependant; hang’man, the public executioner.

Old English hön, past hang, past part. hangen, to suspend, to crucify.

Hang-nail (corruption of ang-nail), a sore near the nail.

Old English ang-nagâ, sore of the nail (ang, a sore; a trouble).

Hang, to hang on a gallows; (past and p. p.) hung; hang’-ing; hang’ings (no sing.); house drapery.

Hand, the books which contain the official printed records of the proceedings of Parliament.

These are printed and published by the Messrs. Hansard. Luke Hansard, the founder; came from Norwich, in 1752.

Hanseatic [league], han’se-at’ik; a German trade union established in the 13th century, and virtually dissolved in 1630.

The triennial diet was called the Hansa, its members Hansards, from am-sée, [towns] on the sea. The league was first called amsee-staaten, free-cities on the sea.

Hansel, a reward, gift; bribe, the first money received in a day.

To hansel, to use for the first time; han’selled (2 syl.), han’sell’ing. Han’sel Monday, Monday of the new year.

A corruption of handsyl. Old English handsylen, a giving into one’s hand, v. handsyllan, to deliver into one’s hand.

Hap, chance, to befall; happed (1 syl.); hap’-ly, by chance; by hap’-haz’ard, by mere accident, at random.

Happen, hap’n; to befall; happened, hap’ned; happen’-ing, hap’-ning. (Welsh hap, luck, chance; v. hapian.)

Hap’py, (comp.) hap’pi-er, (super.) hap’pi-est (Rule xi.); hap’pi-ly, felicitously; hap’ly, fortuitously.

Hap’pi-ness (-ness abstract noun), state of enjoyment.

“Happy” means lucky. It is an adjective formed from hap, luck.

Harangue (Fr.), hâ-râng’, a set speech, to make a set speech; harangued, hâ-rângd; harangu’-ing, hâ-râng’-ing. (Verbs ending in any double vowel, except -ue, retain both when -ing is added, R. xix.); harangu’-er, hâ-râng’-er.

Harass, to torment (only one r). Arras, a tapestry curtain.

Harass, har’râs; harassed, har’râst; harass’-ing, har’râs’-ing; harassing’-ly; harass’-er, har’râs’-er.

French harasser; Greek arasê, to strike against, to dash on.

A “harbinger” is one sent forward to provide for an army on the march. Old English here·ber·gan, to lodge the army.

Harbour, *ha*ř·bour, a haven. Ar bour, a bower.

Har·bour, to shelter; har·boured (2 syl.), har·bour-ing, har·bour·er; harbourage, har·bour·age.

Old English here·ber·ga, a station where an army on march rested, v. here·by·rigan, to harbour, to shelter an army on the march.

Hard, (comp.) hard·er, (super.) hard·est. Ar·dour, zeal.

Hard, not soft, difficult; hard·ly, scarcely; hard·ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns means “like.”)

Hard·ness, firmness, solidity. Har·di·ness, boldness.

Hard·ship (-ship, state of being [hard]); hard·earned, -wmd.; hard·fought, -fort; hard·headed, -hčd·ed; hard·hearted, -har·tčd; hard·mouthed; hard·ware, metal household goods; hard·water, hard·won, -wun.

I don’t hardly know: Should be I hardly know.

I can’t hardly tell: Should be I can hardly tell.

Old English heard, hearde, adv.; heard·heart, hard-hearted; heard·heart·ness; heard·lite, hardish; heard·ly; heard·nes.

Harden, hard·en, to make hard (-en, converts adj. to verbs); hardened, hard·nđ; harden·ing, hard·ning; harden·er, hard·ner. (Old English heard·ian, to harden.)

Hard·y, strong in health; (comp.) hard·i·er, (super.) hard·i·est (R. xI); hard·i·ly, stoutly; hard·i·ness, hard·i·hood (-hood, state, a hardy-state), daring, effrontery. (French hardi.)

Hare, Are; Hair, Air; Here, Ere; Hear, Ear; Heir, E'er.

Hare (1 syl.), a quadruped; (male) buck, (fem.) doe, do; hare-bell, the blue-bell of Scotland, the squill; hare-brained, -braind, giddy, heedless; hare·lip, a cleft lip; hare·lipped, -lpt; hare's-foot, hare's·ear, hare's·tail grass, hare·wort (plants).

Old English hara, a hare; hare·fot, hare·wyr·t, &a.

Are, r (not air), Norse plural of the verb To be.

Hair, a sort of wool. (Old English hér.)

Air, the atmosphere. (Fr. air.; Lat. aer.; Gk. aér.)

Here, hér, in this place. (Old English hór or hér.)

Ere, air, before, in time. (Old English ér.)

Hear, héř, to learn by the ear. (Old Eng. hýran, hýran.)

Ear, ér, the organ of hearing. (Old English édr.)

Heir, air, the successor of real property. (Latin hér·es.)

E'er, air contraction of “ever.” (Old Eng. éfré, éfer.)
Harem, *hair*m, the female apartments in Eastern families, a seraglio. (Arab. haram, to forbid.)

Haricot, *hair*ri.ko, the French kidney-bean, a ragout.
Fr. haricot (petite fève, ragoût fait avec du mouton et des navets).

Har’k, listen (imper. mood). Ark, a coffer, Noah’s ship.
Contraction of hearken, Old English *heara*ken[ian].

Harlequin, *hair*le.ki*n, the companion of Columbine in pantomimes; harlequinade, *hair*le.ki*n.ade’, a pantomime especially for harlequin.
French *arlequin, arlequinade; Italian arlecchino.

Harlot, a wanton woman, at one time applied to males as well as females, “He was a gentle harlot (stripling) and a kind,” Chaucer; harlotry, *hair*to.tri, lewdness.
Welsh *herlawd, a tall stripling (lawd, a lad).

Harm, injury, to injure. Arm [of the body], to equip for fight; harmed (1 syl.), injured. Armed (1 syl.), equipped...; harm’-ing, injuring. Arm’-ing, equipping for fight; harm’ful (Rule viii.), injurious. Armful, as much as the arms will hold; harm’ful.ly, harm’ful-ness; harm’-less.
Arm’-less, without arms. Harm’less-ly, harm’less-ness.

“Harm,” Old English *hair*m, v. *hair*mi.n[an]. “Arm,” *ear*m cr *arm.
“To arm,” French armer; Latin arma, n. arma.

Harmattan (Arab.), the hot dry wind of the great desert.

Harmonise, *hair*mo.ni.ize (R. xxxl.), to agree, to adjust in musical harmony; harmonised (3 syl.), harmonis’-ing (R. xix.), harmonist; harmonic, *hair*mo.nik; harmon’-ical, harmon’-ical-ly; harmonics, *hair*mo.nik[ks (R. lxi.); harmonica, *hair*mo.ni.kah, a musical instrument.

Harmonious (R. lxvi.), *hair*mo.ni.ous; harmo’ni.ous-ly, &c.
French harmonie, harmonique, harmonica, harmonieux, harmoniste; Latin harmo*nia, harmo*nico/s.

Har’ness, equipments for horses, armour, to harness [a horse]; har’nessed (2 syl.), har’n ess’-ing, har’n ess’-er.
Welsh harnais, v. harneistaw, harnesier, a harnesser.

Harp, a musical instrument, to play the harp; harped (1 syl.); harp’-ing, playing the harp, talking constantly on one subject; harp’-er, a minstrel; harp’-ist.
Old English *hair*mi.n[an], past hearpude, past part. hearpod; hearpe, a harp; hearpe, a male harper; hearpere, a female harper; hearpestre, a harp-string; hearpune, a harping.

Harpoon, *hair*pou*n, a spear for whaling, to use the harpoon; harpooned’ (2 syl.), harpoon’-ing, harpoon’-er.
French harpon, harponner, harponneur.

Harp’si.chord (not harpsicord), harp’-si.kord, the clavecin.
Harpy, pl. harpies, har·py·z, fabulous winged monsters.
French harpīs; Latin harpyia; Greek harpyiai (harpazo, to ravage).

Harquebus, harquebus, harquebuse, and arquebuse, har·que·bus or ar·que·bus, a fire-arm; arquebusier, ar·que·bus·ier, one armed with an arquebuse; arquebusade, ar·que·bus·a·de, the shot of an arquebuse.

Eau de arquebusade, a lotion for gunshot wounds.
French ar·que·bus·a·de, arquebusade, arquebusier; Italian ar·que·bú·gio (ar·que·bus·io, a bow pierced with a hole).

Harridan, har′ri·dàn, a worn-out licentious woman.
French har'ri·del·le, a jade, a harridan.

Harrrier, har′ri·ər, a dog for hunting hares, a kind of hawk.
Old English hara, a hare. The word should be harar.

Har'row, an instrument used in farming. Ar′row, a dart.
Harrow, har′rō, to rake land with a harrow, to distress acutely; har′rowed (2 syl.), har′row·ing, har′row·er.
Latin āro, to till land; Greek arō, to plough or till.

Har′ry, to pillage, to torment; harried, har′rid; har′ry·ing.
Old English heriand or hergiand, past herode, past part. herod.

Harsh, rough; harsh′-ly, harsh′-ness. (German harsch.)

Hart, Heart, Art.
Hart, fem. roe, (both) deer, (offspring) fawn.
Old English heort, the hart; ra, the roe; "fawn," French faon.
Heart, hart, part of the animal body. (Old Eng. heorte.)
Art, a work of human skill. (Latin artis, gen., artis.)

Harum-scarum, hair′um skair′um, a young scapegrace.

Har′vest, ingathering of crops, to gather in crops; har′vest·ed (Rule xxxvi), har′vest·ing, har′vest·er, har′vest·man; harvest·home, harvest·feast; harvest·moon, the full moon when the sun is crossing the equator in the autumn.
Old English her·fest or her·st. Ear·ing, the time of sowing.

Has (poetical hath), verb have. As, conj. (Greek hōs.)
Old English hābbe thā hafest or hēst, he hafath or hēsth.
Has is a later form, but goes as far back as the eleventh century.

Hash, mince, to mince. Ash, a tree. (Old Eng. asc, an ash.)

Hashed (1 syl.), hash·ing. (French hachis, v. hācher.)

Hasp, a fastening, to fasten with a hasp. Asp, a venomous worm.

Hasped (1 syl.), hap′sed. ("Asp," Lat. aspis; Gr. aspis.)
Old Eng. haps, a hasp; v. hapstian, past hapstode, p. p. hapstode.

Hassock, hūs′sōk, a doss. (Welsh hesg, sedges; and -ock dim.)

Hāst, second sing. ind. pres. of have. Hāste, hurry.
Old English hābbe, thā hafest or hēst, whence hāst, hāst.
Haste (1 syl.), hurry, to hurry; hast'ed (Rule xxxvi.), hast'-ing (Rule xix.); hast'-y, hast'i-ly (Rule xi.), hast'i-ness.

Hasten, hâce'nu, to make haste (-en converts adj. to verbs); hastened, hâce'nu'd; hasten-ing, hâce'ning; hasten-er.

Hasty-pudding, -pood'ing, flour dropped into hot milk.

French hâste, now hâte, haster now hâter; German hast, hâsten.

Hât, a covering for the head. At, prep. (See Hate.) Hâtt'-er (Rule i.), a seller of hats. Hâter, one who hates.

Hât'-er, wearing a hat. Hated, hâte'ed, detested.

Hâtch, a brood, to bring forth a brood, to plot; hatched (1 syl.), hatch'-ing; hatch'er. (See Hatchet.)

Hatches, hâitch'ëz, the coverings over the hatchway.

Hatch'way, an opening in deck to afford a passage up and down. Hatch-bar, a bar for closing the hatches.

German hecke, a brood, v. hecken, [aus]hecken.

"Hatches," Old English haecce, a bar.

Hâtch'et, a small axe; hatchet-faced, gaunt with big features.

To take up the hatchet, to make war.

To bury the hatchet, to make peace.

Fr. hachette, figure à hache, hatchet-face; Lat. ascia; Gr. axind.

Hâtch'ment (corruption of achievement), a funeral escutcheon.

French âchevement, from achever, to achieve.

Hâte (1 syl.), detestation. Ate (1 syl.), did eat. Ait; an isle.

Hate, to 'detest; hât'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), hât'-ing (Rule xix.) hât'-er, hate'ful (Rule viii.), hate'ful-ly, hate'ful-ness.

Hât'tred. (See Hat.)

Old English hête, hêtelle, hatefully; v. hallian, hatting, a hating.

Hatter, hâter', a maker or seller of hats. (See Hat, Hate.)

Hauberker, hav'berk, a ringed mail-armour tunic.

Old English healsborga; a shirt of mail (heals; the neck).

Haughty, hor'ty, (comp.) haught'i-er, (super.) haught'i-est, haught'i-ly, haught'i-ness; hauteur (French), hō.tūr'v.'

French hauteain (haut, lofty, Latin ortus, from orior, to arise).

Haul, a catch [of fish], to drag by force. Awl, an instrument.

All, adj. Hauled (1 syl.), haul'-ing, haul'er. (See Hale.)

Haum, hvaum, a stalk. (See Halm.) Harm, injury.

Haunch, harnsh or hawnsh, the part between the ribs and the thigh. (French hanche, the hip; Low Latin ancha.)

Haunt, harnt, a place of frequent resort. "Aunt," a parent’s sister or sister-in-law. Ant, ânt (not aunt), an insect.

Haunt, to resort often to a place; to visit: [as ghosts]; haunt'ed (Rule xxxvi.), haunt'-ing, haunt'-er.

"Haunt." Fr, hanter. "Aunt," Lat. amîla (am’t). "Ant," am’t, Hautboy, hō′.boy′, a large strawberry, a wind instrument; plur. hautboys, hō′.boys′. The instrument is also written oboe.

Fr. haut bois (haut bois, long stalk); Ital. oboe, the mus. inst.

Hauteur (French), hō′.tōr′r, insolent haughtiness.

Haut-gout (French), hō′.goo′, high relish, rich flavour.

Have, hāv′, (past) hūd′, (past part.) hūd′, hāv′-ing (Rule xix.), to possess, also an auxiliary.

I had rather, a corruption of I'd rather (I would rather, Latin malo, i.e., magis volo).

Old English habblan, past hāfde, past part. hāfed or hāfd.

Haven, hāv′.v′n, a harbour. Heaven, hēv′.n, paradise.

Old English hāf'en, a haven; hāf'en, heaven.

Haversack, hāv′.er.sāk′, a soldier's knapsack.

French hāvre-sac (dans lequel les soldats portent leurs hardes).

Havoc, hāv′.ōk′, devastation. (Welsh hafog′.)

Haw, Awe. Hoar, Oar, O′er, Or. Whore. Horehound.

Haw, the hawthorn berry. (Old Eng. hāga, hagathorn.)

Awe, fear arising from reverence. (Old English ēge.)

Hoar, hōr′, white with frost or age. (Old English hār′.)

Oar, ōr′ [of a boat]. (Old English ār′.)

O′er, ȯr′, contraction of over. (Old English ōber or ēber′.)

Or, conjunction. (Old English ōththē.)

Whore, hōr′, a harlot. (O. E. hōre, hāre; Welsh hurren.)

Hore-hound, corruption of hāra-hune, hare's honey.

Hawk, a falcon, a plasterer's tool, to peddle, to clear the throat.

Hawk′ing, sport with hawks, clearing the throat of phlegm, peddling goods; hawked (1 syl.), hawk′-er.

"Hawk" (a falcon), Old English hāfoc, hāfocere, a fowler.

"Hawk," Welsh hock, a hawk′ing of phlegm ; v. hock′.

"Hawk′" (to peddle), German hocken, to take on one's back.

"Hawk′" (a plasterer's tool), German hocker, inequality. It is a tool to rub down inequalities and make the plaster smooth.

Hawse, hāwz′. Hoarse, hōr′s. Horse, Whores′, hōr′z.

Hawse, the position of the cables before a vessel moored; hawse-hole, the hole through which the cable runs; hawser, haw′.zer, a large rope for towing, warping, &c.

"Hawse-hole," Old English hāts hole, a neck hole.

Hoarse, having a rough voice from a cold. (Old Eng. lās.)

Horse (1 syl.), a quadruped. (Old English hors′.)

Whores, hōrz′, prostitutes. (O. E. hōre, hūre; Welsh hurren.)

Hawthorn, the hedge thorn. (Old English hāga-thorn.)

Hawthorn-dean, hāw′.thorn.deen′, a species of codlin [apple].

So called from Hawthorn Dean, Roslin, near Edinburgh.

Hay-cock, a pile of hay partly made; hay-rick, a hay stack.

"Hay," Old Eng. hæg. "Hey?" Fr. hein? "Ha!" Fr. ha!

Hazard, hâz'ard (only one c), accident, to adventure; haz'ard-ed (Rule xxxvi.), haz'ard-ing; hazardous, hâz'ardüs; haz'ardous-ly, haz'ardous-ness. (Fr. hasard, hasarder.)

Hâze, mist; hâz'-y (Rule xix.), hâz'i-ness, hâz'i-ly.

Welsh hies, a covering; or Old English haso, a livid colour.

Hazel-nut, hay'.zèl nùt, nut of the hazel tree.

Old English hazel-hnut or hazl-hnut, the hazel or cap nut.

He, (poss.) his, (object.) him; fem. she, (poss.) hers, (obj. her; plu. of both, they, (poss.) theirs, (object.) them.

(His, her, their, possessive pronouns used as adjectives.)

He, she, are also used as gender-words: as he-ass, she-ass; he-bear, she-bear; he-devil, she-devil; he-goat, she-goat; she-cat, she-fox or vixen.

He, him; they, them. Unhappily, in our pronouns we have departed from a general rule. The obj. case being different from the nom. has led to endless perplexities.

In the following examples the wrong cases are used.

(1.) He for "him."

Let he that looks after them [mind this]. (Scott.)
All is now made up between you and he (between him).
I saw you and he in the park yesterday (saw him). Did you know it to be he (it [obj. case].. him).
I always suspected it to be he (it [obj. case].. him).

(2.) Him for "he."

No mightier than thyself or him.
She suffers more than him.
If there is one character baser than another it is him who... (Sir Sydney Smith).
There were thousands who could do as well as him (Nopier).
That must be him, I am sure.

(3.) Them for "they," and vice versa.

A fool's wrath is heavier than them both. (Prov. xxvii. 3.)
They that honour me I will honour (honour... them).
In regard to "but" (except.) and "than," it is quite certain that at one time they were used as prepositions, thus the expressions " than whom," " than me," " than her," " than him," " no one but me," cC., are to be found in our very best authors.

(It will be seen that our obj. case is the dat. not the acc.)

Head, hêd, part of the body, to lead. Heed, caution.

Head-ed, hêd'ed, led. Head'-ed, regarded.

Head-ing, hêd'ing, leading. Heed'-ing, regarding.
Head-less, head-less.  Head-less, regardless.

Head-piece, head-piece; head-ship (head, office or state); headsman, head-man, an executioner; head-man, foreman; head-strong, obstinate; head-way, movement in advance; head-wind, contrary wind; [so many] head of cattle, [so many] cattle; head of the table, at the top; neither head nor tail, no consistency [of account]; over head and ears, quite overwhelmed; make head-way.

Head-y, head-y, affecting the head.  Eddy, a whirl.

Head-i-ly, head-i-ness, obstinacy, rashness.

-head, -hood, suffixes meaning "state," "office," or "personality"; god-head (the god personality), maiden-head (maiden state); child-hood, man-hood, priest-hood, &c.

Block-head is one who has a "wooden" [stupid] head.

Fore-head is the "fore" or front part of the head.

Old English heafod, heafod-man; -head (suffix), -head, -hood.

Heal, to cure.  Heel; of the foot (both heel).  Eel, a fish.

Healed (1 syl.), heal-ing, heal-ing-ly, heal-er.

Health, health; healthful (Rule viii.), healthful-ly, healthful-ness.  Healthful, conducive to health; healthful-ly (Rule xi.), healthful-ness.  (Old English heal.)

Heap, heap, a mass, a large quantity, to pile up, to amass; heaped, heap-ed, to heap up.

Old English hæp, v. hæp-ian; past hæpode, past part. hæpode.

Hear, Ear; Here, Ere.  Heir. (See Hare.)

Hear, hear; (past and p. p.) heard, hîrd.  Herd [of cattle].

Hear-ing, hear-er, hear-say.  (See Hearken.)

Ear, ear, the organ of hearing.  Ear-ing, seet-time.  Ear-ring, ring for the ear.  (Old English ēar, ēar-ring.)

Here, hear, in this place.  (Old English hêr.)

Ere, ear, before in time.  (Old English ër.)

Heir, ear, the successor of real property.  (Latin hærès.)

Old English hêrían, to hear; past hêrde, past part. hêred.

Hearken, harken, to listen; hearkened, harken'd; hearken-ing, harken-ing; harken-er, harken-er.

Old English heorcanian, heorcung, a hearkening, &c.

Hearse, hearse, a carriage to convey coffins to sepulture.

French herse, a harrow, a frame with spikes to hold candles, one of the herse mounted on wheels.  "Erese," Gaelic.

Heart, heart, [of the body].  Hart, a male deer.  Art, skill.

Heart-less, heart-less; without heart.  Art-less, without art.

Heart-less-ly (art-less-ly); heartless-ness (artless-ness).
AND OF SPELLING. 441

Heart-y, har'ty; heart'i-ness, heart'i-ly (Rule xi.) Heart-ache, hart'-ake; heart-sick, heart-sick'ness.

To learn by heart, by rote; by heart, in the memory.

Hearth, harth (not herth'), the stone floor in front of a fire-place; hearth-rug, the carpet for the hearth; hearth-stone, a chalky stone for whitening a hearth. (Old Eng. hearth.)

Heat, heat; warmth, to make warm. Eat, to masticate. Heat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), heat'-ing, warming. Eat'-ing, feeding.

Heat'-er, an iron [for tea-urns, &c.]. Eat'-er, one who eats.

Hêt, heated; hôt'-ly, hôt'-ness.

Old English hat, v. hat(ian), past hâdose, past part. hâtôd.

Heath, heeth, a plant, a large open waste; heathy. (Old Eng. héth.)

Heathen, he'th'en, a pagan; heathenise (R. xxxi.), he'th.en.iVze; heathenised, he'th.en.iz'd; heathenis-ing (Rule xix.).

Heathen-ish, he'th.en-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like"); heathenish-ly; heathenism, he'th.en.izm, paganism.

Old English hâthem, hâthenise (hâth, a heath), dwellers on the heaths. "Pagans," dwellers in the villages (Latin pagus).

Heather, hâth'er, the -heath plant; heathery, hâth'ery, abounding in heather. (Old English hâth.)

To heave-to, hèev-toa', to bring a ship's head to the wind and stop her motion; (past and past part.) hove-to.

Old English hëbban, past hâf, past part. hâfen, to heave.

Heaven, hêv'n.; Haven, hâf'v'n.; Even, èv'n.

Heaven, paradise; heaven-ly, hêv'n.ly; heave'nli-ness (Rule xi.), hêv'n.li'ness; heaven-ward, hêv'n.âr'd (adj.), heaven-directed; heavenwards (adv.)

Haven, hâf'v'n, a harbour. (Old English hâfen.)

Even, èv'n, level, evening. (Old Eng. èfen, both meanings.)

Old English hëfjon, heaven (from heofen, elevated or vaulted).

Heavy, hêv'y, weighty; heavi-ly (R. xi.), hêv'.i.ly; heavi-ness, hêv'i.ness. (Old English hejig, hejigtje, hejiglice, heavily.)

N. B.—It will be observed that every word (except hears) beginning with hear- belongs to our native language.

Hebrew, hêb're; Hebrew, hêb're'yik (adj. of Hebrew); Hebraical-ly, hêb're'y.i.kal'y; Hebraicise, hêb're'y.i.size, to convert into Hebrew; Hebraicised, hêb're'y.i sizd; Hebraicis-ing (Rule xix.), hêb're'y.i.sizeing.; Hebraism, hêb're.yizm, a, Hebrew idiom; Hebraist, hêb're.yist, a Hebrew scholar; Hebraistic, hêb're.y.i.stîk (adj.).

Hecatomb, hēk’.a.tōme, the sacrifice of 100 oxen at a time.
Latin hēcatombe; Greek hēcatōn bou, 100 oxen.
Hectic, hēk’.tīk, a feverish red blush on the cheeks.
Latin hectica; Greek hēktikh; French hectique.
Hector, hēk’.tōr, a bully, to bully and bluster; hec’tored (2 syl.), hec’tor-ing. (From Hector, the Trojan hero.)
(It is hard to imagine how this modest, noble-minded patriot came to signify a bully and braggart like Ajax.)
Hedge, a field fence, to make a hedge. Edge, a border.
Hedged (1 syl.), hedg’-ing (Rule xix). Edged, edg’-ing.
Hedg’-er, hedge’-less. Edge’-less, blunt.
Hedge’-hog, hedge’-row, hedge’-spar’row.
Old Eng. hege, hedge-, ewe.

Hedge, a field fence, to make a hedge. Edge, a border.
Hedged (1 syl.), hedg’-ing (Rule xix). Edged, edg’-ing.
Hedg’-er, hedge’-less. Edge’-less, blunt.
Hedge’-hog, hedge’-row, hedge’-spar’row.
Old Eng. hege, hedge-, ewe.

Heel [of the foot]. Heal, to cure. Eel, a fish.

Heel, to put a heel on a boot, &c., to lie over on one side (said of a ship); heeled (1 syl.), heel-ing.
Heal, to cure; healed (1 syl.), heal’-ing, heal’-er.
At one’s heels, close by. To take to one’s heels, to run off.
Old Eng. hēl. Hēl-heart, heel-hearted, i.e., fearful. (A good word.)
“Heel” (to lay a ship on its side), O. E. hēld[an], to incline, to bend.

Hegemony, hēg’em’.o.ny, the leading influence of one state over others. (Greek hēgēmōnia, hēgēmōn, a leader.)

Hegira, hā.djī’.rah, the epoch of the Mahometan era.
Arabic hādjarā, to remove, referring to the flight of Mahomet from Mecca, July 16th, A.D. 622.

Heifer, hēf’-fer, a young cow. Steer, a young ox, both calf.
The sire a Bull, the dam a Cow. A steer, 3 years old, ēx.
Old English heed[an], steor, bullwak, ēx, ēxf.

Heigh-ho! hi’.hō’, an exclamation expressive of weariness.

Height, hite. Length, breadth, depth, but height (not height’), elevation from the ground. Hight, hite, called.

High, hi, elevated; high’-ly, high’-ness.

Heighten, hite’-en, to make high; heightened, hite’-ned; heighten-ing, hite’-ning; heighten-er, hite’-ner.

Old English heedh, high; heethoven, highly; heedhnes, highness; heedhō or heedhē, height. (Our word should be heigh.)

“Height” (to call or name), Old Eng. hēd[an], past hēt, p. p. hētt.

Heinous, hay’nūs (not hē’nūs), atrocious; heinous-ly, hay’-nūs-ly; heinous-ness. (French haineux, haine.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Heir, (fem.) heir-ess, air, air'-ess. (One of the three simple words which lose the initial h), the others are honest and honour, with hour (R. xlviii.; heir'-ship (ship, state or office); heir-loom, something which descends to heirs.

Heir-apparent, a direct heir. Heir-presumptive, an indirect heir who will succeed if there is no direct heir.

In the following derivatives the h is resumed.

Heritage, hér.ri.ta.ge, what is due to an heir.

Heritable, hér'ri.ta.ble; heritor, hér'ri.tor.

Hereditary, he.red'i.ta.ry; hereditarily; hereditament, hereditary, he.red'i.ta.ment; hered'ity.

Inherit, in.herrit; inherited, inher'iting, inher'itor.

Inheritance, in.her'd.tanee, what an heir inherits.

Latin hares (from haro, to stick). Heir-loom is hybrid, "loom" being the Anglo-Saxon gelôma, household goods.

French héritage, hère'itaire, héré'ter, héré'tier.

(The same irregularity exists in the French words, thus the "h" is aspirated in héritage, héré'ter, not in héré'tier, héré'dite, &c.)

Heliacal, hel'i.ca.kal, emerging from or passing into the sun's light; hel'iacal-ly.

Helianthus, hél'i.an'ruhus, the sun flower.

Greek hélîtos, anthîs, the flower [picturing] the sun.

Helical, hel'i.ca.l, spiral; hel'ical-ly.

Greek hélîx, gen. hélikós, spiral; v. hélissô, to turn round.

Heliocentric, héli.o.sen'trîk, concentric with the sun.

Greek hélîtos kéntron, [having for centre] the sun's centre.

Heliotrope, hél'i.o.trôpe (should be hél'i.o.trope), a turnsole, supposed at one time to turn always towards the sun.

Greek hélîtos trîpô, to turn to the sun.

Hell, the place of future torment. Ell, a measure of length.

Hell'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); hell'ish-ly, hell'ish-ness, hell'hound.

Old English hell, v. hélán, to conceal. "Hades" is the same, being the Greek aidos (not haidos), a-idês, not seen.

Hellebore, hél'.e.bôre, the Christmas-rose, aconite, &c.

Greek hélîbôrós (êthn bôra, to destroy pasture).

Hellenes, hél'.lee.neez (not hél'.lên.eez), the Greeks.

Hellenic, hél'.lee.nik, adj. of Helle'nes.

Hellenism, hél'.lee.nîz.m (not hél'.lên.izm), a Greek idiom.

Hellenize, hél'.lee.nîze (not hél'.lên.îze, Rule xxxii.), to imitate the Greeks; hellenizing, hél'.lên.îze'ing.

Hellenistic, hél'.lên.is'tîk, pertaining to Greek.

Hellenistically, hél'.lên.is'-ti.kal.ly, in Greek style.

Greek hêlînës, hellînikós, hellînizô, hellînístês.
Errors of Speech

Helmet, a rudder, a helmet. (Old English helm)

"Helm," Old English helm, a rudder; helm, a helmet.

Helmet, helm; helmet (Rule iii.), wearing a helmet, v.s.

Helot, helot, Spartan serfs; helotism, helotism, slavery, the condition of helots; helotry, the body of helots.

Greek Hailotés, helotera, serfdom (from haires, to overpower).

Help, (past) helpt or helped, (past part.) helpt or helped [helpen, helt], assistance, to assist; help-, or help-,ful (Rule viii.), helpful-, helpfulness, helpless, *helpless-*ly, helpless-ness; help-mate, one who renders help to another; help-meet, a wife, I will make a help-meet for him (Genesis ii. 18).

Old English help, v. *helpe[n], past helpe[n, past part. helpen.

Helter-skelter, in tumultuous confusion.

Helve (1 syl.), the handle of a hatchet; helved (1 syl.), furnished with a helve. (Old English helf).

Hem, the edge of a garment sewed down, to sew down the edge, to confine (followed by in), an exclamation.

Hemmed (1 syl.), hemming (Rule i.), hemmer-er.

Old English hem, a hem or border.

Hema-.

See Hema- for words derived from Greek haima-.

Hem-title, half. (Greek hémi; Latin semi; French dem’ti.)

Hemicarp, hemi-karp (in Bot.), one portion of a fruit which spontaneously divides into halves. (Greek hémi-karpos).

Hemicrania, hemi-krania, pain on one side of the head. (Greek hemi-krainion, half the head.

Hemicycle, hemi-cycle, a half cycle. (Greek hemi-kuklós).

Hemigamous, *hemi*gamous (in Bot.), having two florets in the same spike, one neuter and the other uni-sexual.

Greek hemi- gamos, half marriage.

Hemiptera, hemi-ptera, an order of insects including cockroaches, locusts, bugs, grasshoppers, lantern-flies, &c.

Hemipter, plu. Hemipters, *hemi*pter, one of the above; hemipteral or hemipterous, *hemi*pterous.

Greek hemi- pteron, half-wing, because half of the upper wings is membranaceous and half crustaceous.

Hemisphere, hemi-sphere, a half sphere; hemispherical, hemi.-sfér’ri-kal; *hemispherical-*ly.

Greek hemi- sphairid, a half-sphere or ball.

Hemistich, hemi-stik (often called hemi-stitch), half a stanza, two lines of poetry [in rhyme].

Greek hemi- stichós, half a row or verse.

Hemlock (corruption of the Old Eng. hemleac; "leac" meaning a herb, whence laectán, a herb garden, leac-wéard,*
Hemp, a plant, the fibres thereof; hemp'-en, made of hemp.
Old English hemp or hæmep; Latin cannabis, hemp.

Hén, fem. of cock. In domestic fowls both called poultry; a young hen is a pullet, a young cock is a cockerel. A "pullet" is sometimes called a poult, and a "cock" a bird.

Hen and cock (suffixed or affixed) are also used as gender-words: as cock-bird, hen-bird; cock-peacock, hen-peacock; cock-sparrow, hen-sparrow; moor-cock, moor-hen; peacock, pea-hen; turkey-cock, turkey, &c.

Hen-coop, a coop for hens when rearing their young;

Hen-pecked, hén-pék't, domineered over by a wife.
Old English hen or hënn, coc or cocc. French poulet.

Henbane, hön'.bane, the hyoscy'amus plant.

A corruption of Old English henbelle, belene, belone, or belune. There is no such word as hen-bone, hen-murderer, and the notion of the seeds being fatal to poultry arose from a misapprehension of the word. The Greek word hyoscyamus (huos kiknês), hog-bean, throws no light on the meaning.

Hence (1 syl.), from this place. Hens, hënz, female birds.

Hence'-forth, hence-forward, from this time onwards.

From hence, from henceforth; from thence, from henceforth; from whence. (“Hence,” O. E. heoonan, hinan.)

"From," in the phrases given above, is redundant, but well-established. There are similar Latin examples: as ex-unde and de-unde; ab-hine and de-hine, &c.

Henich'man, a servant. (Old English hina or hine, a domestic servant, whence hînemann, a henchman.

Hepatic, hë.pät'ik, pertaining to the liver.

Hepatitís, hë'pa.të.tës, inflammation of the liver (-itis denotes inflammation).

Latin hëpar, the liver; hëpticus; Greek hëpar, hëpâtikos.

Hepatica, hë.pät'ë.kah (not hepatica), liver wort.

Gerard says, “It is singular good against the inflammation of the liver.” (Latin hëpar; Greek hëpar, the liver.)

Hëp'ta-. (Greek prefix for seven.)

Hep'ta-chord, a instrument with seven strings. (Gk. chordé.)

Hep'ta-gön, a figure with seven angles (Greek gônia); heptagonal, hëp.tåg'ë.nûl (long o in Greek).

Hep'taandria, hëp.tån'dri.a, plants with seven stamens (Linnæus called stamens andres, men or the male organs of plants); heptan'drian.

Heptan'gular, a hybrid which should be abolished.

Heptagon is good Greek, and septangular good Latin.

Heptarchy, the seven Saxon kingdoms of England.

Greek hëpta arché, sovereignty [under] seven [rulers].
Her, object case of She; also a poss. pron., used as an adj. (Nom.) she, (poss.) hers, (obj.) her; plu. (Nom.) they, (poss.) theirs, (obj.) them; herself, (mas.) himself, (plu. both genders) themselves. (See He.)

Old English heó, she: gen. hire, dat. híre, acc. hi; plu. nom. hi, gen. híra, dat. hem, acc. hi. (Our obj. is the old dative.)

Herald, hér'rait, one to make state proclamations, to proclaim; her'ald-ed (Rule xxxvi.), her'ald-ing, her'ald-ship.

Heraldry, hér'ral.dry, the science of coat-armour.

Heraldic, her'rál.dık, pertaining to coat-armour.

Heraldical-ly, her'rá.lik.́ly, adv.

French héraut, heraldique; Old French hérault; German herall.

Herb (not erh), a plant with a succulent deciduous stalk; herbage, hér'.băge (not èr'.bage), grass, pasture; herbal, hér'.băl, a book about herbs; her'bal-ist, a collector or cultivator of herbs; herbarium, plu. herbaria, hér'.bær.́ri.um, hér'.bær'.ri.ah, an album or collection of dried plants; herbary, hér'.ba.ry, a garden of herbs; herbaceous, her'.bay.shus (-e- before "-ous" of concrete nouns, -i- before "-ous" of abstract nouns, R. lxvi.); herbesc'ent.

Herbivora, hér'.biv'.o.ra.h, eaters of herbs; herbivorous, hér'.biv'.o.vò.rus. Herborise, hér'.bo.rıźe (Rule xxxi.), to search for herbs; her'borised (3 syl.), her'boris-ing (R. xix.), her'boris-er; herborisation, hér'.bo.ri.za'.shın. French herbe, herbeau, herboriste, herborisation, herboriser; Latin herba, herbaceus, herbārius.

Herculean, her'.kül.é.àn (not her'.kül.ée'.àn), very great.

Hercules, hér'.kül.éez, type of strength.

Herculanean, hér'.kül.ey'.n.é.àn, Hercules-like.

Latin Hercūles, herculēus, herculānus; Greek Hē'ράκλης.

Herd [of beasts]. Heard, herd [v. hear]. Erred, erd [v. err].

A herd of bucks, bullocks, camels, cattle, deer, elephants, harts, horses, oxen, stags, swine, rabble.

A flock of birds, goats, sheep.

A drove of cattle, sheep, horses, going to market.

To herd together, to associate together, like cattle; herd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), herd'-ing; herd'sman.

Old English heord, same word as hoard; v. heord(a)n. "Heard," Old English hýr(a)n, pa-t hýrde, past part. hýred. "Erred," French erred; Latin erro, to err, to wander.

Here, Ere; Hear, Ear; Heir, E'er; Hair, Air; Hare, Are.

Here, hér', in this place; here-about, here-after, here-by, here-in, here-of, here-to (-too), here-unto, here-on; here-upon; here-with, here-withal. (Old Eng. hér.)

Ere, air, before in time. (Old English är.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Hear, hē'r, to apprehend by the ear. (Old Eng. hȳr[an]);
Ear, ē'r, the organ of hearing. (Old English ēār.)
Heir, āir, the successor of property. (Latin hāres);
E'er, āir, contraction of ever. (Old English ēfer.)
Hair, a sort of wool. (Old English ār or hēr);
Air, the atmosphere. (French air; Latin aer.)
Hare (1 syl.), a quadruped. (Old English ārā);
Are, ār, Norse plu. of the pres. ind. of to be.

Hereditary, hē're-di-ta'ry, descending by heirs; hereditari-ly (Rule xi.); hereditable, hē're-di'ta'ble; hereditament, hē're-di'ment, any property which may be inherited; her'itage, her'itor, owner of parish lands (Scotland).

Inherit, in.hē're-rit'; inher'it-or, inher'itrix, inher'itable; inheritance, in.hē're-tance, property inherited.

In the above the "h" is aspirated. In the following it is dropped:

Heir, āir; heir'-ess, heir'-less, heir'-ship, heir'-loom.
Latin hē'reditārius, hē'rēditas, hāres. The same irregularity prevails in French: "Il" is aspirated in hér'itage and hér'iter, but not in hér'tier, hér'étique, hér'éditaire.

Heresy, plu. heresies, hēr'ri.siz, heterodoxy; heretic, hēr'ri.tik; heretical, hē're-t'ikl; heretical-ly.
French hérésie, hérétique; Latin hēretōs, hēre'ticus; Greek hērēsis, hēre'tikos (hatreos, to choose for oneself, not to receive by faith).

Her'itable, her'itage, her'itor. (See Hereditary.)

Hermaphrodite (not hermophradite), hēr.ma φρ'ad'it, a living creature uniting in one the two sexes.
Fr. hermaphrodite; Gk. hēr-maphrōditos (Hermes and Aphrodite).

Hermeneutics, hēr'ne.nu'tiks (R. lx1.), the science of exposition; hermeneutical, hēr'ne.nu'tikl; hermeneu'tical-ly.
French hér'meneutiq; Greek hēr'méneutikos (héréneus, an interpreter, from Hermēs, Mercury).

Hermi'tical, chemical. Hermi'tical, hermit-like.

Hermi'tical-ly sealed, -seeld, closed up [like a glass-tube] by fusion; hermit'ic. (French hér'métique.)

Hermēs (Mercury) is the fabled inventor of chemistry.

Her'mit (corruption of Eremites), fem. her'mit-ess.

Her'mi'tical, hermit-like. Her'metical, chemical.
Hermitage, hēr'mi.taj, the dwelling of a hermit.

French hermēta, hermitage; Latin erē'mita, erē'mitus; Greek érēmī'ta (from erē'mos, a desert.) Our error is from the French.

Hernia, hēr'ni.ah, a rupture of some organ through the skin; her'nial (adj.) (Latin hernīa, a rupture.)

Heron, hē'roön or hern, a game-bird. *Herr*ing, a fish.

Heronry, a place where herons congregate and breed.

Hernshaw, the hern at which hawks were flown.

Not to know a hawk from a hernshaw, to be without discrimination.

Not to know a "hawk" from the "hern" at which it flies.

Hers, poss. case of She, (obj.) her. Mas. his, he, (obj.) him.

Hers (French), hearse, hērse, a carriage for the dead.

Hesitation, hē'si-tāt to doubt, to stammer; hes'i-tāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), hes'i-tāt-ing (R. xix.), hes'i-tāt-ing-ly; hesitation, hē'sī.tā'ˌtān-sī.

Hesitancy, hēs'i-tan-sīz.

Hesitancy, hēs'i-tāt-iōn; hēs'i-tāt-ār.

Hesitude, a state of doubt (Latin hēsītādō).

Hetero-, (Greek prefix), dissimilar, irregular, diverse.

Hetero-cephalus, sēˈfə-rələs (in Bot.), having male and female flower-heads on the same plant. (Greek hēphalē.)

Hetero-cer’ca,l, [fishes] having a tail unequally lobed: as dog-fish and sharks. (Greek hērkōs, a tail.)

Heterocllite, *hētˈer-o-kˌlīt*ˌlīt*ˌlīt*, anything anomalous, varying from the ordinary rule. (Greek klītus, a slope.)

Heterodox, heretical; *hetˈer-oˌdōks*ˌiˌkal, not orthodox; *hetˈer-oˌdōx*ˌy, heresy. (Greek dōxā, opinion.)

Heterogamous, hētˈer-o-gˌəməs, where the florets in the same truss are of different sexes; (in grasses) where the parts of fructification are on different spikelets of the same plant. (Greek gāmos, marriage.)

Heterogeneous, hētˈer-o-ˌjēˌnēˌlēz, dissimilar; hetˈer-oˌgˌən-eˌsus, hetˈer-oˌgˌən-eˌnēz; *hetˈer-oˌgˌən-iˌtē*ˌiˌtē, opposite of homogeneity.

Hew, Hue, Hugh, Yew, You, Ewe, U.

Hew, you; (past) heewed (1 syl); (past part.) hewed or hewn, to cut; hew’-ing, hew’-er. Hewn stone.

Hue, you, colour, tint. (Old English hēaw or hēw.)

Hugh, you, proper name (Dutch for "high").
AND OF SPELLING.

Yew, u, a tree. (Old English iu, the yew-tree.)

You, tu, plu. nom. and obj. of Thou. (O. E. ge, dat. cow.)

Ewe, u (not you), a dam among sheep. (O. E. cowu.)

Old English hedew, to hew; past hedw, past part. hedwen.

Hexa- (Greek prefix for “six”). Greek hex, six.

Hex’a-chord, an inst. with six strings. (Gk. chorda, a string.)

Hex’a-gon, a figure with six sides and angles; hexagonal, hex’ag’onal-ly. (Greek gōnía, an angle.)

Hexa’gynian, hex’a-gin’i.an (in Bot.), having six pistils or female organs. (Greek hex gūnē, six female [organs].)

Hexa-hedron, hex’a-hèd’ron, a cube or figure with six equal sides; hexa-hed’ral. (Greek hedra, a side, seat, base.)

Hexameter, hex’a-mèter, a verse with six “feet” or poetic beats. (Greek hex metron, six measures.)

Hexandril1n, hex.i’in’.dl’i.an (in Bot.), having six stamens; hexandri, hex.i’in’.dri.a.h. (Greek hex anér, six men.)

Hexangular, hex’a-nèg’ular, half Gk. and half Lat., hex’agon is good Gk., sexangular good Lat. (with six angles).

Hexa-petalous, -pē’t.a.lūs, having six petals. (Gk. petālon.)

Hexapla, hex’a-pla, six versions in six different languages of a book. (Greek hex haplōs, six-fold.)

Hexa-pōd, plu. hexa-pods, animals with six feet; hexapoda, hex’a-pō’da.h, the genus. (Greek pous, gen. pōdos.)

Hey? what say you? Hay, dried grass. (Old Eng. hég, hīg.)

Heyday! an exclamation of pleasurable surprise, frolic, wildness: as the heyday of youth.

“Heyday” German heida. “Heyday” (frollesome time), heahtid, the festive-tide, the joyous time [of youth].

Hhd, contraction for hogshead; i.e., h [hog], hd [head].

Hiatus (hi.ii’.tus) [in a MS], a gap from loss in the continuity, a difficulty of pronunciation produced by the concurrence of vowels. (Latin hiatus, hiāre, to gape.)

Hibernate, hi’bér.nate (not hi.bér’ate), to pass the winter in a dormant state or in seclusion; hi’ber-nāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), hi’ber-nāt-ing (R. xix.); hibernation, hi’bér.nay”.shūn; hiber’nal. (Latin hiberna, v. hibernāre, hibernus.)

Hibernian, hi’ber’ni.an, Irish, an Irish man or woman.

Hibernicism, hi’ber’ni.sizm, an Irishism.

Latin Hibernia, Ireland (Ierna)); Keltic Iar or Eri, western. “Erin” is Er’innis or Iar’innis, western island.

Hiccough (better hiccup), hik’ap (noun and verb); hiccoughed, hik’a’pt; hiccough-ing, hik’a’ping (Rule lxv.)

Dutch huckup; French hoquet, an imitation word.

Hidal’go (Spanish), a nobleman of the lowest class.
Hide (1 syl.), the skin of a beast, a measure of land, to conceal.
Ides, between the calends and nones (Rom. calendar).
Hide, to conceal, (past) hid, (past part.) hid'-en; hid'-ing
Old English hýd, a skin, or a measure of land; v. hýd[an], to conceal.
Hideous, hid'-e.us, horrible; hid'eous-ly, hid'eous-ness.
Archale hidous; Norman hidous; French hideux.
(The e- of "hideous" was interpolated when the fashion prevailed of pronouncing "d" like "j," as "dew" = few; "odious" = e jus, so
"hideous" = hid jus, etc.)
Hie, hi, to hasten. High, hi, elevated. i, pron. Eye, i.
Hied, hide, hastened. Hide (a skin). Eyed, ide (v. eye); hind-ing, hi'-ing. (Verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both when -ing is added.) Eye-ing.
Hierarch, hi'.e.rar.k, chief priest; hierarchy, hi'.e.rar.ky, the church dignitaries; hierarchal, hi'.e.rar.käl; hierát'ic; hierarchism, hi'.e.rar.kizm; hieroc'arcy (not -sy).
Latin hierarchia, hierarchicus (Greek hierárs arché).
Hieroglyphic, hi'.e.ro.glif".xk (not hi'.e.ro.glif".xk), a sacred symbol, emblematic; hieroglyphical, hi'.e.ro.glif".i.kääl;
hieroglyphical-ly; hieroglyphist, hi'.e.ro.glif'.fi.st.
Hieroglyph, hi'.e.ro.glif, a sacred symbolic word.
Latin hieroglyphicus; Greek hieró̂s grìphó̂, to carve sacred [words].
Hierogram, hi'.e.ro.gram, a species of sacred writing; hiero-grammatic, hi'.e.ro.grämmät".xk; hierogrammatic'al, hierogrammatic'al-ly; hierogrammatist, hi'.e.ro.glif'.ma.tist.
Greek hierò̂s gramma, a sacred letter.
Hierophant, hi'.e.ro.fánt, a Greek priest; hierophant'ic.
Greek hierophántes, hierophantíkos.
Higgle, hig'.gl', to chaffer; higgled, hig'.gl'd; hig'gling.
Higgler, hig'.lär, a hawker of eatables, a caviller.
Welsh hic, hiced, heced, a cheating, a tricking; v. hicaw, hocedu.
Higgledy-piggledy, all in disorder (Rule lxix.)
High, hi, elevated. Hie, hi, to hasten. i, pron. Eye, i.
High, (comp.) high'-er, (super.) high'-est. Hire, hi', to borrow. Ire, i're, anger.
High-ly, hi'.ly; high'-ness; high'-way or high-road, the turnpike; high'-lows, lace-boots; high'-treason.
Lord High Admiral, plu. Lords High Admiral.
High Admiral, plu. High Admirals.
High'-way-man, plu. highwaymen, a robber on the high-road.
Old English hig or heed, heedlice, highly; heednes, highness.
Highlands, hi'-lands, a district of Scotland. Islands, i'.lands;
Highlander, hi'.län.ðér, a native of the Highlands.
Hilarity, hislär'ri.ty, mirth; hilarious, hisl.lair'ri.ä.s, not his'la.- riüs (-i-ous for adj. formed from abstract nouns; -e-ous for those formed from concrete nouns, Rule lxvi.)
Latin hiläritas, hiläris, v. hilärare, to make merry.
Hilary term, hil'ar.ry, a law term beginning about the time of St. Hilary's day, Jan. 13.
Hill, an elevation of land less than a mountain. Ill, not well.
"Hill" retains its double "l" in all compounds except hil-ly.
Hill'ock, a small hill. (-ock, Old English diminutive.)
Hil'-ly (adj.), hill'-side. (Old English hyll.)
Him, obj. sing. of he the pronoun. Hymn, him, a sacred lyric.
Him, (fem.) Her, (nom.) She; (plu. of both) They, (obj.) them.
Him-self, fem. herself, (plu. of both) themselves.
(For errors of speech see He and I.)
"Him," "her," and "them" are the dative not the acc. cases of the original pronouns: Nom. he, Gen. his, Dat. him, Acc. hine; plu.
N. hine, G. hire, D. him, Ac. hi. So he, she, G. hire, D. hire, Ac. hi.
"Hymn," Old Eng. hymen; Low Latin hymnus; Greek hymnos.
Hind, fem. of Stag, both Red-deer, a field labourer, (adj.) the back part; hind'-er [part], the part behind (hin'der, to obstruct); hind'-most, hinder'-most.
("Hinder," Ang.-Sax. "hinder," "behind," not the comp. of "hinder.") Hinder, hin'der, to obstruct; hin'der, the back part; hindered, hin'der-ing, hin'der-er; hindrance, hin'der ance, an obstruction.
Old English hín'der[ian], means to keep back; hinder, back, behind.
Hindoo or Hindū, hin'doo', a native of Hindūstan.
Hindūism, hin'doo'.izm, the religion of the Hindūs.
Hindūstanī, hin'doo.stä'n'ni, the language of Hindūs.
Hind (Persic). Sind (Sanskrit), black. "India," the black country.
Hinge, a joint on which a door or lid moves. To hinge on, to turn on; hinged (1 syl.), hing-ing, hin'y-ing (Rule xix.).
The Anglo-Saxon word is hœor, but our word seems to be derived from the verb hang[œan], to hang; German hängen, a hinge.
Hinny, a mule, to whinny; hinnied, hin'nid; hin'ny-ing.
Latin hinnio, to neigh or whinny; hinnus, a mule; Greek ginnēs.
Hint, an indirect allusion, to intimate indirectly; hint'-ed
(Rule xxxvi.), hint'-ing, hint'ing.ly, hint'-er.
Hip, the fleshy part of the thigh, the fruit of the dog-rose, an exclamation, as in hip! hip! hurrah (hu ray).
Hipped, hip't, melancholy with the meagrim. (Corruption of hypped, from "hypocondriac.")
Hipp'sh, rather hipped (-ish diminutive).
Old Eng. hyp, the hip; hypphän, the hip-bone. Heope, the hip berry.
Hippocraee, no such word. It is Ipomoea, a sort of bindweed.

Hippocras, hip’po. hrás, a spiced wine cordial.
So called from "Hippocrates Sleeve" or woollen bag used as a strainer. (Hippocrates, physician, born at Cos, B.C. 460.)

Hippo- (Greek prefix), a horse. (Greek hippös, a horse.)

Hyp’po-drôme, a horse circus. (Greek dromos, a course.)

Hyp’po-griff, half a horse and half a giffin. (Gk. grups.)

Hyp’po-pathology, -pû.hôl’ogy, the science of horse diseases. (Greek -pathós lôgos, disease-treatise.)

Hippophagi, hip.pôf’.a.gi, eaters of horse-flesh; hippophagous, hip.pôf’.a.guos. (Greek phágô, to eat.)

Hyp’po-pôt’amus, plu. hip’po-pôt’ami, the sea or river horse.

Greek hippôs potânos, river horse.

Hyp’po-therium, plu. hippo-theria, hip’.po-ther’ium, plu. hip’.po-ther’i.ah, a fossil beast allied to the horse.

Greek hippôs thérîm, horse-beast.

Hippurites, hip’.pu.rites (better hip.pu.rites), fossil bivalve molluses; hippu’ric [acid]; hip’purite [limestone], limestone abounding in the above.

(The -u- in these words, representing Greek -ou-, is long.)

Greek hippôs oura, horse-tail (u, a fossil, Greek lithos).

Hippurus, hip.pû’ris, mare’s tail. (Greek hippôs oura.)

Hire, hi’r, wages. Higher, hi’r, more high. Ire, i’r, anger.

Hire, to borrow on a consideration; Let, to lend on a consideration; hired, hi’rd; hir’-ing (Rule xix.), hir’-er; hire’-ling, a mercenary.

Old Eng. hi’r, hire, v. hi’r[ian], past hi’rode, past part. hi’rod, hi’rling.

Hirsute, hi’r’sîte, covered with hairs, hairy; hirsute’-ness.

Latin hîrâtûs, hairy.

His, his, poss. pers. pron., fem. her, plu. their. Hiss (q.v.)

Hiss, to express disapproval by a dental aspiration; hissed, hist; hiss’-ing, hiss’-er. Hist, silence! His, his, pron.

Hist! hush (Norse hys !). Hissed, hist (v. hiss).

History, plu. histories, his’to.riz, chronicle of events.

Historian; his’tôr’est.an; historic, his’tôr’est.; historical, his’tôr’est.kûl; historical-ly.

Historiographer, his’.to.ri.ôg’ra.fer, one employed by a sovereign to write the current history of the realm.

Latin historia, historicus, historiographus (Greek história).

Histriônic, relating to the stage; histriônical, his’.trî.on’i.kûl; histriônical-ly; histriónism, his’.trî.on’iz.m.

Latin histriônicus, histrio, an actor; French histriôn.
AND OF SPELLING.

Hit, a blow, a lucky stroke, to strike. It, neut. pronoun.

Hitt, (past) hit, (past part.) hit, hitt'-ing (R. i.), hitt'-er.

Norso hitte, to hit on. "It," Old English hit.

Hitch, an obstacle, to budge. Itch, an irritation of the skin.

Hitched (1 syl.), hitch'-ing. (Welsh hecian, to limp; hecyn.)

Hither, hith'r, to this place. Thither, thith'r, to that place.

Hith'er-to, hith'er-ward, hith'er-most, nearest on this side.

Old English hither or hider. Thither, thider, thiderward.

Hive (1 syl.), a bee-basket, a colony of bees. 'Tve = I have.

Hive, to put bees into a hive; hived (1 syl.), hiv'-ing.

Hoo! Hoo! (interjections) stop! Hoe, hō, a tool.

Hoar, hō'r; Oar, ō'r. Hors, hōr. Whore, hoo'r. Or. Haw.

Hoar, hō'r, white with age or frost; hoar'-y, hoar'i-ness; hoar'-frost, ground-frost. (Old English hôr, hoary.)

Oar, ō'r, for propelling boats. (Old English âr, an oar.)

Hors [de combat], hōr' d' cone'.bâh', disabled (French).

Whore, hoo'r, a prostitute. (Old Eng. hōre; Welsh hure.)

Or, a conj. (Old English ohthe, or, either.)

Haw, a berry. (Old English hâg, hâgt horn, hawthorn.)

Hoard, hôrd, a store. Horde, hôrd, a tribe.

Hoard'-ing, a temporary wooden fence, the habit of secretly laying-by money; hoard'-er, one who hoards.

Hoard (verb), hoard'-ing, hoard'-ed (Rule xxxvi.)

Old English heord, a store; v. heordan. "Horde," German horde.

Hoarse, hō' rse, roughness of voice. Horse, a quadruped. Haws.

Hoarse'-ly, hoarse'-ness. (Old Eng. hâs, hoarse; hors, horse.)

Hoax, hōx, an imposition, a trick. Oaks, ōkes, trees.

Hoax, to trick; hoaxed (1 syl.), hoax'-ing, hoax'-er.

Old English hûx or hûcs, irony, slight, hoax.

Hôb, the shelf of a grate, a chimney settle.

Old English habban, to hold.

Hobb, hōb'b'l, to limp; hobbled, hōb' b'l'd; hobbling, hōb' bling; hobbling'-ly; hobbler, hōb' bler. (Welsh hobëlw, to hobble.)

Hobbledy-hoy or hobbledy-hoy, hōb' b'ldy or hōb' b'ldy hoy, a youth between boyhood and manhood.

Hobby, plu. hobbies, hōb' b'iz, a pony, a favourite pursuit, a small strong-winged hawk. Haußboy, hoû' boy (q.v.).

Hôby-horse, a child's plaything, a walking-stick to ride on.

Fr. hobëseau, a hobby [hawk]. Hobby-horse, a corruption of hobby house (hawk-tossing, or throwing the hawk from the wrist).
Hobgoblin (not happygoblin), hōb.gōb'.lūn, a bogy.
Hobnail, hōb.nāl, a nail for shoeing horses or for peasants' highbows. (German hufenagel, a hoof-nail.)
Hōb'nōb, to fraternise in drinking; hob'nobbed (2 syl.), hob'nobbin'. (The b is doubled because "nob" is treated as a monosyllable, Rule i.)
Hōck, a Rhenish wine, the ham, to cut the hamstring; hocked, hōkt; hock'-ing. Also spelt hough, hōk.
Old English hōk or hō, the hock or ham.
Hocus, hō'kūs, to cheat; hocusse'd, hō'kus't; ho'cus-ing; hō'cus-pō'cus, a juggling trick, to impose by trick.
An exception to R. iii. Welsh hoesdus, a juggling; hoeda, to trick. "Hocus-pocus" is said to be a corruption of hoc est corpus, the words used in the Roman Catholic Church in the eucharist.
Hōd, a dorseil for carrying bricks. Odd, not even.
Hō'd-man, a labourer who carries the hod.
Germ. hotte; Fr. hotte, a hod or dorseil. "Odd," Ang.-Sax. other.
Hōd'den-gray, a coarse cloth of undyed wool.
Hōde'-pōdge (2 syl.), a medley, a stew of odds and ends.
French hōc'hopot (ragoQt fait de boeuf haché, et cult sans eau dans un pot avec des marrons).
Hoe, hō, a garden and field tool. Ho! stop! How (A. S. hái).
Hoe, hō (verb), hoed (1 syl.); hoe-ing, hō'-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing); hō'-er (R. xix.) (Fr. houe, v. houer. "Ho," Welsh and Fr.)
Hog, a male pig. Boar, the sire. Sow, the dam. Litter, the brood. Farrow, a "litter," to bring forth a litter. Porkers, young pigs for slaughter. Pork, the flesh of pigs.
Hogg'-ish, filthy (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); hogg'ish-ly, hogg'ish-ness.
Hogg'-et, a boar of the second year, a weaned sheep.
Hogmanay, hōg'mā.nī, December; hogmany-night, New-year's eve. (Old English hālig-māndēth, holy month.)
Hogshead (written hhd.), a Dutch measure of liquids.
Hoiden, hōi'dēn, a boisterous romping girl; hoi'den-ish, rather boisterous and rude [said of girls].
Welsh hoedén, a flirt, a coquette.
Hoist (1 syl.), to raise, to lift; hoist'-ed (R. xxxvi.), hoist'-ing.
"Hoist" (a corruption of hoise), Fr. hausser, to raise; Germ. hissen.
Hoity-toity, hōit'.tē toy'.tē, an exclamation to check over exuberation, or noisy ill-temper.
Höld, a grasp, to cling to.  Old, advanced in age.

Höld, a grasp, the keelson of a ship, to grasp, to support, to forbear; (past) höld, (past part.) höld [höld'en].

Höld'-ing, a tenure, grasping, supporting, &c.

Höld'-er, hold'-fast, höld on, clinging to, continue.

Old English healde[n], past held, past part. healden.

"Höld" (of a ship), Old English höl, a hollow, a cavity.

Höle (1 syl.), an excavation.  Whole, höle, all.

Old English hol, a cavity. "Whole," Old English wag; Greek hölós.

Holiday, höl'i.day, a festival, release from work. Holy-day, höl'ly.day, a day set apart for religious observances.

Both the same compound word: Old English hálig-day.

Holiness, hör'li.ness, sacredness. His Holiness, the title of the pope. (Old English hálignes. See Holy.)

Holland, höl'land, the Netherlands; Hol'lander, a Dutchman; hol'lands, a superior kind of gin; hol'land, fine linen, originally bleached in Holland.

Holla, Holloa, Hollo, Holloo, Hollow, Halo.

Holla or holloa, höl'lah, to shout; holloaed, höl'lard; holloa-ing, höl'lah-ing. (Verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing.)

Hallo, höl'lo', a shout of surprise, a call. (Fr. ho! là, hola!)

Halloo', a shout to incite dogs to run after game.

Hollow, höl'lo', a cavity. (Old English hol.)

Halo, hay'lo, a luminous ring. (French halo; Latin hālo.)

Hollow, höl'lo', a cavity, an outside with no solid inside, false, to excavate; höl'lowed (2 syl.), höl'low-ing; höl'low-ness, höl'low-ly, höl'low-eyed. (See Holla.)

Old Eng. hol, a hollow, v. holde[n], past holede, past part. holed.

Holly, höl'ly, an evergreen. (Old English hólegen or holen.)

Wholly, höle'ly, entirely. (O.E. wág; Gk. hólós, the whole.)

Hole'-ly, full of holes. (Old English hol or hole.

Holy, hö'ly, sacred. (Old English hálig.)

Hol'lyhock, a tall flowering plant. (Old English holihoc.)

Holm, hól'm or häme, the evergreen oak. Häme (1 syl.), abode.

Holm or holme, häme, a river islet: as Stockholm.

"Holm" (the oak), Old English hólegen or holen, holly or holm.  "Holm" (a river island), Old Eng. holm.

"Home," Old Eng. häm.

Holo-, höl'oo- (Gk. prefix), the whole.  (Gk. hólós, the whole.)

Hölo-caust, kórst, a burnt-offering in which the whole was consumed. (Greek hólo- hau stos, the whole burnt.)
Hora-graph, -gräf, a deed written by the hand of the grantor. (Greek hōlo-graphē, wholly [in] writing.)

Holoptychius, hōl'ō.pi.tik's.i.ūs, a genus of fossil fishes. Greek hōlo- plastikē, wholly wrinkled or corrugated.

Holster, hōl'ster, a leather case in a saddle for pistols, holstered, hōl'sterd, provided with holsters.

Old English hōlster, a hiding place.

Holt (Ang. Sax.), a wooded hill, a cover. (In names of places.)

Holy, hō'ly; Wholly, hōle'ly; Hole'ly, Holly, hōl'ly.

Holy, hō'ly, sacred; hōli-ness (Rule xi.), hōl'i-ly; hōl'ly-day, a sacred day. Holiday, hōl'i.day, a festival, a day of release from business; plu. holidays, hōl'.i.dūze.

Holy of Holies, hō'.ly ōv hō'.lit, part of the Jewish temple.

Holy Ghost, hō'.ly gost, the Holy Spirit.

Holyrood, hō'.ly.rood, a crucifix over the rood-screen.

Wholly, hōle'.ly, entirely. (Old Eng. valg; Gk. hōlōs.)

Hole'-ly, full of holes. (Old English hol or hole.)

Holly, hōl'ly, an evergreen. (Old English hōlegn.)

Old English hālīad, hālīanes, hōliadrea, hōli-wreikr.

Homage, hōm'.age (not om'.age), reverence.

Low Latin homagium (hōmo, a man); French hommage (homme).

Home (1 syl.), place of abode; hōme-ly, plain, like home; home-li-ness (Rule xi.), home'-less, home'less-ness; hōme'brēd, reared at home. Home'-made bread (-brēd), bread made at home. Home'-farm, the fields, &c., contiguous to the farm-house. Home'-sick, pining for home; home-sick'-ness. Home'-spūn, plain, spun at home. Home'-brewed, beer made at home.

Home'-ward, hōme'w'rd (adj.), towards home.

Home'-wards (adv.), in a homeward direction.

Old English hām, hāmes, at home: hāmstede, homestead; hāmweard.

Homeopathy, hōm'.e.ōp''a.thi' (no compound of home); home-opathist, hōm'.e.ōp''a.thist, one who practises homeopathy or curing disease on the principle of “like cures like”: as heat to cure a burn, &c. The other system of medicine is Allopathy, āl'.lōp''a.thi' (no compound of all).

Homer, hō'.mer, the great Greek epic poet, his two epics.

Homeric, hō.mē'rik, like Homer.
Homicide (not homicide), hōm'-i.side, a mausleayer; homicidal, hōm'-i.sul'-dül, murderous.
Latin hōmicide, hōmicideum (hōmo, gen. hōmnis).

Hōmo- (Greek prefix), "the same." (Greek hōmōs).

Hōm'o-centric, -sēn'trīk, having the same centre.
Greek hōmōs kōntrōn, the same centre.

Hōm'o-cercal, -ser'-kāl, having, like herrings and cod-fish, both lobes of the tail alike. (Greek kērkōs, a tail.)

Hōm'o-chronous, -krō'-mius (in Bot.), having all the flowerets of one colour. (Greek chrōnma, colour.)

Hōm'o-geneous, -dje'-néös, having a uniform structure; hom'o-ge'neous-ness; hōm'o-geneity, -dje.n'é.ə.ti, uniformity of structure throughout.
Greek hōmōgēnēs, hōmōs gēnōs, the same kind throughout.

Homologous, hōm'-ō.lō.gūs, parts constructed on one uniform plan, but each having its proper function; homological, hōm'-ō.lō.gūl'-i.kāl; homol'o.gical.ly.
Greek hōmōs lūgos, the same analogy.

Hōm'o-nym, -nīm, a word like another in sound, but not in meaning. (Greek ònūma for ònōma, a name.)

Hōm'o-petalous, -pēl'-ē.ā.lūs, having all the petals formed alike. (Greek pētalōn, a petal, a leaf.)

Hōne (1 syl.), a whetstone. One, wūn, a unit.
Old English hōn, a whetstone. "One," Old English ēn or ēn.

Honest, ōn'-ēst, morally upright. (One of the three simple words which drop the h: as heir = air, hour = our, R. xlvi.)
Honest-ly, ōn'-ēst.ə.lē; honest-y, ōn'-ēst.i.
(This loss of the h is due to French influence.)
French honnête, now honnète; Latin hōnestas, hōnestus.

Honey, hūn'-i.ʒ, a syrup collected by bees; honeyed, hūn'-i.d (not honied), sweet: as honeyed words; honey-comb, hūn'-i. hōme, the waxen cells in which bees deposit their honey; honey-combed, hūn'-i. kōmd, punctured all over; hon'ey-moon, the first month after marriage; honey-suckle, hūn'-i. sūk'-l, a climbing plant; honey-wort, hūn'-i.würt.
Old English hunig, hunig-comb, honey-comb; honig sucle.

Honorarium, plu. honoraria, hōn'-o.rair'-rā.əm, hōn'-o.rair'-rə.h, a douceur to a professional man.
Latin hōnōrārum, a gift to a consul when he came into his province, the "footing" paid on entering office.

Honour, ōn'-ō.r, rank, rectitude, to respect; honoured, ōn'-ōrd; honour-ing, ōn'-ōr.əŋ; hon'our-er (Rule xlviii.)

Honorary, ōn'-ō.rə.ry, without emolument. Onerary, ōn'- eye.ə.ry, fitted for burdens.

Honourable, ōn'-ō.rə.ə.l, deserving hōnour (Rule xlvi.)
The Right Honourable, title given to cabinet ministers, to earls and countesses, viscounts and viscountesses, barons and baronesses, chief justices, lord mayors, &c.

The Honourable, title of address given to puisne judges, to the younger sons of earls, and to all the sons of viscounts and barons.

Honourably, ôn'ér.á'b'ly; honourable-ness (Rule xlviii.)

Honours, ôn'ér.z, university final-examination distinction.

Honours of war, the privilege granted to the vanquished of marching past their conquerors with military insignia.

Debt of honour, one incurred by gambling, betting, &c., not recoverable in courts of law.

French honneur! ! honorer, honorable; Latin hónor, hónorábitis.

Hood (to rhyme with good not with food), a covering for the head, to cover the head with a hood; hood-ed (Rule xxxvi.), hood-ing, hood-less.

Hood’-wink, to bamboozle; hood’-winked (2 syl.), hood-ing’-ing. (Old English hód, “wink” wínc[ťán]).

-hood (a native suffix), state, condition: as man-hood, priest-hood, child-hood. (Old English hád, state, degree, sex.)

Hoof, plu. hoofs (R. xxxix.), the horny part of the feet of horses, oxen, sheep, &c.; hoofed (1 syl.), having hoofs. (O. E. hóf.)

Hook, a crome, to catch on a hook; hooked (1 syl.), hook-ing. By hook or by crook, by one way or another, by fair means or by foul. (Old English hóc, hácith, hooked.)

(N.B. -ook [except in hookah] is always short: as book, brook, cook, crook, hook, look, nook, rook, shoot, look.)

Hookah, hoo’kah, a Turkish pipe.

Hoop, a band for casks. Whoop, a war cry. Hópe, Ope.

Hooped (1 syl.), furnished with hoops; hoop’-er.

(N.B. Unlike -ook, -oop is always long: as coop, droop, hoop, loop, poop, scoop, sloop, sloop, swoop, troop, whoop.)

Hooping-cough, hoo’ping-kóf (should be whooping-cough), a cough with a whoop. (Old English wóp or hwédp.)

Hoot, a shout of contempt, to shout in contempt; hoot-ed (R. xxxvi.), hoot-ing, hoot-er. (Welsh huwhu; a hoot.)

(N.B. Except in “foot” and “soot,” -oot is always long: as boot, coot, hoot, most, root, shoot. “Foot” rhymes with put, and “soot” is uncertain, being a rhyme to foot, cut, or hoot.)

Hóp, a jump on one leg, a dance, a plant, to jump on one leg; hóp, (past) hopped, hópt; hópp-ing (Rule i.), hópp-er.

Old English hoppen[án], to hop or dance; hopper, a hopper.

“Hóp” (plant), German hopfen; French houblon.

Hópe (1 syl.), expectation, to expect. Ope (1 syl.), to open. Hóp.
Hopped (1 syl.), hop'-ing (Rule xix.), hōp'-er (of hope).
Hōpped, hōpt; hōpp'-ing (Rule i.), hōpp'-er (of hōp).
Hōpe'-ful (Rule viii.), hōpe'ful-ly, hōpe'ful-ness.
Old English hōpa, hope, v. hōp'ian; past hōpode, past part. hōpod.
"Hop," Old English hōp'ian; past hōpode, past part. hōpod.
Hopper, hōp'·pər, the funnel through which grain passes into a mill; so called from its hopping or jerking motion.
Horal, hōr'·al, pertaining to hours. Oral, or'·al, by word of mouth.
Hor'·ary, noting the hours. Orr'·ery, an astronomical toy.
Latin hōra, the hour, hōr'·arius; Greek hōra.
"Oral," French oral (Latin à, gen. óris, the mouth).
"Orrery," so called in compliment to C. Boyle, earl of Orrery.
Horde, hōrd, a migratory tribe. Hoard, hōrd, a store.
French horde; German hōrde. "Hoard," Old English hōrd, a store.
Horehound, a plant. (Old English hāla-hūtnig, hares' honey.)
Horse, hōrs, a hard substance projecting from the head of some animals, a musical instrument. Awn, the beard of grass.
Hōrn'-y; horned, hōrnd or hōr'-nēd; horned-ly, hōr'-nēd.ły; horned-ness, hōr'-nēd.ness; hōrn'-er, a worker in horn; horn'-ing (said of the moon). Awn'-ing, a cloth cover to protect goods from the sun or weather.
Old Eng. hōrn, hornleas, hornless. Awn, Lat. āvena; Gk. advē.
Hornblende, hōrn.błend, a mineral. (German hornblende).
Hornet, a large wasp-like insect. (Old English hyr'·net.)
Horology, hōr'·o.lo.gy, science of clock-making.
Horologist, hōr'·o.lo.jist; horological, hōr'·o.lo.lj'.i.ķil; horologe, hōr'·o.lo.dje, a time-piece; horography.
Latin hōrologium, hōrōlogicus; Greek hōra logoi.
Horoscopy, hōr'·o.skōpe (in Astrol.), the aspect of the planets at a given time [as at the birth of a child]; horoscopy, hōr'·o.skōp, divination by horoscopes.
French horoscope; Latin hōrosōcīpus, hōrosōcīpium; Greek hōra skō-pēn, to investigate the hour (of nativity).
Horrible, hōr'·ri·bl (not hōr'·ribl b'l), dreadful; horribly, hōr'·ri·bly (not hōr'·ribl b'lj); hōr'·rible-ness.
Horrid, hōr'·rid, disagreeable; horrid-ly, horrid-ness.
Horri'·fy, hōr'·fi, to strike with horror; horrifies, hōr'·fi·fe; horri'·fied, -f'ed; horri'·fy-ing; horrific, hōr'·rif.ik.
Horror, hör'vr (not, horrour), dread; horrors, a disease so called; horror-stricken, hör'vr-strik'n.
Latin horríbilitis, horridus, horríficus, horror (horrère, to set the hair on end); French horrible.

Hors de combat (Fr.), hör' d' höne.bah', disabled in battle.

Horse, hörse, a quadruped. Hoarse, hörse, rough in voice.

Horse, the animal irrespective of sex: Stallion, stål'y'n, the sire. Mare (1 syl.), the dam. Foal, the infant offspring irrespective of sex. Colt, Filly, male and female foal.

Horsed, hörst, mounted on horseback; horse-shoe, -shoo.

Horse-laugh, hörce lähf, a loud vulgar laugh; horse-leech.

Horse-whip, hörce.whip, a whip for a horse, to flog; horse-whipped, -whipt; horse-whipp-ing (Rule 1, "whip" is treated as a monosyllable), horse-whipp-er.

Horsemanship, hörce.man.ship, the art of a horseman.

The Horse Guards, (sing. "One of the Horse Guards" or "In the Horse Guards,") cavalry household troops.

"Stallion," Welsh ystalwyn. "Mare," Old English mare or myre.

Horsec-iradish, hörce.rad'-ish (not 'red'-ish), a pungent root.

The word horse enters into the name of several plants, as horse-bramble, horse-cucumber, horse-mint, horse-nettle, horse-chestnut. The Greek hippos; a horse, is used also for anything large and coarse, as hippo-k-ránnos, a horse-cliff, i.e., very steep, &c.; so in Latin hippo-lapathum, hippo-marathrum, wild fennel; hippo-selSnum, horse or wild parsley. Compare also horse-play, horse-laugh, horse-faced (having a large coarse face), &c.

Horticulture, hör't.kül'-thür, the art of gardening; horticul-tural, hör't.kül'-thür'al; horticulturist, hör't.kül'-thür.i.st, one skilled in garden plants.

Fr. horticulture, horticultural. (Lat. hortús culture, garden culture.)

Hortus siccus, hör't.sik'sık's, a collection of plants dried and sorted. (Lat. hortus seccus, a garden of dried plants.)

Hosanna, hö.zän',ah, an "Io triumphē!" to Jehovah.

A Hebrew word, meaning "Save, I beseech thee!" but it is now used to signify "Praise!" "Glory be given!"

Hose, hözé. Hoes, höze, plu. of hoe, a tool. Ówes, Ówz (v. owe).

Hose, hözé, stockings. (The plu. hosen, hö'zen, not in use.)

Hosier, hö'zher, a dealer in stockings. Osier, ö'zher, willow.

Hosiery, hö'zi.rey, stocking-goods.

Hospice, hös'pis, an Alpine convent where travellers are entertained. (Fr. hospice; Lat. hospíatum, an inn; hospes, a host.)

Hospitable, hös'pi.tă.bəl (not, hös'pi't.ə.bəl'; hospitably, hös'pi-túbly (not hós'pit'úbly); hospitable-ness, hós'pit.túb-ness (not hós'pit'.úb'ness).

Hospitality, plu., hospitalities, hós'pit.túl'.i.tiz.
Hospital, hós'pit.túl, an infirmary.
Latin hospitalis, hospitalitas (hospes, a guest); French hospitalité.

Hospodar, hós'.pó.dár (not hospidar), a vassal prince of Turkey.

Host, fem. höst'ess, the entertainer of guests. Host, an army, a multitude; the consecrated wafer in the papal church.

Hostel, hós'.tél, now hôtel; hostelry, hós'.tél.rý, an inn.

French hôte, now hôte, a landlord. "Host" (an army), Latin hostes.

"Host," Low Latin hostiaria; French hostel, now hôtel.

Hostage, hós'.stä.ge, a pledge. (French ostage, now otage.)

Hostile, hós'tíl, inimical; hostile'ly, hós'til.ly (adv.)

Hostility, plu. hostilities, hós'tíl'.i.tiz, enmity.

French hostile, hostilité; Latin hostillis, hostilitas.

Hostler, hós'.ler (not os'.ler), the man who takes charge of the horses at an inn. (Fr. hosteler, now hôtelier, the innkeeper.)

Hót, warm; (comp.) hótt'-er, (super.) hótt'-est (Rule i.)

Hótt'er, warmer. Otter, öl'tér, an animal. Otter [of roses].

Hót'-ly, hót'-ness, hót'-house; hot-pressed, hót'-prést.

Heat, heat; heat'-ed, heat'ing, heat'er. Eat, &c.

Old Eng. hót; heat, hot; v. hótian, past hótado, past part. hótad.

Hotch-potch, a medley. (See Hodge-podge.)

Hotel, höt.tél', a large inn. (French hôtel, for hostel.)

Hottentot, höt'.tén.tót, a native of South Africa.

Hough, hök (not hüf), the ham, to cut the sinews of the ham.

(Of the words in -ough, three are pronounced -ök, viz., hough, lough, and shough, two -off, five -uff, three -ow, and three -ew, Rule lxv.); houghed, hökt; hough'-ing.

Old English hö or hō, the hough or ham. The word should be pronounced "hōh," slightly guttural, not hök.

Hound, a dog that hunts by scent and gives tongue upon trail or drag. Grayhound (not greyhound), is a dog which will attack a gray or badger without being taught so to do.

"Grayhounds" do not use their nose in coursing, like hounds, but their eyes. Harrier, a dog for hares (Old Eng. harra, a hare). Terrier, a fox-dog, &c., so called because it will follow game even to the burrow or earth-hole. (Fr. terre; Lat. tērra; Old Eng. hānd, a hound.)

Hour, our, sixty minutes of time. Our, belonging to us.

Hour-ly, our'.ty; hour'-hand, hour'-glass.

(This is one of the three simple words in which, from Fr. influence, the h is wholly dropped: as in heir, honour, and honest, Rule xlviii.)

French heure = cur; Latin hōra; Greek hōra.
Errors of Speech

Houri, hoo'ry, plu. houris [or houeries], hoo'riz, a nymph of paradise in Mahometan mythology. (Arabic hurî.)

House, (noun) houce, (verb) hōwz (Rule ii.)
House, hōuce, a dwelling-place; house-less, house-hold; house-holds, floor for domestic use; house-maid; house-lee-k, house-keeper; house-breaker, bûaker; house-wife; house-wifery, hūz'ifr'y, economical domestic management. Huzzy, a house-trull.

House, hōoz, to place under the shelter of a house; housed, hōwzd; house-ing, hōwz'-ing.

House, (noun) hōllee, (verb) hōwz (Rule ii.)

House, hōllee, a dwelling-place; house-less, house-hold; house-holds, floor for domestic use; house-maid; house-lee-k, house-keeper; house-breaker, bûaker; house-wife; house-wifery, hūz'ifr'y, economical domestic management. Huzzy, a house-trull.

Housing, hōw'zing, depositing in a house, a cloth laid over a saddle; housings, hōw'z'ingz, horse-trappings.

Hove (1 syl.), as hove in sight, appeared in sight, past tense of heave in seaman’s language. (O. E. hōf, past t. of hebban.)

Howel, hō'el (not hūv'el), a mean hut; howelled hōv'-zd; howelled (Rule iii.)

Hovel, hōv'-el (not hūv'el), a mean hut; hovelled hōv'-zd; hovelled (Rule iii.)

Hove (1 syl.), as hove in sight, appeared in sight, past tense of heave in seaman’s language. (O. E. hōf, past t. of hebban.)

Hove (1 syl.), as hove in sight, appeared in sight, past tense of heave in seaman’s language. (O. E. hōf, past t. of hebban.)

How (to rhyme with nōw, not with grōw), in what manner?

How do you do? i.e., how do you du? (Old Eng. dug[an] valēre = “Quamodo vāles,” how do you thrive?)

Howbeit, hōw.be'it, nevertheless; however, how so; howsoever, hōw'.so.e'vr (not hōw'.sım.e'vr)

Housing, hōw'zing, depositing in a house, a cloth laid over a saddle; housings, hōw'z'ingz, horse-trappings.

Hove (1 syl.), as hove in sight, appeared in sight, past tense of heave in seaman’s language. (O. E. hōf, past t. of hebban.)

Hovel, hōv'-el (not hūv'el), a mean hut; hovelled hōv'-zd; hovelled (Rule iii.)

Hover, hōv'.ër (not hūv'.ër), to flutter over, to hang about; hovered, hōv'.er'd; hov'er-ing, hov'er-ing-ly, hov'er-er. (Followed by over or about.)

Hovser, hōv'ser, a Dutch fishing-boat. Hookah, hoo'kāh, a Turkish pipe. Hooker (to rhyme with looker.)

Hōwl (to rhyme with قول, not with bōwl) Owl, a bird.

Hōwl, the cry of a dog, to cry like a dog; howled (1 syl.), howl'-ing, howl'-er. (German heuleu; Greek hulaö.)
How'let, the grey or brown owl. Ow'let, a young owl.

Hoy! (interjection), stop! a small Dutch vessel.

"Hoy" (a boat), Dutch huy; French heu.

Hoya, hoy'ya, a hothouse wall-flower called the wax-plant, from its waxy appearance. It is of the order Asclepiadaceae.

Hubbub, hü'b'bub, uproar. (Welsh uban, a hubub, v. ubain.)

Huckaback, hük'a.bæk (not huckerbeck), toweling.

Hucklebone, hük'l.bön, the hip bone. (Germ. höcker, a knob.)

Huckster, hük's'ter, a pedlar; huck's'tering. (-ster, Rule li.)

Archaic hüche, a hutch or chest, with -ster.

The German word is höhe, a higgler, v. höhnen.

Huddle, hud'd'd, to crowd promiscuously (followed by tother); huddled, hud'd'dld; huddling, hud'd'ling; hudd'ler.

German hudler, a huddler; v. hulden, to bungle, to muddle.

Hudibrastic, hu'.di.bnis'trik, in the style of Hudibras.

Hue, Hew, Hugh, all hue. You, Yew, Ewe, U, all u.

Hue, hue, tint; hued, heud, tinted; hue'-less.

Hew, to cut; hewed, heud; hew'-ing; hew'-er.

Hugh, hue, a proper name. (Dutch for "high").

You, nom. and obj. plu. of thou. (Old English cow.)

Yew, a tree. (Old English iu. The ash-tree is cow.)

Ewe, the dam of sheep. (Old English cowv.)

"Hue," həw or həw. "Hew," heu[an], past heow, past part. hæven.

 Huff, plu. huffs, həfs (Rule xxxix.), ill-temper, to offend, to fine your adversary at "draughts" for omitting to take a "man"; huffed, həf; huff'-ing, huff'-er; to take huff, ... offence.

Span. chufar, to mock or bully; O. Eng. hweapon, to make an exchange.

Hüg, an embrace, to embrace; hugged, hāgd; hugg'-ing (Rule i.), hugg'-er. (Welsh ug, that is enveloping.)

Hüge (1 syl.), vast; huge'-ly, huge'-ness. Hugh, a man’s name.

Old Eng. hou, a mountain; Germ. hügel, Hugo; Dutch hugh, lofty.

Hüg'ger-müg'ger, in disorder; In hugger-mugger, clandestinely.

Danish hug, to squat; smug, privately, clandestinely ("smuggle").

Huguenot, heu'gwen.ot, protestants of France; hu'guenot-ism.

French huguenot, huguenotisme; German hugenot.

Hulk, the body of a ship, anything unwieldy, to loiter about; hulk'-y, heavy, stupid; hulk'-ing, unwieldy, loitering about; The Hulks, old ships once used for convicts.

Old English hule, a cabin; hules, a light ship.

Hull, the body of a ship, a husk, to shell, to throw; hulled, huld; hull'-ing. (Old Eng. hule, a husk; hule, a ship.)

Hullabaloo, hül'lah ba.ləu', an uproar, a confused noise.

French hurtlu-berlu (hurtle berlu, to yell [like] a crazy man).
Hum, a murmur, a falsehood, to deceive, to sing with the mouth shut, to murmur; hummed, humd; humm-ing (Rule i.), humm-er; humm-drum, without animation.

Humble-bee, the buzzing (not the lowly) bee.

German hummen, to hum, to buzz; hümmel-bee, the humble-bee. "Hum" (a falsehood, to deceive), a contraction of humbug, q.v.

Human, you man (R. xlviii.), pertaining to mankind; hu man-ly.

Human, you main (R. xlviii.), compassionate; humane-ly.

Humanise, you mä-nize, to civilise; hu man is ed (3 syl.), hu manising (Rule xix.), hu man is-er (Rule xxxi.).

Humanity, you main ty, benevolence, kindness.

Humanity Studies, -str'd'iz or Humanities, you main riot, classic literature (lit' era humanio'res), so called in opposition to divinity (or lit' era divine). French humain, humanitë, humaniser; Latin humanitas, humanus.

Humble, hüm b'l (not um b'l), lowly, to debase; humbled, hüm b led; humbling, humbling-ly, humble-ness; hum bly (not üm b'lyness, üm b ly). Humble-bee, v. Hum.

Humility, you mil ity, lowliness of mind, modesty.

Humiliate, you mil it ate, to degrade; humil'iat ed, humil'i at ing (Rule xix.), humil'i at or (Rule xxxvii.).

Humiliation, you mil it a shan, an abasing.

French humble, humilité, humilation; Latin humilitas, humiliiatio, humiliiator, v. humilitare, humilitas.

Humble, hüm blz for Umsöes, üm b tz, the heart, liver, &c., of deer, the huntsman's perquisite; hum' ble-pie for umble-pie, pie made of umbles.

To eat um ble-pie, to be humiliated (to be sent from the master's " venison " to the servant's " pie of umbles.

Latin umbilicus, the insides of anything, the navel.

Humbug, hüm b'g, a pretender, a deceiver, to hoax; hum bugged (3 syl.), hum bugg ing, hum bugg er. (This word is treated as if bug were a separate word, Rule i.)

Irish um b g = um bug, soft copper, worthless money, a mixture of bad copper and brass, issued by James I, whence um bug is the opposite of sterling or genuine (F. Crossley).

Humeral, you mér ról; Humoral, you mör ról.

Humeral, pertaining to the hüm' réus or shoulder;

Humoral, pertaining to the humours or fluids of the body.

Humerus, you mér rús, from the shoulder to the elbow;

Humourous, you mör rús, full of humour or fun.

"Humeral," Fr. huméral, humérus; Lat. hümérus; Gk. émos.

"Humoral," French humeur; Latin humor, moisture.

Humic, you mik [acid], obtained from humus or mould,

Latin humus, mould, moist earth.
Humid, you'mid, moist; humid'ity, dampness.
French humide, humidité; Latin húmidus, húmidadas.
Humil'iate, you.mül'iate; humil'iat-ed (R. xxxxi.), humil'iat-ing
(R. xix.); humiliation, you.mül'-i.a.shün; humil'ity.
Humite, you'mite, a precious stone of a brown-red tint.
So named after Sir Abraham Hume. (-ite, a stone, Greek lithos.)
Hummock, hüm'mök, a hillock, a mass of floating ice.
Hammock, hüm'mök; a swing bed [on board ship].
"Hummock," hump' with dim. -ock; Latin umbo; Greek ambon.
"Hammock," Indian hamacas, nets for sleeping on.
Hummocks, Persian sweating-baths. (Persian ham'man.)
Humour, you'mür, moisture, temper, fun, to indulge; humoured, you'merd; hu'mour-ing, hu'mour-er;
Hu'mour-less, hu'mour-ist; hu'mour-some, you'mor'süm.
(-some, Old English "full of.")
Hu'mourous, jocose. Hu'merus, from shoulder to elbow.
Hu'mourous-ly, you'mor'sis.ly; hu'mourous-ness.
Latin humor, moisture. According to an old theory, there are four principal "humours" in the body, on the due proportion and combi-

Hump, a protuberance [on the back]; hump'back, one with a protuberance on the back; hump-backed, hüm'p-bákts.
Latin umbo; Greek ambon. (In Danish humpe is "to hobble.")
Humus, you'mus, black mould. (Latin hümus, mould.)
Hünch, a hump, to elbow; hunched (1 syl.), hunching; hunchbacked, bökt. Hunk or hunch [of bread], a large slice.
Lat. vęcus, bowed; Gk. oıkos, bulk, mass (v. oıkos, to enlarge).
Hundred, hün'dréd (not hün'derd), ten-times-ten; hun'dredth, hun'dred-fold; hun'dred-weight, -wait (marked cwt., that is, c for centum, a hundred, and wt.), 112-lbs.
Old English hunđred, hunđrath, hunđ, hunđfold, hunđtig.
Hühng, suspended; hanged, hünđ [on a gallows]; hung-beef, beef salted and dried. (O. E. hang[ian], hangede, hanged.)
Hunger, hün'ger, desire for food; to crave food; hun'gered, hün'ger'géd; hun'ger-ing, hün'ger-ing.
Hun'gry, feeling a craving for food; hun'gri-ly (Rule xi.)
Old English hungu, v. hung[ian], hungrig, hungry.
Hünk, a sordid man, a niggard. (Welsh onc.)
Hűnt, a chase, to chase; hűnt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), hűnt'-ing.
Hűnt'-er, fem. huntress, one who hunts; hűnt'-er, a horse for hunting; huntsman (not huntman).
Hunting, Coursing. “Hunting,” the pursuit of game by horses and a pack of hounds. “Coursing,” searching for hares and rabbits chiefly on foot with two hounds held in leash and slipped together.

Old English huntna, a hunting; huntnere, v. huntnian, past huntnode, past part. huntnod, huntnod, huntnung, a hunting.

Hurdle, hur’.d’il, twigs twisted into a frame for a fence, to fence with hurdles; hurdled, hur’-d’ld; hurdling.

Old English hyrde (hyrde, a guard, a guardian, a keeper).

Hurdy-gurdy, a stringed inst. worked by a wheel and handle.

"Hurdy," Ital. ordigno, a machine; "gurdy" is guitar with dim.

Hurl, to cast. Earl, ur; an English peer next in rank to a duke.

Hurled (1 syl.), hurl’-ing, hurl’-er. (Old Eng. lweofa.)

Hurly-burly, uproar. (Fr. hurlu-bertlu, yelling of madmen.)

Hurrah! hoo’-räh! a shout of exultation. (German hurrah!)

Hurricane, hū’r-rē’kain, a storm of wind; hurricano, hū’r-ri’-kāh’no, plu. hurricanoes, hūr’ri’kāh’nōzē (Rule xliii.)

This is not a comp. of hurry cane (to carry off the sugar canes rapidly), but the Span. hurricane; Ital. oragano: Fr. ouragan (orange, a storm).

Hurried, hur’ried, hastened and flustered; hurries, hur’ri’z; hurried-ly; hurried-er, hurried-ing, hurried-sku’r-ry.

Welsh gyrta’d, a racing, a forcing on, gyrol, gyru, to hurry on.

Hurst, a copse, a thicket. Erst, formerly.

Hurt, injury, to injure; (past) hurt, (past part.) hurt; hurt’-ing, hurt’-er; hurt’-ful (R. viii.); hurt’ful-ly, hurt’ful-ness.

Old English hurt (Italian urt, a blow, v. urtare, to strike).

Hurtle, hurt’l., to clash together, to jostle; hurtled, hurt’l’d; hurt’ling. (French hurtier, to run foul of each other.)

Hurtle-berry, the whortle-berry. (Germ. heidelbeere, heath-berry.)

Hūs’band, fem. wife (1 syl.); (verb) to manage frugally; hūs’band-ed (R. xxxvi.), hūs’band-ing, hūs’band-man, a tiller of the soil. Hus’band-less, hūs’band-less.

Husbandry, hūs’-bān’drē, tillage, domestic economy.

Old English hūs’bonda, not the house band, but the house proprietor or house holder. "Wife," Old English wif.

Hūsh, to silence; hushed (1 syl.), hush’-ing. (German husch.)

Hūsk, a sheale; hūsk’-y; full of husks, hoarse; hūsk’-ly (Rule xi.), hūsk’-nēss. (German hülse, a sheath, a husk.)

Hussar, hoo’zər, one of the hussars or light cavalry. Huzzle!

"Hussar," Fr. hussard, from the Hungarian housz-ar (20-pay), because to form this corps the Hungarian nobles equipped at their own expense one man out of every twenty families.

Hussif, hūs’-if, a case to contain needles, cotton, &c. (house-wife).

Hussite, hūs’-ītē, a follower of John Huss of Bohemia.
AND OF SPELLING.

Hussy, hūz'.zy, a slattern. (Old English hūsa, a maidservant.)
Hustings, hūs'.tings, a booth where votes are taken, a platform.
Old English hūsting, a hustling, a place of council.
Hustle, hūs'-sl', to push together, to elbow out; hustled, hūs'-.s'ld; hustling, hūs'.ling; hustler, hūs'.ler.
Dutch hutselen, to shake about; Danish husere, to act violently.
Huswife, hūs'.wife, a thrifty female house manager.
Hussif, hūz'.if, a needle and cotton case. (O. E. hūs wif.)
Hut, a mean cottage, a temporary dwelling, to place in huts;
hutt'-ed (Rule i.), hutt'-ing. (Germ. hutte; Fr. hutte.)
Hūtch, a rabbit coop, a slight wooden chest. (French huché.)
Husza, hooz'za', a shout of joy or triumph, to shout with joy; huzza-ing, huzzaed' (2 syll.) Hässar', a horse soldier.
Hyacinth, hī'as'inth, a bulbous flowering plant; hyacinthine, hī'.as'inth'ine, purple, like a hyacinth.
French hyacinthe; Latin hyacinthus; Greek ὕακινθος.
According to Grecian fable, Hyacinthos was a Laconian youth greatly beloved by Apollo, but accidentally killed by him with a discus.
Hyads or Hyades, hī'.adz or hī'.ā.deez, a cluster of seven stars, the rising of which (with the sun) was supposed to indicate rain. (Lat. hyaides; Gk. ὑαίδες, v. ὑδό, to rain.)
Hybrid, hī'.brid, a mongrel, [applied to words] compounded of different languages as bi-monthly; hybridous, hī'.brīd.ūs; hybridism, hī'.brīd.izm.
Hybridise, hī'.brīd.ize; hybridised (3 syll.), hy'bridis-ing (Rule xix.), hybridisation, hī'.brīd.i.izay'.shūn.
French hybrid; Latin hybridus (Greek ἱυτρίδος wanton violence).
Hydatids or hydatides, hūd'.ātīdz or hū'.dā'ī.deez, small vessels of water (supposed to be animals) found in dropsical patients, the simplest kind of intestinal worms.
Greek ὑδάταις, plu. ὑδάτηδες; vesicles of water (hudūr, water).
Hydr- before vowels, hydro- before consonants (Latin form of the Greek prefix hudr, hudro-); hudūr, water.
Hydra, hī'.druh, a water-snake. (Lat. hydra; Gk. ὑδρα.)
Hydr-acid, hūd'rās'.id, an acid containing hy'drogen as an essential element. (Germ hudr-.; Latin acīdus.)
(This hybrid ought not to be tolerated, "aquacid" would be good Lat.)
Hydrangea, hūd'rāng'ē.ah (the e is to soften the g), a shrub.
Greek hudūr aggos, a water pitcher, which the seed-vessel resembles.
Hydrant, hūd'.rānt, a pipe for the discharge of water.
Greek hudratōn, to sprinkle water, to irrigate.
Hydr-ate, hūd'.rēte, a compound containing water in chemical combination: thus, slaked lime is a "hydrate of lime."
Hydraulics, hūd'.raw'.ltks (R. lx.), the science which treats of water in motion, the laws by which the motion is regulated, the machines employed, and the effects produced. The science which treats of water at rest is Hydrostatics.

Hydraulic, hi.drai.v.ik (adj.): as hydraulic-press.

Greek hudraulís or hudraultikós (hudor audós, a water pipe).

Hy'dro- before consonants; same as hy'dr-. (Gk. hudor, water.)

Hy'dro-cephalus, -séf'.a.lūs, water in the head; hy'dro-cephalic, -séf'.āl'ik. (Gk. hudor kēphalē, water in the head.)

Hy'dro-dynamics, -di.nūm'iks, the science which treats of water as a force; hy'dro-dynam'ic (adj.)

Greek hudór dunántús, water as a force.

Hydro-gen, hi'.dro.djēn, the gas most prevalent in water.

(Water consists of two volumes of hydr. to one of oxy.)

Greek hudor gennao, to generate water.

Hydropathy, hi.drōp'.a.rhe, the water cure; hydropathist, hi.drōp'.a.rhist; hydropathic, hi.dro.päth'.āk.

Greek hudor pathos, water (the cure of) disease.

Hydro-phobia, hi.dro.fō'.bū.ah, canine madness.

Greek hudor phōbōs, water-dread, the dread of water.

Hydro-statics, -stāt'.iks (R. lxii.), the science which treats of water at rest: its weight, pressure, specific gravity, &c. (See Hydraulics, Hydrodynamics.)

Greek hudor stātikós, water static or at rest.

Hydro-zoa, hi.dro.zō'.ah, living creatures in water.

Greek hudor zōa, living animals in water.

Hyena or hyëna, hi.z'.na.h, a wild beast of the dog family.

Latin hyena; Greek kuatina (kus; a hog, so called from its mane).

Hygiene, hi'.dje.en (not hi'.djeen), health, how to preserve and how to restore it; hygienic, hi'.dje.ēn'ik; hygieist, hi'.dje.ēst. Hygieia, hi'.dje.ēh, the goddess of health.

Greek hugýs, health; hygénous, pertaining to health.

Hy'gro- (Greek prefix, moist). Greek hugros, moisture.

Hygrometer, hi.grōm'.ē.tēr, an instrument for measuring the quantity of moisture in the air; hygrometry, hi.grōm'.ē.try; hygrometric, hi.grōm.mēt'.āk; hygrometrical, hi.grōm.mēt'.ri.kāl; hygrometrical-ly.

Greek hugýs métron, the measure of moisture.

Hygrology, hi.grōl'.o.gy, treats of the phenomena due to the moisture of the atmosphere, their causes and effects.

Greek hugros lógos, a treatise on [atmospheric] moisture.

Hygro-scope, hi'.gro.skōpe, an instrument to show the dryness and moisture of the air; hygro-scopic, -skōp'.āk.

Greek hugros skopē, to look at the moisture.

Hygro-statics, hi'.gro-stāt'.iks (Rule lxii.), the science of comparing degrees of moisture.

Greek hugros stātikós, moisture static or at rest.
Hylæosaurus, hi'lé.ó.sau'sus, a fossil wood-lizard.

Greek hulé sauros; wood-lizard. It should be Hylesaurus or Hyllosaurus. Dr. Mantell's compound is not a good one.

Hylism, hi'li.izm, the theory which regards matter as the principle of evil. (Greek hulé, wood, raw material; matter.)

Hyl-o-theism, hi'lo.thee'izm, the belief that matter is God; hyl-o-theist, hi'lo.thee'ist, one who believes in hylotheism. Greek hulé theós -ism, the doctrine that matter is God.

Hyl-o-zoism, -zo'izm, the belief that life is only material organism; hyl-o-zoist, -zo'ist. (Greek hulé zóé, matter [is] life.)

Hymen, hi'men, the god of wedlock; hymeneal, hi'me.nee'ál. Greek Hu'men, Hymen; huménátios: Latin Hymen.

Hymenoptera, hi'men.óp'te.rré.rah, an order of insects with four membranous wings, like bees, wasps, &c.; hymenopter, one of the above order; hymenopterous, hi'men.óp'te.rús. Greek humén pteron, membrane wing.

Hymn, hi'm, a sacred lyric. Him, obj. sing. of He.

Hymnal, hi'm'nal; a collection of hymns; hymnol'ogy.

Hymn, to praise in hymns; hymned, hi'm'd; hymn-ing, hi'm'ing; hymnic, hi'm'nik. (The y points to Greek.)

O. E. hymen; Lat. hymnus; Gk. humén, v. huméo, to praise in song.

Hyoscynamus, hi'ós.sí'a.mú's, henbane. (Old Eng. henne-belle.)

Latin hyoscýmum (Greek kús kiúmós, hog-bean). Bane is a corruption of Old English belene, belune, or belone.

Hyper-, hi'pé-r- (Gk. prefix); over, above, beyond. (Gk. huper.)

Hy'per-aesthesia, -és.thee'si.ah, morbid sensibility.

Greek huper aisthésis, over sensibility.

Hyperbola, hi'pé.r.bo.la.la. Hyperbola, hi'pé.r.bo.lé:

Hyper-bola, one of the conic sections or curves;

Hyper-bole, hi'per.bo.le (not hi'per.bole), exaggeration.

Hyper-boloid, hi'pé.r.bo.lóid, a geometrical solid formed by the revolution of an hyperbola about its axis.

Hyperbolic, hi'per.bó'lìk; hyperbolic-al, hi'per.bó.lí.kál, exaggerated; hyperbol'ical-ly.

Hyperbolism, hi'pé.r.bó.líz.m; hyperbol'ist;

Hyperbolise, hi'per.bó.líz.e (Rule xxxi.); hyperbol'ised (4 syl.), hyperbolis-ing (Rule xix.).

Latin hyperbòlé, hyperbòlicus (Greek hyperbòlló, to overshooot). Hyper-borean, hi'per-bó'réré.áni, far north.

Latin hyperbòréus; Greek hyperbòréos, in the extreme north, [where the “hyperboreans” were supposed to live].

Hy'per-critical, -krit'i.kál, over critical; hy'per-crit'ic;

Hy'per-critic-ism, hi'per-krit'i.iszm, petty criticism;
Errors of Speech

Hypo-critical, híp′ o.krí t′i kúl, deceitful; hypo-critical-ly. French hypercritique; Greek kuper kritikés. (See Hypocrisy.)

Hypex-dulia, híp′ e.r du′ li.ah (better -du′ li.ah), a special service to the Virgin Mary.

Greek kuper douλía or douλion, extreme servitude. “Dulia,” in the Roman Catholic Church is an inferior adoration paid to saints, in contradistinction to “latria,” the worship paid to deity only.

Hyphen, hí′ fén, a short line to join together two parts of a word: a mess-mate; hyphenated, hí′ fénd, joined by a hyphen.

Lat. hyphen, “under one,” both belonging to one word.

Hypo-, híp′ o- (Gk. hypó), under, less in quantity. (Gk. hypó.)

Hypo-chondria, híp′ o-kőn′dri.ah, the spaces each side of the epigastric region; hyp′ o-chondriac; hypo-chondriasis, híp′ o-kőn′dri.ah.á.štis, melancholy; hyp′ o-chondriac, -kőn′dri.ah, one affected with melancholy; hyp′ o-chondriacal, -kőn′dri.ah.á.kúl; hyp′ o-chondriacal-ly; hypo-chondriacism, híp′ o-kőn′dri.ah.á.štis, the disease of melancholy.

Greek hypó chōndrós, under the cartilage or spaces each side of the epigastric region, supposed to be the seat of melancholy.

Hypocrisy, plu. hypocrisies, híp′ o-pók′rí-sís, dissimulation; hypocrite, híp′ o-krí t, a dissembler.

Hyp′ o-crit′ical, deceitful. Hy′ per-crit′ical, over critical; hyp′ o-crit′ical-ly, deceitfully. Hy′ per-crit′ical-ly.

Latin hypocrísis, hypocríta; Greek hypó-krisis, hypó-krités, hypó-kritikós, hypó-kritikós (v. hypó-krínōnai).

Hy′ po-gastric, -gás′tri.k, pertaining to the hypogastrium, híp′ o-gás′tri.üm, or paunch.

Greek hypó-gastrión, the paunch (hypo gastér, under the abdo′men).

Hy′ po-phosphite, fós′ fit, a compound of hypo-phosphorous acid with a base (-ite [in Chem.] a salt formed from an acid ending in -ous not -ic); hy′ po-phosphorous, fós′ fó-rús [acid], an acid which contains less oxygen than “phosphorous acid,” and phosphorous, fós′ fó-rús [acid] contains less than phosphoric acid (-ic [in Chem.] denotes the highest possible quantity of oxygen).

Greek hypó, an inferior quantity, with phosphite, &c.

Hypostasis, híp′ os′tás.sís, distinct personality combined with perfect union (applied to the Trinity); hypostatic, híp′ o-stá′t.i k, individual but united; hypostatical, híp′ o-stá′t.i kúl; hy′ postat′ical-ly.

Latin hypostásis: Greek hupo-stásis, subsistence, reality, essence (v. hypósthista, to subsist or remain when everything else is gone).

Hy′ po-sulphate, -sůl′ fate, a compound of hypo-sulphuric acid with a base; hy′ po-sulphite, -sůl′ fit, a compound of hypo-sulphurous acid with a base; hy′ po-sulphuric, -sůl′ fú′rík [acid], an acid containing less oxygen than sulphuric acid, but more than sulphurous acid; hy′ posulphurous, -sulfurous, a compound containing less oxygen than sulphurous acid.

Greek hypo-, inferior in quantity. -ate denotes a salt formed by the union of an acid in -ic with a base. -ite denotes a salt formed by the union of an acid in -ous with a base. -ic, the highest state of oxygenation; -ous, an inferior state.

Hypotenuse, hypotenuse, the longest side of a right-angled triangle, or the side opposite the right-angle. (This word ought to be hypotenuse.)

Latin hypotenusa (Greek hypoteina, to subextend). French hypoténuse; Spanish hipotenusa.

Hypothecate, hypothecate, to assign in pledge as security; hypothecated (Rule xxxvi); hypothecating (Rule xix), hypothecation, hypothèque, a lien on moveables.

Hypothesis, hypothesis, a supposition, something assumed for argument's sake; hypothetic, hypothetical; hypothetically.

Latin hypothesis; Greek hypothècesis, hypothècesis.

Hyson, hyson, best green tea. (Chin. hi-tshan, first gathering.)

Hyssop, hyssop, a plant. (Latin hyssopus; Greek hússópos.)

Hysteric, hysteric, mother-fits; hysteria; hysterical, hystericially.

Latin hystericus; Greek hústérós, the womb.

Hythe, hythe, a staith, a landing place. (Old English hyth.)

I, Eye, i. High, hi. Hie, hi.

I, pron., (poss.) mine, (obj.) me. Plu. we, ours, us.

My, our, are possessive pronouns.

Anglo-Saxon le, gen. min, dat. me, acc. me.

Plu. we, gen. aser, dat. as, acc. us.

(II will be seen that our "obj." is the "clative" case, not the acc.

Errors of Speech.—I for Me.

Let you and I set them a better example. (Let me.)

Let's you and I go. (That is, let us, viz., you and me go.)

Between you and I, there is not a word of truth in it.

For you and I it has no sort of interest. (For me.)

They can do nothing without you and I to help them.

This is for you and I. (For you and for me.)

It has long puzzled a good many, you and I among the number.

Me for I.

Who's there? It is only me. Only you and me are left.

Better you than me. Sooner you than me.

It is quite certain that neither you nor me had any hand in it.

Eye, the organ of vision. (Old English ége or ége.)

High, hi, elevated. (Old English heath.)

Hie, hi, away, to make haste: (Old Eng. hig[an], to hie.)
-ia (Lat.), things pertaining to: rega'lia, insignia.

-ia (in Bot.), denotes a class or order: as monogyn'ia.

-ia (Greek suffix, -iades, a patronymic), belonging to, about:
Luciad, Dunciad, Baviad, Rosciad, Henriade (Fr.), &c.

Ibidem, i.by'dên (Lat.), in the same place; ibid., y'bid.

Ibis, i'bi'ss, an African bird. (Latin ibis; Greek ibis.)

-ible (Latin i-bil-is) adj., liable to, able to, full of, fit for: visible, fit for laughter; mixible, able to be mixed.
(Words from Latin verbs not of the first conj. add -ible; those from the first conj., with all native words, and those coined by ourselves, add -able. For exceptions see Rule xxiii.)

Iberis, i'ber'is, the candy-tuft (from Iberia, Spain).
(The -e- is long in Latin and Greek ięp.la; tęppos.)

-ic (Latin -i-cus), adj., pertaining to: civ'-ic, gigantic.

-ic, -ics (Greek i-kle.a), added to names of sciences.
(Except in the five words borrowed from the French, [arithmetic, logique, magique, musique, and rhetorique], the plural "-ics" is employed, as it ought always to be: optiques, &c.)

-ic (Greek i-klos) in Pathology, "in an excited state": tetan'ic.
(In Chem.) an acid containing the largest possible quantity of oxygen: as nitric [acid].

-ical (Latin -i-cal-is), adj. "pertaining to": astron-o-mical.

Ice (1 syl.), frozen water, to cover with ice or sugar; iced (1 syl.); ic-ing, ice'-ing (Rule xix.); icy, i'xy; i'ci-ly, i'ci-ness; icicle, i'skl, a pendant of ice; ice'berg, a mountain of ice; ice'-flow, -flo, a small mass of floating ice; ice'-house, a place for storing ice; ice-pack, broken and drifting ice again united into an irregular mass.

Old English is or es, tsigel, an icicle.

Icelander, ice'lân'dér, a native of Iceland; Ice'lan'dic.

Ich dien, ce'k deen', "I serve." The motto of the Prince of Wales. (This motto was first adopted by the Black Prince, 1346.)

Ichneumon, i'k.nëw'môn, a sort of weasel (common in Egypt).

Ichneumonidae, i'k.nëw'môn'ë.i'dee (-ide, a group or family).

Ichneumonidan, i'k.nëw'môn'ë.i.dän, pertaining to the ... Latin ichneumon (Greek ichnos, a footprint, so called because it follows the footsteps of the crocodile).

Ichor, i'kor, the blood of gods, the pus of ulcers; ichorous, i'kör'ës, like ichor. (Greek ichôr.)

Ich'thyo-, i'k.'thë-o- (Greek prefix), fish; ichthus, fish.

Ichthyography, i'k.'the.o'gr.a'fij, treatise on fishes. Greek ichthus graphê, a description of fishes.

Ichthyology, i'k.'the.o'lo'gij, a history of fishes. Greek ichthus logos, a treatise on fishes.
AND OF SPELLING.

Ichthyo-graphist, ικ.θη.ο.γ'ρα.φιστ; ichthyo-logist.
Ichthyo-lite, ικ.θη.λ.ι.τε, a fossil fish.
          Greek ichthus lithos, a fish [of] stone.
Ichthyo-saurus, ικ.θη.σ.α.ου.ρες, the fish-lizard.
          Greek ichthus sauros, the fish-lizard or saurian.
Ichthiosis, ικ.θη.ο.ι.σ.ης, a thickening of the skin.
          Greek ichthus, [scaly like] a fish.
Icicle, ιςικιλε.; Iciness, Icibly. (See Ice.)
Icono-, i.κον'.ο.- (Greek prefix), image; eikôn, an image.
Icono-clast, i.κον'.ο.κλαςτ, a breaker of idols or images.
Icono-clasm, i.κον'.ο.κλαζμ. (Greek klastês, klaô, to break.)
Icosahedron, ικ.ο.σ.α.υ.δ.ρων, having twenty equal sides; icosahedral, ικ.ο.σ.α.υ.δ.ραλ. (Gk. eikôsi, twenty, hêdra.)
Icy, ιςι, full of ice, cold as ice, consisting of ice. (See Ice.)
I'd, i'd, contraction of I would.
id., contraction of idem (Latin), the same.
-id (Lat. -id-us), nouns, something subject to an action: acid.
-id (Gk. -idés, patronymic), "of the race," "about": Æne'id.
-id (Gk. -idos), nouns. (In Chem.) preceded by -o-, and indicating "likeness," "resemblance to": alkaloid, spheroid.
          (We pronounce -oid in these compounds as one syllable, but the French have preserved the proper separation, and we should have done the same: alkâлоид and спhероïd would be far better than алькалоид and сфереоид.)
-idē (Gk. -idés, patronymic), a group or family: cani'dē.
-ide (1 syl., Gk. -idos), like; (in Chem.) bases, combinations of oxygen not forming acids: oxide, chloride.
Idea, i.de'e.α, a mental conception; idē'a-less; ideal, i.de'e.αl; ide'al-ly; ide'al-ism, i.de'e.α.λιςμ; idealise (Rule xxi.), i.de'e.α.λίζε; ide'alised (4 syl.); ide'al-is-ing (Rule xix.); ide'al-is-er; idealisation, i.de'e.α.λ.i.ζαίς.σιν; ideality, i.de'e.α.λ.ις.τη, enthusiasm from ideas; ide'alist. The ide'al, the imaginary standard of perfection. Beau ide'al (Fr.), bō i.de'e.αl, imaginary standard of the beautiful.
Ideology (q.v.) Ideography (q.v.)
Latin idea; Greek ideā (from eidō, to see).
Identical, i.dē'n'.ti.κι, the self-same; iden'tical-ly;
Identify, identifies, i.dē'n'.ti.κιζε; identified, i.dē'n'.ti.κιδε;
iden'tify-ing (Rule xix.);
Identification, i.dē'n'.ti.κι.ζαίς.σιν; iden'tity.
French identique, identification, identifie, identité (Latin idem).
Iideography, ι'd.ε.ο.γ'ρα.φις, the representation of ideas by symbols; ideographic, ι'd.ε.ο.γραφ'ικ; ide'ograph'ical-ly.
Greek ideā graphē, idea picturing or drawings.
Errors of Speech.

Ideology, id'e.ol'e.o.jy, mental philosophy; ideologist, id'e.ol'.i.o.o.jst; ideological, id'e.ol'.i.o.o.jd'j'.i.käl; ideological-ly.

Greek id'da logos, treatise about ideas.

Ides (1 syl), between the calends and the nones in the Roman calendar. (Latin idus [Etruscan iduare, to divide]).

-ides, -i'deez (Greek -ides, patronymic), a “family,” a “group.”

Idio-, id'i.o- (Greek prefix), individual, special.

Idio-crasy, id'i.o.äk'räs'y. Idiosyncrasy, -sin'kräs'y.

Idiocrasy, personal speciality. Idio-synchrony, a craze.

Idio-cratic, -krät'ik; idio-syncratical, -sin'krät'.i.käl.

Greek iddös kräsis, personal or individual craze.

Greek iddös sun kräsis, an individual with a craze.

Idiom, id'i.o.m, that construction which characterises and individualises a language; idiomatic, id'i.o.mät'.ik; idiomat'ical, idiomat'ical-ly.

(1Ve want the word “idiotism” (Latin) for idiomatic phrases.)

Latin idiomä; Greek idioms sun kräsis, personal or individual craze.

Idio-synchrony, idio-synchronies, id'i.o.äk'räs'iz, a craze or morbid notion held by an individual; idio-syncratical, id'i.o.äk'ri.täl'.ik.

Greek iddös sun kräsis, a craze peculiar to an individual.

Idiot, id'i.o-t, one of imbecile mind; idiotic, id'i.o.tik'.ik; idiotical-ly, id'i.o.ti.käl-ly; idiotism, id'i.o.tizm; idiotcy, id'i.o.täs'y.

Greek iddötes, a private man, one who has no part in public affairs: hence ignorant, incompetent.

Idle, i'dl, doing nothing, lazy. Idol, i'döl, an image adored.

Idling, i'dling, frittering time away; idler; idly.

Idleness, i'dl'äs'ness. (The older spelling is idol.)

Old English idol, idell, idellæ, idly; idelnes, idleness.

Idol, i'döl, an image adored. Idle, i'dl, lazy (see above.)

Idolater, fem. idolatress, i'döl'a.tër, i'döl'a.trës; idolatrous, i'döl'a.träs; idolatrous-ly.

Idolise, i'döl'iz, to dote on; idolised (3 syl), i'dolis-ing (Rule xix.); idolis'er, one who “idolises” another.

Latin idolatra, idolatriz, idolatria, idolum; Greek eidolon, eidolio-tatreo, idol-worship; eidolo-latréa.
Idyll (double i), i'.dil, a pastoral poem; idill-ic, i'.dil'ik.
Latin idyllum; Greek eidyllion (eidos with dim.)

If, provided that, supposing that. “If” for whether is not agreeable to modern usage, hence the following sentences are not to be imitated:—

Uncertain, if [whether] by augury or chance (Dryden).
Noah sent forth a dove... to see if the waters were abated. Gen. viii. 8.
(This use of if is according to Latin idiom, “visum si domi sis,” “sint eam ambulare si foris, si intus volentes” (Plaut. Capt. 1, 2, 6)

-if (Latin suffix -io-us) nouns, “one who is”: as plaintiff.

Ig-, the prep. in. There are ten examples of this prep. before no-, five have ig-, and five in- for prefix:—

Ignoble, ignominious, ignoration, ignorance;
In-nocent, in-nocuous, in-nominate, in-novate, in-noxious.

Igneous, ig'.né.ús (Rule lxvi.), containing fire, resulting from the action of fire: as igneous rocks. (Latin ignéus, burning.)

Ignis fatuus, plu. ignes fatui (Lat.), ig'.nis ját'.u.ús, plu. ig'.neez fá'.u.ú, Will o’ the whisp, Jack o’ lantern.

Ignite, ig.nité', to set on fire; ignit’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ignit’-ing (Rule xix.), ignit’-er, ignit’-ible (not -able.)

Ignition, ig.nish’ón, the act of setting on fire. Combustion, com.bús’tehн, the act of burning after ignition.

Igneous, ig’.né.ús (R. lxvi.), containing fire. (See Igneus.)

Ignoble, ignóble, the contrary of noble; ignóble-ness, ignóbly.
Latin ignóbilis (ig[n]óbilis), in- negative; French ignoble.

Ignominious, ig’.no.min’i.ús (R. lxvi.), the contrary of renowned;
ignominious-ly, ignominious-ness; ignominy.

Latin ignomínia (ig[n]ínía), in- negative; French ignominie.

Ignora’mus, plu. ignora’mus-es (not ignorami, because “ignoramus” is not a Latin noun, but a verb, and means “we are ignorant”), one wholly unversed in a matter.

Ignorant, ig’.nor’ánt, the contrary of knowing; The ig’no-rant; ig’norant-ly. Ignorance, ig’.nor’áncе.

Ignore, ig’.nor’, the contrary of acknowledge; ignored’
(2 syll.), ignórf-’ing (Rule xix.), ignórf-’er.
French ignorant, ignorance, ignorer; Latin ignorantia, v. ignóro (ignóranus, knowing), in- negative.

Iguana, ig’.u.ah’nah, a genus of the lizard family.

Iguanidae, ig’.u.ah’nah’i.dée, the family of the above genus
(-ide, Greek -idds, a group, a family, &c.)

Iguanodon, ig’.u.ah’nah’i.dón, a fossil reptile with teeth like the iguana.

Cuvier calls iguana a “St. Domingo word,” higuana=ig.o.ah’nah.
Bontius says it is Japanese, leguan, the monitor.

(If it will be observed that every word, except the last, beginning with “ig-” is from the Latin.)
-il, -ile (Latin -il-is), adj., "capable of," "belonging to": civ-il, the manners belonging to a citizen; host-ile, &c.

II- for in-, before words beginning with l: as il-legal, il-liberal; il-luminate, il-lustrate.

Iliad, ili-ad, Homer's epic about the siege of IIium (Troy).

Greek Illas, gen. Illades (Ilías potésis, a poem about Ilías gé, the land of IIium); Latin Illas malórum, a world of troubles.

Ilk. In Scotch it is put after a man's name when the place of his estate is of the same name as his own: as Balfour of that ilk; that is, Balfour of Balfour.

Anglo-Saxon aisle, each [alike].

Ill, Hill. I'll, ile. Isle, ile. Aisle, ile.

Ill, not well. Hill, an elevation of earth: Ill'-ness.

I'll, ile, a contraction of I will. Isle, ile, an island.

Aisle, ile, the wing of a church. (French aile, a wing.)

Ill retains the double l in all its compounds: as ill-nature, ill-timed, ill-temper, ill-will, &c.

IlIapse, ili-lëps'. Elapse, e-laps'.

Illapse, a gradual slipping of one thing into another.

Elapse, to glide away, to transpire.

IlIapsed' (2 syl.), illëps'-ing (R. xix.). Elapsed, elapsing.

Latin ilIapsus (ii-inIapsus, sliding into something).

Latin elapsus (e-exIapsus, sliding out or away).

Illative, ili-lat-tiv, inferential; il-lative-ly, by inference.

"Illative" is Latin ili-lat-tivus, to slide, whence it will be seen that infer-ential and illat-ive are parts of the same verb.

IllegaI, il-ë-gal, the contrary of legal; ille-gal-ly; illegalise, il-ë-gäl-i-se; illë-galised (4 syl.), illë-gal-ing (Rule xix.)

Illegality, ili-lë-gäl'lt-ty.

French illégal, illégalité; Latin illìgenìalis, against the law.

Illegible, ili-lédge'yl-'l, not legible; ilegibly; illegibility, ili-lédge'i-b'l-'ty, the state of being illegible.

Latin illìgenìlitìa, not easy-to-be-read (légö, to read).

Illegitimate, ili-le.ájít'-á-mate, not legitimate, base-born; illegít'mate-ly; illegít'mate-ness; illegít'mate-ly, proved to be base-born; illegít'mate-ing (Rule xix.);

Illegitimacy, plu. illegitimacies, ili-le.ájít'-á-má't-siz.

Latin illegitimus (ii-inIegítimus, not legitimate).

IlIliberal, ili-lib'ér-al, the contrary of liberal; illI'er-al-ly;

IlIliberality, ili-lib'ér-al'-lt-ty, meanness.

Latin illìberátilis, illìberátilis (ii-inIéberátilis, not liberal).

IIIlicit, ili-lës'it, unlawful; illic-it-ly, illíc-it-ness.

Latin illicitus (ii-inIëcitus, not allowed-by-law).
ILLIMITABLE, illimin'table, not having a limit; illimit'able-ness, illimit'ably. Unlim'ited, not limited (Rule lxxii.)
French illimitable (Latin illin'limitare, not to limit).
ILLITERATE, illi'ter-ate, the contrary of literate; illi'ter-ate-ly, illi'ter-ate-ness; i'lliteracy, illi'ter-acy, ignorance.
Unlettered, un'illet'terd, not able to read (Rule lxxii.)
Latin illin'literatus, not skilled-in-letters.
ILLNESS, ill'ness, sickness, suffering from ill-health. (See ill.)
ILLOGICAL, ill'o'gical, not logical; illog'i cal-ly, illog'i cal-ness.
French illi'gical (Latin illi'gicus, not logical).
ILLITERATE, illi'terate, not able to read; illi'ter-a'tion, illi'ter-a'tive, illi'ter-at'or, illi'ter-a'tive-ly, illiteracy; illiter'ated, illiter'a'ted-ly.
Latin illin'literatus, not skilled-in-letters.
ILLUDE, illu'de. ELude, elude'. Delude, de.lude'.
Illude, to deceive the sight;
Delude, to deceive the mind or imagination;
Elude, to escape by artifice.
Illu'd-ed (Rule xxxvi.), illu'd-ing (Rule xix.)
ILLUSION, ill'u'sion. DELUSION, del'u'sion:
Illusion, ocular deception; Delusion, mental deception;
Elusion, evasion, an escape by artifice.
Illustrate, ill'u'strate. Illustrative, ill'u'strative.
Illustrate, to explain by pictures; illust'rate, (Rule xxxvi.), illust'rating (Rule xix.), illust'rating-or (Rule xxxvii.), illust'rating, illust'rate, illust'rate-ly.
Illustrative, ill'u's.trative.
Illustrious, ill'u's.trious, celebrated; illust'rious-ly, illust'rous-ness; illustra'tory, ill'u's.tratory.
Latin illus'io, illus'io (illu'sio, a playing on [one to deceive his sight]).
(ll will be observed that every word, except "ill" and its compounds, beginning with "ill" is from the Latin, "il-") representing "in-.")
The Latin prep. "in," prefixed to words beginning with the labials b, m, p: as im-bibe, im-mortal, im-perfect.

(If a word is not found under "Im," look under "Em.")

-im, the Chaldaic plu. suffix: Cherub-im, Seraph-im.

I'm, 'm, contraction of I am.

Image, im'age, an idol, a statue, a personal likeness; (verb) im'aged (2 syll.), im'age-ing; imagery, im'age-ry.

Imitate, im'a-tate, to copy; im'a-tated (R. xxxvi.), im'a-tating (Rule xix.); imitation, im'a-tation; im'a-tator, v. im'a-tation; im'a-tative, im'a-tative-ly, im'a-tative-ness; imitable, im'a-ta'ble (not im'itable); imitableness, im'a-ta'b'l-ness. Neg. Im-in'a-ta'te, &c.

Latin ins'titutus, ins'titu, ins'titution, v. ins'titute (imita'to).
Immaculate, im'māk'ūlate, without spot, unstained; immac'ulate-ly, immac'ulate-ness. Immaculate Conception, the dogma that the Virgin Mary was born without sin.

Immanation, im'ma.nay'ū shūn (better Emanation), flowing out from. (Latin manāre, to flow.)

Immanuel, im'mān'ū.ū In the Bible Emman'uel (Isa. vii. 14, compare Matt. i. 23), Jesus, the Messiah.

Immaterial, im'mā.tel'ū, not material; immate'rial-ly.

Immateriality, im'mā.tel'i.ty; immate'rial-ist.

Immaterialism, im'mā.tel'i.zm; immate'rialised, im'mā.tel'i.ized; immate'rial-ness.

Immature; im'ma.tu.'l, not mature; immature'-ly, immature'-ness, immature' (3 syl.); immatu'rity, unripeness.

Unmatured, un'ma.tu'r'd, not ripe (Rule lxxii.)

Immeasurable, im'mē.zh'ūr.ū dūl, not measurable; immeas'ur'able-ness, immeas'ur'ably. (See Immense.)

Unmeasured, un'mē.zh.'ord, not measured (Rule lxxii.)

Immediate, im'mē.de'ált, (not im'mee'jīt), without delay; imme'diate-ly, directly; imme'diate-ness.

Latin immediate; French immédiat (Latin in médius, without a medium, whence "direct," directly or without delay).

Immemorial, im'mē.mōr.ū dūl, beyond the reach of memory; immemorial-ly. Immemorable, im'mē.mōr'.ū dūl. Lat. tim'mā'mōr'ta, beyond the reach of memory, -memorable.lis.

Immense, im'mēns'ē, not to be measured; immense'-ly.

Immensity, im'mēns'i.ty, unbounded extent.

Immensurable, im'mēns'ūr.ū dūl. Immeasurable, q.v.

Latin im'mensus, not to be measured, -mensurābilis.

Immerge, im'mer.ge', to plunge under [water]. Emerge', to rise out of... Immerged (2 syl.), immerg'-ing. Emerged, &c.

Immerse, im'mers'e, to plunge into [water], to be deeply engaged in business; immersed' (2 syl.), immers'-ing (R. xix.)

Immersion, im'mer.shūn, the act of plunging into [water]; Emersion, ē.mēr'shūn, the act of rising out of [water].

Immersible, im'mer.sī.b'l (not -able). Emersible.

Unmerged, un'mer ged', not sunk (Rule lxxii.)

Latin [ex]mergo, supine mersum, to plunge into [water].

Latin [ex]mergo, supine mersum, to rise out of [water].
Immethodical, im.mēθ. thō’d’r. khāl, not methodical; immethodical-ly. (Latin im[in]mēθō’dicus*, not-methodical.)

*Immigrate, im.mē. grā.t.* Emigrate, ēn.mē. grā.t.*

To emigrate, to leave one's country for residence elsewhere.

To immigrate, to enter a new country to settle there.

*Im*migrāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), *im*migrāt-ing, *im*migrant.

Latin im[in]migráre, to migrate into [another country]; *ēx*migrāre, to migrate out of [your own country].

*Im*migrant, im.mē.nent, threatening. *Im’manent, inherent.

Eminent, ēm.mē.nent, illustrious. (Lat. c-minens, hanging out.)

Latin im[in]minens, gen. minentiis, [hanging] threatening over; im[in]manens, gen. manentiis, remaining or abiding in.

*Im*mixable, im.mīx’.ā.b’l, not mixable. (Rule xxiii.)

Unmixed, un.mīx’t, not mixed (Rule lxxii.).

Latin im[in]mīscere, supine mīustum, not to mix.

*Immobilite, im.mō. bi’ll’’ty, steadfastness, permanency.

*Immobile, im.mō. bēd’ (not im.mō. bi’ll’). French.

Latin im[in]mobilitis, not movable; mobilitas; French immobilité.

*Immoderate, im.mō’d.ē. rāt, not moderate; *immoderate-ly.

*Immolation, im.mōd.ē. rā’t’’shōn.

Unmoderate, un.mō’d’.ē. rā.t’èd, not moderated (Rule lxxii.).

Latin im[in]moderatus, not moderate; immoderatus.

*Immoral, m.7I1or’rāl, not moral; *immoral-ly, indecorously.

*Immorality, plu. immoralities, im.mō’rā’li.tiz.

Latin im[in]morālis, not moral; -morālitās; French immoral.

*Immortelle (French), ēn.mōr’. tēll’, a wreath of “everlasting flowers” to decorate the grave of a person deceased.

Latin im[in]morātītās, not mortal; immortalitas; French immortalité, immortalisation, immortaliser.

Immovable (not immovable, R. xx.), im.mōo’. vā’b’l, not movable; immovable-ness, immovably, fixedly, steadfastly.
AND OF SPELLING.

Immovables, 'im.moo'.vâ.'b'lz, fixtures, houses and lands.

Immobility, 'im.moo.bil'.ty. (See Immobility.)

Unmoved, un.mooov'd, not moved (Rule lxxii.)

"Immovable" (Rule xxiii.), Latin im[in]movere, not to be moved.

Immunity, plu. immunities, 'im.mî.ô'.lîz, exemption [from toll].

Immure, 'im.mûr'.e', to enclose in a wall; immured' (2 syl.), immûr'-ing, Rule xix. (Latin im[in]murus, in a wall.)

Immutable, 'im.mû.ta.bl', not mutable; immû'table-ness, immû'tably. Immutability, 'im.mû.ta.bîl'.ty.
Latin im'[mît]ôblis, not mutable; immû'tabîlitas. Fr. immuable.

(N.B.—All but three words beginning with "im" [before m] are Latin, and in two-thirds of the examples "im" is negative.)

Imp, a scion, a child; now it means "a little devil," to eke a hive by an extra piece; imped, 'îm.t'; imp' -ing.
Old Eng. implan] (to eke, to graft), past impode; past part. impod.

Impact, 'îm.pak'.kt, collision; impact'-ed, driven close together; impaction, 'îm.pak'.shi'in, the act of striking against.

Impinge, 'îm.pîn'.g, to strike against something; impinged' (2 syl.), imping'-ing (Rule xix.), imping'-ent (not -ant.)
Latin impactus, impactio, v. im[in]pingère [pangère], supine pactum, to strike on or against; French impact ("impaction" is not French).

Impair, 'îm.pair', to injure; impaired' (2 syl.), impair'-ing, impair' -er. (Should be empair, Fr. empirer, Lat. pejor.)

Impale, 'îm.pâl'.e (better ampale, q.v.) (Fr. empaier, empalement.)

Impalpable, 'îm.pal'.pa.b'l, not palpable; impal'pably. Impalpability, 'îm.pal'.pa.b'îl'.ty, intangibility.
Fr. impalpable, impalpabilité (Lat. im[in] palpère, not to stroke).

Impannel, 'îm.pân'.nel, to enter the names of a jury in a panel or piece of parchment; impanneled (3 syl.), impan'nel-ing, impan'nel'er (Rule iii., -êl).
Latin im[in]pannus, [written] on "pannus" or cloth (Greek pêndos.)

Impart', to communicate; impart' -ed (Rule xxxvi.), impart'-ing, impart' -.er, impart' -ible (not-able, R. xxii.), impartibility.
Latîn im[in]partire, to divide or part to (partitio, pars).

Impartial, 'îm.par'.shûl, not partial or biassed; impartial-ly.
Impartiality, 'îm.par'.shûl'.ty, fair dealing, justice.
French impartial, impartialité (Lat. im[in]pars, not a part).

Impass'able, not to be passed. Impass'ible, not subject to pain; impass'able-ness, state of being impassable; impass'ably.

Impassible, impassible-ness; impasse, 'îm.pâss'.e; impass'ive-ly; impass'ive-ness, insusceptibility of pain; impassibility, 'îm.pâss'.îl'.ty, state of being impassive.

"Impassable," French impassabilité, impassable (im passer).
"Impassible," Latîn impassîbilis, impassibîlitas (im patior).
Impassion, "im.pās'ēn, to affect with passion; impassioned, "im.pās'ēn'd; impassion-ing, "im.pās'ēn'ing; impassion-able, "im.pās'ēn'abl; impassionably, "im.pās'ēn'ablēly. French impassioner, im-intensive (Latin passio, passion).

Impatient, "im.pāt'yēnt, not patient; impatient-ly;
Impatience, "im.pāt'yēn'cē, want of patience.
Latin impatien(tia, impatien(tis, not patient).

Impeach, "im.peēch, to charge with crime; impeached’ (2 syl), impeach-’ing, impeach’-er, impeach’-able, -ment.
Low Latin impetitio, impetēre; Law Latin impectēre. It is not from the French empêcher, to hinder, but im-[in]pēlerē, to seek for legal redress against a person; (petitio, the charge of a plaintiff).

Impeccable, "im.pek'ēbl, not peccable; impeccably;
Impeccability, "im.pek'ēbl'ēti, impeccancy.
Latin im-[in]peccabilitas, not peccable, impexcabiltas.

Impede, "im.pēd', to hinder; impēd’-ed (R. xxxvi.), impēd’-ing (R. xix.); impediment, "im.pēd'mēnt; impediment’-al.
Latin impedimentum, impēdīo (im-pedes, [clogs] on the feet). The idea is taken from the custom of fastening "trices or hair round the legs of chickens to keep them from roaming.

Impel’, to urge forward; impelled, "im.pēld'; impell’-ing (Rule iv.), impell’-er, impell’ent. Impel, better impell.
Impulsive, "im.pūl'sīv; impuls’ive-ly, impuls’ive-ness;
Impulse, "im.pūl'sē; impulsion, "im.pūl'sēn.

Impatientia, im-patientia, impatience (Latin impatience).

Impenetrable, "im.pen'ētru.b'l, not penetrable; impenetrably.
Impenetrability, "im.pen'ētru.bTl'ēti, obduracy.

Impenetrable, "im.pēn'ē.trā.b'l, not penetrable (Rule lxxii.)
Latin impenetrabilis, not penetrable.

Impenitent, "im.pēn'ē.tēnt, not penitent; impen’itent-ly.

Impenitence, "im.pēn'ē.tēn'sē; impenitency, "im.pēn'ē.tēn'sēn.

Latin impenitens, gen. impenitentis; Fr. impénitent, impénitence.

Imperative, "im.pēr'ē.tīv, absolutely indispensable; imperative-ly; imperative, "im.pēr'ē.tēs. (See Imperial.)

Impenetrable, "im.pēn'ē.trā.b'l, not perceivable (Rule xxii.), imperceptionable, imperception-ible, imperception-ibly.

Unperceived, "un.per'ē.cēvd', not perceived (Rule lxxii.)

Fr. imperceptible, imperceptibilité (Lat. im-[in]percipio, not to perceive).
AND OF SPELLING.

Imperfect, im.per'.fect, not perfect; im.perfect-ly, im.perfect-ness; im.perfection, im.perfect'.shün.

Lat. im[perfect]us, not perfected; imperfectio; Fr. imperfection.

Imperial, im.pee'.ri.äl, royal, supreme; im.per'ial-ly.

Imperialism, im.pee'.ri.alism; im.per'ial-ist.

Imperative, im.per'.ativa'ive; im.per'ative-ly (g.v.)

Imperious, im.pee'.ri.ous, dictatorial, arrogant; im.per'ious-ly; im.per'ious-ness, arrogance, haughtiness.

Emperor, fem. empress, em.preor, em.press. (We owe the irregularity of "emperor" to the French.)

Latin im.per'ialis, im.per'iosus, imperatorial, im.per'atrix, v. imperare, to command; French empereur l imperatrice.

Impenal (only one r), im.per'r'il, to endanger; imper'illed (3 syll.), imperilling, R. iii., -EL. (Would be better with one I.)

Fr. préil, with im - to verbalise the word (Lat. préiculum, danger).

Imperious, im.pee'.ri.ous. (See above, Imperial.)

Imperishable, im.per'ish.äb'l, not perishable (Rule xxiii.), imperishable-ness, imperishably, imperishability.

Unperished, un.per'ished, not perished (Rule lxxii.).

Fr. im.per'issāble, imperissabilité (Lat. im[perire], not to perish.)

Impermeable, im.per'.me'able, not permeable; impermeably, impermeable-ness; impermeability, im.per'.me'ability.

Unpermeated, un.per'.me.ta'ted, not permeated (Rule lxxii.).

Latin im[pereribus], not permeable (per meas, to go through).

Impersonal Verbs, verbs with only the 3rd per. sing. of each tense. (These verbs have it for their nom. case: as It rains, it snows, it irks me, it behoves you); impersonal-ly.

Latin im[peronatis]; French impersonel (wrong).

Impersonate, im.per'.sonate, to personify; impersonated-ed impersonation, im.per'.sonation.

Lat. persona, a person, an actor (with im - to verbalise the word).

Latin im[pericinus], gen. imperientis, not pertaining to (pericîere, to pertain to; per téncu, to hold throughout).

Imperturbable, im.per'.tur'bal', not to be disquieted; imperturbably; imperturbability, im.per'.tur'ability.

Imperturbation, im.per'.tur'bar.shün, calmness.

Unperturbed, un.per'.tur'bal', not perturbed (Rule lxxii.).

Fr. imperurbable, imperurbabilité; Lat. imperurbatus (im[perurbare], not thoroughly disturbed).

Impervious, im.per'.vi.ous, not penetrable; impervious-ly, impervious-ness, impassibility.

Latin imperius (im[in], not, per via, a way through).
Impetuous, im.pē't.ū.ūs, hasty, violent; impet'uous-ly, impet'uous-ness; impetuousity, im.pē't.ū.ūs'-tē'-ti-ty.

Impetus, im.pē't.tūs, impulsive force.

Latin impētuōsus, impētus; French impétuosité.

Impiety, plu. impieties, im.pē't.ē.īz, profanity; impious, im.pē'ū.ūs, profane (unpious, not pious); im'pious-ly, im'pious-ness.

Latin impītās, im[n]pīus, not pious; French impidité.

Impinge, im.pīngē', to strike against; impugned (2 syll.), imping'-ing (Rule xix.), imping'-ent. Impact* (q.v.)*.

Latin impingo, supine impactum (im[n]pango, to strike against).

Impious, im'pī.ū.ūs; im'pious-ly. (See Impiety.)

Implacable, im.plāk'ā.b'l (not im.plāk'.ī.b'l), not to be appeased; implācable-ness, implācably; implācability.

Latin implācābilis, implācabilitas (im[n]plācēre).

Implant', to plant in [the mind]; implant'ed (Rule xxxvi.), implant'-ing; implantation, im'.plānt.ā' shūn.

Implead, im.plī'ed, to prosecute; implead'ed (Rule xxxvi.), implead'-ing; implead'er, one who prosecutes.

Implead is to state the plaintiff’s case.

Plead, to state the defence or answer to the charge.

French plaider, to plead (plād; a defendant’s answer).

Implement, im.plē'ment, a tool. (Low Latin implementa, im.plēmenta).

Implicate, im.plī'kā.tē; to involve; im'plicat'ed (Rule xxxvi.), im'plicat'-ing; implicative; implicatively; implication, im'.plī'.kā'.tē-.ś.ūn.

Latin implē'catio, implicāre, to fold in, to involve.

Implicit, im.plī'.ś.ūt or im.plī'.ś.īt, entire, implied; implicit'ly, im.plī'.ś.ī.t'-lē; implicit'ness, im.plī'.ś.ī.t'-nēss.

Latin implēctitūs (im[n]plecto, freq. of plēcto) v.s.

Implore, im.plōr', to entreat; implored (2 syll.), implōr'-ing (Rule xix.), implōr'-ing-ly, implōr'-er.

Latin im[n]plōrare, to beg or entreat for [something].

Imply', to mean, to hint at; IMPLIED (2 syll.), R. xi., imply'-ing.

Latin im[n]plexōra, to fold in.

Impoison (better empoison), im.pō-i'.zōn, to infect with poison; impoisoned, impoison-ing.* (French* empoisonner*).

Impolitic, im.pōl'.tīk, not politic; impol'itic-ly.

French impoli'tique; im[in]politics, not politic.

Impolite, im'.pol'.itē, not polite; impolite'-ness, impolite'-ly.

Latin impolitus; im[in]politics, not polished.

Imponderable, im.pōn'.dē.rā'b'l, without weight.

Imponderables, im.pōn'.dē.rā'b'lz, whatever has no sensible weight, as light, heat, electricity, and magnetism.
Imponderability, im.pö.n.ä.rë.dë.rib.lë.të.ty; impon'derous.
French imponderabilité, imponderable (Latin pondus, weight).
Import, (noun) im'pört; (verb) im.port' (Rule 1.) Export.
Im'port, something brought into a country from abroad;
Ex'port, something sent out of a country into foreign lands;
Import', to bring something into a country from abroad;
Export', to send something out of a country into foreign lands; import'ed, import'ing, import'er, import'able.
Importation, im'pört.ë.tay'.shën. Exportation, -tay'.shën.
Im'port, meaning that which is imported by words.
Import'ant, of great consequence; import'ant-ly;
Importance, im.pö.r'tänсе, serious consequence.
Importune, im'pört.tün, to tease with entreaties; importuned' (3 syl.), importün'ing (Rule xix.), importün'er;
Importunity, plu. importunities, im'pört.tü'nät.iëz;
Importunate, im.pö.r.tu.nä.të, annoyingly urgent;
Importunate-ly; importunate-ness.
Latin importunōn, importūnus (im[importūnus, not quiet).
Imposing, im.pö.zë' (followed by on or upon), to lay [a duty on one], practise [on one's credulity]; imposed' (2 syl.), impō's-ing (R, xix.), impōsing-ly, impō's-able. Im'post.
Imposition, im'pö.zë.shën' on, a fraud. Imposition of hands, the laying on of hands in ordination and confirmation.
Impositor, im.pö.së'tor, a cheat. Imposture, im.pö.së.të.hër, deception. (Lat. impōstitio, impositor, impōstura; Gk. poin.)
Impossible, im.pö.së.stë.lë, not possible; impos'sibly;
Impossibility, plu. impossibilities, im.pö.së.stë.lë.tëz.
Lat. impōssibilitās (im, not; posse, to be able); Fr. impossibilité, &c.
Imposthume, im.pö.stë.më, an abscess. A corrupt spelling of aposteme. (Lat. apostēma, Gk. apostēma, an abscess.)
Imposture, im.pö.së.të.hër. Imposter (see Impose).
Impotent, im.pö.tënt (not im.pö'tënt), not potent or strong;
im'pö'tent-ly. Impotence, im.pö.tëns; im'pö'tency.
Latin impō tens, gen. impō tentia (im, not, potens, able).
Impound', to shut up in a "pound," to keep back; impound'ed
(Rule xxxvi.), impound'ing, impound'er, impound'age
(-age [Latin agère], the act of), the act of impounding.
Old English pyndan, to pound, to shut up.
Impoverish, im.pö.vër.ë.shë, to pauperise; impō'verish-ëd (4 syl.), impō'verish-ing, impō'verish-er, impō'verish-ment.
Italian impovereire, (Latin pauërë, to make poor; pauër).
Impracticable, im.prak’ti.kal, not practicable; impracticability, im.prak’ti.ka.l.ity. (French impracticabilité, impracticable.)

Latin practicus; Greek praktikos, to do; with in [in] negative.

Imprecate, im’prē.kate, to curse; im’precat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), im’precat-ing (Rule xix.), im’precat-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Imprecation, im’prē.kā’shun; im’precatory.

Latin imprecatione (im[in]precation, to pray against a person).

Impregnable, im.prēg’na.b’l, not to be taken by force (R. xxiii.), impregnable; impregnability, im.prēg’na.b’l.ity.

(The “g” in these words is a gross blunder. See below.) Fr. imprenable, imprenabilité; Lat. im[in]prehendē, not to be taken.

Impregnate, im.prēg’ni.tate, to fecundate, to saturate; impregn’nat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), impregn’nat-ing (Rule xix.).

Impregnation, im.prēg.na’shun, the act of impregnating.

French impregnner, impregnation (Latin praegnatio; Greek gennaio).

Imprescriptible, im’pres’krip’tb’l, inalienable, not to be lost on the plea of prescription; imprescriptibly.

Unprescribed, un’prē.skrib’d’, not prescribed (Rule lxxii.)

French imprescriptible; (Latin im[in]prescribo, prescriptio).

Impress, (noun) im’pres; (verb) im.press’ (Rule 1.), a stamp, to stamp; impressed, im.press’ed; impress’-ing, impress’-ible, impressibly; impressibility.

Impress’-ment, the act of forcing men into the army or navy.

Latin impresso, impresso, supine impressum, to imprint.

Imprimis, im.prī.mīs, in the first place. (Latin imprimis.)

Imprint, (noun) im’print, (verb) im.print’ (Rule 1.)

Im’print, name and address of printer attached to books, &c. Imprint’, to fix on the mind, to stamp; imprint’ed (Rule xxxvi.), imprint’-ing. Imprimēatur.

Ital. imprimere, to print; Fr. imprimer; Lat. imprinère, to engrave.

Imprison (better emprison), im.prīz’ōn, to put into prison; imprisoned, im.prīz’ōnd; imprison’-ing, imprison’-er; imprison’-ment, im.prīz’ōn.ment. (Fr. emprisonner, &c.)

Improbable, im.prōb’ā.b’l, not probable; improbably;

Improbability, plu. improbabilities, im.prōb’ā.b’l.ities. Latin im[in]probabilitas, not probable; French improbable, &c.

Impropriety, im.prōb’i.ty, dishonesty. (Latin im[in]prōbitas.)

Improficiency, im’prof’i.sh’n. It, want of proficiency.

Impromptu (French), im.prömp'tu, offhand, without study.

Latin *im*promptus, not drawn out (prömo, to draw out).

Improper, im.pröp'.er, not proper; improper-ly.

Improperty, plu. improprieties, im'.pro.pri'.e.tiz.

Improper Fraction, a fraction in which the denominator or divisor is not greater than the numerator: as $\frac{2}{3}$ or $\frac{3}{4}$.

Latin *im*proprius, not proper, improprietas.

Impropriator, im.prö'.pri.á.tor, a layman who “enjoys” ecclesiastical revenues; impropriation, im.prö'.pri.a''shän, secularisation of church property.

Latin *im*proprius, for [the use of] a private person or layman.

Impropriety, plu. improprieties, im'.pro.pri'.e.tlz. (See Improper.)

Improve, im.proov' (not im.pl'ooev), to ameliorate; improved, im.proov'd; improv-ing (Rule xix.), im.proov'.ing; improv'ing-ly; improv'er, im.proov'.er; improv-able, im.proov'.vü.b'l (R. xx.); improv'able-ness; improvably, im.proov'.vü.bly; improvability, im.proov'.va.bil''š.ty.

Improvement, im.proov'.ment, amendment.

(Of the sixteen words in “-ove,” only two (move, prove) are pronounced -ooev; four (dove, glove, love, shove) are pronounced -uooev, and the rest are pronounced -ooev, Rule lxxi.)

Latin pro-evo, to carry or travel forwards.

Imprudent, im.pröw'.dent, not prudent; improv'ident-ly;

Improv'dence, im.pröv'zdence, want of foresight.

Improvise, im'.pro.vize' (not im'.pro.vees'), to compose [poetry] offhand; *improvised' (3 syl.), improv's'ing (Rule xix.)

Improvisator, plu. improvisators, im'.pro.viz''á.torz; fem. improvisatrice, im'.pro.viz''á.tris.

Improvisatore, plu. improvisatori, im'.pro.viz''á.to.ry, plu. im'.pro.viz''á.to.ri (Eng.-Ital.), improvisator, &c.

Improvisation, im.pro.viz'a.shän, the art of improvising.

French improvisation, improvisatrice; Italian improvisatore, improvisatori, improvisare, to make rhymes extempore.

Impudent, im.pu.dent, not modest; impu'dent-ly, rudely.

Impudence, im.pu.dence, effrontery, want of modesty.

Latin *im*pu'dens, not modest; impudentia.

Impugn, im.pün'e, to call in question; impugned, *im.pünd'; impugn-ing, im.pün'.ing; impugner, im.pün'.er; impugnable, im.pün'.a.b'l, subject to be impugned.

Archaic Fr. impugner, to impugn; Lat. impugnare, to fight against.
Errors of Speech

Impulse, imˈpʌls, without reflection; impulsive, imˈpʌlsətiv, energetic and thoughtless; impulˈsive-ly, impulˈsive-ness.

Impulsion, imˈpʌlsən, the force given to a body in motion by another striking against it.

Impel, imˈpɛl; impelled (ˈɪmpləld) (2 syll.), impell-’ing, impell-’er, Rule iv. ("Impel" would be better with double l.)

Latin impello, supine impulsum (imˈpɛləʊ, to drive against).

Impunity, imˈpjuːti, without punishment.

Latin impuˈnitətias (imˈpjuːniˈteɪəs, not to punish).

Impure, imˈpjuːər, not pure; impure-’ness, impure-’ly.

Impurity, plu. impurities, imˈpjuːrətɪz.

Latin impuˈritətias (imˈpjuːriˈteɪəs, not pure;; impurˈtetas; French impureU (ɪˈmɑːˈrœ)).

Impute, imˈpjuːt, to attribute (followed by to); impuˈt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), impuˈt-ing (Rule xix.), impuˈt-er, impuˈt-able, impuˈt-able-ness, impuˈt-ably.

Imputation, imˈpjuːtəˈteɪʃən. Imputative, imˈpjuːtətɪv; impuˈtative-ly, by imputation.

French imputable, imputation, imputatif, imputer.

Latin imˈpjuːnus (imˈpjuːnəs, to charge against, to think ill of). Of the eighty or ninety words beginning with “imp,” only three (imˈpjuː-plant, imˈpjuː-plant, imˈbəʊnd) are native words, two of which have been tampered with, the rest are Latin or Gallo-Latin. In rather more than half the number “im” is negative, in ten examples it verbalises a noun, and in thirty-one examples it stands for the prep. “in.”

In- (negative) does not belong to native English words, our proper negative prefix is un- or on-, in one example (inability) changed to in-.

In- is the Latin negative, equivalent to un-. Dis- is Latin and Greek. Both these have been adopted in the French and English languages.

In- and un- signify the absence of the thing referred to.

Dis- signifies séparation from the thing referred to.

In- (not negative) belongs to our native words as well as to Latin and French words. Its meaning is in, into, within, against, and in some instances it simply intensifies.

In- before no in five instances is written ɪnː (always in a negative sense), but in a similar number of examples it is written in-. Before the labials “b,” “m,” “p,” it is written ɪnː. Before “l” it is l, and before “x” it is ɪr.

In a negative sense in- should never be written en-, although as a preposition it is not unfrequently so written in words borrowed from the French, and always so in words derived from the Greek.

When en- is prefixed to native words it means “to make,” “to collect,” or it verbalises a word.

In (prep.), innˈ-er (ɪnˈɛr), inˈner-ˈmost, inˈməʊt. Inn, an hotel.

"Inner-most? is not most inner, but a corruption of inniˈmost of inniˈmost."
Inability, inablity, absence of ability. Disability, loss of ability. (The idea of "separation" is shown better in disable.) (Old English in-, neg.; abal, ability.)

This is the only example of in-, neg. [for un-] with a native word.)

Inaccessible, inakès'sti bl (not un-, being from the Latin; not -able, because not of the first conj.), inapproachable; in'accessible-ness, in'accessibly.

Inaccessibility, inakès'sti blitty, unapproachableness.

French inaccessible, inaccessibilité; Latin in-accessus, not accessible.

Inaccurate, inâlé kârate (not un-, as it is from the Latin), incorrect; inaccurate-ness, inaccurate-ly.

Inaccuracy, plu. inaccuracies, inâkkârâsiz.

French inacquérable, inacquérabilité.

Inadequate, inadéquate (not un-, as it is from the Latin), insufficient; inadequate-ness, inadequately.

Inadequacy, plu. inadequacies, inadéquaciesiz.

French inadéquate, inadéquabilité.

Inadmissible, inadmîs'sti bl (not un-, being from the Latin; -able, because not of the first conj.); inadmissibility.

Fr. inadmissible, inadmissibilité. Lat. in, ad-missus, not admitted to.

Inadvertent, inadver'tent, not intentional; inadvertent-ly.

Inadvertency, plu. inadvertencies, inadver'tencesiz; inadvertence, inadver'tence, an unintentional error.

French inadvertent (wrong), inadvertance (wrong). Lat. in, ad-vertere, turning to (in ad vertère, not to turn to).

Inalienable, inâliâbl' get (not un-, not being from the Latin), not alienable; inalienable-ness, inâlienably.

Unalienated, unâli' get, not estranged (Rule lxxii.)

French inalienable, Latin in alienari, not to be alienated.

Inamorato, plu. inamoratos, in'âmôrâh'tôze, a man in love; fem. inamorata, plu. inamoratas, in'amôrâh'tak, plu. -tarz, a woman in love. (Eng.-Ital. for inamorato, &c.)

Inane, inân', rapid, void of energy; inano'-ly, stupidly.

Inanity, plu. inanities, inân'itiz, vanities, sillinesses.

Inanition, in'ân'ish'sän, feebleness from starvation.

Latin inânte, inántias, v. inântire, to make void, to empty.

Inanimate, inân'îmate, destitute of life or animation.

Inanimation, inân'înamay'shän, lifelessness, spiritlessness.

Unanimated, unân'îmate'd, not animated (Rule lxxii.)

(The past part. in Fr. is negatived by peu or non, and in Eng. by un-.)

Latin in-animus, without mind or life, inanimatus; French anime.
Inapplicable, in.app.'plikahl/at (not un-, being Latin), not applicable; inapplicably; inapplicability (Double -p-.)

Unapplied, un.ap.'plied/at, not applied (Rule lxxii.)

Fr. inapplicable, inapplicabilité; Lat. ap(al)licable, to fold together.

Inappreciable, in.ap.'pre/šeht/šal (not in.ap.'pre/ša/shal), not appriciable, invaluvaluable, inestimable, not perceptible;

Inappreciably, in.ap.'pre/šeht/a.bly. (Double p.)

Unappreciated, un.ap.'pre/šeht/ša.ted, not valued (R. lxxii.)

Fr. inappreciable; Lat. in ap(ad)preciatus, not prized to [its value].

Inprehensible, in.ap.'pre/šen/st/šal, not intelligible.

Unprehension'ed, not understood (Rule lxxii.)

Lat. in, not, ap(ad)prehendere, supine apprehensum, to lay-hold on.

Inapproachable, in.ap.'pro/šch/ša.at, not to be approached.

Fr. approcher, to draw nigh (proche, near; Lat. proxime), with in- neg.

Unapproached, un.ap.'pro/šched/at, not approached (R. lxxii.)

Inappropriate, in.ap.'pro/at (not in.a/pro/at), not appropriate; inappropriately; inappropriateness.

Unappropriated, un.ap.'pro/ši.ted, not appropriated.

(The past part. is negatived in Fr. by pen or non, and in Eng. by un-.)

French inapproprié; Latin in ap(ad)propriare, not to appropriate.

French inaptitude; Latin in aptus, not apt.

Inarticulate, in.ar.'tik/šal (not un-, being Latin), not articu.late; inarticulate-ly, inarticulate-ness.

Inarticulation, in.ar.'tik/ša.t, indistinct speech.

Unarticulated, un.ar.'tik/ša.t, not articulated.

French inarticulation; Latin in articulatus, not articulated.

Inartificial, in.ar.'ti/fiš/šal (not un-, being Latin), not artificial; inartificial-ly, artlessly.

French inartificiel (wrong). Latin in, not; artificialis (arte factus).

In-as-much-as, in.az.much/ša.t, seeing that, because.

Unattentive should be discarded. (Double t.)

French inattention, inattentif. Latin in, not; *attentus, attentive, -attentio (ad/ad)end to, stretch [the mind] to something).

Inaudible, in.aw'.ät/shal (not un-, being Latin; not able, because it is not of the first conj.), not audible; inaudible-ness, inaudibly; inaudibility, in.aw'.ät/shal/-t.

Latin in auditus, not heard; v. audire, to hear.

Inaugural, in.aw'.gur/at, made at inauguration.

Inaugurate, in.aw'.gu/rate, to invest with office; inaugur
rāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), inau'gurāt-ing (R. xix.), inau'gurāt-or (R. xxxvii.); inauguration, in.au'gur-ray'shūn.
French inaugural, inau'guer, inau'guration; Latin inau'gurāre, inau'guratio (augur, a soothsayer. To consult a soothsayer).

Inauspicious, inn'aus-pīsh'ās (not un-, being Latin), not auspicious; inausp'ic'ious-ly, inausp'ic'ious-ness.
Latin in ausp'ic'um, not [favoured by] the auspices (avis specīo, to observe the birds [in augury]).

Inborn', innate. (Old English in bor'en, past part. of bē'ran.)
Inbrēd', inherent. (Old Eng. in brēd, past part of brē'd[an].)

Incalculable, in.kāl'-ku.ˈlā'bl, not calculable; incal'culably.
Uncalculat-ed, un.kāl'-ku.ˈlā'ed, not reckoned up.
(French incalculable; Latin in쿨cāl'culā-tus, calculated.)

Incandescent, inn'kān.des'sent, glowing with white heat.
Incandescence, inn'kān.des'sence, the glow of white heat.
French incandescent, incandescence; Latin incandescere.

Incantation, inn'kān.tay'shūn, the words used by enchanters, French incantation; Latin in-cantāre, to enchant or charm.

Incapable, in.kāp.ˈpā'bl, not capable; incapab'ly.
In'capability. Incapacity, inn'kā.pā.s.i.ˈty.
Incac'pious, inn'kā.pā'shūs; incapac'ious-ness.
Incapacitate, inn'kā.pā'kā.tate, to disqualify; incapac'i-tāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), incapac'i-tāt-ing.
Fr. incapable, incapable; Lat. in capax, not capable (v. capio).

Incarerate, in.kār.'sē.rāte, to imprison; incar'cerat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), incar'cerat-ing; incarceration, -sē.rā'y'shūn.
Lat. incar'cerā-tio, incar'cerāre (career, a prison); Fr. incarcération.

Incarnate, in.kār.nā'te, embodied in flesh [said of deity];
Incarnation, in.kā.rā'nay'shūn, assumption of a form of flesh.
Latin incarnā'tio, incarnā're (in caro, gen. carnis, in the flesh).

In'cautious, inn'kaw'shūs, not cautious; in'cautious-ness, in'cautious-ly. (Latin incautus, not cautious.)

Incendiary, plu. incendiaries, in.sēn.'di.a.rīz, one who maliciously sets fire to [buildings], or inflames the public mind;
Incendiarism, inn.ˈsēn.'di.a.rīz.m. (Lat. incendiārius, incendēre.)

Incense, inn.'sēnස, odoriferous exhalation. Incense', to provoke; incensed, inn.'sēnsted'; incens'-ing (Rule xix.), provoking to anger; incens'-er; incens'-ive, inn.'sēn.'sēv, provokative.
(As a rough rule, if "c" and "s" occur in the same syl. "c" is followed by "s," and "s" by "c," R. lxx. "Sense" is an exception.)
Lat. incensum, incense; incensus, provoked (incendēre, to inflame).
Incentive, inn.'sēn.tīv, a stimulus. (Latin incentivum.)

Uncertain, un.ser't'n, not sure; *uncer*tain-ness;

Uncertainty, plu. uncertainties, un.ser't'un.tiz.

(These forms are established but cannot be commended.)

French in Certain, in Certain; Latin in Certain, Certain

Incessant, in.sês'si.ant, without cessation; in es sant-ly;

Latin in essanter (in cessat, not to cease); French in essant.

Incest, in'sëst; incestuous, in.sês'tüs; in ess'tous-ly;

Latin incestum, in cestus (in castus, not chaste); French inceste.

Inch, the twelfth part of a foot in length. (Old English in ce.)

Incidence, Incidents. Accident, Accidents.

Incidence, in.si.dence; a term in optics, as the line or angle of incidence, opposed to the line or angle of reflection. The two angles being always equal.

*Co-Incidence, "a chance concurrence of similar events," is used, but incidence is not used to signify "a chance occurrence."

Incident, plu. incidents, in.si.dents, an occurrence.

Accidence, ak'si.dence, a rudimentary grammar;

Accident, plu. accidents, ak'si.dents, a mishap.

Incidental, in.si:den'tal, casual; in cidentally.

French incidence (in Geom.), incident, incidentel; Latin incidentis, v. incidere (in cado, to fall on).

French accident; Latin accidens, gen. accidentis (*acci*ado).

Incipient, in.sip'i.cent, rudimentary; incipient-ly.

Latin incipiens, gen. incipientis, v. incipere (Old Lat. capio, to begin).

Incisive, in.si'siv, cutting; incisive-ly. Incisor, a front tooth.

Incision, in.si'zun, a cutting into [something].

Latin inciso, incisores (den tes (in cedo, to cut into).

Incite, in.site', to stir up; incit'ed (Rule xxxvi.), incit'er (Rule xix.), incit'ing, inciting-ly, incite-ment.

Incitation, in.si'tay'shün, an incentive, a strong motive.

Insight, in site, a discriminating knowledge, a glance.

Latin incitatio, incitamentum, v. incitare, to spur on.

Incivility, plu. incivilities, in.si.'vil'ätz; discourtesy.

Uncivil, not civil; uncivil-ly, not civilly.

Uncivilised, un.civ'il.ized, not civilised (Rule lxxii.).

(The past part. in Fr. is negatived by peu or non; and in Eng. by un-.)

Fr. incivilité, incivil; Lat. incivilis (in, not; civis, like a citizen*).

Inclement, in klëm'ent, not mild; inclement-ly, rigorously;

Inclementy, in klëm'en.sy, severely cold [weather].

Lat. inclementia (in emens, not mild); Fr. inclémence, inclement.

Incline, in klîn', to slope, to feel disposed; inclined (2 syl.), inclin'ing (Rule xix.), inclin'er, inclin'able;

Inclination, in klî.nay'shün, willingness, slope.
AND OF SPELLING.

Un-inclined, not disposed [a passive state]. Dis-inclined, positively adverse; disinclination, aversion, unwillingness. Latin inclinabilis, inclinatio, in-cinare; French inclination.

Inclose, in.klōz', to shut up one thing in another; as a letter in an envelope; inclosed (2 syl.), inclôs'-ing (Rule xix.); inclôs'-er, one who incloses; inclosure, in.klôz'.zhûr, something inclosed. ("Enclose" is the French form, enclos.)

Include, in.klûd', to comprise; inclûd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inclûd'-ing; inclusive, in.alô'zîw, comprehending;

Exclusive, not comprehending, leaving out.

Inclî'sive-ly; Exclusive-ly.

Inclusion, in.klû.zhin, the act of including; the state of being included. Exclusion, the state of being left out.

Old Eng. clôsa, a prison; Lat. includatio, v. includô, supine inclusum, to include; exclusu, supine exclusion, to exclude.

Incoherent, in.ko.hê'.rent, not coherent; incohe'rent-ly;

Incoherency, plu. incoherencies, in.ko.hê'.rên.siz;

Incoherence, in.ko.hê'.rence, want of coherence.

Fr. incoherent, incoherence; Lat. in, co[con]horco, not to stick together.

Incombustible (not -able), in.côm.bûs'.tî, not combustible; incombustible-ness, incombustibly, incombustibility.

French incombustible, incombustibilité; Latin in-combûstum (con-buro [Old Latin], uro, to burn together).

Income, in.kûm, annual amount of property arising from interest, business, pay, &c. (German einkommen, income.)

Incommensurable, in.kôm.mên'.sûra.bl', not having a common measure; incommensurably, incommensurability.

Incommensurate, in'.kôm.mên'.sû.rate, disproportionate.

Fr. incommensurable, incommensurabilité (Lat. in, com, mensura).

Incommode, in'.kôm.môde' (not in'.kôm.mode'), to inconvenience; incommôd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), incommôd'-ing (Rule xix.)

Incommodious, in'.kôm.mô'.dî'us (not in'.kôm.mô'.jûs), inconvenient; incommo'dious-ness, incommo'dious-ly.

Lat. incommôdare; incommôdus; Fr. incommode, v. incommoder.

Incommunicable, in'.kôm.mû'.ni.kû.bl', not able to be communicated; incommun'icable-ness, incommun'icably.

Incommunicative, in'.kôm.mû'.ni.ka.tîv, reserved.

Uncommunicated, not communicated (Rule lxiii.)

Uncommunicative, in'.kôm.mû'.ni.ka.tîv.

French incommunicable, incommunicabilité, peu communicatif; Latin incommunicabilis; in, not; communicare (commun.ake).
Incommutable, in.köm. mú.ta.b'l, indefeasible; incommutable-ness, incommutably. Uncommut'ed (Rule lxxii.)

French incommutable; Latin in-com-mutâtibilis (in, com, múlârct).

Incomparable, *in.köm'.pär.a.b'l (not in köm pair'.a.b'l), not to be compared together; incomparable-ness; incomparably, infinitely, beyond all comparison.

Uncompared, un'.köm.pärä', not compared together.

The past part. in Fr. is negated by peu or non, and in Eng. by un. Latin inconparabilis (in, compàrâri, not to be compared).

Incompatible (not -able), *in.köm.pärt'.i.b'l, not consistent [with]; incompatible-ness, incompatibly. Incompatibles (in Chem.), salts which in contact decompose each other.

Incompatibility, in'.köm.pär.t'.i.b'il'.i.ty, unsuitability.

French incompatible, incompatibilité (Latin in, com pétère).

Incompetent (not -tant), in.köm'.pē.tent, not competent; incompotent-ly, incompotence, incompetency.

French incompétent, incompétence; Latin incompentens, gen. pētentis.

Incomplete, in'.köm'.pleet' (not un, being Latin), not complete; incomplete-ness, in an unfinished state; incomplete-ly.

Uncompleted, un'.köm.pleet'.ed, not completed (Rule lxxii.) French incomplete; Latin in, not; compleère; supine completum.

Incomprehensible, in.köm'.pre.hēn''si.b'il (not -able), beyond human understanding; incomprehensibly;

Incomprehensibility, in.köm'.pre.hēn'.si.b'il'.i.ty.

Incomprehensive, in.köm'.pre.hēn''.siv.

Uncomprehended, un.köm'.pē.hēn''.dēd, not understood.

Fr. incompréhensible, incompréhensibilité; Lat. incompréhensibilitis.

Incompressible, in.köm'.prēs''si.b'il (not to be reduced in size by pressure; incompressibility, in'.köm'.prēs'.si.b'il'.i.ty.

Uncompressed, un'.köm'.preś', not pressed together (Rule lxxii.) French incompressible, incompressibilité; Latin in, not; comprimére, supinas compressum (in, con, pressus, not squeezed together).

Inconceivable, in'.kön.see''.wā,bl, not to be imagined; inconceivable-ness, inconceivably (Rule xxviii.)

("-able," the wrong conj., Rule xxiii. This error, as usual, is French!) French inconceivable; Latin in, not; concepère (con cápio).

Inconclusive, in'.kön.klu''.zv, not conclusive; inconclusive-ly, inconclusive-ness. Unconcluded, not finished (Rule lxxii.)

Fr. non conclu; Lat. in, not; conclúdo, sup. conclusum (con cláude).

Incondensable, in'.kön.dēn''.sū,bl (not -ble, being the 1st conj., Lat.), not to be condensed; incondensable, incondensability. Also uncondensable, uncondensibility.

French non-condensable, non-condensabilité; non- and peu are represented by un. Latin in, condensâri, not to be condensed.
Incongruent, in.kön.gru.ENT, not suitable; incon'gru-ENT-ly;
Incongruous, -gru.üs, not in keeping; incon'gruous-ly;
Incongruity, plu. incongruities, in'.kön.gru".i.äz.
French incongruité; Latin incongruus, incongruens, gen. -entis, incongruitas (in, con, grüere, not to flock together).
Inconsequent, in.kön.sé.kwén".shät, not following from the premises, of small moment; incon'sequent-ial-ly.
Latin inconsegua, gen. -sequentis, inseguentia (in, con, sequor).
Inconsiderable, in'.kön.sid.ä-ra.b'lä, not important; -sid’erably;
Inconsiderate, in'.kön.sid.ä-rate, thoughtless, rash; incon-sid’erate-ly, inconsiderate-ness, thoughtlessness;
Inconsideration, in'.kön.sid.ä-ray".shön, negligence.
Unconsidered, un'.kön.sid.ä.erd, not duly thought about.
French peu considéré. Our un- represents the French peu, mal, non.
Lat. inconsideratio, inconsiderativus, not to consider; Fr. inconsideration.
Inconsistent, in'.kön.sis".tent, not consistent; inin'sistent-ly;
Inconsistency, plu. inconsistencies, in'.kön sis".ten.äz;
Inconsist, in'.kön.sis".tense, incongruity.
Latin in, con, sistère, not to abide together.
Inconsolable, in'.kön.so".la.b'lä (not -ible, being the 1st. conj.,
Lat.), not to be soled; inconsolably, in'.kön.so".la.bly.
Disconsolé, dis.kön.so.late, lost to comfort, unhappy;
disconsolate-ly, discon’solate-ness.
Unconsolated, un'.kön.so.läd"', not solaced (Rule lxxii.)
Fr. inconsolable; Lat. inconsolabilis (in, con, solari, not to be solaced).
Inconstant, in'.kön.stant, not constant; inconst’ant-ly; inconstant-ly, in.kön.stän.sy, fickleness, want of persistency.
French inconstant, inconstance; Latin inconstans, gen. -constantis, inconstantia (in, con, stans [stare], not to stand firmly).
Inconsumable, in'.kön.su".mä.b'lä, not able to be consumed.
Unconsumed, un'.kön.sumed", not consumed (Rule lxxii.); unconsum’ing [fire], fire which burns without consuming.
Latin in, consumère, not to consume (con sumo, to take wholly).
Incontestable, in'.kön.tës".ta.b'lä, indisputable; incontestably.
Uncontested, un'.kön.tës".tëd, not disputed (Rule lxxii.)
Latin in, contestāri, not to be proved by witnesses (testis).
Incontinent, in.kön.tü.neut, not chaste; incon’tinent-ly.
Incontinence, in.kön.tü.neence; incontinency.
French incontinence, incontinent; Latin incontinentis, gen. -incentis, incontinentia (in, con, teneo, not [able] to contain [oneself]).
Incontrovertible, in.kön.tro.ver".tü.b'lä, indisputable; incontrovert’ibly, incontrovertibil’ity, indisputability.
Uncontroverted, un.kön.tro.ver.čed, not called in question.
Uncontrovertible, not to be changed from one form to another; gold is uncontrovertible.

French incontrovertible, non-controversi, non-controvertible, non being represented by un-. These words are ill-formed. The Latin verb vertere (to turn) for versari (to converse), and we have copied the error.

Inconvenient, in't°n.vê'ni'ent, not commodious; inconveniently; inconvenience, in'conv.e'ni'ence, that which deranges, to derange; inconvenience (Syl.), inconvenience (Rule xix.), inconveniency.

Inconvenience, plu. inconveniencies, in'conv.e'ni'ences.

Incorporate, in'kor.orme't, to unite into one body, to intermix; incorporate, in'cor.pó'ret-ed (Rule xxxvi.), incorporating (Rule xix.).

Incorporation, in'kor.orme't-shain.

Incorporeal (not incorporal), in'kor.po'.rë'ë'lil, not having a material body. Incorporal (not incorporal-ly), in'kôr.po'.rë'ë'lly, immaterially, without a material body.

Incorporeity, in'kor.po'.rë'ë'ty, immateriality.

Incorporealism, in'kor.po'.rë'ë'lë'shm, spiritual existence.

Latin incorporare, incorporatio; French incorporer, incorporation. Latin incorporabilis or incorporatus; French incorporé, incorporal. Latin incorporabilitas; French incorporabilité, incorporality.

Incorporé, Lat. in corpus, without body.

Incorporal, in'cor.pó'rel, not having a material body.

Incorporation, in'cor.pó'rel-shain.

Incorrigible, in'kor.ri'.jë'bë't, not able to be reformed; inconceivable; incorrigibly, beyond the hope of reform.

Incorrigibility, in'kor.ri'.jë'blë'ty, an incorrigible state.

Incorrodible, in'kor.ro'.dë'llil, not possible to be corroded.

Incorrodibility, in'kor.ro'.dë'llil'ty.

Incorroded, un'kor.ro'.dë'dëd, not corroded (Rule xixii.).

In'corrupt', not subject to decay. Un'corrupt'; not depraved, incorrupt'ed, not turned to corruption. Uncorrupted, not morally depraved.

Incorruptible, not liable to decay. Uncorruptible, not liable to be morally corrupted (1 Cor. xv. 53).

Incorruptible-ness, incorruptibility, the quality of not being subject to material corruption.

Incorruptible-ness, incorruptibility, the quality of not being subject to moral corruption (Titus ii. 7).
Incorruption, in.*kor.*risk英格兰", the state of not being subject to material corruption (1 Cor. xv. 50); Uncorruption, un.*kor.*risk英格兰", the state of not being subject to moral corruption.

Fr. incorruptible, in.cor.*ruptibilité; Lat. in.cor.*ruptibilis, incorrupto.

Increase, (noun) in.kr.*ése, (verb) in.kr.*ése' (Rule 1.)

Increase, augmentation. Increase', to get larger; increased', increasing (Rule xix.), increasing-ly, increasing-able.

Latin incre.sère, to grow larger and larger. Verbs in -seo are inceptive.

Incredible, in.kr.éd’á.bl’, not credible; incredible-ness, incredibly; incredibility, "in*.kr.éd’á.bl’á.ty;

Incredulous, in.kr.éd’á.b’ús, unbelieving; incredulous-ness, incredulous-ly. Incredulity, "in*.kr.éd’á.b’á.ty.

Uncredited, un.kr.éd’át.ed, not believed, not trusted.

Uncreditable-ness, quality or state of not being trustworthy.

Discredited, base, ruinous to one's reputation.

Discredit, dis*.kr.ed’it, dishonour, disgrace.

French incredible, in.cre.*dibilté, incredibilité, discrédit; Latin incredibilitas, incredibilitas, incredibilitas, incredibilitas.

Increment, in.kr.ém’ent, increase. (Latin incrementum.)

Incriminate, in.kr.ém’in.ate; to charge with fault; incriminât-ed (R. xxxvi.), incriminât-ing. (In Lat. the second i is long.)

Latin incriminâri, to incriminate; French incriminer.

Incrust, in.kr.é.st’* (not 'en, being Latin), to form a hard crust; incrusted', incrusted-ly. Incrustation, -tay'"shún.

French incrustation, incrust; Latin incur.sâ.*tio, incur.sâ.râ.

Incubate, in.k.ub’ate, to brood; incubât-ed (Rule xxxvii.), incubât-ing (Rule xix.), incubât-or (Rule xxxvii.).

Incubation, in.k.ub’ate; incubative, "in*.k.ub’á.liv.

Incubus, in.k.ub’ús, a night-mare; a mental oppression.

Latin in.k.ub’*átio, in.k.ub’atór, in.k.ub’us, in.k.ub’á.re; French incubation.

Incultate, in.k.ul’k.ate, (not in.k.ul’kat’e), to teach; inculturât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inculturât-ing, inculturât-or (Rule xxxvii.).

Incultation, in.k.ul’kat’é; indoctrination.

Latin inculcâ.râ; in culco, to tread in; caix, a heel, inculcâ.tâ.râ.

Inculpate, in.k.ul’p.at’e; to criminate; inculpât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inculpât-ing (Rule xix.); inculpât or, inculpa.tó.ry.

Inculpation, "in*.k.ul’p.*ay"shún, censure.

Inculpable, in.k.ul’p.al’bl’, unblamable; inculpably; inculpability, "in.k.ul’p.al’á.ty; freedom from blame.

French inculpable, inculpâ.tâ.râ; Latin inculpâtâ.*litis, inculpâtâ.râ; (In all these cases the â is negative.) "Inculpate," to blame, is directly opposite to the Latin inculpâ.râ (to hold blameless), and the French inculper.

We have opposed it to the English-Latin word ex-culpate, but having a fixed meaning in Latin it ought not to be reversed.
Incumbent, in.küm'· bent, a clergyman with a "living," obligatory; incum'·bency, plu. incum'· bencies, in.küm'· bën.siz.
Latin incumbens, gen. incumbentis (in-cum'· béré, to lie upon).

Incur, in.kur', to become liable; incurred' (2 syl.), incurr'·ing, Rule iv.  (Latin in-curro, to run into.)

Incurable, in.kü'· rä'· b'l, not to be cured; incû'· rable-ness, in- cû'· rably; incurability, in.kü'· rä'· b'il'·ty.

French incurable, incurabilité; Latin in, not, cûrâ'· bilis, v. curâ're.

Indebted, in.de't· ed (not en', being Latin), to owe; indebted- ness, in.de't· ed.ness.  (Latin indebítus.)

Indecency, plu. indecencies, in.de'e'· sen.siz, indecorum.

Indecent, offensive to modesty; indec'en·t·ly.

French indécènt, indécèns; Latin indécens, gen. indécens (in déceo).

Indecision, in'.de'si'· zhn, want of decision; indecisive, in'.de'· si'· zve; indecisive-ly, indecisive-ness.

Undecided, un'.de'.si'.déd, not decided (Rule lxxii.)

French indécision; Latin in, not, décidère, sup. decísum (de caedo).

Indeclinable, in'.de'.klü'.· nü. b'l, not declinable.

Undeclined, un'.de'.klind', without case-endings (R. lxxii.)

Indecorous, in'.de'· kör'· rüs (not in.de'· kör'· rüs), not decorous; indecor'· ous-ly; indecor'· um, improperly of conduct.

Indefatigable, in'.de'· jef.ü'· gu· b'l, persistently industrious; indefatig'· able-ness, indefatig'· ably, indefatig'· abil'· ity.

Latin indefatigá'ti'· bilis, in, defá'· ti'· gá'tít, not to be wea'· jed.

Indefeasible, in'.de'· fee'· zü'· b'l, inalienable; indefea'sibly.

Indefesibility, in'.de'· fee'· zü'· b'il'· ty, imprescriptibility.

Indefinable, in'.de'· fin'· it, not to be defined; indefin'· sibly; indefin'· sibility, in'.de'· fin'· i. b'il'· ty.

Undefended, un'.de'· fen'· déd, not defended (Rule lxxii.)

Latin in, not, defénsa, supina defénsum; Fr. indefendable (wrong).

Indefinite, in'.de'· fin'· it (not in.de'· fin'· ite), not definite; indefinite-ly, indefinite-ness, indefinit'· ity; indefinitive, in'.de'· fin'· ite.  (Latin indefinitiv'· e-ly.

Indefinable (Rule xxiii.), in'.de'· fin'· ite'· mä'· b'l; indefin'· ably.

Undefined, un'.de'· fin'd, not defined (Rule lxxii.)

Latin in, not, definita, definitivus; French indefinitessable (wrong).

Indeliberate, in'.de'· lib'· erate, without due consideration; indelib'· erate-ly. Undeliber'· ated (Rule lxxii.)

Latin in, not, deliberá'te, to deliberate (libra, a balance).
Indelible, in.dēl′.i.b′l (not -able), not to be erased;
   Indelibly; indelibility, in.dēl′.i.bl′.ty.
   (These words are disgraceful and ought to be corrected into indelebile, indelebly, and indelebility. The verb is déleo, not délio.)
   Fr. indelebile, indelebilité; Lat. indelebilitas (déleo, to blot out).

Indelicate, in.dēl′.i.kate, not refined; indelicate-ly, indelicateness; indelicacy, plu. indelicacies, in.dēl′.i.kas′iz.
   French indélicat; Latin in, not, délicatus, delicate, dainty.

Indemnify, in.dēm′ni.fy, to secure against loss; indemnifies, in.dēm′ni.fizes; indemnified, in.dēm′ni.fī.dea (Rule xi.); indem′ni-er, indem′ni-ing. Indemnification, in-dēm′ni.f′.shun, security against loss.

Indemnity, plu. indemnities, in.dēm′ni.tī.z.
   Fr. indemnité; Lat. indemnīs facēre, indemnīs facēre, to secure from loss.

Indemonstrable, in′.de.mōn′.strā.b′l, not to be demonstrated.

Undemonstrated, un′.dē.mōn′.strā.ted, not proved (R. lxxii.)
   Latin indemonstrābilis (in, not, demonstrātī, to be demonstrated).

Indent′, to mark with indentations, to make an indenture;
   indent′-ed (Rule xxxvi.), indent′-ing;

Indentation, in′.dēn.tay′.shun, a jag, a dent;

Indenture, in.dēn′.tchūr, a written contract, to bind by an indenture; indentured, in.dēn′.tchūrd; indentūre-ing.

These are ill-formed words. The Latin in-dent[ature] means without teeth, and "indent" in English means to make teeth or jags.
   Latin dens, gen. dentis, a tooth; Greek ὀδος, gen. ὀδοντος.
   "Indentures" are so called because they were originally made in duplicate on one skin. The skin being divided with an indented or zigzag edge, the two parts of which could be fitted together.

Independent, in′.de.pēn′.dent (noun), a "dissenter," (adj.) not dependent; independen′-tly. Independence, in′.depēn′.dence, private means, self-reliance, self-confidence;
   independency, plu. independencies, in′.de.pēn′.dēn.sīz.

Dependent on [another], "hanging on" another.

Independent of [another]. Of unites the two nouns in regimen: so exclusive of, irrespective of.
   French Indépendant (wrong), indépendance (wrong). Latin in, not, dependens, gen. dependentis, dependēre, to hang from or on.

Indescribable (R. xxiii.), in′.dē.skri′.b′l (not in′.dēs-krī′.b′l), not able to be described; indescri′bably.

Undescribed, un′.dē.skribd, not described (Rule lxxii.)
   Latin in, not, describēre, to write down or describe.

Indestructible, in′.dē.strūk′.tī.b′l (not in′.dēs.trūk′.tī.b′l), imperishable; indestructibly, indestructibil′ity.

Undestroyed, un′.dēs.trō.īd′, not destroyed (Rule lxxii.)
   Fr. indestructible, indestructibilité; Lat. in, de-strāre, to pull down.
Indeterminate, in·d·eterˌmiˌnate, indefinite; indeterminate-ly;
Indeterminable, in·d·eterˌmiˌnəˌbəlˌ; indeterminable-ly;
Indetermination, in·d·eterˌmiˌnäˌshənˌ, irresolution;
Undetermined, unˌd·eterˌmiˌnəˌd, not fixed (Rule Ixxii.)
Indeterminate [quantities], those which cannot be known.
Undetermined [quantities], those which are capable of being known, but have not yet been determined.
Fr. indéterminable, indetermination; Lat. in, not, determinare.

In·dex, plu. indexes [of books], indices [of figures], inˌd·i·sēz.
Indices, inˌd·iˌsēzˌ, exponents; in 3², a³, the little figures 2, 3 are the indices to point out to what power the figure is to be raised; “3” is to be raised to the square or second power, 3 x 3 = 9; and a to the cube or third power.

In·dex (verb), to make an index; indexed, inˌd·i·kstˌ;
in·dex·ing, indexical, index·ical·ly.

In·dex Expurgatorius, exˌpərˌgəˌtôrˈiˌəsˌ, the list of books which Roman Catholics are forbidden to read till the objectionable parts are expurgated.

In·dex Librorum Prohibitorum, the list of books wholly forbidden to the faithful in the Roman Catholic church.

Index·finger, the first finger (§3). (See Indicate.)
Fr. in·dex; Lat. index, plu. indices, inventory of a book, the forefinger.

Indian, inˌd·iˌənˌ; pertaining to India; a native of India;
Indian-corn, Indianˌred, Indianˌyellow;

Indianˌink, or Indiaˌink, inˌd·iˌinkˌ;
Indiaˌrubber, inˌd·iˌrubˌərˌ; Indiaˌpaper, inˌd·iˌpəˌperˌ;
Indiaˌman, inˌd·iˌmanˌ, a large merchant ship for trading to India. (Persian hindˌ; Sanskrit śīndˌ, black.)

Indicate, inˌd·iˌkätˌ, to point out; inˌd·iˌkätˌed (Rule xxxvi.), inˌd·iˌkätˌing (R. xix.), inˌd·iˌkätˌor (R. xxxvii.), indicatory.

Indication, inˌd·iˌkäˌshənˌ, a premonstration.

Indicative, inˌd·iˌkäˌtivˌ; indicative·ly. (See Index.)
French indicationˌ, indicativeˌ; Latin indicatioˌ, indicativusˌ, v. indic· care (indiciumˌ, a discovery); indexˌ, a discoverer.
(This is not a compound of dicereˌ, to show or speak, but of dicareˌ.)

Indict, inˌd·iˌtˌ, to charge with crime. Inditeˌ, to write.

Indictˌed, inˌd·iˌtˌedˌ; indictˌingˌ, inˌd·iˌtˌingˌ; indictˌableˌ, inˌd·iˌtˌəˌbəlˌ, what may be legally indicted.

Indictmentˌ, inˌd·iˌtˌməntsˌ, a formal charge in writing.

Indictˌorˌ, inˌd·iˌtˌorˌ, the person who indicts another.

Indictˌeeˌ, inˌd·iˌtˌeeˌ, the person indicted.

Latin in·diceˌ, supine in·dicumˌ, to speak againstˌ, to denounce.
“Inditę” is from the same Latin verb meaning “to write out.”
Indication, in'di.kā′shūn, the reckoning by cycles of fifteen years.
   (This system was introduced by Constantine, A.D. 312, in connection with the payment of tribute.)
   Latin indicatio; declaration [of a tax prior to its being collected].
Indifferent, in'dif′fē′rēnt, regardless; indifferent-ly, not well.
   Indifference, in′dif′fe′rē′nce, absence of interest in a matter.
   French indifférent, indifférence; Latin indifferens, gen. -differens, indifferenter (in, not, différer, to distract oneself).
Indigenous, in′di′dʒē′nəs, native to a place.
   Latin indigēna, a native (innō genō [in-gēno], born within).
Indigent, in′di′gēn特, needy; indigent-ly, indigency.
   French indigent, indigence; Latin indigentia, indigēo, to want.
Indigestion, in′di′dʒē′shūn, constipation; indigestible (notable), in′di′dʒē′shō′.ī.b'l; indigestibly.
Undigested, un′i′dį′dʒē′shō′.tēd, not digested (Rule lxxii.)
   French indigestion, indigestible; Latin indigestus, indigestibilis, in, not, digerēre, supine digestum, to dissolve, to digest.
Indignant. (not indignant), indig′nant, scornfully angry;
   indignant-ly. Indignation, in′dį′g′nā′.tshūn;
Indignity, plu. indignities, in′dį′g′nī′.tēz, insult.
   Latin indignatio, indignitas, v. indignāri; French indignation, &c.
Indigo, plu. indigoes (Rule xliii.), a blue dye, a plant.
   Fr., Itai., Span., indigo; Lat: indicum, the Indian plant.
Indirect, in′di′rēkt, not direct; indirect-ly, obliquely; indirect-ness.
   (Fr. indirect; Lat. indirectus, rectus, right.)
Indiscernible, in′di′sɛr′nəl (not -able); imperceptible;
   Undiscerned, un′i′dį′sɛr′nūl (not un′i′.de′.sɛr′nūl), Rule lxxii.
   Latin in, not, dis-cernēre, to sift [flour], to discern.
Indiscernible, in′di′sɛr′nə′.l (not to be found out;
   Undiscovered, un′i′dį′sɛr′nə′.l (not discovered.
   French in, not, découverir. Low Latin cognēra, a coffer; de-cognēra, to take out of a coffer; en, de, cognēra, not to take from its coffer.
Indiscreet, in′di′sˌkrēt, imprudent; indiscreet-ly, -creet-ness;
   Indiscrption, in′di′sˌkrēsh′ə.īn (not in′di′sˌkrēsh′ˌshūn).
   French indiscretion, indiscret; Latin in, not, discernēre, supine discretion, not to sift or separate [right from wrong].
Indiscriminate, in′di′sˌkrēm′.tē.ə; promiscuous; indiscrim-inate-ly; indiscriminate-ing, not making any distinctions;
   Indiscrimination, in′di′sˌkrēm′.tē′.nə′.tGUtˈing, not making any distinctions;
   Indiscriminative, in′di′sˌkrēm′.tē′.nə′.tGUtˈi′.nət; not Undiscriminated, un′i′dį′sˌkrēm′.tē.ə.ˌnə′.tēd, not sorted (R. lxxii.)
   Lat. in, not, discrimina-re; Gk. di-kríma, judgment between [things].
Indispensable, in′di′sˌpēn′.tə.ˌb'l, absolutely necessary; indispensably, indispensable-ness, indispensability.
Undispensed, un′i′dį′sˌpēn′.tə.ˌb'l, not dispensed (Rule lxxii.)
   Fr. indisponible, indispensabilité; Lat: in, not, dispensāre.
Indisposed, in.dis.pőzed’, not in health, disinclined;
Indisposed towards, averse to.
Undisposed of, un.’dis.pőzed’ ov, not sold (Rule lxxii.)
  French indisposer, indisposition; Latin dispónere, to set aside, hence to put in order; in-dispónere, to put out of order, hence to be dis-ordered or unwell; not set aside, hence not parted with.
Indisputable, in.dis’pū.tar.b’l (not in. dis’.pū’’.tā. b’l), without dispute; indis’putable-ness; indis’putably, beyond all doubt.
Undisputed, un.’dis.pū’’.tēd, not disputed (Rule lxxii.)
  French indisputable; Latin in, not, disputābilis, disputāre.
Indissoluble, in.dis’.sōl.ū.b’l (not in. dis’.sōl’’.ā. b’l), not capable of being melted; indis’soluble-ness, indis’solubly.
Indissolvable, in.dis’.sōl.ū.’vā.b’l, not able to be dissolved.
Undissolved, un.’dis.zolv’d, not dissolved (Rule lxxii.)
  French indissoluble, indissolubilité; Latin in, not, dés-solvēre, to loose thoroughly; Greek sun tou, to loose altogether.
Indistinct, in.’dis.tīnt’l, not distinct; indistinct’-ness, indistinct’-ly. Indistinction, in.’dis.tīn.k’’shūn.
Indistinguishable, in.’dis.tīn’sh.ūsh.ā. b’l, not able to be distinguished. (An ill-formed word, the Latin corresponding one is indi’n’stīnu’bilis [in.dis.tīnu.b’l]).
Undistinguished, un.’dis.tīn’sh.ūsh.t, not distinguished.
  Fr. indistinct, indistinction; Lat. in, not, distinctio, distinctus, distinguere, distinctum, to notify by a mark (Gk. stigma,
a mark).
(Rule xxxvi.), indit’-ing (Rule xix.), indit’-er.
  Latin in-dicēre, supine indicūm, to set forth in writing. Hence
Cicero says “non idem loquor est, et dicere” [to write].
Individual, in.rdī.vīd’’.uāl (not in.’dī.vī’’.jū.āl), one person or thing; individ’u-al-ly; individuality, in.’dī.vīd’’uāl’’t.ī.ty;
Individualise (R. xxxii.), in.’dī.vīd’’uāl’’z.ē, to particularise;
individualised (6 syl.), individual’is-ing;
Individualisation, in.’dī.vīd’’.uāl.z.ē.zay’’.shūn;
Individualism, in.’dī.vīd’’uāl.zīzm;
Individualuate, in.’dī.vīd’’.u.ate; individual’at-ed (Rule xxxvi.), individual’at-ing; individuation, in.’dī.vīd’’.n.ā’’shūn.
  Fr. individuél(1!), individualité, individualisation, individualiser;
Lat. individualis (in, not, dividē, to be divided).
Indivisible, in.’dī.vīz’’.ā.b’l (not -āble), not capable of being divided; indivisibles, in.’dī.vīz’’.ā.b’l’’z (in Mathematics);
indivisibly, in.’dī.vīz’’.ā.b’l’y, inseparably;
Indivisibility, in.’dī.vīz’’.ā. b’l’’t.ī.ty, inseparability.
Undivided, un.’dī.vī’’.dēd, not divided (Rule lxxii.)
  Fr. indivisible, indivisibilité; Lat. indivisibilitās (in-dividēre).
Indocile, in."dö'".il, not docile; indocility, in'.dö'.iil".i.i. ty.
French indocile, indocilité; Latin indocillus, indocilitas.
Indoctrinate, in."dök'.tri.na.tate, to instruct; indoc'trinat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), indoc'trinat-ing; indoc'trination, -nay".shün.
As the Latin word in-doctus is "un-learned," indoctrinate (French endoctriner) would have been a better form.
Indolent, in'.dö:len.t, slothful; indolent'-ly, listlessly;
Indolence, in'.dö.ience, laziness, sluggishness.
Latin indōlentia (v. in-dōlēre, not to feel pain, not to grieve), a state in which there is no grief, "labour" being trouble.
Indomitable, in.döm'.i.ta.bl (not -ible, the first Latin conj.), untamable, persistent; indomitably, persistently.
Fr. indomptable (1 lat. indōmābilis (in, not, dōmāre, to tame).
We have taken the freq. v. dōmitāre, to tame, to weary.
Indoors, in'"dörs (not indoör, in the house. (It is the -s [-es] which gives the adverbial form, as in backwards, northwards, anights, adays.) Old English in dör [in-döres].
Indorse, in.dörse', to write one's name on the back [of a bill, cheque, &c.]; indorsed' (2 sy1.), indors'-ing (Rule xix.);
Indorse'-ment (only five words omit e before -ment, R. xviii.)
Indors'-er, the person who indorses a bill, &c.
Indorssee', the person to whom a bill of exchange is assigned by indorsement; indors'-able.
Latin indōrsare, to put on the back (dorsum, the back).
Indubitable, in.dü':bi.ta.bl, beyond all doubt; indu'bitable-ness;
indubitably, doubtlessly.
French indubitable; Latin indūtabiles, indūtabare, not to doubt.
Induce, in.düce', to persuade; induced' (2 sy1.), induc- ing (Rule xix.), induc'-ing; induc'er, in.düce'er.
Induce'-ment (Rule xviii.); inducible, in.düce'.i.bl.
Latin in-düce're, to lead into [a scheme], to persuade.
Induct, in.dukt', to put formally into possession [of a "living"];
induct'-ed (R. xxxvii.), induct'-ing, induct'-or (R. xxxvii.)
Induction, in.dük'.shün, introduction into a benefice, the drawing of inferences from given data;
Inductive [philosophy], in.dük'.tiv, the science of drawing general conclusions from given data; inductive-ly; induction-al, in.dük'.shün.al, adj. of induction.
(If the following examples the prefix is negative.)
Inductile, in.dük'.till, [metal] not capable of being drawn out into threads; inductility, in'.dük.till'.i.i. ty.
French induction, indulgence; Latin inducicio, inducitor (induere).
It is most undesirable to blow hot and cold with the same prefix.
Indue, in.dü', to invest. Endue, en.dü', to endow.
Indue'd (2 sy1.), indu'-ing. (Verbs ending with any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing, Rule xix.)
Latin induere, to put on [a garment]; Greek endue.
Indulge, in.dulge', to humour, to cocker; indulged' (2 syl.), indulg'-ing (Rule xix.); indulg'-er; indulg'-ent, indulg'- gent-ly; indulgence, in.dül'-jence.
Fr. indulgent, indulgence; Lat. indulgentia, indulgens, gen. -entis.
Indurate, in.dü.rate, to harden; in'durát-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'durat-ing (Rule xix.); induration, in.dür.at'-shün.
Latin induratio, indūrāre (dūrus, hard); French induration.
Industry, in.di.stry (not, in.dus'-try), diligence in work;
industries, manual trades; industrial, in.dus'-tri.āl; industrial-ly; industrial school, where trades, &c., are taught; industrious, in.dū.š'.tri.ū.s (not in.dū.š'.trū.s), hard-working; industrious-ly, diligently.
French industre, industriel; Latin industria, industrius.
Indweller, in.dwell'er, an inhabitant; indwell'-ing.
Norse in duvel, to dwell in; duveler, a dweller.
-ine (Latin -in[us]), adj., pertaining to, as canine (cántis, a dog).
-in (Latin -in[us]), nouns, (in Chem.) a gas or simple substance.
-ina (Latin -ina), feminine termination, as hero-ine.
Inebriate, in.e.bri.at, to make drunk; inēbriát-ed (R. xxxvi.), inēbriat-ing (R. xix.); inebriety, in.e.брі-ш.і.ші.
Inebriation, in.e.bri.at'-shün, intoxication.
Lat. inebriatio, inebriator, v. inebriāre (in intensive, ebrūs, drunk).
Inedited, in.itd'it.ēd, not published. (Latin inēditus).
Ineffable, in.ēf'.fā.b'l, unspeakable; ineffa'bly.
French ineffable; Latin ineffābitis (in, not, fārī, to speak).
Ineffaceable, in.ēf'.fā.sē.at.ē', (only -ce and -ge retain the e before -able, Rule xx.), not to be effaced; inefface'ably.
Fr. ineffacable (Lat. in, ef[ex]fācēs, not [wiped] from the face).
Ineffectual, in.ēf'.fēk'-tū.āl (not in.ēf'.fēk'-tū.āl), failing to produce the desired result; ineffectu'al-ly.
Ineffective, in.ēf'.fēk'-tīv; inef-fec'tive-ly, ineffec'tive-ness.
Inefficacious, in.ēf'.fī.kās'-shū.s, inadequate; inefficaciously, inefficacious-ness, inefficacy, in.ēf'.fī.к.ас.
Inefficient, in.ēf'.fīsh'-ent, not sufficient for the purpose;
inef-fic'i.ently; inefficiency, in.ēf'.fīsh'-ēn.sy.
Lat. inefficax, gen. efficacis, without potency (in, ef[ex]fācio [facio].
Inelastic, in.ēl.ēs'k, not elastic; inelasticity, in.ēl.ēs.tīs'- s.ī.ly, not possessed of elastic power.
Non-elastic, non-elasticity. (Fr. forms non-élas.tique, &c.)
French in, not; élastique, élasticité (Greek eλάστος, to draw out).
Inelegant, in.ēl.ē.gānt, not elegant; inelegant-ly; inelegantness, in.ēl.ē.gān.сe, inelegance, in.ēl.ē.г.ś.n.sy.
Ineligible, (with -il- not -le-), in.ēlī.gībīl, not eligible; ineligibly, inēligibli̇t̄̆.
French indéligence, indéligent, ineligible, ineligibility; Latin inēligantia (in, not, ēligō [ēgo], to pick out).
An “elegant” thing is something “picked out” for its beauty.
An “eligible” person is one “picked out” for his suitability.
(If we had not Cicero’s assurance of the fact, the derivation of elegant from ēligens, gen. ēligentīs would be quite incredible.)

Inequality, plu. inequalities, inēk'wō̂l'mi̇z, want of equality.
Inequitable, inēkwikitub‘I, not just or impartial.
Unequal, unēkwōl̄, not equal; unequally, unequally.

Latin ēgalitas, egōt̄a (aegō̄s, equal).
Ineradicable, inērād‘I.kāb‘I, not to be rooted out.
Uneradicated, unērād‘I.kā.ō̄d̄, not uprooted (R. Lxxii.)
Latin in, not, ēxradicāre, to root out (radix, a root).
Inert, inert‘I, slow to act, sluggish; inert-ly, inert-ness.
Inertia, inēr‘I.shē.ah, the reluctance of material bodies to change motion for rest, or rest for motion.

In esse (Lat.), in ēs‘I.sy, in actual existence, in actual possession;
In posse (Lat.), in pōs‘I.sy, in expectancy, what may be.
Uneesteemed, unēs‘I.teem‘I, not esteemed (Rule Lxxii.)
Fr. inestant, Lat. inestimābilis,-ābilis (Gk. ēs tinō).
Inevitable, inēv‘I.tē.ō̄d̄, not to be avoided; inevitable-ness, inevitably; inēvabilitas, -itābilis, inevitable.
Unavoided, unēv‘I.void‘I.ō̄d̄, not avoided; unavoidable.
Fr. inévitable; Lat. inēvabilitas (in, ēxvitāri, not to be avoided).
Inexact, inex‘I.ekc’t‘I, not exact; inexact-ness; inexactitude.
Unexact, unēx‘I.ek’d‘I.ēd̄, not exact or insistent on.
Fr. inexacte, inexactitude; Lat. inexactus, not exact (exactus, done throughout; ca-ago, to do-to-the-end).
Inexcitable, inēx‘I.eks’Iē.tē.ō̄d̄, not excitable; inexcitable-ness; insensibility.
Inexciting, inēx‘I.ek.ūtē.ō̄d̄, not exciting (Rule Lxxii.).
Fr. inexcitant, inexicitabilitas; Lat. ēxcitābilis, -ībilis; ēxcitāre (ex cīō, to stir up).
Inexceusable, inēx‘I.ekc’sū.ō̄d̄, not to be excused; inexceusably, inexceusable-ness.
Unexcused, unēx‘I.ekś.ūd̄.
Fr. inexcusable; Lat. inexcūsabilitas (in, ēx, causa, not free from motive).
Inexhausted, inēx‘I.ekh‘Iōs’Iē.ō̄d̄, not exhausted; inexhaustible, inexhaustibly; inēxhaustibilitas, -ībilis, inexhaustibly.
Unexhausted, unēx‘I.ekh‘Iōs’Iē.ō̄d̄, not exhausted (Rule Lxxii.)
Latin in, not, ēxhaurīo, supine exhaustīum (to draw [all] out).
Inexorable, in.ex'orə.bl, not to be appeased; inex'orably, inex'orable-ness; inexorability, in.ex'orəbil'i.ty.

French inexorable; Latin inexoratītis (in, ex orātī, not to be induced by prayers not-to-do a thing).

Inexpedient, in'.ex.pe'ดน.ə.lent (not -exe'pé.jent), unfit, undesirable; inexpedient-ly; inexpedience, in'.ex.pe'دان.ə.in.sən.

French in,- in., expedant; Latin in·exped·ere (in, ex, pede, not to put the foot forth, i.e., not to bestir oneself, not to expedite).

Inexpensive (Not connected with pence), in'.ex.pen.səv; not costly; inexpensive-ly, inexpensive-ness.

Unexpended, un'.ex.pən'.ə.did, not all spent (Rule lxxii.)

Inexperience, in'.ex.pe'دان.ə.in.sənse; want of experience; inexpcri·enced (5 syl.) or Unexperienced (Rule lxxii.)

Inexpiable, in'ex.pə.ə.bəl, not atonable; inexpia·bly.

French inexpiable; Latin in·expiab·lis, in·expia·bi·lis, in·expia·bi·lis; in·ex·piab·li·tis, -expiāre (pio, to purge).

Inexplicable, in'ex.plə.bəl; Unexplainable, un.ex.plain'.ə.bəl.

Inexplicable, impossible to be explained from mysterious obscurity, hence we say an inexplicable mystery.

Unexplainable, impossible to be explained for moral or physical reasons; thus the processes of algebra are inexplicable to young children and rustics.

Inexplicable-ness, inexplicable-ly; inexplicability, in'ex·plikə.bəl'i.ty (not in'ex·plikə.bəl'i.ty).

Unexplained, un'.ex.plain'd, not explained (Rule lxxii.)

French inexplicable; Latin inexplicabīlis, inexplicātītis, in·explicārī; not to be unfolded (pīca, a fold or plait); in·ex·planārī, not to be smoothed out or made level.

Inexplic, in'.ex.plis'.ə.it, not clear; inexplic‘ity.

Latin inexplicā, supine -explicītum, not to unfold or reveal.

Inexplorable, in'.ex.plə're.bl, not able to be explored.

Unexplored, un'.ex.plə'rdt, not explored (Rule lxxii.)

Latin in, explōrātī, not to be explored (plōrō, to bewail; to burst into tears. The connection is not manifest).

Inexpressible, in'ex.prəs'.ə.bl (not -able), indescribable; inexpressibly.

Inexpressive, in'ex.prəs'.ə.itv; inexpress‘ive-ly, inexpress‘ive-ness; Unexpressed, un'.ex.prəz'.ə.

Inextinct, in'.ex.tənk'kət, not extinct.

Latin in·extinctus, not extinguished.

Inextinguishable (Rule xxiii.), in'.ex.tən'.ə.gwəsh.ə.bl.

Unextinguished, un'.ex.tən'.ə.gwəch, not quenched (R. lxxii.)

Inextricable, in.ex' tri.ká 'ból, not to be disentangled; in.ex'tri-ca'ble, in-ex'tri-ca-bl. y. Un-ex'tri-ca'ted (Rule lxxxii.)
Fr. inextricable; Lat. inextricabilis (in, not, ex triac, out of the "hair leggings" wrapped round the feet of fowls to prevent their roaming).
Infallible (not -able), in.fá' l. ból, not liable to err; infal'lib.ly.
Infallibility (double l), in.fá' l. bíl.ty; infal'lib-ly.
Lat. infallibilis (in, fallère, to deceive; Gk. ephalló, to make to fall).
Infamous, in'.fá.mós (not in.fá'.mós), shameful; in'.famous-ly.
Infamy, in'.fá.má, public disgrace, extreme baseness.
Infant, a babe. Infanté, in.fán'.ty (in Spain or Portugal), any royal prince except the eldest. Infanta, in.fán'.tah, any royal princess except an heir-apparent to the throne.
Infantry, in'.fán.trí, foot soldiers. Cavalry, horse soldiers.
Fr. infant, infanticide; Lat. infantia, infanticium, infantiæ (in-fans, gen. -fantis, not able to speak).
"Infantry," the servants of the knights. They went on foot, while the knights rode on horseback. ("Infant" = Latin puer, a boy or servant = French garçon = Italian fante, a serving-man.)
Italian fanteria; Spanish infanteria; French infanterie.
Infatuate, in.fá.tú' ate, to bewitch; infat'uat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), infat'uat-ing (Rule xix.) Infatuation, in.fá.tú' shún.
French infatuer, infatuation; Latin infatúatio, v. infátuare (fátus, a fool; infatúus, to make a fool of one).
Infect', to taint; infect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), infect'-ing, infect'-er.
Infection, in.fék'. shún. Infectious, in.fék'. shús; infec'tious-ness, infec'tious-ly; infect-ive, in.fék'. tív.
Infectious disease, one communicated by the air.
(Latin in.fé.ca [fácio], supine infectum, to unmake, to deprave.)
Contagious disease, one communicated by contact.
(Latin con-tago [tango], to touch together.)
Epidemic disease, one not restricted to a locality.
(Greek épi-démos, on [all] the people, popular.)
Endemic disease, one restricted to a narrow locality.
(Greek endémos, at home, local.)
Infer', to deduce; inferred, in.férd'; inferr'-ing, Rule iv. (with double r). Infer'-able, Rule xxi. (better inferr'-ible).
In'er-ence; inferential, in'.fer rén'. shál; inferential-ly.
Latin inferre, to bring in, to infer; inere, gen. inferentis.
Inferior, in.fé'.ri.or, of lower rank or quality.
Inférieur plan'ets, those which have their orbits nearer to the sun than our own. Superior planets, those which have their orbits further from the sun than our own.
Inferiority, in.fé'.ri.o.ri.ty. (Lat. inérior; Fr. inériorité.)
Infernal, in'fer'nel, diabolical, pertaining to hell; infer'nal-ly.
French infernal; Latin infernalis (infra, below).
Infertile, in'fer'tile, not fertile; infert'ile-ly, in'fer'til'ly.
Infertility, in'fer'til'i'ty, sterility, barrenness.
French infertile, infertilité; Latin infertilitas.
Infest', to annoy, to haunt [as vermin, weeds, beggars, thieves, &c.]; infest'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), infest'-ing, infest'-er.
Latin infestare (in, festus, not joyful); French infester.
Infidel, in'fi'del, a disbeliever in the national religion.
In England, one who does not believe in the "atonement."
In Turkey, one who does not follow the Mahometan faith.
Atheist, a'theist, one who does not believe in God.
Infidel'ity, de'ism, a theism, the notions of infidels, deists, and atheists respecting God and the Bible.
Fr. infidèle, infidélité; Lat. infidelis, infidelitas (fides, faith).
Infiltmate, in'fi'l'mate, to enter through the pores; infil'trated, infil'trating (R. xix.); infiltration, in'fil'tra' tion, shan.
French infiltration, v. infiltrer (en feutre, [strained] through felt).
Infinite, in'fi'nite (not in'fi'nite), endless; in'fi'nite-ly.
Infinitive, in'fi'nit'ive [mood], part of a verb in Grammar; in'fi'nitive-ly. Infinitude, in'fi'nit'ude.
Infinitesimal, in'fi'nit'es'mal, infinitely small.
Ad infinitum (Lat.), ad in'fi'nit'um, for ever, without end.
French infinie, infinitésimal, infini; Latin infinitas, infinitus, infinitius modus (in finis, without end).
Infirm', feeble. Unfirm, not steady; infirm'-ly, unfirm'-ly.
Infirmity, pl. in'firms (Rule xlv.), in'fi'mi'ties.
Infirmary, pl. infirmaries, in'fi'rnaries, a hospital.
French infirme, infirmère (wrong), infirmité; Latin infirmus, infirmamus, infirmatum, infirmitas (in frumus, not firm or strong).
Inflame' (2 syl.), to kindle; inflamed' (2 syl.), inflam'-ing (Rule xix.), inflam'-er. (The verb should have been inflamm.)
Inflammable, in'flam'mable, inflam'mable-ness, inflamm'mably. Inflammatory, in'flam'ma'tory, in'flam'ma'tory.
Inflammability, in'flam'ma'bil'i'ty.
Inflammation, in'flam'mation, shan (not in'flam'may' shan).
French inflammable, inflammabilité, inflammation, inflammatoire; Latin inflammatio, v. inflammare (flamma, a flame).
Inflato' (2 syl.), to puff out; inflat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inflat'-ing (R. xix.), inflat'ing-ly, inflat'-er. Inflation, in'flay'shan.
Lat. inflatio ("inflation," not Fr.), inflaire, to blow or puff out.
Inflect', to bend; inflect'-ed, inflect'-ing; inflective, in'flek'tive;
Inflection, in'flek'shan; inflec'tion-äl, inflec'tion-äl-ly.
Inflected, infléct, bent; inflexible (not -able), inflexibility, *infléct*ion, *inflék*shún; inflexibility, infléx'-shún.

Latin infectio, v. infectare, supine infléctum, inflexio, inflexibilitas (in-flecto, not to bend); French inflexible, inflexion, inflexible, inflexion. (The other forms are not French.)

Inflict', to impose (followed by on); inflict'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inflict'-ing, inflict'-er; inflict'-ive, inflék'-iv; *Inflict*ion; *inflék*shún, a hardship, a calamity.

French infliction, inflict'; Latin injle'-cère*, supine infléctum.

Inflorescence, infló'-res'-senses; a flowering, a mode of flowering.

French inflorescence; Latin inflórescere, frequent. of flóreo, to flourish.

Influence', authority, social or moral power, to induce, to affect by social or moral force; influenced (3 syl.), influence'-ing (R. xix.), influence'-er; influential, influ'-én'-'shál; influential-ly, influ'-én'-'shál-'ly.

Influenza, influ'-én'-'zah, an epidemic catarrh or cold.

Influx, an inpouring, a large number of strangers arrived.

French influence, v. influencer; Latin influentia, influens, inflévere, supine -fléxum, to flow in. (The idea is that one liquor affects another by flowing into it.) "Influenza" (Ital.), an astro- notion that the disease is under the "influence" of the stars.

Infold'- (not en-fold). It is to "fold in," not to "make" a fold), infold'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), infold'-ing, infold'-ment.

Old Eng. in, in, feald'[an], past foald, past part. -gefoalden, to infold.

Inform', to instruct, to tell; informed' (2 syl.), inform'-ing.

Inform'-ant, one who tells another a piece of news or gossip.

Inform'-er, one who tells a magistrate of persons who violate the laws, one who prosecutes a law-breaker.

Information, infor'-mation, v. informer; Lat. informatio, informare (forma,form).

Infraction, infrak'-shún. (See Infringe.)

Infrequent, infré'quent, Unfrequent, unfré'quent, seldom; in- or un-fré'quent-ly; in- or un-*fré*quency;

Unfrequented, unfré'quent'-ed, rarely visited (Rule lxxii.)

Latin infréquens, gen. -frequentis, infrequentis, infrequentatus.

Infringe' (2 syl.), to violate, to encroach on; infringed' (2 syl.), infring'-ing, infring'-er infring*'-ment (Rule xviii.);

Infrangible, infrán'-gibl, not to be violated or broken; infrangible-ness, infrangibly, infrangibility.

Infraction, infrak'-shún, a violation, a breach.

Latin infringère [frango], fractum, to break in pieces, to violate; infractio, infrangibilis; French infraction, infrangible.

36—2
Infuriate, in.fū́.rā́.tḗ.te, to enrage; infú.riā́t-ed (Rule xxxvi.), infú.riā́t-ing; infú.riā́t-e (adj), enraged; infú.riā́t-er.
Latin in, intensive, furiā́re, to madden, furiā́tus.
Infuse, in.fū́́.ze, to steep in water without boiling (followed by in), to instil (followed by into); infused' (2 syl.), infū́.s-ing, infū́.s-ible (not -able); infusable.
Infusion (R. xxxiii.), in.fū́.zhū́n. Decoction, de.kṓk'-shū́n.
Infusion is maceration without boiling: as tea; Decoction is a boiled infusion: as gruel and barley-water.
Infusive, in.fū́.sū́.v; infú.sive-ly. (in- meaning "in").
(In the following examples the prefix "in-" is used negatively, and the same words are used in a directly contradictory sense.)
Infusable, able to be infused, or not able to be infused. Infusibility, capacity of being made into an infusion (see above), incapacity of being made into an infusion. (Some other negative prefix, as "non-", ought to have been employed.)
Infusoria, in.ʃu.ʃɔ́.rǐ.ə́.lə́.h, minute animal organisms in impure water. Obtained from infusions of vegetable matter, after being exposed to the air; infú.sorial; infú.sory, an order of infusoria, containing infusoria. French infusible, infusibilité, infusion, infusoire, infusoirs; Latin infū́.sṓ.riúm (a crust), infū́.sṓ́, v. infundé́rē, sup. infū́.sū́́m.
-ing (native suffix), the pres. part. (representing -ende or -inde), as "he is coming" [cum-ende].
-ing (native suffix), in verbal nouns (representing -ung), as "the preaching" [predic-ung]. It is much to be regretted that this termination has been discarded.
-ing (native suffix), a patronymic, originating from. Common in the names of places, with or without -ham, -ton, den, &c.
Latin ingé́.nius, honest, frank (becoming a gentleman, gens)
Inglorious, in.glɔ́.rə́.lə́.s (R. lxvi.), ignominious; inglor′ı́.ous-ly, inglorious-ness. (Latin inglorius, inglṓ.riṓ.sus.)
Ingraft. (See Engraft.)
Ingratiate, in.grā́.ʃḗ.tḗ.te, to secure the goodwill and favour of a person. (Followed by with before the person concerned); ingrá.tiā́t-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ingrá.tiā́t-ing.
(In the following examples "in-" with gratia is negative.)
Ingratitude, in.grā́.tī́.tude, want of gratitude. Ingrate'.
Ungrateful, un.grā́.tḗ.fū́́; ungrate′.ful-ly.
Fr. ingrät, ingratitude; Lat. ingrā́ttiā́́; ingrā́tus (gratia, thanks).
Ingredient, in.grec'di.ent (not in.grec'dijent), one of the items of a mixture, a component part.

In'gress, entrance; E'gress, exit. Ingression, in.grēsh'.un.
French ingredient; Latin ingredior [gradior], to enter in.

Ingulf. (See Engulf.)

Inhabit, in.hāb'it, to occupy as a residence, to dwell in; in.hab'it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inhabit'ing, inhabit'able.

Inhabit'ant, a rightful and permanent resident;
Inhabit'er, one living in a house permanently or not.

Habitation, hab'i.ta'shun; habitable, hā'b'il.tā.b'l; habi.table-ness; habitancy, hab'i.tān.sy.
Latin inhabita'bilis, inhabi'tantes, inhabi'tatio, inhabi'tāre: French habitable, habitation; "in-habitable" (French), not-habitable.

Inhale' (2 syl.), to draw into the lungs; inhāled' (2 syl.), in-hāl'ing (R. xix.), inhāl' er, inhāl'able (first Lat. conj.)

Inhalation, in'hā.la'ti.shun, inspiration [of fumes].
Latin inhala'tio, inhālāre (to breathe in); French inhalation.

Inharmonic, in.har.mō'nik, sequence of sounds at abnormal intervals; inharmonical, -mō'nik'.ī.kāl; inharmonical-ly.
Inharmonious, in.har.mō'ni.ūs (Rule lxvi.), not harmonious; inharmonious-ly, inharmonious-ness.

Fr. in, not, harmonque, harmonieux; Lat. harmonia, harmonicus.

Inherent, in.hē'rent, innate; in'hē'rent-ly, in'hē'rency.
French inhérent, inhérence; Latin in'hāre'te, to stick fast in.

Inherit, in.hē'rēt, to possess by inheritance; inhē'rēt-ed in'hē'rēt-ing, inhē'rēt-able, inhē'rēt-ibly, inhē'rēt-anee.

Inhē'rēt-or, fem. inhē'rētress or inhē'rē'trix.

Inheritability, in.'hē'rē.tāb'il'.i.ty.
(The prefix "in-" should not have been added to these words, for "in hāres" (Lat.) is "one who is not the heir" or one who has no heir.)

Heritage, hē'rē.tage; heritable, hē'rē-tor.

Hereditable, he.re'di.tā.b'l; hereditibly, hered'ily.

Hereditary, he.re'di.tā.ry; hereditament, her'ē.dit'.āment.
(In the following the "h" is not sounded.)

Heir, fem. heir-ess, air, air'-ess; with the compounds.
French hē'rī'ter, hē're'tage, hē'rī'ter, hē're'ditaire; Latin hāre'ditarius, hāre'ditas, hāres, an heir. No verb in the Latin.

Inhospitalable, in-hōs.pī.tā.b'l (not in'hōs.pī't'.ā.b'l), not hospitable; inhō'spi'tably. Inhospitality, in'hōs.pī.tā'.tī.ty.

Latin inhospitalis, inhospi'tātis (in, neg., hospes, a host).

Inhuman, in.you.mān, cruel; inhū'man-ly, cruelly.

Inhumanity, plu. inhumanities (R. xliiv.), in.you.mān'.i.tīz.
Latin inhū'mānus, inhū'māntas; French inhū'main, inhū'ma'ti.
Inhume, inhum·n, to bury.  Exhume, *ex·humin·t, to disinter.

Inhume·d’ (2 syl.), i·humin··t·-ing; i·humin·ta·tion, -may·shun.

Inimical, in·im·i·k·al, (not i·mi·k·al), hostile; inimical·ly.

Latin inimicus (in, not, amicus, a friend).

Inimitable, in·im·i·ta·ble, exquisito, beyond imitation; inim·i·ta·bly; inimitability, in·im·i·ta·bil·i·ty.

Fr. inimitable.  Lat. inimitabilis (in, not, imitari, to be copied); Fr. inimitable.

Iniquity, in·i·qui·tie·s, in·i·iqui·ty, atrocity; iniquitous, in·i·qui·tous·ly, in·i·qui·tous·ly.

French iniquité; Latin iniquitas (i1eJ.not, aquus, ~ven 0~just).

Initials, in·i·sh·i·il·z, the first letters of a person’s name: as J. S. [John Smith]; initial, *i·sh·il· at, at the beginning.

Initiat-or (Rule xxxvii.), i·sh·i·a·tor, one who initiates.

Initiate, i·sh·i·a·te, to teach, to introduce; initiat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), i·sh·i·a·te·cd; initiat-ing (Rule xix.), i·sh·i·a·te·ing.

Initiative, i·sh·i·a·ti·ve, i·sh·i·a·ti·ve·ly; initiatory, i·sh·i·a·ti·or·y.

Initiation, i·sh·i·a·ti·on, formal admission.

French initiative, initiation; Latin initia (i1i·t·a·rum, the beginning; *in·i·tiium, the beginning: *in·i·tio, supine *in·i·ti·um, to go in).

Inject’, to force in; inject·ed (R. xxxvi.), inject·ing, inject·er.

Injection, i·n·jek·sh·un, the act of injecting, what is to be...

Fr. injection, v. injecter; Lat. injection, i·n·jek·sh·un.

Injudicious, in·jui·dis·h·us, not judicious; injudicious·ly, injudicious·ly.

Injudicial, in·judi·ci·al, not judicial.

Injudicable, in·judi·ca·bil·e, not amenable to law-courts.

Latin injudicabilis; in, not, judicialis (i1eJex, a judge).

Injunction, i·n·junk·sh·un, command.  (Latin injunction).

Injury, i·n·jur·iz, damage; in·jur·er.

Injurious, in·jur·ious·ly; injurious·ly, injurious·ness.

Injure, i·n·jur·ir, to damage; injured (2 syl.), i·n·jur·ing.

Latin injury, injurious·us, v. injuriri (in, not, jus, what is right).

Injustice, in·jus·t·is, failure or violation of justice.

Unjust* (should be unjust), unjust·ly*; unjust·able.

Unjustified, un·jus·ti·fied, not justified (Rule lxxii.).

French injustice, injust; Latin injustitia, injustus, injuste (adverb).

Ink, a fluid for writing, &c., to daub with ink; inked, inkt; ink·ing, ink·yi, ink·i·ness (R. xi.), ink·i·ly, ink·stand.

French encre; Italian inchiostra; Latin encaustum; Dutch inkt.

Inkling, ink·ling (no connection with ink), an intimation.

Welsh ygan, to hint or intimate.

Inlace* (3 syl.), to embellish with lace, to lace together; inlaced (3 syl.); inlac·ing, in·la·c·ing; inlac·er, in·la·c·er.

Latin laceto, to make holes in [cloth]; lacta·ia, fringe.
Inlaid', -laid, paid, said, with their compounds. (See Inlay.)

In'land, remote from the coast; in'land-er, one who dwells inland.

Inland Revenue, re'v.a.n., derived from taxes, excise, stamps.

Old Eng. in-land, in-lana, an inlander; inland, born in the land.

Inlay, (noun) in'lay, insertion; (verb) in'lay', to lay brass, ivory, &c., in furniture. Inlay, past inlaid, past part. inlaid (R. xiv.), inlay'ing, inlay'er. (O. E. in lecg.)

In'let, a small bay, a passage into.

Old Eng. in with let, x. led(ian), to lead in, or le(ian), to let in.

Inly, in'ly, internally. (Old Eng. inl(e) (adj.), inl(e)ce (adv.), inly.)

In'mate (2 syl.), a mate in the same house. (Dutch maat.)

In'most, furthest from the outside. In'nermost (a corruption of the Old English innemest [in'.ne.mest]).

Inn, an hotel; In, a prep. Inn-keep'er, Inn-yard.

Inns of Court, the four "societies" which exercise the right of admitting persons to practice at the bar: (1) The Inner Temple, (2) The Middle Temple, (3) Lincoln's Inn, (4) Gray's Inn. Inns of Chancery, nine appendages to the "Inns of Court": (1) Clement's, (2) Clifford's, (3) Lyon's (of the "Inner Temple"), (4) Furnival's, (5) Thavies', (6) Somerset's (of "Lincoln's Inn"), (7) New Inn (of the "Middle Temple"), (8) Barnard's, (9) Staple's Inn (of "Gray's Inn").

Inmate' (2 syl.), inborn; innately, innately-ness. (Lat. inната.)

In'er, comparative of in, (super.) in'er-most or in-most.

"Inner-most," a corruption of innemost or innemest (in'.ne.mest), not inner and most. Old English in, inner, innemest.

Innervation, in'ner.vay'ment, a state of weakness, a vital process by which nervous energy is imparted.

Unnerved, un.nervad', the nerves unstrung. (Lat. nervat.) ("In," (intens. and neg.) in the same word is objectionable.)

Innings, in'ningz, the turn of a player to use the bat in cricket. Old Eng. innung, an inning. "Outing," a jaunt into the country.

Innocence, in'.no.sense. In'nocents, idiots.

In'nocence; freedom from impurity, even in thought; in'nocency. In'nocent, in'nocent-ly.

The Innocents, the babes slain by Herod.

French innocente; innocent; Latin innocens, gen. -centis, innocentia.

Innocuous, in.nok'ki.tūs. Innocuous, in.nok'she'us (Rule lxvi.)

Innocuous, productive of no harm, safe from harm, innocuous, free from harmful qualities.

You may take [chloral] innocuously, because it is innocuous. The drug is innocuous [harmless], because it is innocuous.
Innocuous-ly, innocuous-ness, freedom from harming;
innoxious-ly, in.nō'k. shūs. ly; innoxious-ness.
Latin in.nōcūs (in nōcens, not hurting); in.nōcūs (noxa, a hurt).
Innovate, in'no.vate, to introduce change; in'novāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), in'novāt-ing (R. xix.); in'novāt-or (R. xxxvii.); inovation, -vay''shun, a change of established custom.
Lat. in.nōcēatio, in.nōcētur in.nōcērē (nōcēus, new); Fr. innovation.
Innoxious, in.nō''k.shē'us. (See Innocuous.)
Innuendo, plu. in.nu.endoe (double n), in'.nu.en''dē ze, an indirect hint. (Lat. in.nu.endo, [to hint] by nodding to one.)
Innumerable, in.nu'me'ral, numberless; in.nu'merably.
Unnumbered, un.nu'me''rd, not numbered (Rule lxxii.).
Innervous (not -cious, nutri'cious [in Lat.] is the adj. of nutri'cious, gen. nutri'cīs, a nurse), yielding nourishment (Rule lxvi.).
Innervation, in.nu''e''shun, in.nu'en''siv, yielding nourishment (Rule lxvi.).
Latin in.nu''e''rātio, v. in.nu''e''rāre in.nu''e''rātum, not to nourish.
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''ob.zer''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inobservant, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inobservance, in''ob.zer''vance, in''obser''vable, -z''er''va''ble.
Unobserved, un''ob.zervd', not observed. (Rule lxii.)
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inoobserving, in''ob.zer''ving, in''obser''vative, to observe (Rule lxii.).
Inoobserver, in''ob.zer''vant, not observer; in''obser''vant-ly;
in''obser''vant-ness.
Inordinate, in.or'di.nate, immoderate; inor'di.nate-ly, inor'di.nate-ness. (Latin inordinatus, in ordinäre, ordo, order.)

Inorganic, in.'or.gân'.îk, not organic, as earths and minerals; inorganical, in.'or.gân'.îk.îl; inorganic-ly.

Inorganised, in.or.'gân'.îzed, not having organic structure;

Unorganised, not methodised, not arranged;

Disorganised, deranged, broken up.

French inorganique; Latin in, not, organiceus; Greek organin.

Inosculation, in.ös'.kût.late, to unite as two vessels in a living body; inos'culat-ed (R. xxxvi.), inos'culat-ing (R. xix.).

Inosculated, in.ös'.kût.lay'.shûn, union by ducts.

Lat. in oscūlāri, to [fit] one little mouth into another (oscūtum, os dim.)

Inquietude, in.kuí'.e.tude, anxiety. (Lat. inquietūdō, disquiet.)

Disquiet, dis.kuí'.et, discomfort; disqui'et-ed, distressed.

Unquiet, un.kuí'.et, not in repose, restless.

Inquire, in.kuí're', to ask about, to search after; inquired' (2 syl.), inquir' ing (Rule xix.), inquir' ing-ly, inquir' er.

Inquiry, plu. inquiries, in.kuí'.riz; investigation, a question.

Inquisitive, in.kuíz'.î.tiv, prying, apt to ask questions; inquisitive-ly, inquisitive-ness, pertinent curiosity.

Inquest', an official investigation into the cause of a death.

Inquisition, in'.kuí.z'ish'.un, a court for trying "heretics"; inquisition-al, in'.kuí.z'ish'.în.al, adj. of inquisition; inquisition-ary, in'.kuí.z'ish'.în.îr.y;

Inquisit'or, in.kuíz'.î.tor, an officer of the inquisition; inquisitorial, in.kuíz'.î.tor'îl; inquisito'rial-ly.

French enquérir, enquête now enquête, inquisition, inquisitorial, inquisiteur; Latin inquisitoio, inquisitor, v. inquirere, supineinquisition (in quero, to search into).

Inroad, in.rô.de, an encroachment. (Old English in râd.)

Insalubrious, in'.sâ.lû'.bri.îs (R. lxvi.), unhealthy; insalur'bry.

Insalutary, insûl'.û.târ.y, not favourable to health.

Latin insalubrius, insalubritas (salus, health); French insalubrité.

Insane, in.sain', mad; insane-ly, insane-ness, madness.

Unsound, not sound; unsound'-ly, unsound'-ness.

Insanity, plu. insanities, in.sân'.î.tiz, madness.

Latin insânia, insânttas, v. insâniō (in sânius, not sound).

Insatiable, in.say'.shît.â.îl, greedy; insâtiably, insâtiable-ly; insatiable-ness, in.say'.shît.â.îl.îty;

Insati ate, in.say'.shît.â.tê, never satisfied; insati ated, in.say'.shît.â.têd, not satisfied; insâti ate-ly.

Insatiety, in'.sâ.tâ.î.ty, state of hungering for more.

French insatiable, insatiaibîlî; Latin insâtiabilîs, insâtiabilîtas.
Inscribe, *in*scrib*ē* (to write), *in*scrib*ē*ing (Rule xix., *in*scrib*ē*er.

Inscroll*ē* (not *in*scroll), to *in*ser*ē* on a scroll; *in*scroll, *in*scroll*ē*ing. *in*scroll*ē*er (in-scroll, in-roll, see Roll.)

Inscutable, *in*scrib*tā*bil, mysterious; *in*crib*tā*ble-ness.

Inscrutability, *in*scrib*tā*ble*ty; *in*crib*tā*bly. French inscrutable, inscrutabilité, Latin *in*scrutabilitas, *in*scrutabilitas (in-scrutari; not to scrutinise).

In*sect, a small animal (like a bee or fly) whose body seems to be almost cut through in parts; *in*sectivora, *in*sect*ū*rum. *ov*ra, a family of animals, like the hedgehog and mole, that lives on insects; *in*sectivorous, *in*sect*ū*rum. *ov*ra. Latin insecta vorāre, to devour insects.

In*sectile, *in*sect`tā*le, having the nature of insects.

In*section, *in*sect*ū*rum, an incision; *in*sect*ē*ed.

Latin insecta, insectio (in sēco, supine sectum, to cut into slices).

Insecure, *in*sec*tū*re,* not secure; *in*secure-*ly; *in*secure*ty.

Unsecured, *un*sec*tū*red,* not secured (Rule Lxxii.)

Latin in, not; sēcūrūs, sēcūrūs (oration) cura, special care.

Insensible (not able), *in*sēn*ē*stā*bil, without feeling; *insensible*ness; insensibly, by imperceptible degrees.

Insensibility, *in*sēn*ē*stā*bil*ē*ty, loss of sensibility.

Insensate, *in*sēn*ē*stā*te,* destitute of sense or sensibility.

Insentient, *in*sēn*ē*stē*nt,* not having perception.

Fr. insensible, insensible; Lat. insensibilis, insensibilitas (sensus).

Inseparable, *in*sep*tū*rum*ē* (pa- and only one p), not separable; *in*separable-ness, *in*separably, inseparability.

Inseparables, *in*sep*tū*rum*ē* (pa- and only one p), not to be parted.

Unseparated, *un*sep*tū*rum*ē* (not separated (Rule Lxxii.)

Fr. inséparable, inséparabilité, inséparables; Lat. inséparable.

Insert*, to put in; insert*ē*ed (R. xxxvi.), insert*ē*ing, insert*ē*er.

Insertion, *in*ser*ē*um, a putting in, something inserted.

French insertion: Latin insertio, *in*ser*ē*o, to put in.

Insessores, *in*sē*sē*sē*re, birds which live perched on trees; insessorial, *in*sē*sē*sē*re*ā*l, adj. of the above.

Latin insidēre (sedeo) insessum, to perch on [a tree], *insessor.

Insishine. (See Enshrine.)

Inside, *in*side, the part within. Out-side, the part without.

Old English *in*side, ut side, v. inisith [i], útisith [i].

Insidious, *in*sid*ē*us, (not: *in*sid*ē*us), treacherous, crafty; *insidious*ness, *insidious*ly, craftily, treacherously.

Latìn insidius, insidio, a snare.

Insignia (plu.), in.sīg'ni.ah, badges [of office], &c. (Lat. *insigni*a.)

Insignificant, in'.sīg.nīf''i.kān'te*, of no importance; insignifi'-cant-ly, insignificance, in'.sīg.nīf''i.kān'se*; insignifi'- cancy; insignificative, in'.sīg.nīf''i.kān'.tiv*, not expressive by symbols.

Insincere, *in'.sīn.sər*ˈ, not sincere; insincerely-ly, untruthfully;

In sincerity, in'.sīn.sər'ti.ty, want of candour and fidelity.

Fr. insincère, Lat. insīcerus (in, sine-cera, not without wax). The reference is to honey from which the wax has been carefully extracted.

Insinuate, in.sin'.u.ate, to screw oneself into [place or favour], to hint insidiously; insinuat-ed (R. xxxvi.), insinuat-ing (R. xix.), insinuat-ting-ly, insinuat-or (R. xxxvi.).

Insinuation, in.sin'.u.ā'.shUn; insinuative, in.sin'.u.d.tiv.

Latin insinuatio, insinuātīvus, insinuātor, insinuāre ([in, to creep] into one's bosom; French insinuation, v. insinuer.)

Insipid, in'.sīp'.id, without flavour; insipid-ly, vapidly;

Insipidity, in'.sīp.id'.tity; insipid-ness, vapidity.

French insipide, insipidity; Latin insipidus (*in, not, sapidus, sapid).

Insist, to demand (followed by on), insist'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), insist'-ing, insist'-ence (not, insistance). We have also consistent and consistence, persistence; but have copied the French error in resistant, resistance.

Latin insistens, gen. insistentis (in-sistere, to sit or stand on); French insistance (wrong); insistant (wrong), v. insister.

In situ (Latin), in sī'.tu; in position. (Said of a fossil, when found in its original locality.)

Insinuate, in'.sīn.sər, to allure into a trap; insinuated (3 syl.), insnaring (R. xix.), insnaring-ing; insnar'er, insnair'.er.

Old English insnare, [to drive] into a snare; Danish snare.

Insobriety, in'.sō.bri'.tity, drunkenness. Insōber, drunk.

Latin sōbrius, sōberius (sōber, sober). sēbrius, sēberious.

The corresponding Greek word is se-prōn, of sound mind.

Insolent, insō.lent, impertinent; insolent-ly, insolence.

French insolent, insolence; Latin insolent, gen. -tentis, insolentia (in-solère, to be unusual). "Insolence" means unusual conduct.

Insoluble, insōl'.b'l, insōl'.vā'.b'l.

Insoluble, incapable of being melted or dissolved;

Insolvable, incapable of being solved or guessed.

Insolvent, insōl'.vent, one not able to pay his debts.
Insolveney, the state of being insolvent. (Lat. solvo, to pay.)

French insoluble, insolvables, -solubility, insolubilité; Latin insolven tis, insolvens, gen. insolventis (solvere, supine solutum).

In so much that, so that, to such a degree that... (Old Eng.)

Inspect', to review; inspect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inspect'-ing, inspect'-or (Rule xxxvii.), inspect'or-ship (-ship, office).

Inspection, in.spék'shun; inspective, in.spék'tiv.

Inspeximus, in.spēks'ī.mūs, confirmation of a grant. So called from the first word. "We have inspected" the grant and, being satisfied, confirm it.

Latin inspectio, inspector, v. inspecto (freq. of in-spicere, to pry into);
French inspection, inspecteur, inspecteur.

Inspire, in.spi' rer, to infuse courage or divine afflatus; inspired'
(3 syl.), inspir'-ing (R. xix.), inspir'-er, inspir'-able.

Inspiration, in'spē.rā'shūn, divine afflatus.

Plenary Inspiration, plē'-nā'try, inspiration which renders a person incapable of committing error.

Verbal Inspiration, inspiration of words as well as thoughts.
Inspire, to draw air into the lungs; Respirate, to exhale it.

Inspiration, inhalation; Respiration, exhalation.

Inspiratory, in'spē.rā'tör; Respiratory, res'-pirā'tör.

Uninspired, un'-in.spir'd, not inspired (Rule lxxi.).

Fr. inspiration, v. inspirer; Lat. inspiratio, v. in·spirare, to breathe in.

Inspissate, in.spi'sā'te (double -s), to thicken (by evaporation);
inspis'sāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), inspis'sāt-ing (Rule xix.);

Inspissation, in.spi'sā'shūn, the act of inspissating, &c.

Lat. in, intens.; spissāre, to thicken: spissā' tio ("spissamentum" [Lat. spissamentum], what is used for thickening, might be introduced).

Inst., Prox., Ult., for in.'stant, prox'imo, ult'imo.

Instant, the current month: as On the 10th Inst. or inst.

Ultimo, the month just past: as On the 10th ult.

Proximo, the next month: as On the 10th prox.

"Instant," for instante mense, in the current month; proximo mense, in the next month; ultimo mense, in the last month (Latin).

Instability, in'stā.bīl'i.ty, want of stability.

Unstable, un'stā'b'l, not steady, not permanent.

French instabilité; Latin instabilitas (in, not, stare, to stand).

Install (not instal), in.staw'l, to invest with office by placing the person on a stall or chair; installed, -in.stawld';
install-ing, in.stawl'-ing; install'er, in.stawl'er;

Installation, in.'stā.lāy' shūn, the ceremony of...

Instalment (would be better installment), in.stawl'ment.

Fr. installation, v. installer; Germ. installiren, installation,
Instance, in'stance (R. lix.), an example in point, to give an ...
   For instance, for example: In'stanced (2 syll.), in'stance-ing.
   In'stant, a moment, present; in'stant-ly, directly.
   Instanter, in'stant'er (Lat.), directly.
   Instantaneous, in'stant'ay'-en'sis, momentary; instanta'neous-ness; instanta'neous-ly, momentarily.
   Latin instans, gen. instantis, instantâneus, instanter, instantiu (in 'stâre, to stand by); French instance, v. instant.
   Instate' (2 syll.), to put in office; instâl-ed' (Rule xxxvi.), instât'ing, Rule xix. (Latin in-stâ' tus, [to put] in state.)
   Instead, instêd, in the place. (Followed by of.)
   Old English stede, a place, hence sted-ig, steady or fixed in its place, sted-liest, stednes, steadiness, &c.
   In'step, the upper curve of the human foot. (Old Eng. insteppe.)
   Instigate, in'stîg'ate, to urge, to induce; in'stigât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'stigât-ing (Rule xix.), in'stigât-or.
   Instigation, in'stîg'sa'men, inducement.
   Latin instigatio, instigâtor, instigâre (in stigo, to prick on; Greek stîzo, to prick): French instigation.
   Instil' (better instill'), to infuse by drops; instilled' (2 syll.); instill'-ing (Rule iv.), instill'-er, instill'-ment.
   Instillation, in'stîl'la'shun, infusion by drops.
   Fr. instillation, v. instiller; Lat. instillation, instillâre, to drop in.
   Instinct, (noun) in'sinct, (adj.) in'sinct' (followed by with).
   In'stinct, the "intellectual" faculty of animals below man.
   Reason, ree'-son, the intellectual faculty of man.
   Instinct' [with], replete; instinctive, in'stink'tiv, impul'sive, spontaneous; instinc'tive-ly, spontaneously.
   Latin instinc'tus, instinc'ture, supine instinc'tum, to provoke, to spur on (stigo, Greek stîzo, to provoke): French instinct, instinctif.
   Institute, in'stit'u'te, a literary society, a law, to found, to in'stall; in'stitût-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'stitût-ing (Rule xix.), in'stitût-or (Rule xxxvii.), in'stitût-ist.
   Institution, in'stit'u'tion, in'stitu'tion-ary, in'stitu'tion-al; insti'tute, in'stit'u'te, v. insti'tute, to found, to institute; French institut, institution, instituer.
   Instruct', to teach, to direct; instruct'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in' struct'-ing, instruct'-ible (not -able).
   Instruct'-er, one who gives directions to another.
   Instruct'-or, fem. instruct'ress, a teacher.
   Instruction, in'strük'shun; instructive, in'strük'tiv.
   Latin instructio, instructor, instruère, supine -structum (to pile up, to draw up in rank): French instruction, instructif.
Instrument, in'strü̇ment, a machine; instrument-al, in'strü̇.mén'-täl; conducive, [music] by instruments; vocal [music] by voices; instrument-mental-ly.

Instrumentation, in'strü̇.mén-tay'-shün; instrument-tist.

Instrumentality, in'strü̇.mén-täl'-i.ty, agency.

French instrument, instrumental, instrumentation, instrumentar; Latin in Instrumentum, instru men tum, instru mentalis, v. instruire, to instruct.

Insulation, in'sü̇l-a'shün, unriliness, want of subject ion; Unsubjected, un'sü̇b-jék'-téd, not subject ed (Rule lxxii.)

Insubordination, in'sü̇b-öör'-dë.nät, not yielding to authority.

Insuf-ficent, in'sü̇f.ish'-ent, not sufficient; insuf-fic'ent-ly.

Insufficiency, -fish'-ent-ty; insuf-fic'i.ence.

Insulator, in'sü̇.la.r, adj. of island; insularity, in'sü̇.lar'-ty.

Insulate, in'sü̇.lät, to detach; in'sulät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'sulät-ing (Rule xix.); in'sulät-or (Rule xxxvii.); insulation, in'sü̇.la'y'-shün (Latin forms).

Isolate, i'sö̇.la.të, to detach; i'solät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), i'solät-ing (R. xix.), i'solät-or; isolation, i'sö̇.la'y'-shün (French forms).

Lat. insularis (insula, an island); Fr. isoler, isolement (ill-formed).

Insult, (noun) in'sült, (verb) in'sült', an affront; to affront; insult-ed (R. xxxvi.), insult-ing, insult-ing-ly, insult'-er.

Latin insulto [sálto], to leap on one. Similarly “Result” to leap back, and hence to connect effect with cause; but “Consult” has quite another derivation, being from the v. consulto, sup. consultum.

Insuperable, in'sü̇.per-a.b'l, insurmountable; insuper-ab'ly.

Latin insuperabilis (super, [not to be got] over).

Insupportable (double "p"), in'sü̇p.por'-tä.b'l, insupportable; insupport'a.bly. Unsupport ed, not supported (R. lxxii.)

Fr. insupportable; Lat. in, not, sup[sub]porto, to bear up under.

Insuppressible, in'sü̇p.preś'-säl, not to be suppressed; inspress'ibly; inspressive, in'sü̇p.preś'-sä've.

Unsuppressed, un'sü̇p.preś't (Rule lxxii.)

Latin in, not, sup[subj]prēmo [prēmo], sup. pressum, to press in.

Insure, in'shur'; Assure, as'shur'; Ensure, en'sure.

Insure. (This word, in the sense of "assure," ought to be abolished; the Latin in-secūrus means "unsure," "insecure," it never means "secure.")
Assure, to contract for an indemnity in case of fire, &c.

Ensure, to make sure, to certify, to guarantee.

Insured, in.shúred; insur-ing (Rule xix.), in.shúre-ing.

Insur-er, in.shúre'er. (So with assured and ensure.)

Insurance (better Assurance), in.shúre'ance.

Insurable, in.shúre'ä.ble (better Assurable).

Insurer, in.shúre'er, one who makes a contract to indemnify himself against loss (better Assurer).

French assurer; Latin ad secúrus, to make secure to one.

Insurgent, in.sur'djent, one who rises in arms against government; insurgency, pl. insurgencies, in.sur'djën.sies.

Insurrection, in'sur.rék'shún, a revolt, an uprising; insurrection-ist, insurrection-al, insurrection-ary.

French insurgent, insurgence, insurrection, insurrectionnel; Latin insurgens, gen. -gentis, insurgentio (in-surgo, supine surrectum).

Insurmountable, in'sur.mount'ä.ble, insuperable; insurmount'ably. (French insurmontable; Latin in sursum montes.)

Insurrection, in'sur.rék'shún. (See Insurgent.)

Insusceptible, in'süs.sep'tä.ble, not susceptible; insusceptibly, insusceptibility, in'süs.sep'tä.ty, callousness.

Latin insusceptus (in, not; sub.subiectio [capio], supine susceptum).

Intact', untouched, uninjured. (See Intangible.)

Intaglio, pl. intaglios (Rule xlii.), in.tál'.yo, in.tál'.yo.se.

Intaglio reliefato, in.tál'.yo rél'i.vah'.to (Eng.-Ital. for rilevato), intaglio in relief. "Intaglio" is a gem or stone with a design cut in it, like that of a seal. When designs are raised above the general surface they are called Relievos (Eng.-Ital. for rilevó or rilevo); intagl'iated.

Intangible (not. able), in.tän'.džä.ble, insensible to touch; intangible-ness, intangible-ly, intangible-ity.

Intact, in.täkt', not touched, uninjured.

French intangible, intangibilité, intact; Latin in, not; tangère, supine tactum, to touch, intactus, intact.

Integer, in té.džär, a whole number. Fraction, less than a whole number. Integral, in té.grär', whole, entire; integral-ly; integrant, in té.grär't, a component part.

Integral Calculus (in Math.), in té.grär kä'l'.kä.tüs.

Integration, in té.grär'shún (in Math.)

Integrate, in té.grär'te; to renew, to complete; in'tegrate (Rule xxxvi.), in'TEGRÁT-ing, in'tigrate-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Integrity, in té.g ré.ti, honesty, entirety.

French intégral, intégrant, intégration, v. intégrer, intégrité; Latin integer, intégralio, intégritas, intégrare (intact).
Integument, in'teg'güm.ment, a covering [like the skin]; integumentary, in'teg'güm mâen'tà.ry (adj.).
Latin intégràmentum (in tégère, to cover in, to cover entirely).

Intellect (double -l), in'tel.lekt (not in'tel.lekt), talent, the understanding; intellect-uval, in'tel.lek''tul'; intellect-ual-ly, intellect-ual-ist, intellect-ual-ism.

Intellection, in'tel.lek'šün; intellective, in'tel.lek'tív.

Intelligence, in'tel.lëjëns, intellectual acuteness, news; intelli-gencer; intellectual, intelli-gent-ly.

Intelligible, in'tel.lëj.jí.bl', clear, lucid, perspicious; intelligible-ness, intelligibly; intelligibility, in'tel.lëj-bil''të.y, perspicuity.

French intellect, intellectif, intellation, intellectual (wrong), intelligence, intelligent, intelligibility, intelligible; Latin intellectus, intelligens, gen. -entis, intelligentia, intelligibilis, v. intelligere, supine intellectum (inter, légère, to read).

Intemperance, in.tem'pë.rance, excess; intemperate, in.tem'-pë.rate; intem'perate-ly, intem'perate-ness.

French intemprance, intemprant; Latin intemprantis, intemprans, gen. -rantis (in, not, tempe'trâ, to mix, to abstain).

Intend', to mean, to design; intend'-ed (R. xxxvi.), intend'-ing.

Intend'-ant, a manager; inten'dancy, management.
(Two French words, and both, as usual, conjugationally wrong.)

Intense, in.tense, extreme; intense'-ly, intense-ness.

Intensity, in.ten'si.të.y; intension, in.ten'shün.

Intensify, in.ten'si.fë.y, to render more intense; intensifies (Rule xi.), in.ten'si.fë.zë; intensi-fied, -fide; intensifier, in.ten'si.fë.rër; intensify-ing.

Intensive, in.ten'siv; intensive-ly, intensive-ness.

Intent', having the mind bent on a subject, meaning, drift; intent'-ly, earnestly; intent'-ness, close application.

Intention, Intension, in.ten'shün; Attention, att.en.shün.

Inten'tion, meaning, purpose, determination;
Inten'sion, same as tension, state of being strained;
Attention, diligence, vigilance, a listening state.
(Obs. "-sion" is restricted to the mechanical word.)

Intention-al, in.ten'shün.al, with design, on purpose; inten'tional-ly; [well] or [ill] intentioned, in.ten'shánd.

Attentive, at.ten'tív, bent on a subject, diligent; atten'tive-ly; attentive-ness, state of being attentive.

To all intents or To all intents and purposes, virtually.

French intendant, intendance ! intense, intensif, intensité, intention, [bien] or [mal] intentionné, intentionnel ! attentif, attention; Latin intendens, gen. intendens, intention and intensio, intention and intensus, v. in tendère, supine intensum, to strain on [something].
In'ter- (Lat. prep.), between, among: as inter-vene, inter-cept.
In'ter-. in'ter- (Lat. prep.), between, among: as inter-vene, inter-cept.
In'ter-, to bury in the earth: interred, in'ter'd; interr'-ing (Rule iv.), interr'-er, interr'-ment. (Should be interr.)
In'ter-'. in'ter- (Lat. prep.), between, among: as inter-vene, inter-cept.
In'ter', to bury in the earth; interred, in'ter'd; interr'-ing (Rule iv.), interr'-er, interr'-ment. (Should be interr.)
In'ter', to bury in the earth; interred, in'ter'd; interr'-ing (Rule iv.), interr'-er, interr'-ment. (Should be interr.)
In'ter', to bury in the earth; interred, in'ter'd; interr'-ing (Rule iv.), interr'-er, interr'-ment. (Should be interr.)
In'ter', to bury in the earth; interred, in'ter'd; interr'-ing (Rule iv.), interr'-er, interr'-ment. (Should be interr.)
Latin annus intercalarius, leap year, dies intercalarius, the extra day in leap-year; intercalatio (inter calare, to call [the extra day] between [the ordinary ones]).
Intercede, in'ter'.seed', to go between, to interpose; interced'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), interced'-ing (Rule xix.), interced'-er.
Intercession, in'.ter'.ses''shün; interces'sion-ial, interces'sional-ly, intercess'-or (Rule xxxvii.); intercessor-ial, in'ter'.ses'söör''röul; -intercessory, in'.ter'.ses'söör''röary.
(We have ten words from the Latin "cede" (to go), seven of which spell the word "cede," and three "ceed." The three ["ceed", "proceed," "succeed"] ought to be written "ceed" like the other seven, L. xxvii.)
Latin intercessio, intercessor, intercedo; Fr. interceder, intercession.
Intercolonial (only one -L), in'ter'.kol.o'.lial (in Bot.), relating to mutual colonial intercourse.
Intercommunal; Intercolonial (only one -L), in'ter'.kol.o'.lial (in Bot.), relating to mutual colonial intercourse.
Intercommunicate (double -m-), in'ter'.kom.mö''ni.käl (not in'ter'.kol.o''.ni.käl), to communicate mutually; intercommunicat-ed (L. xxxvi.), intercommunicat-ing (R. xix.), intercommunication, in'ter'.kom.mö''ni.käl''shün.
Intercommunication; in'ter'.kom.mö''ni'.ön; mutual communica'tion; intercommunity, in'ter'.kom.mö''ni'.ty.
French inter, communication, communion; Latin communica'tio, communica'tio; communica'tio, communica'tio (communis, common).
Intercostal, inˌter.ˌkösˌtāl, lying between the ribs.
French intercostal; Latin intercostālis (inter costa, between the ribs).

Intercourse (R. lix.), inˌter.ˌkōr’sē, good fellowship, trade.
French inter course; Latin -cursus, a running from one to another.

Interdict, (noun) inˌter.ˌdikt, (verb) inˌter.ˌdikt.‘

Interdict. Excommunication, ekˌkom.ˈmāˌnāˈkā.ˌshūn.
An interdict is a papal bull forbidding the clergy to perform religious rites to the person or state named in the document. “To interdict” is to issue this bull.
An excommunication (the necessary effect of an interdict), is the cutting off from church fellowship the person or state interdicted.
“To excommunicate” is to cut off from church fellowship the person or state interdicted.
An interdict carries excommunication, and excommunication implies the issue of an interdict.
An excommunication is capable of degrees, and the amount is always stated in the bull.
Interdict’, interdict’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), interdict’-ing.

Interdiction, inˌter.ˌdikˈshūn; interdictive, inˌter.ˌdikˈtīv; interdictory, inˌter.ˌdikˈtōr.i.
Fr. interdiction, excommunication; Lat. interdictio, interdictum, interdictum, sup. -dictum, to forbid; excommunicatio, excommunicare.
(“Interdict” is the only word in which “inter” has a neg. sense.)

Interest, inˌter.ˌest; concern, influence, a premium for a loan, to amuse. To interest [oneself], to use one’s influence and exertion (followed by in or on behalf of);
Interest-ed, inˌter.ˌēstˈid, amused, biased, concerned;
Interest-ing, inˌter.ˌēstˈing, amusing, exciting an interest; interesting-ly; interest-ed-ness, bias.

If in loans: the sum lent is the Principal, the premium paid for it is the Interest, the amount of premium is the Rate.

If £5 is given for the year’s use of £100, then £100 is the principal, £5 the interest, and 5 per cent. (5 %) the rate.
Simple Interest is when the annual premium is paid to the lender, so that the interest is limited to the original loan.
Compound Interest is when the annual premium is not paid, but being added to the loan increases it. In the following year interest is paid on the original loan + the interest due thereon.
Thus: If £100 is lent at 5% per cent., at the end of the first year the loan will be £100 + £5, on which interest must be paid at the end of the second year. At the end of the third year the accumulated loan will be £100 + 5 + 5 (5% 5a.), on which interest will be due, and so on, the “principal” increasing every year.

Germ. interessent, a partaker; interesse, interest, (Lat. inter esse).
Interfere, *in*ter*fer*“e"", to intermeddle; interfered, *in*ter*fer*“e"d"; interfer*er"-ing, *in*ter*fer*“e"r”-ing; interfer*er", *in*ter*fer*“e"r”; interference (not -ance), *in*ter*fer*“e"r”-ence.

Latin inter*fer*re, to carry [oneself] between, or inter*fer*ere, to strike between. Similarly, “interpose” is inter *pon*ére, to put [oneself] between, and “interrupt” is inter *rup*ere, to burst in between.

Interim, in*te*rim; meanwhile. (Latin int*e*rim.)

Interior, in*te*rior, inside, internal. Exte*rior, outside, external; inte*rior-ly; exte*rior-ly. (Not comp. degrees.)

Lat. int*e*rior, exterior, comp. deg. of int*ra* and ext*ra*, but in English used sometimes substantively and sometimes as positive adj.

Interjacent, in*ter*jacent, lying between.

Interject, in*ter*ject”", to throw in, to throw between; interject-"ed (R. xxxvi.), interject-"ing, interject-"er;

Interjection, in*ter*jection, an exclamation, an oath; interjec"tion-al; interjec"tion-ally,

French en*ter*jecter: Latin en*ter*jectus; Greek *lugos, a with.

Interlard, in*ter*lard”, to intermix [fat with the lean]; interlard-"ed (Rule xxxvi.), interlard-"ing,

French en*tr*larer: Latin lardum, lard.

Interleave; in*ter*leave”, to insert blank leaves between printed ones; interleaved, in*ter*leaved" (3 syl.), interleav-"ing.

A hybrid, Latin in*ter* between, and Anglo-Saxon *feaf, a leaf.

Interline, in*ter*line, to write between other lines; interlined” (3 syl.), interlin-"ing (R. xix.), interlin-"er; interlinear, in*ter*line-"ar; interlineary, in*ter*line-"ary,

French en*ter*lineer; Latin en*ter*lineus; Greek *lugos, a line.

Interlocutor, in*ter*loc*“u*tor, one of the speakers in a dialogue; interlocutory, in*ter*loc-”u“ry, consisting of dialogue.

Latin en*ter*loc*tor*ius, en*ter*loc*tor, to speak between [each other].

Interloper, in*ter*lo*per”, an intruder; interlope, in*ter*lope”, to intrude; interloped" (3 syl.), interlop-"ing (Rule xix.)

French en*ter*lope, which is compounded of inter and the Anglo-Saxon verb hlep[an], to leap or loop; past hlep, past part. hlep*en.

Interlude, in*ter*lude, a slight dramatic piece performed between the main drama and the “afterpiece.” (Lat. inter*vidium.)

Interlu’nar (not -er), pertaining to that dark period which comes between the disappearance of one moon and the visible appearance of the new one. (Latin inter*lantium luna.)
Intermarry, in·ter·mär·ry, to marry a relative; intermarried, in·ter·mär·ried (Rule xi.); intermär·ry·ing. (Latin inter-märitäre; French marier.)

(The double "r" in "marry" is disgraceful. In "bury" we have a similar "rr," but never think of doubling it to help out the sound.)

Intermeddle, in·ter·mè·dıl, to interfere; intermeddled, in·ter·mè·dîld; intermedd·ling, intermed·dler.

German [er]mitteln, to mediate, to interpose, -mîttler; an interposer, -mîttlung, an interposing; -mîttler, a mediator.

Intermediate [space, colour], in·ter·mi·di·ate, between two extremes; interme·di·ate-ly. (Lat. inter mèdius.)

Interminable, in·ter·mi·na·b'l, boundless; interminable·ness, interminably; interminate, in·ter·mi·nate, endless.

Indeterminate, in·de·ter·mi·nate, uncertain.

French interminable (not a compound of [Latin] inter minäri, to threaten severely, but of in·termënaire, not to terminate).

Intermingle, in·ter·mîn·g'l, to mix together; intermingled, in·ter·mîn·gld; intermîng·ling, intermîng·ler.

German inter, [ge]mengsel, a confused mixture, [ge]mengse.

Intermission, in·ter·mi·shun, temporary interruption;

Intermit, in·ter·mi·t; intermitt·ed (Rule xxxvi.); intermitt·ing (Rule iv.), intermitt·ing·ly.

Intermitt·ent [fever, spring], ceasing at intervals.

Fr. intermission, &c.; Lat. inter mittère, to cease between whiles.

Intermix', to mix confusedly; intermixed, in·ter·mixt', (past part.) intermîxt'; intermixture, in·ter·mix·ture, tochïr.

Latin intermixtus from inter·misceor, to intermix.

Intermural [burials], in·ter·mu·ral, within the city walls, between wall and wall. (Lat. intermûrâlis, mûrus, a wall.)

Inter'nîl, interior, domestic. Exter'nîl, exterior, foreign; inter'nîl·ly. Exter'nîl·ly. (Latin internus, externus.)

International, in·ter·nash·un·al, mutual between nations.

International·ly, in·ter·nash·un·al·ly, mutually...

Internationality, in·ter·nash·un·al·i·ty.

French international; Latin inter nationes, between nations.

Internuncio, plu. internunciós (Rule xli.), in·ter·nûn·shun·ôze, a representative of the pope in inferior states, a messenger between two courts. (English-Italian internuncio.)

Interpellation, -pêll·lay·shun. Interpol·a·tion, -pol·lay·shun.

Interpellation (double "-"), a citation, a summons.

Inter·pol·a·tion, a spurious word or sentence foisted in.

Latin interpellatio (inter pulläre, to drive or force between).

Interpolate, in·ter·pol·a·te, to add something without authority to what has been written by another; interpolate·ed (R. xxxvi.), interpolate·ing (R. xix.), interpolate·or (R. xxxvii.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Interpolation, in'ter.po.la'yi\'n, In'terpellä'tion, q.v.
Latin interpolatio, interpolátor, interpláre (inter poli\'tio, to polish or furnish between [the parts supplied]); French interpolation.

Interpose, in'ter.pe\'zo', to intervene; interposed, in'ter.pe\'zo\'d'; interpos-ing, in'ter.pe\'zo\'d'.ing; interpos'er, in'ter.pe\'zo\'d'.er.

Interposition, in'ter.po.zish'.un, intervention.
French interposition, v. interposer; Latin interposi'tió, inter pónō.

Interpret, in.tel'.pret, to explain, to translate; inter'pret-ed (R. xxxvi.), inter'pret-ing, inter'pret-er, inter'pret-able.

Interpretation, in.tel'.pret.ay'.shun, explanation, meaning.

Interpretive, in.tel'.pre.t'v; inter'pretive-ly.
French interprélation, interpré'lif, v. interpréter; Latin interpretá'tio, interpré'tátor, interpré'tábilis, interpré'tári (interpré, an interpreter).

Interregnum (double r), in'ter.tér.rog\'g"nu\'m, the interval between the death of one sovereign and the succession of another.
Latin inter regnum, space between two reigns. (So inter-val\'um.)

Interrogate, in'ter.ro.gate, to question; inter'rogat-ed (R. xxxvi.), inter'rogat-ing (R. xix.), inter'rogat-or (R. xxxvii.)

Interrogation, in'ter.l-o.gay'.shun, examination by questions.

Interrogative, in'ter.rog"a.trv; inter'rog'a.tive-Iy.

Interrogatory, in'ter.rog"a ..ty, a question, containing a question.
Latin interrogatório, interrogá'to\'riu, interroga'torius, interroga're (inter, rogo, to ask questions); Fr. interrogation, interroga'tif.

Interrupt, in'ter.ru.p't", to hinder, to stop; interrupt'ed (Rule xxxvi.), interrupt'ed-ly, interrupt'ing-ly.

Interruption, in'ter.ru.p'.shun; interrupt'er (should be-or, R. xxxvii.); interruptive, in'ter.ru.p'.shiv; interruptive-ly.
Latin interrupti\'o, interrupti\'or, interrupti\'e\'res; French interruption.

Intersect, in'ter.sekt', to meet and cross [like two lines]; intersect'ed, intersect'ing; intersection, in'ter.sek".shun.
Latin intersectio, intersecti\'a\'re, to cut midway; French intersection.

Intersperse, in'ter.speree", to scatter; interspersed' (3 sy1.), interspers'-ing (R. xix.) Interspersion, in'ter.spér".shun.
Latin interspersus (inter spargo, to scatter among).

Interstice, in.ter.sís, a chink; plu. interstices, in.ter.stí.séz (Rule xxxiv.); interstitial, in.ter.stí.sh"ál.
French interstice; Latin interstiti\'um. (seisto; past sti\'tum.)

Intertwine, in'ter.twine"", to twist one thing into another; intertwined', intertwin'-ing, -twin'ing-ly, -twin'-er.
Old English inter (Latin), twi\'n[an], to twine or twist.

Interval, the space between two events; two points of time; two musical sounds, &c. (Fr. intervalle, Lat. intervall\'um.)

Intervene, in'ter.vén", to come between; intervened' (3 sy1.); intervene'-ing (R. xix.) Intervention, in'ter.vén".shun.
Latin intervenio, inter-vénio, to come between; French intervention.
Interview, in'ter.veh, appointment between two persons to see each other. (Fr. entrevue; Lat. inter, vidēre, to see.)

Inter-weave, (past) inter-wove, (past part.) inter-woven, in'ter.veh', in'ter.veh', in'ter.veh'.

Latin inter, Old English wēf[an], past waf, past part. wafen.

Intestate, in.tēs'.tate, without a will at the time of death.

Intestacy, in.tēs'.tay, the state of being intestate.

Latin in-testatus, not witnessed (testis, a witness), an "intestate" is one whose will is not duly attested; French intestat.

Intestate, in.tēs'.tine (not in.tēs',tine), domestic, home, internal;

The Intestines, in.tēs'.tinz, the entrails; intestinal.

Latin intestina, intestinus (int'mal, within); French intestin, intestinal.

Intestinal, in.tēs'.til, domestic, home, internal;

The Intestines, in.tēs'.tinz, the entrails; intestinal.

Latin intestina, intestinus (int'mal, within); French intestin, intestinal.

Intimate, in'.t'i.mate, a familiar friend, to hint, to announce; in'timat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'timat-ing, in'timat-ly.

Intimation, in'.t'i.may'.shun, a hint, an announcement.

Intimater (should be intimat-or, R. xxxvii.), in'.t'i.mātor.

Latin intimas, gen. intimātis, intimātio, intimāre, intimus (intra, within); French intimacy, v. intimer.

Intimate, in'.t'i.mate, to hint, to announce; in'timat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'timat-ing, in'timat-ly.

Intimation, in'.t'i.may'.shun, a hint, an announcement.

Intimater (should be intimat-or, R. xxxvii.), in'.t'i.mātor.

Latin intimas, gen. intimātis, intimātio, intimāre, intimus (intra, within); French intimacy, v. intimer.

Intimidate, in'.t'im'.tdate, to frighten; in'timidat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'timidat-ing, in'timidat-or.

Latin intimātus, gen. intimātis, intimātio, intimāre, intimus (intra, within); French intimidation, v. intimer.

Intimidate, in'.t'im'.tdate, to frighten; in'timidat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), in'timidat-ing, in'timidat-or (R. xxxvii.); intimidation, in'.t'im'.tday'.shun. (Fr. intimidation; Lat. intimidus.)

("Entimidate" (en timidus "to make" timid) would be better. In'timidate should properly mean "not to frighten").

Into follows verbs of motion. In follows verbs of rest.

Intolerable (-tol only one l), in.tol'.ērā.b'l, insufferable; intol'erable-ness, intol'erable-ly. Tolerable, pretty good, bearable.

Intolerance (not intol'erance), in.tol'.ērān'se, want of tolerance; intol'erable,-ly, intol'erant, (only one -l). Prejudiced; intol'erant-ly. Intolerance (only one l), in.tol'.ērā'y'.shun.

Latin intolārabilis, intolārans, gen. intolārantis, intolārantia, in tolāre, not to tolerate; French intolérable, intolérance, intolérant.

Intonate, in'.to.nate, to modulate the voice in speaking; in'to.nāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), in'to.nāt-ing; intonation, -nāy'.shun.

Intone, in'.töne, to read with a monotonous chanting voice; intoned' (3 syl.), in'tōn'-ing (Rule xix.), in'tōn'-er.

Latin intōnāre, to speak with a strained or stretched voice (tōnus, tone); Greek tōnōs, from teino, to stretch; French intonation.

Intoxicate, in'.tox'.i.kate, to make drunk; intox'icat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), intox'icat-ing (Rule xix.).

Intoxication, in'.tox'.i.kay'.shun, drunkenness; French intoxication (Latin toxicon; Greek toxikon, rank-poison).

Intra, in'.tra (Latin prep.), within.

Intangible (not -ible), in'trāk.tā.b'l, stubborn; in'trac'table-ness, in'trac'tably, in'trac'tability, stubbornness.

Latin in'trāc'tabilis, in trā'hēre, supine -tractum, not to draw,
AND OF SPELLING.

Intra·mu'tral, within the city-walls. Extra·mu'tral, outside...
Latin in'muralis (murus, a wall). The Latin forms are intra·mu'ranus and extra·mu'ranus, within and without the city walls.

Intransient, in'tran'sient, not transient.

Intransitive [verb], in'trans'i·tiv, a verb with "subject" but no "object." A Transitive [verb] has both.

"I sit": sit has the "subject" I, but no "object," and therefore is an intransitive verb. "I love him": love has the "subject" I and the "object" him; it is, therefore, a transitive verb.
Lat. intransi'tus, in trans'tum, not to go over [to an "object"].

Intrench. (See Entrench.)

Intrepid, in'trep'id, fearless; intrepid'ly, fearlessly.

Intrepidity, in.trep'i•di•ty, fearlessness.

Latin in'trepidus, in'trepiditas (in trep'idas, not trembling).

Intricate, in'tri'cate (not in'trik'ite), complicated; in'tricate·ly, in'tricate·ness, state of being complicated;

Intricacy, plu. intricacies, in'tri'ka•siz, complication.

Latin in'tricus, intricatio (in trici'a, the clogs of hair called trico fastened round the legs of fowls to prevent their roaming).

Intrigue, in'treeg', a cabal, a plot, to plot; intrigued, in'treeg'd'; intriguing, in'treeg'ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing, Rule xix.); intriguing·ly, in'treeg'ing·ly; intriguing'er, in'treeg'er; intriguing·ant.

French intriguing, intrigue, intrigueur, v. intriguer (Latin intricäre, to entangle). (See Intricate.)

Intrinsic, in'trin'sik, real, not merely outside show; intrinsic'ly or intrin'sical·ly, truly, really, genuinely.

Latin in'trin'sicus (intra secus, in the inside); French intrinsèque.

Intro· (Latin prepositional prefix), within, into, in.

In'tro·duce (3 syl.), to bring in; to begin, to make acquainted; introduced' (3 syl.); introduced·ing, in'tro·duce'ing; introduced'er, in'tro·duce'ed; introduced·ive, in'tro·duce've·tiv; introduced·ive·ly, introduced·tory, introduced·tory·ly.

Introduction, in'tro'duk'shun, the beginning, &c.

Latin intro·ductio, intro·ducere, to lead in; French introduction.

Intro·it, in'tro·it, what is sung while the priest is going to the altar. (Latin intro·it, while the priest goes in.)

Intrude, in'tru'de', to come without right or welcome; intruded'ed (R. xxxvi.), intruded'ing (R. xix.), intruded'ing·ly, intruded'er.

Intrusion, in'tru•zhu'n (Rule xxxiii.); intrusion·ist; intrusive, in'tru've•zhuv; intrusive·ness, intrusive·ly.

Latin in·trudere, supine tru'sum, to thrust in; French intrusion.

Intuition, in'tu•zhu'n, instinct; intuitive, in'tu've•tiv, instinctive; intuitive·ly. (Fr. intuition, intuitif; Lat. in theor.)
Inundate, in'und'ate (not in'und'ate), to overwhelm; in'un-dâ'-ed (R. xxxvi.), in'un'dâ'-ing (R. xix.), in'un'dâ'-or;

Inundation, in'un.day", shûn, a flood, an overflow.
Latin inundatio, inundator, inundâ're (unda, a wave).

Inure, in'û're', to habituate; inured, in'nûred'; inur'-ing (Rule xix.), in'nûre'-ing; inure'-ment, in'nûre'-ment.
Should be Enure. Archæe use, habit; French en hour, hourly.

Inurn', to put into an urn; inurned' (2 syll.), inurn'-ing.
Latin in urna, to put into an urn.

Inutility, in'u.til'-ity, uselessness; intile, in'.u.teel';

Useless, un'ûse'.ful, not useful;

Unused' (2 syll.), not used; Dis'used, the use discontinued.

Unused' (2 syll.), use'less-ly, use'less-ness.
Latin inutilitas, inutilis (in-utor [asus], not to use); French inutilité, inutil, inutil (user, to use).

In vacuo (Latin), in. vâk'ku.o, in a place from which all air has been extracted. A vacuum, vâk'.â'm.

Invasion (R. xxxiii.), in. vay'.zhûn; invasive, in.vay'.ZH.

Invasion (R. xxxiii.), in. vay'.zhûn; invasive, in.vay'.ZH.

Invariable, in.vair'.ri.b'l, without variation; invari'able-ness;
invari'ably. (Fr. invariable; Lat. in vâriabilis, varias.)

Invective, in.vek'.trv, a tirade; invective-ly.

Invade', (noun) in'.va.led' (Rule li.)

In'valid', one not in health, one disabled; invalid'-ed.

Invalid', worthless, of no authority; invalid'ity.

Invalidate, in.vâl.i.date, to render worthless; invalidâ'ted-
(R. xxxvi.), invalidâ'ting, R. xix. (All with '-li-.)

Invaletudinarian, in.vâl'.e.tu.dî nair'ri.an, one always ill.

Invaluable, in.vâl'.u.a.b'l, inestimable; inval'uably.

Invalued, in.vâl'.u.dî, not appreciated (Rule lxxii.)

Inva'lib', to follow by against), to rail at; inveighed, in.vaid'; inveigh-ing, in.vay'.ing; inveigh-er, in.vay'.er.

Invade, in.vâd', to enter a country hostilely.

(See Invade.)
Inveigle, in.vee'.gəl (not in.vay'.gəl), to allure; inveigled, in-vee'.gəld; inveigling, in.vee'.gling; inveigler, in.vee'.gler;
inveigle-ment, in.vee'.g-lment. enticement to evil.
Norman inveegler; French inveugler, to blind, to hoodwink.
Inveigle, in.vee'.gəl (not in.vay'.gəl), to allure; inveigled, in-vee'.gəld; inveigling, in.vee'.gling; inveigler, in.vee'.gler;
inveigle-ment, in.vee'.g-lment. enticement to evil.
Norman inveegler; French inveugler, to blind, to hoodwink.

Invent'. Discover, dis.biuv'.cr.
We invent' (or find out) a work of art, as a machine;
We discover (or find out) a country or work of science.
To invent is to create what did not before exist.
To discover is to make known what was before unknown.
Invent'-ed (R. xxxvi.), invent'-ing, invent'-er (should be invent'-or, R. xxxvii.), fem. inventress, in.ven'.tress.
Invention, in.ven'.shən, a discovery in art.
Inventive, in.ven'.tiv; inventive-ness, inventive-ly.
Inventory, in.ven'.tərəri (ought to be inventory), a list of movable property; inventorial, in'.ven.tər'ri.əl.
Invention of the Cross, the alleged discovery of the cross in the fourth century, by certain agents of St. Hel'ena.
(This use of the word is quite abnormal.)
French inventaire, inventif, invention, v. inventer, v. inventorier;
Latin inventarium, inventio, inventor, in venio, supine venum.

Inverse, in'.verse (adj.), in.verse' (verb) (Rule li.); inverse-ly.
Inversion, in.ver'.shən, a reversion of the order.
Invert', to turn upside down; invert'-ed, invert'-ing.
Inversely as (not to): as “Velocity is inversely as the time.”
In inverse ratio to (not in inverse ratio as): Thus, 1, 2, 3, is in inverse ratio to 3, 2, 1.
In the inverse ratio of (not in the inverse ratio to): as “Time is in the inverse ratio of velocity.”
Latin inverso, in verto, supine versum; French inverse, inversion.

Invertebrate (obs. -te-), in.ver'.təbrət, an animal with no backbone; invertebral, in.ver'.təbrəl, without a backbone.
Invertebrata, in.ver'.təbrətə. Lamark divided the animal kingdom into vertebrata and invertebrata; the former embraces all animals which have a backbone or bony skeleton; the latter, those animals which are devoid of such a structure: as molluses [snails, &c.]
Latin in.vertebra, without backbone, vertebra-tus.
Invest', to dress; invest'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), invest'-ing.
Invest'-ment; investive, in.ves'.tiv, covering, clothing.
Investiture, in.ves'.təšər, the act or right of giving legal possession [of church preferment].

Roman Catholic bishops have a ring and crosier given as external signs of office. An Anglican bishop, a crosier. A university student has a cap and gown. A freemason has an apron, &c.
Latin in.vestito, to clothe in [official symbols], vestis, a robe.
Investigate, in.vēs'tīg·ate, to examine into; investi-gāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), investi-gāt-ing (Rule xix.), investi-gāt-or (Rule xxxvii.); investigable, in.vēs'tīg·a·ble.

Investigation, in.vēs'tīg·ā·ti·on; investigative, in.vēs'tīg·ā·ti·ve;

Latin investigātus (vestigia, a slot); French investigation.

Inveterate, in.vē'tе·rā'te, confirmed by long habit; inveterate-ly, inveterate-ness; inveteracy, long habitation.

Latin invēteratus (velus, old, long-standing).

Invidious, in.vī'dī·ous (not in.vī'dī·jūs), obnoxious, provocative, ill-natured; invidious-ness, invidious-ly (Rule lxvi.)

Latin invidīsūs (invīdia, envy).

Invigorate, in.vīg'ō·rā'te, to strengthen; invigor-āt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), invigor-āt-ing; invigoration, in.vīg'ō·rā·ti·on; invigor-āt-er. (Latin vigor, vigour, strength.)

Invincible, in.vīn'sī·b'l, unconquerable; invincible-ly;

Invincibility, in.vīn'sī·b'il·i·ty, state of being invincible.

French invincibilité, invincible.

Inviolable, in.vī·o·lā·ble, not to be profaned or polluted; inviol-ā·bly, inviolate, in.vī·o·lā·tē, unbroken, unpolluted.

Inviolability, in.vī·o·lā·ti·on; state of being inviolable.

Invisible (not -able), in.vīz'ī·b'l, imperceptible to the eye; invisible-ness, invisibly. Invisibility, in.vīz'ī·ti·on.

Latin invisītātio, v. invisītāre (in vitāre, to do the contrary of shunning, i.e., to seek, to court); French invitation, v. invite.

Invocate, in.vō·kā'te, to address in prayer; invocāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), invocāt-ing (Rule xix.), invocāt-or. (French envoi, things sent.)

Invocation, in.vō·kā·ti·on; an address to deity.

Invoke, in.vō·kē', to address in prayer; invoked' (2 syl.), in.vōk-'ē·r (Rule xix.), in.vōk-'ē·r-er.

("Invoke" is used in poetry, but "invoke" in ordinary speech.)

Latin invocātītio, in.vō·kā·tē, to call on [one] for help.

Invoice, in.vō·s, a written priced list of goods sent to a customer, to make such a list; invoiced, invoic-'ē·ng, Rule xix. (French envois, things sent.)

Lat. in vīa, [a list of goods] on the way; Spanish enviado, Italian inviato (an envoy), show the compound more distinctly.

Invoke, in.vō·kē; invocation, in.vō·kā·ti·on. (See Invocate.)
Involuntary, involuntary, not done by the will; involuntary-ness.

Latin involuntarius (in voluntas, in voD, not to will).

Involve' (2 syl.), to implicate, to surround, to embarrass; *involved' (2 syl.), involve'-ment.

Involution, involv'ed, involve'-ment.

Involution, involution, evolution, "Involution," the raising of a number to a given power. "Evolution," extracting the given root.

Evolution: as $4^3$, i.e., multiply 4 thrice by itself $= 64$.

Evolution: as $3 \sqrt[3]{64}$, $5 \sqrt[5]{a}$, i.e., extract the third or cube root of 64, and the 5th root of "a": $(3 \sqrt[3]{64} = 4)$.

Latin in-volvo, to roll on [itself]; e-voLo, to roll out, extricate, or extract; involuto, evolutio, French involution, evolution.

Invulnerable, invulnerable, not able to be wounded; invulnerable-ness, invulnerable-ment.

French invulnerable, in-vulnerabilité, invulnerabilité.

Inward, inward, internal, placed inside; inward-ly.

Inwards (adv.), towards the inside. (As the -s [es] is the adverbial suffix, it is wrong to use inward as an adv.)

Old English inward, inward; inwardly.

Inweave, (past) inwove, (past part.) inwoven, in-weave, in-wove, in-woven, in-weave'-ment (Rule xix.)

Old Eng. in wrefan, past wref or we fade, past part. weften or wefod.

Inwrap, in-rupt, in-wrap, to envelop; inwrapped, in-wrap'-ment.

Inwrought, in-ravw, worked in, adorned with figured work.

Old English in worhtan, past worht, past part. geworht.

There are 672 words beginning with "in," all of which, except 31, are directly or indirectly from the Latin. In 540 cases the force of "in" is negative, in 20 it is part of another prep.: as "inter," "intro," "de," etc., in 11 it means "to make," and in 9 it is radical.

Iodine, iodine (not iodeen), an element.

In Chem. the termination -ine denotes a simple substance.

Iodate, iodate, a salt of iodic acid.

In Chem. -ate denotes a salt from an acid ending in -ic.

Iodic [acid], iodic. (In Chem. -ic denotes an acid containing the greatest possible quantity of oxygen.)

Iodous [acid], iodous. (In Chem. -ous denotes an acid with less oxygen than -ic.)

Iodide, iodide, a compound of iodine with a base.

In Chem. -ide denotes a compound with a base.

Iodite, iodite, a non-acid compound of oxygen.

Greek iodés, violet, so called from its colour.

Ionian, i-o-nian, relating to Ionia, in Asia Minor.

Jonic, i-o-ic. (The -o is long in Greek idótkos.)
Iota, ɪˈoʊ.tə, a jot, a title. (The smallest Greek letter.)

I. O. U., ɪˈoʊ.ˈjuː, a brief acknowledgment of a debt.

Ipecacuanha, ɪˈpɛ.kə.ˈkɑn.ə.ˈhɑ, a South American plant.

Peruvian ἰπ, the root, cacuanha.

Ipomœa, ɪˈpɒ.mə.ˈe.ˌɑ, a plant allied to the convolvulus.

Greek ἤπ, gen. ἀπό ἱματις, like a worm.

Ir- for in-, before the letter r.

Irascible, ɪˈræs.ˈsɪ.bl, prone to anger; irascible-ness;

Irascibility, ɪˈræs.ˈsɪ.bəl.ɪ.ti; irascibly.

Fr. irascible, irascibilité; Lat. irascor, to be angry (ɪˈrɑ, anger).

Ire, ɪˈrɛ, anger; ire-ful, ɪˈrɛ.ˈfʊl; ireful-ly, ɪˈrɛ.ˈfʊl.ˈli.

Old English ɪˈrɛ, or ɪˈrɛ, Latin ɪˈrɛ, anger.

Iris, ɪˈrɪs, the rainbow, the coloured circle which surrounds the pupil of the eye; irised, ɪˈrɪ.ˈst; irisated, ɪˈrɪs.ˈe.ˌtɛd.

Iridescence (not irrediscence), ɪˈrɪd.ˈɛs.ən.sen; a rainbow-like exhibition of colours; irides'cent;

Iridium, ɪˈrɪd.ˈju.ˈm, a metal which assumes divers colours while under dissolution in hydrochloric acid.

Latin ɪˈrɪs, the rainbow; Greek ɪˈrɪs.

Irish, ɪˈrɪʃ, the language of Ireland, the people of Ireland, a cotton cloth made in Ireland, pertaining to Ireland;

Irish-ism, ɪˈrɪʃ.ˈɪz.əm, a blunder of speech conveying a contradiction of terms. Ireland, ɪˈrɪ.ˈlənd.

Proper names of a people ending in -ch, -sh, and -x, have two plural forms, one partitive made by adding -man, and one collective by placing The before the word: as The Irish, 2, 3, 4, &c., Irishmen.

Celtic Ern-in or Tar-tin (innis), the western island.

Irk, erk, to distress; irk-some, ɝˈrɛk.ˈsʌm, distressing (some denotes “full of”); irk'some-ness, irk'some-ly.

Old English ɪˈrɛk, wretched, evil, ɪˈrɛk.ˈsʌm.

Iron, generally pronounced ɪˈrɒn, sometimes ɪˈrən.

In irons, ɪˈrɒn.z, in chains. Fire irons, poker, shovel, and tongs.

To iron, ɪˈrɒn, to smooth with a hot instrument for the purpose; ironed, ɪˈrɒn.d; iron-ing, ɪˈrɒn.ɪŋ; iron-er, ɪˈrɒn.ˈɛr.

Iron-y, ɪˈrən.ˈe, containing iron. Ironry, ɪ.ˈrən.ˈrɛ, satire.

Old English ɪˈrən, ɪˈrən.ˈbɛnd, an iron-band, ɪˈrən.ˈfɛtər, an iron fetter, ɪˈrən.ˈgri, iron-grey, ɪˈrən.ˈsid, iron-side.

Irony, ɪˈrən.ˈrɛ (never ɪˈrən.ˈrɪ), ironical speech, sarcasm; ironical, ɪˈrən.ˈɪkəl; ironical-ly. Irony, ɪˈrən.ˈrɪ (v.s.)

Latin tronictus, ɪˈrən.ˈɪ.təs; Greek eirōnēta (eirōn, a dissembler).

Irradiate, ɪˈrəd.ˈe.ˌte. Eradiate, ɪˈrəd.ˈe.ˌte.

Irradiate, to adorn with rays of light. Eradiate, to shoot forth like rays of light; irrad’i-t-ed, irrad’i-t-ing.
Irradiation, ĭr rād' ċā' shūn, the act of being irradiated; Eradiation, ĭr rād' ċā' shūn, emission of beams of light. Irradiance, ĭr rād' ċā' shānc, lustre; irradi'āncy; irrā'diant. Lat. irradiātiō, ĭrīnirrādiāre, to cast rays on [objects]; Fr. irradiation. Irrational, ĭr rash' ċōn.ūl, unreasonable; irration'āly, ĭr rash' ċōn.ūl.'ly; irrationality, ĭr rāsh' ċōn.ūl.'ty. Lat. irrationālis (in rātīo, without reason); Fr. irrationel (wrong). Irreclaimable, ĭr ōrā.clāim' ċā'.ūl, not to be reclaimed; irreclaim'ābly. Un'reclaimed' (3 syl.), not reclaimed (Rule lxxii.) Latin ōrīnireclāmāre, not to claim again (clāmō, to demand). Irreconcilable, ĭr ōrē.kōn.śē.lā .ūl, not reconcilable; irreconcil'āble-ness, irreconcil'ābly; irreconciliatō, ĭr ōre.kōn.- ści' ċā'.shūn, want of reconciliation. Unreconciled, un' ōrē.kē' ċōn.ūl.d, not reconciled (Rule lxxii.) French irrēconciliable; Latin irrēnireconciliatō, v. re-consētiāre, not to reconcile again (concēlium, a meeting; con cēlo, to call together). Irrecoverable, ĭr ōrē.cūv' ċē.ūl, not to be recovered; irrecov'ār- erable-ness, irrecov'ārably. Unrecovered, un' ōrē.cūv' ċō.l.d, not recovered (Rule lxxii.) Fr. re-couvrable (re-couvrir); Lat. ōrēcōpērāre, to recover; with neg. ĭr. Irredeemable, ĭr ōrē.deem' ċē.ūl, not to be redeemed; irredeem'ābly. Unredeemed, (3 syl.) not redeemed (Rule lxxii.) Latin re-dūmēre (re-dūmēre, to buy back); with ĭr-[in] neg. Irreducible, ĭr ōrē.dū' ċē.ūl, not to be reduced; irred'ūcibly. Unreduced, un' ōrē.dūcēd', not reduced (Rule lxxii.) Latin re-dūcēre, to reduce, to bring back again; with ĭr-[in] neg. Irrefrangible, ĭr ōrē.frān' ċē.ūl. Irrefragable, ĭr ōrē.frē.ğā.ūl. Irrefran'gible, not to be refracted; irrefran'gibly, irrefrangibility. Irrefrag'able, not to be gainsaid. Latin refrānīre (re-frango, supine fractum), to refract or bend back, with ĭr-[in], neg. Used chiefly in reference to rays of light. Irrefragable, ĭr ōrē.frē.ğā.ūl, not to be gainsaid; irrefrag'ably. French irrefragable; Latin irrefragābilis, v. refrāgāri, to gainsay. Irrefutable, ĭr ōrē.fū' ċē.ūl, not to be refuted; irrefut'ābly. Latin irrefutābilis (irīnirrefutāri, not to be refuted). Irregular, ĭr ōrēg'.ū.lar, not regular; irreg'ūlar-ly; Irregularity, plu. irregularities, ĭr ōreg'.ū.lar.'ū.lēz. Latin irrēgūlāris, irrēgūlāritas, ĭrīnirregūlāre (rēgūla, rule). Irrelative, ĭr ōrē.lāt.'ū.lēz. Irrelev'ant, ĭr ōrēl.'ē.vānt. Irrelative, unconnected: as irrelative chords (in music), chords which have no common sound; irrelative-ly. Unrelated, ĭn' ōrē.lāt' ċē.ūl, not related (Rule lxxii.) Latin ĭnirēlātēsus (re-ferro, supine lātum, to refer).
Irrelevant (not irrelevant), inapplicable, not to the point: as irrelevant to the subject, irrelevant testimony; irrel'evant-ly, irrel'evancy; irrel'evance, irrel'evant-Iy. Latin ir'irrele', not to lift off or relieve. Something that does not “lift off” the difficulty.

Irreligion, ir'irrel'igion', want of religion or contempt of it; irreligious, ir'irrel'igious; irreligion-ous, irreligion-ously.

Irremediable, ir'irremed'i', not curable; irre'mediably, irremediably-ness. Remedi-less, remedi'less.

Irremovable, un'irremov'a', not able to be moved; irremov'ably; irremovability, irremovable.

Irreparable, ir'reparable', not to be repaired or recovered; irreparably, irrecoverably.

Irreproachable, ir'reproachable', not worthy of censure; irreproachable-ness, irreproach'ably.

Irresistibility, ir'resistibility', forbearance to resist.

Irresistible (not -able), ir'resistibil'y, not to be resisted; irresistibly; irresistibility.
Resist’less, not to be resisted; resist’less-ness, resist’less-ly.

Unresisted, un’rē.zē’s’ē.dē not resisted (Rule lxxii.)

French resistance, irréistible, irréistibilité; Latin resist’ēre, to make to stand back, with ūrēn, negative.

Irresolute, ĭr rēz’.ō.lūtē, not decided; irres’olute-ness,

Irresolution, ĭr rēz’.ō.lū’tē.shūn; irres’olute-ly.

Irresoluble, ĭr rēz’.ō.lu.ō.blē, incapable of being resolved into parts or into a more elemental state.

Irresolvable, ĭr rēz’.ō.zōl’.vā.blē, not to be resolved.

Unresolved, un’rē.zōl’vōd”; not resolved (Rule lxxii.)

Fr. irrésolution, résolution; Lat. irresolūbilis, résolūtio, résolvēre, supine -solūtum, to melt back [to its simple state], with ūrēn, negative.

Irrespective, ĭr’rē.spēk’.ē.tīv (not ĭr’rē.spēk’t’.ē.tīv), independent; irres’pective-ly.

Unrespect’ed, not respected (l. lxxii.)

Latin re-spēcio, supine respectum, to look back upon, to respect, with ūrēn, negative, not to respect, to disregard.

Irrespirable,- ĭr rēsp’irē.b’l, not fit for respiration.

Unrespired, un’rē.spērīd”; not exhaled (Rule lxxii.)

Latin re-spīrāre, to exhale breath, with ūrēn, negative.

Irresponsible (not -able) ĭr rē.spōn’’sī.blē, not responsible;

Irresponsibility, ĭr rē.spōn’’sī.blē’.ē.tē; irres’ponsibly.

Unresponded-to, un’rē.spōn’’dē.dē.too (Rule lxxii.)

Latin re-spōndēre, supine respondum, to respond, with ūrēn, negative.

Irretrievable, ĭr rē.tree’’vā.blē, not to be retrieved or recovered; irretriev’ably; irretrievable-ness, ĭr rē.tree’’vā.blē’.nēss.

Unretrieved, un’rē.treevūd”; not recovered (Rule lxxii.)

Latin re-trēbūre, to give back, with ūrēn, negative; French trouver.

Irreverent, ĭr rēv’erēn’tēnt, not reverent; irre’verent-ly; irre’ reverence, ĭr rēv’erēn’tēn.sē.; want of reverence.

Unreverenced, un.rev’erēn’.nēncē, not reverenced (R. lxxii.)

Fr. irrēvérēncē, irrēvérēncē; Lat. irrēvērēntia, irrēvērens, gen. -entis.

Irreversible, ĭr rē.vēr’’sī.blē (not ĭr rēv’er’’sū.blē); not to be reversed or recalled; irrevers’able-ness, irrevers’ably.

Unreversed, un’rē.vērēd”; not reversed (Rule lxxii.)

Lat. re-verērēre, sup. reversum, to turn back, to reverse, with ūrēn, negative.

Irrevocable, ĭr rē.vōk’.ō.bā.blē (not ĭr rē.vōk’e’.ō.bā.blē), not to be reversed or annulled; irrev’ocably (not ĭr rē.vōk’e’.ā.blē’y)

Unrevoked, un’rē.vōk’kē.tī, not revoked (Rule lxxii.)

Latin ūrēn revocābilis, not to be recalled; French irrévocable.

Irrigate, ĭr rē.gāt.e, to pour water over [land]; irrigat’ed (Rule xxxvi.), irrigat’ing (Rule xix.);

Irrigation, ĭr rē.gāt’.ē.shūn; irrig’t-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Lat. irrigātio, irrigātor (ūrēn)īgāre, to throw wateron; Fr. irrigation
Irritate, ir'rit.a.te, to provoke, to inflame; _ir'rit.ate_ (L. xxxvi.), _ir'rit-ate-ing_ (R. xix.), _ir'rit-ate-or_ (L. xxxvii.).

Irritation, _ir'rit.a.tion_; _ir'rit-a-tive_; _ir-ri-ta-tive-ly_. Irritant, that which irritates; _ir-ri-tancy_.

Irritable, _ir'ri-t.a.bl_, passionate; _ir-ri-tantly_, _ir-ri-tab-il'i-ty_.

Irritatory, _ir'ri-t.a.t'ry_, productive of irritation.

French _irritabilité_, _irritable_, _irritant_, _irritation_, _v. irriter_; Latin _irritabilis_, _irritabilitas_, _irritator_, _v. irritare_.

Irruption, _ir'rup'.shun_, incursion. Erup'tion, a bursting out; _irruptive_, _ir rup'.tiv_. Eruptive, _erupt ive_.

(There are thirty-nine words beginning with the prefix "ir-", all directly or indirectly from the Latin, and in all (except the first one and the last three) the prefix is negative.)

Is, _iz_, third sing. pres. ind. of the anomalous verb To be.

Gothic _i-m_, _i-s_, _i-t_, Old English _eo-m_, _e-ri_, is, plu. _ar-on_.

-ise (Latin -_i-tium_) nouns, "act of," "habit of": _as exercise_.

-ise (Latin -_ire_) verbs, "to give," "to make": _as apologise_.

( _The corresponding Greek ending is "-ize"._)

-ish (Old English _-isc_ or _-isch_) adj., pertaining to: _as Engl-ish_.

Added to adj. it is a dimin. as _good-ish_, _bad-ish_.

Added to nouns it means "like": _as boy-ish_, _girl-ish_.

-ish (Lat. _-ire_, Fr. _-ir_, _-iss_) verbs, "to make," "to give": _fin-ish_.

Isinglass, _y.zinglass_ (a corruption of German _hausenblase_, that is, _hausen-blase_, the surgeon's bladder).

This is a very disgraceful word, and quite misleads (see Rule lxiv.)

Islamism, _iz'.w..71l'zm_, the religious creed of Mohammedans.

Islam, _iz'.li:im_, the religion of Mohammed, the countries where it is professed, the whole body of Mohammedans.

Arabic _islam_, obedience to the will of God, _salama_, to submit.

Island, _t.land_, land surrounded by water. Highland, _hi'.land_.

Island-er, _t.nder_, an inhabitant of an island.

Highland-er, _hi'.w.n,der_, one who lives in the Highlands.

Old Eng. _eal_, water; _ead-land_, water-land, an island; Lat. _insula_.

Isle, _ile_. Aisle, _ile_. I'll, _ile_. Ill, _Hill_.

Isle, _ile_, an island; _islet_, _is.let_, a little island.

French _isle_, now _ile_: Lat. _insula_, an island.

Aisle, _ile_, the side "wings" of a church.

French _aisle_, now _aisle_ (of a church): Latin _ala_, a wing.

I'll, _ile_, contraction of _I will_.

Ill, _il_, not well. (Old English _yfel_)

Hill, _hil_, an elevation less than a mountain. (O. Eng. _hyll_)

-ism (Gk. suffix _-ism-os_), nouns, "system," "doctrine," "imitation of": _as baptism_, _despot-ism_, _Mohammed-ism_.

Irritated (L. xxxvi.), _ir-ri-tated_.
AND OF SPREADING

iso- (Greek prefix), equal, similar. (Greek isos, equal.)

Iso-chronal, isoschononal, occurring at equal intervals, like the beats of the pulse. (Greek isos chronos, equal time.)

Iso-clinal, isosklinal, having equal inclines or dips. Greek isos klinos, to make equal slopes or inclines.

Iso-pod, plu. isopods, an insect which has all its legs alike; isopoda, isos odia, the order ...

Isopodus, isos odia. (Greek isos poides, equal feet.)

Isosceles, isoskileles or isos skileles, applied to triangles which have two sides equal. (Greek iskelos, a leg.)

Iso-thermal, isos thermales, having the same temperature. Greek isos therme, equal heat.

Isolate, isolate, to cut off from all connections, to detach;

isolat-ed (R. xxxvi.), isolat-ing; isolation, isolat-ing.

Israelite, izraelite (not izraelite), a descendant of Israel or Jacob, a Jew; Israelitish, izraelitish.

Issue, issu (not issul), result, offspring, exit, an artificial ulcer, to proceed out of; issued, issued; issuing, issuing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing, Rule xix.); issuer, issuer.

Fr. issue, outlet; issu, born (past part. of issir); Lat. ex-ire, to go out.

-is (Greek suffix -ist-és) nouns, "an agent": artist.

-ister or -ster, nouns, "one engaged in": chorister. (R. xiii.)

Isthmus, isthmus, a neck of land joining a continent or peninsula to the mainland; isthmian, isthmian.

Latin isthmus; Greek asthmos, a neck or bridge.

It, possessive its, plu. they, theirs, them. Hit, to strike.

(The introduction of "its" dates from the beginning of the reign of James I. (1603). In the Bible "his" is used for its.)

Old English nom. hit, gen. his, dat. him, acc. hit.

Italian, ital’*y*n, adj. of Italy; Italian-ise, ital’*y*n-ise, to reduce to Italian habits or idiom; Italian-ising (R. xix.); Italianised, ital’*y*n*zd; Italianised.

Italian, sloping type. Italicise, ital’l’is’iz’ed; italicised, ital’l’is’ed; italicised (R. xix.); italicism, ital’l’is’m; italicism, ital’l’is’m; italicians, an Italian idiom; Italian-iron.

Latin Italia, the land of the Vitali, Vituli, or Siculi.

Itch, a cutaneous irritation. Hitch, an obstruction.

Itched, itch; itch-ing, itch-y, itchiness, (Rule xi.), itching.

(Old English yittha, itch or tetter.)
-ite (Latin -it-us), adj., “quality of,” “pertaining to,” “like”.

-ite (Latin -it-us), nouns, subject of an action: favour-ite.

-ite (Chem.), a salt formed from an acid ending in -ous: as sulphite [of silver], sulphurous acid combined with silver.

-ite (Greek lithos, stone), in Geology, a fossil: ammon-ite.

Item (Latin); i'tem, furthermore, also, a separate article.

Itinerant, itin'érant, a vagrant; itin'erant-ly, itin'erancy; itinerary, plu. itineraries, itin'er-i, a traveller’s book for jottings on the way.

Latin iter, gen. itineris, a journey (co, supinum, to go).

-itis, it'tis, added to Greek words to denote inflammation: as carditis (kar'dia), inflammation of the heart.

Itself, plu. themselves, a reciprocal pronoun. (O. E. hit sylf.)

-ity, -ity (Latin -itas), abstract nouns: as curiosity.

-iun (in Chem.), a metal as potasium, salit-ium.

-iun (in Bot.), a species as delphium (larkspur).

-i (Lat. -ius), adj., “able to,” “inclined to”: cohesive.

-ive (ditto), nouns formed from adj., “one who is”: captive.

I've, ive; contact of r have; Hive, a place for bees. (O. E. hyfe.)

Ivory, i'vo.ry, the tusk of male elephants, made of ivory;

Ivories, i'vo.ri, works of art in ivory;

Ivory-black, charred ivory or bone mixed with charcoal.

Ivy, plu. ivies, i've, a plant. (Old English ieg.)

-ize (Gk. hize), “to make,” “to make like,” “to give”: tantal-ize.

The corresponding Latin suffix is -ize.

Jabber, djab'ber, to gabble unintelligibly; jab-bered, djab'ber'd; jabber-ing, jab'ber-ing-ly, jabber'er. (French jaboter.)

Jacinth, dja'scinth, a pellucid gem (Rev. xxii. 20).

Latin jacintthus or hyacinthus; Greek haucinthos. This gem is so called because its colour is like that of the purple hyacinth.

Jack, a machine for sundry purposes.

Jack-ass, the male ass. Jack-daw, a daw.

Jack-pike, a young pike. Jack-rat, a male rat.

Jack of all trades, a man who can turn his hand to anything.

Jackal, jåk'awl, an animal half dog and half fox. (Span. chacal.)

Jackanapes, jåk'änäpes, an impertinent vulgar prig.

Jacket, jåk'et, a short coat without tails; jack'et-ed, put into jackets, wearing a jacket. (French jaquette.)
Jacobin, Jacobite, žů̩k.o.bin, djů̩k’.o.bite.

Jacobins, a revolutionary party in France who met, during the first revolution, in an old monastery of Jacobin monks; Jacobinism, Jacobinical.

Jacobites, favourers of the pretenders, when the Stuart dynasty was set aside. So called from Jacobus, Latin for James; Jacobitism; Jacobitical, djů̩k’.o.bít’l.hů̩l.

Jacob's ladder, djů̩l’.ů̩büz ládd’rer (not djů̩l’.cůs...), the common Greek vale'rian. Its successive leaflets form a ladder.

Jaconet, žů̩k’.o.nů̩t, a thick muslin. (French jacons.)

Jacquard loom, zhů̩k’.ard loom, for weaving figures on silks and muslins. Invented by M. Jacquard, of Lyons.

Jade, djů̩de, a sorry horse or woman; jů̩d’-ed, wearied out.

Jag, djag, a rough tattered edge, to notch like a saw; jagged (1 syl.), jagg’-ed-ly. (3 syl.), jagg’-ed-ness, jagg’-ing (Rule i.), jagg’-er, jagg’-y, not smooth at the edge.

Jaguar, djů̩g’.u.ar or djů̩g’.wůdr, the American tiger.

Jail, djů̩le; a prison; jail’-er; jail-bird, a prisoner.

Jalousy, djů̩l’.ozee', a Venetian blind. Jealousy, suspicion...

Jamb, djů̩m, the side supports of a door; firelace, &c.

Jangle, djang’l, to wrangle; jan’gled (3 syl.), jan’gling, jan’glomer. (Germ. zanken, to quarrel; zanker, zankerin.)

Janitor (Lat.); djů̩n’.i.tor, a door-keeper (janua, a door).

Janizary, plu. janizaries, djů̩n’.i.zů̩.riz, Turkish foot-guards.

The Turkish infantry so called rose in 1826 against the Sultan and were utterly exterminated to the number of 25,000. (Turkish yeni askari, new troops.)

Jansenism, žů̩n’.sě.nů̩ts’m, the dogmas of Janssen, bishop of Ypres, regarding grace and free-will; Janssen-ist.

January, djů̩n’.a.ěrry; the first month of the year.

Latin januárů̩, from jů̩nūa, a gato or porch. Generally derived from Jänus, a god with two faces, one behind and one before.
Japan, ˌdʒaː.pən', to varnish with “Japan varnish”; japanned, ˌjə.pənd (Rule iv.); japanning-’ing, japann’-er.

Japanese, ˌdʒaːpən.i.ʃəz (sing. and plu.), a native of Japan.

Names of peoples in -ese are both sing. and plu., as Portuguese, &c

Jar, ˌdʒar, an earthen vessel, to distress the ear, to clash, to wrangle; jarred, jard; jar’-ing, jar’-ing-ly (Rule i.)

Ajar, not shut close [said of a door] because in such a state it is liable to rattle by striking the jamb.

Spanish ˈjarə, a jug; chirriar, to sing out of tune and tune.

Jardiniere, ˌʒɑrd.in.i.ər, an ornamental flower-stand.

French jardin, a garden; jardinière, a flower-stand.

Jargon, ˌdʒaːr.ɡən, unintelligible talk. (Fr. jargon, gibberish.)

Jargonelle [pear], ˌdʒaːr.ɡən.əl.ə (Called after Mad. Jargonelle.)

Jasmine, ˌdʒaːs.min, a flower. (Fr. jasmin, Lat. jasminum.)

Jasper, ˌdʒaːs.ˈpər, a variety of quartz. (Fr. jaspe, Lat. iaspis.)

Jaundice, ˌdʒaʊn.dəs, a disease; jaundiced, ˌdʒaʊn.ˈdɪst.

French jaunisse (Jean, yellow). The d is interpolated.

Jaunt, ˌdʒaʊnt (to rhyme with aunt), a pleasure trip.

Archaic Jaunee; Archaic French jance.

Jaunty, ˌdʒər.ˈtɪ, coquettish in dress; jaun’ti-ness (Rule xi.), jaun’ti-ly. (French gentil, gentillesse.)

Javelin, ˌdʒæv.li.n, a light spear. (Fr. javeline, Lat. jācūlum.)

Jaw, ˌdʒau, the bone in which the teeth are set; to snap; jawed (1 syll.), jaw’-ing. (Old English geagl or geaMās, plu.)

Jay, ˌdʒeɪ, a bird. (French geai, in Latin grācūlum.)

Jealousy, ˌdʒel.ˈəs.ɪ, suspicion of fidelity in love. Jealousy, q.v.

Jealous, ˌdʒel.ˈəs; jeal’ous-ness, jeal’ous-ly.

French jalouse, jalouz; Spanish zeloso; Latin zēlus, zeal, envy.

Jean, ˌdʒeɪn (not djeen), a twilled cotton cloth. Jane, a name.

French jean, so called from Gênes, i.e. Genoa, in Italy.

Jeer, ˌdʒɪər, a scoff, to scoff; jeered (1 syll.), jeer’-ing, jeer’-ing-ly, jeer’-er. (German scheren, to tease, to jeer.)

Jehovah, ˌdʒɪ.ˈhoʊ.ˈvəh, not connected with the word Jove.

“Jehovah” is made from the three letters y h v (ye[h]o[ah]), and comes from the Heb. verb to be: hence the synonym, “I am.”

“Jove” is a contraction of Jupiter, that is Diespiter [\jəˈpətər\], Greek Dis or Zeus pátēr, “father Dis,” whence Latin dés, day or light. From theō (to put in order), or, according to Plato, theō (to run), from the course of the heavenly bodies. Others derive the word from thesōmat, to see [all things]. (Compare Herodotus kómpw ΘΕΝΤΕΣ ῥα πλατ Χενοφων Ίπρ ο ΘΕΟΙ ΑΛ-ΕΟΣΑΝ.)

Jejune, ˌdʒɛ.ˈdʒiːnə, empty-headed, childish, deficient in brain-muscularity; jejune’-ness, jejune’-ly.

Latin fējūnus, fasting, bare, barren.
Jelly, plu. jellies, djel'iz, a conserve from fruit, calves' feet, &c.

Jellied, djel'ëd, made into a jelly. Gelld, djel'ëd, cold.

Jennet, djënnët, a small Spanish horse. (French genette.)

Jenneting, djënnëting, an apple. (French jeanneton.)

Not a corruption of June-eaten, although it means the midsummer apple. La Saint Jean means midsummer. Jeannette is a dim., and jeanneton means the little midsummer apple.

Jenny, djën'ny, a spinning machine. (Corrupt for 'gin'y.)

Not so named by Arkwright from his wife, for his wife's name was Betsy, but from engine with dim. 'gin-le, pronounced 'gën-y.

Jeopardise, djëp'ar.diz, to endanger; jeop'ardised (3 syl.); jeop'ardising (Rule xix.); jeop'ardis-er, djëp'ar.diz.er.

Jeopard-ed, djëp.ar.dëd (R. xxxvi.), exposed to loss or injury.

Jeopardy, djëp.ar.dy, exposure to loss, injury, or danger.

French jeu parti (jé-cus partitus), an even game (Trywhitt).

Jeremiad, djër.jé.m'i.ade, a doleful long-winded story.

So called from the "Book of Lamentations" by Jeremiah.

Jerk, djerk, a twitch, meat dried in the sun, to twitch, to jolt; jerked, djerkt; jerk'ing, jerk'ing-ly; jerk'y.

Welsh tcr, a jerk or jolt; v. tcr. "Jerk" (dried meat), Per. charki.

Jerkin, djérk'in, a short coat. (French jaque with kin dim.)

Jer'sey, plu. jer'seys (not jer'sies), a woollen under-waistcoat.

So called from a fine woollen yarn spun in Jersey.

Jerusalem-artichoke, djë.jU'sii.lem at'.tt.tehoke, a plant from Brazil, with edible roots, akin to potatoes.

"Jerusalem," a corruption of the Italian girasole, the sunflower, which the plant resembles in leaf and stem.

Jessamine (corruption of jasmine), a plant.

French jasmin; Latiu jasminum; Greek iasme.

Jess, plu. jesses, the leather strap tied to a hawk's leg and fastened to the fist of the tosser. (Fr. jeter, to toss off.)

Jest, a joke, to joke; jest'-ed (R. xxxvi.), jest'-ing, jest'ing-ly.

Jest'-er, a joker, a licensed fool. Gesture, djës'.tchür, attitude.

Jesuit, djëz'.u.it, a member of the "order of Jesus," founded by Ignatius Loyola, in 1534, a crafty propagandist;

Jesuitical, djëz'.u.it'.kål; jes'uit'ical-ly; jesuit-ism, djëz'.u.it'.izm; jes'uit-ry, djëz'.u.it.ry (not djëz'.u.it.is.ry.)

Jet, djët, a small shoot of water, a gas nipple, ag'ate.

Jet d'eau, plu. jet d'eaux, zhà.dô', zhà.dôze', a fountain.

Jet'sam, goods cast overboard to lighten a ship;

Flot'sam, goods found floating about the sea;
La'gan, goods thrown into the sea but tied to a buoy.
Fr. jet, v. jeter, to throw [out]. "Flotsam," Old Eng. flōt(an), to float. "Jærgan," Old Eng. liegan or liggan, to lie on (the sea). "Jet" (the mineral), Lat. gāgātes, so called from Gāgātes, in Sicily.

Jetty, plu. jetties, dji't'ēz; a pier, a landing-place. (Fr. jetée.)

Jew'ry, Judea. Ju'ry, a panel of twelve men for law trials.

Jew's harp (corruption of jew harpe (Fr.), a toy-harp).

Jew's eye, 10,000 marks. (Italian gioia, a jewel.)

French Judah, the father of the Jewish race, fourth son of Jacob.

Jew'el, gein; Jewelled, djew'el'd, adorned with jewels; jew'el-ling (Rule iii., EL), jew'el'er; jew'el'ry.

Jib, djib, to start aside. Gibe, djibe, to scoff. Jibbed, djibd; jibb'-ing (R. i.), (noun) a ship's sail, the beam of a crane; jib-boom. (See Gibe.)

Jiffy, djit'fy; a hurry. "To send one off in a jiffy.

Welsh ysgip, a quick snatch; v. ysgipo, to snatch off.

Jig, djig, a dance; to dance a jig. Gig, a two-wheeled open carriage; jigged, djigd; jigg'-ing. (Fr. gigue, a jig.)

"Gig," Fr. giger, to frisk about. So cabriole, from cabri, a kid.

Jilt, a woman who wins a man's love and then discards it, to win and discard a man's love; jilt'-ed, jilt'-ing.

Jim'my, a small crow-bar for forcing doors.

Jimmers, djim'mers, jointed hinges.

Jingle, djin'g'l, a rattling sound, to rattle [keys, &c.]; jingled, djin'g'ld; jin'gling, jin'gling-ly.

Job, a piece of chance work. Job, a Bible character.

Job, to do a job, to hack, to sell to a broker; jobbed, jōbd; jobb'-ing (Rule i.), jobb'-er; jobb'-ery, djob'b'ēry.

Jockey, plu. jockeys (not jockies); djök'ē, djök'ēz, one who rides a horse in a race, one who deals in horses, to cheat, to bilk; jockeyed, djök'ēd; jock'ey-ing, jock'ey-ism.

Scotch Jockie, English Jacky, a little Jack.

Jocose, djō'kōs', given to jokes; jocose'-ly, jocose'-ness.

Jocular, djōk'ē.əlar, full of little jokes; joc'ular-ly; jocularity, djōk'ē.ələr'ēt'i, sportfulness.

Latin jōcōsus (jōcus, a joke), jōcōlāris (jōcōlās, a little joke).

Jocund, djōk'ənd, lively; joc'un'd-ly; joc'un'dity.

Latin jōcundus (for jōcundus, pleasant), jōcunditās.

Jög, a shake, a jolt, to jolt; jogged, djōgd; jōgg'-ing (Rule i.); jōgg'-er. (Welsh gogi, to shake, gogis, a jolt.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Join (1 syl.), to unite; joined (1 syl.), join’-ing, join’-er; join’ ery, the art or trade of a joiner.

Joint (1 syl.), a hinge, a piece of meat, as a joint of mutton, shared by two or more, to separate into “joints,” to form with joints, to fit; joint’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), joint’-ing, joint’-ly, joint-stock-company, plu....companies, -niz.

Joint’-er, a plane. Jointure, djoi’nt.chu:r, a settlement on a wife at the death of her husband; jointured, joint’-tchur’d; jointur’-ing (Rule xix.); joint’.tchur’-ing.

French joint or jointure, a joint; v. joindre; Latin jungere, to join.

Joist (1 syl.), djoiyst (not djiste), the beams to which the boards of a floor or laths of a ceiling are nailed. Rafter (q.v.)

A similar meaning to “sleeper” of a railroad. French gîter (gîter), to sleep, to lodge; gîte (gîte), a “sleeper,” a resting-place.

Jöke (1 syl.), a jest, a merry trick, to make a joke; jöked (1 syl.), jök’-ing (Rule xix.), jök’-ing-ly, jök’-er; in joke, in fun.

A practical joke; a trick played on a person. (Latin jocus.)

Jolly, buxom, merry; jol’li-Iy (Rule xi.), jol’li-ness, jol’li-ty; jollification, joi.t.li.f’i:kay’-shUn, a feast.

Jolly-boat, a small boat belonging to a ship, a yawl.

French joli, pretty. Jolly (boat), another form of “yawl”; French jale, a large bowl; German and Danish jolle; Swedish julle.

Jolt, a jog, to jog; jölt’-ed, jölt’-ing, jölt’-ing-ly, jölt’-er.

Jouquil, djöon’.kwil, a flower of the narcissus species.

French jonquille; Italian giunchiglia (Latin juncus, junk).

Jostle, djös”l, to push against rudely; jostled, djös”l’d; jostling, djös”l’ing; jostler, djös”ler.

French jouster, now jouter, to tilt; Italian giostrare.

Jöt, a very small quantity, to note down; jött’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), jött’-ing (Rule i.), jött’-er. (Gk. iota, the smallest letter.

Journal, djür’.näl, a daily newspaper, a daybook; journal-ise, djür’.näl.ize, to enter in a journal; jour’nalised (3 syl.), jour’nalis-ing (Rule xix.), jour’nalis’-er, jour’nal’-ism; jour’nal-ist, a newspaper writer; jour’nalist’-ic.

Journey, djür’.ny, to travel by land; journeyed, djür’.néd; jour’ney-ing; jour’ney-er, one who travels by land.

Journeycman, plu. journeymen, (fem.) -woman, -women, djür’.ny-män, -män, djür’.ny-wöman, -wöm’én, a mechanic employed from day to day and paid wages.

An “apprentice” is not hired, but pays a premium to be taught a trade. An articled clerk or assistant is an apprentice in a profession (law, medicine, school).

French journal, journalist, journée (jour, a day, Latin dies).
Joust (1 syl.), a tournament. Just, equitable, right.

Joust (verb), joust-ed (Rule xxxvi.), joust-ing, joust-er.

“Joust” Fr. joute, now joute, v. jouter. “Just” Fr. juste, Lat. justus.

Jovial, djó-vé-ál, convivial, gay, jolly; jó-vial-ly, jó-vial-ness; joviality, plu. jovialities, djó-vé-ál”·ties, conviviality.

Born under the planet Jove [Jupiter], the most genial and auspicious of all the planets according to astrology.

Jowl, jółe, the cheek. Cheek by jowl, tète à tète. (O. E. ceole.)

Joy (1 syl.), plu. joys, joiz, pleasure; joy-ful, joy-ful-ly, joy-ful-ness, joy-less, joy-less-ly, joy-less-ness.

Jovious, jóy'-us; joy'ous-ly, joy'ous-ness. (French joic.)

Jubilant, djii-bi-lánt, exulting; jú-bilant-ly; jubilation, djii-bi-lay”·sin, exultation.

Jubilee, djii-bi-lé, a grand periodical festival.

Jubilate [Sunday], djii-bi-lay”·te, the third after Easter.

(The service for this Sunday anciently began with Psalm lxvi, “Jubilate Deo, omnes terræ” (Sing joyfully to the Lord, all ye lands). French jubilation, jubilé; Latin jubilatio, jubilans, gen. jubilantis.

Judaism, djii-da'izm, the religion and social system of the Jews; judaisé, djii-da.izé, to conform to Judaism; judais-ing (Rule xix.), judaised, djii-da.izd; judais-er. Judaic, jú-day’·ik; Judaical, jú-day’·ikál; juda'ical-ly.

Judean, djii-dee’án, a native of Judea; juda'ist.

Judea, fourth son of Jacob, father of the tribe of Judah, and founder of the Jewish or Jews.

Judge (1 syl.), judged (1 syl.), jüd-g-ing (R. xix.), judge-ship.

Judg-ment (words in -dg and -ue drop e before -ment: as acknowledg-ment, abridg-ment, lodg-ment, and argu-ment, Rule xviii.); judg'ment-day, judg'ment-seat;

Judge-ad’vocate, plu. judge-ad’vocates (not judges...).

Judicature, jii’di-ka.tchúr; judicative, jii’di.káтив.

Judicatory, jii’di.ká.trý; judicable, jii’di.ká.blé.

Judicial, jü.dish’·ál; judicial-ly, jü.dish’·álly.

Judicious, jii.dish’·ús; judicious-ly, judicious-ness.

Judiciary, jii.dish’·i.á.ry, pertaining to courts of justice.

French juge, judicature, judicataire, judicieux, jugement, v. juger; Latin iudex, iudicatió, iudicátorius, iudiciare.

Jüg, a pitcher, to warble [like a nightingale], to stew [hare].

Junius speaks of jugge (an urn, a pitcher), and calls it a Danish word.

Juggernaut, djii’ger.naut (better Jag’annaut), a Hindu idol.

Hindustani jagannatha, lord of the world.

Juggle, djii’gl, to conjure; juggled, jüg’·gl’d; juggling.

Juggler, djii’gl·er; jugglery, djii’gl·er·ry. Ju’gular (g.v.)

Span. juglar, jugleria, buffoonery; Fr. jongleur, &c.; Lat. júcúlator.
AND OF SPELLING.

Jugular, Jocular, Juggler, djá'.gú.lar, djók'ku.lar, djág'.gler.
Já'gular [vein] (not djág'.u.lar), the large vein of the neck.
Jóc'ular, given to jokes and fun. (Lat. jóculárís, jócus, a joke.)
Jág'gler, a conjurer. (Spanish juglar, Latin jócítátor.)
"Jugular" Lat. júgá'tum, the throat. In Lat. the first syl. is short.
Juice, djúce, the liquor of fruit; juicy, (comp.) juci-er, (super) jucí-er, jácé'y, jácé'i.er, jácé'i.est ; juici-ness, jácé'i.ness (Rule xi.); juice'-less, without juice.
(The final -e is dropped before -y: as "stone," stó.n, Rule xix.)
Jute, jú.te, juice, gravy (Greek zétó, to boil, whence zómós, broth).
Juju (Fr.), zhú'.zhübe, a sweetmeat. (Latin zizíphrum.)
Julep, djú.lep (not julup), a liquid mixture serving as a vehicle to medicines. (French julep, Persian djuleb.)
Julian [éra, year], djü'.li.an. So named from Julius Caesar.
Julian era, began forty-six years before the Christian era.
Julian year, 365¼ days. Corrected by Gregory XIII., 1582.
July, djü.ly', so named from Julius Caesar, who was born in July.
Jumble, djum'.b'l, a confused mixture, to mix helter-skelter: jumbled, djum'.b'ld ; jum'bling, jum'bling-ly, jum'bler.
Archaic jumble, used by Chaucer.
Júmp, a leap, to leap; jumped, jümpt; júmp'-ing, júmp'-er.
Junction, djúnk'.shün, the point of union, union; juncture, djúnk'.tchür, a critical period, a seam, a joint.
Latin junctio, junctura; French jonction, conjoncture.
June, djü.né, the sixth month, dedicated to Juno.
Jungle, djü.n'.g'l, land in India covered with thick brushwood.
Junior, djá'.ni.or, the younger. Senior, sé'.ni.or, the elder.
Juniper, djü'.nér, an evergreen shrub. (Latin júníperus.)
Június ferre, to bear [berries] in June. Its season of fruit.
Junto, plu. juntos (Rule xlii.), djún.töze, a cabal.
A blunder for junta (Spanish), a secret council.
Jurisdiction, djá'.rés.dik'.shün, the district over which any authority extends. (Latin juris-dictio.)
Jurisprudence, djá'.rés.prú'.dence, skill and knowledge of law.
Latin juris-prudéntia (prudent, i.e., providens, foreseeing).
Ju'rey-man, plu. ju'rey-mén, one who serves on a jury.
Grand-jury, a panel of not more than twenty-three men who decide if a cause shall be sent before a judge.
Petty-jury, a panel of not more than twelve men who decide if a person accused is guilty or not of the charge.
Errors of Speech

Juror, one sworn on a jury. Non-jurors; certain clergymen who refused, after the Revolution, to swear allegiance to the new government. The non-jurors were Archbishop Sacroff, eight other bishops, and four hundred clergymen.

Jury-mast, a temporary mast. (Corruption of 'joury' mast, a mast for a day (jour), used for the nonce).

Fr. jury, petty-jury, grand-jury (Lat. jure, to swear, the men sworn).

Just, right, equitable. 'Joust, a tournament; just-ly, just-ness.

Justice, dius'tiss. Justice of the peace, plu. justices...

For justice sake (not for justice's sake nor for justice's sake). Similarly for conscience sake, for righteousness sake, for mercy sake. Only names of animals and words personified have a possessive case.

Justiciary, plu. justiciaries. dius'tish i. i. riz.

Just now, a little time ago. So presently, a short time hence.

(In French 'presentement' means now at this present time.)

Latin justiarius, justicia, justus (jus, legal right): French justice.

Justify, dius'ti fy, to acquit; justifies, dius'ti fi ze; justified, dius'ti fi de; justifi-er, justifi-able, justifi-able-ness, justifi-ably (Rule xi.), justifi-ing (Rule xi.)

Justification, dius'ti fi sh'un, exoneration.

French justifier, justifiable, justification; Latin justificatio, justificare (justus-facio [facio], to make just).

Jút, to project forward. Jute (1 syl.), fibre used for cordage.

Jutt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), jutt'ing, jutt'ing-ly. (Fr. jeter.)

Jute (1 syl.), an Indian plant used for cordage and coarse cloths.

Juvenile, dius'venile, youthful. Ju'venal, a Roman poet. juvenility, dius'venility [venil'y], youthfulness.

Latin juvenilis, juvenillitas (juvenis, a young man).

Juxtaposition, dius'ta po'zish' on, contiguity.

Latin juxta positio, a position close to each other.

Kail, greens, cabbage. Kale, colewort. (O. E. cawil; Lat. caulis.)

Kaleidoscope (not -de-), kal'i do sköpe, an optical toy.

(With few exceptions [the chief being telescope], the vowel before -scope is always o-, Rule lxiii.)

Greek kalos eidos sköpel, I view beautiful appearances.

Kali, kal'i, glass-wort; kal'ium, the metallic base of kali.

Arabic kalli, ashes of the Salicornia. Al-kalli (al, the).

Kalmia, kal' mi ah, a genus of evergreen shrubs.

So named from Peter Kalm, pupil of Linnaeus.

Kangaroo, kan'garoo, a marsupial animal of Australia.

Kaulin, one of the clays used in the finest China-porcelain.

So called from Kaulin, a hill in China (kau l'ing, high ridge).
Kean-seedlings, no such word. ... (See Keen seedlings.)

Kedge (1 syl.), a small anchor used in rivers and harbours, to move a vessel by a kedge; kedged (1 syl.); kedging (Rule xxxvi.), kedging's same as kedge.

Keel. Kele. Keel; the principal and lowest timber in a ship, to turn the keel upwards, to scum broth. Kele, to cool.

Keel'd (1 syl.), keel'-ing; keel'-age, port dues; keel'son, the timber on the keel into which the mast is stepped;

Keel-haul'ing; hauling delinquent seamen under the keel from one side of a ship to the other.

Old English cæle, a keel or ship's bottom. "Kele" (to cool) cælan.

Keen, sharp; keen'ly, keen'-ness. (Old English cæn, keen.)

Keen-seed'lings, an early dark strawberry full of seeds.

So named from Michael Keen, of Isleworth (1806).

Keep, condition, board, a castle fort, to retain, to take in charge; (past) kept, (past part.) kept; keep'-ing, keep'-er, keep'er-ship (-ship, office of); keep'sake, a gift.

Old Eng. cæplen, past cæpte, past part. cæpt; capec-luis, a stone house.

Keeve (1 syl.), a mashing tub, to set wort in a keeve; keev'd (1 syl.), keev'-ing. (Old English cef, a large tub.)

Keg, a small cask (more correctly Cag.)

French caque; Latin cæclus; Greek kachdbos, a caldron.

Kele (1 syl.), to cool; kæled (1 syl.), kæl'-ing (R. xix.). Keel, g.v.

Old English cælan, past cælode, past part. cælod.

Kelp, sea-weed, the alkaline produce of burnt sea-weed.

Kelpie, kæl'py, a water-sprite in Scotch mythology.

Kelt, a salmon that has been spawning, a Celt.

Kelts, the Celts.

Keltic, the modern way of spelling Celtic.

Kön, to know, to perceive; kenned, kænd; kenn'-ing (Rule i.)

O. E. cæn[an], past cæthe, past part. cæth; Welsh cænian, to perceive.

Kænne, a cot or house for dogs, a pack of hounds, to lodge in a kænne; kænnelled, kæn'ned; kæn'ning (R. iii., -EL).

French chenil (Latin cânis, a dog). Our word is badly formed.

Kent'ish, of or from Kent. Kent'ish-fire, vociferous applause.

Kent'ish-rag (in Geol.), a limestone common at Hythe (Kent).

Kent's hole, an ossiferal cavern in the Devonian limestone near Torquay, in Devonshire.

Kerb-stone, the stone rim at the outer edge of street pavement, the stone coping of a wall. (Fr. courbe, a curb, v. courber.)

Kerchief, plu. kerchieves (should be kerchiefs); Rule xxxix., ker'chif, ker'tchivz, a covering for the head or neck; kerchiefed, ker'tchift, wearing a kerchief.

Hand-kerchief, plu. hand-kerchieves (better handkerchiefs),

"Handkerchief" and "neckerchief" are disgraceful hybrids.

Kermes, ker.meez (not kermz), the dried bodies of certain insects which yield, when crushed, a scarlet dye.

Arabic kermes or karmas; French kermeus.

Kern, an inferior Irish foot-soldier (in times gone by), armed with inferior weapons, a vagabond. Quern, a hand-mill.

Ker*nel,* the nut of stone-fruit. Colonel, ker.nel, a military officer.

Ker*nel,* to form a kernel; kernelled, ker.neld; ker*nell-ing.

"Kernel," Old English *cyrne*l. "Colonel," French colonel. (Our pronunciation of this word is a vulgar contraction: *Co*n-el.)

Kersey, plu. kerseys (not kersies), ker.siz, a coarse woollen cloth.

A corruption of Jersey, where this cloth was first made.

Kerseymere,* ker*.se.meer,* a superior cloth woven of the finest wool.

French casimir (du nom de son inventeur), M. Pierre Casimir, of Abbeville. The usual English derivation is Cashmere, in India.

Kestrel, kit.trel, the wind-hoaver, a kind of hawk. (Fr. crécerelle.)

Ketch (Jack Ketch), a hangman. So named from John Ketch, hangman in the reign of James II. The name of the present [1877] hangman is Marwood.

Ketchup,* ket*.tehup,* sauce made from mushrooms. (E.Ind.ketjab.)

Kettle,* a vessel for boiling water. Kittle,* an apparatus for dragging the flukes of an anchor towards the bow.

Kiddle,* a basket set in the opening of a weir for catching fish.

A pretty kettle of fish (a corrupt form of) A pretty kiddle of fish, a pretty mess, a very disagreeable dilemma.

Kettle-drum (a corruption of kiddle drum), a drum in the shape of a "kiddle" or basket used for catching fish.

"Kettle," Old English cetel. "Kiddle," Bret kidel, a net fastened to two stakes near the opening of a weir for trapping fish.

Key,* plu. keys,* kee,* plu. keez. Quay,* plu. quays,* kee,* keez,* a wharf.

Key,* an instrument to open a lock, an instrument to turn a screw, an ivory lever in a piano-forte, a musical scale denoted by the fundamental note (as the key of C).

Key-board,* kee.börd,* the entire range of levers (touched by the fingers) in an organ or piano-forte.

Key-stone,* the highest central stone of an arch.

Power of the keys,* a power claimed by the pope of locking or unlocking the gates of heaven (Matt. xvi. 19).

"Key," Old English ceg or cez. "Quay," French quai, a wharf.

Khedive,* këd'.ikey* (not kee.divë'), viceroy of Egypt.
Khan, kan, an Asiatic chief. Can, a jug, to be able.

Khanate, kăn'-ate, the dominion or jurisdiction of a khan.

Kick, a blow with the foot, to kick; kicked (1 syl.), kick'-ing, kick'-er. (Welsh cicio, to kick; cíc, a foot.)

Kickshaw, kîk'-shaw, a worthless ornament, fanciful but not substantial food, a dainty. (Fr. quelque chose, something.)

Kid (Dan.), a young goat; kid'ling, a little kid (-ling, dim.)

Kiddle, kîd'-d'l, a basket for catching fish. Kettle, ket'-t'l [for boiling water]. Kettle [for dragging an anchor].

A pretty kiddle of fish corrupted into A pretty kettle of fish, a fine mess has been made, a dilemma.

Kidnâp, to enveigle children; kidnapped, kid'-nâpt; kid'-nâpp-ing (Rule iii., -p); kid'nâpp-er. (Better one p.)

"Kid," slang for child, "nab," slang for prig or steal.

Kidney, plu. kidneys (not kidnies), kid'nis, part of the animal body; kidney-shaped, -shâpt; kidney-bean, a bean kidney-shaped. Of the same kidney, of the same tastes.

Kilderkin, kîl'-der-k'n, a tub containing eighteen gallons.

Dutch kinderken or kinneken, a baby-tub (kind, a child).

Kill, to take life. Kiln, kil'n (1 syl.), for drying bricks, &c.

Kill; killed, kîld (not kîlt); kill'-ing, kill'-er (Rule v.)

Old English ewel[an], to be killed, past ewel, past part. ewelen.

Kiln, kil'n (1 syl.), a furnace for drying [bricks]. (O. Eng. cynn.)

Kiln-dry, kiln-dried, -dride; kiln-dry-ing.

Kilt, a Scotch philibeg, to tuck up [a gown] for walking; kîlt'-ed, kîlt'-ing. (Followed by up.) Kelt, a Celt.

Kim'bo, arched. Arms a-kimbo, with hands on the hips and elbows out. (Italian a sghembo, awry, shembo, crooked.)

-kîn (suffix dimin.), as lamb-kîn. -kind, race, as man-kind.

Kin, a blood relation; akin', allied, of the same sort; kîns'-man, plu. kîns'man, (fem.) kîns'woman, plu. -women, wîm'-n, a relative; kinsfolk, kîns'.fâke, male or female relatives; kindred, kîn'.drêd, related, similar.

Old English cyn, lineage, akin, suitable. (See below, Kind.)

-kind (Old Eng. suffix), "race": as man-kind. Kin, dimin.

Kind, race, indulgent as a kinsman; kind' ly, kind'li ness, kind' ness; kind-hearted, -hart' .êd; kind-heart'ed ness.

Old English cyn, lineage, race, v. cenn[an], to beget, (past) cenned.

Kindle, kîn'.d'l, to set on fire; kindled, kîn'.d'l'd; kîn'dling, setting on fire, material for lighting a fire [as chips]; kîn'dler. (Welsh cynneuad, a kindling, cynneu, to kindle.)
Kine (1 syl.), cows and oxen (a collective noun). O. E. că, a cow.

The plu. of că is că (ki); the "-na" is -en, a post-Norman plu. ending, representing -en, as in "ox-en"; cf-en (ki-n or kin) a double plu.

King, fem. queen, a monarch; king-li-ke, king'li-ness (Rule xi.), king'-ly, king-li-ness; king'-craft, the art of ruling a nation; king-dom, king'dom, the dominion of a king or queen (.dām, Old Eng. dominion, possession); king'-ship, office of a king (-ship, office); king'-ling, a petty king.

King-at-arms, plu. kings-at-arms, herald. There are three, viz. Garter, Clarencieux (kla.ren'so), and Norroy (north­ roi or king); king-post, the middle post of a roof.

King's-bench or queen's-bench, one of the high courts of law in which the king used to preside.

King's evidence or queen's evidence, evidence given by an accomplice on the promise of a free pardon.

King's Counsel or queen's counsel [Q.C.], a barrister selected as advocate for the crown.

(It is quite absurd to change "king" into "queen" in these compounds when the sovereign happens to be a woman. Just as well call the "kingdom" a "queendom" for the same reason.)

King's evil, scrofula, supposed to be cured by royal touch.
Old English cyning, a king, cyning-dōm.

King-fisher, a bird. Certainly not the king of fishers, as it is one of the worst, wounding many more than it catches.

So called from its note which sounds ke-fees-schem. So with tho cuckoo, the pewit, the crow, the whip-poor-will, and others.

Kins'folk, kins'man, kins'woman. (See Kin.)

Kiosk, kē.ōsk', a Turkish pavilion or summer-house.

Kip'per; a salmon dried, to dry salmon; kippered; kip'pered;
kip'per-ing, kip'per-er.

Skipper, master of a trading merchant ship.

Kirk, the Scotch church. (Old Eng. cyrice ; Germ. kirche.)

Kirtle, kir'tl, a short jacket; kirtled, kir'tl-ed, wearing a kirtle.

Old English cyrtel, a woman's gown, a kirtle.

Kiss (Rule v.), plu. kiss'ies (Rule xxxiv.), a salute with the lips, to salute with the lips; kiss'-ing, kiss'-er.

Cist, a stone box, a Keltic coffin. (Latin cista, a chest.)

Cyst, a bag containing morbid matter. (Gk. kusta, a bladder.)

Old English cyse, a kiss; v. cystan, past cyste, past part. cyst.

Kit, a large bottle, a collection of necessary articles [for a march] as a soldier's kit, a little cat, a small violin.

"Kit" (a large bottle &c.), Old Eng. cytel. "A soldier's kit" (Dutch).

"Kit," dims. of cat, Old Eng. cat. "Kit" (a pocket violin) unknown.
AND OF SPELLING.

Kit-cat [club], so called from the cook (Christopher Cat), a small portrait the size of those on the walls of the kit-cat club.

Kitchen, kit'chen, the room for cooking food; kit'chen-stuff, refuse fat and dripping; kit'chen-maid, the female servant under the cook; kit'chen-range, the kitchen stove; kit'chen-garden, the vegetable garden.

Old English eycen; Italian cucina; Latin cucina, the [back] kitchen (from collino, to wash up, con-law).

Kite (1 syl.), a bird of prey; a toy. (Old English eyta, a kite).

Kith, acquaintance; kith and kin, friends and relations.

Old English ejth, knowledge of a person, ejhting, a relation.

Kleptomania, klep'to.may'ni.a, a thieving propensity.

Greek kleptos mania, thievish mania.

Knack, dexterity; knack-er, a showy article of small value; knack'er, a worn-out horse, a dealer in knackers.

German knack, knacken, knack'er &c.

Knapp, to break short. Nap, a short sleep, the "down" of cloth.

Knapped, knäpt; knäpp'ing. Napped, näpt; napp'ing.

"Knap," Old Eng. knäptan, to bend (Germ. knacken, to crack).

"Nap," (to slumber), Old Eng. knäp'tlan. Nap (of cloth), knoppa.

Knäp'sack, a wallet to carry on the back. (Germ. knappsack.)

Knapsack properly means a bag carried by a lad or servant.

Knapps (German), a lad or servant; and sack, a wallet or sack.

Knave, nave, a rogue. Nave [of a church, of a wheel].

Knave, strictly means a son, hence the "knave" of cards;

Knäv'ish (R. xix.), fraudulent (-ish added to nouns means "like," with adj. it is dim.); knäv'ish-ly, knäv'ish-ness.

Knavery, plu. knaveries, nāv'e.ri.z, dishonest trickery.

Old English cnāpa or cnāfa, a youth, a son; German knabe.

"Nave" (of a wheel), Old English nāfa (māfa, the navel).

"Nave" (of a church), French nèf; Greek nāos, the innermost part of a temple, where the "God" was placed (not Lat. navis, a ship).

Knead, need, to work up dough into food. Need, necessity.

Knead-ed (R. xxxvi.), knead'ing, knead'er; knead'ing-trough, need'ing-trough. Need-ed, need'ing, need'ful, &c.

"Knead," Old English cnēd(ian), past cnēd, past part. cneod.

Knee, nec, the joint of the leg. (Old English cneow.)

Kneel, neel, to bend the knee. Neal, neel, (now annum.)

Kneel, (past) knelt, nēlt; (past part.) knelt; kneel'ing, kneel'er. (O. E. cneow(ian), past cneowede, p. p. cneowed.)

Knell, nelt, the stroke of a tolling bell. Nell for Nelly.

Old English cnyll, v. cnyll(ian), past cnyllde, past part. cnyllad.

Knicker-bockers, nik'ker-bok'ers, loose knee-breeches.

Named from Diedrich Knickerbocker, the suppossitive author of Washington Irving's "History of New York." It is compounded of the Dutch nicker broek, uggard-breeches.
Knick-knack, a small showy article of trifling value.

Knife, plu. knives, knife, knivz. (Only three words change -fe into -ves, to form the plural. "Knife," knives; "life," lives; and "wife," wives, Rule xi.)

War to the knife, war without quarter. (O.E. cnif, a knife.)

Knight, nite, a gentleman entitled to bear arms. Night, nite. "Knight" is now a title next below baronet; and both prefix "Sir" before the Christian name, as Sir John Smith. In the address of a letter, &c., bart. is added after the surname of a baronet.

Knight, to make a knight; knight'ed, knight-ing, knight'-ly, knight'li-ness, knight-hood (hood, rank).

Knight Templar, plu. Knights Templars. (A Gallicism.)

Knight Hospitallar, plu. Knights Hospitallers, nite hós',pit'ler. (A Gallicism.)

Knight-ban'neret, plu. Knight-ban'nerets.

Knight-baronet, plu. Knight-baronets.

Knight-er'rant, plu. Knight-errants (not Knights errant). Knight-errantry, wandering in quest of adventure.

Squire, the personal attendant of an ancient military knight.

Accolade, ak'.ko.laid, the stroke which confers knighthood. Old English cnht, a youth, cnight-hand, boy-hood; German knecht. (The "g" is interpolated and serves no useful purpose.)

Knit, nít, to weave with knitting-needles. Nit, the egg of a louse.

Knitt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), knitt' -ing (Rule i.), knitt'-er.

Old English cnitt[an], past cnitt, past part. ge-cnitt.

Knob, nōb, a lump. Nob, the head (one for his nob, in "cabbage"). Knobbled, nōbd, having a knob; knobb'-y, full of knobs; knobb' -i-ly (Rule xi.), knobb' -i-ness, knobb' - stick.

Old Eng. cnop; Germ. knopf. Our word is a blunder for knop.

"Nob" is a still more corrupt form of the same word.

Knock, nōk, a blow, to give a knock; knocked, nōkt; knock' -ing, knock' -er. To knock up, to weary out, to call out of bed.

Old Eng. cnuc[tan] or cnuc[ian], past cnuc'd, past part. cnuc'sed.

Knoll, nōl, a little mound (Old Eng. cnoll). Noll, Oliver.

Knot, nōt, a tie, to form a knot. Not, adv. of denial. Knot'-ed (R. xxxvi.), knot'-ing (R. i.), knot't-y, knot't-i-ness. Knot'-grass, a grass, the underground stems of which are full of knots. Knot [of wood].

Old Eng. cnot, v. cnuf[lan], to tie, past. cnuf'te, past part. ge-cnuf't.

Knout (to rhyme with out), a whip for flogging criminals in Russia, to use the knout; knout'-ed (R. xxxvi.), knout'- ing. (Russian knüt.) Newt, nūt, an eft.
AND OF SPELLING.

Know, (to rhyme with grow), to be cognisant of. No, not so.
Know, (past) knew, (past part.) known (rhyme to grown).
Knew, new, did know. New, not old. Gnu, nū, an antelope.
Known, clearly understood. None, nun, not any. Nun, q.v.
Knows, k silent (rhyme to grows). Nose, nose [of the face].
Know-ing, k silent (rhyme to grow-ing); know-ing-ly.
Knowledge, nōv’lège (not no’-ledge), information.
Old English cnaw-læc, past cnaw, past part. cnaw-lecn (-læc or lëc, the gift or state of [knowing]).
Knobs, nūbs, the waste silk in winding off cocoons.
Knuckle, nūk’lkl, protuberance of a finger joint, to propel [marbles] by a filip; knuckled, nūk’lkl’d; knuck’ling, knuck’ler. To knuck’le under, to yield. Knuck’le-duster, an iron “frise” for the hand. (German knöchel.)
Kobold (German), kō.bold’, a spectre or spirit.
Koran, kō’rān, the Mohammedan bible. (Arab. al koran.)
Kraal, krawl, a Hottentot village of huts. (Dutch kraal.)
Kraken, krā.k’n (Norw.), a water-serpent of enormous size.
Kreutzer, kroyt’zer, a German coin somewhat less than 1d.
Kris, a Malay dagger.
Krishna, krīsh’nah, one of the incarnations of Vishnu.
Kufic, kū’fik, applied to the ancient Arabic letters.
So called from Kufa, a city of Bagdad noted for Kufic writers.
Kyanise, ki’yan.īze, to preserve wood from dry-rot by steeping it in a solution of corrosive sublimate, &c.
So named from John H. Kyan, of Dublin, the discoverer (1774-1850).
(Only two words beginning with “k” [kennel and kitchen] are even indirectly drawn from the Latin language. Four or five are Greek and the rest Teutonic.)

Label, lay’bēl. Libel, li’bēl, a slander. La’bial (q.v.)
Label, a slip of paper [on a bottle] stating its contents; labelled, lay’bēld ; la’bell-ing (R. iii., -ël), la’bell-er.
“Label,” Welsh llab, a strip, with -el diminutive.
“Libel,” Lat. libellum, a little book, the statement of a defendant which always slanders the plaintiff, and hence its present use.
Labial, lay’bi.āl, one of the letters b, p, m, pronounced by the lips; lā’bial-ly. Labiate, lay’bi.āt, to form by the lips; lā’biat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), lā’biat-ing (Rule xix.)
Labium, plu. labia, lay’bi.ām, lay’bi.āh, the under lip of insects, the inner lip of shells. The outer lip is Labrum.
Fr. labial; Lat. labium, plu. labia, a lip; labrum, labra, a brim.
Laboratory (not labratory), lā’b.ō.tāt’ry (not lā.bōr’rā.try), a chemist’s workroom. (Fr. laboratoire, Lat. lābōrātōrium.)
Labour, _lay’bör_, toil, to toil, to cultivate [the soil]; laboured, _lay’börd_; laboured-ing, laboured-er.

Laborious, _la.bör’i.üs_; labo’rious-ly, labo’rious-ness.

Lat. _labor_, labo’rious, v. _laborare_; Fr. _labeur_, laborieux, labourer.

Labrum, _plu_. _labra_, _lay’bräm_, _lay’brah_, the mouth-cover of insects, the outer lip of shells. The inner lip is Labium.

Latin _labrum_, _pla_. _læbra_, _labri’a_, a brim; _labium_, _plu_. _læ’bi.a_, a lip.

Laburnum, _plu_. _laburnums_, _la.bur’numz_, a flowering tree called _The shower of gold_. (Latin _laburnum_, Plin 16; 31.)

Labyrinth (-by- not -ba-); _læb’irnth_, a maze; labyrinth-ine, _læb’i.rinth’i.in_; labyrinth-ian, _læb’i.rinth’i.ân_.

Lat. _læb’irnthus_ (the “y” shows it to be Gk.); Gk. _læb’irnthos_.

Labyrinthodon, _plu_. _læb’irnthodon_, _læb’i.rntb’o.donz_, a fossil reptile of the toad kind; labyrinthodontia, _læb’i.rntb’o. dón_.she.ah. (In _Bot_. and _Zool_. _iota_ denotes an “order.”)

The _læb’irnthine-toothed_ (Greek _læb’irnthos_ ñðn). Under the microscope the teeth of this reptile exhibit a labyrinth of folds.

Lac, _læk_, a resin, 100,000 rupees. Lack, deficiency. Shell-lac; lacce (acid), _læk’sik_, acid obtained from lac.

“Lac” (resin), Germ. _lack_; Span. _laca_. “Lac” (of money), Ind. _lakk_.

Læce (1 syl.), dentelle, to fasten with a cord [highlights, stays, &c.]; lac-ing (R. _xix._), _læc’-ing_; laced (1 syl.); strait-laced (not straight), narrow-minded, bigoted; lace-man, Latin _læc’ina_, a fringe, v. _læc’nare_, to make holes or jags.

The French dentelle, from _dens_ a tooth, and the Latin _læc’ina_, toothed or jagged, contain the same idea.

Lacerate, _læs’è.rate_, to tear; lacer’at-ed (Rule xxxvi.); lacer’at-ing (R. _xix._); lacerable, _læs’è.rä.b’l_; lacerative, _læs’è.ra’tiv_. Laceration, _læs’è.ray’.shün_; lacer’at-or.

French _læc’rët’shon_, lacerable, v. _læc’rë_; Lat. _lact’rë_, lacertor, v. _lact’rë-rare_ (lacer, a rent); Greek _laktis_, v. _læk’tos_.

Lacertian, _læs’er’tsæ’ân_, pertaining to lizards; lacertine, _la.ser’tin_, like a lizard. (Latin _lacertus_, a lizard.)

Laches, _læsh’-ës_ (in Law), acts of neglect. Lash’es, stripes.

Lachrymal, _læk’ri.mël_, causing tears; lach’rymal ducts, the ducts which convey tears to the eye; _lach’rymal_ glands.

Lachrymose, _læk’ri.möse_, mournful; lach’rymose-ly.

Lachrymation, _læk’ri.may’.shün_; lach’rymable.

Lachrymatory, _læk’ri.mö.t’r_.y, a tear-bottle.

Lat. _lachrymätés_, _lachrymatabilis_ (lachryma, Gk. _læbrima_, a tear).

Lack, deficiency, to want. Lac, a resin, 100,000 rupees. (See Lac.)

Lacked, _læk’d_; lack’-ing, lack’-er, but lac’quer, varnish.

Lack-a-day! alas, how sad! Lack-a-daisy, _day’.syl_! dear me! lackadaisical, _læk’a.day’stik’äl_, affectedly pensive.
Lackey, plu. lackeys (not lackies, R. xlv.), a flunky, to follow as a lackey; lackeyed, lāk′ēd; lackey-ing, lāk′ē′ing.

Span. lacayo (lacar, adorned with ribbons); Fr. laquais; Germ. lacket.

Lack-lustre (not lack-lustrred), lāk′ē′lū′str, void of lustre.

Laconic, la.kōn′ēk; brief; laconical, la.kōn′ē.kāl; lacon′ical-ly.

Laconism, la.kōn′ē.zm, great conciseness.

Latin lācōnĭcē, pithily, briefly; French laconique, laconisme:

("Lacon," a Spartan, noted for brevity of speech and conciseness of writing. The Greek l is called the Lacedaemonian letter).

Lacquer, lāk′er, a varnish, to varnish with lacquer; lacquered, lāk′er-d; lacquer-ing, lacquer-er.

Fr. laquer (laque); Germ. lackiren, lackirer (lack); Arab. lak.

Lacteal, lāk′tē.āl, conveying milk, one of the small tubes which convey the chyle to the thoracic [tho.ru′s′ık] duct; lactic acid lāk′ē′tīk, the acid of sour milk.

Lacteous, lāk′tē-ās (Rule lxvi.), milky, resembling milk.

Lactation, lāk′tā.shun, the act or time of suckling.

Lactometer, lāk′tō.mē′ter, an instrument for testing milk.

(*This hybrid should be Galactometer; Greek galakto-metron.)

French lactation, lactometer; Latin lacte-us (lac, milk).

Lactuca, lāk.tū′kah, a genus of plants including the lettuce; lactucic, lāk.tū′sīk; lactusine, lāk.tū′.sīn.

Latin lactuca, the lettuce or milky plant (lac, milk).

Lacuna, plu. lacunae, la.kū′*nah, la.kū′nee, a defect, a gap; *lacunar, la.kū′nar (in Arch.), a sofit with panels.

Latin lācūna, plu. lācūnae, lācūnar, a beam.

Lacustrine, la.kūs′trine, pertaining to swamps, lakes, and pools.

Lacustrine deposits (in Geol.), those found in swamps, &c.

Lacustrine habitations, houses of great antiquity raised on piles in the midst of lakes. (Switzerland, &c.)

Latin lācūstris (lācūs, a lake; Greek lakkōs and lakōs).

Lăd′er,* a machine for mounting. (Old English hlæder.)

[Lade], obsolete; past part. laden, laff.den. For the other parts we use the verb load, lōd; (past) load′-ed; (past part.) either load′-ed or lă′-den; load′-ing; Load (noun).

Bill of la′ding (not loading), invoice of a ship’s freight.

Old English hlæd, a load; v. hlad (an), past hlōd, past part. hlāden.

Ladle, lă′.dēl, a large spoon or scoop, to lift liquids with a ladle; ladled, lă′.dēld; lă′ding, lădler.

Ladleful, plu. ladlefuls (not ladiesful), two, three “ladlefuls” mean the quantity held by a full ladle repeated twice or thrice; but two or three “ladies full” means two or three ladles, each one full.

Old English hlādel, a ladle, connected with hlāden, a well-bucket.

_Lady_ retains the "y" in all its compounds; for example

_Ladybird, ladybug, ladylike; ladyship, term of address in speaking to a lady by right of rank; Ladyday, March 25th, the annunciation; ladylove, a sweetheart; &c._

Old English hildāfde or hildās (*hildaf, a loaf; diis is supposed to mean "server," but the word has not yet been traced).

_Lāg, to loiter, to fall behind; lagged, lāgd; lāgg'-ing (Rule i.), lagging-ly, lagging-ard, lāgg'-er. (Welsh lag.)

_Lagune, lagoon,' a marsh, a fen. (*Ital. laguna; Span. laguna.)

_Laic, lāik; laical, lā'ikal, secular. (See Laity.)

_Laid [paper], paper with ribbed surface; as cream-laid, blue-laid; laid-up, stored up, unwell._ (See Lay.)

_Lain, past part. of v. *lie.*_ Lane (1 syl.), a narrow road. (See Lay.)

_It has lain by for two years. (It has been lying...)_
_It has lain in my head a long time._ (It has been lying...)
_He has lain at the porch from boyhood._ (He has been lying...)

_Lair, lāre, the bed of a wild beast. _Layer, lay'er, a stratum._

_Germ. lager, a lair, a lodging, v. lāern, to set down, to encamp._

_Laird; lāj'd, a Scotch squire or landed proprietor._

_Lainty, lā'ī.ty, the secular people as opposed to the Clergy; laic, lāik, a layman; laical, lā'ikal; la'ical-ly._

_Lait_ (1 syl.), a large pond, a purplish red colour. _Laic,* a resin.

_Lake-dwellings,* houses raised on piles in the midst of a lake, which serves as a moat (see Lacustrine); lāk'y._

_Lake* (1 syl.), a large pond, a purplish red colour. _Laic,* a resin.

_Lake-dwellings,* houses raised on piles in the midst of a lake, which serves as a moat (see Lacustrine); lāk'y._

_Lake* (1 syl.), a large pond, a purplish red colour. _Laic,* a resin.

_Lake-dwellings,* houses raised on piles in the midst of a lake, which serves as a moat (see Lacustrine); lāk'y._

_Stamp* (1 syl.), a large pond, a purplish red colour. _Laic,* a resin.

_Stamp* (1 syl.), a large pond, a purplish red colour. _Laic,* a resin.

_Lama,* lām, a Tartar priest. Grand Lama, the chief lama representing deity; la'ma.ism (not la'ma.ism), the religion of those who adore the Grand Lama.

_In the Tangutanese dialect llama, mother of souls._

_Lamb,* lām, the young of a sheep. Lāme (1 syl.), halt.

_A male lamb is a tup-lamb, a female a ewe-lamb. The castrated tup is a wether or hogget; the female, after being weaned, is an ewe-hogget._

_After the first shearing, the hogget is a shearing._

_When the female shearing has had a lamb, it is a ewe._

_To lamb, to bring forth a lamb; lambed, *lāmd; lamb'-ing._

_Lamb-kin, lām'kin, a little lamb. (-kin, Old Eng. dim.)

_Lamb-like, lamb-skins, lamb's-wool. Lamming, a beating._

_Strictly speaking the young of a sheep is a "lamb" only till it is weaned, but popularly speaking it remains a "lamb" till it is sheared, when it is called a "sheep," regardless of sex._

Lambent, \textit{lām’bent}, flickering like a flame.

Latin \textit{lambens}, gen. \textit{lambentis}, licking (\textit{lambo}; Greek \textit{lapto}).

\textbf{Lāme} (1 syl.), halt, to make halt; (comp.) \textit{lām’-er}, (super.) \textit{lām’-est}, \textit{lāmed} (1 syl.), \textit{lāme’-ing} (R. xix.), \textit{lame’-ness}.

A lame duck, a stock broker who breaks his engagement.

Old English \textit{lām[an]}, past \textit{lāmede}, past part. \textit{lāmed}.

\textbf{Lament}, \textit{lām’ent’}, to bewail; \textit{lāment’-ed} (R. xxxvi.), \textit{lāment’-ing},\textit{lāment’-er}; \textit{lamentable}, \textit{lām’-ēnt’-ēl’}; \textit{lāment’ably}; \textit{lamentation}, \textit{lām’-ēnt’ā’shūn}.

\textbf{Lamia}, plu. \textit{lām’i-ah, lām’i-ē}, a demon under the guise of a beautiful woman, a bag.

\textbf{Lamina}, plu. \textit{lām’i-nae, lām’i-nah, lām’i-ē}, a thin plate or scale:

\textit{laminate}, \textit{lām’-i-nate}, to form into \textit{laminæ}; \textit{lām’ināt’-ed} (R. xxxvi.), \textit{lām’ināt’-ing} (R. xix.), \textit{lām’ināble, lām’inār}.

\textbf{Lamination}, \textit{lām’-i-nay’-shūn}; \textit{laminiferous}, -\textit{if’-ēr’-ūs}.

\textbf{Laminariaeae}, \textit{lām’i-nar’-ē-ē’-se’-ē}, a order of algae.

\textbf{Laminaria}, \textit{lām’i-nar’-ē-ah}, a genus of the above order.

\textbf{Laminarites}, \textit{lām’i-nar’-ē-es}, broad-leaved fossil algae (\textit{aceae}, an order; -\textit{ite}, a genus; -\textit{ite}, a fossil).

Latin \textit{lāmtna}, plu. \textit{lāminæ}, a thin plate of metal; v. \textit{lāmināre}.

\textbf{Lam’mas} (\textit{mass} used as a suffix has only one \textit{s}), the feast of harvest; \textit{lam’mas-day}, August 1st; \textit{lam’mas-tide}.

Old English \textit{hāf’ masse}, loaf-feast, i.e., the feast of first-fruits.

\textbf{Lam’ming}, a beating. \textbf{Lambing}, bringing forth lambs.

“\textit{Lamming},” a pun on the Latin verb \textit{lambo}, to lick, a licking.

“\textit{Lamb},” Old English \textit{lamb}.

\textbf{Lamp}, lamp-light, lamp’-light-er, lamp-black, safety-lamp.

Latin \textit{lampas}; Greek \textit{lampas} (v. \textit{lampō}, to shine).

\textbf{Lampoon}, \textit{lām’pōon’, a personal satire, to assail with lampoons; lampooned’, lampoon’-ing, lampoon’-er, lampoon’-ry}.

So called from the burden sung to them, \textit{lampone, lampone, cancrada lampone} (Sir Walter Scott); French \textit{lampon}.

\textbf{Lamprey}, plu. \textit{lampreys} (not \textit{lampries}), R. xiv., \textit{lām’-pry, lām’-priz}, a fish resembling an eel; \textit{lām’pern}, the river-lamprey.

Old Eng. \textit{lampreda}; Lat. \textit{lampētra} (\textit{lambo petra}, to lick the rocks).

\textbf{Lāncē} (1 syl.), a shaft with a spear-head, to cut with a lance;

\textit{lānced} (1 syl.), hurled, cut with a lance; \textit{lānc’-ing} (Rule xix.); \textit{lānc’-er} (should be lancer).

\textbf{Lance-cor’poral}, a soldier from the ranks acting as corporal.

(\textit{In the middle ages a soldier was called a “lance,” and a soldier with the horses and stable-tails under his charge, a lance-fourne.})

\textbf{Lanceolate}, \textit{lān’-ē-ōl’ē-ate}, shaped like the head of a lance.
Lanceolar, læn'se.ə.lər (in Bot.); tapering towards each end.

Lanciform, læn'si.ə.fərm; lance-shaped; lance-wood.

Lancet, læn'set, a surgical instrument for opening a vein.

Fr. lance, lancier, lancette; Lat. lancea, v. lancia (Gk. logchē).

Länd; land'-ing, putting on shore; land'-ed, having an estate in lands; land'-ed proprietor (not -er); land-ward, adj., towards land; land-wards, adv.: as we are sailing landwards (R. lxxiv.); land-a'-gent; land-breeze, a wind from the land towards the sea; land-carriage, carriage of goods by land; land-crab; land-fall (double -l, R. viii.); land-flood; land-force; land-jobber, one who buys and sells land as a trade; landlord, fem. landlady (plu. ladies, la'diz), an hotel-keeper; land-holder; land-lock, to enclose with land; land-lock'ing, land-locked (-lokt); land-lubber, land-löper; land-mark; land-measure (-mez'zhir), land-measur'ing (-mez'zhur-ing, R. xix.); land-rail, a bird; land-slip; land-steward; land-surve'ying; land-tax; land-wait'er; lands-man, one not a sailor; land'ing-net, land'ing-place. (O. E. land.)

Landau, lænd.dau̯, a light carriage, the top of which may be thrown back. (So called from Landau, in Germany.)

Landgrave, fem. landgravine, *lænd.grəvə'; land'-grə.vən', a Germ. noble; landgrave, landgrave, lænd.grəvə.lət, territory of...

Fr. landgrave, landgravine, langraviat; Germ. landgraf, landgrafin.

Landscape, land'-skep, a rural prospect, the representation of a rural scene; land'scape-gardener, land'scape-gar'dening, planning grounds so as to produce a pleasing effect.

Old Eng. landscape (-scape or -ship, term [prospect], province, &c.)

Landwehr, land'-vər, Prussian and Austrian militia.

German land weh'r, land defence.

Läne (1 syl.), a narrow road. Lain, past part. of lie. (Dutch laan.)

Langsyne, lang'sin', times gone by; auld lang-syne.

Scotch auld (old), lang (long), syne (since, gone by).

Language, læn.'gwəjə, human speech, written or spoken.

French langage: Latin lingua, the tongue, speech.

Languid, læn.'gwəd, weary, feebile; lan'guid-ly, lan'guid-ness.

Languish, læn.'gwəʃ, to pine, to fail in spirits; lan'guished (2 syl.), lan'guish-ing, lan'guishing-ly, lan'guish-ment.

Languor, læn.'gwər, feebleness, lassitude.

Latin languidus, languor, v. languidēre, languescēre (languce).

Laniard, lan'i.jərd, a rope for setting up rigging.

French lan'i.ər, a narrow thong of leather, a laniard.

Länk, gaunt; lank'-y, long-legged; lank'-ness. (O.E. blanc.)

Lantern (not lanthorn), län'tern, a case for a candle; mag'iclan'tern, dark-lan'tern; lan'tern-fly, a luminous insect; lan'tern-jaws, long thin face; lan'tern-jawed, -jawed.
This word is a blunder, copied from the French lanterne; the Latin word is lātērna, from lātēs, to lie hid. Lanthorn is still a worse blunder, as it confounds the last syl. with "horn," with which the word has no connection.

Lanyard, lan'yard, a rope for setting up rigging, any rope made fast for the sake of securing it. (Better Laniard.)
French lanizre, a narrow thong, a hawk's tassel, a laniard.

Laocooon, la.ō.ō.n (not la'kö.koon'), a group of sculpture representing the fate of Laocooun and his two sons.

Lâp, a seat on the knees, to nurse, to lick water with the tongue; lapped, lâpt; lapp'ing (Rule i.), lapp' -er, lâp-dûg.

Lap'ful, plu. lap'fuls (not lapsful). Two, three...lapping means a lapful repeated twice or thrice, but two, three...lapsfull means two, three...laps all full.
Lâpp'ing engine, a doubling machine.

Lapel, lap'el, the facing of a coat; lapelled', la.pem'el' (R. iv.)
Lapped, lap'ed, lap-p' ing (Rule i.), lap' er.

Lapse, lap's, a slight mistake, a slip. Lâps, plu. of lap.
Lapse, to slip away; lapsed (1 syl.), lâsp' -ing; laps' -able.

Lâp'shire (frequent. of lâbor, sup. laps'sum), to glide away, to slip.
Lâp'-wing, the peewit, one of the plover genus. (Noted for flapping its wings.)

Lar, plu. lares, lair'rêz, household gods. (Lat. lar, plu. lares.)

Larboard, lar'bôrd, the left side of a vessel (looking forward).

Port is now used instead. Starboard, the right side...

Larceny, plu. larcenies, la'cê.n'iz, petty theft; larcenist, -ë.níst.

Fr. larcin; Lat. latrocinium (latro, a mercenary, a robber; Gk. latron, pay, latris, a hireling, mercenaries being generally robbers).

Larch, a tree of the fir kind. (Lat. larix, Gk. lariz, a larch.)

Lard, the fat of pigs, to smear with lard; lard'ed (R. xxxvi.), lard'ing; lard' -er, a room for food; larderer, lar'd'erer, one who has charge of the larder; lard'y, containing lard.

French lard, v. larder; Latin lardum.

Large, extensive; large'ly, large' -ness; at large, at liberty.

French large; Latin largus (Gk. lauros, that is la eurus, wide).
Largess, a gift. (Fr. largesse, a bounty; Lat. largio, to give freely.)

Larghetto, lar'geth'o, somewhat slowly. (Ital. largo, with dim.)

Largo, slowly, but not so slow as grave, and "grave" is not so slow as adagio. The degrees are larghetto, largo, grave, adagio slowest of all.

(All Italian words.) A quaver in "largo" = a minim in "presto."

Lark, a bird, a piece of fun, to catch larks, to devise a piece of mischievous fun; larked (1 syl.), lark'-ing, lark'-er.

Lark'spur, a flower, so called from a fancied resemblance of the horned nectary to a lark's spur.

Skylark (the most musical), woodlark, meadowlark.

Skylark'ing with sailors consists in climbing to the highest of the yards and then sliding down the ropes; fun.

Old English lafer, or lavere; Scotch laverek; Latin alauda.

"Lark" (fun), a corrupt form of the Old English loc, sport.

Lar'va, lah'va. Lava, lah'va. Laver, lay'ver.

The first state of an insect is an Egg.

The second state a larva.

The third state a pú'pa or chrysalis [krí's.áli.s].

The fourth and final state the Imá'go.

Lár'val, adj. of larva; lar'viform, like a larva.

Lava, lah'va, melted rock-matter from a volcano.

Laver, lay'ver, a vessel for holding water.

Latin larva, a mask, "grubs," &c., are so called, because their appearance "masks" the future state. "Pú'pa" (Latin), "baby," the baby-state of the winged insect. "Imá'go" (Latin), "likeness," when the insect assumes its true likeness or shape.

"Lava" (of a volcano), Latin lavé're, to wash [down].

"Laver" (a vessel for purifications), Latin lavé're, to wash.

Larynx, là'rínx, the upper part of the wind-pipe; laryngeal, là'rínj'é'ál, adj. of larynx; laryngean, là'rínj'é'an.

Laryngitis, là'rín.jí'tis, inflammation of the larynx (itis added to Greek nouns denotes inflammation).

Laryngoscope, là'rín'go.skó'pe, an instrument for inspecting the larynx. (Except in tele-scope and phanta-scope, the vowel preceding -scope is always ø, Rule lxiii.)

Laryngotomy, là'rín.gót'o.my, cutting the larynx.

Latin làrinx; Greek là'rugx, là'rugx-skópeô, I inspect the larynx.

"Laryngotomy," Greek là'rugx témmô, I cut the larynx.

Lás'car, a native East Indian sailor, an artillery menial.

Hindustani lashkar, the popular name of a Malayan sailor.

Lascivious, làs'sív'ús, wanton; lascivious-ly, lascivious-ness.

Latin lascivious (lascivus, a wanton; Greek ase'gôs, lewd).

Lish, a whip thong, a blow with a whip, to whip, to dash against, to fasten with a rope; lashed, lä'sht; lash'-ing, lash'-er.

Germ, laschen, to whip; Fr. laissez, string, en laissez, tied to a string.
AND OF SPELLING.

Lass, plu. lass-es, lās′ez, fem. of lād, a girl; lassie, lās′sy, a little girl, a term of endearment (lad′ess con. into lāt′er).
Lasso, lās′so, a long rope with a noose for catching wild horses, to use the lasso; lassooed, lās′sōd; lās′so-ing.
Spanish lāsso, a noose (Latin laxus, loose).

Last, the final [one], the one just before the present [one], the model of a foot, a measure [12 sacks of wool], to endure, to continue; last′ed (R. xxxvi.), last′ing, last′ing-ly, last′ingness. Stick to your last, do not venture to pass an opinion on a subject you know nothing about.

At last, or at the last? If adverbially used, meaning last′ly, most decidedly at last should be used. "At" is the Ang.-Sax. adverbial prefix, at laste or on laste, lastly.

At the last requires a noun: as at the last [supper].

"Last" (final), Old Eng. laste. "Last" (shoemaker's), lāst or lāst. "Last" (twelve sacks of wool), Old English hlast, a load, a freight. "Last" (verb), Old Eng. lāst[an], past lāstte, past part. lāsted.

Latakia, lāt′ā.kee′.ah, a Turkish tobacco of superior quality.

So called from Latak′ia or "Laodice′a," where it is grown.

Lātch [of a door], to fasten with a latch; latched (1 syl.), latch′ing; latch′key, -kee, for raising a door-latch.

Latchet, latch′et, a shoe-tie. (O. Eng. ge-lāc′ea[n], to catch.)

Lāte (1 syl.), comp. lāt′er, super. lāt′est; lāt′ely, lāt′eness.

Of late (adv.), lately; too late, after the proper time. O. E. lāt, comp. lātra or lātor, sup. lātest or lātmost, lāt līce, adv.

Lateen, lā.teen′, a broad triangular [sail], a lateen-vessel.

French lāt (both senses): Latin lātus, broad.

Latent, lāt′ent (not lāt′ent), concealed; lāt′ent-ly; lāt′ent-ty.

Latent heat, heat which passes into a body [as ice] without affecting the thermometer. (Latin lātceo, to lie hid.)

Later, lāt′er, more late. Latter, lāt′ter, the last of two.

"Later" refers to time. "Latter" refers to order. (See Late.)

Lateral, lāt′er.ral, proceeding from the side, pertaining to the side; lāt′eral-ly. (Latin lāt′er.alis, lātus, the side.)

Lateran, lāt′er.ən, one of the churches of Rome, the pope's see, &c.

So called from the Laterani, a family which possessed a palace on this spot. Being seized by Nero, it became an imperial residence.

Lath, lāth, a long thin slip of wood, to cover with laths.

Lāthe (1 syl.), a turning machine; lathed (1 syl.), lath′ing, lāth′y, like a lath, thin and feeble.

German, French lāth: Welsh lāth, a rod or staff a yard long.

"Lath′e" (a turning-machine), Welsh lāthru, to polish or smooth.

Lether, lār′k.ər, the froth of soap, to cover with soap froth; lathered, lār′k.ərd; lather′ing, lather′er-er.

Old English lēthr[ian], past lethrod, past part. lethrod.
Lathyrus, *la*thi'ra*ús,* the everlasting pea, the vetchling, &c.

Greek lathuros (*la*thu*ro*s) (lanthāno), to lie hid), so called because the flowers “lie hidden” amongst the leaves.

Lāt’in, the language of the ancient Romans; lāt’i.n-*ism, lāt’i.n-ist.. *Latinity, *lāt*i.n‘i.ty,* Latin style or idiom.

Latinise, lāt’i.n.ize (Rule xxxi.), to convert into Latin; latinised, lāt’i.n.ized; lāt’i.nis-ing (Rule xix.), lāt’i.nis-ing.

The Latin Church, the Western, whose liturgy is in Latin. The Greek Church, the Eastern, whose liturgy is in Greek.

The An’glican Church, the English Protestant church (established by law), the liturgy of which is in English.

The Latin race, the people of Italy, France, Spain, and Portugal, whose languages are based on the Latin, and called Romance.

Dog-Latin, gibberish Latin; Law Latin, debased Latin used in law courts; Monkish Latin, debased Latin used by monks; Low Latin, debased medieval Latin.

Latin, so called from Lāt‘ium. Abba Longa was head of the Latin league, and Rome was a colony of Abba Longa.

Latitude, the distance of a place due North or South from the Equator. The greatest latitude is 90 degrees; Longitude, the distance of a place due East or West of some given line, called the Meridian of Longitude. The greatest possible longitude is 180 degrees.

Latitudinal, lāt’i.tū.*d*ī.nal, adj. of latitude.

Parallels of latitude, *pār*rāl.lēlz* ov lāt’i.tū.de, parallel lines drawn due East and West of each other.

High latitudes, hī lāt’i.tū.des, those parts of the earth which lie near the poles. Low latitudes, those parts of the earth which lie near the equator.

Lat’itude, license of speech, conduct, or faith;

Latitudinarian, lāt’i.tū.*d*ī-nair‘ri.an, one whose religious opinions are too lax to be orthodox;

Latitudinarian-ism, inorthodoxy.

Latin *lāt*itū.do (lātus, broad). The ancients supposed the earth to be a flat surface, bounded by the Atlantic and extending thence indefinitely eastward. This was called its breadth. Its length was similarly measured from the tropic of Cancer northwards.

Latria, lā.tri’ah, divine adoration. The reverence paid to saints is called, in the Latin Church, dū’la [better dū’îah].

Greek latreia, hired service, service of the gods. "Dulia" Greek douleia, the service of slaves and bondmen.
Latten, lat'ten, iron tinned over; Lat'in [language].

Welsh latun; Span. latón; Fr. laton; Ital. latta, latten.

"Latin," so named from Latium, of which Rome was a colony.

Latter, lat'ter, the last of two; Later, laf'ter, more late.

Former, för'mer; the first of two. "Latter" and "former" refer to order; "later" and "latest," refer to time.

Lat'ter-ly, of late. Lat'ter-day Saints, the "Mormons."

"Latter" is the second of two; and "former" the prior of two. When three or more things are referred to these comparatives should not be used, but the superlatives "last" and "first.

Errors of Speech.—

Copper, silver, and gold are used for coinage, the latter is by far the more valuable (fast, most).

Gold, silver, and copper are all minted, but the former is more valuable than either of the other two (first).

Of larks there are many kinds: as the brown lark, wood lark, meadow lark, and skylark, but the latter is the most musical of them all.

B, p, m, f, and v are labials, but the latter two are called labiodentals (the last two).

Lattice, lat'tess, a framework with diagonal cross-bars; lattice-work; latticed, lat'ted, covered with lattice-work.

French lattis (latte, laths; Welch lath, a rod or staff).

Laud, lawd, praise. Lord, a nobleman, a term applied to deity; laud, to praise; laud'-ed (R. xxxvi.), laud'ing, laud'able (1st Lat. conj.), laud'able-ness, laud'ably.

Laudation, law.day'shun; laudatory, law'da.tory.

Latin laudābilis, laudāri, to praise.

Laudanum, lōd'num (not law'dunnum), a drug.

Fr. laudanum; Lat. lāduum (from the shrub lada, Plin. 36.47. The Arabian name of the shrub is lada; our error of spelling we owe to the French, our pronunciation to the Arabic).

Laugh, lāf (noun and verb); laughed, lāf't; laugh'ing, lāf't'; laugh'ing-ly; laugh'er, lāf't'er; laugh'able, lāf't'able; laugh'able-ness, laugh'ably; laugh'ing-stock, a butt; laugh'ing-gas, nitrous oxide.

Laughter, lāf't'er; laugh't'er-less.

To laugh at, to ridicule; to laugh to scorn.

To laugh in one's sleeve, to laugh inwardly with scorn. (The spelling of this word has greatly deviated from the older form, and the interpolated "g" is worse than useless.)

Old English hīhstan, past hīht, past part. hīhten; hīchteor.

Launch, lānch, to move a vessel into the sea; launched (1 syl.), launch'ing. To launch out, to give free scope. (The better spelling of this word would be "lanch").

French lancer, to dart (lance; Latin lancea; Greek logeion).

Laundress, lān'dress, a washerwoman of the better sort; laundry, lān'dry, a room where linen is "got up"; laund'ry-maid (corruption of lavandress).

French lavandière, a wash woman (Latin lavāre, to wash).
Laurel, lau'rel, an evergreen, to crown with laurel; laurelled, lau'relled; lau'rell-ing (R. iii., -el); lauriferous, lōr rif'.-ē.rēs; laurine, lōr'cine, the bitter principle of the laurel; laurels, lōr'relz, glory, honour obtained by merit.

Poet laureate, poët laur'ät, the crown salaried poet.

Lau'reate-ship, the office of poet-laureate (-ship, office).

Lat. lau'reatus, laur'a, a laurel; Fr. lauréat, laurier. (-el dim.)

Laurustinus (not laur'estinus), lōr'rūs.ti'nius, an evergreen.

Latin lau'rus ti'nius, the "Viburnum ti'nus."

Lava, lā.vāh. Larva, lar'va-h. Laver, lay'ver.

Lava, melted rock-matter from a volcano.

Larva, the insect in its grub or caterpillar state.

Laver, a vessel for holding water for purification.

"Lava" and "Laver," Latin lavāre, to wash.

"Larva" (a grub), Latin larvō, a mask. (See Larva.)

Lāve (1 syl.), to wash; laved (1 syl.), lāv'-ing (R. xix.); lāv'er, a vessel for purifications; brazen-laver [of Solomon].

Lavatory, plu. lavatories, lāv'.a.tō'rēz, a place for washing.

Latin lāvātori'um, lavāre, to wash; French v. laver, lavoir.

Lavender, lāv'en.der, an odoriferous plant; lavender-water.

Lat. lavandūla (from lavando, for its use in baths and fomentations).

Laverock, lāv'.er rōk (Scotch), the lark. (Old English lāferc.)

Lavish, lāv'ish, profuse, to squander; lavished, lāv'isht; lāv'ish-ing, lāv'ish-ly, lāv'ish-ment, lāv'ish-ness.

French lavasse, shower; "lavish" is to "shower down" [money].

Law, law'-ful (R. viii.), law'ful-ly, law'ful-ness; law'-giv'er, law'-less, law'less-ly, law'less-ness; law-maker, law-breaker, -brēk'er. By-laws (not byc-laws), local or borough laws (by, Danish a borough or town).

Can'on-law, ecclesiastical law.

Civil law, the Roman law having respect to man as a citizen.

Common law, "unwritten" or traditional law. Its force is derived from long usage and not from "statutes."

Statute law, stāt'tute law, law which owes its force to "statutes" and not to tradition or long usage.

Criminal law, krēm'īnāl law, that which rules what shall be deemed "crime," and what punishment is to be awarded to those proved guilty thereof.

Ecclesiastical law, ēk.klee'stās'-tō.kāl lau, that which rules the government of the church.

Maritime law, mār'ri.tīmā lau, that which rules on the sea considered as a highway of commerce.

Municipal law, mun'.is'i.pāl lau, that which rules a particular borough or township.
National law, nāsh·ōn·āl law, that which rules an entire nation or state.

International law, in·ter-nāsh·ōn·āl law, that which rules in the intercourse of nation with nation.

Ceremonial law, sōr·re·mō·ni·āl law, the Levitical law given by Moses to the Jews.

Moral law, mōr·rāl law, the ten commandments.

Physical laws, fis·h·kāl lawz, those of nature observed in the physical creation.

Revealed laws, rē·veeled lawz, those of God made known to man in the Bible.

Lynch law, lynch law, mob law, or punishment inflicted without legal examination. (From Lynch, of Virginia.)

Old English lāgu, lāg or lāh, lāh·breca, a law-breaker; lāhlic, lawful; lāhlice, lawfully (v. lēcgan, to set down).

Lawn, a grass plot, a fine sort of linen. Lorn, forsaken, lonely.

Lawn·y; lawn·sleeve, a [bishop's] sleeve made of lawn.

Welsh llan, a yard, an open meadow. “Lawn” [cloth], Span. and Fr. lîmain; Lat. lînum, linen. “Lorn,” Old Eng. forloren, forlorn.

Lāx, loose. Lācks, doth lack. Lakes, lūks, large ponds.

Lāx·ly, lāx·ness, lāx·ity; lāx·a·tion, lāx·a·shun; lāx·a·tive, lāx·a·tivist, purgative; lāx·a·tive·ness; lāx·a·tor [muscles], muscles [of the ear], opposed to the Ten·sor [muscle].

(1The office of the “Tensor muscle” is to draw the head of the “malleus” backwards, that of the “Laxator muscles,” forwards.

Latish laxitas, lāz, lāz·a·to, v. lāz·er, to slacken, to loose.

Lāy, (past) laid, (past part.) laid, to place (a verb transitive).

Lie, lī; (past) lay, (past part.) lain, to recline, to remain.

(Note—laid, paid, said [sēd], are irregular in spelling.)

Lay is the pres. tense of the transitive verb lay, and the past tense of the intransitive verb lie.

Laid, lāde, the p. p. of “lay”; lain, lāne, the p. p. of lie.

To lay by, to rest, to set aside.

To lay up, to store; to be laid up, to be ill.

To lay to, too, to stop [a ship]. To lay waste, to devastate.

To lay out, to expend, to plan out [a garden];

To lay on, to strike;

To lay oneself down, to lie down.

To lay wait for, to wait in ambush, but To lie in wait, to lie in ambush.

To lay apart, to put on one side; To lie apart, to sleep away from each other.

To lay down, to relinquish; To lie down, to recline.
To lay together, to collect, to place close to each other;
To lie together, to occupy one bed, to agree in a misrepresentation of facts.

Lay (noun), a poem; lay (adj.), not clerical, as lay-brother, lay-sister; lay-man, one not a minister; lay-figure, lay-figure, an artist's jointed model figure.

Much error exists in the use of the two verbs "lay" and "lie."

Obs. 1. "Lay" must have a noun in regimen with it, and means to "place" or "deposit."
"Lie" cannot have a noun in regimen with it, and it means to "recline" or "remain."

Obs. 2. "Lay" is the present tense of the verb "lay," and the past tense of the verb "lie."

Obs. 3. The past part. of "lay" is laid, and of "lie" lain.

Examples—

The hen lays an egg. The man lays his hat down. Rain lays the dust.
The hen laid an egg yesterday. The man laid his hat on the table.
The rain laid the dust.

The man has laid his hat on the table.
The rain has laid the dust.
The man is laying an egg. The man is laying his hat on the table.
The rain is laying the dust.

Obs. "egg," "hat," "dust" follow the verb "lay" in proper regimen.

Errors of Speech.—

There let it lay (Byron). There let it lie.
They laid in bed till the clock struck ten (Nursery rhyme). They lay.
I have laid the book on the shelf (I have laid...).

The land lays very low (The land lies...).

How lays the battle (How lies... "Battle" is subject, not object).
Here will I lay to-night (Here will I lie...).

The land lays desolate (lies... See Lev. xxvi. 34, 43; Isa. xxxiii. 9).
To lay in ambush (lie:... See Josh. viii. 9).
They lay in wait for blood (lie:... See Mic. vii. 2; Acts xxiii. 21).

"Lay," Old English leged, past part. leged.
"Lie," Old English liegan, past leged, past part. leged.

Layer, a stratum. Lair (1 syl.), the bed of a wild beast.
Layer, a row [of bricks], a coat [of paint], a shoot laid in the ground for propagating; layer-ing, propagating.

German lage, a stratum or layer. Lager, a lair or couch.

Lazzarone, plu. lazzaroni, läζζ',zul',ny, Neapolitan vagrants.

Lazaretto, plu. lazarettos, läζζ',za,rɛtζ',təζε, a pest house.

Lazar-house, läζζ'.ar house, a hospital for lepers.

(If the Italian is adopted, as in "lazzarone," the double z should be preserved throughout. If "Lazarus" is to be the model, Lazzarone should be split with one z. "Lazarettō" is Franco-Italian, and "Lazar-house" English-French, and a hybrid.

Italian lazzarone, lazzeretto (1); French lazaar, lazsart.

Lazuli, läζζ',d̪i̊ or lápis-laz̪ůli, an azure-blue mineral.

Lazulite, läζζ',d̪i̊ lite, an inferior species of lapis-lazuli.

Lapis-lazuli is neither Latin nor Italian. The French compound borrowed by us is meant for the Italian lapis-lazzuli or lazzulo.

The Latin noun laz̪ůlitus means the "azure-blue stone," and lapis, a stone, is not required: "Arab 'l azur; the azure stone:"

Errors of Speech.—

There let it lay (Byron). There let it lie.
They laid in bed till the clock struck ten (Nursery rhyme). They lay.
I have laid the book on the shelf (I have laid...).

The land lays very low (The land lies...).

How lays the battle (How lies... "Battle" is subject, not object).
Here will I lay to-night (Here will I lie...).

The land lays desolate (lies... See Lev. xxvi. 34, 43; Isa. xxxiii. 9).
To lay in ambush (lie:... See Josh. viii. 9).
They lay in wait for blood (lie:... See Mic. vii. 2; Acts xxiii. 21).

"Lay," Old English leged, past part. leged.
"Lie," Old English liegan, past leged, past part. leged.

Layer, a stratum. Lair (1 syl.), the bed of a wild beast.
Layer, a row [of bricks], a coat [of paint], a shoot laid in the ground for propagating; layer-ing, propagating.

German lage, a stratum or layer. Lager, a lair or couch.

Lazzarone, plu. lazzaroni, läζζ',zul',ny, Neapolitan vagrants.

Lazaretto, plu. lazarettos, läζζ',za,rɛtζ',təζε, a pest house.

Lazar-house, läζζ'.ar house, a hospital for lepers.

(If the Italian is adopted, as in "lazzarone," the double z should be preserved throughout. If "Lazarus" is to be the model, Lazzarone should be split with one z. "Lazarettō" is Franco-Italian, and "Lazar-house" English-French, and a hybrid.

Italian lazzarone, lazzeretto (1); French lazaar, lazsart.

Lazuli, läζζ',d̪i̊ or lápis-laz̪ůli, an azure-blue mineral.

Lazulite, läζζ',d̪i̊ lite, an inferior species of lapis-lazuli.

Lapis-lazuli is neither Latin nor Italian. The French compound borrowed by us is meant for the Italian lapis-lazzuli or lazzulo.

The Latin noun laz̪ůlitus means the "azure-blue stone," and lapis, a stone, is not required: "Arab 'l azur; the azure stone:"

Errors of Speech.—

There let it lay (Byron). There let it lie.
They laid in bed till the clock struck ten (Nursery rhyme). They lay.
I have laid the book on the shelf (I have laid...).

The land lays very low (The land lies...).

How lays the battle (How lies... "Battle" is subject, not object).
Here will I lay to-night (Here will I lie...).

The land lays desolate (lies... See Lev. xxvi. 34, 43; Isa. xxxiii. 9).
To lay in ambush (lie:... See Josh. viii. 9).
They lay in wait for blood (lie:... See Mic. vii. 2; Acts xxiii. 21).

"Lay," Old English leged, past part. leged.
"Lie," Old English liegan, past leged, past part. leged.

Layer, a stratum. Lair (1 syl.), the bed of a wild beast.
Layer, a row [of bricks], a coat [of paint], a shoot laid in the ground for propagating; layer-ing, propagating.

German lage, a stratum or layer. Lager, a lair or couch.

Lazzarone, plu. lazzaroni, läζζ',zul',ny, Neapolitan vagrants.

Lazaretto, plu. lazarettos, läζζ',za,rɛtζ',təζε, a pest house.

Lazar-house, läζζ'.ar house, a hospital for lepers.

(If the Italian is adopted, as in "lazzarone," the double z should be preserved throughout. If "Lazarus" is to be the model, Lazzarone should be split with one z. "Lazarettō" is Franco-Italian, and "Lazar-house" English-French, and a hybrid.

Italian lazzarone, lazzeretto (1); French lazaar, lazsart.

Lazuli, läζζ',d̪i̊ or lápis-laz̪ůli, an azure-blue mineral.

Lazulite, läζζ',d̪i̊ lite, an inferior species of lapis-lazuli.

Lapis-lazuli is neither Latin nor Italian. The French compound borrowed by us is meant for the Italian lapis-lazzuli or lazzulo.

The Latin noun laz̪ůlitus means the "azure-blue stone," and lapis, a stone, is not required: "Arab 'l azur; the azure stone:"
Lazy, lay′.zy, indolent; lā′zi-ness (R. xii.), lā′zi-ly. (Welsh lesq.)

Lea, lea′, a meadow, a field. Lee, defended from the wind.

Leas, leez, plu. of lea. Lees, dregs. Lease, lece [of a house].

Lead, lēd, a metal; to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leal, plu. lea′, leaves (Nouns in -af and -if make the plu. in -ves, R. xxxviii.); leaf′-less; leaf′-age (-age, collection), abounding in leaves, season of leaves.

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leal, plu. lea′, leaves (Nouns in -af and -if make the plu. in -ves, R. xxxviii.); leaf′-less; leaf′-age (-age, collection), abounding in leaves, season of leaves.

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.

Leaf, leef′, to convey; (past) led, (past. part.) led; lead′-ing, lead′-er, lead′-er′-ship (-ship, office of); lead′-ing-strings; a lead′ing question, a question which leads to the answer.

Leaf, leef′, Old Eng. lead, lead′en.

Leaf, lēd, to cover with lead; lead′-ed, lēd′.ed; lead′-ing, lēd′.ing; lead′-en, lēd′.n, made of lead (en added to materials denotes "made of," as gold′-en, wood′-en).

Leads, lēdz, a roof covered with lead, slips of metal inserted by printers between the lines of type, a point for writing; Black-lead, plumb′a′go or graph′ite, a compound of iron and carbon; White lead, oxide of lead. Lead′ pen′cil, led...

Leaf, leef′, a small leaf; leaf′-y, leaf′-ness (Rule xii.);

Leaf-stalk, leef′-stawk, the stalk of a leaf; leaf′-bud, the bud which develops into a leaf; fruit′-bud, the bud which develops into fruit.
A lean-to, a building the rafters of which lean against another building. To lean on, to rest on, to depend on.

"Lean" (verb), Old Eng. līn[ian], past līnode, past part. līnод. "Lean" (thin), Old English lāne or hlāne, past lān[ian], to be lean.

Leap, leap, a jump, to jump; (past and past part.) leaped, leapt, or leapt, lēpt; leap'-ing, leap'ing-ly, leap'-er; leap-frog, jump-back; leap-year, every fourth year, the date of which will always be an exact measure of 4.

Old English lēadp[an], past lēop, past part. lēadpen.

Learn, lern, to receive instruction. Teach, teach, to give instruction. Learn-er, lern'-er, a scholar. Teacher, teach'-er, an instructor. Learn'-ing, lern'-ing, receiving instruction, knowledge obtained by study; learned or learnt, lern', acquired by study; learn-ed, lern'ed, wise; learned-ly, lern'ed ly, wisely. The learn'-ed, the book-wise.

Errors of Speech.—

Lead me in Thy path and learn me (Ps. xxv. 4. Prayer Book version). Such as are gentle, them shall He learn His way (Ps. xxv, 8, ditto). O learn me true understanding (Ps. cxix. 65, ditto). [They shall] keep My covenant... that I [will] learn them (cxxxii. 3).

Old Eng. lēor[ian], past lēorode, past p. lēorod, lēore, a learner; lēornigende, learning (part.); lēornung, learning (verbal noun).

Lease, leese [of a house], leeze, to glean. Lees, leez, dregs.

Leased, leest, let for a term of years. Least, leest, smallest.

Leasing, lee'.zing, letting on a lease, lee'.zing, lying.

Lease'hold, property held by lease; lease-hold'er.

Less'or, one who gives a lease. Less'ee, one who holds a lease.

Less'er, smaller in size. Leaser, lee'.zer, a gleaner.

"Lease" (a contract), Fr. laisser, to leave; to let. "Lees," Fr. lie.

"Lease" (to glean), Old English lēas[an], to glean; lee, a gathering.

"Leasing" (lying), Old Eng. leasung, leas, falsehood'; leas[ian], to lie.

Leash, leesh, three head of game, three hounds, &c., to hold by a string; leashed, leeshd; lease'-ing.

A brace is a couple. Two brace = 4. Two leash = 6.

Fr. laisse; Low Lat. lezia; Lat. lāqueus, a noose (Gk. lugos, a with). Leasing, lee'.zing, lying, gleaning. (O. E. leasung, lese. See lease.)

Least, leest, smallest. Leased, leest, let on lease. Lest (g.v.)

At least or At the least? "At least" = at any rate. (This is the Old Eng. adv. prefix a). "At the least"... requires a noun to follow as At the least [disturbance], "least" being an adj. In the least, i.e., in the least [degree]. The degrees are [little], less, least. "Little" is not of the same root, but is supplied for want of a positive.

Old Eng. leas, opposite of full comp. lasse or lasse (les-ra), super. lest (les-est), "lessa" or "lesse" is our "less," and "less" is merely a contracted form. "Leased," Fr. laisser. "Lest," Old Eng. lēth las, the less, lest that.
AND OF SPELLING.

Leather, lär'ër, prepared hides. Lather, lär'hër, soap-froth.

To leather, to beat with a leather strap; leath'ëring, a beating; leath'ëry, tough, resembling leather; leathern.

Leave, lee, permission, to quit, (past and past part.) left.

Leaves, leevz, doth leave, also the pl. of leaf (which see); leav'ing (R. xix.), lee'ving. Leavings, lee'vingz, refuse.

To leave off, to desist. To leave out, to omit.

Left to oneself, left to one's own devices, left alone.

As "leave" is a verb transitive, the following are elliptical.

I shall not leave till to-morrow (leave this place).

He left by train (left this house, this place).

Old Eng. léf[an], past láf'de, past part. láf'ded. "Leaf," O. E. leif.

"Left" (hand). Old Eng. lef, left or weak, the weak hand, and not as Dr. Trench asserts "the hand that is left" or not used.

(Every word but one in "lea-

Leaven, lév'n, ferment. Eleven, e lév'n, one more than ten.

To leav'en; leavened, lev'ned; leaven-ing, lëv"n.ing; leaven-er, lev'ner. (Fr. levain; Lat. lévuré, to raise.)

Lecherous, letch'ërus, lustful; lech'erous-ly, lech'erous-ness; lechery, letch'ër.ry, debauchery; lech'er, a debauchee.

O. E. legerscipe, fornication, adultery; Low Lat. leccator, a debauchee.

Lecturn, lëk'turn (not lectern), a reading-stand.

Low Latin lecturnium, Latin lectrum, a reading-desk.

Lection, lëk'shun, a portion of Scripture appointed to be read in Church, a MS. "reading"; lec'tor, a reader; lection-ary, lëk'shun.ary, a book of the "lessons."

Lecture, lëk'tchur, instructive discourse read from [notes]; a reproof, to give a lecture; lectured, lëk'tchurd; lec'tur-ing (R. xix.), lec'tur-er, lec'ture-ship (-ship, office of).

Lesson, lës'son, a task, selected portion of Scripture.

Lat. lectio, lectionarium, lector, lectura, v. légère, sup. lectum, to read; Fr. leçon; Germ. lese, to read, leseung, a lesson, a reading.

Léd, conducted (past and p. p. of lead, leed). Lead, lëd, a metal.

A led-horse, a sumpter-horse. A led-captain, an obses-

Ledge, a ridge, a rim, a fillet, a spline. (O. E. lecg[an], to lay.)

-ledge (Anglo-Saxon suffix -læch, -læc), gift, state; know-ledge.

Ledger, an account-book, an extra line in the staff [of music].

German lagerbuch, stock book. (The ð is interpolated.)

Ledger lines (in music) means ledges for the notes out of the staff.

40
Lee, defended from the wind. Lea, lee; a field, a meadow.
Lee-shore, the shore upon which the wind is blowing.
Under the lee of [A.], [A.] being between you and the wind.
The lee side, the side on which the wind does not blow;
the weather side, the side on which the wind does blow;
thus if the wind blows on the starboard, the starboard is the weather side, and the port the lee side.
Lee-ward, le'r'd, in the direction of the lee side.
Windward, wind'rd, in the direction opposite to that from which the wind blows.
Lee-way, the loss of way caused by drifting to leeward.
Leech, a blood-sucker, a physician; leech-craft, medical skill.
Old English lleece, a medical man, a blood-sucking worm; lée-craft.
Leek, a kind of onion. Leak, leek, a chink, to ooze from a chink.
Leer, a libidinous side-look, to look with a leer; leered (1 syl.), leer'ing, leer'ing-ly; leer'er, one who leers.
Lees, leez, dregs [of wine]. Lease, lëce, a contract.
“Lees,” Fr. lës (Lat. timus, mud). “Lease,” Fr. laiser, to let one have.
Leet, an Anglo-Saxon senate and law-court; court-leet.
Old Eng. leod, the people, leod-wita, a legislator; Low Lat. lêta, a leet.
Leeward, lë'r'd; lee-way. (See Lee.)
Left, not right, past and past part. of leave; left-hand, the “weak” hand (not as Dr. Trench says the “left” or unused hand); left-handed, one who uses the left-hand most.
A left-handed marriage, mär'ridge, a German marriage allowed to the nobility, which can be dissolved without divorce, also called a Morganatic marriage.
(The bridegroom pledges his troth with the “left” hand. Morganatic means “curtailed” or “limited,” because the rights of the bride are limited to the dowry, and do not extend to the husband’s estates.)
Old Eng. lef, left, weak (not from v. leffan), past lefde, p. p. lefed.
Lëg, a member of the animal body; legged, legd, having legs; legg’ings (R. i.), covering for the legs (when a pair can be divided into two articles, it has a sing.: as a legging, a glove; otherwise it has no sing.: as scissors, tongs); leg-less.
To take leg-ball, to run away from one’s creditors.
Icelandic leggr, a stalk or stem. In Italian laccio means a leg.
Legacy, plu. legacies, lëg’ä.siz; a bequest of movable property.
Leg’at’or, one who leaves a legacy.
Leg’atee’, one to whom a legacy is bequeathed.
Latin lég’at’or, lég’á.tum, a legacy, v. légère, to bequeath. (This Latin verb must not be confounded with lëgo, lëgère, to read.)
Legal, lee'gal, according to law; le'gal-ly, leg'i-lity; leg'ali-sate (Rule xxxi.), to render lawful; leg'ali-sed, le'gal-i-sa'-ed (Rule xix.).

A legal-tender, coins which may be legally offered in payment of a debt (Rule xix.).

Legate, le'gat, (not lee'gate; it has no connection with le'gal), leg'at-ship (ship, office of); leg'at-in, adj.

Legation, le'ga-shun, the ambassadorial suite.

(*The first vowel is long in Latin, so it is in legacy.)

Latin légat-us, légat-io (*from légare, to send on an embassy).

Legend, le'gend, (not lee'gend), a traditional tale, the words round the rim of a coin; legendary, le'gendi-ry.

Latin légend-us, le'gend-io (from légère, to send on an embassy).

Legible, le'gib-le, easy to be read; legible-ness, legibly; legibility, le'gib-li-tv (-ty). Negative il-legible.

Latin légib-lis, (légère, to read; Greek légo, to recount, to tell).

Legion, lee'jion, a Roman brigade of 600 horse and 6,000 foot.

Legion of honour, a French order of merit (Rule xix.).

Legionary, lee'jion-ary, adj. of légion. Legendary (q.v.).

Legends (Rule xix.). The first vowel is long in Latin, so it is in legend.

Legitimisation, le'jiti-may'-shun, legalisation.

Legitimation, le'ji-tay'-shun, legalisation.

Legitimise (Rule xxxi.), le'ji-tay'-mise, to pronounce a child legitimate; legitimised (Rule xix.), legitimiser, le'ji-tay'-ser.

Legitimist, le'ji-tay'-mist (Rule xxxi.), legitimist (q.v.).

Legitimist (Rule xix.), a favourite of the Bourbon dynasty.
Legumen, læ.çu. mùn, pulse. Legumine, læ.çu. mùn, a product called vegetable caseine [kas.çu.in], obtained from pulse;
Legumes, læ.çu.ù.ùz', peas, beans, &c.; leg'uminous, -ù.ù.ù.
Leguminosites, læ.çu.ù.ù.sîtès, fossil seeds of pulse (-ite denotes a fossil, Greek lithos, a stone).
French légume, légumes, légumineux; Latin légumen, pulse.
Leisure, læ.çu.zê, time unoccupied; lei'sure-ly; at lei'sure, not busy. (Fr. loisir; Lat. licet, it is lawful, hence loisible, lawful.)
Lem'na, a geometrical proposition assumed as granted, and taken to help out the proof of a dependent proposition.
Dilem'ma, a perplexity, two antagonistic propositions.
Greek lêmma, anything assumed (lambêdno, eilêmniat, to take).
Lemon, læ. onions, a fruit; le'mon-ade (-ade, a drink “made of”).
Span. limón; Ital. limone; Lat. limonium, plu.; Ind. leemoo.
Lemur, læ. múr, one of the monkey tribe. Lemures, læ. mú.ù.ù.ùz, ghosts.
“Propitious” ghosts were by the Romans called lares, lair' rez; “evil” ones, Lar' ve.
-lence (Latin -lentia), nouns, “fullness of”; corpus-lence, fullness of corpus (flesh); vio-lence. (See -lent.)
Lend, (past) lênt, (past part.) lênt, to grant temporary use; leণd'ing, lend'er. Loan, the thing lent. Borrow, bôrr, to obtain the temporary use of a thing lent.
Old English lên, a loan; v. lênn[an], past lênd, past part. lêned.
“Borrow,” O. E. borg, something borrowed; v. borg[an], to borrow.
Length (-th added to adj. converts them to nouns). Length, breadth, depth, but height (not highth). Length'-y, length'i-ness (Rule xi.), length'i-ly; length'i-ly (not length-names. It is the Anglo-Saxon termination -wis, in the direction of). At length, at last. Length'en (-en signifies “to make”), to add length or make longer;
length'en-ed (-ed asyl), length'en-ing.
Long, (comp.) long'er, long'gâr; (super.) long'est, long'yest.
Old English lang, comp. leng-ra, (super.) leng-est, length, lengtogen, to lengthen; leng[an], to make long; past leng'de, past part. lenged.
Lenient, læe.ù.ù.ùnt (not lùn'ù.ùnt), mild; le'nient-ly.
Leniency, lee.ù.ù.ù.ùsy, mildness; lèn'ity, len'i-tive, -tiv.
Latin lêntitas, lêntens, gen. lênte nitis, v. lênte ré (lêntis, mild).
Lens, læns, plu. lens-es, lens'ez, an optical glass for changing the direction of the rays of light. Crystalline lens, krís.tû.ù.ùne lens, the middle humour of the eye.
Lenticular, len'tîk'ù.ù.ù.ùr, in the shape of a double convex lens; lentic'ûlar-ly.
Latin lens, gen. lentis, a lentil; French lenticulaire.
-lent (Lat. -lent[us]), adj., “full of” as vio-lent, full of vis, force;
corpus-lent, full of corpus (flesh); succu-lent, full of juice.
Lent, forty days fast, beginning with Ash-Wednesday, part. of v. lend; Lent'en, pertaining to Lent, frugal [in diet].

Lentil, len't'íl, a plant of the bean kind.

French lentille, Latin lenüs, a lentil.

Leo, leé'ó, the lion, the fifth sign of the zodiac; leonine, leé'ó.níne, like a lion. (Lat. leo, a lion; leoninus, adj. of leo.)

Leopard, lép'ard, the lion-pard, offspring of a panther and lioness (pard means spotted, "leopard" the spotted-lion). Lat. leopardus; Gk. leoparðítis or leoparðós, the lion-pard.

Leper, lép'ér, one affected with leprosy; leprosy, lép'ró.sy; leprons, lép'róns; leprons-ness. (Gr. lepra, lepros, leprous.)

Leporine, lép'ó.ríne, pertaining to a hare. Leporidm, lé.pó'rì.de, the hare tribe (-ide, a group or family). Latin leporinus (lepus, gen. leporis, Greek lágós, lágos, a hare).

Leprosy, lép'ró.sy; leprons. (See Leper.)

Lesion, lee'shún, injury. (Fr. lésion, Lat. lésio, gen. lésiōnis.)

-less (nat. suffix leas), "void of," "loose from": fear-less, joy-less.

Less, smaller in quantity, shorter in duration, &c.

Less'er, smaller in size, is always in contrast with greater:
as "The greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night." The lesser Asia. The lesser of two circles or triangles, &c. (Never in contrast with much.)

Less'en, to make less (-en, "to make"). Lesson, a task.

Lessened, less'end; less'en-ing.

Lesser is not a comparative degree of less, but another form of the comparative degree of the lost positive. The adj. supplied is little, but "little" is not of the same root. The lost adj. is least, the opposite of full.

[Less], comp. lessa, (lesser), les-ra shortened into les, less, and les-est shortened into lest. The older forms were lesse and leesest. Instead of "lesser" being a double comparative, the truth is that less is a mere contraction of lesser.

Lesson, less'én, a task. Lessen, less'én, to diminish.

"Lesson," Fr. leçon; Lat. lectio, a lesson. "Lessen," O. E. les, less.

Less'or, one who lets on lease. Less'ee, one who accepts the lease.

Less'er, less in size. Leaser, lee'ser, a gleaner.

List, for fear that, that..., not. Least, leastest, smallest. List [of cloth].

-let (a native diminutive suffix), as stream-let, a little stream.

Let, (past) let, (past part.) let, to allow, to hinder, to put to hire; left'ing, hindering, putting to hire. Hire (1 syl.), to take on a consideration what is let; hir-ing (R. xix.)

Lett'er, one who lets, one who hinders, an epistle, part of the alphabet. Hirer, hire'er, one who hires what is let,
Let's, contraction of let us. "Let's go birdsnesting, you, I, and Harry" (you, me, and...), "let us," viz., let me, with you and Harry... "Let you and I go" (you and me).

"Let" (to allow), Old Eng. lēt(a)n, past lēt, past part. lēten.

"Let" (to hinder), O. Eng. lēt(a)n, past lētte, past part. lētte, to delay.

(These two verbs are often used indifferently.)

"Letter" (of the alphabet), an epistle, Latin littera.

Lethe, lee'the, the river of oblivion; lethean, lee'the'an (not lee'rhē'an), adj. of Lethe; lethal, lee'thal, deadly.

Lethargy, leth'ar.gy; morbid drowsiness; lethargical, le-thar'gi.cal; lethargic, le-thar'gi.ck. Gr. lēthē, river of oblivion; lēthargikós (lēthanó, to make one forget).

Letter, an alphabetic character, an epistle, a hinderer, one who lets on hire, to stamp with letters; lettered, let'terd; letter-ing; let'er-er, one who stamps with letters.

Letter-box, a box for letters; letter-car'rier, letter-case, letter-paper; letter-press, printed matter from type; letter-writer, one who... a book to teach letter-writing.

(The following have "i" for the first vowel and only one "t").

Literary, lit'ær.ry; literature, lit'ér.ature; literate, lit'ërate, learned; illiterate, unlettered.

Literati, lit'ë-rate'.ty, men who profess literature.

Literal, lit'ë.ral, letter, for letter; exact, not, figurative; literal-ly, literal-ness. Littoral, lit'to.ral, pertaining to the sea-shore. (Latin littus, the sea-shore.)

Letters of administration, authorisation to administer the goods and estates of a person deceased.

Letter of advice, notice to a banker or merchant of some transaction (as of goods sent off).

Letter of credit, a bank order authorising the bearer on his travels to receive a stated sum of money for which the writer will hold himself chargeable.

Letter of licence, a customs permit or privilege.

Letter of marque, mark, licence given to a private ship in time of war to seize on the ships of a hostile state.

Letters pâ'tent (not pā'tent), authorisation for the holder to enjoy some privilege stated in the document.

Letters testamentary, authorising an executor to act.

A dead letter, one lying at the post-office undelivered because the address or person is unknown.

(The error of spelling "letter" with "e" and double "t" we take from the French, but in "literary," &c., we avoid the double "t" of the French, and conform to the Latin models. The error of "letter" with double t is still worse, as the first vowel should be long.)

Latin littera, littera, litteralis, litterarius, literatura, literatus. French lettre, litteraire, litteral, litterature.
Lettuce (obs. the u), lēt'ēss, a table vegetable for salads. (The word should be "lattuce" or "lactuce," the first syl. being "lac.") German latteh; Latin lactēca (lac, milk), the milky plant.

Leucorrhea, lu'kōr ree'ah, a female ailment, the "whites." French leucorrée; Greek leukōrrhoa. As in "diarrhoea" the r is doubled to compensate for the aspirate which cannot be expressed in Greek. The Greek form of "diarrhoea" is διάρρhoeα (not διάρρhoea, from διά rēw), and the Greek form of "leucorrhea" would be leukǒrrhoeα (not leukόrrhoeα from leuk[ē]s rēw).

Levant, lē.vin', the eastern part of the Mediterranean Sea, to abscond without paying a lost bet; Levant'·er, a strong east wind in the Mediterranean Sea, one who absconds...

Levant·ine, lē.vin'tine, adj. of Levant, a silk cloth so called.

Gallavant, gal'·lā vant, to attend ladies with gallantry.

French levant; Italian levante, the east, (Lat. levāre, to rise, to ease, hence "to get rid of," "to repudiate." The Latin phrase a·de·le·vo se levāre means to pay not to repudiate a debt). "Gallavant," a corruption of Spanish galantear, French galanterie.

Levator, Depressor, lē·vā'tor, dē·press'or, muscles of the mouth, eye, uvula, &c. The levātor [of the mouth] serves to elevate the upper lip, the depressor to draw it down, &c.

Latin levātor, a lifter up. Depressor, a presser down.

Levee, lēv'y, a court reception. Lēvy, to raise troops, &c.

French levée, the process of getting up and dressing. During the monarchy certain gentlemen were privileged to pay their respects to the queen during her "levée," and these visits were called levées visits, but what we call a court levée is in French termed a réception. "Levy" (of troops), Fr. levée; Low Lat. levina; Lat. levāre, to raise.

Level, lēv'el, smooth, even, to make level; levelled, lēv'·eld; lev'éll-ing (Rule iii., -ed), lev'éll·er, lev'éll·ness.

The degrees of "level" are nearly level, more nearly level, very nearly level, quite level; "moro" and "most" level are the degrees of not level.

Old English læfeldêre, læfel (a level), Low Latin levella, a level.

Lever, lee·ver, one of the mechanical powers; lever-age, lee·ver·age (not lēv·er·age) (-age, the act of).

French levier, v. lever, to raise (Latin levēre, to raise).

Leveret, lēv'·e·riv·ēt, a young hare. (Fr. levrant, lièvre; Lat. lēpus.)

Our word is the French lièvre, with -et diminutive.

Leviathan, lē·vi·a·thān, a huge sea-monster alluded to in the book of Job xli., a whale. (Hebrew lē·vī·wēth[a]n.)

Levitation, lē've·tā·shān, the opposite of gravitation, or the power that acts in opposition to gravitation. (See Levity.)

Levite, lee·vī·te, a Jew of the tribe of Levi, one of the priestly order; Levitical, lē·vī·tā·kēt; Levitical·ly.

Leviticus, lē·vī·tā kēs, a book of the Bible relating to the Jewish priesthood. (Levi, third son of Jacob.)
Levity, plu. levities, lĕv′ē.tiz; frivolity; levitation, lev′ē.tay′-shun, the opposing power of gravitation.

Latin levitas, lĕvis, light.

Levy, lĕv′ē, to raise troops, to impose a tax. Lev′ee, lĕv′ē, a court reception. (French levée, a levy.) See Levee.

Lewd, lŭd, wanton. Loed, lŭde, fined at the game of loo for not having won a trick; lewd′-ly, lewd′-ness.

Old English lēvede, one of the laity, pertaining to the laity. Marriage and courtship being forbidden to the Roman Catholic clergy, "lewdness" is identified by them with the laity.

Lexicon, lex′i.kon, a dictionary; lexical, lex′i.kĭl, adj.; lexical-ly, lexical′ogy, lexical′ogist.

Lexicography, lex′i.kog′ra.jy, the art of compiling a dictionary; lexicographer, lex′i.kog′rə.fer; lexicographic, lex′i.ko.graj′fĭk; lexicographical, lex′i.ko.graj′fŏ.ka.l.

Lexigraphy, lex′i.graj′fĭk, definition of words; lexicographer, lexic′ogra.jist.

Lexicology, lex′i.kol.o.gy, treats of the proper meaning and application of words; lexicolog′ist, one skilled in...

Greek lektiston (lexis, speech; légō, to speak); Latin lexicon.

"Lexicography," Greek lexikōn graphēn, to write a lexicon.

"Lexigraphy," Greek lexis graphēn, to write upon words.

"Lexicology," Greek lexikōn logos, a lexicon treatise.

Leyden-jar, lay′d’n jar, a jar used in electrical experiments.

From Leyden (Netherlands), birthplace of Vanleigh, the inventor.

Leze-majesty, leez.madge′.ēs.ty, a crime committed against the sovereign, treason, rebellion. (Lat.,[crimen] laesa majestatis.)

Liable, lĭ′āb′l, responsible, apt to, subject to; li′able-ness; liability, plu. liabilities, lĭ′ā.bĭ′ā.tiz, responsibility, debt.

Limited liability, responsibility in a joint-stock company limited to the extent of one’s "shares." (Lat., lígo, to bind.)

Liaison (French), lē′zh.ōn, an intrigue, (Latin ligāre, to bind.)

Liana, lĭ.a.nah, a luxuriant woody climbing plant.

Liar, lĭ′ār, one who tells falsehoods. Lyre, lĭ′r, a lute. (See Lie.)

Lias, lĭ′as, a calcareous clay. Liars, lĭ′ārız, plu. of liar. Lyres, lĭ′rız, plu. of lyre. Ly′ers [in bed], from lie (q.v.).

Liasic, lĭ.as′ĭk, adj. of lias.

Lias, a corruption of lyers or layers, from its stratified appearance in the quarries where it is worked.

Liatris, lĭ.āt.rĭs, a flower (meaning unknown).

Libation, lĭ.bat′shun, a drink-offering. Libration, lĭ.brā′.shun.

Latin libātio, libation; libra′tio, libration.

Libel, lĭ′bel, a lampoon, to defame. La′bel, a direction.

Libelled, lĭ′bell′ed; lĭ′bell′-ing (Rule iii., -er), lĭ′bell′-er; libell′-ous, lĭ′bell′ús, defamatory; lĭ′bellous′ly.

Latin libellus, a little book. It meant originally "a plaintiff's statement," hence a gross exaggeration, a lampoon.
Liberal, lib'eral, generous; a liberal, a whig; lib'eral-ly, liberality, lib'eral'ity; lib'eral-ism, whiggism.

Liberalise (R. xxxi.), lib'eral'ise, to free from narrow views; lib'eralised (4 syl.), lib'eralis-ing (R. xix.); lib'eralis-er.

Liberate, lib'erate, to set free. Lib'rate, to poise. Lib'erat-ed (Rule xxxvi.); lib'erat-ing; lib'erat-or; liberation, lib'eration, freedom from bondage.

Libertarian, lib'er'tarian, one who believes in the “freedom of the will.” Necessita'rian, one who believes that man must do what he does do; libertarian-ism.

Liberticide, lib'er'ticide, a destroyer of liberty.

Libertine, lib'er'tine, a debauchee; libertinism, lib'er'tin'ism.

Lib'erty, freedom; liberties, lib'erty, freedom of conduct; The liberties [of London], limits within which certain civic immunities are enjoyed.

Lib'erty of the press, freedom to print and publish.

At liberty, disengaged, free from restraint.

Latin lib'eralis, lib'erálitas, lib'erátor, lib'erálus, supine lib'érali, libertánus, libertas (liber, free); French libéral, libéra-lité, libertín, liberté (“liberation,” is not French).

Libidinous, lib'id'íni-ous, lustful; libid’inous-ness, libid’inous-Iy.

Latin libidínósus (Hblda, lust); French libidineur.

Libra (Lat.), lib'ra, the balance, the seventh sign of the zodiac.

Library, plu. libraries, lib'ra-ri-zes (not li'bra-ry), a room for holding books; librarian, lib'ra-rí-an, one who has charge of a library; libran'ship (-ship, office of).

Latin librária, librário (liber, a book).

Librate, lib'rate, to poise, to balance. Lib'rate, to set free.

Librá't-ed (Rule xxxvi.), librá't-ing (Rule xix.), librá'tory.

Libration, lib'ra'tion, applied to certain phenomena connected with the moon’s motion. Lib'eration, freedom.

Latin librá-tio, librário; French libration.

Libretto, plu. librettos (Rule xlii.), lib'ret'to-za, the words of an opera. (Italian libretto, a little book; libro, a book.)

Lice (1 syl.), plu. of louse, as mice is the plu. of mouse.

Old English *lísc, plu. *lís, a louse; *mús, plu. *mys, a mouse.

Li’cence, a liberty, a permit. Li’cense, to permit (Rule li.);

Li’censed (2 syl.), li’cens-ing (Rule xix.), li’cens-er;

li’cens-able, li’cens’a-ble. Li’censing court.

Licentiate, li’sent’shé’ate, one licensed to practise [medicine]; licensed victualler, vi’tulé, one licensed to sell wine and spirits, to be drunk on the premises.

Licentious, li’sent’shés, profligate; licen’tious-ness, licen’tious-Iy. (Fr. licence (noun); Lat. licentia, licentiösus.)
Lichen, li'kên (not li'tch'n nor li'k'n), rock or tree-moss.

Lichenin, li'kên.in, starch of Iceland moss; lichenic, li'kên.ik, adj. of lichen. (Lat. lichen; Gk. leichên; Fr. lichen.)

Lich-gate, li'tch-gâte, the gate at the entrance of a cemetery where the coffin awaits the arrival of the clergyman.

Old English lie, a dead body; lie-tan, a sepulchre; lie geat.

Lick, to wipe with the tongue; to flog; licked (1 syl.), lick'-ing.

Lick'-er, one who licks. Liquor, lik'er, "spirits."

Lick-sпит'tle, a parasite; lick'ing, a drubbing.

To lick the dust, to fall in battle. To tick up, to devour.

To lick into shape, to bring into order. (It was once supposed that the bear had to lick its cub into shape.)

Old English lic[ge], to lick; past licced, past part. licced.

“Lick” (to flog), O. E. slic[gan]; past slicced, past part. sliced, slice.

Lickerish, lik'er-ish, dainty. Liquorice, lik'er.iss, a drug.

Lick'er-ish-ness; lick'er-ish-ly. (Germ. leckerig, lickerish.)

Licester or liquorice, lik'er.iss, a demulcent drug.

Lictor (Latin), lik'tor, a consul's fascis-bearer.

Lid, the cover of a box, the cover of the eye. (Old Eng. lid.)

Lie, li, a falsehood, to recline. Lay, to place. Lye, ley.

Lie (to tell falsehoods), past lied (I syl.), ly'-ing, lîrar.

Lie (to recline), past lay; past part. lain; ly'-ing.

Lay (to place), past laid, past part. laid; lay'-ing.

“Lie” and “lay” are constantly misused even by the well-educated.

Remember “lie” is intransitive, and has no “object” following it; but “lay” is transitive, and has an “object” expressed or understood.

He told me to lie down, so I laid it down, and had lain down an hour when John arrived.

He told me to lay the carpet down, so I laid it down, and it had been laid down an hour when John arrived.

Errors of Speech.—

Here lays the body of poor Mary Ann (lies; “body” is not the object but the subject: here the body lies).

He told me to lay still (to lie still).

They laid in bed till the clock struck ten (they lay...).

The ship lays in the downs (lies).

The ship laid at anchor all yesterday (lay).

The enemy laid in wait for you (lay).

That stone is laying in the way (lying).

These goods will lay on my hands a long time (lie).

This trouble lays heavy on my mind (lies).

The troops still lay under arms (lie).

They have laid in the trenches all night (lain).

Suffolk lays south of Norfolk (lies).

He has laid in that state of coma for a week (lain).

“Lie,” Old English lie[gan], past-lay, past part. legen.

“Lay,” Old English lecg[an], past legede, past part. leged.

“I lie” (to tell an untruth), Old English lie[gan], past leay, past part. legen; leôgere or leôgere, a liar.
AND OF SPELLING.

Lieberkuhn, lee'ber.kune, a reflector attached to a microscope.

Lief, leef, willingly; as lief, as readily. Leaf [of a book or tree].

Lief, leef, willingly; as lief, as readily. Leaf [of a book or tree].

Lieberkuhn, lee'ber.kune, a reflector attached to a microscope.

Lieux, lee-on, place; in lieu of, instead of. Loo, a game with cards.

Lieutenant, lee''te.n''ant, an officer next below a captain.

Lieutenant, lee''te.n''ant, an officer next below a captain.

Lieutenant-General, plu., lieutenants, lee''te.n''ants, commission of lieutenant; lieuten'ant-ship (-ship, office).

Lieutenant-colonel, plu., lieutenant-colonels, lee''te.n''ant kol''on''el, officer next above a major and below a colonel. These officers are styled "colonels."

Lieutenant-general, plu., lieutenants, lee''te.n''ants, officer next above a major-general, and below a general. These officers are styled "generals."

Lord lieutenant, plu., lords lieutenants [of counties].

Lord lieutenant, plu., lords lieutenants [of counties].

Life, plu., lives, life, livz. (This, like "knife," knives, "wife," wives, makes the plu. by changing "fe" into "ves." R. x.l.)

Life-like, life-less, life-less-ly, life-less-ness, life-long, life-belt, life-blood; life-boat, -bote; life-buoy, -boy; life-guards, -wards, two regiments of cavalry, so called because they "guard the life" of the sovereign; life-guard'sman, one of the "life-guards"; life-interest; life-lines, ropes in rigging to hold on by; life-preserver, a life-buoy, a loaded weapon for self-protection; life-rent; life-time.

Life-annuity, plu., annuities, än.nü'y.tiz, a sum of money paid annually during life.
Errors of Speech

Life-assurance, a sum of money paid at decease, in consideration of an annual payment during life.

Live-ly, animated; liveliness (Rule xi.), cheerfulness.

(The following have the -i- short without any sufficient reason.)

Live, liv; lived, liv'd; liv'-ing (Rule xix.), live-long.

The liv'ing, those now alive. A liv'ing, church preferment. Manner of liv'ing, style of housekeeping.

Old English lif, lif-deg, life-time: lif-less, lifeless; lif-ly, lively.

Lift (an), to live, past lifede or lifeode, past part. lifed or lifed.

Lift, a machine for lifting, to raise; lift'-ed (R. xxxvi.), lift'ing, lift'-er. Shop'-lift-er, a thief who steals goods exposed for sale; shop-lift'ing. A dead lift, a body in which there is no buoyancy; lift'ing-gear, an apparatus for lifting the safety-valve of steam-engines. Lifts, ropes for hoisting or lowering the yard arms. Left, omitted, &c.

Old English lif/ian, past lifode, past part. lifed.

“Lift,” Old English lif/ian, past liff, past part. lifen.

Ligament, lig'ament. Ligature, lig'a.tur.

Ligament (in Anat.), a strong elastic membrane connecting the extremities of movable bones; ligament'al.

Ligature, a bandage, a tie in music, waxed thread used in surgical operations for tying veins or arteries, a double type-letter on one shank.

Ligan, li'gan, goods tied to a buoy and sunk in the sea.

Flotsan, goods left floating on the sea for transport; &c.

Jetsan, goods cast into the sea to lighten a ship.

Lat. ligamentum, ligat'ura, ligare, to lie; Fr. ligament, ligature.

Light, lite, medium of visibility, not heavy:

Light, light'er, light'-est; light-ness, light-ly.

Light, lite, to kindle, (past) lit or light'ed, (past part.) [lit] light'ed.

Light, to alight, lit [light'-ed], (past part.) [lit] light'ed.

Some contend that the verb “light” (to kindle) should be conjugated light, lighted, lighted, and the verb “light” (to settle) light, lit, but (1) there is no such distinction in the original verbs, (2) no such distinction holds in ordinary speech, (3) the verb “alight” is never conjugated alight, alt, alt, but always alight, alighted.

A lighted candle (not a lit candle), a candle burning.

Lights, lites, the lungs of quadrupeds. (So called from their lightness.) Not applied to the lungs of man.

Northern lights, the auro'ra borealis or “dancing fires.”

Lighten, lite'n, to ease, to illuminate; lightened, lite'nd; lighten-ing, lite'ning, easing. Lightening, lite'ning [flash].

Lightning conductor, a rod to protect from lightning.

Light'er, lite'er, a large flat-bottomed boat for loading and unloading ships; light'er-man, one employed in a "lighter"; lighter-age, money paid for the use of a "lighter" (-age, something done, the charge for doing it).

Light-house, a lighted tower to warn ships of danger.

Light-dues, tolls on ships for the service of light-houses.

Light-ship, a ship with a light anchored near a shoal.

Lightsome, lite'söm, airy (-some, native suffix, "full of"); light'some-ness, light'some-ly.

Old English liht, lihting, lighting; lihtung, lightning; lihtingnes, lightness; lihtlice, lightly. (The interpolated y is quite useless.)

"Light" (to kindle), lihte[an], past lihte, past part. liht or liht[an], past lihted, past part. lihted.

"Light" (to settle), liht[an], past lihte, past part. liht or alight[an], past alighte, past part. alight.

The two verbs, therefore, should, in strictness, be conjugated thus:—

"Light" (to kindle), light, lit (not lighted), lighted (not lit).

"Light" (to settle) light, lit (not lighted), lighted (not lit).

Lignaloes, ligne-al'ëze, a grove or planting of aloes (Num. xxiv., 6); aloës-wood. (Latin lignum aloes, wood of aloes.)

Ligneous (R. lxvi.), lig'neüs, woody, resembling wood.

Lignine, lig'ni.ne, pure woody fibre.

Lignite, lig'nít, fossil brown coal, exhibiting the wood origin (-ite, a fossil). Lignitic, lig'ni.tik, adj. of lignite.

Ligniferous, lig'ní.for'ús, producing wood. (Latin férrens.)

Ligniform, lig'ni.form, resembling wood. (Latin forma.)

Lignify, lig'ni.fik, to convert to wood; lignifies, lig'ni.fiske; lignified, lig'ní.fik'ëd (Rule xi.); lignify-ing; lignification, lig'ni.fik'shun, conversion into wood.

Ligniperdous, lig'ní.per'dus, wood destroying. (Latin perdó.)

Lignum vitae, lig'núm ví'tee, the tree-of-life, i.e., the life-enduring tree. (Its wood is very hard and durable.)

Latin lignum, wood, ligneus, &c., lignifier, lignum vitae.

-like (native suffix lé), adj., resembling, like: as god-like.

Like (1 syl.), resembling, in the same manner; like'-ly, like'li-hood (R. xi., -hood, state, condition), like'li-ness.

Like'-ness, a portrait, resemblance; like-mind'ed.

Had like [to be drowned], Had like [to break his head], came little short of being, chanced, nearly.

Like, to approve of; liked (1 syl.), lik'-ing (Rule xix.).

Likes and dis'likes, attachments and aversions.

Likens, like'ën, to compare; lik'ened (2 syl.), lik'en-ing.

Likewise, like'-wise, also, in like manner.

(Like is used as a verb, adj., and adv., but should never be used as a conjunction; hence the following expressions should be avoided.)

Like you do, like you say (as). Like I do, like we do, like he is (as).

Old English lié, lié-ness, v. lié[an], past liéde, past part. liéod.
Lilac, lɪlæk (not lɑɪlɑk nor lɑˈlɪk), a shrub, a colour; Persian lilāc; Spanish lilac; French lilas.

Liliputian, lɪlɪˌpjuːt.ɪ.ən, dwarfish; a dwarf.

So called from Swift’s tale of “Gulliver’s Travels” to Liliput.

Lilt, a cheerful song, to sing cheerily, to do a thing dexterously; lɪlt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), lɪlt-ing.

Gothic lulta, Low German litten, German litten.

Lily, plu. lilies, lɪlɪz, a flower; lilíəs, adj. of lily, (not lɪˈlɪz), Rule lxvi.; lilíəs, lɪlɪə.ˈsɛ.ə (not lɪˈlɪə.ˈsæ.ə) the order containing the lily (*-aceae [in Bot.], an order of plants); liled, lɨˈlid, adorned with lilies.

Latin lītum, lilaceous, lɪləˈi.ʃəs, adj. of lily; liliaceous, lɪˈliə.ʃə.ʃəs (not lɪˈliə.ʃə.ʃəs), the order containing the lily (*-aceae [in Bot.], an order of plants); lilied, lɪˈli.ɪd, adorned with lilies.

Latin lītum, lilíaceous; Greek leirion; Spanish lirio.

Limacious, lɪ.məˈʃi.ʃəs, slimy, pertaining to a snail, snail-like.

(Lat. nouns in -ax, add -ious, not -eous for adj. suffix, R. lxvi.)

Limacidae, lɪ.məˈsi.ˌde, the snail family (-idae, Gk. a family).

Latin līmāceae, the slug or snail.

Limb, lɪm, a member of the body, the edge. Limm, lɪm, to draw.

Limbed, lɪm.ɪd, having limbs; limb-less, without limbs.

“Limb” (of the body), Old Eng. lɪm, “Limb” (border), Lat. limbus.

“Limb” (to draw or paint), Lat. lūmnō; Fr. enluminer, to illuminate.

Limber, lɪmˈber, flexible. (Old English lempe, pliancy.)

Limbo, plu. limbos, lɪmˈboʊz (R. xlii.), the frontier of hell, where there is neither happiness nor misery; in limbo, in prison, in pawn, under restraint.

Italian limbo; Latin limbus, the edge.

Lime (1 syl.), an earth, a fruit, to smear with lime earth, to entangle; limed (1 syl.), lim-ing, lɪmˈɪ.-y, lim-i-ness.

Lime-burner; lime’-kiln, a place for burning lime-stone; lime’-water, water impregnated with lime; lime’-stone.

Slaked lime; slʊkɪt-lɪm; hydrate of lime or lime watered.

Lime-juice, ˌjuːs, juice of the lime-fruit; lime’-plant, the May-apple. Bird’-lime’, a glutinous substance for catching birds. Lime’-hound, a hound for boar-hunting.

“Lime” (the earth), Old Eng. lɪm, mortar, bird-lime; Lat. limus, mud; ge-limed, to glue; past ge-limed, past part. ge-limed.

“Lime” (the fruit), the citrus-limetta.

“Lime-hound,” the hound led by a team or string. (Fr. lim, a band.)

Limit, lɪmˈɪ.t, the utmost extent; boundary, to bound; lim’it-ing, lim’it-ed (R. xxxvi.), lim’it-ed-ly, lim’it-ed-ness, lim’it-er, lim’it-able; liminary, lim’it.ə.ˌtər ˈrɪ, restrictive.

Limited liability, money liability limited to the number of shares held. Limited liability company, plu.-nies.
AND OF SPELLING.

Lim’it-less, without limit. Unlim’ited, illim’itable.

Latin lineas, gen. limitis, limitarius, limitatio, limitare.
French limite, y. limiter, limitation, illimité.

Limn, lim, to draw or paint. Limb, lim, a member of the body.

Limned, lim’d; limning, lim’ing; limn’er, lim’er.

Fr. enluminer, to illuminate; Lat. illuminare. “Limb,” O. E. lim.

Limp, flexible, to halt in walking; limped, limpt; limp’-ing, limp’-ing-ly; limp’-er. (Old Eng. limp-halt, lame.)

“Limp” (flexible), Old English lemp, pliancy, = Latin limitas.

Limpet, lim’-pet, a shellfish. Limpid, lim’-pid; clear [stream].

“Limpet,” Lat. lepas, gen. lepādis: Gk. lepas, so called from it clinging to the rock (lepas, a bare rock or crag). “Limpid” (see below).

Limpid, lim’-pid, clear [running water]. Lim’pet, a shell-fish.

Limulus, lim’-u.lus, the king crab. (Latin limulus, crooked.)

Linch’-pin, the pin which fastens a wheel in the axle-tree.

Old Eng. lynis-penn, an axle-tree pin (Welsh pin, a pin or pen).

Linden, lin’-den, a lime-tree. (Old Eng. lind, the linden-tree.)

Line (1 syl.) a rope, a string, a row of letters, a lineament, a mark, a calling, a family descent, the 12th part of an inch.

The line, the equator. A line of battle, a rank or row of soldiers or ships arranged for battle. Line’-ner, one of a line of trading ships.

Troops of the line, the regular infantry regiments.
Horizontal line, a line drawn parallel to the horizon.
Vertical line, a line at right-angles to an horizontal line.
Parallel lines, lines equi-distant throughout.
Line of beauty, Hogarth’s dogma about a curve —
Line of defence, the line of fire of the flank of a bastion.
Line of dip, the slope of a stratum.
Line of fire, the direction in which the guns fire.
Line of march, the route taken by an army on march.
Line of operations, the different points of attack.
Right line, a straight line. Hard lines, ill-treatment.

Line, to cover the inside of a garment, &c.; lined (1 syl.), lin’-ing, covering the inside..., the material used for...
(The following change the quantity of the first vowel.)

Lineage, lin’-age, race, progeny (-age, Fr. collective suffix).

Lineal, lin’-al, in a direct line from some ancestor; lin’-al-ly; lin’-ear, consisting of lines; lin’-ear-ly; lin’-ear numbers, those which relate to length only; lin’-ear perspective regards the magnitudes of objects as they stand in reference to the vanishing points.

Ae’rial perspective takes cognizance of light and shadow.
Lineament, lin'ent.ment, feature. Lin'ement, embrocation.

Lineaments, lin'ent.ments, the distinguishing lines or marks of the face. Lin'ents, embrocations.

Old Eng. lne; Lat. linea, linealis, lineamentum, linearius, v. lineare, to draw lines; Fr. ligneage, ligneage, ligneaire, ligneament, liniment.

Linen (not linnen), lin'en, cloth made of flax, underclothing, made of linen; linen draper, one who sells linen cloth.

Old Eng. lnen; Lat. linum, flax; Gk. linon (with the i long).

-ling (native patronymic), offspring, descended from, and hence dim.: first-ling (first offspring), duck-ling (a little duck).

Ling, heather, a fish of the cod kind. (Danish lyng, heather.)

Lingel, ling'gel, a little tongue of leather, shoemaker's thread.

Lingula, lin'.gül.lah, molluscs, with tongue-shaped valves.

Lingual, lin'.gwül, formed by the tongue; lin'gual-ly.

Linguadentals, lin'.gwäl.tälz, letters formed by the tongue and teeth, as d, t, dh, th.

Linguiform (-gu- not -gua-), tongue-shaped.

Lingel, lin'.gel, a little tongue of leather.

Lingula, lin'.gül.lah, molluscs, with tongue-shaped valves.

Lingulate, lin'.gül.late, tongue-shaped.

French lingual, linguiste; Latin lingua, lingūla.

Liniment, lin't.ment. Lineament, lin'ent.ment.

Liniment, an embrocation.

Lineament, feature, a distinguishing character of the face.

"Liniment," Latin linimentum, an ointment (lienere, to besmear).

"Lineament," Latin lineamentum, a diagram, an outline, a mark.

Link, one ring of a chain, a torch, to join by links or bonds;

Links, plu. of link. Lynx, links, a wild animal.

Link, linked (1 syl.), link'-ing; link-motion, -mō'shun, an apparatus for reversing steam engines.

Link'-boy, a street torch-bearer.

"Link" (of a chain), German ge-lenk.

"Link" (a torch), Lat. lychnus, a lamp or link; Gk. lucinos, a light.

Linnæan [system], lin'ne.an, that of Linnaeus, the Swede.

Lin'net, the flax-bird, so called from its feeding on flax.

Old Eng. lnece, the flax-finch (lin, flax); Welsh llinao (lin, flax); Fr. linothle. In Lat. carduelis, the thistle-bird, which is so called from carduus, thistle, on which it feeds.
Linoleum, lin'no-lē'-əm, floor-cloth on a basis of linen or flax.
Greek lino-, made of flax; Latin linum, flax, flax-thread.
Linseed (not lintseed), lin'seed, the seed of flax. (O. E. linsēd.)
Linstock, lin'stōk, a gunner's match once used for firing cannon.
   Compound of lint and stock, a stock or staff with a lint cap.
Lint, the fluff of scraped linen. (Old English linēt.)
Lintel, lin'tēl, the head-piece of a door or window frame.
   Spanish linel; French linteau (Latin linte-um).
Lion, fēm. lion-ess, li'ōn, li'o-ness. Lien, lé'en [on property].
   Lions, plu. of lion (the wild beast), places or persons of interest shown as sights.
Lionise, li'o-nīz, to show a person the sights of interest;
   lionised, lion-ising (Rule xix.), lion-iser.
   To see the lions, to see the things of interest in a place.
   The lion's share, the whole or a very disproportionate share.
Lion-hearted, li'ɔ-něrt, courageous. Lion's cub or whelp.
   Old Eng. leo, a lion; leon, a lioness; leōnc, lion-like; leon-hwelp, a lion's (or rather a lioness's) whelp; Lat. leo, gen. leonis; Gk. leōn.
Lip, part of the mouth; lip-less; lipped, lïpt, having lips; lip-yet; lip-serve, ostensible but not real service or attachment; lip-wisdom. Lip-salve, sarve.
   Old English lippe, a lip; German lippe; Latin lábium.
Liquefy, lik'wef'j, to melt; liquefies, lik'wef'i-zë; liquefied, lik'wef'i-dëd; liquefi-er, lik'wef'i-ər (Rule xi.); liquefi-ing; liquefi-able, lik'wef'i-a.b'l.
   Liquescent, lik'wes'CENT, becoming fluid (deliquescent).
Liquefaction, lik'wef'kshən, solution; liquefacient, lik'wef'kshənt, a promoter of liquefaction.
   Latin liquēfācio, liquēfactio, liquēfio, liquesco (to melt).
Liqueur (French), lik'kwar', a cordial. Liquor, lik'ker, spirits.
   Liquid, lik'kwid, a fluid; liquid-ly, liquid-ness.
Liquidise (R. xxxL), lik'kwid'i-zə, to reduce to a liquid state;
   liquidised (3 syl.), liquidis-ing (Rule xix.), liquidis-er.
Liquidate, lik'kwid'i-ät, to discharge a debt; liquidat-ed (R. xxxvi.), liquidat-ing (R. xix.), liquidat-or (R.-xxxvii.).
   Liquidation, lik'kwid'i-shən, payment, solution.
Liquor, lik'wər, an intoxicating beverage, as "spirits";
   liquored, lik'wərd; liquor-ing. (Americanisms.)
Liquor sanguinis, lik'kwór sän'gwë-nis.
   Latin liquēitus, liquēāre, supine liquēātūm, liquor (v. liquāre, to melt); French liquefaction, liquefi-able, liquefi-er, liquor, liquefie, liquer, liquider, liquidation.
Liquorice, lik.'er.ɪs* (not lik.'er.ɪʃ), the root of a plant from which a sweet drug, called Spanish liquorice, is made.

Liquorish, lik.'er.ɪʃ, sweet: as a liquorish tooth.

Latin glycyrrhiza; Greek glukus rhiza, sweet root.

Lisp, to convert sibilants into liquidantals in speaking; lisped, lispt; lisping, *lisping-*ly, *lisping-*er.

Dutch *lisp*en; German lispeln, noun lispel.

Lissom, lis.'sum (colloquial), for lithesome, pliant.

List, the salvage of cloth, an inventory, hearken, to desire.

Lists, a place enclosed for tournaments, &c.; listed, listing, lisped, lisp'-ing, lisped, spiritless; *lisped-*ly, *lisped-*ness.

To enter the lists, to compete with others.

The civil list, the household expenses of the sovereign.

Old Eng. líst, salvage of cloth, a catalogue, lis-ted, purposeless.

Listen, líst'-n, to hearken; listened, lis'-ned; listening, lis'-ning; lis'-ner.

Litany, plu. litanies (Rule xliv.) Liturgy, plu. liturgies, lit'i.-n.ay, plu. lit'i.-näz; lit'i.-är.djü, plu. lit'i.-är.djüz;

Litany, a part of the liturgy (being a humble supplication);

Liturgy, the whole church service contained in the Common Prayer Book; liturgic, liturgical.

Literal (one t), lit.'är.tì, exact. Littoral (double t), lit.'ö.rööl, relating to the sea-shore. (Lat. litorális, litus, the coast.)

Literal-ly, *literal-*ness; literality, lit.'är.tì.*i.ty.

Literary, lit.'är.rì.ry, one who follows the profession of literature, book-learned.

Literate, lit.'är.rate, a degree given to non-university candidates for ordination. Illiterate, uneducated.

LIterati, lit.'är-rayt'ì.ty, men of erudition.

Literatim, lit.'är-rayt'ì.tim, literally; literator et verba'tim (Latin), letter for letter and word for word.

Literature, lit.'är-ra.ture, all books, except those on science and art; polite literature, polite lit'är.cal*re* or works of taste as poetry, belles-lettres [bel lë'të:]. (See Letter.)

Lat: litérëlis, litérërius, litérëtura, litérëtus, plu. litéëtik.

(The absurdity of spelling letter with lë is due to the French, but we have avoided their error of double t in the derivatives.)

Litharge, lith.'ärge, partially vitrified protoxide of lead.

Lat. lithargyros, the scum of silver; Gk. lith-arguros, stone of silver.

Lithe (1 syll.), flexible; *lithe-*ness; *lithe-*some, -söm (colloquially lis.'söm); *lithe*some-*ness, *lithe*some-ly.

Old English lithe, litelde, lithite, adv.; lithenes, litheness.
Lithia, lithˈi.əh, an alkali found in petˈəlɪt (3 syl.)
Lithˈi.um, a metal obtained from lithia.

Lithic, lithˈɪk [acid], uric acid, an acid liable to form into "calˈəlus." Lithics, medicines to prevent the formation of calˈəlus; lithiasis, li.θˈi.ə.sis. (Gk. lithos, a stone.)

Litho-, lithˈo (Greek prefix); stone, made of stone (lithos).

Lithˈo-carp, carpolite, a fossil fruit. (Gk. karpos, fruit.)

Lithˈo-chrome, -krˈəm, the impression on canvass of a painting in oils upon stone. (Greek chrˈəmə, colours.)

Lithography, li.θˈo-grə.fɹ, the art of drawing on stone; lithographer, li.θˈo.grˈəfˈər, one who lithographs.

(Greek lithos graphˈo, I write or draw on stone.)

Lithoidal, li.θˈo.iˈdəl, of stony structure or aspect. (Greek lithos eˈidos, stone likeness or resemblance.)

Lithology, li.θˈo.lo.dʒɪ, that part or science which treats of rocks without reference to their fossils; litho-logic, lithˈo.loˈdʒɪk; litho-logical, lithˈo.loˈdʒɪk.lˈɪdْ; litho-logical-ly; lithologist, li.θˈo.lo.ˈdʒɪ.ʃt. (Greek lithos-logos, treatise about stones.)

Lithophagus, li.θˈo.fə.gəs, eating or swallowing stones or gravel [as some birds do]; lithophagi. li.θˈo.fə.ˈdʒɪ. (Greek lithos phagˈo, I eat stones.)

Lithˈo-phrase, -fɹəs, pictures on thin sheets of white porcelain for lamps and other transparencies. (Greek lithos phanˈo, stone transparent.)

Lithˈo-photography, -fəˈtɹə.fɹ, the art of photographing drawings done on stone. (Greek *lithos pʰoˈd-gريف*ˈhɒ*, I draw-by-light from stone.)

Lithˈo-phyte, -fɹt, a stone-plant; as coral;

Lithˈo-phytic, -fˈtɪk; pertaining to stone-plants.

(Greek *lithos phutˈo*n, stone plant or growth.)

Lithornis, li.θˈo.rnˈɪs, fossil [remains] of birds. (Greek lithos orˈna, stone [remains] of birds.)

(Greek lithos teˈno, I cut [for] the stone.)

(Greek lithos trˈɪbo, I rub [to pieces], the stone.)

(Greek lithos, Latin fritus, a rubbing or grinding of the stone. This hybrid should be lithotrposite.)

Ligate, ligate, to contest in law; litigated (Rule xxxvi.), litigating (Rule xix.), litigated (Rule xxxvii.)

Ligament, one engaged in a law-suit; litigation, litigation, a law-suit, a contention.

Litigious, litigious, litigious-ly, litigious-ness.

Latin litigatio, litigatus, litigare (litis, gen. litis, strife).

Litmus, a darkish blue pigment prepared from certain lichens (litches); litmus-paper, unsized paper coloured with litmus and used as a test for acids which turn it red.

German lack-muss or lake-moss, a moss which produces archil.

Litter, litter, straw for the bed of horses, straw for cattle yards, a hand-barrow for a coffin, a brood of pigs, disorder, to strew about, to bring forth a litter of pigs; littered, littering; litterer, one who litters a room.

French litifwe (letus, Latin leetus, Greek lechēs, a couch or bed).

Little, little, (comp.) less, lesser, (super.) least, small, trifling; little-ness; little by little, slowly, in small quantities.

"Little" is the supplied positive of less, least, as "good" is of better, *best", and "bad" of worse, worst. The real positive is lost.

Old Eng. lytel, comp. lesse, super. last. "Less" is a contracted form of lesser (less or less). Lesser is only used in contrast to greater, and never in contrast to much.

Littoral (double t), littoral, pertaining to the sea-shore.

Literal (one t), not figurative, exact. Littoral Concrete.

In Latin there is only one t to either of these words. "Littus" is a poetical form of litis. Our word is the French blunder littoral.

"Litany," Gk. ta litanē, the prayers (tē, prayer); Lat. litania.

Live, liv to exist with animal or vegetable life; lives, lived, living; lived, lived; lived (R. xix.); lived, one who lives, part of the animal body, [lights, q.v.]; live-long, lived long.

The living, those now alive. A living, church preferment.

(The following have the "i" long.)

Life, plu. lives (each 1 syl.), vitality; life-like, life-less, life-less-ly, life-less-ness, life-time.

Old Eng. lif, liffc, adj., lively, lifless, lifeless, liffeast, lifelessness, v. liffan, past lifde, past part. lifot; also lifb(an), lifbode, lifbod (from which verb we get our short r).

Liver, liv'er, part of the body (it secretes bile), one who lives.

Old English livor, the liver, but lybore, one who lives.

Livery, *plu. liveries, liv'er-ri*z*, a manservant’s uniform.

The liv'ery, the whole body of liverymen in the city of London.

*Liv'er*man, plu. liv'erymen, a freeman of one of the 96 guilds of London entitled to wear a livery gown.

Livery-stable, liv'er-ry stah'bi, a stable where horses are fed or kept for hire. (French livrée, v. livrer, to deliver.)

A “livery” is a dress given to a servant; “livery stables” are stables where horses are “delivered” into the charge of a keeper.

Livid, liv'erd, a leaden blue colour; liv'id-ly, liv'id-ness.

Lat. lividus. “Lividity” (Lat. lividitas, blueness) might be introduced.

Lixivium, lixiv'i.ium, water impregnated with wood-ashes.

Lixiviate, lixiv'i.atc, to impregnate water with wood-ashes; lixiv'i.at-ed (R. xxxvi.), lixiv'i.at-ing (R. xix.); lixiviation, lixiv'i.a'tion; lixiv'i.al, lixiv'i.al.

Latin lixivium (lix, lye); French lixiviel, lixivation.

Lizard, liz'ard, a reptile. Fossil lizards are called sau'rians.

French lezard; Latin lacerta. “Saurian,” Greek sauros, a lizard.

Lizard Point (Cornwall), a corruption of lazars’ point, being a place of retirement for lazars or lepers.

Llama (Peruvian), lah'mlah, an animal of the camel kind.

Llanos (Spanish), lal.nnöze, treeless plains along the Orinóco.

Lloyd’s, part of the Royal Exchange (London) set apart for ship brokers. Lloyd’s agents, persons in divers parts of the world who supply shipping news to the underwriters.

Lloyd’s list, a daily sheet of shipping intelligence.

Originally rooms at Lloyd’s coffee house were set apart for the purpose.

(*Load, a corrupt form of the verb lade, from the past tense hâd.)

Load'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), load'-ing, load'-er.

Laden, lay'd'an, the original past part. of the verb lade.

Loaded, regards the act; laden, the effect.

“Loaded” denotes that the act of packing is complete,
“Laden” implies that the object referred to is quite full or as heavily weighted as it ought to be.

The ship was well loaded, i.e., the act of packing it was well done.
The ship was well laden, i.e., was heavily freighted or burdened.
The gun was loaded, charged (not laden or heavily freighted).
The horse was heavily laden (burdened).
Laden with sorrow (oppressed): laden with cares.
I am loaded with presents (not oppressed or weighted), like a letter carrier or pack horse, but “am in the reception of a large number.”

Old English hlædan, past hlæd, past part. hlæden.

Loadstone, lode-stone, a magnet (this should be lode-stone); load-star, the pole-star (this should be lode-star).

(The first part of these words has no connection with “load.”)

“Load-stone,” the stone or ore that leads or guides (O. E. lād[an]).

Load-star,” the star that guides (O. E. lād[an], to lead or guide).

Loaf, plu. loaves, lōf, lōvz (all words in -af, and all but one (gulf) in -if, form the plu. by changing “f” or “l” into -ves, Rule xxxviii.), a mass of bread bigger than a roll, a conical mass of white sugar.

O. Eng. hād, bread. Lord is hād-or, the cause or carrier of the bread.

Loafer, lōf'er, an idle man who obtains a living by sponging on others; loaf'-ing, living by sponging on others.

Spanish gallofa, a lazy indolent life, gallofa'r y gallofa'r, to saunter about and live on alms; German lauter, a running fellow.

Loam, łōm', sandy clay; Loom, a weaving machine.

Loam-y, łō'.my (not loo'.my), containing loam, like loam.

“Loam,” Old English lām, or laam. “Loom,” so called from Sir Thomas Loom, who set up the first at Derby for weaving raw silk.

Loan, łōn', something lent. Lone, desolate, lonely.

“Loan,” Old Eng. lōn, v. lōn[an], to lead. “Lone,” alon' [all one].

Leath (to rhyme with both), reluctant. Loathe (to rhyme with cloth); to detest; loath-some, lōth'-sym (some, full of what disgusts); loath-some-ness, loath-some-ly.

Loathe, to detest; loathed (1 syl.), loath'-ing, loath'er.

Old Eng. lōth, enmity, hateful; v. lōth[an], past lōthode, p. p. lōthod.

Lōb, to droop; lobbed, lōbd; lobb'-ing (R. i.) (Welsh llofb.)

Lobby, plu. lobbies (Rule xlv.), lōb'.biz, an antechamber.

German laube, a shed, an arbour, with -y diminutive.

Lōbe (1 syl.), the lap or soft part of the human ear, a division of the lungs, liver, &c., a division of a leaf, seed, &c.; lobed (1 syl.), having lobes; lōbate (2 syl.), having lobes; lobule, lōbule, a little lobe (ule, Lat. dim.); lōbular.

French lōbe; Latin lōbus: Greek lōbōs, same meanings.

Lobelia, lō.be'ē.iē.ah (should be lō.bē'ē.iē.ah), a genus of plants.

Lobellaceae, lō.be'ē.iē.zē.sē.ē, the “order” of the above.

(In Botany the termination -acae denotes an order.)

So called from Matthius de Lobel, Flemish botanist (1533-1616).
AND OF SPELLING.

Loblolly, lob.lob.'ly, gruel and other spoon-food; loblolly-boy.

Welsh lob, a doll; Archaic loll, a spoilt child, with -ly dim., "a stupid little spoilt child." When seamen apply the word to spoon-food, they mean food only fit for a loblolly. (See Lollypop.)

Lobster, lob.'ster, (male) cock-lobster, (fem.) hen-lobster, a crustacean (Rule lxii., termination -ster).

Old Eng. loppestre or lopustre; Lat. locusta, a locust or lobster.

Local, lo.'kal, limited to a locality; lo'cal-ly.

Locality, plu. localities, lo.'kal.i'tiz, a circumscribed spot.

Localise (R. xxxi.), lo.'kal.iz, to limit to a circumscribed spot; localised, lo.'kal.iz'd; lo.'cal.is-ing, lo.'cal.is-er.

Localisation, lo.'kal.i.zay.'shun; locable, lo.'kal.'bi.

Locate, lo.'kat, to establish in a special place or position; locat'ed (Rule xxxvi.), locat'ing (Rule xix.)

Location, lo.'kat.'shun; situation, state of being located.

Latin locatis, locabilitis, locatio, locare, supine locatum, to place (locus, a place); French local, location (a law term).

Loch, lo.'k, a bay, an arm of the sea. Lock, an instrument.

(In Scotch the "ch" is guttural.)

"Loch," Gaelic loch; Welsh loch, a dam. "Lock," Old English loc.

Lochaber-axe, lo.'k kai.'ber ax, a pole with an axe-head.

So called from Lochaber, in Scotland, where it was first made.

-loch (native suffix), nouns, gift, state: wed-lock.

-loch (native suffix -leac, a herb), plants: as hem-lock.

-loch (native suffix -loce), nouns, a tuft of hair: fet-lock.

Lock, a tuft of hair, a machine for making [doors] fast, the trigger, &c., of a gun, the part of a canal confined by gates, to lock; locked, lokt; lock' -ing; lock-age, toll paid for passing through a lock (-age Latin; toll, service); lock' -er, a cupboard or box which may be locked; lock' -et, a little tuft of hair. Lock-jaw, rigidity of the lower jaw. Lock-smith, a maker of locks. A lock-up, a temporary prison. Dead-lock, a complete stoppage.

Old English loc [of a door], loca, a lock or prison; locc [of hair], v. loccan, past loco, past part. locen, to lock, to fasten.

(If there are these distinctions have been abolished.)

Locomotion, lo.'ko.mo.'she.n, the act or power of moving from place to place; locomotive, lo.'ko.mo.'tiv, a steam-engine to draw railway carriages; locomotivity, lo.'ko.mo.'tiv'i.ty.

Fr. locomotion, locomotif. Lat. locus mo'tio, motion from) a place.

Locust, lo.'küst, a winged insect. (Latin locusta.)

Lode, a mineral vein. Load, lo'd, a burden. Lode-stone and lode-star (better than loadstone, loadstar).

Old English līd, a lode. Lode-stone, lōde-sta'rn, lōdan, to guide.
Lodge, the cottage of a park gate-keeper, to deposit for safe keeping; to abide in hired rooms; lodged (1 syl.), lodg'-ing (Rule xix.); lodg'-er, one who lives in hired rooms.

A lodg'-ing, hired apartments, temporary abode.

A lodg'-ing-house, a house let off in apartments for lodgers.

To lodge a complaint against [one], to inform against.

Old Eng. log[ian], to lodge, to deposit, past logged, past part. logg'd.

Loft, a floor over a stable; cock-loft, a loft over a loft; hay-loft, a loft where hay is stored; rood-loft, a gallery in churches to hold the rood or representation of the crucified Saviour.

Lofty, lōf'ty, tall; lof'ti-ness (Rule xi.), lōf'ti-ly.

Dan. loft; Ang.-Sax. lyfletōr, an aerial dwelling, lyten, lofty.

Lōg, a piece of cleft wood for fires, a clog fastened to the foot of a horse, a registry used on board-ship, &c.

Lōg-book, the book for registering a ship's rate, &c.

Lōg-line, a line used at sea for measuring the rate at which a ship is moving; log-house, a house constructed of logs.

Logwood, a heavy red wood employed in dyeing, &c.

Water-logged, -logg'd, rendered motionless by leakage.

Log-rolling, to aid in collecting logs, to aid in any-way.

Old English clot, a log; Welsh cloigen, anything tied to another; Dutch log, heavy.

Logan-stones, lō'gān stōnz (corruption of logging-stones), weather-worn blocks of stone, so finely balanced that a very slight force will make them rock; rocking-stones.

Log (Cornwall) means to oscillate (Halliwell).

Logarithm, lōg'ā.rithm, one of the exponents of a series of powers and roots; logarithmic, lōg'ā.rith'mik; logarithmical, lōg'ā.rithm'l. Also logarith'mical-ly.

Logarithms, lōg'ā.rithmz, the logarithmic system.

Fr. logarithme, logarithmique; Gk. logos arithmos, proportion number.

Log'-ger-head, -hēd, a dunce; at logger-heads, in dispute; to go to logger-heads, to contend (log and head).

Logic, lōdʒ'ik, the science of ratiocination; logical, lōdʒ'ik. Also logical-ly; logician, lō.điʃ. The plural is the better form.
Log'o- (Greek prefix), nouns, a word. (Greek lögós, a word.)

Logography, lög'o grafi'je, a method of printing in which a type represents a word instead of a letter: as δ ρ hand, * star, o circle, &c.

Logographic, lög'o grafi'je ik; logographical, lög'o grafi'je kāl; logographically.

(Logos grapho, I write a [whole] word [at once].)

Logographie, log'o grafi'je ik, a word puzzle, the word selected (by different arrangements of the letters, or by certain omissions) form other words: thus P.L.A.T.E will form

1. petal, lapet;
2. pate, peat, peal, late, leat, leap, teal, tale, tape;
3. ate, eat, let, lap, ape;
4. at, la! &c.

Logographic, lög'o grafi'je ik, of the nature of a logograph; logographically, lög'o grafi'je kāl; logographically.

(Logos grapho, I write a [whole] word [at once].)

Logomachy, log'o mæk'i, contentions about words, a war of words. (Greek lögós machē, a word battle.)

Logwood, a heavy red wood used in dyeing. The colouring principle is called haimatine (3 syl.), from haima, blood.

Loin (1 syll., rhymes with coin), a joint of meat: as a loin of mutton. The loins, part of the animal body.

French longe, pronounced lonz; Latin lumbus.

Loinette (no such word). See Lorgnette.

Loiter, loy'ter, to dawdle; loitered, loy'terd; loiter-ing, loiter-ing-ly; loiter-er. (German lotter-bett, lazy-bed.)

Loll (Rule 5.), to hang and lounge listlessly about, to hang out loosely, as a dog's tongue; lilled (1 syll.), loll-ing.

Lollipop, lōl'lopop, an idle sloven, to lounge and loll about; lollipop-ed, loll'op-ing, lol'lop-er.

Lollard, lōl'lar'd, one of the early reformers in Germany. The term was applied in England to the followers of Wickliffe. An older form is loller; lollardism, lōl'lar'dizm.

Lollipops, lōl'lopop, a sweetmeat made of treacle.

Lottle, archaic, a little spoilt child, and "pop" (Italian poppare, to suck), our pop, food eaten by sucking it, "food for little children to be sucked," or lollie pup, the child's playthings. (Fr. poupée.)

Londoner, lōn'där'er, a native or inhabitant of London; London-ism, cockneyism; London clay, that of the London basin. (Ang.-Sax. forms Londen, Lunden, -burh.)

Long, (comp.) long-er, (super.) long-est, long’ger, long’gest, extensive in regard to time, quantity, or extent, to crave. Long, verb (always followed by for or after), to desire earnestly; longed (1 syl.), long-ing; long-er (not long’ger, like the comp. adj.), one who longs. Long-ish (-ish added to adj., is dim., added to nouns it means “like,” R. lxvii.) Long ago, far back in time; long-boat, -boat, the longest boat belonging to a war-ship; long-bow, a bow the height of a man; To draw the long-bow, greatly to exaggerate one’s own prowess or achievements.

Long dozen or bakers’ dozen, thirteen for twelve. Long hundred, -hūn’drēd, six score, or 120 for 100. Long-headed, -hēd’’ēd, sagacious, foreseeing. Long-lived, -lived, living for a long time. Live-long [day], liv-löng, the entire [day]. Long-range (2 syl.), the greatest range of a gun or cannon. Long-shanks, having long legs, sobriquet of Edward I. Long-sighted, -site’’ed, able to see to a great distance, wise to foresee events or calculate prospects. Long-stop (in cricket), the scout behind the wicket-keeper. Long-spun, tedious; long-suf’fering, patient. Long-Tom, a cradle for washing out gold “at the diggings.”

Long-tongued, -tungd, a blab, one who talks too much. Long Vacation, -vāc’ay’shi’n (in the law-courts), from August 10th to the end of October. (In Cambridge University) from the last week of June to the beginning of October. (In Oxford University), about ten days later. Long-wise (not long-ways), in the direction of its length. Long-winded, proisy and tedious.

Long-yarn, a sailor’s exaggerated tale of adventures; to draw a long yarn, to tell a very exaggerated tale. In the long run, in the final result. The long and short of it, in brief, the result without details. Length, length’-y, length’i-ness (Rule xi.), length’i-ly; length-wise, in the direction of the length. Length’en, to increase the length; lengthened (2 syl.), &c.

“Long” is both adjective and adverb. We have not retained the adverbial form long-ly (g-langlic), although we still use the word short-ly (applied to time). We have also the adverbs wide-ly, broad-ly, deep-ly, shallow-ly, lateral-ly; superficial-ly, &c.

Old English lang or long, (comp.) lengra, (super.) lengest, (adj.), but (comp.) leng, (super.) lengst (adv.); langlic, for a long time; v. langlian, (p.) langodic, (p. p.) langod, to lengthen or long-for.

Long-ly, long-lived; langmys (longness), that is, length. (“Longsome” langsum, long-lasting, might be re-introduced.)
Longevity, lön. djē'v. ty, great length of life; longeval, lön.- djee'v.ál. (Latin longēvitas, longēvus, longus œvum.)

Longitude, lön. djē'tūde. Latitude, lāt.'ūde.

Longitude, the distance east or west from a given point. Our point is a line drawn from pole to pole through the spot on which the observatory of Greenwich stands, from this meridian longitude extends 180 deg. east and west.

Latitude, the distance from the equator towards either pole. It extends 90 deg. north and 90 deg. south.

Longitudinal, lōn.'djē.tū'd.ān.āl; longitudi'nal-ly.

Longitude from the starting point, in the place sailed to.

Merid’ians of longitude, lines drawn from pole to pole at right angles to the equator (number optional).

Parallels of latitude, lines drawn parallel to the equator, across a map or round a globe (number optional).

Latin longūtūde, lātūtūde, longūtūdīnālis, lātūtūdīnālis (from longus, long, and lātus, broad). The ancient Romans supposed the earth to be a large plain bounded on the west by the Atlantic; and extending thence to an indefinite length in an eastern direction; similarly the southern boundary was the tropic of Cancer, whence it stretched indefinitely in a northern direction.

Loa, a game at cards. Lieu, lē’u, place; in lieu of, instead of.

Loosed, lood, fined for not having won a single trick; loo-table, a round table on a pedestal, more convenient for a round game like loo than an ordinary card-table.

Looby, plu. loobies (R. xliv.), loo’b’iz, a half-witted creature; loo’bi-ly (R. xi.), stupidly. (Welsh llabi, a looby.)

Look (short, not loo’k), a glance, a sight, to take a look; looked (1 syl.), look’-ing, look’-er, one who looks.

A looker-on, plu. lookers-on, one who looks on a transaction.

To look about one, to be vigilant. To look for, to expect.

To look after, to watch over. To look blank, to show in the face signs of great disappointment.

To look down on, to treat with contempt.

To look into, to examine. To look up, to brighten.

To look up to, to respect, to confide in.

Looking-glass, a mirror; look-out, a watch-tower.

(The oo before -k is shorter than when a labial or liquid follows: thus book (not boo’k), brook, coo’k, crook, hook, look, nook, root,shook, took; but fool (long), foo’rn, noo’n, pou’r, loo’p, &c.).

When the adverb is to follow “look,” and when the adjective—

If the word qualifies the verb it must be an adverb, but if it represents a result, and not the way of producing that result, an adj.

Examples—

The queen looked majestic at the drawing-room (not majestically), the result was a “majestic appearance.”
EXAMPLES (continued)—
You look scornfully (i.e., you look in a scornful manner).
You look superb (i.e., your appearance is superb).
She looks sadly (here sadly is an adj. = unwell).
She looks sad (i.e., distressed).
The moon looks bright (not brightly. It is the result).
She looked coldly on (in a cold manner). She looked cold.
She looked haughtily (i.e., in a haughty manner).
She looked haughtily (i.e., she appeared to be haughty).
Old Eng. loo'an, past loode, past part. lood, lookow, look now.

Loom, loo'm, a weaver's work-frame. Loom, loome, clayey mould.

Hand-loom, a loom worked by the hand;

Power-loom, a loom worked by steam;

Jacquard-loom, zhāk'hard-, a loom for weaving figured goods, invented by M. Jacquard, of Lyons.

"Loom," so named from Sir Thomas Loom, who introduced the first from Flanders, and set it up in Derby, for weaving raw silk.

Loom, to show imperfectly, as through fog or at a great distance; loomed, loom'd; loom'-ing. (O. Eng. leom[an].)

(Before labials and liquids -oo· is longer than when k, d, or t follows: thus "hook" (not hoo'k), "hood" (not hoo'd), "foot" (not foo't), but schoo'l, loo'm, noo'n, poo'r, loo'p, &c., have -oo· lengthened.)

Loon, loo'n, a good-for-nothing fellow. (Old Eng. lun, needy.)

Loop, loo'p, a noose, to make a loop, to fasten with a loop; looped (I. sy.), loop' -ing; loop-line, a connecting line on a railway; loop'-ing, running on together by semifusion.

To loop along, to walk with large strides.

Loop-hole, a peep-hole, a secret means of escape.

Gaelic lub, luba, a thong or loop; Irish lubam, to fold.

"Loop" (to run ore), is the Dutch loopen, to run.

Loose, loo'ce, slack. Lose, loo'ze, to suffer loss. Lūce, a pike.

Loose, loo'ce, to unfasten; loosed, loo'ed; loos-ing (R. xix.), loo'ce-ing; loos-er, loo'ce-er; loose-ly, loose-ness.

Loose-cash, small change of which no strict reckoning is kept.

Loosen, loo's'n, to unfasten; loosened, loo's'nd; loosen-ing, loo'ce-ning; loosen-er, loo'ce-nar.

To break loose, to escape from confinement.

To let loose, to set free. To play fast and loose, to act contradictorily for personal advantage.

Old English lys[an] or los[an], past lyste, past part. lyst.

Loot, loo't, plunder, to ransack for plunder. Lüte, a mus. inst.

Loot'-ed (R. xxxvi.), loot'-ing; loot'-y, a plunderer (E. Ind.)

Lōp, hanging down, heavier on one side than the other, to prune, to cut off; lopped, lōpt; lopp'-ing (R. i.), lopp'er.

Lōp-sided, having one side heavier than the other.

Lōp-eared, having hanging ears.

Welsh lab, a stroke; labio, to slap. "Lōp" (sided), Lat. labo, to totter.
AND OF SPELLING.

Loquacious (R. lxvi.), lo quà'shish, talkative; loqua'cious-ness; loqua'cious-ity, lo quà'shish'ty; loquacions-ly, lo quà'shish'ly.
Latin loqua'citas (lo quar, gen. lo quacis); French loquacité.

Lord, fem. lady, plu. ladies, lay'diz; landlord, landlady, the master and mistress of an hotel, the owner of property let to a tenant; to lord it over [one], to domineer; lord-ed, lord-ing, lord-ly, lord-li-ness (Rule xi.), lord-like.

Lord-ling, a little lord (-ling, dim.); lord-ship, the jurisdiction or territory of a lord, a manor (-ship, office, &c.)
My lord, your lordship, terms of respect in addressing a lord.
Lord, the supreme being; the Lord's day, Sunday.
The Lord's Supper, the eucharist. Our Lord, Jesus Christ.
Lord Advocate, plu. Lord Advocates (not lords...).
Lord High Chancellor, plu. Lord High Chancellors.
Lord Lieutenant, -lòw'ten'ant, plu. Lords Lieutenants.
Lord Justice, plu. Lords Justices. Lord Marcher, plu.
Lords Marchers.
(These Gallicisms ought to be abolished. They are just as silly as "Lords Mayors" would be.)

Lord Mayor, plu. Lord Mayors.
Lord Spir'itual, Lord Tem'poral, plu. Lords...
House of Lords, the legislative assembly of the peers.
Old English lóf'ord, loaf-earner; húfords-scipe, lordship.

Lòre (1 syl.), learning. Law, a statute. Lower, low'er, more low.

Lorgnette (Fr.), lor'n'yet'. Lunette, loo'net', a flat watch-glass.
Lorgnette, an opera glass, a double eye-glass which does not hold on by gripping the nose like a pince-nez.
French lorgner, to eye, to ogle. In French, lorgnette is a telescopic opera-glass, lorgnon or lunette a single eye-glass, lunettes an opera-glass not telescopic.

Loricate (one r), lórr'ik'ate, to cover with mail armour; loricat-ed (R. xxxvi.), loricat-ing (R. xix.), lorication.
Latin lorica'tio, loricà're, supine lorica'tum (lorica, a coat of mail).

Lose, loo'ze, to suffer loss. Loose, loo'ce, free. Lu'ce, a pike.
Lose, loo'ze, (past) lost, (past part.) lost (rhymes with frost); loser, loo'zer, one who suffers loss. Looser, loo'zer, more slack. Loss, privation; at a loss, perplexed, in perplexity.

The terminations -ose, -ost, are very irregular in sound.
(1) "-ose" = òze: chose, close, v. glöse, hose, nose, -pose (except purpose), prove, rose, those.
(2) "-ose" = òce: close(n.), dose, globose, jocose, morose, rugose, vorbose.
(3) "-ose" = òoz: lose, whose. (4) = us: purpose.
(1) "-ost" = òst: ghost, host, most, post.
(2) "-ost" = òst: cost, frost, lost, lost. (3) = ust: dest.

Old English losstan, past losade, past part. losed, los, loss.
To cast lots, to determine by the throw of a die.

To draw lots, to determine by drawing a slip of paper from a bag, &c. To pay scot and lot, to pay rates and taxes.

Lottery, plu. lotteries, lôt·tèr·iz, a distribution of money or goods by lots, the goods or money to be so distributed.

Lot, lot·er, portion, to sort in lots; lôt·ter·ing.

Loud, lòv·d (to rhyme with proud), noisy; (comp.) loud·er, (super.) loud·est, loud·ly, loud·ness.

Louge (1 syll.), to loiter about. Lunge, to thrust at. Lung (q.v.)

Lounged (1 syll.), loung·ing (Rule xix.), loung·er.

Louvre (better louver), lou·ver, a window unglazed, but having cross-bars, like the windows of church towers, brewing-rooms, drying-rooms, and so on; louver-boards, the cross-bars of a louver-window; louver-tower, a wooden belfry, fitted all round with louver-boards.

Love, lòv, affection, to be fond of; loved, lòv·ed; lov·ing (Rule xix.), lòv·ing·ing; lov·ing·ly, lov·ing·ness, lov·ing·kindness; lov·er, lòv·er; lov·able, lòv·a·ble; love·less, lòv·less;
love-ly, lūv'-ly, (comp.) loveli-er, lūv'-li.er, (super.) love-li-est; love'ly (adv.) (rarely loveli-ly (R. xi.), lūv’.lī.ly); loveli-ness, lūv’.lī.ness.

Love-apple, lūv’ap’pl, the toma’to; love’-charm.

Love’-child; a euphemism for a child born before wedlock.

Love’-fa’vour; love’-feast, lūv’-feest, a religious repast held by Wesleyan Methodists.

Love’-knot, lūv’-nōt, a knotted bow symbolical of mutual affection. Love’letter. Love’-lock, a curl over the forehead common in the reign of Elizabeth and James I.

Love’-lorn, forsaken by one’s lover; love’-ma’king, courtship; love’-sick, love’-to’ken.

Love’-lies-a-bleeding; the pendulous amaranth.

The termination -ove is very irregular, and has three distinct sounds:
(1.) “-ove” = ove: close, cove, drove, grove; love, rove, stove, strove, chove, wove.
(2.) “-ove” = uve: dote, glove, love, shove.
(3.) “-ove” = cove: move, prove, and their compounds.

Old English lōf, luflic, lovingly; lufiend, a lover; luflic, lovely; luflic, adv.; luf-lacen; v. luf(iant), past lufode, past part. lufod.

(We might re-introduce the adj. “lovesome” [lufs’um].)

Lōw (to rhyme with grow). Lō! behold.

Low, not high, mean, to bellow like a cow.

Low, (comp.) lōw’-er, (super.) lōw’-est; lower-most.

Lōw’-er, more low, to sink. Lour, lōw’r, to look cloudy; lowered, lōw’ered; lōw’er-ing.

Lōw’-ly (adj.), humble, meek; (comp.) lōw’li.er, (super.) lōw’li-est, lōw’li-ness (Rule xi.), lōw’-ness; low-life, mean-condition; low minded, mean spirited, humble-minded; low-spirited, depressed.

Low’lands, districts not hilly, opposed to Highlands (Scot’land); lowland’-er, an inhabitant of the lowlands.

Low’-water, the lowest point of the tide at ebb;

Low’-water mark, the depth of the tide at low-water.

Low’-pressure engine, a condensing steam-engine.

Low’-Sunday, the Sunday next after Easter, so called because it is at “the bottom” of Easter, which it closes.

Low’-bell, night-fowling (the birds are first roused by the tinkling of a bell and then dazed by a low or flame).

“Low’-bell,” Scotch lowe, glare: as “a lowe of fyre,” to “rays a great lowe” [flame]; Welsh lūg, a glare, lūga’n, teeming with light, lūgas, daybreak.

“Low” (depressed), Old English lōh, a deep pit.

Low affixed to names of places is the Anglo-Saxon lūō, a heap, a barrow, a small hill, rising ground: as Bed-low, Lud-low, &c.
Loyalty, Obedience, Royalty.

Loyalty, voluntary attachment to a sovereign, devotion of a wife, fidelity to one’s word, &c.

Latin lego, to choose (obedience from choice), “laws” are rules freely chosen by a governing body for the general good.

Obedience, conformity to a command, voluntary or not.

Latin ob audio, doing something because “I hear” the order.

Royalty is quite another word, and means the state or office of a sovereign. (French roi, a king; Latin rex.)

French loyal, tayanté (loi, law); Italian leale, lealty. These words have departed far from the Latin lēgalis, lēgātīas (lex, law).

Loz’enge, diamond-shaped, a lozenge-shaped sweetmeat; löz’enged (2 syl.), loz’engy. (French losange or lozange.)

Lüb’ber, a clumsy fellow; a land lubber, a sailor’s word of contempt for a landsman; lüb’ber-ly, awkward.

Lubber’s hole, between the head of a lower-mast and the edge of the top-mast, through which “lubbers creep” instead of trusting themselves up the futtock shrouds.

Lubber’s point, the mark on the inside of the compass-case indicating the direction of the ship’s head. So called because only a “lubber” would regard it in steering.

Welsh llab, a looby; llabies, a strapping wench; llabost, gawky.

Lubricate, lu’bri.kate, to make slippery with oil so as to diminish friction; lu’bricat-ed (R. xxxvi.), lu’bricat-ing (R. xix.), lu’bricat-or (R. xxxvii.); lubrication, lu’bri.-kay”’shün; lubricity, lu’bris’·i·ty, slipperiness.

Latin lu’bricātus, lu’bricāre, supine lu’bricātum (lu’bricus, slippery).

Lūce (1 syl.), a full-grown pike. Loose, loo’ce, slack. Lose, loo’ze.

Lū’cent, shining. (Lat. lūcens, gen. lūcentis (lūx, light), shining.)

Lucerne, lū’sern, a fodder for cattle. (French luzerne.)

Fr. Lucerne, in Switzerland, the south of which is famous for its pasture.

Lūcid, lu’sid, clear, distinct; lu’cid-ly, lu’cid-ness, lucid’ity.

Latin lūcītus, lūcītās, lūcītāre, to make bright (lūx, light).

Lucifer, lu’ser.fer, a friction-match, the morning-star, Satan.

Latin lūcifer (lux fēro, I bring the light).

Lück, a happy casualty; luck’y, fortunate; luck’y-ly (Rule xi.); luck’-less, unlucky; luck’-less-ly, luck’-less-ness.

German glück, gluecklicher weise, luckily, unglucklich.

Lucrative, lu’krā.tive, profitable; lu’crative-ly.

Latin lucratīvus (lucrum, profit, v. lūcrāri, to gain profit).

Lucubration, lu’kū.bra’‘shün. Lubrication, lu’bri.kay”’shün.

Lucubra’tion, study at night time by lamp-light;

Lubrica’tion, moistening of machinery to decrease friction.
Lucubratory, lu'koo.bra.t'ry, composed by lamp-light;
Lubricatory, lu'bre.ka.t'ry, slippery.
Lactu-cretus, lactu-crē'tēs, lactu-brē're (lācūbrem, a torch, but lābēctas, lubē-cēre, supine lubēcitum (lubēricus, slippery).
Ludicrous, lu'drū.cus, laughable; lu'dricous-ly, lu'dricous-ness.
Latin ludicrus (lūdus, sport), laughable.
Lues, loo'ze, a cankerous disease. (Latin lues, the plague.)
Luff (R. v.), to put the helm so as to bring the ship up nearer to the wind; luffed (1 syl.), luff'-ing.
Luff-tackle, -tāck'-l, a "purchase" composed of a double and single block. Luff-upon-luff, a luff tackle upon the fall of another luff tackle.
Spring-a-luff! Keep your luff! orders to luff.
Danish luffe; French lôf, venir au lôf, au lôf, v. lofer.
Lug, the ear, to haul with difficulty; lugged, lūgd; lugg'-ing
(R. i.); lugg'-er, one who lugs, a vessel carrying lug-sails.
Lug sail, a sail bent to a "yard" hung obliquely to the mast.
Lug gage, the trunks, &c., of a passenger, goods packed for conveyance by rail, &c. (O. E. a-lūc[a], to haul out.)
Lugubrious, lu.gū.bri.əs, doleful; ingu'brious-ly.
Latin lāgūbris (lāgūbrum or lāgūbra, a lamentation).
Lukewarm (not loo'·warm, "warm" to rhyme with storm),
tepid; luke'warm-ly, luke'warm-ness.
German laulich, warm (laut, tepid); Danish lunken, tepid.
Lull (Rule v.), a cessation, an abatement, to abate, to quiet;
lulled, lūld; lull'-ing.
Lullaby, plu. lullabies, lūl'lā.bi, plu. lūl'.la.bīze, a song to quiet infants and soothe them to sleep.
"Lull," German lullen; Danish lulle.
"Lullaby," Gr. lūlē, Lat. lālāre (lālus, a lullaby). The "by" is common to many languages, as Gr. pαυδός, to soothe. Lat. paco, Russian bavst. Theword means "to talk or sing in order to soothe."
Lumbago, plu. lumbagoes (Rule xiii.), lūm.bā'goze, pain of the loins; lumbaginous, lūm.bād'go.zəs, adj.
Lūm'bar, pertaining to the loins. Lum'ber, rubbish.
Lumbar-regions, -rē jūnzs, the lower part of the trunk.
Latin lūmbāgo (lumbus, the loins); French lumbago, lumbaire.
Lūm'ber, rubbish, bulky things which are not of use, to encumber with heavy articles. Lūm'bar, pertaining to the loins; lumbered, lūm'berd; lūm'ber-ing; lūm'ber-er, one who lumber, one who deals in lumber, one who sells and shapes timber, a backwoodsman; lumber-dealer or lumber-broker; lumber-room, for boxes, &c.
Lumberjill, a pawnbroker's shop. The first pawnbrokers were Lomburds, and the places where the pawns were kept were called "lumber-rooms." Thus Lady Murray writes: "They put all the little plate they had in the lumber, which is pawnimg it."

42
Luminary, plu. luminaries, lù'.mi.nài-rìz, a thing that gives light, a person who enlightens others; luminous, lù'.mi.nús; luminous-ly, luminous-ness; luminosity, lù.mì.nős'-ì.tì.

Lumination, lù'.mi.nay'-shùn, or Illumination, q.v.

Luminiferous, lù'.mi.nif'-shùn, light-producing.
Latin lù.minatio, lù.minus, lù.minósus, lù.minùre (lumen, light).

Lump, a mass, to throw into a heap, to strike; lumped, lù.mpt; lump-ing, lump-ing-ly; lump-ish, heavy (-ish added to nouns means “like,” added to adj. it is dim.); lump’ish-ly, lump’ish-ness; lump’y, lump’i-ness (Rule xi.)

Lump’ers, labourers employed by merchant-ships for loading and unloading cargoes.

Lump’en, a long fish of a greenish colour.

Lumps, a kind of brick, a mass of loaf-sugar larger than a “loaf” which is conical, or a “titler” which is flat at top.

Lump-sugar, loaf-sugar; lump-fish, the “sea-owl.”

German klump, der lump, the lump-fish, plump, lumpish, lumpen-zucker, lump-sugar, klumpig, lumpy.

Lù'namcy, madness supposed by the Romans to increase and decrease as the moon waxes or wanes; lunatic, lù.nátìk, one affected with lunacy; lù'natic asylum, -a.sf. lùm.

Lu'nar, pertaining to the moon; lu'nary, influenced by the moon; sublunar, sub.lù.nàrì, terrestrial.

Lunarian, lù.nair'rìan, an “inhabitant” of the moon.

Lunate, lù.nàtè, formed like a half-moon; lunat-ed, lu.nàtèd, crescent-shaped; lù.nation, lù.nay'-shùn, one revolution of the moon, a lunar month.

Lunar month, one day thirteen hours more than four weeks.

Lunar caustic, nitrate of silver (Latin luna, the moon), the name given to silver by the old alchemists.

Lat. lù.naris, lù.náticos, lù.nátìus, v. lù.nàre (lùna, the moon).

Lunch or luncheon, lùn'.shùn, a light repast between breakfast and dinner; to lùnch, to eat luncheon; lùnched, lùnch-ing. (Welsh llunc, a gulp, llùncu, to swallow at a gulp.)

Frequently said to be derived from the Spanish lúncas (the eleven o’clock repast), but as Mr. Skeat says (in Notes and Queries) why should we speak Spanish in such an everyday matter?

Lunette, lù.nèt, a flattened, watch glass. Lorgnète, lør.nèt. French lunette, an eye-glass, a watch-glass. “Lorgnette,” v. lór.nèt, to ogle. (In French a double-eyed opera-glass which does not hold on by gripping the nose is jumelle; if it grips the nose a pince-nez; a telescopic opera-glass is lorgnette; a single eye-glass is lorgnon.

Lùng, one of the lungs. Lunge (1 syl.), to thrust at in fencing.

Lounge, q.v. In common parlance we always say The lungs, except when we want to particularise, in which case we add one, or specify which one: as one lung is affected, the right lung is sound, the left lung is gone.

Lung-wort, black hellebore, the leaves of which are spotted like tubercular lungs.

Old English lung, the lungs; lungwört, lungwort.

Länge (1 syl.), to thrust out in fencing. Lung, one of the lungs, v.s.; lunged (1 syl.); lung-ing (Rule xix.), lung-ing; lung-er, lung-er.

*French allonger, to lengthen (the arm), to make a thrust.

Lupercal, lu'-per-käl (not lu'-per'käl), a Roman feast day in honour of Pan, February 15th. (Latin lupercáliá.)

So called from lupercal, a cave at the foot of mount Palatine, where Romulus and Remus were said to have been suckled by the wolf, but really from Luperus, an Italian deity, which warded the sheep from wolves.

Lupine, lu'-pín, a flowering plant producing a kind of pulse.

Latin lupína, the lupin; French lupin.

Lurch, a rolling on one side, as a ship in a storm, a game won by a player before his adversary has scored a point.

To leave in the lurch, to leave in a helpless condition without one “point” in your favour.

To lurch, to roll on one side (as a ship); lurched (1 syl.), lurch-ing.

Lurcher (a corruption of lurker), one who lies in wait, and hence a poacher’s dog which “lurches” for game.

“Lurch” (to roll over), a corruption of the Welsh lluch, a throw; v. lluchiaw, to fling over.

“Lurch” (to lie in wait), Welsh llerc, v. llercian, to loiter about.

Lure, lú'r, an enticement, to entice; lured (1 syl.), lure-ing (Rule xix.), lure'-ing; lure-er, lure'-er; allure-ment.

*French leurre, a lure; v. leurrer; Latin lúram, a cord (for a snare).

Lú'rid, gloomy, overclouded. (Latin lúridus, lúror, paleness.)

Lúrk, lurked (1 syl.), lurk'-ing, lurk'-er, lurk'-ing-place.

Welsh llere, v. llercian, to skulk, to loiter, to lie in wait.

Lú'sious, lúsh'ús, sickly sweet; lú'sious-ness, lú'sious-ly.

Ital. lussuare, to be over fertile; lusso, luxury; lussuria, sensuality.

Lusíad, lu'sí'ád, the Portuguese epic by Camoëns, on the “discovery” of India by Vasquez da Gama.

Lusians, the Portuguese (-ad Gk. patron.), “the adventures of,” &c.

Lúst, sensuality, to long for (followed by after); lust'-ed, lust'-ing, lust'-ful (Rule viii.), lust'-ful-ly, lust'-ful-ness.

Old English lúst, v. lústan, past lúste, past part. lústed.

Lustral, used in purifications, pertaining to purifications; lustral, lústr'al, purifying feasts of the Romans.

Lustrate, lústr'ate, to purify. Illustrate, i.l'u's'trate, to explain or exemplify by pictures: Lústrat-ed (R. xxxvi.),... lūstrāt-ing (R. xix.); lustration, lūstrā-shūn, the act of purifying, the purification feast. Ilustration, elucidation by pictures. Lustrāt-or (R. xxxvii.) Ill...

Latin lustrālis, lustrātio, lustrātor, lustrāre (lustrum, a public purification held every five years; Greek lutrōn, v. lutō).

"Ilustrate," Latin illustrāre, supine illustrātum, to make manifest.

Lustre, lūs′tēr, brightness, a sconce with ornamental glass pendants, (in Mǐn.) the sheen of metal which is of five sorts, splendent, shining, metallic, vitreous, or pearly.

Lustreless; lustrous, lūs′trüs; lustrously.

Fr. lustre; Lat. illustrā, bright; v. illustrāre, to throw light on.

Lustrum, plu. lustra, a period of five years, the interval between the Roman lustrations. (Latin lustrum, same meaning.)

Lusty, lūs′tē, sturdy; (comp.) lūs′ti-er, (sup.) lūs′ti-est (R. xi.), lūs′ti-ly, lūs′ti-ness, lūs′ti-hood (-hood, state, condition).

Old English lustīc, joyous; German lustig; Norse lystig.

Lūte (1 syl.), a musical instrument similar to the lyre but smaller, a composition for securing the joints of vessels, a putty made of clay, sand, and water, for coating retorts.

Lute-string, the string of a lute, a stout shiny silk (a corruption of the French lustrine, from lustre, shining).

To lute, to stop joints with lute; lūt′-ed (Rule xxxvi.); lūt′-ing; lutation, lūt′-a-shūn, application of lute.

"Lute" (musical inst.), Fr. luth; Ital. liuto; Germ. laut; Norse lut.

"Lute" (for stopping joints), Latin Ľūtum, clay or loam; Gk. lūmā.

Lutheran, lū′thē-रा, according to the theological system of Martin Luther, a disciple of Luther; Lutheranism, lū′thē-ra-ɪzm, the theological system of Luther.

Luxuriant, lūx′zu′-rānt, exuberant; luxur′iant-ly, luxur′iant-ness, luxur′i-ance, luxur′i-ancy. Luxuriate, lūx′zu′-rā-tē, to indulge (followed by in); luxur′i-āt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), luxur′i-ā-t-ing (Rule xix.); luxuriation, lūx′zu′-rā′-shūn.

Luxury, plu. luxuries, lūx′zu′-rīz (not lūg zhu′-rīz), whatever contributes to self-indulgence; luxurious, lūx′zu′-rī-I,-rī-‰ (not lūg zhu′-rī-‰); luxur′i-ous-ness, luxur′i-ous-ly.

Lat. luxūria, luxūriōsus, luxūriāns, gen. luxūriāntis (luxus, revelry).

-ly, "like," represents the native adjectival suffix -lic and the adverbial suffix -lice: thus "godly," "manly," "lovely," &c., are both adjectives and adverbs representing god-līc (adj.), god-līce (adv.), man-līc, man-līce, luf-līc, luf-līce. It is a pity that these distinctions have not been retained.

Lyceum, lī-sē′-əm (not līs′-ə-m nor lī′-sē′-ə-m), a place for lectures, a school, a theatre. Elysium, ē-līs′-i-ə-m, the heaven of classic mythology; elysian, ē-līs′-i-ən, adj.

Lyceum, at Athens, where Aristotle taught philosophy.

"Elysium," Lat. elysium, paradise; Gk. elusión (eluo, to set free).
Lychnis (not lychnus), lyk'nis, "ragged-robin," "catch-fly," &c. Greek lychnis, a lantern, the calyx being semi-transparent.

Lycopodium, lêk'pô.dé.üum, club-moss, its fine seed; Lycopodiaceae, lêk'ko.pô.â.ü.ê.ü.ê.ê, the order containing the above. (aceae in Bot. denotes an order.) Latin lycopodiüum; Greek lûkûs pous, wolf's foot.

Lydian, líd'jân, adj. of Lydia, effeminate, soft.

"Lie" (to falsify), O. E. lêg[an]. "Lie" (to recline), O. E. lêg[an].

Lying, telling falsehoods, reclining. (See Lie.)

Lymph, lîmf, a nearly colourless fluid in animal bodies; lymph-y, lîm'fî, resembling lymph.

Lymphatics, lîmf.fût'âks, vessels containing lymph.

Fr. lymphé, lymphatique; Lat. lympfa, lymphaticus; Gk. nymphê.

Lynch, linch, to punish without trial; Lynch-law, mob-law.

So called from James Lynch, a farmer, of Piedmont, in Virginia, who was very fond of taking the law into his own hands, and obtained the sobriquet of "Judge Lynch."

Lynx, lynks, a wild beast keen of sight. Links [of a chain].

Lyncean, lyn'sè.ân (not lynxean), adj. of lynx.

Lynx-eyed, lynks-îde, having very keen vision.

Lynx-sapphire, lynks sôf'fûre, a greenish blue sapphire.

Latin lynx, lynxus; Greek lûks (-û before x = “n” in Greek).

Lyric, lîr'i.kî [poetry], suitable to be sung to the lyre.

Lyrical, lîr'i.kûl; lyrist, lî.rîst, one who plays on the lyre; lyrist, lî.rîst, a lyric poet.

Latin lyra, lyrica, lyricus, lyricites; Greek lûra, lûrikos.

-Lyte (Gk. termination) nouns, denotes a substance which can be dissolved or decomposed: as electrolyte (Gk. lûo, to loose).
Mac, Scotch affix before proper names, meaning "son of." The Welsh affix is ap, the Irish O'; the English Fitz.

Macadamise (R. xxxi), mākˌədˌəməz, to make roads according to Macadam's system; macadamised, mākˌədˌəməzd; macadamising, macadamis-er (Rule xxxi).

Roadmaking on the plan of Sir John Loudon Macadam (1756-1830).

Macaroni, mākˌərəˌnē, a food, a dandy, an extravagant folly; macaronic, mākˌərəˈnīk, adj. applied also to a burlesque kind of poetry. Macaroon, mākˌərən; a cake.

Macaroni, a song. The Italian is un maccherone. The Macaroni Club consisted of flash-men aimed at foppery, extravaganz, insolence and prodigality (1773).

Macaw, mākˌōw, a bird of the parrot kind (Antilles, 2 syl.)

Maccabees, mākˌkəbēz, an heroic Jewish family, the name of four books of the Apocrypha; Maccabean, mākˌkēˈbēən.

Said to be formed from the initial letters of the motto M.C.B.I. ("Who is like to thee among the gods, O Lord," Exodus xv. 11).

Mace (1 syl.), an insignia of authority, a spice; mace-bearer, -bareˌer, or maˈcér, a beadle. Mace-ale, ale with mace.

"Mace" (of office). Fr. mase; Ital. massa, maˈzzärē, a macer.

"Mace" (spice). Ital. mace; Lat. macis; Gk. māˈcēr, mace.

Macerate, māsˈsēˌrāt, to steep in cold liquid either to soften the texture or to obtain an extract; mortify the body, to make lean; macerated, macerating; macerator.

Maceration, māsˈsēˌrāˈshən, is obtained by steeping a substance in cold water.

Infusion, inˈfə ˌshən, is obtained by steeping a substance [as tea or coffee] in boiling hot water.

Decoction, deˌkōkˈshən, is obtained by boiling a substance.

Latin māˈkērētĭo, māˈkērārē, supine māˈkērātūm (māˈkēr, thin).

"Infusion," Latin infusĭo, infundĕre, supine infusŭm, to pour over.

"Decoction," Lat. decoctō, decoquĕre, sup. decoctum, to seethe down.

Machiavellian, mākˈkēˌvəlˈeɪən (not māˈskĭ ˌvəlˈeɪən or māˈshēˌvəlˈeɪən), the political principles of Nicolo del Machiavelli, of Florence, which may be termed craft or "expediency," not uprightness and plain dealing, one who adopts these political principles;

Machiavelism, mākˈkēˌvəlˈizəm, state-craft or cunning.

Machicolation, māˌshēkˌəˈlājˌˈshən, erection of a gallery in a castellated building, having such a gallery.

Machicolated, māˌshēkˌəˈlātəd, furnished with a gallery from which pitch, &c., can be poured on invaders.

Low Latin machicolamentum; French machicoulis (mèche couler).
Machine, māsheen′, an instrument made by art, now applied to a compound contrivance and not to such things as knives, forks, spoons, spades, and so on; machin-ing (R. xix.), māsheen′ing, the working off of letter-press by steam;

Machinery, plu. machineries, māsheen′.ē′rēz.

Machin-ist, māsheen′.ist, a maker of machines;

Mechanist, mēk′.ān.ist, one skilled in mechanical work;

Mechanic, mē.kān′.ik, an artisan, one who gains a livelihood by doing "skilled labour" with his hands.

A "mechanist" makes such ponderous machines as steam engines.

A "mechanist" is skilled in smaller mechanical contrivances, and a "mechanic" is a workman who follows the instruction given him or the mechanical work of his trade.

Ex. machine, mecanique, machiniste; Lat. māchēna; Gk. méchane.

(The pronunciation of -ine as -en, shows that we have taken the word from the French and not from the Latin.)

Machination, māk′.i.nay′.shūn, a scheme, a plot; machinate, *māk′.i.nate′, to plot; machinat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), māk′.i.nay′.ted; machinat-ing (R. xix.), māk′.i.nay′.ting.

Latin machinator, v. machinant. The ch = k directs us to the Greek mēchanēma, a device or trick (mēchos, contrivance).

Macintosh, māk′.i.n.ō.tsh; waterproof-cloth, a waterproof cloak.

Patented by Mr. Macintosh, from whom it takes its name.

Mackerel, māk′.ē.rēl, a fish; mackerel-gale, a gale which only ripples the sea, and is favourable for catching mackerel;

Mackerel-sky, a sky spotted and streaked with white and blue.

Welsh macrel; German makrel; French maquereau.

Macro- (Greek makrōs, large); māk′.ro-.

Macro-cephalous, -sēf′.ā.lōs (in Botany), having a large head. (Greek makrōs kephalē, large head.)

Macro-cosm, -kōzm, the universe. Micro-cosm, mi′.kro-.kōzm, a miniature world, applied to man. (Greek makros, great, mikros, little, kōsmos, world.)

Macro-dactyle, -dāk′.tīl, a bird with long toes; macro-dactylic, -dāk′.tīl.ēk. (Greek dactylōs, a finger.)

Macrometer, *mā.krot′.erm., an optical instrument for measuring inaccessible objects; (Greek mētron.)

Mac-ro-pod, mā.kro-.pōd, crustacean with enormously long feet; macropodous, mā.krop′.ō.dūs, adj. (Greek makroi pōdes, long feet [pous pōdōs, a foot].)

Mac′ro-therium, -rē.′thi.um*, an extinct ant-eater. (Greek makros therion, the long [bodied] wild beast.)

Madd, deranged in intellect, to infuriate; (comp.) madder, (super.) maddest (Rule i.), maddened, madding.

Madden, madd’n, to infuriate; maddened, maddening, maddeningly, maddeningly; maddening, maddening.

Maddness, is insanity beyond personal control.

Insanity, is the dominance of fancy over reason.

Lunacy, is chiefly limited to legal phraseology.

Madam, pl. mesdames, madam, madame. “Madam” is contracted into ma’am, mum.

“Mesdames” in French is called madame, but is never so pronounced as the English plural of madam. The word is chiefly used in heading announcements of untitled ladies at levees, &c., and in trade circulars.

Madden, madd’n, to infuriate. (See Mad.)

Madder, a plant the root of which is used for dyeing red, madder; madder, dyeing with madder; madder lake, a colour obtained from madder. (Old English mæddere.)

Māde (1 syl.), past tense of make, q.v. Maid, a virgin.

Madeira, mā.de’rah, a wine from the island of Madeira.

Mademoiselle (French), mademoiselle; Miss (not madam...).

Madonna, madonna, the Virgin Mary, a picture of the Virgin.

Italian madonna; Spanish madona.

Madrepore, mā’d.rē’pō; a genus of corals; madreporite, mā’d.rē.pō’rite, fossil madrepore. (ite denotes a fossil.)

French madrépore; Italian madrepore, “mother-pore,” qui veut dire pore second, parce que ce polype semble engendré dans les pores de la croûte qu’il habite, Dict. Univ., &c.)

Madrigal. Glee. Madrigal, mā’d.rī.gāl, a very elaborate vocal composition for five or six voices in the ancient style of counterpoint and fugue. (Words pastoral.)

Glee, a vocal composition for three or four voices, less complicated than a madrigal. Originally gleeful, but now of any style, gay, erotic, bacchanalian, or pathetic.

“Madrigal,” Italian madrigale (fait de la ville de Madrigal ou de celle de Madrigalejo, en Espagne, où ce genre aurait d’abord été cultivé, Dict. Univ. des Sciences, &c.)

Maelstrom, mahl’strōm, a whirlpool; The Maelstrom, a whirlpool at the south end of the Loffōden Islands, off the west coast of Norway. (Norman mælstrōm.)

(The “e” is quite useless and the native spelling would be better.)

Magazine, mag’ga.zeen’, a storehouse, a strong building for the storing of gunpowder, a serial in pamphlet form.

The pronunciation of “zine” as zee is bad French for magazin; Arab, makhsen, a treasury.
AND OF SPELLING.

Magdeburg hemispheres, mag' .dē .berg  hēm' - iż , tserz, two brass cups for illustrating the force of atmospheric pressure.

Invented by M. de Guericke of Magdeburg, in Saxony.

Magellanic Clouds, ma .djēl .län' .iż ..., two white nebulae near the south pole, which revolve like stars.

First observed by Magellan [ma .djēl .län], the navigator.

Maggiore, ma .dijō' .rē (each g to be distinctly sounded), the scales, intervals, modes, &c., to be major, not minor.

Maggot, mag' .gōt, a small grub, an odd whim; maggotty, mag' .-gō .ty, full of maggots or whims. (Welsh naïceid, plu.)

Magi, may' .dji (plu. of magus, not in use), the "wise men" who came from "the East" to honour the infant Jesus; magian, ma .dji.län, a Persian priest; magianism, ma .-dji .län .izm, Zoroaster’s system of religion, philosophy, &c.

Latin magus, plu. maq: Greek magos, plu. magoi, a magian.

Magic, mādg' .āk, sorcery; magical, mādg' .āk .lāl; magical-ly; magician, mād .ijsh' .ān, one skilled in magic; magic lantern, mag’ ic square, &c.

Five of the sciences [taken from the French] end in “-ic” instead of “-ics”: viz., arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric.

Fr. magique; Lat. magicus; Gk. magikos (magus, a magician).

Magistrate, mādg' .īs .trātē, a justice. Majesty, mādj' .jes .ty.

Magistracy, plu. magistracies, mādg' .īs .trā .sīz, the office or dignity of a magistrate.

Magisterial, mādg' .īs .tē' .ri .āl; magiste’-rial-ly, magiste’-riel-ness. (Latin magistrātus [magister].)

Magna Charta, māg' .nāh kā' .tah (not tchā' .tah), the great charter of English rights extorted by the barons from King John. (Latin magna charta.)

Magnanimous, māg .nān' .i .mi .s, of noble spirit; magnan’imous-ly; magnanimity, māg' .nān' .i .mi .tē .ty.

Lat. magnānūmus, magnānūmitas (magnus animus, a great mind).

Magnate, māg' .nātē, a grandee. Mag’net, a “loadstone.”

Latin magnas, gen. -nātis, a grandee; magnes, gen. -nētis, a magnet.

Magnesia, māg' .nē' .zī .lāh, the protoxide of magnesium.

Magnesian, māg .nē' .zī .ān, adj. of magnesia; magnet’ic limestone, limestone with twenty per cent. of magnesia.

Magnesium, māg' .nē' .zī .ām, the metallic base of magnesia; Magnesium light (not magnesium...), a brilliant light produced by the burning of magnesium wire.

Sulphate of magnesia, sūl' .fātē ..., Epsom salt.

French magnésie (not dérivé de magnes, parce que cette terre a la propriété, ainsi que plusieurs terres argileuses, de napper à la langue, de l’attirer, comme l’aimant attire le fer. Rouqufort).

Magnesiû, in Thessaly, is generally given as the origin of the word.
Magnet, māgˈ.nēt, the loadstone. Magnetite, māgˈ.nē.tīt, a grandee.

Magnetic, māgˈ.nē.tī.ık, possessing the property of the lodestone; magnetical, māgˈ.nē.tī.ıkˈāl; magnetical-ly.

Magnetics (R. ix.), māgˈ.nē.tī.ıkˈs, the science of magnetism.

Magnetism, māgˈ.nē.tizm, the attractive power of a magnet.

Magnetise (Rule xxxi.), māgˈ.nē.tīz, to render magnetic; magnetised (3 syl.), māgˈ.nē.tīz-éd (R. xix.), māgˈ.nē.tīz-er.

Magnetisation, māgˈ.nē.tī.zāˈshon.

Magnetite, māgˈ.nē.tīt, an iron ore from which the finest steel is made, also called magnetic-iron.

Magnetic battery, magnetic dip, magnetic equator, magnetic fluid, magnetic meridian, magnetic needle, magnetic poles (poles, 1 syl.), magnetic telegraph.

Magneto-electricity, māgˈ.nē.tōˈ.lekˈtrizĭ.ty; electric phenomena produced by magnetism; magnetˈ.o-electˈrīc.

Animal magnˈ.netˈis.m, mesmerism;

Terrestrial magnˈ.netˈis.m, terreˈ.rēsˈ.trīˈ.āl (not terreˈ.rēsˈ.tchāl...), the magnetic power of the earth.

Magnetometer, māgˈ.nē.tōˈ.mē.ter, an instrument for measuring the intensity of magnetic force.

Magnetomotor, māgˈ.nē.tōˈ.mōˈ.tōr, a voltaic series for the production of a store of electricity for exhibiting electromagnetic phenomena.

French magnˈ.dēˈtik, magnˈ.tizˈm, magnˈ.tīz;

Latin magnˈ.nes, gen. magnˈ.nis, magneticus; Greek magnˈ.ētis or (lithos) magnˈ.ētes ab inventore ejus nominis, Plin. 36, 25; a Magnˈ.ētis, Lydiae regiˈōn, magnˈ.ētum, quae sit patriis in finibus ortus. Lucr. vi., 909. Said to have been first discovered in the town of Heraclium, near Magnesia, hence called in Greek [lithos] Heraclia or Magnesia.

Magnificent, māgˈ.nīfˈ.sənt, grand, splendid; magnˈ.fīˈ.cənt-ly.

Magnificence, māgˈ.nīfˈ.səns, grandeur, splendour.

Magnifico, plu. magnˈ.fīˈ.kōs (Rule xlii.), magnˈ.fīˈ.kōˈ.zē, a Venetian grandee (Italian).

Magnify, māgˈ.nīˈ.fī, to enlarge; magnifies, māgˈ.nīˈ.fīz; magnified (Rule xi.), māgˈ.nīˈ.fīd; magˈ.nīˈ.fi-er; magˈ.nīˈ.fi-able, magˈ.nīˈ.fi-ing.

Latin magnˈ.fīˈ.fiˈ.tōˈ.s, v. magˈ.fīˈ.fiˈ.kō [fāˈkō], to make larger; French magnˈ.fīˈ.cēˈ.s, magnˈ.fīˈ.kō.

Magniloquent (not magnˈ.loˈ.kuˈ.nt), māgˈ.nīˈ.lōˈ.kwənt, pompous in words or style; magnˈ.loˈ.kuˈ.nt-ly;

Magniloquence, māgˈ.nīˈ.lōˈ.kwənsəˈ.k, inflated talk.

Latin magnˈ.loˈ.kuˈ.nēˈ.ts (magˈ.nīˈ.lōˈ.kwənsˈ, "tall" talking).

Magnitude, māgˈ.nīˈ.tūˈ.dō, bulk, size. (Latin magnˈ.īˈ.tūˈ.dō.)
Magnolia, māg'nos.ī.ah, a genus of plants.

Magnoliaceae, māg'nos.ī.ā.sē.ē, the magnolia "order."

Named in honour of Pierre Magnol, professor of botany, at Montpellier, 1633-1715. (-āceae, an order.)

Mag'num (Lat.), a large wine-bottle, two dozen of wine.

Magnum bo'num, a plum, ideal or supreme excellence.

Magpie, māg'.pī, one of the crow tribe. (Lat. maj[or] pica.)

Magyar, māg'.yar, one of the dominant class in Hungary.

The Magyars were the conquerors and founders of the kingdom of Hungary. They came from Central Asia or Scythia, under the leadership of Almus and his son Arpad, and are termed Ugari by the Slaves. The word means "the noble or illustrious."

Maharajah, mah'.har rāj'.jah, a Hindu sovereign or prince.

Mahl-stick, mawl stīk, for painters to rest their right hand on in painting. (German maler-stick, painter’s stick.)

Mahogany, plu. mahogonies, māhōg'.ā.nīz, a wood.

West Indian mahogoni; genus Swietenia mahogani.

Mahometanism, mahōm'.ē.tān.īz, the religious system of Mahomet; Mahometan, māhōm'.ē.tān, a Mussulman, adj. of Mahomet; Mahometanise (Rule xxxi.); māhōm'.ē.tān.īze, to convert to Mahomet’s "faith."

Mahometanised (5 syl.), Mahometanis-ing (Rule xix.)

Mahomet, born at Mecca, in Arabia (571-632).

The "Bible" of Mahomet is called the Koran (q.v.)

The epoch from which Mahometans begin to date is the Hegira or Flight of Mahomet (Friday 16th, 622).

Maid (1 syl.), a female servant. Mād (1 syl.) of the v. *make. *

Maid-servant, plu. maid-servants (not maids-servants);

mas. man-servant, plu. men-servants (not man-servants, see Gen. xii. 16). Maiden, maid"n, a young unmarried woman; maid'en-ly, modest, like a maiden; maid'en-li-ness, maiden-like; maid'en-hood, the state of virginity (-hood, state, condition); maid'en-head, -hed, virginity (-head, state, condition); maid'en speech, one’s first speech; maid'en assize, one at which there is no criminal. Maid'en, a Scotch guillotine.

Old English magth, maeth-hād, maidenhood. The Welsh mag is "the act of nursing"; magwres, a nurse; magur.

Mail (1 syl.) Male (1 syl.), one of the masculine sex.

Mail, scale-armour, tribute, an iron-mould, a post-bag, the letters conveyed by mail, &c.

Mail-clad, clad in mail armour; mailed (1 syl.)

Black-mail, forced tribute paid to freebooters.

Mail-train, mail-coach, mail-packet.
Mailed (1 syl.), sent off by mail; mailable, that may be sent by mail; mailing, preparing for the mail.

"Mail" (armour), French maille; Italian mailia.
"Mail" (tribute), Old English maet; Low Latin mallia = medallia.
"Mail" (an iron mould), Old English mail; Latin macula.
"Mail" (post), French malle, a bag; malle-poste, a post bag.
"Mail," French mâle; Latin masculus.

Main (1 syl.), to cripple, to blemish; maimed (1 syl.), main-ing; maimedness, maim-ed-ness.

Old Fr. mainemier, n. mehâgne; Low Lat. mainemâre, mehemium.

Sea, a large body of water land-locked, as the Baltic-sea, Mediterranean-sea, Black-sea, White-sea, &c.
Ocean, a larger body of water than a sea, and not land-locked, as the Indian, Atlantic, and Pacific oceans.

Main, one of the chief oceans.

Mane, the long neck-hair of a horse, lion, &c.

Main, plu. men, human beings full-grown of the male sex.

Main, chief; main-ly, main-deck, main-keel; main-land, the continent, the chief of an island group; main-mast, main-sail; main-sheets, ropes used for fastening the main-sails. (Sheet, in nautical language, “a rope used in setting a sail”); main-spring, main-stay; main-top, a platform over the head of the mainmast; main-yard.

Old English mægen (from mægan, to be able, our word may). “Main” (hair on the neck of a horse, lion, &c.); German mahne.

Maintain’ (2 syl.), to provide for, to persist in, to preserve; maintained’ (2 syl.), maintain-ing, maintain-er.

Maintenance, main-te-nance, board, support, &c.

Cap-of-maintenance, a cap of dignity once worn by dukes, the lord mayor’s cap of state; maintain-able.

French maintenir (from main tenir, to hold [in the hand].

Magistrate, a justice of the peace.

Majesty, grandeur, dignity. Your Majesty, title of address to a sovereign. The King’s (or Queen’s) most excellent Majesty, title given to royalty in formal documents.

Majestic, ma’djís’tik, stately, like a king; majestical, ma’djís’tik-ále; majestical-ly.

Fr. majesté; Lat. majestas (major, an elder). Henry VIII. was the first Eng. sovereign styled “His Majesty.” James I. added “Sacred” and “Most Excellent” (H. M., Her or His Majesty or Majesty’s).
AND OF SPELLING.

Majolica, ma.jo'l.i.kah, soft enamelled pottery, first introduced into Italy from Majolica [Majorca] in the 12th century.

Major, may'ajor, a military rank above captain and below [lieutenant] colonel, one who has passed his twenty-first birth-day, the greater; major-ship (-ship, office or rank);

Majority, mü'ajor'i.ty, the office or rank of major; the attainment of “full age.”

Major-domo, plu. major-domos, -do'möze, one who rules the house (a corruption of the Spanish mayor-domo).

Major-General, plu. Major-Generals;

Major Interval. Perfect Interval (in Music). “Major Intervals” are the 3rd and 6th, the 2nd and 7th. “Perfect Intervals,” the 8th, 5th, and 4th.

Major key (in Music), that in which all the intervals are either major or perfect. The 4th and 5th are perfect, the other four major.

The major or The major premise, -pré'möss, the first proposition of a syllogism, the second is the minor.

Latin major, comp. of magnus, great, also a mayor or seignior.

Make (1 syl.), past made, past part. made. Maid, a virgin.

Make, to fashion, to fabricate; mák'-ing (Rule xix.), mák'-er; make-shift, a temporary substitute; make-weight, something thrown in to insure good weight.

To make as if, to pretend that.

To make away with, to murder, to destroy, to spend.

To make believe, to pretend.

To make bold, to take the liberty, to dare.

To make for, to direct one’s movement towards.

To make free with, to treat without ceremony.

To make good, to indemnify. To make amends.

To make land, to arrive near land.

To make for land, to steer a ship towards land.

To make light of, to treat with indifference.

To make love to, to pay one’s addresses to.

To make merry, to be joyful.

To make much of, to treat with fondness and respect.

To make out, to understand, to decipher.

To make over, to transfer.

To make sail, to increase a ship’s speed.

To make suit to, to court.

To make shift, to manage under adverse circumstances.
To make sure of, to secure, to feel sure of.
To make up, to collect, to become reconciled.
To make up to, to seek to gain the favour of.
To make way, to give place, to make progress.

Old English magian, past macode, past part. macol, macing.
Mal-, (Lat. prefix), bad, wrong, not; but male-, māl'e-, spiteful.
Malachite, māl'ā.lī.te, a green carbonate of copper.
Greek malakē, a mallow, which it resembles in colour.
Malaco-, māl'ā.ko- (Greek suffix), soft (mālākōs, soft).
Malacology, māl'ā.ko.lī.te, a variety of augite.
Greek mālākos lithos, soft stone.
Malacopter', plu. malacopteri, māl'ā.kop'ter, -tēr, a fish, like the eel, with soft or jointed fins; malacopterous, māl'ā.kop'tē.rōs, adj., pertaining to malacopters.
Greek mālākos ptērōn, [having a] soft wing or fin.
Malacosteon, māl'ā.kōs'tē.ōn, atrophy of the bones.
Greek mālākos ostērōn, soft-bone, a softening of the bones.
Malacostomous, māl'ā.kōs'tō.mūs, soft jawed, i.e., jaws without teeth. (Greek mālākōs stōma, soft mouth.)
Malacostrocan, māl'ā.kōs'tro.ōn, shrimps, lobsters, and other soft-shelled crustaceans.
Malacostraca, māl'ā.kōs'tro.ū.hah, the soft-shelled crustacean genus; malacostracous, māl'ā.kō.s'tro.ūs, adj.
Malacostrology, māl'ā.kōs'tro.lō.gy, the natural history of the crustacean. (Greek mālākōs ostrīkōn; a soft shell.)
Mal-adjustment, māl.ā.djūs't.ment, a wrong adjustment.
French mal'ajūż.ment; Latin male ad justus, not to what is right.
Mal-administration, -ad.mīn'ēs.trāy'shūn, bad management of official duties. (Latin mālus administratio.)
Mal-adroit (Fr.), māl'ā.droit', awkward; mal'adroit'-ness.
French mal a droit, not dexterous (droit = dexter, right-hand).
Malady, plu. maladies, māl'ā.dīz, a sickness, a disease.
Fr. maladie (Lat. malādea, under the spell of a malignant goddess).
Malaga, māl'ā.gah, wine of Magaga grapes; malaga-raisins.
Malaise (Fr.), māl'ā.zēz, undefinable restlessness and discomfort.
Malapert. Impertinent. Saucy.
Malapert, māl'ā.pert', flippant, too free spoken.
Welsh pert, pert, smart, with mal[ai], in a bad sense.
Impertinent, meddling with what does "not pertain" to you, Saucy, rudely insolent. (French sauc, Latin salsus, salted.) "Sauce" means salt, and "saucy" means spicy in a bad sense,
Mal-apropos (Fr.), mäil.ap'prö.pō, not to the point, unseasonable.

Malar, mäy'lar, pertaining to the cheek. Mölar [teeth].

"Malar," Latin mäla, the cheek-bone: Greek melon.

"Molar," Latin mälaris, a grinder (möla, a mill).

Malaria, mäil.air'ri.ah, bad exhalations productive of fevers; malarial, mäil.air'ri.äl; malarious, mäil.air'ri.üüs.

Italian mala aria, bad air.

Mal-content, one who does not approve [of a measure proposed].
Discontent, positive dissatisfaction.

Uncontented, absence of contentment (Rule lxxii.)

French méccontent; Latin male contentus, ill-contented.

Mäle (1 syl.) Mail, [armour, for letters]. Mall, mül or mawl.

Male, of the masculine sex. Female, of the feminine sex.

These are used as gender words also: as male-child, female-child; male descendant, female descendant; male donkey, female donkey, male or bull elephant, female or cow elephant; male servant, female servant; heir male, heir female, plu. heirs male, heirs female.

"Male," French mâle (masle); Latin masculus (mas, a man).

Male-, mäle- (Lat. prefix), lawless, spiteful; mal-, wrong, not.

Male-diction, mäl.ë-dëk'shün, malicious-speaking, execration, curse. (Latin mâledictio, mâle dicere.)

Male-factor (Rule xxxvii.), a criminal, a doer of evil deeds.

Latin mâlefactor (male facto, to do lawless deeds).

Malevolent, mâl.ëv'ë.lent, spiteful; malevolent-ly.

Malevolence, mâl.ëv'ë.lense, spite, malignity.

Latin mâlevolentia (male volens, wishing spitefully).

Malfeasance, mâl.fëy'sance (not mâlfee'zance), an unlawful act.

French mäfaisance; Lat. mâlefactum (mâle factum, to do evil).

Malic, mäy'lik, obtained from apples. Malice, mäl.iss, spite.

Mälic acid, found in many fruits but especially in apples.

Malice, mäl.iss, spite. (Mälic, see above.) Malicious, mäl.ësh'ës; malicious-ly, malicious-ness; malice prepense, mäl.'iss prepense', malicious, instigating a malicious deed.

French mälice; Lat. mâlitia, mâlliōsus (mālus, bad).

Malignity, plu. malignities, mâl.ëg'mitëz, unprovoked malice.

Malignancy, mâl.ëg'nün.sy, bitter hostility.

Malign, mâl.ën', to defame; malign'd, mâl.ëned; malign- ing, mâl.ën.ïng; malign-er, mâl.ën.ër; malign-ly.

Lat. mâlignitas, mâlignus (mālus, evil); Fr. mâlignité, mâlin.

Malkin, mül'kin or mawl'kin, a scare-crow, an oven mop.

Shakespeare speaks of "the kitchen malkin" or scullery wench, The word is a diminutive of Moll ("Moll-kin").
Mal, māl [or maul]. Maul, to beat. Male [sex]. Mail [bag].
Mal, a heavy wooden beetle. Maul, to beat; mauled, maul'-ing, maul'-er.
Malleable, māl'.lē.ā.bi, capable of being spread out by hammering; mal‘laceable-ness. Malleability, māl'.lē.ā.bi.tˈl.ɪ.ty.
Malleation, māl'.lē.ā'.shün; malleate, māl'.lē.ate, to hammer out; malleat-ed (R. xxxvi.), malleat-ing (R. xix.)
Malleolar, māl'.lē.ə.lær, belonging to the ankle; mal‘leolus (in Bot.), a hammer-shaped slip.
Mallet, māl'.lēt, a wooden hammer.
Latin malleus, v. malleäre; French malleabilité, malleable.

Mallard, fem. wild duck, both wild-fowl. (French malart.)
Mallow, māl'.lo, a plant. (Old Eng. mālu or mālve; Lat. malva.)
Malmsy, māhm'.zy, a sweet wine. (Malvasia, in Greece.)
Malpighian, māl.pīg'.lən, certain secreting tubes in the kidneys, &c.; Malpighian cones or pyramids; Malpighian capsules, -k dép'-sūles; ... corpuscles, -k dép'-sūs'-kūlēs.
Named after the anatomist Malpighi, by whom they were discovered.
Malpractice, māl.præk'tis, illegal or immoral conduct.
Latin mālus praxis (Greek pratto, to do); French pratique.
Malt, mōlt (not mawlt), barley prepared for brewing, to convert grain into malt; malt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), malt'-ing; malt'-ster (-ster, not a gender affix, R. lxii.); malt-dust, siftings of malt; malt'-liquor, -lik' er, ale, beer; malt'-man.
Old Eng. mealt or mawl; mealt-hūs, malt-house; mealt-wort, wort.
Maltese, māl'teɛz, sing. and plu., a native of Malta; pertaining to Malta; brought from Malta. (Names of people in -ese are sing. and plu. as Chinese, Portuguese, Siamese, &c.)
Malta, a contraction of Mēdana.
Malthusian, māl.thūs.ən, adj. of Malthus, who said that population should be checked, as its increase was greater than the increase of supply, consequently early marriages should be discouraged. ("Essay on Population").
Maltreat, māl.tréet', to use roughly. Ill-treat, to treat ill.
Maltreat-ed, māl.tréet'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); maltreat'-ing, maltreat'-ment. Ill-treated, ill-treat-ing, ill-treat-ment.
Maltreat refers to physical ill-usage, rough handling, &c.
Illtreat refers to more serious ill-usage, and of a wider range.
Old English yfel trah[tian]; French mal traiter, mal [mauvais] traitement; Latin male tractäre, to handle badly.

Malversation, māl'.ver.say'.shün, improper conduct.
French malversation; Latin male versari, to behave badly, versatio.
Mamaluke, mām'.lē.lāk, the chief military force of Egypt, destroyed in 1811 by Mohammed Ali. (Arab. mumluc, a slave.)
Mamma. The compounds of this word are very irregular.

1. Mamelon, one m followed by e. (French mamelon.)
2. Mamilla, one m followed by i. (Latin mamilla.)
3. Mamma, mammal, mammalia, mammalogy, double m followed by a. (Latin mamma.)
4. Mammifer, mammiform, mammillary, double m followed by i. (Latin mammillaris.)

† Mamelon, māmˈɛ.lōn, a slightly rising ground.
   A French error. The word ought to be manillon, Latin mamilla, a little breast. French mamelon, a nipple, the pap of a mountain.

† Mamilla, mā.mɪˈlə (in Bot.), little granular protuberances in the pollen of certain plants; mamillated, mā.mɪˌləˌtəd, having mamilla.
   Latin mamilla, pl. mamillae, diminutive of mamma.

‡ Mamma, māmˈmə (in Med.), a nipple, mamˈnə,m, mother; mamma (mother) is often contracted into ma, mə.
   This word used in the sense of "Mother" was introduced by the Normans and used to be limited to the families of the Norman gentry. The lower orders being Saxons retained their own word "mother," still prevalent with the peasantry.

Mammal, māmˈməl, an animal that suckles its young.

Mammalia, māmˈməl.ˌi.ə, the mammal class. 'Mamma'lian, adj. of mammal. Mammary, māmˈmər.ˌri, adj. of mamma, a pap. (Latin mamma.)

Mammaliferous, māmˈməl.ˌɪr.əˌrəs, containing fossil remains of mammals. Mammiferous, having breasts.
   Latin mammalio fero, I carry mammals.

Mammalogy (not mammalogy), māmˈməl.ˌəˌɡi, that branch of Natural History which treats of mammalia.
   Greek mamma logos, treatise about mothers.

¶ Mammifer, māmˈmər.ˌfər, an animal that has breasts; mammiferous, having breasts; but Mammaliferous, containing fossil remains of mammals.
   French mammifère; Latin mamma féro.

Mammiform, māmˈmər.ˌfɔr.m, shaped like paps.
   French mammiformes; Latin mamma formas.

Mammillary, māmˈmər.ˌləˌri, pertaining to or resembling the breast; mammillated, māmˈmər.ˌləˌtəd, having small nipples.
   French mamillaire (one m is preferable, as the Latin word is manilla, with one l). (The abnormal forms "mamelon," "mammifer," "mammiform," etc., we owe, as usual, to the French.)
   Latin mamma, a breast, a pap; Greek mamma, mother.
Mammet, məmˈmɛt, a puppet; mammetry, məmˈmɛtɹɪ, corruption of Mahomet and Mahometry, idolatry.

This is a curious instance of prejudice and perversion. Idolatry and all forms of idols are absolutely forbidden in the koran, but in the middle ages Mahometanism became the synonym of false religion, and as idolatry is the most prevalent form of false religion, the two words got confounded.

Mammon, məmˈmɒn, wealth; mam‘mon-ist, one whose whole pursuit is the accumulation of money. (Chaldee mammon.)

Mammoth, məmˈməθ, the great fossil elephant of Siberia. Russian mamant; Hebrew behemoth.

Män, plu. män, (fem.) wom’an; plu. women, wɪmˈmən; v. to furnish with men, to set a guard; manned, mænd; mann’-ing (Rule i.); mann’-ish (-ish added to nouns means like, added to adj. it is dim.); man-less.

Man’-ful (Rule viii.), man’ful-ly, man’ful-ness.

Man’-ly, man’li-ness (Rule xi.); man’-hood (-hood, state, condition); man-kind (-kind, race).

Man-of-straw, plu. mén... , one who has no money to back his engagements, a man that exists only on paper.

Man of war, plu. men of war, a war-ship.

Man at arms, plu. men at arms, formally applied to the heavy armed military.

Manacle, mænˈ.ə.kəl (only one n, it is no comp. of man), a shackle for the hands; (Fetter, a shackle for the feet); to shackle the hands; manacled, mænˈ.ə.kəld.

The spelling of these words is disgraceful. The French have avoided the absurdity of a second a in their word manacles.

Latin mānícula, mānīca, dim. of mānus, but mānāicus, means the orb of the moon. (Greek mēntiaios.)

Manage, mænˈ.æ.ʒ’, to contrive, to direct. Manege, mænˈnæje’, the management and training of horses in riding-schools.

Man’aged, (2 syl.), mænˈæg-ɪŋ (Rule xix.); mænˈæg-ər;

Man’age-able (-æ and -g retain tho - e before -able, R. xx.); man’age-able-ness, man’ageably; man’agement (only -g and -ue drop the - e before -ment, Rule xviii.)

Fr. ménager, ménagement; Low Lat. menagium, a household; Lat. manère, to abide. We have the law-term messe, a house, &c.
Manakin, मानिकिन, a genus of small birds. Man'ikin, a dwarf.

Manchho (not Mantchoo), माँचहूँ, the language of Manchooria, spoken at the court of China.

Mandamus (Lat.), मांडेमस (not मांडेरमस), a writ issued by the Court of Queen’s Bench in the sovereign’s name.

So called from the first word Mandéman we, [the Queen] command...

Mandarin, मांडारिन, a Chinese magistrate or governor.

Spanish mandarín (mandar, to command, Latin mandáre).

Mandate, मांडेट. Command, कम्मांडः.

A mandate is a written order or rescript (manu datus, “given under hand” and seal). Command is an order by word of mouth or otherwise.

Mandatory, मांडेटरी. Mandatory, मांडेटरी.

Mandatory, ज्ञातारी; containing a mandate or commission.

Mandator (Latin), मांडेटोर, one who gives a mandate.

Latin mandatorius, a mandatory, mandator, mandatum, mandare.

Mandible, मांडिबल, the jaw of a bird, insect, or cuttle-fish; mandibular, मांडिब्लुरल, pertaining to the jaw; mandibulate, मांडिब्लुटेट, having mandibles.

Lat. mandibulum, the jaw-bone; mandibuläris (v. mandère, to chew).

Mandolin, मांडोलिन, a small cithern played with a quill.

French mandoline; Italian mandola; Portuguese mandola.

Mandrakor, मांड्राकॉर, Latin for mandrake (q.v.)

Mandrake, मांड्रेक, a plant (corruption of mandrákora).

The first syllable has no connexion with the Anglo-Saxon word man.

Greek mandragóras; French mandragore; Italian mandragola.

Mandrel, मांड्रेल, the revolving shank of a lathe to which turners fix their work, a round bar on which plumbers form tubing. (Fr. mandrin; Lat. manubrium, a handle.)

Mandrill (Fr.), मांड्रिल, species of monkey. Spand’rel (in Arch.)

Mâne (1 syl.), hair on the neck of a horse, &c. Main, chief; mäned (1 syl.), having a mane. Manned, mänd.

Manège, मानेज, the training of horses. Man’age, to direct.

French manège, exercice qu’on fait faire à un cheval pour le dresser.

Manege, मानेज, heu où l’ on exerce les chevaux pour les dresser, also the tricks and gambols taught to horses trained for a circus.

“Manage,” Low Lat. manegium, a household; Lat. manere, to abide.

Manes, मानेज, ghosts, spirits of the dead. (Latin manes.)

Man’-ful (Rule viii.), man’ful-ly, man’ful-ness. (See Man.)
Manganese, män' ĕ. gā'ı. neez', a metal; the black ore is called the black oxide of manganese; manganian, män' ĕ. gā'ı. neez'-zı. ān, pertaining to or consisting of manganese.

Manganesium, män' ĕ. gä. neez'-zı. ūm, the metal manganese.

Manganesia, män' ĕ. gä. neez'-zı. ıh, the oxide of manganesium.

Manganic [acid], män' ĕ. găn. ık... obtained from manganesium.

Manganate, män' ĕ. gă. nātē (-ate, denotes a salt formed by the union of [manganic] acid with a base).

Manganite, män' ĕ. gæ. nitē (-ite denotes a fossil or ore), it is a grey oxide of manganese.

French manganése, qu'on dérive de magnès, parce qu'on confondait autrefois le manganése oxyde avec la pierre d'almants.

Mango, mänj, the scab or itch in dogs, &c.; mang'-y, scabby; mang'ı. ness (Rule xL)

French dé-mangeler, v. démanger, to itch.

Mang'ı. el. wur'zel (not mangold), a field root. Man'gle, to mutilate.

The roots are called mangels, not mangel-wurzels.

German mangel wurzel, scarcity root. Eaten by man in times of scarcity as a substitute for bread, as well as by cattle.

Manger, män' ĕ. djer, a fixed feeding-trough for horses and cattle.

French mangeoire, v. manger, to eat; Latin manducare, to chew.

Mangle, män' ĕ. gl, a calendar. Mangel, män' ĕ. gèl, a root.

Mangle, to mutilate, to calender; mangled, män' ĕ. géd; mangling, män' ĕ. gling; man'gler.

German mangel, v. mangeln, both senses; Lat. mango, a regrater who polishes up articles for sale, hence "to scratch," to mutilate. The French mangle is the mangrove.

Mango, plu. mangoes (Rule xlii.), a tree and its fruit.

Mangos marum, in the Talmud language of India.

Mangrove, män' ĕ. grovē, an Indian tree which forms dense groves.

The tree is the Mangle (Malay), but The mangle-grove, and the Mangle-tree have got confounded.

Mania, mā. ni. ah, a warping of the judgment and that ungovernable enthusiasm consequent on some great excitement, as war, drink, politics, and so on. Hence the mania for some new fashion, book, idea, "lion."

Mon' cо-ма' nia, a mental delusion on one special subject.

Maniac, mā. ni. āk, a madman; maniacal, mā. ni. ā. kāl.

Mad'ness, a state of mental excitement in which both memory and judgment are overmastered.

Insan' ity, an unhealthy state of mind in which the judgment is too feebly to assert itself, but the passions are not violent.

Lu'nacy, a term for any mental aberration, chiefly confined to legal documents and institutions: as Commissioners in Lunacy, Masters in Lunacy, Lunatic Asylums, and so on.

Frenzy, inflammation of the cerebral membrane, inducing fever and mental disturbance.

“Mania,” Greek μάνια (v. maindima, to be overexcited).
“Madness,” Old English ge-mađ.
“Insanity,” Latin in sāntas, want of healthiness [of mind].
“Lunacy,” moon-struck; Latin luna, the moon.

“Frenzy,” Greek phrēn-itis, inflammation of the mind.”

Manichean, mān′.i.che, pertaining to Manēs and his doctrines, a disciple of Manēs the Persian philosopher.

Manes taught that there are two supreme principles, Light and Darkness. The former the author of all good, the latter of all evil.

Manifest, mān′.if'est, apparent, to make manifest, to declare; manifest-ed (R. xxxvi.), manifest-ing, manifest-ible.

 Manifestation, mān′.if'es-tay′.shun; manifest-ly.

 Manifesto, plu. manifestoes (Rule xliii.), mān′.if'es.ā′.tē, a written declaration of motives, before commencing war.

 Latin manifestus, manifestāre, supine manifestatūm; French mani- festé, manifesté, manifestation; Italian manifesto.

 Manifold, mān′.if.old (not mēn′.if.old), oft repeated, complicated; manifold-ly; manifold-writer, -rite′.er, an apparatus for taking several copies of a writing at once.

 Many is pronounced mā′.n.y, and so are its compounds, many-headed, many-handed, &c., but manifold is not so pronounced.

 Man′.i.kin, a little man (used in contempt). Manakin, a baboon.

 Manilla, mā.n'il.lah, a ring or bracelet worn by Africans, a piece of money shaped like a horse-shoe, used in Africa, a coarse fabric woven from cocoa or palm fibre.

 Manilla cheroot, mā.n'il.lah she.root′, a delicate cigar.

 “Manilla” (a ring, &c.), Spanish manilla (Latin mā′.nus, a hand).

 “Manilla” (cloth, &c.), Manilla, one of the Philippine islands.

 Maniple, mā.n′.p.pl′, a small band of soldiers; manipular, ma.- nīp′.ā.tar, adj. of maniple.

 Manipulate, mā.nīp′.ā.late, to work up with the hands; manipula-ted (Rule xxxvi.), manipula-t-ing.

 Manipulation, mā.nīp′.ā.lay′.shun, work done by the hand; manipulative, mā.nīp′.ā.čala′.tiv; manipula-tive-ly.

 Manipulator; manipulatory, mā.nīp′.ā.ča.lt′.v.

 “Maniple,” Lat. mānīpūlāris, mānīpūlāris (mānus pīco, to fill a hand).

 “Manipulate,” Fr. manipulate, manipulation, manipulateur (Lat. manus pīco, to ply with the hand), a badly compounded word.

 Manitous, mān′.i.too, the spirits or gods of the Amer. Indians.

 Manna, mān′.nah, food, a drug. Man′.ner, method (q.v.)

 Mannite, mān′.nite, sugar of the drug manna.

 “Manna” (the drug), corrupt for mana, Latin manāre, to flow.
Manners, way, method. Manna, a drug. Manor, an estate.
Mannerism, mān'ner-ism, imitation of others or of oneself,
a uniform speciality of style; manner-ist.
Manner-ly, well-behaved; man'nerli-ness (Rule xi.)
In a manner, to a certain degree. (French manière.)

Manœuvre, mān'œv'r, management with artifice, tactics, to move troops or ships, to exercise men in tactics;
manœuvred, ma.nœu'verd; manœuvring, ma.nœu'vr-ing;
manœuvrer, ma.nœu-ver, one who acts with artifice.
French manœuvre, manœuvrer (main œuvre, hand work).

Manometer, mā.nō'me-ter, an instrument for measuring the density [or rarity] of air from its elasticity; manometrical, mān'o.mē'tri-kāl; manoscope, mān'o.skō pe.
(Except in tele-scope and panta-scope the vowel before -scope is always o-, Rule lxxiii.)

Gk. manos metron, measure of rarity, manos scopeo, I view the rarity.

Manor, mān'or. Manner, mān'ner. Manna, mān'nah.

Manor, the estate which a feudal lord held in possession for the use of his household; manorial, ma.nōr'ri-al; manor-house, the house occupied by the feudal lord;
lord of the manor, the proprietor of the manor.
Fr. manoir; Low Lat. manerium, manerialis (Lat. manere, to abide).
“Manner,” Fr. manière. “Manna,” Heb. man hū? what is this?

Mansard roof, the curb roof, devised by Mansard the Fr. architect.

Manser (1 syl.), the dwelling-house of a Scotch clergyman.

Mansion, mān'shun, a grand house or hall.

Manorial, man'shul, a parsonage. mansum, a mansion (Latin manere, supine mansum, to abide).

Manslaughter, mān sla'wer, the killing of a human being in sudden heat without previous malice; man-slay'er.

Manse, mān'shul, a robe, to robe. Mantle, mān'tl, a robe.

Mantelpiece, -pice, the frame of a fire-place; mantel-shelf, plu. mantel-shelves, -shelv-es, the shelf above a mantel-piece. (Latin mantellium or mantèle, a mantle.)

Mantilla, mān'til-lah, a Spanish scarf. (Spanish mantilla.)

Mantis, plu. mantises, a genus of insects. (Gk. mantis, a prophet.)

The word is applied by Theocritus to the cicada. Idyl. x. 18. The ture mantises are called the praying insects, because their front legs are folded together as hands are folded in prayer.

Mantle, mān'tl, a robe, to robe. Mantel [of a fire-place].

Mantled, mān'tld; mant-ling, investing, spreading over.

Latin mantile, mantèle, mantellium or mantellum.
Mantua-maker, mantua maker, a lady's dressmaker.

French mantiau; Italian mantia; Latin mantia; a mantle. The derivation from Mantua, in Italy, is mere trifling.

Manual, man'.ául (not maniaul), a small hand-book, done by the hand, as manual labour; man'.aul-ly.

Sign-manual, sine man'.ául, the royal signature.

Latin manuialis; French manuial (wrong); manus, the hand.

Manufacture, man'.á*sin'tu'ar, articles made by machinery, to make articles by machinery.

Manufacturer, man'.á*sin'tu'ar-er, one who manufactures; manufactory, man'.á*sin'tu'ar-y (or factory), the place where articles are manufactured; manufactured, man'.á-.sin'tu'ar-ed; manufacturing, man'.á*sin'tu'ar-ing.

French manufacture, v. manufacturers, manuacter (Latin manus facère, to make by the hand).

Manumit, man'.á*mit', to emancipate; man'umitt'ed (R. xxxvi.), man'umitt'ing; manumission, man'.á*mis'sun.

Latin manumissio, manumitto (manus mittire, to send from one's hand, that is, not to hold in hand any longer).

Manure, mân'.nú're', dung for the soil, to put manure in the soil; manured' (2 syl.); manuring, mân'.nú're'ing; manur'ing.

Manure means “hand-work,” French main-euvre (tillage by) hand-labour. So Milton uses the word “Yon flowering arbours... with branches overgrown, that mock our scant manuring” (handy-work).

Manuscript, a literary production in writing; contracted into MS. sing., MSS. plu. (Lat. manus scriptum, written by hand).

Manx, sing. and plu., the language of the Isle of Man, a native of the isle, produced in the isle, peculiar to the isle: as a Manx-cat. Manx-man, plu. Manx-men, The Manx.

The name of a people ending in -sh, -ch soft, or -s, have two plurals, one collective by placing The before the word: as The Manx, The English, The Scotch, and the other partitive by adding -men: as 2, 3... Manx-men, English-men, Scotch-men, &c.

Many, men'.y, (comp.) more, (super.) most, a great number;

Much, (comp.) more, (super.) most, a great quantity.

The many, the multitude, Mani-fold, man'.á*fold* (not mën'.á*.)

Many a one, Many a day, Many an April, Many a man, &c.

[1] The indef. art. a, which usually stands before the adjective comes after “many,” “what,” “such”: What a piece of work is man! Such a Roman. Many a man and many a maid (Milton).

[2] If too, so, how, or as precedes the adj. the article is again removed and placed between the adj. and its noun: as too great an honour, so excellent a man, how large a letter, as strange a compound as...

[3] If great precedes “many,” the article is placed before great: as a great many men.

“Manifold” is the only compound of “many” which changes -y into -i, and sounds the first vowel as a, not e. This arises from a blundering association of the word with mani-fest, mani-kin, mani-ple, &c., with which it has no connection.

Compounds of many-: many-cleft, many-coloured, many-cornered, many-flowered, many-headed, many-leaved, many-legged, many-leagued, many-lettered, many-mastered, many-parted, many-peopled, many-petaled, many-sided, many-toned, many-tribed, many-twinkling, many-valved, many-veined, many-voiced, &c., &c.

"Many," "Much," are neither of them from the same root as more, most, but are positives supplied.

"Many" is Old Eng. wenneg, a multitude, whence wenig or manig.

"Much" is Old English wicwil, wiccel, or wiccel, great, much.

"More," "Most," are the degrees of mág or mag, the root of magen or magi̇n, strength, (comp.) mág-re, (super.) mág-est (ma're, m'ost).

Maori, ma'y'torì, one of the natives of New Zealand, adj.

Māp, a chart, to draw a map; mapped, ma'pt; mapp'-ing (R. i.); mapp'-er. Map [of the land]. Chart [of the sea].

Latin mappa: French mappemonde, a map of the world.

Maple, ma'yj'tl, a tree; maple-tree; maple-sugar, -shoom'ar.

Old English mapel-treo or mapul-treo, mapeld-crn, a maple-grove.

Mār, to injure; marred (1 syl.), marr'-ing (Rule i.) Mars.

Old English merri̇ian, past marrde, to obstruct, to scatter, to corrupt.

Marabūt, ma'h'rah.boot, one of the royal priesthood of Barbary, Guinea, &c., greatly venerated by the Moslem negro.

The Great Marabūt ranks next to the king.

Arabic marbouth, a cenobite or religious devotee.

Marabout, ma'h'rah.boot, a plume made of the wing or tail feathers of the marabou stork.

Marabout hat, a hat with marabout feathers.

Maranatha, mar'r'amay"'rah, may the Lord come quickly [to take vengeance] 1 Cor. xvi. 22.

Maraschino, ma'r'rás.kee"'no, a liqueur made from cherries.

It is made of the marascz cherry of Dalmatia.

Marauder, ma'r'au'der, a plunderer, a freebooter;

Maraud', to plunder; maraud'-ed (R. xxxvi.), maraud'-ing. French marauder, maraudeur.

Maravedi, ma'h'ra.vä"'de, a Spanish coin less than a farthing.

Marble, ma'r'bl, a calcareous stone, a plaything, to colour in imitation of marble; marbled, ma'r'bl'd; marbling, mar'bler, ma'r'bley, marble-cutter, marble-mill, marble-quarry; marble-works, -wurks; marble-worker, &c.

Arundelian marbles, a.rsün.dee'blän mar'bl'z, certain statues and busts purchased by Lord Arundel of W. Petty, and given to the Oxford University in 1627.

Elgin marbles, Elg'.in (-g- hard, not El.jin), fragments of Athenian statuary collected by Thomas Lord Elgin, in 1802, and purchased for the British Museum in 1816.

French marbre; Latin marmor, v. marmbrāre.

March, ma'rtch, the third month of the year, military step, a military journey, to move with a march; marched (1 syl.), marching, marching-ly. Forced march.
Mad as a March hare, wild and disorderly as a hare in the rutting season. Marsh, a meadow.
"March" (the month); Latin Martius, Mars, the Roman war-god.
"March" (to walk); Fr. marcher; Low Lat. marchiare.
"Marsh" (a meadow); Old English mere, mere-land.
Marches, marsh'es, frontier-lands, march' es, journeys, doth march. Marshes, marsh'es, meadows. March-er, marsh'er, warder of a frontier, march'er, one who marches.
Riding the marches, walking the bounds of a parish.
Marchioness, mar' shôn. ess, wife of a marquis, a lady who has the rank of a marchioness.
The Medieval Latin word for "marquis" is marchio, and for "marchioness" marchionissa. We have taken the French "marquise" for the man, and the Low Latin word for the woman.
"Marches" (frontier-lands); Old Eng. mere, mere-land, borderland.
"Mashes" (meadows); Old English mere, mere-land, meadowland.
Mare (1 syl.), fem. of stallion, stãl'yên, (both) horse (1 syl.), a quadruped. Mayor, mair, (fem.) mayoress, mair' ess.
Night-mare, nite'mare, an incubus; plu. night-mares.
Mare's nest, mairz nest, a fancied discovery which turns out to be no discovery at all.
Mare's tail, a marsh plant. Mare's tails, streaky clouds.
"Mayor," Spanish mayor, mayora; French maire; Latin major.
"Night-mare," Old English mere-fiec or nift mere.
"Mare's tail" is not the same plant as "Horse's tail," the former is equisétum, a cryptogam, and the latter Hippurítes, a monognotus plant. The habitat of the former is a moist shady spot, such as woods and plantations, of a latter, ditches or ponds.
Maréchal, mar'ra.shâl, the highest military title in France.
Marshal, mar' sheil, chief officer of arms. (See Marshal.)
Marischal College (Aberdeen'), mar' sheil colledge.
Founded in 1593 by George Keith, fifth earl of Marischal.
"Marchal," Low Latin mareschallus; Anglo-Saxon mere-secule, master of the horse.
Margaric, mar'gär'rik, pertaining to pearls or to margarine.
Margarine, mar'gär.in, the pearly solid portion of oil or fat (-ine denotes a simple substance or element).
Margarate, mar'gär.ate, a compound of margaric acid with a base (-ate denotes a salt formed by the union of an acid in -ic with a base. -ic means "most highly oxidised.") Margarite, mar'gär.ite, pearl-mica (-ite denotes a fossil, an ore, a mineral). Margaret, a woman's name.
Marguerite, mar.gwe.reet, the large field daisy.
Latin margárita; Greek margúritês, a pearl, the white daisy.
Margin, mar'rijin, the border; marginal, mar'rijin-al; placed in the margin, pertaining to the margin; mar'ginal-ly; marginate, mar'rijin-ate, to set off with a good margin; mar'ginat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), mar'ginat-ing (Rule xix.)

Latin margo, gen. marginis, marginalis, v. marginare.

Margrave, fem. margravine, mar'grave, mar'graven, a German title, similar in origin to our marquis, that is the lord warden of a march or frontier; margraviate, mar'graven-ate (not mar'gravenate), the territory over which a margrave has jurisdiction.

German markgraf, markgréfin, markgréfschaft. Our words are from the French, and both destroy the character of the word (markgraf, count or earl of the marches) by omitting k or c, and changing graf (earl) into grave. French margrave, margravial.

Marie Louise, mah'ri lee lou', a pear.

So named by the Abbé Duguesne, in honour of Marie Louise, Archduchess of Austria, second wife of Napoleon I.

Marigold, mar'ri. gold, a flower; marigold-window, also called a Catherine-wheel window, a rosace (rúzaré) or rose window, a large round church window, especially used in “lady chapels.” Marygold, £100,000.

“Mary” is “Mary,” the Virgin, mother of Jesus Christ.

Marine, mar'ri enn, pertaining to the sea; marine-engine, -en'gin; marine-glue, -glu; marine-soap, -sope; marine-stores, -stores (1 syl.), old odds and ends of ship stores.

Mariner, mar'ri ner, a seaman; mar'iner's compass.

The pronunciation tells us we have taken the word from the French, and both destroy the character of the word (markgraf, count or earl of the marches) by omitting k or c, and changing graf (earl) into grave. French margrave, margravial.

Marilata, mar'ri lat'ri, the Virgin; mariloter, mar'ri lat'er, a worshipper of Mary.

Latin Maria; Greek Marias; French Marie.

Marinorama, mar'ri nor'rma, mah, sea views on the plan of a panorama or diorama.

A wretched hybrid, Latin mérinus, Greek horánbs, marine views; “pelagorama,” pél'ág o rám, mah, would be Greek.

Marionette (Fr.), mar'ri net', a puppet; marionettes, -netz.

So called from Marion, an Italian, who introduced them into France in the reign of Charles IX.

Marital, mar’ri tál, pertaining to a husband. (Latin märítális.)

Maritime, Marine, mar’ri tim, mar’ri en.

Maritime, bordering on the sea, connected with sea matters, as maritime town, maritime affairs, maritime laws.

Marine, produced in the sea, belonging to the sea, thrown up by the sea, enjoying sea views or breezes: as marine productions, marine shells, marine parade, &c.

Marjoram, mar’ri jor’am (not -rum), an aromatic herb.

A corrupt form of the Latin majoran[a], German majora.

The French form marjolaine is even worse than our own.
AND OF SPELLING.

Mark, a token, a symbol, a coin = 13s. 4d.; to make a mark; marked (1 syl.), mark'-ing, mark'-er.

Marksman, one who shoots at a mark or object.

Trade-mark, a symbol used by merchants to identify their goods.  To mark down, to mark off, to mark out.

Marc, refuse of fruit from which the juice has been extracted.

Marquee, mar'kee', a large field-tent.

Market, a place of mart, to deal; mark'et-ed (Rule xxxvi.); mark'et-ing.  Mark'et-ings, goods brought home from market.  Mark'et-able, marketable-ness.

Market-bell, rung at the opening and closing of market;

Market-cross, market-place, market-house, market-day;

Market-gardener, one who rears and sells fruits and vegetables for the public market; market-geld;

Market-penny, a percentage taken by those who sell goods for another; market-price, the price charged for goods at market; market-town, a town in which a public market is held; market-man, plu. market-men;

Market-woman, plu. market-women, -'wim'n, one who attends market to sell her wares.

German markt, markt-tag, market-day, market-geld.

Marl, lime with clay and mould; to manure with marl; marl'd (1 syl.), marl'-ing, marl'-y; clay-marl, where the clay predominates; marl-clay, where the lime predominates; shell-marl, marl containing fresh-water shells; marl-stone; marlaceous (Rule lxvi.), mar'lay'shē'əs.

Welsh marl, marliog, marly; marliad, a marling.

Marline, mar'lin, twine for twisting round cables to preserve them; marl, to bind with marline; marled (1 syl.)

Marl'ing-hitch, a hitch used in marling a rope.

Marling-spike, an iron prong used for a fid, &c.

Spanish merlin; French merlin; German marling, marlien; -line (of "marline") is a blunder for lién, a bond.

Marmalade (not marmelade), mar'ma.laid, a preserve of Seville oranges, a conserve of quinces, &c.

The word ought to be marmelade, as it comes from the Portuguese word marmelo, a quince; marmelad, conserve of quinces; Spanish marmelada; French marmelade.

Marmoset, mar'mōsēt, smallest of the monkey tribe.

French marmouset (marmotter, to chatter).  The little chatterer.

Marmot, mar'mōt, the Alpine rat.  (French marmotte.)
Maroon, mā'roon'. Morone, morōne', a mulberry colour.

Maroon', a chestnut colour, a free negro-slave escaped to the woods, to leave a sailor on a desolate shore; ma'rooned' (2 syl.), maroon'-ing, maroon'-er.

A corruption of the Spanish cimarron, an unruly man or beast.

"Maroon" (chestnut colour), French marron, a chestnut.

"Morone" (mulberry colour), Lat. morum, Gk μορός, a mulberry.

Marplot, mar'plot, one who spoils a plan by interference.

Marquee, mark. Marc. Marquee, mar.kee' (q.v.)

Marque, licence given to a subject in time of war to make reprisals on an enemy's chattels; letters of marque, licence granted to a private person in time of war to seize the ships or goods of an enemy.

Marc, the residuum of fruit after the juice has been expressed.

Mark, a symbol, a token, to make a mark.

Teutonic mærk, mærche, mearc, a frontier; the licence was first granted to those living on frontiers who, being especially subject to depredations, were permitted to make reprisals.

Marquee, mar.kee', a large field tent. (French marquise.)

Marquetry, mar.kwé.try, ornamental inlaid work in furniture.

French marqueterie, v. marquer, to variegate.

Marquis, fem. marchioness, a title next below a duke.

Fr. marquis; Low Lat. marchionissa. Low Lat. for "marquis" is marchio. We have taken the French word for the man, and the Med. Latin word for the woman. A marquis was originally a warden of a mearc or mearc (a frontier).

Marriage, mār'rāje, the consummation of a wedding.

Wedding, the act of uniting in marriage.

Nuptials, nupt.shē'als, the wedding ceremony.

Espousals, es.pŏw'zals, the consummation of a betrothal.

Marriage-able, mar'rāge.ă.b'l (-ce and -ge: retain the -e before -able, Rule xx.); marriage-con'tract.

Marry, mār'ry, to unite by marriage; married, mār'rēd; mar'ry-ing. Marry! an oath (By Mary!).

Marital, mār'rel-lăl, pertaining to a husband. (Lat. mārtīlālis.)

Matrimony, mat'rŏ.mŏn.y (q.v.); matrimonial, &c.

Latin māter, mother.

It is disgraceful that a double r should be used in these words; in bury, where the r is under precisely similar circumstances, we have not doubled the r.

The Latin words are māritis, v. māritāre (from mas, gen. māris, one of the male kind); the word marrō (with double r) means a pickaxe or mattock.

We stand alone in this absurdity: thus, Fr. mariage, mariable, v.
marier; Ital. maritare, maritaggio; Span. marridable, marridade, marridar; Low Lat. maritatum, &c. And we ourselves have only one r in marital. The only excuse for doubling the r in "marry" is to distinguish it from the proper name Mary.
AND OF SPELLING. 631

Mars, marz, the Roman war-god, the planet between "Earth" and "Jupiter," 3rd sing. pres. ind. of the v. mar (Lat. Mars).

Marsala, mar.su'lah, a Sicilian white wine. (Marsala, Sicily.)

Marseillaise (The), mar'.sē.lāz (not mar'.sūl.yāz), a French revolutionary song by Rouget de Lisle, 1792.

Marsh, plu. marshes, a meadow; marsh'-y, marsh'-i-ness (R. xi.)

Marsh centau'ry, a plant; marsh-elder, the guelder rose; marsh-mallow; marsh-mar'igold; marsh-pennywort, -pēn'.ni.wurt; marsh-rock'et, a water-cress; marsh-samphire, -sām'.fīr; marsh-tref'oil (all marsh plants).

Marsh miasma, -mā.āz'.māh, infectious vapours which rise from certain marshes and produce intermittent fevers.

Mar'shal, chief officer of arms, one who regulates the order of precedence at banquets, &c., to dispose in order; marshalled, mar'.shāl; marsha'll-ing, mar'shall-er.

Marshal-ship (-ship, office or rank); earl-marshall, field-marshall (a title introduced by George I.), the highest military rank in the British army.

Maréchal, mār're.shāl, chief military officer in France.

Martial, mar'.shāl, warlike. (Latin martialis.)

Marischal College, mar.shal (not mār'.ri.shāl) cōl'.lēdʒ (Aberdeen); founded, in 1593, by George Keith, fifth earl of Marischal, for medical students.

Marshall, mar'.shāl, a proper name.

Low Latin mareschaltus; Ang.-Sax. mare sceal, master of the horse.

Marsupial, mar'.sū'.pī.āl, having a fetus pouch.

Marsupials, mar'.sū'.pī.ālž, such animals as the kangaroo and opossum. Marsupialia, mar'.sū'.pī.āl'.i.ālah, the marsupial "order" (-ia denotes an order, a class).

Marsupium, mar'.sū'.pī.ūm, the marsupial pouch.

Marsupite, mar'.sū'.pī.tē, cluster stones (-ite denotes a fossil, these fossils resemble purses).

French marsupial; Latin marsūpium, a pouch.

Mart, a market (contraction of market, German mar[k]t).

Martello-tower, martē.ło tōw.ər (tow- rhyme to now), a small circular shaped fort for the defence of a seaboard.

So called from the Italian Torri da Martello, erected as a defence against pirates. Warning was given by a "martello" or hammer striking on a bell.

The usual derivation is Mortello (or Myrtilo) Bay, in Corsica, where Le Tellier, with only thirty-eight men, resisted a simultaneous sea and land attack by Lord Hood and Major-General Dundas in 1794.
Marten, mar't'n, a sort of weasel. Martin, the swift, a name.

"Marten," Fr. marte or martre; Germ. marder; Lat. mustela (mus).
"Martin" (the swallow), Fr. martinet. Some say it is St. Martin's bird, but St. Martin's bird is a raven, not a swallow. Probably the word is mar-tén (for murus ténso), and hence the Germans call it the maue1'-schwalbe, the wall-swallow.

Martial, Marshall, Marshal, Marischal (all mar'shal).

Martial, mar'shäl, warlike; martial-ly, martial-law.

Marshall, mar'shal, a proper name.

Marshal, mar'shal, an officer of arms. Field marshal, the highest military rank in the British army.

Marischal College (Aberdeen), mar'shal col'lège, founded by George Keith, fifth Earl of Marischal, in 1593.

"Martial," Latin martiélis (Mars, gen. Martis, the wargod).
"Marshal," Anglo-Saxon mare sociale, master of the horse; Low Latin mareschallus; French maréchal.

Martin, the house swallow, a man's name. Marten, a weasel.

"Martin," Fr. martinet. "Marten," Fr. marte. (See Marten.)

Martinet, mar'ti.nét, an inflexible disciplinarian.

Martinet, mar'ti.niet, small lines on the back of a sail.

"Martinet," so called from M. de Martinet, a young colonel in the reign of Louis XIV., who remodelled the French infantry.

Martingale, mar'ti.n.gäl, part of the furniture of a horse, part of a ship's rigging. (French martingale.)

Martinmas, the feast of St. Martin, November 11th (-mass as an affix drops one -s; as Christmas, Michaelmas, R. viii.)

Martlet, a sort of swallow. Martinet, a pedantic disciplinarian.

Martyr, mar't'r, one who suffers for conscience sake; to suffer as a martyr; martyred, mar't'rd; martyr-ing, mar't'r-ing; martyr-dom, the death or suffering of a martyr.

Martyrology, mar't'r.o.ly'o.ji, a history of martyrs; martyrological, mar't'r.o.ló'gikl, adj.; martyrologist.
O. Eng. marty, martyrdóm; Lat. martyr; Gr. martér (martyrco).

Mar'vel, a wonder, to wonder; marvelled, mar'veld; mar'vell-ing, mar'vell-ing; mar'vell-ous, -us; mar'vellous-ly, marvellous-ness (Rule iii., EL).

French merveille, merveilleux; Latin mirabilis (mirus, wonderful).

Mary, plu. Marys (is the modern spelling, not Maryes).

Marybud, the marigold. (The bud of the Virgin Mary.)

Mas (the word mass used as a suffix, Rule viii.), Christmas, &c.

Mas'culine, mas'ku.lin, (not más'ku.lin), of the male kind, like a man; mas'culine-ly. (Latin masculinus.)

Mash, Mash, Marsh, Mess, Mass.

Mash, a mixture of bran and water, to squeeze, to make a mash; mashed, (1 syl.), mash'ing, mash' -y, mash'tub.
Mesh, a wick, an interstice of a net. (Old Eng. mascere.)
Marsh, a fen, a meadow. (Old English merisc.)
Mess, a muddle, a military ordinary. (O. E. mes[au], to feed.)
Mass, the mass, a feast or festival. (Old English messe.)
   "Mash," Fr. masche, now mâche; Lat. masticare; Gk. mastazo.
Mask (to rhyme with ask), a visor, to wear a mask. Masque, mask (q.v.) Masked, masked; mask'-ing, mask'-er, masked battery, a battery concealed from the enemy.
German maske, v. maskieren; Italian maschera; French masque.
Mason, a builder [in 'stone], one who cuts and works up stone, a "freemason"; masonic, masön'.ik, pertaining to "freemasonry"; masonry, ma'son.rî, the art or trade of a stonemason, the craft of "freemasonry."
French mason, masonnerie (maison, a house; Low Latin mansio).
Masorah, mās'o.rah, a Hebrew critical work on the text of the Bible; masoretic, mās'o.řēt'.ik, adj. of masorah;
Masoretic points, the points used for Hebrew vowels.
Masorite, mās'ö.rît, one of the writers of the masorah.
Hebrew masar, to hand down, masora, tradition.
Masque, mask, a sort of drama in masks. Mask, a visor.
Masquerade, *mask'.ër râd', a soiree of persons in masks, to attend a masquerade in character; masquerad'-ed, mask'.ër râd'.ad; masquerâd'-ing, masquerâd'-er.
French mascarade. It is strange that we should have gone out of the way to "Frenchify" the look of this word. Why not maskarade?
Mass, a large quantity, to form into a mass, the eucharist in the Roman church. Mess, a muddle, a dish of food, a military ordinary. Mash, a mixture of bran and water.
Massed (1 syl.), mass'-ing; massive, mās'sî; massive-ly, massive-ness, mass'-y, mass'i-ness; mass-meeting, a large political meeting.
High mass, hî, that which is chanted or sung.
Low mass, that which is read; mass-book, the missal.
Old Eng. masse, masse-bôc, masse-sang, celebration of High mass.
   "Mass" (a lump), Lat. massa, lump of dough; Gk. masso, to knead.
French massacre, v. massacrer, massacreur.
Massive, mās'sî; massive-ly; massive-ness. (See Mass.)
Mast (to rhyme with fast, last), a spar to support the sails, &c., of a ship, the fruit of beech-trees, &c.; mast'-ed, furnished with masts; mast'-er, a vessel having masts, a title given to young gentlemen, a teacher, an owner; mast'ful, abounding in the fruit of beech-trees, &c.
   "Mast" (of a ship), O. E. mastl. "Mast" (nuts), maste, acorns, &c.
Mâst' er, the head of a household, an owner, one well skilled in anything, a teacher, an employer, a title of literary dignity (M.A., master of arts; A.M. (Latin), artium magister, master of arts), a title of respect given to young gentlemen, to subdue, to overcome difficulties; mastered, măst'er-ing, măst'er-ful (Rule viii.), măst'er-ful-ly, măst'er-ful-ness, măst'er-less, măst'er-ly, impertious, excellent (adv.), with a master's skill;

Mastery, măs't'i.ry; master-ship (-ship, office, rank);

Master baker, plu. Master bakers, &c.

Master in Chancery, plu. Masters in Chancery.

(If a preposition separates a compound noun, the plu. "-s" is added to the word before the preposition.)

Master-leaver, -lee'ver; master-stroke; master-piece, -peece; master-touch; master-work, -wurk.

French maître, now maitre, v. maitriser; Latin magister.

Mastic, măs't'ik, an odoriferous gum. (Gk. and Lat. mastiche.)

Masticate, măs't'i.ka.te, to chew; mast'i.ca't-ed (Rule xxxvi.), mast'i.ca't-ing (Rule xix.), mast'i.ca't-or (Rule xxi.ii.); masticable, măs't'i.kă'b'l; mastication, -ti'k.a'.shun; masticatory, măs't'i.kă.töry, adapted to mastication.

Lat. masticăre, supine masticâtum; Gk. mastasî; Fr. mastication.

Mastiff, plu. mastiffs (not mastives, R. xxxix.), mast'eds, a dog.

Fr. mastin, now mâtin; Low Lat. massatînis (house-dog, mansio, a house, Lat. manère, to abide), a dog to guard the house.

Mastitis, măs't'i.tës, inflammation of the breast.

Greek mastós, a breast (-îtas denotes inflammation).

Mastodon, măs't'o.dön, a genus of extinct "elephants."

Greek mastos odón, nipple-toothed; its teeth have from eight to twelve little cones, not unlike "nipples."

Mät, a thick fabric for wiping shoes on, a texture for packages, an article to set dishes on, to entangle, to entwist, to cover with mats; mätt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), mätt'ing (R. i.)

Welsh mat; Old English meatte; Latin matta, a mat.

Matador, măt'a.dör, the man appointed [in Spanish bull-fights] to kill the disabled bull, one of the three principal cards at ombre [om'bray] and quadrille. (Sp. matador, murderer.)

Mătch, a lucifer, a contest, one equal to another, an espousal, to pit one against another, to pair, to suit; matched (1 syl.), match'-ing, match'able, match'er, match-mäker, match'less, match'less-ly, match'less-ness.

Match'lock, a musket fired by a match.

"Match" (a "lucifer"), French mèche; Latin myxus, a candle wick. "Match" (an equal), Old English mæca, a mate.

Măte (1 syl.), a companion, to match. Măt (for the door), Met. Mate, mat-ed, măt'ed; măt'ing (Rule xix.), but Mat, mātt’-ed, mātt’-ing (Rule i.);
Mat-e’-less, companionless. Matē, mah’-tē, Paraguay tea.

Check-mate, the king so checked that he cannot move.

“Mate” (a companion), Dutch maet.
“Check-mate,” Ital. scacco-matto, the squares befooled; Germ. schach-matt, the squares worn-out or forbidden; Span. xaque or mate.

Mater, may’-ter (Latin), mother. Dura-mater, dū’-rah may’-ter, the outer membrane of the brain; pi’a ma’-ter, the inner membrane. Alma mater, al’-mah may’-ter, the university at which a person has graduated is his alma mater.

Dura mater (Lat.), “hard mother,” called hard because it is the toughest membrane of the brain. Pia mater (Lat.), “tear mother,” immediately investing the brain. Called mater from the ancient notion that it gave birth to all the membranes of the body.

Materia medica (Latin), ma.tec’-ri.ah mēd’-ē.kah, whatever is employed as a medicine, a book containing a description of these substances, their uses, quantities, &c.

Material, ma.tec’-ri.āl, that of which anything is made, essential, corporeal, made of matter (not spiritual); material-ly, to an important degree, considerably; material-ness, the state of being formed of matter.

Materiality, ma.tec’-ri.āl’-ti,ty, opposed to spirituality.

Materialise (R. xxxi.), ma.tec’-ri.āl’-i.ze, to degrade to matter; materialised (5 syl.); materialis-ing (R. xix.).

Materialist, ma.tec’-ri.āl’-ist, one who believes that the “soul” and “life” are due to organised matter.

Materialism, ma.tec’-ri.āl’-izm, the creed of a materialist; materialistic, ma.tec’-ri.āl’-ist’-ick.

Material (Fr.), munitions of war, the baggage and equipments of an army, the instruments, &c., required in any art.

(The following have double “t”)

 Matter, material; matters, affairs, signifies; mattered, māt’-terd; mattery, full of matter; matter-less.

As in “letter” (q.v.) the introduction of a second t is much to be regretted, and has no sanction in other languages.

French matériel (wrong), matérialisme / matérieliste, matérialité, matérialiser, matters, matter; Ital. materia, materia, materialità, materia, matter; Lat. matéria, materialis (from mater, a mother). The only words in Latin with double t are mutta, a mat, mutten, a junket, muttas, foul, and muttiace [pils], soap-balls. If the second t is added to shorten the “a,” then it should be added to “material,” but in Latin the “a” is long, and the double t diverts the mind from the fact that mater (mother) is the root-word.

Maternal, mā.tĕr’-năl (not māt’-ter’-nāl), besitting a mother, pertaining to a mother; maternal-ly, like a mother.

Maternity, mā.tĕr’-nĭ.ty, state or character of a mother.

Latin mater-nālis, maternitas (māter, Greek māter, a mother).
Math, a crop mowed; after-math, the grass crop which rises after hayse1. (Old English mæth, a math or mowing.)

Mathematics (Rule lxi.), mærk' e.mæt' ik, science of numbers; mathematical, mærk' e.mæt' ik al, adj., mathematical-ly.

Mathematician, mærk' e.ma.tish' an, one skilled in mathematics. Pure mathematics, the abstract science. Mixed mathematics, mixt-, mathematics applied to objects, as in buying and selling, land-surveying, and so on.

Mathesis, mærk' e.sis, the science of mathematics.

Greek [a] mathemātikós or [h] mathemātikós (techné, māthēsis (mainhānd, to learn); Lat. mathēmatica, mathematicus, mathematics.

Maties, mæt' ey, the best Scotch cured herrings. Mathes, mæt' ez.

Matin, mæt' in, used in the morning. Mat't ing, a texture of jute.

Matins, mæt' ins, morning prayers. Ves'pers, evening prayers.

Matinal, mæt' i.nal, pertaining to the morning;

Matutinal, mæt' tu.inal, early in the morning.

Matinée musicale (French), mat' e.nay mu'si.kahl', a morning concert. Mat' ince, a reception in the morning.

(This is an English use of the French word matinée).

"Soirée matinale," sometimes seen in announcements meaning a "morning entertainment," is nonsense. "Soirée" (from "soir," evening) is only applicable to evening assemblies, and "matinale" added is a contradiction.

Fr. matin, matinal, matinée, matines; Lat. matutina, matutinalis.

Matrass. Mattress. Matrice or Matrix.

Matress, mæt' roes, a chemical vessel also called a cucurbit.

Mattress, mæt' trēs, a cushion for a bed.

Matrice, may' tri es or Matrix, may' tri x, a mould.

"Matress," Welsh matras; German maträtz; French matelas.

"Matrice or Matrix," Fr. matrice; Germ. matrize; Lat. matrix.

Matrice, plu. matrices, may' tri seez. (See Matrix.)

Matricide, may' tri seez (not māt' ri side), mother-murder; matricidial, may' tri seel'dēl, adj.

Latin matricida, matricidium (māter cedo, to kill a mother).

Matriculate, ma.tri k' lātē, to become enrolled in a university; matric'ulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), matric'ulāt-ing (Rule xix); matriculation, ma.tri k' lāt ing'.shōn, enrollment...

Latin matriculatio (matricula, a list or roll).

Matrimony, ma.tri mā.ni., the marriage state; matrimonial, ma.tri mā n' i.āl; matrimonial-ly. (See Marry.)

Latin matrimonium (māter, a mother).

Matrix, plu. matrices, may' tri x; may' tri seez, a mould.

Latin matrix, plu. matrices, the womb, (māter, a mother).

Matron, ma.trōn (not māt' rōn), the mother of a family, the woman superintendent of a hospital; ma'tron-ly, ma' tron-ai; matronise (R. xxxi.), may'tроніз; matronised (3 syl.); matronis-ing (R. xix.), ma'tронізіng.

Latin matrōna, matrōnīalis; French matrone.

Matter, mat'l.ter, that of which a thing is made, the subject of a book, discourse, or thought, type set-up, ailment, pus.

Mattery, mat'tery, full of pus; matter-less, without pus.

Matter (verb), only-used in the third persons: It matters not, signifies not; it mattered not, signified not; no matter, never mind, it is of no importance. (See Material.)

Welsh mat'r; French mat'ture; Latin mātēria, matter, material.

"Matter" (pus), Welsh madru, to fester, madrudd, &c.

Mattting, a fabric made of jute, &c. Mā't'in, morning prayer.

"Matting." Welsh mat; Latin mattha.

"Matin," French matin; Latin 'matutinus.

Mattock, mat't.ok, a pick-axe for "grubbing." (Welsh matog.)

Mattress, Matras. Matrice or Matrix.

Mattress, mat't.trēs, the cushion of a bed. (Welsh matras.)

Matras, mat't.rās, a cucurbit. (Fr. matras; Lat. matracium.)

Matrice, may'trēs, a mould. (Fr. matrice; Lat. matrix.)

Mature, ma'tu.re', ripe, to ripen; matured' (2 syl.), mātu-ing (Rule 'xix.), ma'ture'ing; mature'-ly; mature'-ness.

Maturity, ma'tu.ri.ty, ripeness, completion; maturescent, mātu'ras'ent; maturation, mātu'rat'y.shi'n.

Maturate, mātu'rate (not ma'tu'.rate), to ripen; mātu-ra't-ed, ma'turat'ing (R. xix.); maturative, -tiv.

Lat. māturātio, mātūrescentis, mātūrātas, mātūrus, v. māturāre, supine māturatum.

Matutinal, mā'tu.ti.nal, early in the morning. Mat'in'al (q.v.)

Latin mātutinālis, mātūrinus, soon in the morning.

Mau'dlin, mau'd.lin, sentimentally drunk, fuddled.

A corruption of Magdalen, who is drawn with eyes swollen with weeping; Magdalen College is pronounced Mau'dlin.

Maurg, mau'.ger, notwithstanding. (Fr. malgré, in spite of.)

Maul, to beat and bruise. Māl, maul or māl, a heavy wooden hammer; mallet, māl'.let; a small maul; mauled (1 syl.), māl'.ing. Maul-stick, the stick on which a painter rests his arm while painting.

Lat. mālicos, a hammer, v. māl'leo; French mail, maillet.

Maud, a hand-basket, a gift doled out on Maundy Thursday.

Maundy, the office read by Roman Catholics during the foot-washing before Good Friday. Monday, mān'.day.

Maundy Thursday, the day before Good Friday.

"Maud, "O. Eng. mānd or mon'd, a basket, mundian, a little basket. "Maundy," a corruption of mandatum, from the words of the Lord after washing his disciples' feet, mandatum novum do vobis (a new commandment give I unto you), John xiii. 34.
Maunter, maunder, a beggar, to mutter to oneself, to saunter about mumbling; maundered, maundering, maunderer. (An old cant word, Halliwell). Latin mando, to chant [the bit], to chew. A maunderer "chews the cud of sweet or bitter fancy" as he saunters along.

Maundril, maunderil, a pick used in coal-mines.

Maundy, maundy. Monday, mun′day. (See Maund.)

Mausoleum, mau′so.lee′um (not mau′so.lee″um), a stately tomb; mausolean, mau′so.lee′an, adj. of mausoleum.

So called from the monument of Mausolus, king of Caria, erected by his widow, and considered one of "the seven wonders."

Mauve, move, a dye. Move, moov, to stir.

French mauve; Latin malva, a mallow, the flowers of which plant are marked with "mauve" hues.

Mavis, May′vis, the song-thrush, the red-wing, the swine-pipe.

Fr. mavis (de ala mavis, à cause du dégat que font ces oiseaux).

Maw, the caw of a fowl. More, an additional quantity. Moor, q.v.

Maw-worm, -worm, an intestinal worm. (O. E. maga.)

Mawkish, mau′kish, insipid; mawkish-ness, mau′kish-ly.

Maxilla, plu. maxilae, max.ill′ah, max.ill′i, the upper jaw, the bones in which the teeth are set; maxillar, max.ill′ar, adj.; maxillary, max.ill′i.ry (not max.ill′i.ry); maxillaform (not -aform), max.ill′i.form, jaw-shaped.

Latin maxilla, plu. maxilla, maxillaris (mala, the cheek).

Maxim, max′im, a precept, an adage. (Fr. maxime; Lat. maxima.)

Maximum, max′i.umn, the greatest number or quantity.

Minimum, min′i.mum, the smallest number or quantity.

Maximise (R. xxxi.), max′i.mize, to carry to a maximum; maximised (3 syl.); maximising (R. xix.), max′i.miz.ing.

Latin maximum, super. of magnus, great; French maximum. ("Maximity," overpowering greatness (Latin maximum) might be introduced.) "Minimum," Latin super. of parvus, little.

May, the fifth month, an auxiliary verb, (past) might, mite.

May′ing, celebrating May-day. May-flower, hawthorn.

May-bug, the lady-bird or cahaer; May-day, 1st of May; May-duck, a cherry (corruption of Medoc, a district of France famous for cherries); May-fly, plu. May-flies, -fizē.

May-morn; May-pole; May-queen or Queen of the May.

May-be, perhaps; Might, mite. Mite, a coin, an insect.

"May" (the month), Lat. Maius, the growing or sprouting month, not from Maiā, mother of Mercury, nor yet from majores, the elders.

"May, Might," Old Eng. meg[an]. past mīhte (g is interpolated).

Mayor, fem. mayor-ess, may′r, may′r′-ess. Mare, a horse.

Mayor, may′r, chief magistrate of a corporate town; mayoress, the mayor's wife. Mayoralty, may′r′al.ity.

French maire; Latin major; Spanish mayor, the superior officer.
Mazard, a black cherry, the jaw, the head.

"Mazar" (cherry), cor. of Mazanderan, "the Garden of Persia."
"Mazar" (jaw), corruption of the Fr. mâchoire (Lat. masticāre).

Mazarine, maz'ə.reen, a deep-blue colour.
So called from the wrappers of the mazarinades published in France against Mazardin, the unpopular minister of Louis XIV.

Mâze (1 syl.), a labyrinth. Maize, maze, Indian corn. Amaze.
Mazy, may'zy, intricate; mā'zi-ness, mā'zi-ly.

Amaze' (2 syl.), to astonish; amazed' (2 syl.), amaz'-ing.

"Maze," Old English mase, n in whirlpool.
"Maize," American.

Mazer, may'zer, a drinking-bowl made of some spotted wood.
German mazer, a spotted wood, hence masher, maple.

Mdle., plu. Mdlles., cont. of mademoiselle, plur. mademoiselles, mad'muž.əzel' (for the plu. we say The mademoiselles), a title given and assumed by unmarried women in professions and trade, who wish to pass for foreigners.

Me, obj. of I. Nom. I, poss. mine, obj. me;
Plu. Nom. we, poss. ours, obj. us.

"Me" is used after the verb To be, and after the words than, but, like, and as, with such pertinacity it is at least doubtful whether it is not correct. C'est moi is the French idiom, not C'est je, and It is me is far more common than It is I. ("Me" is dat. not acc. case.)

So again, the French say Il est plus riche que moi, or plus riche que je ne suis, "more rich than me," or "more rich than I am."

It is by no means certain that these Gallicisms should be abolished, but grammarians stoutly resist them, and the tendency of the educated classes is more and more in their disfavour. Hence all such sentences as the following are accounted as

Errors of Speech.—
Who shall decide when doctors disagree,
And soundest casuists doubt, like you and me. (Pops.)

Yet oft in Holy Writ we see
E'en such weak ministers as me
May the oppression break (Sir Walter Scott).

Who's there? It is me.
You know it was not me who told him.
It is me that has been the ruin of you.
It is me that has brought you to this misery.
It is not me who will be a trouble to you.
It is me, your friend and master, who advises it.
(The following are not Gallicisms, but bad grammar.)
When me and Patsy went to see him, he was much better.
Who's within? Only me. Who will have this? Me.
But it were vain for you and I (me)
In single fight our strength to try (Prof. Aytoun).
(The following are correct.)
You did not suspect it to be me. You did not know it was me.
That picture is just like me (like to...).
He likes you better than me (than he likes me).
He likes you better than I (than I like you).
It is I, be not afraid.

(It is quite certain that we did not use the object me after the verb) to be before the Conquest. We said "syf hit com" (It am I myself), and Chaucer frequently writes "it am I", but never "it am me."

Ang.-Sax.—S. Nom. ic, gen. mìn, dat. me, acc. mec.
Pl. Nom. we, gen. swer, dat. is, acc. uesta.

Mead, meod, a meadow, honey-wine. Meed, recompense.

Meadow, mèd’dò, pasture-land; mead’ow-y.

Meagre, mee’er, lean, scanty; meagre-ly, meagre-ness.

French maigre; Latin mager, fem. macra, m. macère, to be thin.

<meal, meel (native suffix), nouns, broken into parts: piece-meal.

Meal, meel, a repast, unsifted flour (the meal of wheat is also called sharps); meal’y, meal’y-ness (Rule xi.); meal’y-mouthed, -mouth’d, one who minces unpleasant truths; mealy-mouthedness, mouth’éd-ness, disingenuousness.

Piece-meal, piece by piece, into little pieces.

"Meal" (repast), Old English médl, a meal, médl-tima, meal-tine.

"Meal" (flour), Old Eng. méll; Lat. molu, to grind, mol’ta, a mill.

Mean, mean, base, to intend. Mien, mean, deportment.

Mean, to intend; past and past part. meant, meant; meaning, mean’ing; mean’ing-ly, mean’ing-ness.

Mean-ly, shabbily; mean’-ness (double n), mean-spirited.

Mean, medium; mean-time, equated time, for the nonce; mean-while, mean-while, "ad interim." In the meantime, In the mean-while, in the interval.

Means, meanz, property, power; by all means, certainly; by no means, on no account; by any means, in any way.

q "Means," regarded as the instrument of doing something, is followed by a verb singular: as The best means of doing it is to employ a broker.

That is a means to an end.

Consuming means soon prey’s upon itself (Rich. II. ii. 1).

† "Means," regarded as riches, possessions, power, &c., is followed by a verb plural: Your means are slender (2 Hen. IV. 1. 2).

His means are but in supposition (Merch. of Ven. I. 2).

"Mean" (base), O. E. móne. "Mean" (to intend), O. E. maenan.

"Mean" (medium), French moyen; Latin medium.

Meander, mean’der, to wind, to flow zig-zag; meandered, mean’der’d; meander-ing, mean’der’ing.

Latin Meander, a river in Caria full of turnings; Greek meandros

Meaning, mean’ing, signification, intention. (See Mean.)

Measles, mee’lz (plu.), a disease to which all children are liable; measly [pork], mee’zy, the flesh of pigs infected with measles. (German mäser, the disease with spots.)

Measure, mee’zér, an instrument for measuring; a plan of operation, metre, to ascertain the size, &c.; measured,
Mesh'ur; measuring (Rule xix.), measurable (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able), measurable-ness, measurably; measure-less.

Measurement, mesh'ur.ment. Without measure.

Hard measures, harsh dealing. Common measure.

To take measures, to take means to accomplish an object.

Mensuration, men'su.ra'sh.ion. Science of measuring.

Fr. mesure, v. mesure'n, mesureur; Latin mens'ura, v. mensurare.

Meat, meet, food. Meet, to encounter. Mete, to measure.

("Meat" has become restricted to its present meaning only since animal food has become the chief diet of man.)

"Meat," Welsh maesth, v. maetha, to take nourishment; Fr. mets.

"Meet," Old Eng. ge-méat[an], ge-méting, a meeting, an assembly.

"Mete," Old Eng. mët[an], past met, past part. mëten.

Meatus, me.a.tus, a wide duct as the meatus of the ear mea'tus auditi'rus. (Latin meatus, a passage; mëäre, to go.)

Meaw, me.aw', the loud mewing of a cat. (Imitative word.)

Mechanic, Mechanics, Mechanician, Mechanist. Machinist.

Mechanic, me.kân'ik, a workman in any mechanical employment skilled or otherwise; plu. mechanics.

Mechanics, me.kân'iks, the science of machinery.

(All but five of the sciences with this ending are plural, Rule lx.)

Mechanician, mek'ân.i.kian, one skilled in mechanical works, one who makes machinery.

Mechanist, mëk'ân.i.st, a maker or inventor of machinery.

Machinist, ma.sheen.i.st, a maker of large or complex machines, one who works a sewing-machine.

Mechanical, me.kân'ik.kal; mechanical-ly.

Mechanism, mëk'ân.i.zm, mechanical structure.

Mechanical philosophy, me.kân'ik.fy, that branch of science which treats of the phenomena of nature so far as they are the results of mechanical forces.

Mechanical powers, the lever, wheel and axle, pulley, screw, and wedge. Some add the inclined plane.

Lat. mec'hânica, mec'hán'bous, má'shina; Fr. mécanique, mécanicien (wrong), mécanisme; Greek méchané, méchanikós, le méchaniké or hé méchaniké techné, mechanics (méchanomastiké, to contrive by skill).

Mechlin [lace], mék'lin, lace made at Mechlin, in Belgium.

(Called in Belgium and France Malines, 2 syl.)

Medal, mëd"l, a coin not current, a metal device given as a reward of merit; medallet, mëd'âlet, a small medal.

Medallist, one who has obtained a medal as the reward of merit. Gold medallist, one who has obtained the highest prize in medals. Medallist, me.dál.ist, adj.
Medallurgy, me.däl'-lur'-gy, the art of making and striking medals. (Corruption of Gk. mētallōn ergōn, metal-work.)

Medallion, me.däl'-yün, an antique medal.

Meddle, me'däl, to interfere. (French mesler, now mēter.)

Metal, one of the 43 metallic elements. (Latin mētallum.)

Meddle-some, mēd.däl'səm, given to meddling (-some, full of, given to); med’dlesome-ness.

French mesler, now mēter; Lat. miscēre; Greek mignwo [mignumi].

Medieval or medieval, mēd.əl'vel, pertaining to the middle ages, from the 8th to the 15th cent. (Lat. mēdius aevum.)

Medial, me.dəl; mediant. (See Medium.)

Mediate, *mē.dət*ē, to intervene, to intercede; me'/dat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), me'/dat-ing (Rule xix.), mediating-ly.

Mediately, me.dət.ə.tē.lē; Immediately, directly.

Mediately, not directly, but acting as a go-between.

Mediation, me.dət.ə'shən, intercession.

Mediator, fem. mediatrix, me'də.tr̩.ə.tər, me'də.tr̩.ə.trɪk; mediatorial, me'də.tr̩.ə.tər'əl; mediatorial-ly; mediator-ship, me'də.tr̩.ə.tər'ʃip (-ship, office, rank); mediatory, me.də.tə.tr̩.ə'ri; mediatorial.

Mediatise (R. xxxi.), *me'də.təz*ē, to annex a small state to a larger contiguous one; me'/dat-ed (-ed), mediatising.

Medicine, mēd.ən (not med.ən), physic;

Medical, mēd.əl; Medical, me.dis'ə.n̩l;

Medical, pertaining to the art of healing; med'icəl-ly;

Medicinal, of the nature of a medicine; med'icəl-ly.

Medicament, mēd.i.kə.mənt (not med.i.kə.mənt); medicament’-al, medicament’-al-ly.

Medicat, mēd.i.kət, to tincture with medicine, to doctor; med'icat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), med'icat-ing (Rule xix.); medicatible, curable; medicative, mēd.i.kə.təv.

Medication, mēd.i.kə'ʃən; medical-man or medical-adviser, -ad.vis.ə.r̩, a physician, a surgeon.

Medicated spirits, a drug mixed with alcohol.

Medicinal waters, mēd.is'ə.n̩l wər.tər; natural springs impregnated with medicinal properties.

Latin medicābilis, medicamentum, medicātio, medicīna, medicānalis, v. medicāre, supine medicātum,

ERRORS OF SPEECH
Medieval, mé'd־ā, of the middle ages. (Lat. médius oevum.)
Mediocre, mé' di, e, k' r, middle rate, of ordinary talent;
Mediocrity, mé'di, ок e, rity. (Lat. médiocritas, médiocris.)
Meditate, mé'd, i, t, a t, to think on, to muse; med' i, t, a, t, ed (Rule xxxvi.), med' i, t, a, t, ing (Rule xix.), med' i, t, a, t, ing-ly.
Meditation, mé'd, i, t, a, tion', méd', i, t, a, t, ion; med' i, t, a, t, ive-ly, med' i, t, a, t, ive-ness, med' i, t, a, t, or.
Latin méditation, médificus, méditator, v. méditari.
Mediterranean (double r), mé'd, i, ter, ray', méd' an (the), the sea lying between Europe and Africa, inland;
Mediterraneous, mé'd, i, ter, ray', méd' is. Latin méditerráneum, méditerraneus (médius terra).
Medium, plu. mediums and media, mé'd, i, umz or mé'd, i, ah, middle rate, midway, means whereby anything is effected, that in which bodies exist or through which they act, the person through whom "spirit manifestations" are made.
Circulating medium, money, bank-notes, &c.
Medium-sized, between the largest and the smallest.
Medial, mé'd, i, al, average. Médiant (in Music), the third above the key-note. Sub-mediant, the sixth (maj. scale).
Latin médium, plu. média; French médial, médiate.
Medlar (one d), mé'd, lar, a fruit. Meddler, a busy-body.
"Medlar," a corruption of mespler, Latin mes' pilus; Greek mesplón (mesos pilós, moderately constipating or astringent).
"Meddler" [messeleur], French mester, now méler.
Medley, plu. medleys (not medlies), méd' léz, a confused mass, a collection of different sorts. (French meslé, mêle.)
Medulla, mé'd, wlat, the marrow in long bones, pith; medull' lar; medul' lary, pertaining to marrow or pith;
Medulla oblongata, méd' wlat ob' long gat' 'lah, the "marrow" which connects the spinal cord to the skull.
Medul' la spina' lis, the spinal marrow.
Medul'lary rays (in Bot.), connecting the pith with the bark.
Medul'lary sheath, -sheer h; medul'lary substance.
Latin méduila, marrow; Greek mé'dun.
Medusa, plu. medusse, mé'du, sah, mé'du, see, sea blubber or jelly-fish; medu' sidans; medusa'ria (-ia, a class, order).
Medusa, the mortal Gorgon. Linnaeus gave this name to these marine animals because the tentacles in some species resemble the snakes round Medusa's head. (Greek medousa, ruler.)
Mead, recompense. Mead, meed, a meadow, honey-wine.
"Mead," Old English méd. "Mead" (meadow), Old English méd "Mead" (hydromel). Welsh meddyglyn, meddawol, intoxicating.
Meek, mild; meek' ly, meek' ness, gentleness.
Old English ge-méthl, modest, ge-méthle, modestly.
Meerschaum, mee'r'shūm, a tobacco pipe of magnesian earth mixed with silex. (Germ. meerschaum, froth of the sea.)

Meet. Mete, to measure out. Meat, meet, animal food.

Meet, fit, a coming together, to come together; past met; past part. met; meet-ing, an interview, coming together; meeting-house, a place of worship [for dissenters].

Meet'er. Meter, mê'ter. Metre, mê'tr.

Meet'er, one who encounters or meets another.

Me'ter, an instrument to measure with, as gás-meter.

Metre, mê'tr, a French measure of length.

"Meet," Old English ge-métt[an], ge-métting, a meeting.

"Mete," Old English met[an], past métt, past part. meten.

"Meat," Welsh maethiant, food; maethu, to feed, maeth.

"Meter," see above "Mete." "Métre," Greek mé'trōn, a measure.

Meg'a- (Greek prefix), before any consonant except s. Megal-, before vowels. Megalo- (before -s), great.

Mega-coros, mēg'gās'.ērōs, a fossil deer (not the Irish elk).

Greek még-a-keras, the great-horn (of the Pleistocene period).

Megal-ichthyis, mēg'ē.ich' thē'sis, a sauroid fish.

Greek mégal- ichthías, great fish (of the Coal period).

Megal-onyx, mēg'ē.on'i̇ks, an extinct mammal.

Greek mégal- ōnus, long-claw (of the Upper Tertiaries).

Megalosaurus, plu. megalo-sauri or megalo-saurian, a huge extinct saurian reptile.

Greek mégalo-saurōs, great lizard (found in the Oolite, &c.)

Meg'a-therium, plu. mega-theria, meg'a thē'rē.ium, meg'a thē'rē.ah, an extinct monster sloth.

Greek még-a-thē'rē.ón, monster-beast (of the Upper Tertiaries).

Megrim, mé'grīm, headache confined to one side of the head.

Fr. migrature; Lat. hemicrānia; Gk. hēmī krānion, half the skull.

Meiocene, miē'ō.ēn (in Geology), the Middle Tertiaries.

Gk. meion Kaiinos, less recent, that is, having fewer remains "recent" or existing plants and animals than the group above it.

Melancholy, mēl'.ān.ō.īlē, depression of spirits; melancholic, mēl'.ān.ō.īl'lē.āk, adj. Melancholia, mēl'.ān.ō.īl'lē.āh, melancholy madness. (Latin mēlanclōlia, mēlanclōlicus.)

Gk. mēlanclōlia, i.e., mēlas chōlē, black bile, a redundancy of which was once supposed to be the cause of melancholy.

Melange (Fr.), mēl.ān.ģe, a medley, a miscellaneous collection.

Melanite, mēl'.ān.ītē, a grey-black garnet; melanitic, mēl'.ān.īt'īk; melanin, mēl'.ānīn, the black pigment of the eye.

Greek mēlas, black (-ite, a fossil or stony substance).

Melanochroite, mēl'.ān.ō.īt'ī.kō.ō.īt (not mēl'.ān.ō.īt'ī.koīt), chromate of lead. (Greek mēlas chrōa, black colour.)

Melée, mā.lēy, a scuffle, an affray. (French mēlē.)
Mellifluous, mel'lij flu'-us, sweet to the ear; mellifluent, mel'lij fluen't (words or music) with an agreeable flow; mellifluent-ly; mellifluence, mel'lij fluen'sence.

Lat. mellifl'us, melliflu'ens, gen. -entis (mel flu'o, to flow with honey). Mellite, mel'v.lit', honey stone. (Gk. méli, honey, and -lite, stone.)

Mellow, mel' lo, mature, soft and sweet from ripeness, to ripen; mellowed (2 syll.), mel'low-ing, mellow-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); mel'low-y, mel'low-ness; mellow-toned, -t'ond, having soft tones.

Welsh melys, to sweeten, melys, sweet (mel, honey).

Melodrame, mel'o.dram, a play interspersed with songs; melodramatic, mel'o.dram'a.tik, sensational; melodramatical, mel'o.dram'a.tel'iкал, melodramatist, mel'o.dram'a.tist; melodrama, mel'o.dram'ah (not mel'o.drah'mah).

French melodrame (Greek mel'dro'ma, song [and] drama).

Melody, plu. melodies, mel'v.o.diz. Harmony, plu. harmonies.

Melody, the tune; harmony, the combination of sounds as in chords and parts. (Melody (air) may consist of single notes, but harmony must deal with combinations.)

Melodious (R. lxvi.), mel'o.diz (not mel'o.diz), musical; melo'dious-ly, melo'dious-ness; melodist, mel'o.dist.

Melodise (R. xxxi.), mel'o.diz, to form into melody; mel'o.dised (3 syll.); melodis-ing (R. xix), mel'o.diz.In.

Latin melodía, meló'día; Greek meló'dia, meló'dos; French meló'die.

Melon, mel'v.on (one ő), a fruit; mel'v.on-frame, for raising melons.

(There is a substance which Liebig called mellon, consisting of carbon and nitrogen, which combines with metals to form mellonides.)

Greek mellón, a pomaceous fruit; Latin meló, gen. melónis, a melon.

Melpomene, melp'o.mé.ne (not mel'p.o.meen), the tragic muse.

Greek Mélpoménη (melpá, to sing); Latin Melpó'méra.

Melrose, mel'v.rose, honey of roses. (Latin mel'v. rosa.)

Melt, (past) melt-ed, (past part.) melted or molten, mel'v.lit'; melt-ing, melt'-er. "Molten" chiefly used as an adj.

Old Eng. melt(an), past melt, past part. molten, melting, a melting.

Member, mé'm'ber, a limb, one of a community; membered, mé'm'.ber'd, having limbs. Dis-membered, &c.

Member-ship (-ship, office, rank).

Member of Parliament, plu. Members of Parliament, par'.l'ment, expressed by the letters M.P., plu. M.M.P.

Latin membrum; French membre, membre du parlement.

Membrane, mé'm'brane, a thin skin serving to line or cover some part of an animal or plant, as the nose, &c.

Membranous, mé'm'.brá.nus. Membraneous, -nay''shús.

Membranous, consisting of membranes;

Membranaceous (Rule lxvi.), resembling membrane,
Mucous membrane, mu.

Serous membrane, se.

Filous membrane, fi.

Jacob's membrane (tu.

Membra'na tympani, tim.

Membraniferous, memb'ra.nif.

Membranology, memb'ra.nol.

Membranous, memb'ra.nous.

Membranology, memb'ra.nol.

Memorandum, memoranda.

Memorial, memorial.

Menace, menace.

Memphian, memphi.

French menace; Latin minax, gen. *minaci, v. minari, to threaten,
AND OF SPELLING.

Menagery, plu. menageries, mēnē.ā.rrē.īz, a place containing a collection of wild beasts.

French ménagerie; Low Latin menagium.

Mend, to repair; mend'èd (R. xxxvi.), mend’-ing, mend’-er.

This contraction of the Latin e-mendo, or French e-mender, wholly reverses the meaning. Menda means "a fault," and it is the prefix which gives it the meaning of correcting a fault.

Mendacious (Rule lxvi.), mēn. day′.shūs, false; mendacious-ly, untruly; mendacious-ness, untruthfulness;

Mendacity, mēn. dis′.ā.ty. Mendicity, mēn. dis′.ā.ty.

Mendacity, falsehood. Mendicity, pertaining to beggars.

Latin mendax, gen. mendācis, lying, mendāctor (manda, a mistake).

Mendicant, mēn′. dī. kant, a beggar; mendicancy, beggary.

Mendicity, mēn. dis′.ā.ty, pertaining to beggars;

Mendacity, mēn. dis′.ā.ty, utter falsity, lying.

Latin mendicans, gen. mendicantis, mendicitas, mendicare, to beg.

Menial, mē′. nī. āl, servile, a servant; me′nial-ly.

Norm. meignal (from meignee, a family), hence our law terms, nesse, a house, messality, a manor, mesnally, mesne lord, demesne, &c.

Meniscus, mē′. nis′.lūs, a lens crescent-shaped; menis′cal.

Greek mēniskōs, crescent-shaped (mēd, a crescent).

Menses, mēn′. seez, catamenia. (Latin mensis, [once] a month.)

Menstrual, mēn′. stru. āl; menstrual, mēn′. stru. us.

Latin mensūralis, occurring monthly, mensūralus.

Menstruum, plu. menstruums or menstrua, mēn′. stru. um, a [chemical] solvent, any liquid used as a dissolvent.

Latin menstruum, [acting once] a month. The alchemists thought that the full moon was essential to success in the transmutation of baser metals into gold.

Mensurable, mēn′. sū. rū. āl′, able to be measured;

Mensurability, mēn′. sū. rū. bū′. ā. ty; men′sural.

Mensuration, mēn′. sū. ra. y′. shūn, the art, act, or science of finding out the dimensions of surfaces or solids.

French mensuration, mensurable, mensurabilité; Latin mensūra.

-ment (Latin termination) nouns, instrument, cause of, state, act. It is often added to pure English words: judg-ment, the act of a judge; agree-ment, the state of being in accord.

Mental, mēn′. tēl, intellectual; men′tal-ly, mental′ity.

French mental (Latin mens, gen. mentis, the mind or intellect).

Mention, mēn′. shūn, expression in words, to express by words; mentioned, mēn′. shūnd; mention-ing, mention-able.

Latin mentio, gen. mentiōnis; French mention, v. mentioner.

Mentor, mēn′. tor, a wise monitor or adviser; men′to. rial.

Mentor, the friend of Ulysses, whose form Minerva assumed when she accompanied Telemachus in his search for his father.
Mephitic, me.fit'ık, noxious; mephitis, me.fit'ís, any bad exhalation, especially carbonic acid gas.

Mercantile, mer'kán.til, commercial. (See Merchant.)

Mercator's chart, mer.káy'törz tchart, a map with the longitudinal lines parallel; mercator's projection, the making of the longitudinal lines of a map all parallel, and compensating for it by drawing the map in perspective. Devised by Gerhard Kauffman, whose surname Latinised is Mercátor (merchant), 1512–1594.

Mercenary, plu. mercenaries, mer'sé.nár'riz, one hired to serve in a foreign army; mercenary, actuated by a love of greed. (Latin mercenárius, merces, hire.)

Mercer, mer'ser, a dealer in silks and haberdashery;

Mercers' company, one of the 12 great liverys of London.

Mercery, plu. merceries, mer'sé.ríz, goods sold by a mercer. ("Mercery" is a collective noun, and "merceries" is only used when different collections of mercery are referred to.)

Merchant, mer'tchant, a wholesale dealer, one who carries on trade with foreign countries; Greek merchant, Turkey merchant, one carrying on trade with Greece, Turkey, &c.

Merchantise, mer'tchán.dize; mer'chant-man, a trading ship or vessel; merchant-service, the mercantile marine.

Mercantile, mer'kán.til, commercial.

(To the irregularity of the h in these words is due to the French, but we have not followed the French in the substitution of o.)

We do not, like the French, term petty traders merchants, but reserve the word as a complimentary term when applied to retail dealers. We have a large number of words to express a "seller" of goods:

For example—

Broker, one who deals in second-hand furniture, pawns, shares, stock (bought and sold on 'Change), &c.

Dealer, one who deals in horses, cattle, carpets, pictures, crockery, game, turnery, tea (in retail), &c.

Factor, one who deals in corn, coals, &c., in a small way.

Furnisher, one who sells all sorts of furniture and household wares.

Maker, one who sells boots and shoes, clocks and watches, &c.

Mercer, one who sells by retail silks and other materials for ladies.

Merchant (besides the use given above), applied to dealers in wine and spirits, hops, corn (in a large way), tea (wholesale), coals (wholesale), timber, seed (wholesale).

Monger, one who sells fish; cheese, iron-ware, news (now generally called a news vender), fell-monger (seller of skins).

Seller, applied to one who sells books, music, ready-made slops, &c.

Warehouseman, applied to one who sells "Italian wares," fancy goods, &c.

Many other dealers have a special word to express the trade they carry on: as Confectioner, draper, grocer, haberdasher, hatter, poulterer, tobacconist, upholsterer, &c., &c.

Mercury, mer·ki·ru·ry, “quick-silver,” a mineral medicine, the planet nearest the sun; mercurial, mer·ki·ru·li·al, sprightly, light-hearted, containing mercury, mercurial-ist.

Mercurialise (Rule xxxi.), mer·ku·ri·al·ize, to affect the system with mercury; mercurialised (5 syl.); mercurial-ising, mer·ku·ri·al·ize·ing (Rule xix.)

Latin Merēcōrius, merēcōriālis; French mercuriel and mercurial.

“Mercurial” (light-hearted), being born under the planet Mercury.

Mercy, plu. mercies, mer·siz, compassion; merciful (R. viii., xi.), merciful-ly, merciful-ness, merci·less, merciless-ly, merciless-ness. Mercy-seat, -sect, the lid of the ark-of-the-covenant. Sister of Mercy, one of the society whose object is to succour the sick and destitute, founded in Dublin in 1827. To be at the mercy of [A], to be wholly in the power of [A]. Mercury, goods sold by mercers.

French merci, contraction of Latin missēricordia (mer·c'i·du), miser cor.

Mere, merer, sheer, a pool; mer·e·ly, only.

“Mere” (sheer), Latin mēre, purely. “Mere” (a pool), Latin māre.

Meretricious, mer·rē·trī·sh·ūs, like a harlot, having a nominal value far beyond its real worth; meretricious-ly, meretricious-ness. (Latin mērētricius.)

Merge (1 syl.), to swamp; merged (1 syl.), merg-ing (R. xix.)

Latin merēgēre, to dip or plunge under; Greek mērgō.

Meridian, mer·i·di·ən, noon-day. A meridian, a line drawn on a globe or map from pole to pole, so called because every place under this line has mid-day at the same time.

Meridional, mer·i·di·o·nal, having a south aspect, pertaining to the meridian; merid‘ional-ly.

Latin mēridiālis, mēridiānus, mēridiānum (mēdius, mid-day); French mēridien (wrong), meridional.

Merino, plu. merinoes (Rule xlii.), mer·ē·nō·zē, a fabric made of the wool of merino sheep.

Spanish merino, moving (from pasture, to pasture).

Merit, mer·rē·tīt, desert, to deserve; merit-ing (Rule xxxvi.), mer·it·ed. Meritorious (Rule lxvi.), mer·tō·ri·us, praiseworthy; meritor’ious-ly, meritorious-ness.

Lat. mērētō, to merit, merētoriōs, mērētum; Fr. mērite, mēr·i·ter.

Merle, a blackbird. (French merle; Latin mērūlā.)

Merlin, a kind of hawk. (Fr. émirillōn, the merle hunter.)

Merlon, the projection which alternates with the embrasures on an embattled parapet. (French merlon.)

Mermaid, mer·maid, a woman from the waist upwards, and a fish from the waist downwards. (Old English meremen.) There is also the word mer·ic·el. The Welsh word is mer·ic·el·yn.
Merry, měr’ry, cheerful; mér’ri-ly (Rule xi.), mér’ri-ness; mér’ri-ment. Merry-an’drew, a buffoon. Merry thought, -rhaunt, the forked breast-bone of a fowl. Merry-go-round, a round-about [for children, seen at fairs]. To make merry, to enjoy oneself socially.

Mirth, mirth’-ful (Rule viii.), mirthful-ness, mirthful-ly.

Old English mīrīg or myreg, myrines, merriness, myrth.

Merycotherium, mēr’kō-thē’ri-um (not mēr’ri-), pIn. mēr’kō-thē’ri-ah, a huge ruminant allied to the Bactrian camel (found in the Drift).

Greek mērōkō thorion, the ruminating beast.

Mesembryanthemum, mes’em-bri-an’thē-mūm (not mesambry-anthentum), the ice-plant, &c.; mesembryaceae, mes’em’·bri-ā’·sē.’ē. [aceae in Botany denotes an “order.”]

Gk. mēsosos-medruōn-anthōs, embryo in the centre of the flower.

Mesdames, mez’de-mēz,* pIn. of madam. This is the usual English pronunciation. So Messieurs the plu. of M. or monsieur is pronounced mezh’urz. In French mesdames is called mey·dahm, and messieurs is called mey·se’eu’.

Mesentery, mēz’en-tōr’ry, a membrane by which the intestines are attached to the vertebrae; mesenteric, mēz’en·tōr’ri-k, adj., as mesenteric glands, disease, &c. (not misenteric).

Greek mēsēntērōn, Latin mesenterium, the midriff, mesentericus.

Mesh, a net. Mash, brewers grains. Mass, a heap.

Mesh, strictly means one of the interstices of a net, but we say I have got him in my meshes (net); mesh-y; meshed, meshed, caught. (Old English mæscre, a mesh.)

Mesmerism, mēz’me-rizm, a state of coma produced by “animal magnetism”; mesmeric, mēz’me-rī’k, adj.

Mesmerise (Rule xxxi.), mēz’me·rīz, to produce mesmeric sleep; mesmerised (3 syl.), mesmeris-ing (Rule xix.), mes’me·rīz·ing; mesmeris-er, one who mesmerises; mes’merist, one who believes in mesmerism.

Introduced into Paris, 1778, by Friedrich A. Mesmer (1731–1815).

Mesne, mēnz, intermediate. Mean, mēn, base, to intend.

Mesne lord, a lord who holds of a superior lord.

Mesne process, -pros’sēs, writs which intervene during the progress of a suit or action.

Mesne profits, profits derived from land while the possession of it has been held by a wrong owner.

“Mesne,” Old law French. “Mean” (base), O. E. mēnē, *v. mēn[an].

Mes’o- (Greek prefix) nouns, intermediate, the middle.

Mes’o-caecum, -sē’·kēm, a part of the large intestine. A hybrid. Lat. caecum, the blind gut, so called because (like a “blind alley”) it is open only at one end. [A blind needle has no eye]
Mes'o-carp, -kappon (in Bot.), between the epicarp and endocarp.
Greek meso-karpous, intermediate carp [fruit].

Mes'o-cheleum, keel.e.ium (in Bot.), the middle part of the labellum of orchids. (Greek chele, a claw, a lobe.)
Often spelt chillium, but this is grossly wrong, with another meaning.

Mes'o-colon, -kolon, the mesentery of the colon.
Greek meso-kolon, same meaning.

Mes'o-gastric, -gastrix, that which attaches the stomach to the walls of the abdomen. (Gk. gastér, the stomach.)

Mes'o-lite, -lite, a mineral intermediate between natrolite (3 syl.) and scopolezite (sko-lo.eitzite).
Greek meso-lithos, an intermediate stone or mineral.

Mes'o-phloëum, -phloeum, the middle layer of bark.
Greek meso-phloios, intermediate bark of plants.

Mes'o-phyllum, -phyllum, the fleshy part of a leaf which comes between the upper and lower membranes.
Greek meso-phyllon, the middle part of a leaf.

Mes'o-sperm, -sperm, the middle coat of seed.
Greek meso-sperma, the middle coat of seed.

Mes'o-sternum, -sternum, the lower half of the middle segment of the thorax in insects.
Greek meso-sternon, middle segment of the breast.

Mes'o-thorax, -thorax, the posterior part of the ali-trunk or thorax of insects, which bears the posterior wings and third pair of legs. (Greek thórax, thorax or ali-trunk.)

Mes'o-type, -type, a mineral called natrolite, intermediate between analcime (3 syl.) and stilbite (2 syl.).
Greek meso-typos, of an intermediate type.

Mes'o-zoic, -zoilc (not zoilc), the secondary geological period including the triassic, the lias, the oolite, the wealden, and the cretaceous groups. (Greek zóe, life.)

Mess. Miss. Moss (Rule v.)

Mess, a dish of food, a military ordinary, disorder, to dine at mess; messed, mest; mess'-ing; mess-mate.

Miss, the title given to young ladies, failure; to fail.

Mass, a religious service, a heap. (O. E. mese; Fr. masse.)

Moss, a family of cryptogams (Fr. mousse; Lat. muscous.)

"Mess" (food), Old E. mese, a table, v. mescan, to eat; Lat. mensa.
"Mess" (confusion), Lat. miscere, to mix, to throw into confusion.
"Miss" (a young lady), cont. of mistress. (to fail), O. Eng. miscan.

Message, més.säje, an errand. Message, més.sväge, a house.

Messenger, més'ni.jer, one who takes a message.
(This word ought to be messenger as it is in French.)

French message, messager; Latin mittere, supine missum, to send.
"Message," Old F. mesonage, meson, now maison; Low L. messudgium.
Messiah, mēs'-sē'-ah, "the anointed one." (It does not mean "The Sent," and has no connection with the Lat. missus.) Messi'-ah-ship (-ship, office, rank); messianic, -ān'-i-k. Heb. M[ē]-s[ē]-a-[h], anointed. Applied by Christians to Jesus Christ.

Messieurs, mēz'-ērz, plu. of Mr. [mister]. Measures, mēz'-ērz, q.v.

Messieurs (mes-sieurs, my sirs) is the Fr. plu. of Mon-sieur (my sir). In French it is pronounced mey séu', but in English mēzh'èrz, when preceding proper names: as Messieurs Jones, Smith, & Co., but when not followed by proper names we call the word mēs-sieur's. It is never written or printed in full, but always in the contracted form of Messrs. (in French MM.); neither is the sing. ever written or printed in full, but always in the con·tracted form of Mr. (in French M.)

The fem. of "Mr." is Mrs. mēs'-iz, plu. Mesdames, mez'-dāmz (in Fr. mey.dā'm), but the plural is almost exclusively used in the headings of newspaper announce·ments of levees, &c., in the cards of professional ladies, and those engaged in trade. In ordinary society we repeat the word Mrs. before each proper name.

For my own part, I cannot imagine why such a wretched perversion as "mess'ers" (Messrs.) should be preferred to the simpler and more English plural Mister (MM. or Mr.)

Messuage, mēs'-sē-gāj, a dwelling house. Mes'sage, an errand.

"Message," Low Latin measuagium; Old French mesonage, meson, now maison; Latin mānus, supine mansum, to abide.

"Message," Fr. message, v. messenger; Lat. mittēre, supine misum.

Met'a- (Gk. pref.) nouns, beyond, after, over, transference.

Metabasis, mē-tāb'-ā-sēs, transition. (Greek bāino, to go.) Met'a-carpus, -kar'-pus, the solid part of the hand between the wrist and the fingers. Metatar'sus, the solid part of the foot between the ankle and the toes; meta-car'pal, adj.

Greek meta karpos, beyond the wrist.

Metachronism, mē-tāk'-rōn-īzəm, the error of placing an event after its real date. The opposite fault is prochron· ism, prōk'rōn-īzəm, or placing a date before its proper time. Either fault is an Anachronism, an-āk'-rōn-īzəm, a false date. (Greek ana chōrōnōs, out of time.)

Greek meta chrōnōs, behind or after [the true] time.

Met'a-genesis, -dēn'-ē-sēs, the changes of form which the same being passes through in its different stages of exist· ence; mef'a-genetic, -dēn-mēt'-īk, adj. (Gk. gēnēsis, birth.) See. Met'a-morphosis, meta-phor, meta-phrase, meta·physics, &c., in their proper places.

Metal, Mettle, both mé'tl. Medal, Meddle, both mé'd'le.

Metal, mé'tl', forty-three of the elements are so called; metallic, mé.tl-lik, containing metal, &c.

Metalliferous, met'l-ř̄.č'r̄, earth or ore rich in metal.

Metallist, mé'tlíst, a worker in metals.

Metalliform, mé'tl-form, resembling metal.

Metalline, mé'tl-in, impregnated with metal;

Metallisation, mé'tl-iz-shún.

Metallise (R. xxxi.), mé'tl-ize, to render metallic, to imbue with metal; met'allised (3 syl.), met'allis-ing (Rule xix.)

Metallography, met'l-o-ḡ.ř̄-ʃy, a treatise on metals.

Metalloid, mé'tl-loid', the metallic base of the alkaloids and earths, inflammable non-metallic bodies: as sulphur and phos'phorus; metalloidal, mé'tl-oid'-ål.

Metallurgy, met'l-r̄.ḡ, (not mé.tl-.lur-ḡ), the art of working metals or obtaining them from ore; metallurgic, mé'tl-.r̄.dj̄k (not mé.tl-.lur-ḡk); metallurgist, mé'tl-.r̄.d̄j̄ist, one skilled in metals.

The perfect metals, those not easily oxidised: as gold, silver, and platinum.

The base metals, those easily oxidised: as copper, iron, lead, tin, and zinc.

Road metal, broken stones for roads.

White metal, wit̄e mé'tl, nickel or German silver.

Lat. mé.tallum, mé.tal·li·cus; Gk. mé.tallon; Fr. métal, métal·lique, mé.tal·li·fere, mé.tal·li·ser, mé.tal·li·ga·phie, mé.tal·li·gique, mé.tal·li·gis·te, mé.tal·li·grĭc.

"Metalliferous," Latin mé.tallum f̄ėr̄o, I bear metal.

"Metalloid," Greek mé.tallon eidos, like a metal.

"Metallurgy," Greek mé.tallon or·gon, metal work.

Metamorphosis, plu. metamorphoses, mé.t-ř̄.mor-s̄ēks, plu. -s̄ë̄z, change of form; metamorphic, mé.t-ř̄.mor-s̄ēk, adj.

Metamorphose, mé.t-ř̄.mor-ř̄ž, to change the form; metamorphosed, mé.t-ř̄.mor-ř̄žd̄; metamorphos-ing (Rule xix.), mé.t-ř̄.mor-ř̄ž-ing.

Metamorphic rocks, those which contain no trace of organic remains; metamorphic system.

(This is one of the most striking deviations from the classic models; both in Gk. and Lat. the "-pho" is long. In Gk. it is o-megs.)

Greek mé.tæmorphŏs (mεταμορφος, meta morphos, to change the form); Latin mé.tæmærphōs; French mé.tæmærphos, mé.tæmærphique, mé.tæmærphos·er.)

Metaphor, a resemblance implied but not introduced by any word of warning.

Simile, a resemblance claimed and introduced by a word of warning, such as like, as, &c.

Hope is the anchor of our faith (a metaphor).
Hope is like an anchor to our faith (a simile).
Judah is a lion’s whelp (a metaphor).
Judah is like a lion’s whelp (a simile).
He crouched down as a lion, even as an old lion (a simile).
Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path (a metaphor).
Benjamin shall raven as a wolf (a simile).

Metaphoric, mēt.ā.fōr’rīk; metaphorical, -fōr’*rīk*āl; metaphorical-ly, met’*fo*r*’ist.

Greek metaphōra (meta phorēō, to transfer [a word from its original bearing to something else]); Latin metaphora, metaphoricus.

Metaphrase, a word for word translation;
Paraphrase, a free translation in which the text is explained by a running commentary.

Greek metaphrāsis, (meta phrazō); Latin metaphrāsia.

Physics, fīz’āks, is that branch of science which explains all natural phenomena (Greek phusis, nature). Metaphysics is the science which comes after physics, being that which treats of the phenomena of mind or spirit.

Metaphysics includes—
1. Ontology, which treats of the nature and attributes of being.
2. Cosmology, which treats of the nature and laws of matter and motion as displayed in creation, &c.
3. Anthroposophy, *ān*t’thrō’pōs’ō’fy, which treats of the powers of man, and the motions by which life is produced.
5. Pneumatology, na’mā’tōl’ō’fy, which treats of soul, spirit, &c.

Metaphysician, mēt.ā.fī’iz’ā’n, one versed in metaphysics.

Latin metaphysica. The word, according to Dr. W. Smith (Class. Dict. art. Aristotelēs), arose thus: At the death of Aristotle, his fourteen treatises on "theoretical philosophy" were put together as one work, and styled ῥῶν μετὰ τὰ φυσικὰ, from the fact of their being placed μετὰ, after, τὰ φυσικὰ, the treatises in physics.

Metastasis, mēt’ā’tās’ā’sīs, the removal of a disease from one part of the body to another. (Gk. meta-sītās, change of place.)

Metatarsus, mēt.ā.tar’sūs, the solid part of the foot, between the ankle and the toes. Metacarpus, the solid part of the hand, between the wrist and the fingers; metatarsal.

Greek meta tarsos (tarsos is that part of the foot to which the leg is attached, including the instep), the "meta-tarsus" is beyond that, or between the "tarsus" and the toes.
AND OF SPELLING.

655

Metathesis, mé.tārth'.ē.sis, the transposition of a letter: as the older word asfyrh has become afryht (afright).
Greek métathēsis (meta tithēmi, to put after [its right place].
Metathorax, mé.t'a.rhō'.rāx, the third and last segment of the thorax of insects. The second segment is called the Mes'o-thorax. (Gk. meta thōrax, beyond the thorax.)

Mete (I yl.), to measure. Meet, tō encounter. Meat, meet, food.
Met-ed (R. xxxvi.), meet'-ed; meet-ing (R. xix.), meet'-ing.
Meter, meet·er, a measurer. Metre, meet''r (in poetry).
Metric System, the French system of weights and measures.
Metrology, me.tro.l'.o.gy, science of weights and measures.

"Mete," Old English meθθæn, past met, past part. mete.
"Meet," Old English meθθæn, past méθθ, past part. ge·met.

Metempsychosis, me.tem'.s'.ki/.sis, transmigration of the soul.
Greek metempsychōsis (meta en psuchō, to put life in [another body] after [it has left the present body].

Meteor, mé.tē.dr, an atmospheric phenomenon;
Meteoric, mé.te.dr''rik; meteoric stones, aerolites;
Meteor iron, aerolitic iron.
Meteorite, mé.te.dr.ō.rite, a solid substance falling from the higher regions of the atmosphere.
Meteorological, mé.te.dr.ō.rō.ś.dg'kāl, pertaining to the atmosphere and its phenomena; meteorologi·c.
Meteorology, mé.te.dr.ō.ś.gy, the science which explains the phenomena of the atmosphere.
Meteorologist, mé.te.dr.ō.ś.djist, one skilled in...
Meteoromancy, mé.te.dr.ō.ro.ś.mān'.sy, divination by thunder and lightning, falling stars, and so on.
Meteoroscope, mé.te.dr''röś.kōpe (Rule lxxiii.)

Latin metēōra (no singular number), metēōrologus, metēōroscopus;
Greek metēōros (meta eōra, with things lifted up aloft).

Meter, mé.ter, a measure, as gas-meter. Metro, mé.t'r, verse.

Old English meθθæn, to measure; meter, metre or verse.

Metheglin, me.rēyg'.lin, honey-wine. (Welsh meddyglyn.)
A compound of meθθæ, a doctor, and ilyn, tipple, v. ilyna, to booze.

Methinks, (past) methought, mé.thinks,mé.thought, it seems to me.
Old Eng. thin[cən], an impersonal verb, "it seems." The object was in the dat. case, as me thincth, methinks (mīhī vidētur), me ge-thūhte, me-thought (mīhī visīnum est). It was originally used with other personal pronouns, as the thincth, thē ge-thūhte, &c.
It is a gross error to suppose me-thinks is a corrupt form of I think[s]. "Me" is dative case, and "thinks" impersonal.

Method, mé.th'.ōd, order, systematic arrangement; methodic, me.thōd.īk; methodical, me.thōd.ī.kāl; method'ical-ly.
Methodise (R. xxxi.), mé.th'.ō.dize, to arrange systematically; meth'odised (3 yl.), meth'odis-ing, meth'odis-er.
Methodist, méth'R.o.o.ñist, a disciple of John Wesley; methodism, méth'R.o.o.ñism; methodistic, méth'R.o.o.ñistic'ish; methodistical, méth'R.o.o.ñistical'ish (a term of contempt meaning "canting," "hypocritical"); methodistically.

Greek méth'dós (mé'ta hódós), method, a searching after something systematically, scientific inquiry; Latin méth'dús, méth'dícu's (the Rom. méth'dóch, the latter obtained their knowledge by practice or experience, the méth'dícu's followed certain broad principles and diagnosed from general symptoms). The Methodists are so called from the strict "method," or religious rules they undertake to observe.

Methyl, méth'il, the hydro-carbon radical of méth'ylic alcohol.

Methylamine, me.rih'il.á.min, ammonia in which one atom of hydrogen is replaced by methyl.

Methylated, méth'il.á.tá.ted, imbued with methyl.

Meth'ylated spirit, spirit of wine mixed with one-tenth of its volume of naphtha or wood-spirit (it is duty-free because it is too nauseous to be used as a drink); méth'ylic.

Methylene, méth'il.á.tén, a very inflammable liquid procured from wood, and forming the basis of wood-spirit.

Greek méth'lulé, wine [of] wood.

Metis, mé'.tís, one of the asteroids (as'.te.roi'dz).

Métis, daughter of Oceanus, during pregnancy was swallowed by Zeus [Jove], and in due time Zeus himself gave birth to Athéna [Minerva], who sprang from his head, a woman of full stature.

Metonic, mé'.tón'ík, adj. of Meton, an Athenian astronomer.

Metonic cycle, -si'.k'l, a period of nineteen years, in which time the lunations of the moon repeat themselves.

Metonic year, a period equal to nineteen years.

Metonymy, mét'o.ní'mí, the substitution of one word for another: as I have read Homer; I know Milton well; metonymic, mét'o.ní'mí'ik; met'onymical, -ní'mí'.i.kál; met'onymical-ly.

Greek mét'énumía, mét'énumí'tíkos (mé'ta ónuma, change of word).

Mètre, me'.tr, verse. Meter, mé'.ter, a measurer: as gas-méter; metrical, mé'trí.kál, having rhythm; mé'trícal-ly.

Metric, mét'rík, denoting measurement; met'ric system, the French decimal system of weights and measures.

Metrology, mé'.tr'o.1.ó'gy, the science of weights and measures.

"Meter," Old Eng. mëter; Lat. metrum; Gk. mé'trón, mé'trakos.

"Meter," Old Eng. met[an], to measure; Lat. metrum; Gk. mé'trón.

Metrograph, mé'trô.gráf, an instrument for telling at what rate a train is moving, and for marking the moment of its arrival and departure from a station.

Greek metró'gra'pho, I write the measure [of speed].

Metronome, mét'tró.nó'me, an instrument for beating time; metronomy, mét'tró.nó'mí, measurement of time by a...

Greek metró'nó'me, measure [of the] divisions or bars.
Metropolis, met·trɔp·ə·lis, the capital; metropolitan, met·trɔp·ə·lɔ·tən, adj. The metropolitan, bishop of the metropolis, an archbishop; metropolitan-ate, the office or see of a metropolitan [bishop].

Greek μητροπόλις (mêter pólis, mother city); Latin metropolitānus.

Mettle, Metal, both met·'təl. Meddle, Medal, both mɛd·əl.

Mettle, met·'tl, spirit; mettled, met·'təld, high-spirited; mettle·some, -səm (-some, full of), full of mettle.

Metal, mɛt·əl, an element like gold, iron, &c. (Fr. métal.)

Meddle, mɛd·əl, to interfere. (Fr. mesler now mɛler.)

Medal, mɛd·əl, a metal token. (French médaille.)

”Mettle,” Old Eng. mɛdəl, high-spirited, mɛdəg, full of spirit.

Mew, plu. mews. Muse (1 syl.), goddess of song, to meditate.

Mew, a gull, to cry as a cat, to confine, to moul.

Mews, a range of buildings where horses are lodged.

The royal mews, the royal stables (not mewses).

Mewed, mɛwd; mew·'eding.

”Mews” (to moul), Fr. muer. “Mews” (stables), Fr. mue.

”Mew” (as a cat), Welsh mew. “Mew” (a gull), O. E. mew or maw.

”Muse,” Lat. musa (to meditate); Fr. musicer, to dawdle.

(In SS Geo. III. chap. 73, we have “mewses” as plural of mews, but Official English is notoriously untrustworthy.)

Mewl, to cry as a babe from uneasiness. Mule, an animal.

Mewled (1 syl.), mewl·'ing, mewl·'er.

”Mewl,” Fr. miauler. “Mule,” Old Eng. məl; Lat. mūlus.

Mezereon, me.ze·rə'žən, the spurge olive. (French mèzéréon.)

Mezzo- (Ital.), mɛd'zo.o, moderate, half, moderately.

Mezzo-forte, mɛd'zo.o fɔr.te (in Music), rather loud.

Mezzo-piano, mɛd'zo.o pəəh'no (in Music), rather soft.

Mezzo-soprano, plu. mezzo-sopranos (Rule xlii.), mɛd'zo.o so.prəh'noz, a low soprano or treble.

Mezzo-tuono, mɛd'zo.o tu.o'no, a semitone.

Mezzo-tinto, plu. -tintos (Rule xliii.), mɛd'zo.o tɛnt'toze, half-tint drawings in imitation of Indian ink.

Mi (Ital.), me, the third note of the tonic sol-fa system.

Miasma, mɛAz.məh, infection or pollution floating in the air from ill-drainage; miasmatic, mɪ.əz.mət.ɪk; miasmal.

Greek μίασμα, μίασμα, pollution (mιaino, to defile).

Mica, mɪ.kəl, Muscovy glass; micaceous (R. xlv.), mɪ.kəs'.ʃəs; mica schist. (Latin micasre, to glisten.)

Michaelmas, mɪkəl'ə.məs (Rule viii.), the feast of St. Michael.

Michaelmas day, September 29th; Michaelmas term (in Law), between the 2nd and 25th of November.
Mickle, mīkl, much. (Old English mycel or micel.)

Micro-, mīkro- (Gk. prefix), nouns, small. (Greek mikrōs.)

Mī'cro-cosm, -kōzm, applied to man, supposed to be an epitome of the universe or great world; mī'cro-cosmic, -kōs'mik; mī'cro-cosmical, -kōs'mik.āl.

Greek mikrōs kōsmos, a little world.

Micrography, mī.krōg'.rā.fy, a description of microscopic objects. (Gk. mikrōs grapho, I write about small things.)

Micrometer, mī.krōm'.e.ter, an instrument for measuring small objects, spaces, angles, &c.

Greek mikrōs métron, a meter of small things.

Microscope, mī'.kro.skōpē, an instrument for inspecting very minuto objects; microscopic, mī'.krō.skōp'ī.č; microscopical, mī'.krō.skōp'.ī.kāl; microscop'ical-ly; microscopist, mī'.krō.skōp'.ī.st; microscopy, mī'.krō.skōp'.ẹe. (Except in “panta·scope” and “tele·scope,” the vowel preceding -scope is always o.)

Greek mikrōs skōpēō, I inspect small objects.

Micro-zoa, mī'.kro.zō'.ah, minute animal organisms.

Greek mikrōs zōn, plu. zōa, minute living things.

Mid, middle; mid-day, mid-night, mid-land, mid-lent, mid-ship; mid'ship-man, a junior officer in a man-of-war, &c.; mid-way, mid-summer, mid-winter.

Middle, mīd·d.ľ: middle-ages, from the fall of the Western empire till the revival of learning (500–1500); middle-class, between the aristocracy and mechanics; middle-man, an agent, a go-between; middle-most; middle-passage, the part of the Atlantic between Africa and the West Indies; middle-post, the king-post; &c.

Middle·ling, mīd·ling, tolerable, mediocre.

Old Eng. mid-, middle, mid·day, mid·night, mid·lenten (mid·lent), mid·summer, mid·winter: mid·dan, adv. in the midst mid·de; mid·dent; mid·del, mid·del·fing·er, mid·del·fōr (floor).

Midden, a dunghill (Scotch).

Midge (1 syl.), a very small insect, a gnat. (Old Eng. mycg.)

Mid·riff, mīd·riff, the diaphragm. (Old Eng. mid, hri. f bowels.)

Midst (super. of mid), thickest of a throng; the middle. A corruption of mīd·dēs for to·mīd·dēs, adv.: as “to·day.”

(Adj.) The midst of it was pave with love (Cant. iii. 10).

(Adv.) Him first, Him last, Him midst, and without end (Milton).

ERRORS OF SPEECH.—

In our midst (should be In the midst of us).
In their midst (should be In the midst of them).
Into their midst (should be Into the midst of them).
Out of our midst (should be Out of the midst of us).

("Midst" is never a noun, nor even an adjective noun, and therefore cannot be used with an [adjective] possessive pronoun.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Midwife, plu. midwives, mid’iif, mid’iifz. an accoucheuse, midwife-ry, mid’iir-ry. (O. E. mid wif, with the woman.)

The Spaniards have a precisely analogous word, comadre (com madre, with the mother), a midwife.

Mien, meen, manner, air. Mean, meen, base, to intend.

Might, mite, power, past tense of may. Mite, a very little grub.

Might-y, mi’t’y, powerful. Mit-y, mi’t’y, full of mites.

Mighti-ly (Rule xi.), mii’t’i.ly; mighti-ness, mi’t’i.ness.

With might and main, with the utmost efforts.

Old Eng. miht, mihtig, mihtiglice, mihtignes, v. mihte of ma[an].

(We will be seen that the useless “g” is an interpolated letter.)

Mignonnette (double n), mi’n’yön.net’t” (not mignonette nor mignonette), the “little favourite” [flower].

French mignonnette (mignonne, a favourite, with dim.)

Migrate or Emigrate, mi’.grate, ɛm’i.grate. Immigrate, &c.

Migrate, to remove from one’s college or country to another.

Immigrate, to enter into a new country as a resident;

mi’grät-ed (R. xxxvi.), mi’grät-ing (R. xix.), mi’gratory.

Migration, mi.gray’.shi’in. (Latin migrätio, migräre.)

Mikado, plu. mikadoes (Rule xlii.), mi.kay’döze, priest-king of Japan. The temporal king is the Tycoon.

Milanese, mi’.län.eez, sing. and plu., native of Mil’an.

(Names of peoples in -ese are sing. and plu., as Chineese, Portuguese.)

Milch [cows] giving milk. (Old Eng. mele, milch, meele, milk.)

Mildew, mi’d’du, blight, to blight; mi’deewed (2 syl.), mildew-ing. (Old English mildeaw, honey dew.)

Mile (1 syl.), 1700 yards land measure; mile-age, fares paid by travellers per mile (-age, tax, toll, payment); mile-post, mile-stone; naut’ical mile, one sixtieth of a degree.

Latin miliare or milliarium (mille passus, a thousand paces).

Milfoil, mi’l.foil, the herb yarrow. (Latin millifolium.)

Militant, mi’l.tät. The Church militant, the Church on earth, so called because it is in a state of warfare.

The Church trium’phant, the Church in heaven.

Military, mi’l.ti.ry, pertaining to a soldier.

The military, the soldiery.

Militate, mi’l.tätate, to be in opposition to, to contradict; mi’lität-ed (Rule xxxvi.), mi’lität-ing (Rule xix.)

Militia, mi’l.tij’.ah, citizens trained as soldiers; militi-a-man, plu. -men, one serving in the militia.

Latin militans, gen. militantis, militarius, militia, warfare, militäre, supine militätum; French militant, militaire.
Milk (noun and verb), milked (1 syl.), milk-ing, milk-er, milk-y, milk’i-ness (Rule xi.), milk’i-ly, milk-maid; milk-tooth, plu. milk-teeth, the first teeth; milk-white; milk’y-way, a white zone in the heavens full of stars.

Milch, adj., giving milk. (Old Eng. meole, milk, melc, milch.)

Mill (retains its double l in all its compounds), milled (1 syl.); mill-ing, grinding, indenting the edge of coin, beating, the indented edge of coin, a beating; mill’-er; mill-board, -bord, a thick pasteboard; mill-dam, mill-pond; mill-race, the stream that drives a mill; mill-stone; mill-wright, -rite, one who constructs and repairs mills; treadmill.

Old English mili; Welsh melin, v. melino, melion, flour.

Millennium, mil’li.ni.əm, the thousand years when “Christ is to come in person to earth and reign.” (Rev. xx. 1-6.)

Millenarian, mil’le.nair’ri.ən, consisting of 1000 years, one who believes in the millennium; millenarian-ism.

Millenary, mil’le.ni.ər.i, consisting of 1000; Millinery, mil’li.ni.ər.i, goods made by a milliner; Millionary, mil’yi.ni.ər.i, consisting of millions.

Millennial, mil’le.ni.əl, pertaining to the millennium.

Millennial-ist, one who believes in the millennium.

(The words millenarian, millenarianism, millenary, ought to have double “n,” but we owe, as usual, our error to the French.)

Lat. mille annus, a thousand years. (In composition the a of annus becomes e, as biennial, triennial, septennial, millennium, etc.)

“Millenary,” a corruption of Milaner. At one time Milan, in Italy, set the fashion for dress. “Millenary,” by millions.

Millepede, mil’le.ped, an insect. (Lat. mille pedes, 1000 feet.)

Millepores, mil’le.porz, a genus of branching corals.

Milleporite, mil’le.por’ri, a fossil millepore (ite denotes a fossil); milleporide, mil’le.por’ri.de.

Latin mille porus, a thousand pores or minute cells.

Millet, mil’le.let, a plant containing small edible grains.

French millet; Latin miliun (mille grana, a thousand grains).

Milliner, mil’li.ner, one who makes women’s dresses.

Millinery, mil’li.ni.ər.i, the works of a milliner.

Millenary, mil’li.ni.ər.i, the space of a thousand years.

Millionary, mil’yi.ni.ər.i, consisting of millions.

“Milliner,” supposed to be derived from Milan, in Italy, once the mart and glass of fashion. “Millenary,” Latin mille, 1000.

Million, mil’yi.ən, seven figures; millionth, mil’yi.ənth, the ten-hundred-thousandth; millionaire, mil’li.o.nair (not mil’yi.ənair), a man worth a million of money.
Millionary, mil·i·ó·né·ry, consisting of a million, as the pundit’s millionary chronology.

Millionary, millinery (see above).

The million, the general public as opposed to the “Upper ten,” or aristocracy. (French million.)

Milt, fem. roe; milt, the “soft roe” or that of the male fish; roe, the “hard roe” or that of the female fish.

Milter, mil·ter, the male fish; spawn·er, the female fish; milt·ing, milt·er.

Mimic, mim·ik, one who imitates another, to imitate another; mimicked, mim·ik·ed (with -k.)

Mimicry, plu. mimicries, mim·ik·r·iz, imitation of another.

Latin mimus, mí·mi·cus; Greek mí·nós, an imitator of others.

Mimosa, mi·mo·sah, the sensitive plant; mí·mo·site, mi·mò·site, a fossil apparently of the mimosa family (-ite, a fossil).

Greek mí·nós, an imitator (of the sensibility of animals).

Minulús, mi·nú·lus, the monkey flower.

Latin mí·nus, one with a mask, alluding to the form of the corolla.

Minaret, mi·ná·ret, the lofty turret of a mosque. (Arab. menárah.)

Minatory, mi·ná·tory, threatening. (Latin minátio, a threat.)

Mince, to cut into small pieces, to be finical; minced (1 syl.), minc·ing (R. xix.), minc·ing·ly; mince-meat, -meat, a sweetmeat made of raisins, &c.; minced-meat, meat chopped into a mince. (French émincier, mince.)

Mind, the thinking faculty, to take care of, to attend to, to obey; mind·ed (R. xxxvi.), mind·ing; mind·less, mind·less·ness, mind·ful (R. viii.), mind·ful·ly, mind·ful·ness.

Never mind, take no heed of it, dismiss it from your thoughts.

Old English mynd; Latin mens, gen. mentis; Greek mé·nós.

Mine (1 syl.), poss. case of I, a pit containing minerals or ore, to dig for minerals or ore; min·ing (Rule xix.), mine·ing, pertaining to mines, digging a mine; min·y, min·é·y.

Miner, mi·ner, one who mines. Minor, mi·nor, under age.

“Ming” (a ‘pit’), Welsh mùn, whence min·né·all, money.

Mineral, Metal, mi·nè·rál, mét·l.

Minerals are such as stones, rocks, coals, salt, sand, &c. A mineral may or may not be a simple or elemental body.

Metals are such as gold, silver, lead, iron, zinc, tin, &c. A metal must be a simple or elemental body.

(N.B.—Metals are minerals, but minerals are not always metals).

Mineralise (Rule xxxi.), mi·nè·rál·ize, to impregnate with mineral matter, to convert to a mineral; min·é·ral·ised (4 syl.), mi·nè·ral·is·ing, mi·nè·ral·is·er; mi·nè·ral·ist.
Mineralisation, mīn'ēr.i.Ż.Ż.ʒ.ʃ̩̬n; mineral-blue;
mineral-caoutchouc, -koo.ʃhoo$k; mineral-charcoal;
mineral-green, carbonate of copper; mineral-oil, rock oil which oozes from the earth; mineral water.

Mineralogy (not minerology), mīn'ēr.ə.ʒ.ˈo.ɡ., the science of minerals; mineralogical, *mīn'ēr.ə.ˈlɔ.ɡ.ˈk.ʊ*l; mineralogical-ly; mineralogist, mīn'ēr.ə.ˈdʒ.ɪst.

French minéral, minéralogiste, minéralisation, minéralogique, minéralogie; Low Latin minera, a mine, minerarius, a miner.

Old English menglish, past mengdc, past part. mengcl.

Miniature, mīn.'a.tʃ.hər, a small portrait, on a small scale.

Paintings by the miniatorī, a set of monks noted for their paintings with minium or red lead. The first miniatures were the initial letters of rubrics, which generally contained the head of the Virgin or a saint, and hence the word came to signify a small likeness.

Minim, mīn.'ɪm (in Mus.), a note = half a semibreve (an open note with a tail), a liquid measure meaning one drop.

Min'ium, red-lead. Minimum, mīn.'ɪ.m.ɪm, the smallest quantity, opposed to maximum, mɪx.'ɪ.m.ɪm, the largest quantity.

“Minim.” In the ancient musical notation the note of longest duration was termed a “Large” = 2 longs, or 4 breves, or 8 semibreves, or 30 minims, “minima” being the least of the “breves” (or shorts). After this a new set of terms was introduced, crochet and quaver.

Minium, Latin mɪn.i.ʊm, vermillion, red-lead.

“Minimum,” Latin super. of some obsolete adj. meaning small.

Minion, mīn.'j.ʊn, a low unprincipled favourite of a prince.

French mignon; Italian mignone, a darling.

Minister, mīn.'ɪs.tər, a pastor, one of the state legislators, to wait on the sick, to perform the office of a pastor; ministered, mīn.'ɪs.ɪr.ɪd; minister-ing; ministra-tion, mīn.'ɪs.tɹ.ər.ʃə; ministra-tive, mīn.'ɪs.tɹ.ə.tr.ɪv; ministra-tant.

Latin minister, ministerialis, ministra-tia, v. ministra-tw.

Minium, minimum, minum, mīn.'ɪm.ɪm, mīn.'ɪ.m.ɪm, mīn.'ɪm.

Min'ium, red-lead. (Latin mɪn.ɪm, vermillion, red-lead.)

Min'imum, the least possible quantity. (Latin mɪnɪm.ɪm.)

Min'im, mīn.'ɪm, a drop, a note in music. (Lat. mɪnɪm.ɪm.)

Minnow, mīn.'nɔʊ, a small British fresh-water fish. (O. E. mɪnə.)

Minor, mīn.'nɔr, under age. Mi'ner, one employed in mines.

Minority, mīn.'nərɪ′tɪ.tɪ; minor key (in Mus.), the mode in which the third from the key-note is only three semi-tones above the tonic. In the major key it is four.
Minor Canon, priest vicar of a cathedral, &c., attached to one of the religious houses dissolved by Henry VIII. “Minor Canons” of cathedrals, &c., not affected by that “reform” are still properly called “priest vicars.”

“Minor,” Lat. minor, comp. deg. of some lost adj. meaning “little.” “Minor,” Fr. mine, a mine; Low Lat. minerarius, minera, a mine.

Minotaur, mi.n.o.taur, a bull with a man’s head. Miniature, mi.n’a.tchur, a small portrait. (Latin Minos taurus.)

Minster, mi.n’ester. Cathedral, ka.rieh.drul. Min’ster, a pastor; Minister, the great church of a monastery. (O. E. mynster.)

Cathedral, a bishop’s church. (Greek kathedra.) “Minister,” Latin minister, one who serves, v. ministrare.

Minstrel, mi.n’.streöl, a poet; minstrel-sy, the art of a minstrel. French minestrrel; Low Latin ministerialis, a servant. (-sy for “arts,” as poesy, minstrelsy, but -sy for “conditions,” R. lxv.)

Mint, a plant, the place where money is coined, to coin; mint’-ed (Rule xxxvi.), mint’-ing; mint’-age, that which is coined.

Mint julep (not julap), iced liquor flavoured with mint.

“Mint” (the plant), O. E. minde; (for money), O. E. mynît, money.

Minuet, mi.n’u.et, a dance, the tune adapted to the dance. French menuet (dancer menu, to dance with short steps).

Minus, mi.n’éls, the sign [-] denoting subtraction. (Lat. minus.)

Minute, mi.n’üte’, small, mi.n’.ü, the 60th part of an hour; minute’-ly, exactly; minute-ly, mi.n’ü.ly, every instant.

Minutia, pla. minutiae, mi.n’ü’.shë.ah, mi.n’ü’.shë.ë, the smallest particular. Minuet, mi.n’ü.ë, a dance.

Minute-book, mi.n’ü.book; min’ute-glass, min’ute-gun, min’ute-hand, min’ute-men (Americanism). Latin minütum, adj. minútus, minütia, pla. minütiax.

Miocene, mi.o.seen, the middle tertiarys; miocene period.

Greek metôn kainos, less recent, i.e., containing “fewer existing specimens” of plants and animals than the supervening groups.

Miracle, mi.r’ü.k’ël, a phenomenon produced by an especial interposition of divine power; miraculous, mi.rük’ü.lus; miraculous-ly, miraculous-ness; miracle-play.

Latin miraculum, miráculosus (mirum, a wonder, with dim.)

Mirage, mi.r’ü.lëj, reflection of terrestrial objects on the clouds. French mirage, looming (from miroir, a looking-glass).

Mire (1 syl.), deep mud; miry, mi.r’ëy; mi’ri-ness (Rule xi.)

Danish myr, a morass.

Mirror, mi.r’ü.r, a looking-glass, to reflect; mirrored, mi.r’ü.rëd; mi.rü.r-ing. (French miroir; Latin miror, to admire.) (The doubling of the r in this word is a blunder. See Mirage.)

Mirth, merriment; mirth’ful (R. viii.), mirth’ful-ly, mirth’ful­ness, mirth’less, mirth’less-ly. (Old English myrth.)
Errors of Speech

Mis- (native prefix), defect, error; evil, unlikeness.
Dis- denotes an active state of antagonism.
Un- denotes a passive state of antagonism: Thus Mis-belief is false belief; dis-belief, positive abstention of belief; un-belief, mere absence of belief.

Mis-adventure, -advén′tchūr, ill-luck, mishap.
Mis-alliance, -al.li′ ance, marriage below one's rank.

Misanthrope, mis′ânthrōpe, a man-hater; misanthropical, mis′-ânthrōp′i kal; misanthropical-ly, misan'thropy.
Greek misanthrōpos (misēd anthrōpos, I hate man).
Mis-apply, mis′áp′ply (not mis′a′ply), to apply to a wrong purpose; misapplied, mis′áp′plied; misapply-ing.

Misapplication, mis′áp′pli′ kay′ shūn.
Unapplied, un′áp′ plide, not applied at all (Rule lxxii.)

Mis-apprehend, mis′áp′pré.hend′, to misunderstand; mis'apprehend-ed, mis'apprehend-ing; mis'apprehension, -shūn. (Verbs in -d or -de add -sion, not -tion.)
Unapprehended, not apprehended (Rule lxxii.)

Mis-appropriate, mis′áp′pri′o′tate (not mis′á′pro′tate), to apply to a wrong use; mis'appropriat-ed (R. xxyvi.), mis'appropriat-ing (Rule xix.); misappropriation, mis′áp′ pro′pri′ at′i shūn (not mis′á′pro′ prā′ shūn).
In-appropriate, not appropriate, not pertinent.
Un-appropriated, not appropriated (Rule lxxii.)

Mis-becoming, mis′-bē′kūm′ ing, improper; misbecoming-ly;
Un'becoming, not suitable to the person or character.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbelieve, mis′bē′leev′, to believe erroneously; misbelieved, mis′bē′ leev′ ed′; misbeliev′ ing (Rule xix.), misbeliev′ er.

Disbelief, dis′be′leef, positive incredulity; disbelieve, &c.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbelieve, mis′bē′leev′, to believe erroneously; misbelieved, mis′bē′ leev′ ed′; misbeliev′ ing (Rule xix.), misbeliev′ er.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′ e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbelieve, mis′bē′leev′, to believe erroneously; misbelieved, mis′bē′ leev′ ed′; misbeliev′ ing (Rule xix.), misbeliev′ er.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′ e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′ e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′ e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.

Misbehave, mis′be′hāv′ e, to conduct oneself amiss; misbehaved' (3 syl.), misbehāv′ ing; misbehaviour, -bē′hāv′ yer.
AND OF SPELLING.

Miscellaneous (Rule lxvi.), *mīs*s.el.lā.nēz, *mīs*s.el.lā.nēs, *mīs*s.el.lā.nēs-ly, miscellaneous-ness, miscel'lanist. Latin miscellāneae (plu.), miscellāneus (miscère, to mix).

Mischief, plu. mischiefs (not mischieves, R. xxxix.), mīs.tchīf; mischievous, mīs.tchī.vūs (not mīs.tcheed.vūs); mis'chievous-ly, mis'chievous-ness. (Old French mēchēf).

Misconceive, mīs.kōn.sēv' (Rule xxviii.), to misapprehend; misconceived' (3 syl.), misconceiving' (Rule xix.).

Un'conceived' (3 syl.), not conceived (Rule lxxii.).

Misconstrue, mīs.kōn.strū (not mīs.kōn.strē), to construe amiss, to interpret wrongly; misconstrued (3 syl.), misconstruing. (Verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ne, retain both before -ing, Rule xix.); misconstruction, mīs.kōn.strūk'shūn. Unconstrued (3 syl.), Rule lxxii.

Miscount, mīs.koun't, to make a mistake in counting; miscount'ed (Rule xxxvi.), miscount'ing. Uncounted.

Miscreant, mīs.kriānt, a vile unprincipled wretch.

The word means "one who holds a wrong faith;" French mescreant; Latin credere, to believe, with the prefix ntis.

Misdate, mīs.dāt', to give a wrong date; misdated'ed (R. xxxvi.), misdated'-ing (R. xix.). Undated, not dated at all (R. lxxii.)

Misdeed; mīs.di'ed, an evil action.

Misdemeanour, mīs.dē.mēn'.er, a petty crime, ill conduct.

Undirected'ed, not directed at all (Rule lxxii.).

Indirect', not straightforward; indirect'ly, indirect'ness.

Misdoin, mīs.doo'.ing, wrong behaviour; misdoer, -doo'.er.

Undone, ūndūn, not done (Rule lxxii.)

Misemploy, mīs.ēm.ploy', to employ to no good purpose; misemploys (not -plois, Rule xiii.), misemployed' (3 syl.), misemploying'. Unemployed, not employed (R. lxxii.)

Miser, mīz.er, a hoarder of money; miser'ly, avaricious.

Latin mīz.er, miserable, misérabilis (Greek mīs, I hate).
Errors of Speech

Misfeasance or malfeasance, -fay'-zance, a culpable act, a trespass; misfeasant, mis.fay'-zant; misfeasor, -fay'-zor.

Whaton spells these words with z. French malfaisance.

Misfit', a bad fit, to fit badly; misfit'-ed, misfit'-ing (Rule iii.)

Misform', to form badly; misformed (2 syl.), misform'-ing.

Misfortune, mis.for'-tchune, ill fortune, disaster, calamity.

Misgive, (past) misgave, (past part.) misgiven, -giv', -gave, giv'n, to fail in courage or confidence; misgiv'-ing.

Misgovern, mis.gow'-ern, to govern ill; misgoverned, mis.gow'-e'rn'd; misgov'en-ment.

Misguide, mis.gide', to mislead; misguid'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), misguid'-ing (Rule xix.), misguid'-ing-ly, misguid'-er, misguid'-ance. Unguid'-ed, not guided (Rule lxxii.)

Mishap', an accident; mishapp'-en (Rule iii.), to happen ill.

Mishna, mish.nah. Gemara, ge.mah'-rah. Talmud.

Mishna, the oral or traditional law of the Jews; mish'nic.

Gemara, comments and notes on the Mishna.

Talmud, the Mishna and Gemara together.

"Mishna," Hebrew shanah, to learn, Instruction (not repetition).

"Gemara," Chaldee, means supplement.

"Talmud," Hebrew lamad, to teach, Teaching.

Misimprove, mis'.im.proo'v', to deteriorate; misimproved' (3 syl.);

misimprov'-ing (R. xix.), -proo'ving; misimprove'-ment.

Unimproved, un'.im.prooved', not improved (Rule lxxii.)

Misinform, mis'.in.form', to give wrong information; misinform'-ed (3 syl.), misinform'-ing, misinforma'-tion, -shun.

Uninformed, not informed (Rule lxxii.)

Misinterpret, mis'.in.ter'pret, to interpret incorrectly; misinter'-pret-ed (Rule xxxvi.), misinter'-pret-ing, misinter'-pret'er; misinterpretation, mis'.in.ter.pré't.tay'shun.

Misjudge, mis.judge', to judge incorrectly; misjudged' (2 syl.), misjudg'-ing (Rule xix.), misjudg'-ment (-dje and -ue drop -e before -ment, Rule xviii.)

Mislay', (past) mislaid, (past part.) mislaid (laid, paid, said, sêd, are irregular in spelling, they should be layed, payed, sayed, Rule xiii.); mislay'-ing.

Mislead, (past) misled, (past part.) misled, mis.lead' mis.leâd, to lead astray; mislead'-ing; mislead-er, mis.lead'er.

Misletoe, mis'sl.e'tô, an epiphyte bearing white berries.

Old English misteld: German mistel, the mistletoe.

Mismanage, mis.mán'-age, to manage badly; misman'aged (3 syl.), misman'ag-ing (Rule xix.), misman'age-ment.

Misname, mis.name', to call by a wrong name; misnamed' (2 syl.), misnämed'-ing (Rule xix.) Unnamed, not named.
AND OF SPELLING. 667

Misnomer, mis.nōˈmər, a wrong name. (Latin nōmen.)

Misogamist, mīs.ˌsōɡ.ˈə.mīst, a hater of marriage; misogamy, mīs.ˌsōɡ.ˈə.my. (Greek misēo gamōs, I hate marriage.)

Misogyny, mīs.ˌsōɡ.ˈə.nī, aversion to women; misogynist.

Greek misēo gūnē, I hate women.

Misplace, mīs.ˌplās.ˈk. To put in a wrong place; misplaced' (2 syl.), misplace'ing (Rule xix.), misplace'-ment.

Displace', to remove from its proper place; displaced', displace'ing, displace'-ment. Unplaced', not placed.

Misprint, mīs.ˌplānt, an error in printing, to print erroneously; misprint'ed, misprint'ing. Unprint'ed, not printed.

Misprison, mīs.ˌprous.ˈh.ən, an offence bordering on criminality, from gross neglect, &c. (French mēpris.)

Mispronounce, mīs.ˌprō.nounˈs, to pronounce amiss; mispronounced' (3 syl.), mispronounce'ing (Rule xix.); mispronunciation, mīs.ˌprō.nounˈs.ə.ˈshūn.

Unpronounced, not pronounced at all. (Rule lxxii.)

Misquote, mīs.ˌkwōtˈe, to cite incorrectly; misquot'ed (R. xxxvi.), misquot'ing (R. xix.); misquotation, -ˌkwōtˈe.ˌshūn.

Unquot'ed, not quoted (Rule lxxii.)

Misreckon, mīs.ˌrekˈk.ən, to compute incorrectly; misreck'oned (3 syl.), misreck'on-ing. Unreck'oned (Rule lxxii.)

Misreport, mīs.ˌrēp.ˈrōrtˈ, to report incorrectly; misreport'ed (R. xxxvi.), misreport'ing. Unreport'ed, not reported.

Misrepresent, mīs.ˌrēp.ˈrē.zəntˈ, to represent incorrectly;

misrepresent'ed (Rule xxxvi.), misrepresent'ing;

misrepresentation, mīs.ˌrēp.ˈrē.zənˈtə.ˌshūn.

Unrepresented, unˌrēp.ˈrē.zənˈtə.ˌtēd, not represented (R. lxxii.)

Misrule, mīs.ˌrūlˈ, unjust rule, to rule badly; misruled' (2 syl.), misrūlˈing (Rule xix.). 'Unruled', not ruled (Rule lxxii.)

Miss, plu. misses, mīsˈ ēz, the title of address conferred on young unmarried women above the lowest grade;

Miss, to fail; misses, missed (1 syl.), missˈ-ing, Mist, fog.

"Miss" (title), cont. of mistress. "Miss" (verb), Old Eng. miss(ian).

Missal, the mass-book of the Latin Church. (Ital. messale.)

Missel, a bird of the thrush species. (Germ. mistel-drossel.)

Missile, any weapon thrown. (Lat. missile, mitto, to send.)

Missive, a letter or message sent. (French missive.)

Misshape, mīs.ˌshāpˈe, to shape amiss; misshaped' (2 syl.), misshāpˈ-ing (Rule xix.); misshapen, mīs.ˌshāpˈ.pən.

Unshaped', not shaped; unshapen (Rule lxxii.)

46
Missile, miss.‘s.l, a weapon to be thrown. (See Missal.)

Mission, miss.‘.n, a message, a missionary station, special missionaries, persons sent on any special business; Missionary, plu. missionaries, miss.‘.n.‘.ríz.

Latin missio, gen. missionis (missus, sent); French missionnaire.

Missive, miss.‘.év, a letter or messenger sent. Missile, miss.‘.s.l, a weapon intended to be thrown. Missal, missel (see Missal).

Misspell (not misspel), miss.‘pell, to spell incorrectly; misspelt, misspell-ing (double s and double l).

Misspend, (past and past part.) misspent, to spend amiss; misspend-ing. Unspent, not spent (Rule Ixxi.).

Misstate, miss.‘tate, to state incorrectly; misstated (R. xxxvi.), misstating, misstate-ment (double s). Unstated.

Mist, fog. Missed, miss (past tense of the verb) miss (q.v.)

Mist-‘y, misti-ness (R. xi.), misti-ly.

I am mistaken (deponent verb), I make a mistake, &c.

Old English mis-tackan, past tack, past part. tacken.

Misteach, (past) mistaught, (past part.) mistaught, -teach, -taught; misteach-ing. Untaught, not taught (Rule Ixxii.).

Old English mis-taught, past taught, past part. taught.

(It will be seen that the useless "i" is interpolated.)

Mister (written and printed Mr.), the title of address to men above the lowest grade, not servants; plu. Messieurs (cont. Messrs.). When given to a firm, pronounced mēz.‘erz.

"Mister," a corruption of Lat. magister, master; Old Fr. maistre (now maître). "Messieurs," Fr. (plu. of monsieur), mes.‘er.

Mistime, mis.tím, to neglect the proper time; mistimed (2 syl.), mistim-ing. Untime‘ly, inopportune; untime‘li-ness.

Mistral (Fr.), mis.tl.trōl, a north-west wind in the Mediterranean.

Mistranslate, mis.‘trōn.‘late, to construe incorrectly; mistranslated (R. xxxvi.), mistranslating, -trans.lay‘.shūn. Untranslated, not translated (Rule Ixxii.).

Mistress, fem. of Master, mis.tri.ś, mas.‘ter, a teacher, one who employs others. As a title of address it is not now employed, we use Mrs. (mis.‘ez), instead. (O.F. maistresse.)

Fr. maistre, now maitre (Lat. magister), maistre-esse, now maître-esse.

Distrust, suspicion, to hold in suspicion; distrust-ed, &c.

Untrust-ed, not confided in (R. Ixxii.); untrustily, &c.

"Distrust" expresses a stronger degree of doubt than mistrust.
AND OF SPELLING.

669

Misunderstand, (past) misunderstood, (past part.) misunderstood, miszun.der.stánd; -stood' (to rhyme with good); misunderstanding'-ing, a slight quarrel, error of judgment.

Misuse, (noun) mís.ázoe', (verb) mís.ázé', ill usage, to use amiss; misused, mís.ázed'; misus-ing (Rule xix.), mís.ázé.ing.

Misusage, mís.ázage, ill treatment.

Disuse, (noun) dis.ázoe', (verb) dis.ázé', discontinuance of the use, to discontinue to employ; disásed, disás'ing.

Unused, un.ázed', not used; unuse-ful, un.ázé'ful, &c.

Mite (1 syl.), one of the ace'ari, common in cheese, a small coin;

Mity, mite'.y, full of mites. Might, mite, power; might-y.

Mitigate, mít'igt.ate, to alleviate; mit'igt.ed (Rule xxxvi.), mit'igt.ing (Rule xix.), mit'igt.ant, mit'igt.or (Rule xxxvii.); mitigable, mít'igt.b'l; mitigative, mít'igt.at.ive.

Mitigation, mít'igt.sh.ation, alleviation.

Latin mitigatio, mitigit.or/mitigare (mitis ago, to make mild).

Mitrailleuse (French), mít'trl.ázé', a many-barrelled gun having the barrels bound together like a faggot. First used in the Franco-Prussian war, 1870.

Mitre, mít' I r, a bishop's crown, junction of [mouldings] at an angle of 45 deg., to join [mouldings] at an angle of 45 deg.; mitred, mít' I rd, adorned with a mitre, joined at an angle of 45 deg.; mitring, mít' I ring (not mi't.ter.ing); mitre-square, for striking angles; mitre-wheels, two wheels of equal diameter acting together with their axes at right angles; mitriform (not.-tre-), mít ' I .tr.iform (in Bot.)

Latin mitra; French mitre. "Miti-form" is ill-compounded.

Mittens, mít't'ns, gloves without fingers, also called mitts.

(Might a pair can be separated into two perfect articles, it has a singular, as a mitten, a glove, otherwise it has no singular, as longs, nutcrackers, tweezers, scissors, &c.)

Mittimus, mít'tim.es, a writ authorising the removal of a record, a precept to a goaler to keep in prison the person named. (From the first words of the writ—We send.)

Mix, (past.) mixed, mixt, (past part.) mixed, to mingle mix'ing; mixedly, mix'é.d.ly; mix' er, mixtly.

Mixture, mix'é.țchúr; mix'able; mixțion, mix' sh.án.

Latin misère, supine mixtum (Greek misgo or mignum, to mix).

Mixen, mix'é'n, the dunghill, a laystall. "Better wed over the mixen than over the moor," i.e., Better wed near home than among strangers. (Old Eng. mix, dung, mixen.)

Mizzen [or mizen], mix'é'zn, a spanker; mizen-mast, the aftermost mast of a ship. (Italian mezzana.)
Mizzle, *miz'z*l, a fine rain; to rain with fine rain; mizzled, *miz'zld; mizzling, *miz'ling. (Old Eng. mistel[ian].)

Mnemonic, mənə'nik, the art of aiding memory. (All the sciences with this ending (except arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric) are plural, Rule i.xi.); mnemonic.

Gk. mnēmōnīkos (mnēmē, memory); Lat. mnēmōntica, mnēmōnticus.

Moa, an extinct gigantic bird of New Zealand.

Moor, a heath, a north African. (O. E. mōr; Lat. Mauritania.)

More, comp. of much. (Old Eng. māre, comp. of mycel.)

Mower, one who mows. (Old English māw[an], to mow.)

Moan, mōnē, a groan, to groan. Mown, cut with a scythe. Moaned (1 syl.), moan'ing (noun and part.), moan'ing-ly, moan'er, moan'-ful (Rule viii.), moan'-ful-ly.

"Moan," Old English mōn[an], past mōnde, past part. mōned.

"Mown," Old English māw[an], past mōw, past part. mōwen.

Moat'-ed, having a moat; moat'-ing. (Fr. motte, a clod.)

"Moat" (a "mound"), like "dike," is transferred to the ditch.

Mote, a fine particle, like dust, floating in the air. (O. E. mot.)

Moot, debatable, to debate. (Old English mōt, a council.)

Mute (1 syl.), silent, dumb. (Latin mātus, dumb.)

Mōb, the rabble, to taunt, to jeer; mobbed, mōbd.; mobb'-ing (Rule i.); mobb'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); mobb'ish-ly; mōb-law.

Mobocracy, *mōb''ək''rəs'ə, the rule of the rabble (a hybrid).

Mob-cap, an undress cap for women tied under the chin.

The word "mob," applied to the populace, originated in the "Green Ribbon Club," in the latter part of the reign of Charles II. "The rabble first claimed this title and were called the 'mob' [mobile vulgus] in the assemblies of this club" (North's Exam. p. 574).

Mobile, mō''bıl, susceptible of motion; mobility, *mōb''i$l''t''i,ty.

Mobilise (not mobalise, Rule xxxi.), mōb''iliz, to call into active service; mobilised (3 syl.), mobilis-ing (R. xix.)

Mobilisation, mōb''i$l''zəz',shən, calling troops together for active service. Demobilise, to dismiss troops from active service; demobilised, demobilisation, &c.

Lat. mobilis, mobilitas (mōvēre, to move). To "mobilise and demobilise [troops]" came into general use in the Franco-Prussian war.

Ochlocracy, *ōk''lək''rəs, the mob.

All words derived from the Greek kratia are spelt with -cy: as aristocracy, autocracy, plutocracy, democracy, &c.
Mocassin, mōkˈkāsin (not mōk kāˈsən), a shoe without a sole, worn by American Indians. (Indian word.)

Mocha, mōˈkāh (in Arabia); mocha-coffee, mocha-stone.

Mock, a counterfeit, a sneer, to mimic, to deride; mocked (1 syl.), mockˈing, mockˈing-bird, mockˈing-ly, mockˈer.

Mockery, plu. mockeries, mōkˈe-riz, derision, mimicry, To make a mock of, to turn into ridicule.

Welsh moc, v. mōcio, mociad, a mocking.

Möde (1 syl.), manner. Mood [in Gram.], a temper of mind.

Modish, mōˈdish, fashionable; moˈdish-ness.

Modist, one who follows the mode or fashion.

Modiste, a fashionable milliner. (French modiste.)

Modest, chaste, diffident. (Latin mōdestus.)

Modˈel, a pattern, to make a model; modelled, mōˈdəld, modˈell-ing (Rule iii., -əl), modˈell-er. (Fr. modèle.)

Modal, mōˈdəl, having the form without the essence; moˈdəl-ist, one who considers the Trinity as three modes, not three persons; moˈdəl-ly, modˈal-ity, (Fr. modalité.)

Module, mōˈdəl (in Arch.), a measure equal to the semi-diameter of a column. (Lat. mōdulus, chapter of a pillar.)

Moderate, (adj.) mōˈdərət, (verb) mōˈdərət, temperate, to restrain; modˈerət-ed (R. xxxvi.), modˈerət-ing (R. xix.), modˈerət-ly, modˈerət-or (R. xxxvii.), moderator-ship (-ship, office, &c.), modˈerat·ed, modˈerat·ing, -at·or (R.xxxvii.), moderator-ship (-ship, office, &c.), modˈerat·ness.

Moderation, mōˈdərətˈshən; moderator, mōˈdərətˈto. Latin mōderatio, mōderat-or, mōderatus, v. mōderāri. Italian moderato (in Mus.), between andante and allegro.

Modern, mōˈdərn, recent, not ancient; modˈer-n-ness.

Modernise, mōˈdərnˌiz (Rule xxxi.), to make modern; modernˈis-ism, modernˈis-ed (3 syl.), modˈernis·ing, -is·er.

Modernisation, mōˈdərnˌizˈshən; modˈern-ist. Fr. moderne (Lat. modo-ernus, as in hodi·ernus, hes·ternus, &c.)

Modˈest, chaste, diffident; modˈest-ly, modˈest·y.

Modˈist, one who follows the mode or fashion. (Fr. mode.)

Modiste, mōˈdeestˈ, a fashionable milliner. (Fr. modiste.)

Latin mōdestia, mōdestus (mōdus); French modesto, modesté.

Modicum, plu. modicums, mōˈdikəm, a small quantity.

Latin mōdicum, plu. mōˈdra (mōdus, a measure).
Modify, ˈmɒd.ɪˌfaɪ, to change slightly; modifies, ˈmɒd.ɪˌfais; modified (Rule xi.), ˈmɒd.ɪˌfaɪd; modifying, ˈmɒd.ɪˌfiŋ, modˈɪfɪ-er, modˈɪfə-ble; modifiability, ˈmɒd.ɪˌfə.ˈbɪlə.ti.
Modification, ˈmɒd.ɪˌfæk.ʃən, a slight alteration.
Latin modifiˈkāto, v. modifiˈcāre; French modification, v. modifier.
Modish, ˈmɒd.ɪʃ; modist, modiste, &c. (See Mode.)
Modulate, ˈmɒd.ə.late. Moderate, ˈmɒd.ə.riət.
Modulate [the voice], to speak more musically, not so harshly; Moderate [the voice], to speak more softly, not so loud.
Moderate-ed (R. xxxvi.), modˈə.ˈriə.t-ing (Rule xix.).
Modˈə.ˈriə.t-or (Rule xxxi.); modulation, ˈmɒd.ə.ˈlay.ˈʃən.
Lat. modˈə.ˈtā.tiə, modˈə.ˈtā.tor, modˈə.ˈtā.ri, to warble; Fr. modulation.
Module, ˈmɒd.ə.ˈləl (in Arch.), a measure equal to the semi-diameter of a column. (Lat. mōdulus, the chapter of a pillar.)
Modal, ˈmɒd.ə.ˈdæl, having the form without the essence.
Model, ˈmɒd.ə.ˈdəl, a pattern. (French modèle; Latin mōdus.)
Mēso-Gothic, mē.ˈso ˈgoθ.ə.k, pertaining to the Goths who settled in Mēsia, in Europe, the language of the Mēso-Goths.
Mogul [or mongul], mō.ˈgʊl, a native of Mongoˈliə (E. Asia).
Great mogul, the ruler of the Moguls (extinct).
Mongolian, mō.ˈɡoʊ.ˈliən, a native of Mongoˈliə.
Mohair, mō.ˈhār, hair of Angoˈra goats (Asia Minor).
Du Levantin moilˈəkar, ˈtwaˈsɛn pəl də ˈʃəvr (Bouillet).
Mohammed, mō.ˈhəm.ˈməd; mohamˈmedan, mohamˈmedan-ism; mohamˈmedan-ise. (See Mahomet.)
Mohawk or mohock, mō.ˈhɔk; a set of ruffians who infested London in the last century; a tribe of American Indians.
Moidore, mō.ˈdɔr (not mō.ˈdər), a Portuguese coin = 27s. French-Portuguese for moeda d'ouro.
Moisˈti, pla. moisˈtiˌti, the half. (French moitiˈe.)
Moil (1 syll.), to toil; moiled (1 syll.), moilˈ-ing, moilˈ-er.
Moire (French), mwar, a wavy appearance called “watering”: as moire de soie, moire de laine, moire de coton; moiré, mwarˈray, watered: as moiré antique, ruban moiré; moirage, mwarˈraʒ, “watering” fabrics.
Moist (1 syll.), damp; moistˈ-ness, moistˈ-ly, moistˈ-ful (R. viii.)
Moisten, mwaɪˈn, to make damp (-en in verbs means “to make”); moistened, mwaɪˈnd; moistenˈing, mwaɪˈnɪŋ; moistenˈer, mwaɪˈner; moisture, mwaɪˈtʃʊər; -less.
Old French moiste, now moite, moiture.
Moˈlar [tooth, pla. teeth], the grinders. (Latin mōtə, a mill.)
Molasses (Ought to be Melasses), mol·las.s, treacle, syrup.
(The word is both sing. and plu. In speaking of a single specimen we say This molasses is excellent, but in speaking of different specimens we say These molasses are excellent.)
Port. melasses; Fr. mélasse; Gk. méli. ("Mo" is a blunder.)
Mole (1 syl.), a little animal that throws up mole-hills, a mound.
Mole-spot, a mark on the human skin; mole-bat, a fish;
mole-cast, a mole-hill; mole-eyed, -ide, nearly blind;
mole-catcher; mole-skin, a stout twilled cotton cloth with close pile; mole-track, the "run" of a mole.
"Mole" (the animal), Dutch mole; O.E. molde-worce, mould-thrower.
"Mole" (a mound), French mole; Latin móles, a mound.
"Mole" (a spot), Old English mal or mót, a mole or spot.
Molecule, mol·y·kül (not mół·e·kül), a small mass, a very minute particle of matter; molecular, mol·é·külar;
Molecular attraction, mol·é·külar at·trakt.shún.
Molecularity, mol·y·külar·ità, the state of being...
French molécule; Latin móles, a mass, with -cule, diminutive.
Molest, mol·est’, to annoy; molest’-ed (R. xxxvi.), molest’-ing, molest’-er, molest’-ful; molestation, mol·ést.á·shún.
Latin molestia, molestus, v. molestare, to vex; French molesté.
Molinist, mó·lin·ist, a disciple of Mo’lina, a Spanish priest, whose opinions resembled those of Armin’ius.
Molinism, mó·lin·izm, the dogmas of Mo’lina.
Mollify, mol·í·fy, to soften, to appease; mollifies (Rule xi.), mol·í·fye; mollified, mol·í·fied; mol’lifi-er;
mol’lifi-able, mol’lifi-ing. Mollification, mol·i·fi·ká·shún.
Lat. mollificátiō, mollificáre (mollis, soft). "Mollification" not Fr.
Mollusc, mol·ús·k (not möl·us·k), snails, slugs, oysters, and other animals devoid of a bony skeleton; mollusca, mol·ús·kah, Cuvier’s second great "division" of the animal kingdom; mollus’can; molluscous, mol·ús·kus; molluskite, mol·ús·kít (-ite denotes a fossil), a mollusc fossilised.
Molluscoïda, mol·ús·kói·dah, molluscs with horny integuments. (Latin molluscus; Greek eidos, like a mollusc.)
In Latin we have mollusca and molluscum, but they do not mean
"mollusc." Cuvier has taken the word and given it a special sig-nification (mollusk, Greek mállákos, soft).
Moloch, mó·lókh, chief god of the Phenicians and Ammonites.
Moly, mó·l (Gk. molu.)
Moment, mó·ment, 60th part of a minute, an instant, importance.
Momentaneous (R. lxvi.), mó·mén·tay'·né·ás, momentary.
Momentary, mó·mén·tár·i·rí, lasting only an instant;
mo’mentar’-ly (Rule xi.); mo’ment’-ly, every moment;
Momentous, mó·mén·tus, important; mo’ment’ous’-ly, mo’ment’ous’-ness. Mo’ment’um, impetus.
Lat. mo’mentán·eus, mo’mentár·i·us, mo’mentum.
Mon- (Greek prefix), alone, only one. (Greek mονός.)

This prefix is always mono- except when ο follows.

Monad, mον'ād (not mον-ναδ), an ultimate atom; monadic, mον-να-d'ικ; monadical, mον-να'd'ικ-άλ.

Greek mονας, gen. mοναδ-ος, a unit, an atom.

Monadelphia, mον'-ν-δ-έλφί-, i.e., (in Bot.), plants having hermaphrodite flowers in which (like the mallow) all the stamens are united into one bundle through which the pistil passes; monadelph, mον'-ν-δ-έλφ; one of the monadelphia; monadelphian, -ν-δ-έλφ-ι-άν; monadelphous.

Greek mονος adelphia, a solitary brotherhood. (Linnaeus called the stamens of flowers manhood (andria), the pistils womanhood (gynia), and stamens in bundles brotherhood (adelphia).

Monarch, mον'αρκ, a sovereign, a sole ruler;

Monarchy, plu. monarchies, mον'-ν-αρ-κίς, the dominion of a monarch; monarchical, mον'-αρ-κι-κις.

Monarchical, suitable to a monarch. monarchical, mον-ν-αρ-ικ-ικ; vested in a monarch, pertaining to...; monarchical-ly; monarchic, mον-ν-αρ-ικ.

Monarchise, mον'-ν-αρ-ι-κίς, to assimilate to a monarchy; monarchised, mον'-ν-αρ-ι-κίζ; monarchising (Rule xix.), mον'-ν-αρ-ι-κί-ζ-ίν, tyrannising.

Greek mοναρχος, mοναρχία (mονος, arch). I rule alone.

Monastery, plu. monasteries, mον-ν-ασ-τέρ-ίς, a convent; monastic, mον-ν-ασ-τικ; monastical, mον-ν-ασ-τικ-άλ.

Monastic, mον-ν-ασ-τικ; monastic-ly; monasticism, mον-ν-ασ-τικ-ις.

Monasticon, mον-ν-ασ-τίκ-ις, a book on monasteries. Greek mοναστήριον (mονος, alone); Latin mοναστήριο, mοναστικus.

Monday, mον'-ν-άν, the first secular day of the week.

Old English monan-daeg, the day sacred to the moon (mονη).

-monde (Fr.), mον-; beau-monde, bο'-ν-άν, the fashionable world; demi-monde, dεμ'-ν-άν, a euphemism for what the Greeks called hεταιρία (hεταίρες). Plato defines hεταιρία as "mετέτριξ speciósō nomine rem odiośam denota". Plut. et Athen.

Money, mον'-ι. Cash.

Money, current coin, that which represents money.

Cash, money kept in a till, money as an article of trade, as in banks, &c. (French caisse, a strong box.)

Moneys (not monies, Rule xiii.), different sums of money collectively considered;

Moneyed (often but improperly written monied, Rule xiii.), rich; moneyer, one of the officers of the royal mint to superintend the coining of money; money-less.

Monetary, mον'-ετέρ-ί. Monitory, mον'-ετέρ-ί.
Monetary, pertaining to money;
Monitory, admonition, warning. (Latin moneo.)

Money-changer, mon'ey-lender, mon'ey-mark'et, mon'ey-mort'ers, mon'ey-ord'ers;
Money-scrivener, mün'y skrív'ner, one who raises money for others; money's worth, mün'ěz wurth.

Old Eng. mynet, mynetere, a moneyer; Fr. monnaitre!! The Roman mint was once the temple of Juno Moneta (the warner of danger).

-monger, mün'ger, a dealer: as fish-monger, fell-monger, iron-monger, cheese-monger. (Old English monger, a dealer.)

Old Eng. mangere, a merchant, v. mangian, to traffic, mangus.

Mongolian, mōn'gō'lian, a native of Mongolia. (See Mogul.)

Mongrel, mōn'ger/el, of a mixed breed, [a dog] not thorough-bred.

Old English mengian, to mix, with diminutive affix.

Monition, mōn'isht'un, warning; monitive, mōn'īтив:

Monitor, mōn'ī.tor (R. xxxvii.), fem. monitress, mōn'ī.trēs; monitorial, mōn'ī.tor'ēl; monitorial-ly, monitorial-ship (ship, office, &c.), the office of a monitor.

Monitory, monetary, mōn'ī.tōr rē, mūn'ě.tār rē.

Monitory, containing advice or warning.

Monetary, relating to money. (See Money.)

Latin mōnītio, mōnītor, fem. mōnītrix, mōnītorius, v. mōnēo.

Monk, member of a monastery, a hermit.
Friar, an outdoor or free religious brother.
Nun, member of a convent for women.

Cloister-monk, a monk who actually lives in the monastery.
Extra-monk, a monk who serves a monasterial church and does not live in a monastery, but in his parish.

"Monk," Old English mones or munne; Latin mōnichus; Greek mōnichōs (mōnōs, alone, or separate [from the world]).
"Friar," Fr. frère; Lat. frater, a brother. "Nun," Old Eng. nunne.

Monkey, mūn'k'y. Ape (1 syl.). Baboon, bā boon.

Monkey, plu. monkeys, have long tails, £500.
Baboon, plu. baboons, have short tails.

Ape, plu. apes (1 syl.), have no tails at all.

"Baboon," Fr. babīn (babine, with aug., large-lipped [animal]).

Mōn'o- mōn' before -a (Gk. prefix), alone, singly. (Gk. mōnōs.)

Mono-basic, mōn'ō-bā'ītik, one part of base to one of acid.

Greek mono-[mōnōs]basis, only one [part] of base.

Mono-cardian, -ka'rd.i'āt, having (like fish and reptiles) only one auricle and one ventricle in the heart.

Greek mono-kardia, the heart with only one [auricle and ventricle].
Mon'o-car'pon, bearing fruit only once and then dying, an annual; mono-car'pous, -kar'pus. (Gk. karpos, fruit.)

Mono'cerous, m ön'ös'.ē.rūs, having only one horn or tusk. Greek mono- (m önıs)kōrōs, only a single horn.

Mono-chord, m ön'ös.kōrd, a one stringed instrument for testing intervals. (Gk. monos kōrōdē, single string.)

Mon'o-chrome, -krōnē, a painting of only one colour: as sepia or Indian ink; mon'ös-chromatic, -krō.māt'ēk.

Greek mono- (m önıs)kōrama, only one colour.

Mono-cotyledon, -kōt'.ē.lē'.dōn (not ko.tīl'.ē.dōn), a plant (like wheat) with only one seed-lobe; mono'os-cotyledo'nos, -kōt'.ē.lē'.dō.nūs. Plants with two seed-lobes are di-cotyle'dons. Plants without a seed-husk a-cotyle'dons. Greek mono- (m önıs)koskot'ēlōdon, a socket, husk, or robe.

Monocracy, m ön'ös.krā.sy, government vested in one ruler; monocrat, m ön'ös.krāt, a monarch.

Greek mono- (m önıs)kratia, government vested in one.

Monocular, m ön'ös.kū.lār, having only one eye; monocule, m ön'ös.kūlē, a one-eyed insect. Binocular, bi.nök'.ūlār, having two eyes or eye-tubes.

"Binocular," Lat. binus ocūlus, double-eye, is a good compound, but "monocular" (Gk. monos, Lat. ocŭlus) is a disgraceful hybrid. Uncocular, a good Latin compound, would have done as well.

Mon'o-dactylous, -dāk'.ē.lūs, having but one toe. Greek mono- (m önıs)daktūlōs, with only one toe or finger.

Mon'o-don, a animal (like the narwhal or sea-unicorn), with only one tooth. (Gk. mono- (m önıs)odontos, one tooth.)

Monody, plu. monodies (Rule, xliiv.), m ön'ös.dīs, a poem on the death of a friend (sung by a person to himself in solitude.) (Greek mon- (m önıs) dē, solitary ode.)

Monoeiía, m ön.e'.ē.sē.ah, plants which have both stamens and pistils on the same plant; monoeian; monoeious, m ön.e'.ē.sē.ūs. (Greek mon- (m önıs)oi̇kia, one dwelling.)

Monogamy, m ön.nōg'.ā.my, marriage restricted to one wife. Living in marriage with more than one wife at the same time is called polygamy, po.līg'.ā.my; monog'amist; monogamous, m ön.nōg'.ā.mūs.

Greek mono-m önıs)gamos, single marriage; polús gānōs, many wives.

Mono-gram, m ön'.ō.grām (not m ön'.mō.grām), a cipher, the interlaced initial letters of a person's name.

Monogram'mic. Monogrammat'ic.

Mönogram'mic, pertaining to a mönogram; Monogrammat'ic, in the style of a monogram.

Greek monos gramma, [two or more] letters [weaved into] one.
Monograph, mon'å.gråf (not mønå.gråf), a treatise limited to one subject or object; monographist, monå.någ'.rå.fås't; monographic, mon'å.gråf'.i.ik; monograph'ic. -å.gråf'.i.kil; monograph'ic.aly; monography, monå.någ'.rå.fy.

Greek mono-[mønå]grapho, I write on one thing only.

Mon'o-gynia, -djìn'.i.akah, plants which have only one pistil or stigma in a flower; monogyn, mon'å.djìn, a plant with only one pistil; monogynian, mon'å.djìn'.i.ìn; monogynous, monå.någ'.y.nås; monogynoeical, mon'å.djìn.å'.sì.nal, fruits formed by the pistil of one flower.

Greek monos gunia, single womanhood. Linnaeus called pistils the "womanhood," and stamens the "manhood" (andria) of flowers. "Monogynoeical," mono- gunia, -oikos, the single-pistil's abode.

Mono-lith, mon'å.låth, a pillar made of only one stone; monolithic, monå.nål'.å.fìk (Greek lithos, a stone.)

Mono-logue, mon'å.log (not monå.nå.log), a soliloquy, a scene or drama with only one character or speaker; a scene with more than one speaker is a dialogue; monologist, monå.nål'.å.djìst; monology, monå.nål'.å.dìjy.

These words in -logue are from the French; the -ue is perfectly needless and quite un-English. "Monolog" and "Dialog" would be far preferable (Greek monos log[os], a soliloquy. Dia-log[os]).

Mono-mania, mon'å.måy'.ni.akah (not mønå.nå...), mad on one subject; mon'o-maniac, -måy'.ni.ìk; monomaniacal, mon'å.måy'.ni'.å'.kìl; monomani'ac.aly.

Greek mño-[mønå]manía, madness [on] one single point.

Monomial, mønå.nå'ni.ål (in Algebra), one term: as 2ab; an expression with two terms (as a + b) is a binomial; with three terms (as a + 2ab + b) a trinomial.

If drawn from the Greek, bi-nomial should be di-nomial.

If drawn from the Latin, mononomial should be unnomial.

The prefixes mono-, di-, tri- with onim (Greek). The prefixes un-, bi-, tri- with nomen (Latin).

Mån'å-morphous, -mår'.fås, having but one form; insects which change their form are metamorphic.

Mon'o-petalous, -pet'.å.lås, having the corolla in one piece as the primrose. (Greek pétalón, a petal.)

Monophthong, mønå.nåf'.å.thång, two contiguous vowels only one of which is sounded: as ea in "speak," ië in "piece."

Diphthong, di's'.å.thång, two vowels combined into a new vowel sound: as öt in "prowl," öt in "boil."

Triphthong, tri's'.å.thång, three concurring vowels sounded as one: as beauty, puritis.

Greek mono-, di-, and tri- phthoggos, single, double, triple [vowel] sound, v. phthèggómai, to utter a sound.

Monopolise, mønå.nåp'.å.låzë, to engross the whole; monopo-lised (4 syl.), monopo'lis.ing (Rule xix.); monopo'lis'er, one who arrogates to himself or engrosses the whole; monopolist, one who is a monopoliser.

Monopoly, plu. monopolies, μονοπόλισ, the right of exclusive sale in an article either by patent or otherwise.

Greek μονό-[monos] πωλε, I alone deal in [the article].

Monopteral, μονόπτερον, one-winged, i.e., a temple without a cella. (Greek μονόσ πτερόν, only one wing.)

Mono-spermous, μονόσπερμός, one-seeded, as a plum; mono'o-sperm, a monospermous plant.

Di-spermous, δισπερμός, two-seeded, as the barberry; disperm, dis'sperm, a dispamorous plant.

Tri-spermous, τρίσπερμος, three-seeded; trisperm, tris'sperm, a trispermous plant.

Poly-spermous, πολυσπερμός, many-seeded, as an apple; polysperm, polysperm, a many-seeded plant.

Greek μονό-[monos] δι-, τρί-, πολυ-, one, two, three, many seeds.

Mono-stich, μονόστιχος, a poem complete in one verse, a line of poetry complete in itself.

Distich, διστίχος, a poem consisting of two verses, two lines of poetry complete in themselves.

Greek mono- δι-, στιχος, a verse.

Mon'o-syllable, -σύλλαβη, a word of one syllable.

Dis'-syllable, a word of two syllables.

Tri-syllable, τρίσυλλαβη, a word of three syllables.

Poly-syllable, a word of more than three syllables.

Fr. dissyllable, trisyllable. Very absurdly we have been led by the French in one of these words and not in the other. "Dissyllable" should have only one s (Gk. mono-, di-, tri-, polu-syllable).

Mon'o-tone, -τόνος, a succession of sounds all having the same pitch; monotonous, μονότονος, having a uniform same-ness; monotonous-ly; monotonity, μονότονι-ty.

Greek μονο- [monos] τόνος, only-one tone.

Monseigneur, plu. Messeigneurs, μονςειγ'νερ, plu. μασειγ'νερ, a title given to bishops and abbots in France.

During the Empire this title was given to all the nobility, lay as well as clerical, and corresponded with our titles of your grace, your lordship. The dauphin son of Louis XIV. was styled simply "Monseigneur," other dignitaries had a name or title added: as Monseigneur le Prince, Monseigneur Dupanloup.

Monsieur, plu. Messieurs, μονσιερ, plu. μασιερ, the Fr. title of address equivalent to our Mr. and Messrs., mezz'crez.

With this important difference, either word can be used alone, without the addition of a proper name, as we at one time used Sir or Sirs. This useful address, especially in speaking to strangers, is unhappily tabooed, except from servants, or when tradesmen and operatives address the "gentry."

French mon sieur, my sir, my Mr.; plu. mes sieurs, my sirs, &c.
Monsoon, mōn soon', a periodical wind in the Indian and Arabian seas, blowing S.W. from April to October, and N.E. from October to April. (Fr. monson; Malay moseen, season.)

Monster, mōn ster, a being of frightful aspect or character, huge; monstrous, mōn strūs; mon strous-ly, mon strous-ness.

Monstrosity, plu. monstrosities, mōn strōs itiz, an unnatural production. (Latin monstrum, monstrōse, adv.) The word means something to be "pointed at," v. monstrēre.

Montanist, mōn ta nist (not mōn ta nist), a disciple of Montanus, a Phrygian bishop of the second century; Montanistic, mōn ta nis tik; Montanism, mōn ta nizm.

Month, mānth, four weeks, one of the twelve divisions of the year; month'-ly, every month. Cal'endar month, one of the twelve months termed January, February, &c. Lunar month, four weeks. Bimonthly, twice a month.

The word bimonthly, meaning "twice a month," is quite indefensible. It can only mean every two months, as "biennial" means every two years. Besides, the word is a hybrid at its best, bi- being Latin, and month Anglo-Saxon. It should be Twy-monthly, or bi-menstrual, or bi-menstrual. (Old Eng. mūnūth, mūnūthik, monthly.)

Monument, mōn u ment, a structure in memory of the dead, an enduring memorial; monumentiil, monument al-ly.

Latin monumentum (mōnēo, to put in mind); French monumental.

-mony, -mūn 'y (Lat. -mon-ia), added to abstract nouns: ceremony.

Moon, the earth's satellite (3 syl.); moon'et, a little moon; moon'-y, dreamy; moon'i-ly (R. xi.); moon-ing, absent-minded; moon-less; moon-beam, -beem; moon-calf, plu. moon-calves (R. xxxviii.), a dolt; moon-fish; moon-light, -lite; moon-lit, illuminated by the moon; moon-shine; moon-stone, an iridescent stone; moon-struck, lunatic.

Old English mōna, mōnātic, moony, mōnan-dag, Monday.

Moor, mōo'r (not mōr). More, mō'r (not mōr), comp. of much.

Moor, mōo'r, an extensive waste, a native of North Africa, to fasten a boat with a rope, or a ship with anchors.

Moorish, mōo'r-ish, fenny, pertaining to the Moors; Moor-cock, fem. mōo'-hen, both mōo'fowl;

Moor-buzzard, mōo'land, mōo'stone.

Moor (verb); moored, mōo'rd; mōo'ing; mōo'ings, the anchors, chains, &c., employed to mōor a vessel;

Moor-age, a place where a vessel can be moored.

"Moor" (a heath), Old Eng. mōr, mōr-land, mōr-heid, mōor-heath.

"Moor" (of N. Africa), Latin Mauritania (Greek amaurōs, dark).

"Moor" (to fasten), Spanish amarrar; French amarrer.
Moose-deer, moo's-deer, the American elk. (Amer. Ind.)

Moot, doubtful, to discuss; moot'ed (Rule xxxvi.), moot'-ing.

A moot point, a question still undetermined; moot'-able.

Old English môt, v. môt[ian], past môtode, past part. môtod.

Möp, a "broom" made of thrums, to mop. Möpe (1 syl.), to suck.

Mop, mopped, möpt; mopp'-ing (R. i.); mopp'-et, a rag-doll.

Möpe, möped (1 syl.), möp-ing (Rule xix.), möp-ish.

Mope (1 syl.), to suck; möped (1 syl.), möp-ing (Rule xix.), möp'ing-ly, möp'-ish, möp'ish-ly, möp'ish-ness.

Möp, to use a mop; mopped, möpt; möpp'-ing (Rule i.)

Moraine (Swiss), mö'räm', the stones, sand, and debris drawn from the highlands by glaciers and deposited in valleys, &c.

Moral, mö'räl', a practical lesson. Morale, mö'rål.

Moral (adj.), relating to the conduct of men, subject to the moral law, supported by evidence or experience;

Morally, mö'räl'ly; morals, motives, of conduct.

Morality, mö'rål'ti; moralities, mö'rål'tiz', moral dramas which succeeded miracle plays.

Moralise. (Rule xxxi.), mör'al.iiz, to inculcate practical moral lessons; môr'alised (3 syl.), mör'al-ising (Rule xix.), môr'al-iser, one who moralises.

Moralisation, mö'räl'i.zay'shan.

Moral agent, one capable of knowing right from wrong.

Moral philosophy, -fi.los'.fi. fy, that branch of philosophy which treats of man's social relations and duties.

Moral sense, that sense or feeling whereby we weigh conduct and motives of conduct.

Morale (French), mö'rål', moral object or inference.

- Latin mörális, mörálitas (mos, gen. môris, custom, temper, &c.)

Morass, mö'räs', a marsh, a fen; moras's'y, marshy.

Old English mör, plu. möras, fens, bogs, marshes.

Moravian, mö'r.a'y.vi.än, adj. of Mora'via or of the society called Mor'a'vians; Morav'ianism, mö'r.a'y.vi.än.izm.

Morbid, mor'bid, unhealthy; mor'bid-ly, mor'bid-ness.

Morbid anatomy, that part of anatomical study which treats of the effect of disease on the animal body.

Morbidity, mor'bíd'ti. Morbif', -bif'ik, causing disease.

Latin morbidus, morbitātas, morbitātus (morbus, disease).

Mordant, mor'dant (for fixing dyes). Mordent (in Botany).

Mordacious, mor.day'shās (adj. from Latin words in -x make -ious, not -eous, Rule lxvi.); mordacious-ly.

Mordacity, mor'dās'ti. (Latin mordax, gen. mordācis.)
AND OF SPELLING.

More, mō'r (not mōr), comp. of much. Moor, moo'r (q.v.)

More than probable, little short of quite certain.

"More" has two supplied positives, its own being lost:—
1. Many, (comp.) more, (super.) most (Old English, maneg).
2. Much, (comp.) more, (super.) most (Old English, niccat).

"More" is from the obsolete adj. mag or mah, (comp.) mah-re, (super.) mah-ost. "Mag" means the quality of being able or sufficient, whence the v. maglan, to be able.

Morell' or morell'o, a cherry. Morel', an edible fungus.

(These words are totally distinct, and it is very desirable to preserve a distinction in the spelling, although both are often spelt morel.)

"Morel or Morello" cherry is also called The Miran cherry.

"Morel" (the edible fungus), Fr. morelle: Ital. morella; Ger. morehél.

Moreover, mō'r.ō'ver, besides, farther-more.

Moresque, mō.rēsh', arabesque. (French moresque, Moorish.)

Morganatic [marriage], mō'r.gā.nā.tē.ik. A licence allowed in Germany to the nobility to marry a woman without her taking either the title, rank, or estates of the husband. These marriages are called "left-handed," because the left hand of the bridegroom is used instead of the right.

"Morganatic" means limited to the morgengabe, the dowry or gift made on the morning of the ceremony; Low Latin morganiticum.

Morgue (Fr.), morg, a place where bodies found dead in rivers or streets are laid out that they may be recognised.

D'un vieux mot qui veut dire visage (Bouillet). First applied to a vestibule, where criminals were placed that the prison officials might familiarise themselves with their faces and figures.

Moribund, mō'r.bi.bund, ready to die. (Latin mōribundus.)

Morion, mō'r.jān, a helmet with no visor.

Italian morione (Moro, a moor), the Moor's helmet.

Morisco, plu. moriscoces, mō.rīs'.kō̂ze, the Moors who remained in Spain after the taking of Granada in 1492, but renounced the Catholic religion to which they were pledged for that of Mahomet. (Spanish morisco, moro, a Moor.)

Mormonite, mō'r.ən.ite, a disciple of Joseph Smith, of America, who asserted that the angel Mormon had made communications to him. Morm'ōn-ism.

Morn, contraction of morning. Mourn, mōr.urn, to lament.

Morn'ing, from midnight to midday. Mourning, mōr.urn'-ing, grieving, black dresses symbolic of the death of some one beloved or nearly related.

Old English mōr, mōrgen, mōrgen deágung, morning dawn.

Morocco, plu. morocces (R. xlii.), a fine grained leather prepared in Morocco from the skins of goats or sheep.
Morone, mōˈrōn.·e. Maroon, məˈroon.·e. Meriˈno.
Morone, mōˈrōn.·e, a deep crimson colour, like the unripe mulberry. (Latin mörum, a mulberry.)
Maroon,ˌmärō.ən, a rich chestnut colour. (Fr. marron, a chestnut.)
Morion, mōˈrē.ən, a Moorish helmet. (Sp. moro, a Moor.)
Merino, mērˈē.ən.ō, a fabric made from the wool of the merino sheep. (Spanish merino, changing pasture.)
Morone curtains, curtains of a deep crimson colour.
Maroon curtains, curtains of a rich chestnut colour.
Meriˈno curtains, curtains made of merino wool.
Morose, mōˈrōs.ˌe, sullen; moroseˈ-ly, morose-ness.
Latin mōrōsus, froward; French morose.
Morpheus, mōrˈfā.ˌs, (not mōrˈfē.ˌs), god of sleep.
Morphia, mōrˈfē.ˌa.ˌh, the narcotic principle of opium.
Morphology, mōrˈfō.ˌl.ˌo.ˌj, that part of botany which treats of the forms of plants and of their different organs; morphologist, mōrˈfō.ˌl.ˌō.ˌjist; morphological.
The word means "The modeller," so called because he conjures up shapes to the sleeper (morphē, shape, v. morphēo, to shape).
Morris, mōrˈris, a Moorish dance, a game.
Morˈris-dance, morrisˈ-dancer, morrisˈ-pike.
Nine-menˈs-morris, a game with nine holes in the ground.
Morrisˈ-board, a board for the game of morris.
"'The nine-menˈs-morris is filled up with mud." (Mid. N. Dr. ii. 2)
Spanish morisco danza, the Moorish dance; the Moorish [game].
Morrow, next day to this, an indefinite future period;
Good morrow, Good morning. (Old English gōd morgen.)
Toˈmorrow, on the day following this (toˈ- is the adverbial prefix, as in toˈ-day, toˈ-night, &c.
Latin hadisˈ, adv., to-day; French demainˈ, adv., to-morrow.
Old English toˈ-morgen, toˈ-morrow, gōdˈ morgen, good morrow.
Morse (1 syl.), the sea-horse, the walrus. (Russian morj.)
Morselˈ, mōrˈsē.ˌl, a small piece. (Italian morselloˈ, a mouthful.)
Mortˈ, a salmon in its third year, a large quantity, notes sounded at the death of hunted game. (Fr. mortˈ, the death of game.)
Mortalˈ, mōrˈtalˌl, subject to death, deadly, a human being, &c.; mortˈalˌ-ly; mortality, mōrˈtalˌ-l.ˌtē.ˌy.
Lat. mortālisˈ, mortātītasˈ (morsˈ, death); Fr. mortelˈ (wrong), mortalitéˈ.
Mortarˈ, mōrˈtarˌ, a strong vessel in which things are bruised or pounded with a pestle, a piece of ordnance for throwing shells, a cement for stones and bricks; mortˈarˈ-board.
Lat. mortāriāmˈ; Fr. mortierˈ; Span. morterˈ. O. E. mortereˈ, the cement.
Mortgageˈ, mōrˈgā.ˌj, a dead pledge, that is real property pledged to another in security for debt. The pledge is dead because the holder cannot in any way dispose of it, and the person who made the pledge can recover it at any time by paying the debt, to convey to a creditor a mortgage; mortgaged, mör’.gajd; mortgag-ing (Rulexix.), mor’.gage-ing; mortgag-er, mor’.gage.er.

Mortgagor' (law term), the debtor who grants the mortgage. Mortgagee', the creditor who receives the mortgage. (-or and -ee are regular law terminations for agent and recipient.)

Fr. mort gage, a dead pledge, so mort-main, a dead hand; in each case the word "dead" means "unable to part with the property."

Error of Speech.—

To foreclose a mortgage is nonsense, but is not unfrequently used to signify "putting an end to a mortgage," either by redemption, transfer of the property, or sale. "Foreclose" does not mean "to bring to a close," but "to shut out from the law-courts" (e foro clausa). It is possible to foreclose a mortgagor, or "shut him out of court," and it is possible to claim for a foreclosure, that is, to compel the debtor to redeem the mortgage or to give up "his right of redemption," and so "shut himself out of court," but it is not possible to "foreclose a mortgage."

Mortify, mör’ti fy, to vex, to become corrupt, to vex oneself by fasting and penance; mortifies, mör’ti fi ze; mortified, mör’ti fi de; mor’ti fi er, mor’ti fi ing, mortifying-ly.

Mortification, mör’ti fi kā’ shin. Latin mortificatio, v. mortificare; French mortification, mortifier.

Mortise, mor’tis, a hole cut in one piece of wood to receive the tenon of another, in order to unite them, to mortise; mortised, mör’tist; mor’tis-ing (R. xix.) (Fr. mortaise.)

Mortmain, mort’main, possession of real property by "hands" which cannot alienate it, as property given to a corporation, a college, and formerly to the church.

Fr. mort main, dead hands, i.e., hands which are powerless to part with the property. So mort-gage, a dead gage, means a pledge which cannot be parted with or sold by the holder.

Mortuary, plu. mortuaries, mor’ti ā rīz (R. xlv.), a cemetery. A mortuary urn, an urn to hold the ashes of a dead person.

A mortuary gift, a gift left at death to a parish church. Fr. mortuaire; Lat. mortua(e; mor tuus sum, &c., to die).

Mosaic, mō. zā’ ik, tesselated work; (adj.); tesselated, pertaining to Moses; mosaical-ly, mō. zā’ ik ē. Latin mosaicus, tesselated, mosaicum "opus tessellarium." French mosaique; German mosaïsch or musaisch; Spanish mosaica.

Mosa-saurus, mōz’a sau’ ris, a great saurian or fossil crocodile found in the Meestrich chalk beds.

A hybrid: Latin Mosa, the Meuse, and Greek sauros, a lizard.

Moslem, mōz’ lēm, a mussulman. (Arabic muslim, a believer.)

Mosque, mōsk, a Moslem's place of worship. Musk, a plant.

French mosquée; Arabic musjīd or musjīd, place of worship.
Mosquito, plu. mosquitoes (R. xlii.), mõs.kõ'rá.ze, a sort of gnat.
   Spanish mosquito (mosca, a fly); Latin musca, a fly.
Moss, one of the "families" of plants; moss'-y, moss'i-ness;
   Mossed, mõst, covered with moss. Móst, nearly all.
Moss-agate, an agate striated with mossy forms.
Moss-berry, cranberry; moss-clad, moss-grown, moss-land.
Moss-rose, a rose with a mossy pubescence.
Moss-troopers, banditti who infested the border-lands of England and Scotland before the union of the crowns.
   Old English mōs, Welsh mũs,"g moss.
   -most (native affix), adj., superlative degree: utter-most, kind-most.
   Móst, nearly all, (super.) of Many and Much.
   At most or at the most? "At most" for the very utmost (at is the Old Eng. adverbial prefix at-.). "At the most" requires an adj. and noun to follow: as at the most distant part of the world.
   "Many" and "Much" are supplied positives, the true positive mag or mah is lost, (comp.) *mahi-c, * (super.) mah-ost (most).

Mostacchio, plu. mostacchios (Rule xlii.), mõš.tak'šè.o (Italian spelling), hair between the nose and mouth;
Mostacho, plu. mostachos, mõš.tak'sho (Spanish form);
Moustache, plu. moustaches, mõš.tash'k, mõš.tash'es (Fr.)
   Latin mustax, gen. mustācis. The last is the best form.
Mot, mõ; Mote, mõte. Moat, mõte. Moot.
   Mot, mõ, a saying, an expression; bon-mot, a witticism (Fr.)
   Mote (1 syl.), a small particle of floating dust. * (O. E. mot.)*
Moat, a ditch, properly the earth dug out. (French moti.)
Moot, disputable, to debate. (Old English mōt.)
Moot, mōtē, a short piece of sacred music. (Italian motteto.)
Moth (to rhyme with Goth, not maurkh, a sort of butterfly;
   moth'-y, full of moths; moth-eaten, -ēte'n, injured by moths. (Old English mothhe, a moth.)
Mother, moth'ær, mother-ly, motherli-ness (Rule xi.), motherhood (-hood, state); mother-less, without mother.
Motherly, moth'ær.ĕ ry, containing a thick slimy matter, as mothery wine, beer, &c.
Mother Church, the oldest church in a parish from which district churches have sprung.
Mother tongue, -tung, one's native language.
Mother liquor or water, the liquid from which crystals have been deposited.
Mother wit, shrewd common sense. Mother wort, -wurt.

Mother-in-law, plu. mothers-in-law; the mother of a wife is mother-in-law to her husband, and the mother of a husband is mother-in-law to his wife.

Step-mother, plu. step-mothers, a second wife is stepmother to the children of her husband's first wife.

Mother-of-coal, fine silky laminae of mineral charcoal which occur embedded in coal seams.

Mother-of-pearl, -purl, the iridescent layer of shells.

Mother-of-vinegar, &c., the flocculent mycelium of various moulds, formed on the surface of vinegar.

Mother waters are the original saline solutions from which crystals have been deposited; when poured off and re-evaporated, they "bring forth" a second crop. So in wine-making, &c., the husks, &c., are the mother from which the wine was obtained, and the sediment is part of the "mother substance."

Old Eng. modor or moder, sleep-modor, mother of an orphan child.

Motion, mo'.shun, movement, to make a significant sign to another; motioned, mo'.shund; motion-ing, motion-er.

Motive, mo'.av, causing motion, the power that puts in motion. Motivity, mo.ttv'ity.

Motor, mo'.tor, that which gives motion, (in Anat.) motor nerves and muscles; motory, mo'.tory.

Move, moov, to stir; moved (1 syl.); mov'-ing, moov'.ing; mov'er, moov'.er; move-ment, moov'.ment.

Latin motio, m6tivus, motor, v. m6vere, supine motum, to move.

Motley, speckled, the dress of an ancient jester or court fool.

Mottle, m6t'.t'l, to speckle; mottled, m6t'.tld; mott'ling; mottled (adj.), variegated. (Welsh ysnot, a patch, a spot.)

Motto, plu. mottoes (R. xlii.), m6t'.tze, an heraldic sentence, a sentence on a title-page, at the head of a chapter, on literary competitions, &c. (Ital. motto, a motto, device, word.)

Mould, m6ld (to rhyme with cold, sold, not with how'd, prow'd), the soil, a matrix or "shape," the suture of the skull, a downy fungus on jams, paste, stale bread, &c., to mould, to knead, &c.; mould'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); mould'-ing, modelling, a fillet; mould'-er; mould'-able, m6le'-d6.b'l.

Mouldy, covered with mould, (comp.) mouldi-er, (super.) mouldi-est, mouldi'-ness (Rule xi.) Iron-mould, a stain produced by the rust of iron.

Mould'-er, to turn to dust; mouldered, m6le'derd; mould'er-ing; mouldery, of the nature of mould.

Mould-board (of a plough); mould-warp, a mole.

Moult, mōlt (to rhyme with colt, dolt), to shed the feathers; mōlt-ed (R. xxxvi.); mōlt-ing, shedding the feathers; (n.) the fall of the plumage [of birds]. On the moult, in the act of shedding the plumage. Moulding-season.

Welsh mould, bare, moelder, baldness, v. mould, moeidd. (In two words ("mould" and "moult") the "-ou" is nearly = to long ō; in one word ("mourn") it is open, mōurn; in all other words it equals -ow in "now.")

Mound, mōund (to rhyme with found, ground), a small heap of earth or stones; shell-mounds. (Welsh munt.)

Mount, mōunt (to rhyme with count, found), a hill, a ride on horseback, to rise, to get a ride on horseback, to "set" jewelry, to "back" pictures so as to leave a margin; mōunt-ed, mōunt-ing, mōunt-er. To mount guard.

Mountain, mōunt’n, a very high hill. The mountain (in Fr. hist.), extreme Jacobins, so called because they occupied in the Convention (1793) the most elevated seats. Those who occupied the "pit" of the house, called The Plain, were men of moderate political views.

Mountain-man, mōunt’éner, an inhabitant of a mountainous district. In Scotland a Highlander.

Mountain-ous, mōunt’é.nus (not moun.tay’.nē.as); moun’tainous-ness, state of being full of mountains.

Mountain-ash; mountain-cork, an asbestos; mountain-dew, Scotch whisky; mountain-limestone; mountain-meal, -meal, an infusorial earth; mountain-milk, a soft variety of carbonate of lime; mountain-soap, -soap, a silicate of magnesia; mountain-tallow, a mineral.

To make a mountain of a molehill, to make a great fuss about a small matter. A mountain in labour, a mighty preparation with very small results.

Mountebank, mōun.te.bank (mōun to rhyme with crown), a charlatan, who mounts a bench (or banco), to puff off his wares, one who makes himself ridiculous.

Italian montare, banco, to mount a bench [to puff one's wares].

Mourn, mō’rn (the only example of mould with the two vowels open), to lament. Mōrn, early day.

Mourned, mō’rnd; mourn’-ing, mourn’-er, mourn’-ful (Rule viii.), mōurn’ful-ly, mōurn’ful-ness.

Mourning-coach, -kō’ch, a coach covered with black cloth and drawn by black horses to attend a funeral.

Old English mūr[n], past mōr, past part. mōren, mowing, mourning or black dresses, mūrende, mourning, grieving.
Mouse, plu. mice, so louse, plu. lice. Poss. sing. mouse's, mouse'ez; poss. plu. mice's, mice'ez.

Mouse (verb), mouze, to catch mice; moused, mouzd; mous-ing (Rule XIX.), mouz'ing; mous'er, mouz'er.

Mouse-ear, mouse'ez'rn, a plant, the soft velvety leaves of which are shaped like a mouse's ear.

Mouse-hawk, a hawk that feeds on mice.

Mouse-hole, a hole made by mice. Mouse-trap.

Mouse-ear, mous'ez', a plant, the soft velvety leaves of which are shaped like a mouse's ear.

Mouse-hawk, a hawk that feeds on mice.

Mouse-hole, a hole made by mice. Mouse-trap.

Mouse-trap, mouz' trap.

Old English m11s, m11yas. So his, pin. monse' ear, mus-hafoc, mouse-hawk; Latin mus, a mouse.

Mousselain-de-laine (French) moos'.len de! lan'z', wool muslin.

Moustache (French), moos'tash', hair on the upper lip.

Greek mustax, gen. mustakos, the upper lip. Our English word moustach is far better than the French, Italian, or Spanish.

Mouth (to rhyme with south), plu. mouths, mou'rhz; mouth'less; mouth-piece, peece, the part of a wind instrument put into the mouth, one who speaks for another.

Mouth'ful, plu. mouth'fuls (not mouthsful), two, three... mouthfuls means a "mouthful" repeated two or three times; but two, three...mouthful means two or three different mouths all full. Down in the mouth, mortified.

Mouth (verb), mou'r (this word ought to be mouth), to speak bombastically, to articulate indistinctly; mouthed, mou'r'd; mou'th-ing, mou'r'ing; mou'th-er, mou'r'h'er.

-old is very irregular. There are but five words, and they represent four distinct sounds: (1) oo, as uncouth; (2) ow (as in now), mouth, south; (3) ow'r (with a drawl), as mouth (verb), mouths; (4) u, as youth.

Old Eng. muth, muth-brof, roof of the mouth, mutha, a river mouth.

Move, moov, to stir; moved, moovd; mov-ing (R. xix.), moov'-ing; mov-ly; mov'er, moov'er; move-less, moov'.less.

Move-ment, moov'ment. Mov-able, moov'ab'l, able to be moved. Mov-ables, moov'ab'lz, any property which can be removed, houses and lands are immovable property (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able).

Movable feast, one that does not occur, like Christmas day, on a fixed day-of-the-mouth, but is regulated, like Easter day, by a full moon.

Moving-power, moov'ing pow'cr (pow rhymes with now.)

Motive, mö'tiv, causing motion; motive force, motive engine. Motivity, mö'tiv'i.ty; motor, mö'tor.

Motion, mö'shun, movement, to make a sign to another; motioned, mö'shund; mo'tion-ing, mo'tion-er.

The termination -ove is very irregular, and has three distinct sounds: (1) = ove: clove, cove, drove, grove, love,rove, stove, strove, throve, wove.

(2) = ov: dove, glove, love, stove.

(3) = oov: move, grove and its compounds (Fr. mouvoir, plover).

Latin mouvère, to move, movio, motivus, motor; French mouvement.
Mow (−owl as in grow). Mow (−ow as in now). Moo.

Mow (to rhyme with grow), a pile of hay, barley, &c., stored under cover. If stored in the open air, it is rick or stack; to store up hay, &c., under cover; to cut grass.

Mow, (past) mowed (1 syl.), (past part.) mown (as in own).

Mowed, mowed. Mode (1 syl.) Mood.

Mowed, mowed, cut with a scythe; mowed, mowed, mowed.

Mow, manner, fashion. Mood, temper, a term in Gram.

Mow, mow (to rhyme with now), to make mouths; mowed, mowed; mowed.

Moo, (past) mowed (1 syl.), mooing. (R. xix.)

“Mow” (a pile), Old English mōw, a heap, a mow.

“Mow” (to cut grass), Old Eng. mōw, p. mow, p. part mōwen.

“Mow” (to gibber, to make mouths), Old English muth.

“Moo” (as a cow), an imitative word.

Mr., fem. Mrs., mister, miss, titles of address to men and married women. Master, Miss.

We have no plural for either Mr. or Mrs., and therefore adopt the French plurals, which we sadly pervert: thus

Mr., plu. Messrs. (mes.sieurs) pronounced mēzh′ers;

Mrs., plu. Mdms. (mes.dames), pronounced mēzh′dams.

Master, mister, plu. The Masters or The Master with -s added to the surname: Master Brown, plu. The Masters Brown or The Master Browns.

(Used as the title of address only to boys, sons of respectable parents, who have no special title of their own.)

Miss; plu. The Misses, -mis′ez, or The Miss with -s added to the surname: as The Misses Brown or The Miss Browns.

(Given to girls and unmarried women of all conditions, who have not a special title of their own.)

The whole of this requires reform. The plurals are most objectionable and very uncertain. It is surprising that in a matter of every-day use we have not hit upon something better. No one likes to say or write Messrs., except to a “firm,” Mesdames, Misses, and Masters, with The Miss and The Master, are both doubtful and unsatisfactory. There can be no objection to MMrs. as the plu. of Mr., and it might be called The Misters. Similarly, MMrs., plu. of Mrs., might be called The Misses; Master, plu. The Masters, and Miss, plu. The Misses. If misters had not been already engaged, a greater distinction might be made between Mr. and Miss.

Old Eng. Master, Master-iς, maist′iss, “misters” contracted to “miss.” Mrs. (mis′ess) is a corruption of Mistress (Mis′ess); Latin magistra, fem. magistra.

Much, mutch (comp.) more, (super.) most, a large quantity.

(This word requires to be followed by a noun singular.)

Many, mēn′y, (comp.) more, (super.) most, a great number.

(This word requires to be followed by a noun plural.)
(?) Much people, a common expression in the Bible, as—

Much people followed Him (Mark v. 24).

Much people took branches of palm-trees (John xii. 13).

When the Bible was translated, people was a collective noun of the sin. num. Hence we read, "This is a rebellious people" (Isa. xxx. 9); "There is a people come out of Egypt" (Numb. xxii. 5). As "many" requires a noun plural, it could not be used with "people" (sing.), so the translators took the word "much" instead. Nowadays "people" is treated as a collective noun plural, and "much," which requires a noun sing., cannot be used with it. We say instead, a great number of people, a multitude of people; "many people" means several, but not a multitude.

"Much" and "Many" supply the place of the lost positive of more, most, which was mag or mah (sufficient), the root of mag[an], to be able; whence Mag or mah, (comp.) mah-re (ma're), (super.) mah-ost (ma'ost). "Much," O. E. mycle. "Many," O. E. manig or manig.

Mucic, nuːɪˌsɪk [acid]. Music, nuːˈzik, melodious sounds.

Mucic acid is formed by the action of nitric acid on sugar of milk, gum, &c. (French mucique; Latin mucus.)

Mucilage, nuːˈsɪl.əژ, a slimy animal or vegetable substance; mucilaginous, nuːˈsɪ.ˈlædʒənˌɪs; mucilaginousness. (French mucilage; Latin mucus.)

Mucus, nuːˈkəs (noun). Mucous, nuːˈkəs (adj.)

Mucus, a secretion of the mucous membrane.

Mucous membrane (not mucus membrane), the membranous lining of any cavity of the body which opens externally, as the nose, throat, lungs, &c.

Muck, dung, to spread manure; mucked, nuːkəd; muck-ing; muck-heap, ˈheip; muck-cart; muck-worm, a miser.

To run amuck, to run blindfold against a person, to run indiscriminately or into what you do not understand.

Mudd, slush; mudd-ˈi (Rule i.), (comp.) mudd-i-er, (super.) mudd-i-est; mudd-ed, besmeared with mud; muddied, nuːˈd.i.d, made muddy; mudd-i-ly, mudd-i-ness; mudd-carb.

Mud-lark, one who cleans out sewers, one who searches amongst mud for half-pence or articles lost.

Mud-suck-er, a sea-fowl. Mud-wall, a wall of mud.

Welsh mwyd, that which is soaked, v. mwya, to soak. Greek múdos, wet, v. múdai, to soak; Latin mūdor, v. mūdere.

Muddle, nuːˈdəˌl, a disarrangement, to confuse; muddled, nuːˈdəˌl id; mudd-l-ing, mudd-l-er, muddle-head-ed.

This word means to make muddy, hence to foul, to disturb, &c.

Muezzin, nuːˈɛz.ən, a crier who proclaims the hour of prayer in Mohammedan countries. (Arabic muezzin.)

Muff, used by ladies for keeping their hands warm; a dolt. "Muff" (for the hands), German muft; (a dolt), muften, to suck.

Muffin, nuːˈfən, a flat round spongy cake. (Fr. mufin.) Spiers.
Muffle, μήφ'.f'l, to deaden sound, to cover up (hence "to concceal"), to wrap up warm; muffled, μήφ'.f'ld; muff'ling; muff'ler, a wrap for the neck. (German mufjeln.)

Mufti, μήφ'.ti, a sort of Turkish bishop. The grand mufti, "chief of Islam," the archbishop or arch-mufti being the "head" of the Ule'mas or religious jurists.

In mufti, out of uniform, in disguise, incognito.

Mug, a drinking vessel [of earthenware or china, with a handle], the face or rather the mouth.

Muggy, μήγ'.gy, warm and damp air; mug'gi-ness (Rule xi.); mugg-ish, rather muggy. (Welsh meuri, a fog).

Mulatto, plu. mulattoes (R. xli.), the offspring of one white and one black parent. (Spanish mulato; Italian mulatto.)

Mulberry, μήλ'.bér ry, a fruit. (German maulbeere.)

Mulch, μήλ', rotten dung, to mulch. Mulse, a drink, q.v. Mulched (1 syl.); mulch'ing, dressing with mulch.

"Mulch." Old Eng. molsun[tan], to rot, to crumble into small pieces.

"Mulse" (wine boiled and sweetened with honey), Latin mulsum.

Mulot, μήλ't, a fine, to fine; mulct'ed (not mulct), mulct'ing (not mulk-ing); mulctuary, μήλk.ti.ú.ry (not μήλk.teh. ú.ry), imposing a fine. (Latin mulcta.)

Mule (1 syl.), offspring of a mare and ass. Mewl, to squeal.

Mule; a machine used in spinning (a "cross" between a jenny and a water frame); mul'-ish (Rule xix.), obstinate like a mule (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); mul'fish-ness, mul'fish-ly; muleteer, μήļ'.lē.tee'r, a mule driver; mule-like. (Latin mulus.)

Mull (Rule v.), to soften wine by warming it up with sugar and spice, a muddle, a headland; mulled, μήλ'd; mul'y-ing; mul'or, a vessel for mulling. (Latin molio, to soften.)

Mullot, μήλ'.löt, a fish, (in Her.) the rowel of a spur, denoting the third son. (Lat. mullos, the fish. Fr. molette, a rowel.)

These words being totally different, ought not to be spelt alike: The "fish" is the Latin mullos, Greek mullas; but the "rowel" is the French molette, diminutive of the Latin molla, a little mill.

Mulligatawny, μήļ.gá.ta.wá'.ny, a kind of curry soup (Ind.)

Mullion, μήļ'.yi.n, a vertical stone division in Gothic windows; mullioned, μήļ'.yi.ned, having stone divisions. An horizontal stone division of a Gothic window is a Trans'om.

Mullion is a corrupt of munition (Lat. munia, to strengthen), bars used to strengthen a window. The Fr. call them "leaders" (meneaux).

Mulse, wine boiled and sweetened with honey. Mulch, dung.

"Mulse," Latin mulsum, honeyed wine.

"Mulch," Old English molen[ian], past molence, to decay.
Mult-, multi. (Latin prefix), much, many. (Latin multus.)

Mult- before vowels, as mult-angular, mult-ocular.

Mult- before consonants, as multi-form, multi-plex.

Mult-angular, mult.tang'gular, having many angles; mult-an'gular-ly. (Latin mult- [multus] angulus, an angle.)

Mult-articulate, mult.tar.tik'.ul.ate, many-jointed.

Latin mult- [multus] articulatus (articulus, a joint).

Multicapsular, -kop'sular, having many capsules [cap-. sules, 2 syl.] (Latin capsula, a little chest, bag, coffer.)

Multicepital, -sep'.tal, many-headed.

Latin multi- [multus] capita, heads (in composite words capita).

Multicostate, -hos.tate, many-ribbed.

Latin multi- [multus] costatus, many ribbed (costa, a rib).

Multidentate, -den'.tate, many-toothed.

Latin multi- [multus] dentatus (dens gen. dentis, a tooth).

Multidigitate, -didg'.tate, many-toed or fingered.

Latin multi- [multus] digitatus (digitus, a toe or finger).

Multifarious (Rule lxvi.), -fair'r'us, manifold, various; multi-farious-ly, multi-farious-ness.

Latin multifarius (quod multis modis est far or multi-varius).

Multifid. Multi-partite, -par'.tite. In Bot. a multifid leaf is divided laterally into many clefts to about the middle; in a multipartite leaf the divisions extend much further.

Lat. multifidus (fidi, cleft). "Partite," partitus, divided.

Multifloral, -flo'.ral, having many flowers.

Latin multi-, flos gen. floris, a flower; Greek chlórós, green.

Multiform, having many shapes; multifor'mity, diversity of shapes. (Latin multiformis, forma, a form.)

Multigenous, mult'idg'.tnüs, of sundry sorts.

Latin multigenus, genus, a sort or kind.

Multigrade, -grä.de, having many degrees.

Latin multigradiens, gradiens, a degree.

Multilater, -lät'.eräl, having more than four sides.

Latin multi- [multus] latus, gen. lateris, a side.

Multilinear or linear, -lin'.eräl, -lin'.erar, having many lines. (Latin multi- [multus] linea, a line.)

Multilocular, -lok'.kül.ar. Multocular, mult.tök'kül.ar;

Multi-locular, having many cells or chambers;

Multocular, having many eyes. (Latin ocúlus, an eye.)

Latin multi- [multus] ocúlus, a cell (dim. of locus, a place).

Multiloquent, mult.tl'.kwi.vent, talkative; multiloquence, mult.tl'.qu.ence, talkativeness.

Latin multi- [multus] loquens, gen. loquentis, much talking.
Errors of Speech

Multi-nomial, -no'mi.al, having more than four terms: as $a + b + c + d + \cdots$ (in Algebra).
Latin multi-[multus] nomen, gen. nuntius, a name or term.

Multi-partite, -par'tite. Multi-fid (in Botany).

Multi-partite, a leaf deeply cleft into several strips.
Multi-fid, a leaf cleft about midway into strips.
Latin fido, perf. fidat, to cleave. Partitus, divided.

Multi-ped (Latin). Poly-pod (Greek), pōl.ā.pod, having many feet, like the wood-louse. (Lat. pōd.; Gk. pōd.)

Multi, múl.'ti,pI, the product of two or more numbers multiplied together: thus 8 is a multiple of 4 or 2.
Common multiple, different products of two or more numbers common to a series: thus 12, 24, 36 can all be obtained by multiplying 4, 3, and 2 by some figures.
Least common multiple, the lowest number that can be exactly divided by a series of figures: thus 12 is the lowest number that can be divided by the series 4, 3, 2.

Multi-plex (in Bot.), manifold. (Latin multiplex.)

Multiply, múl.'ti.plI, to increase; multiplies (Rule xi.), múl.'ti.plize; multiplied, múl.'ti.plide; multiply-ing.
Multiplier, múl.'ti.plIer. Multiplicator, múl.'ti.pl.i'tor.

Multiplier, one who multiplies.
Multiplicator, an instrument for multiplying motion.
Multiplicable, múl.'ti.plI.ca.bI, capable of being multiplied.

Multiplication, múl.'ti.plI.ka'ʃan, increase, an arithmetical operation.

Multiplicand, múl.'ti.plI.kænd, the number to be multiplied (in a multiplication sum);

Multiplier, múl.'ti.plI.ka'tor, or multiplier, the number to multiply by.
The multiplicand and multiplier are called Factors: In the sum $3 \times 4 = 12$, 3 is the "multiplicand," 4 the "multiplier," and 12 (the answer) is called the product.

Multiply, múl.'ti.plI.ka'te, of a multiplex character.

Multiplicative, múl.'ti.plI.ka'tiv.

Multiplying-glass, an optical toy to make one object appear more than one. Multiplying wheel, a wheel to communicate multiplied motion to a machine.

Latin multiplicabilis, multiplicatio, multiplicator, v. multipicare, sup. multiplicatum, to multiply (multi-plicare, to fold much or often).

Multipotent, múl.'ti.plI.ents, having many powers or great might. (Latin multipōtent, possum, to be able.)
Mul’ti-pres’ent, present in several places at the same time, ubiquitous; ‘mul’ti-pres’ence, ubiquity.
Latin mul’ti-[multus] pres’ens, gen. pres’entis, present.
Mul’ti-sili’quous, -sili’quus, many podded.
Latin mul’ti-[multus] sil’qua, a pod; Greek kēl’ēphos, a husk.
Mul’ti-soun’iuous, mul’ti-soun’ius, having many sounds.
Latin mul’ti-[multus] sōnus, many a sound.
Mul’ti-spir’al, having many whorls or spirals.
Latin mul’ti-[multus] spir’a, a wreatb, a whori; Greek spe’ira.
Mul’ti-striate, -stri’ate, having many streaks.
Latin mul’ti-[multus] stri’atus (str’ia, a streak).
Multitude, mul’tī-tūde, a vast number, a crowd;
   multitudinous, mul’tī-tū’ dineus; multitu’dinous-ly.
Latin multitu’dō; French multitu’dé; Spanish multitu’d.
Mul’ti-valve, -val’ve (1 syl.), having many valves.
Latin mul’ti-[multus] vālve, many valves.
Mul’ti-ocular, mul’ti-ōk’cular. Multiloc’ular;
   Multocular, many-eyed. (Latin ocūlus, an eye);
   Multi-loc’ular, many-celled. (Latin tōcūlus, a cell.)
Mul’ti-ungulate, mul’ti’un-gul’ate, having the hoof divided into more than two parts. (Lat. mult’-, ungūla, a hoof.)
Multum in parvo (Lat.), much in a small compass, a compendium.
Müm, keep silent, this is a secret, ale from wheat-malt.
Mum- chance, a game with dice. (German mummme.)
Mumble, müm’b’l, to mutter; mumbled, müm’b’ld; mum’bling;
   mumbling-ly, mum’bler. (Germ. mummeln, to mumble.)
Mummer, müm’m’er, a buffoon, a masked actor; mum’ming, acting as a mummer, a masquerade.
Mummery, plu. mummeries, müm’m’er’iz, buffoonery.
German mümmeret; French momerie.
Mummy, plu. mummies, müm’m’iz, a dead body embalmed by the ancient Egyptians. Müm’mify, to convert a dead body into a mummy; mum’mifies, müm’m’i’fiz; mum’mi-fied, müm’m’i’fiz’d. Mummification, müm’m’i’fi ka’inf.
   mum’miiform.
To beat to a mummy, to beat to a mash.
Diodorus Sic’lius v. 1 says: "The people of the Bales’re Isles beat the bodies of the dead with clubs to render them flexible, in order that they may be deposited in earthen pots called mummies."
"Mummy de l’arabe mounyéd, mot formé de deux mots coptes, dont l’un signifie mort, et l’autre sel; c’est-à-dire mort préparé avec le sel." (Dict. des Sciēn., &c.)
The derivation more generally given is müm, wax, from its use in the cerements or mummy-cloths.
Mümpl, to move the lips while closed like a rabbit;
Mumps, a swelling in the glands of the neck.
Mump'ers, Christmas waits are so called in Norwich.
Mump'-ish, sullen; mump'ish-ly, mump'ish-ness.
In the mumps, in a sullen temper, in the sulks.
Münch, to chew ravenously; munched. (1 syl.), munch'ing, munch'er. (Fr. manger, to eat; Lat. mandūco, to chew.)
Mundane, mün'dane, earthly; mundane-ly. (Lat. mundānus.)
Mun'go, plu. mun'goes, -goze. Shoddy, plu. shoddies, shōd'·diz.
Mungo, woollen cloth manufactured from cast-off fine-woollen clothes respun and mixed with new wool.
Shoddy, woollen cloth manufactured from fluff, old carpets, and other coarse woollens, mixed with new wool.
"Mungo," mångel cloth, partly new and partly old.
"Shoddy," formed from shed, provincial past tense shed, p.p. skōtted, the fluff shed or thrown off from cloth in the process of weaving.
Municipal, mün's'·pul, corporate, belonging to a corporate town or corporation; municipal-ly.
Municipality, plu. municipalities, mün.is'·pul'·liz.
Latin munici'palis, münicipium, a free town (mānus cāpio).
Munificent, mün'if·sent; very generous; munificent-ly;
Munificence, mün'if·sence, great liberality.
Lat. münificens, gen. -centis (mānus ficlo [façio], to make a present).
Muniment, mün'im·ent, a stronghold, a charter, title-deed, record. (Latin münimentum, münio, to fortify.)
Munitions of war, mün.ish'·änz ov wor, materials used in war.
Latin münitio or münītium, münio, to fortify.
Mural, mür'·rul, pertaining to the city walls; mural crown, a wreath of gold given by the Romans to him who first scaled the walls of a besieged city. (Lat. mūrālis, mūlus, a wall.)
Murchisonia, mür'·ki.sō'·nī.ah (not mür'tchīsō'·nī.ah), a long spiral shell deeply notched in the outer lip;
Murchisonite, mür'·ki.sō.nī.tē, a greyish felspar.
So named from their discoverer, Sir Roderick Murchison.
Murderer, fem. murdereress, mür'.dē.rer, mür'.de.ress.
Mur'der, to kill a human being maliciously; murdered, mür'.dēred; mur'der-ing; murderous, mür'.dē.rūs; mur'derously, mur'derous-ness.
To murder the Queen's English, to commit errors of spelling and grammar. (Old Eng: morther, morth, death.)
Our forefathers had a good word for "malice prepense," morther-hēte, murder-hate, animosity leading to murder.
Mu'rex (not mu'rx), a genus of rock-shells; murexide, mu'rex'ide, purpur'ate of ammonia; murex'an, purpur'ic acid obtained from murexide. (Lat. mü'rex, a shell-fish.)

The usual way of forming words is to take the crude form, not the nom. case. The crude form of murex is mü'rex, and therefore Prouit ought to have written his words mürlcan and mürlcid.

Muriate, mü'ri.ate, a salt formed by the combination of muriatic acid with a base: as muriate of soda (-ate denotes a salt formed by an acid in -ic with a base);

Muriatic acid, mü'.ri.at'ik ä's'ıkid, hydrochlor'ic acid.

Lat. mür'a, brine, sea-water; Gk. almür'ós, briny. Muriatic acid is procured by the action of sulphuric acid on brine or salt.

Murky, mur'ky, gloomy, misty; murk'i-ness (R. xi.), murk'i-ly.

Danish mørk, gloom; mórke, murky.

Murmur, mur'mur, a low dull sound, a muttered complaint, to murmur: mur'murred (2 sy1.), mur'mur'iug, mur'mur.

Latin murmur, v. murmitro; Greek mormuros, v. mormürô.

Mür'rin, a cattle plague. (Sp. morriña; Lat. mör'tor, to die.)

Murrhine, mür'rin, porphery ware. (Latin murrhīna.)

Myrrhine, mer'rin, adj. of myrrh. (Latin myrrhīnus.)

Murray, mür'ry, mulberry colour. (Lat. mūrīm; Gk. mōrōs.)

Murrhine. mūr'rín, a porphery ware. (See Murrain.)

Murza, mur'za, second grade of Turkish nobility.

-mus (Latin -[m]us) nouns, becomes -ous in adj. = -us.

Muscadine grapes, grapes with a musky odour grown in the South of France and dried on the vines for raisins.

Muscardin, mūs'.kar.din, a dormouse. (Fr. muscardin.)

Muscardine, mūs'.kar.dine, a fungus very fatal to silkworms. (French muscardine.)

Muscate grapes, mūs'.kā.tēl, same as muscadine (q.v.)

Muscate wine, wine made of muscatel grapes.

Muscate pears, pears with a musky odour.

Not from Latin musca, a fly, but French muc, musk; Latin moschus.

Muschel-kalk, moo's.hēl'kalk, a shelly limestone (German).

Muscle, mūs'.l, a fleshy animal fibre. (Latin muscālus.)

Mussel, mūs'.sēl, a shell-fish. (Latin muscālus.)

Mussulman, plu. Mussulmans, a moslem. (Turk. musslim.)
Muscle, mūs′l, animal fibre capable of contraction and relaxation; muscled, mūs′ld, having large muscles;
Muscular, mūs′kū.lar, full of muscles, brawny; mus′cu-lar-ly.
Muscularity, mūs′kū.lar′ī.ty, a muscular state.
Muscular tissue, mus.kū.lar tis.sue (not tīsh′.shu).
Muscular Christianity, a healthy religion which braces one to the battle of life. (Charles Kingsley’s phrase.)
Lat. musculus, dim. of mus, a mouse; Gr. mūs, a mouse; a muscle.
Muscoid, mūs′.kōid, moss-like, a moss-like plant.
A hybrid: Latin muscus, Greek -eidos, moss-like.
Muscology, mūs′.kō.l.ō.gy, that part of bot. which treats of mosses.
A hybrid: Latin muscus, Greek lūgōs, a treatise on mosses.
Muscovado sugar, mūs′kō.vay′.do shūg′gar, raw sugar.
A corruption of Spanish mascabado, an inferior stigar.
Our spelling quite destroys—the character of the word, which is a compound of mas acabado, "more perfect," i.e., carried a process further than when in a state of syrup. Muscovado is sheer nonsense, being Spanish musco vado, a chestnut-colour ford.
Muscovy, mūs′kō.vy, of or from Moscow or Moskva, in Russia.
Muscovite, mūs′kō.vite, a native of Moscow.
Muscovy-duck (not mus.kō′.vy...).
Muscovy-glass, a variety of mi′ca.
Muse (1 syl.), goddess of poetry and music. Mews, stables.
Musae, in classical mythology there are nine Muses, sisters, and daughters of Zeus (Jove).
(1) Calliope, kal.i′.ō.pē (not kal.ik′.o.pē), the epic Muse.
Greek kallīkēpe (kallōs opē), Muse with the beautiful voice.
(2) Clio, kli′.ō, Muse of history. (Gk. kliēo, from klēōs, rumour.)
(3) Erato, er′.at.o (not e.rai′.to), Muse of erotic poetry,
Greek ērōtō, from ērōdēs, beloved (ērōs, love).
(4) Euterpe, eu.ter′.pe, Muse of music and melody.
Greek euterpē [mousa], delightful muse.
(5) Melpomene, mēl′.pō.mē.nē, the Muse of tragedy.
Greek melpomēné [mousa], the singing muse (melpē, I sing).
(6) Polyhymnia, pō.lī.him′.nē.ah, Muse of sacred poetry.
Greek poli-stimnia (poli\(\ddot{s}\) humnos), muse of many hymns.
(7) Terpsichore, terp.sī′.chō.rē, the Muse of dancing.
Greek terpsī chōrē, delighting in the dance (terpd, I delight).
(8) Thalia, thā′.li.ah (not thā′.lē.ah), the Muse of comedy.
Greek thaleia [mousa], the blooming muse.
(9) Urania, ur.ān′.i.ah (not ur.ay′.ni.ah), Muse of astronomy.
Latin form of the Greek ouranīta, the heavenly [muse].
Muse, to meditate; mused (1 syl.), mus’-ing (Rule xix.), musing-ly, mus’-er, mus’-fully. (French muser.)

Museum, mu.zee’-um, a building set apart for curiosities.

Latin museum; Greek mu søeion, temple of the muses.

“Muse,” Lat. musa; Gk. mousa. “Mews,” Fr. mue, a cage [for hawks].

Mush, meal of maize boiled in water. (German mus.)

Mash, barley meal, &c., mixed with hot water for horses and poultry. (German meischen, to mash.)

Mesh, an interstice of a net, a net. (Welsh maeg.)

Mushroom, mush’room, an edible fungus; mushroom-spawn, mushroom seed in a mass; mushroom-ketchup, a sauce made from mushrooms. (Fr. mousseron, mousse, moss.)

Music, mú’stik; musical, mú’stik-kal; musical-ly, musical-ness.

Musician, mú.xish’an; music-seller; music of the spheres, the supposed musical sounds made by the heavenly bodies as the result of their movements.

Musical glasses, glasses of different tones sorted so as to be used for a musical instrument.

(The five words, Arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric, derived from the French, are sing., but all other words denoting a science with a similar termination are plu. Rule lix.)

“Music,” Fr. musique; Lat. musica; Gk. musicë. Our word means both the art, and the result obtained from musical instruments as exponents of that art. These being totally distinct ought not to be expressed by the same word.

Musk, a plant, an animal perfume. Mosque, mosk (q.v.)

Animal musk is obtained from a bag near the navel of the musk deer, a native of the Asiatic Alps.

Musk cat, musk deer, musk duck; musk ox, musk rat.

Musk apple, musk cherry, musk mallow, musk melon, musk orchis, musk rose, all so called from their odours.

French musc; Latin moschus; Greek moschos, musk, the musk-cat.

Musket, mú’s. ké’t, a gun used at one time by soldiers of the line.

Musket-ee’r, mú’s.ké’tér, a soldier armed with a musket; musket-proof; mú’s.ketoön’, a blunderbus.

Musketry, mú’s. ké’try, the art and practice of gunnery.

(The musket succeeded the arquebuse, and was itself succeeded, first by the fustil, and then by the rifle.)

(It was a Spanish invention, a little prior to 1521. It was used in the English army in 1521. The Duke of Aosta introduced it into the Low Countries in 1569, and Strozzi, an Italian, at the close of the century introduced it into France.)

Germ. musket, musketter, musketon, muskettier; Span. mosqueta; Ital. moschetto; Fr. mosquet. The word is from mosca, a fly, and compared with the heavy arquebuse it was “light as a fly.”

Muslin, múz’lin, a fine delicate cotton cloth; muslin-et, múz’lin et, a coarse muslin; mousseline de laine, mooz’lin dé laine, a wool muslin. (Moussul, Asiatic Turkey.)
Myops, my'ops, a near-sighted person; myopic, my'op'ik.

Greek mu'dop, near-sighted, (*mu'd op*o) close-eyed, shut-eyed.

Myositis, my'o'si'tis. Myositis, my'o'si'tis;

Myositis, the plant called mouse-ear;

Myositis, inflammation of a muscle.

"Myositis," mu'is, gen. mu'ois oi's, mouse ear.

Myriad, mu'ri'ad, ten thousand, a countless number.

Greek mu'ri'dos, numberless, as a definite number 10,000.

Myricaceae, my'ri ka'ke'e. Myrtaceae, mu'r'tay'se'e. Both natural orders of the genus myrtle with this difference:

Myricaceae, natural order of the flowerless myrtle;

Myrtaceae, natural order of the flowering myrtle.

Myrica, mu'ri'ka, the typical genus of the myrica'ceae.

Myrtus, mu'rtus, the typical genus of the myrta'ceae.

(*-ca, in Botany, a genus of plants, -aceae, a natural order).

Lat. myr'tica; Gk. mu'rlik [the tamarisk], being already appropriated, ought not to have been perverted to a totally different plant. If, however, myrica has been formed (as botanists say) from the Greek mu'ron, "sweet ointment," it is still more unpardonable. I apprehend the word is a corrupt form of the Lat. myrrha, Gk. mu'ron, the "Arabian myrtle," and is, in fact, a series of blunders.

Myrmidon, mu'r'mi'od (not myrmadon), a rough policeman, "bull-dog," or other employé under a merciless or despotic leader; myrmidonian, mu'r'mi'dii'ni an.

So called from the Myrmidones, a people of Thessaly, subjects of Achilles, and his chief soldiery in the Trojan war.

Myrrh, mer, a fragrant Arabian gum; myrrhic, mu'r'rek.

Myrrhine, mer'rin, made of porphery or fluor spar;

Murrain, mu'r'ren, cattle plague. (Spanish morrina.)

Latin myrrha, myrrhinus, made of myrrha (myrrha is either myrrh or porphery), murrhinus (adj. of murrha or mu'ra, a kind of porphery); Greek mu'ra, mu'rha (v. mu'reo, to trickle).

The words "myrrhine" and "murrhine" being synonymous, the former should be abolished, as it confounds the word with the drug.

Myrtle, mer'til, an evergreen; myrtaceous (Rule lxvi.), adj.

Myrtaceae, mer'tay'se'e. Myricaceae, mi'ri'ka'ke'e. Myrtaceae, natural order of the flowerless myrtle;

Myricaceae, natural order of the flowering myrtle.

Latin myr'tus, myr'taceus*; Greek mu'rtos. Myr'taceae* (q.v.).

Myself, plu. ourselves, my'self, our'selves (a reflexive personal pronoun), the same, the identical; I myself.

Mystery, plu. mysteries (Rule xliv.), mis’tŏriz, something profoundly secret, something past understanding, a drama;

Mysterious (not mistereous, R. lxvi.), mis’tŏrius, obscure;

Mystification, mĭs’tŏ.f̄ıˇkshUn; Lat. mysterium, mystical; Gk. musterion, musttikos (mustēs, one initiated). The mysteries were those things of the “secret societies” of Greece and Rome which were revealed only to the initiated. In the middle ages, the most delicate parts of many mechanical arts were kept profoundly secret, and hence the word came to be applied to anything reserved as a deep secret or past understanding.

Myth, mith, a poetic fiction, a fabulous tale; mythic, mith’ik; mythical, mith’ĭk; mythologically, mith’ŏlōgĭk; mythologically, mith’ŏlōgĭlik; mythologist, mith’ŏlŏgˇst. (Greek muthos, muthikos.)

Mythographer, mĭthOgˇra.fer, a writer of myths.

Greek mētho-[muthos] grapʰos, I write myths.

Mythology, plu. mythologies (Rule xliv.), mĭthOˇlōждˇz, tales of gods and goddesses reduced to a system; mythologic, mĭthOˇlŏdˇgˇik; mythological, mĭthOˇlŏdˇgˇik; mythologically, mĭthOˇlŏdˇgˇikˇl; mythologist, mĭthOˇlŏdˇgˇist.

Mythologise (Rule xxxi.), mĭthOˇlŏdˇgˇize; mythologised (4 syl.); mythologising (Rule xix.).

Greek mēthOˇlŏgˇstTa (mēthos) logĭg, mythic legends.

Mytilaceae, mĭtTlakęˇ nàngˇSˇēˇSˇē (not mītTlakęˇ nàngˇSˇēˇSˇē), the family of molluscs of the mussel type; mytilacean, mĭtTlakęˇ nàngˇˇSˇēˇSˇēˇSˇēˇdˇn, one of the mytilaceae; mytilidae, mĭtTlīˇdˇdˇ, the mussel group.

(“Mytilidae is a better word than mytilaceae, the termination -aceae being used in botany for a natural order of plants, and -idē (a Greek patronymic) for a family or group of animals.)

Mytilite, mĭtTlĭlite, a fossil mussel (-ite, a fossil).

Mytiloid, mĭtTlĭlŏid, shells resembling the mussel.

Greek măltĭlŏ-[măltŏs] ĕ̄dŏs, like a mussel.

Greek mūrtoς, a myrtle. (-aceae denotes an “order” of plants.)

Myricaceae, mīrTlakęˇ nàngˇˇSˇēˇSˇē, natural order of the barren myrtle. (See Myrica.)

48—2
N- (native prefix), negative: as one, n-one.
Nab, to catch with a snap; nabbed, nābd; nabb'ing (Rule i.)
Danish nappe, to snap at, catch at, nap, a snatch.
Nabob, na'bōb, a native Indian governor, a man of great wealth.
Hindustanee nawb, a governor.
Nacre, nay'kr', mother of pearl; nacrous, nā'krē.ūs.
Nacreite, nay'krite, a sort of mica. (French nacre.)
Nadir, nay'der, that part of the heavens directly under our feet, the opposite point is the zenith, ze'nith.
Two Arabic words Naibaro or nazir means opposite [the zenith].
Nag, a small horse, to scold constantly; nagged, nāgd; nagg'ing (Rule i.), nagg'ing-ly, nagg'er, nagg-y.
“Nag” (horse), Danish nage, to whinny as a horse.
“Nag” (to find fault), Dan. nag, v. nage, to snaw (a “nagging” pain).
Naiad, plu. naiads, nay'ādz, a water-nymph; naiades, nay'ādz (in Geol.), fresh-water mussels. (Greek nāiades.)
Nail, nāle (1 syl.), the horny substance on the back of our finger-tips, &c., a metal pin, to fasten with a nail; nailed, nail'd; nail'ing, nail'er; nail'ery, a nail manufactory.
On the nail, immediately. To hit [it] on the nail, to strike home. To hit the nail on the head, to catch the exact meaning, to do the right thing at the right time.
Old English nāgel, v. nāglre, past nāgloid, past part. nāgled.
Naive (French), ni'ef, ingenious; naïve-ly, ni'ef.lly.
Naïve-ty, ni'ef.ty (French), artless simplicity.
Naked, nay'hēd, without clothing, nude; nā'ked-ly, nā'ked-ness; naked-eye, the eye unassisted by any optical instrument. (Old English nacod or naced.)
Nama, p.:pamby, wishy-washy [literature].
Applied by Pope to the poetry of Ambrose Phillips. “Namby” is Ambrose, and “Pamby” a jingling corruption of the surname.
Name (1 syl.) noun and verb, named (1 syl.), nām'ing (L. xix.), nām'er, name'less, name'less-ly; name'sake, one bearing the same Christian name; name'plate, a door-plate.
Christian name, krī's.ēan, a personal name.
Surname, a family name. Nickname, a sobriquet.
Proper name, the name of a man, place, &c.
In the name of, on the authority of, in behalf of.
To call names, to abuse. To take [God’s] name in vain, to utter it lightly or profanely.
Old English nama, v. nam[an], nameleas. “Name-book” (nom-loe), a “catalogue,” might be reintroduced.
Nankeen, wīn.keen', a buff-coloured cotton cloth (Nankin.)
Näp. Näpe (1 syl.), the back of the neck. Knap, näp, to break.

Näp, a short doze, the villous surface of cloth or hats, to take a doze; napped, náp; napp'ing (Rule 1.), napp'-er, napp'-y. Nap'-less, threadbare; napp'i-ness.

Näpe (1 syl.), the back of the neck. (O. E. cnep, Welsh cnap.)

Napery; náp'ery, made-up linen, table-linen.

French nappé, cloth; Latin nappa, a table-cloth, a napkin.

Naphtha, náf'thá, rock-oil, &c.; naphthalic, náf'thal'ik.

Naphthaline, náf'thál'ín, a substance which incrusts pipes employed in the rectification of coal-tar.

Latin naphtha; Greek naphtha, oleum Medéc, bitumen.

Napkin, a cloth used at meals for wiping the fingers and lips.

Napkin-ring, a ring for holding a table napkin.

French nappe, a cloth, with kin an English dim.

Napoleon, ná.pó'léön, a French gold coin = 20 francs. First issued by Napoleon I. to replace the Louis d'or.

Narcissus, plu. narcissus-es (not narcissi), a bulbous flower. Fable says the boy Narcissus was changed into this flower.

Greek narkissis (narkásis, torpe), the odour being a narcotic.

Narcotic, nar'ki.tik, inducing sleep, a medicine to produce sleep; narcotical-ly, nar'kó.ti.kál.ly.

Narcotin, nar'kó.tín; narcotism, nar'kó.tíz.m.

Greek narkotikos (v. narkad, to numb, to deaden).

Nard, an ointment prepared from the spikenard plant.

Old English nard; Latin nardus; Greek nardos, an Eastern word.

Narrate, nár'ra.té', to tell as a story, to relate; narrat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), narrat'-ing (Rule xix.), narrat'-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Narration, nár'rá'shún. Narrative, nár'rá.tív.e; nará.tiv.e-ly; narrable, nar'rá.b'l.

Latin narrátítis, narrátito, narrátor, v. narráre; French narration.

Narrow, nár'ro, not wide, to contract; narrowed, nár'ró.wéd; nar'row-ing; (comp.) nar'row-er, (super.) nar'row-est, nar'row-ly, nar'row-ness.

Narrow cloth, cloth less than fifty-two inches wide.

Broad-cloth, cloth double of fifty-two inches in width.

Narrow gauge, -gage (of railways) 4 ft. 8½ in. wide.

Broad gauge, 7 feet between the two rails.

Narrow-mind, illiberal mind; narrow-minded, illiberal; narrow-minded-ness, having mean and contracted views.

Old English nearo, nearole, narrowly, nearones, nearowness, v. nearow[ian], past nearode, past part. nearod.

Danish nar-hval; German narwal (nar-wal-fish), the foolish whale.

Wal'r-us, German wal-rosse, the whale-horse.

Nasal, nay'sl, pertaining to the nose, through the nose.

French nasal, nasale; Latin nasus, the nose (Greek naö, to flow).

Nascent, näs'sent, sprouting; nascenty, näs'sen'y.

Latin nasens, gen. nascentis, rising (v. nascor, to arise, to be born).

Nasturtium (Latin), näs.tur'shüm (not nas.tur'shún), the *tropé*olum Great Indian cress, or nose-smart.

Nomen acceptit a narium tormento (Plin. xix. 44).

A corrup. of nasby. O. E. n·asca, not dust, i.e. mud; Ger. nass, wet.

Natal, nay'tål, native, pertaining to birth, anniversary of birth-day. (Latin nataëís, v. nascor, nátus, to be born.)

Natant, nay'tánt, swimming, floating; na'tant-ly.

Natatory, nay'tó'tó'réy, adapted for swimming.

Nathless, náth.less, nevertheless. (Old English náthelès.)

Nationality, plu. nationalities, násh'ón ál'ltiz.

Nationalise (Rule xxxi.), násh'ón ál'ltíz, to make national;

Naturalise, náltch'úr álítíz, to invest a foreigner with the civil rights of a native.

Nationalised (4 syl.), nationalis-ing (Rule xix.), násh'ón ál'ltíz'ing. National-ism, násh'ón ál'tím.

National debt, násh'ón ál dêt, the government debt.

National law or law of nations, international law.

(Except in “nation” the first syllable is always short. See Nature.)

French nation, national, nationaliser, naturaliser; Latin nátio.

Native, nay'tiv, born in a place, indigenous; native-ly.

Nativity, plu. nativities (Rule xlv.), nay'tiv ál'tiz.

Latin nátivus, natívitas; French natif, nativité.

Natron, nay' trú'n, a native carbonate of soda. Natrium, nay' trú'm, an early chemical term for sódium.

Natrolite, nay' trú.lít, a mineral containing a large quantity of natron or soda.

German nátrum or natron; French nátrium or natron, natrolithe.

“Natron” is the nitre of the ancients. Now “natron” is a native carbonate of soda, and “nitre” is a nitrate of potassa.

Natty, nát'ty, spruce, prim and smart. (Dim. of neat, Welsh nith.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Naturalise (R. xxxi.), *n*āt*urally*ise, to invest a foreigner with the civil rights of a native, to acclimatise; naturalised (4 syl.); naturalising (R. xix.), *n*āt*ur*al*is*ing*.

Naturalisation, *n*āt*urally*isation*.

Naturalist, one who studies the productions of nature.

Originally this word meant, one who believes in "natural religion only, and not in "Revealed Religion."

Natural history, a scientific description of the productions of the earth (sometimes limited to the animal kingdom).

Natural philosophy, -*f*ǐt*los*∅*fy, the science of material bodies, their forces, combinations, motions, and effects.

Natural projections, -*p*ro*jėk*shunz*, perspective drawings of surfaces on a given plane.

Natural religion, -rē*ligion*, religion so far as it is discoverable without revelation.

Natural scale, -*sk*āle (in Mus.), without sharps and flats.

Natural selection, -*s*ē,lēk*shun*, that process in nature by which the stronger supersede the weaker.

Good-nature, good-natured; ill-nature, ill-natured.

(As in "nation" (q.v.) the first syl. is always short, except in "nature.")

Latin *n*ātūra, *n*āturālis; French *n*ātur*el*, *n*āturnalisme, *n*ătur*aliser*, *n*ătur*al*isation, *n*ătur*aliser*, *n*ătur*al*.

It is naught, it is naught [worthless], says the buyer. (Prov. xx. 14.)

The city is pleasant, but the water is naught. (2 Kings ii. 10.)

Doth Job fear God for nought [nothing]. (Job i. 9.)

Ye have sold yourselves for nought. (Isa. iii. 3.)

To set at naught (not *n*ought), to treat as worthless.

"Naught," Old English *n*āht, i.e., *n*āht, not aught [of value].

"Nought," Old Eng. *n*ōht, i.e., *n*ōht, not ought [not anything at all].

Naumachy, *n*aw*m*ā*ky*, a spectacle representing a sea-fight.

Greek *n*āum*achia*, *n*āus *m*ā*chē*, ship battle.

Nausea, *n*aw*shē*ē*ah*, sickness, loathing; nauseous, *n*aw*shē*ē*ūs*; nau*se*ous-ly, nau*se*ous-ness.

Nauseate, *n*aw*shē*ē*ate*; nauseat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), nauseat-ing. (Latin *n*āusea*; Greek *n*ausia, *n*āus, a ship.)

Nautical, *n*aw*ți*kāl*, relating to ships or sailors; nau*tical-ly.

Nautical Almanac, an almanac for seamen, published by the Admiralty.

Nautical astron*omy*, astronomy in its application to navigation. (Latin *n*aut*icus*; Greek *n*aut*ikos*, *n*āus.)
Nautilus, plu. nautilus-es or nautili, nau't.i.lis, nau' ti.lis, ñaw't.ţi.li, a mollusk with its organs of motion placed round its head (a cepl'ţl抛弃).

Nautilide, nau't.i.li.de, a family of molluscs of which the nautilus is a type (-ide, a Greek patronymic denoting a "family," "descendants").

Nautilite, nau't.i.li.te, a fossil nautilus (-ite denotes a fossil, Greek lithos). Nautiloid, nau't.i.loid, fossils resembling the nautilus (Greek etiDos, like).

Greek nautilos, nautilus or sailor (Naus, a ship); Latin nautilus.

Naval, nay'.vl, pertaining to the navy. Na'vel [of the body].

Nàve (1 syl.) Knave, nàve. Naive, ni'ev, ingenuous.

Nave, the centre of a wheel, the main part of a church.

Navel, nay'.ve.l [of the human body]. Naval (q.v.)
Navel string, the umbilical cord.

Knave, a scoundrel. (Old English cnafa, a youth.)

Naive, ni'ev, ingenuous. (French naïve.)

"Nave" (of a wheel), Old English nafu, nafeda, the navel.

"Nave" (of a church), Fr. nef; Gk. nados, the innermost part of a temple, where the "God" was placed (not Lat. naviis, a ship).

Navigate, nàv'ı.g@s, to traverse the sea; nav'ig@t-ed (R. xxxvi.), nav'ig@t-ing (R. xix.), nav'ig@t-or (R. xxxvii.)

Navigation, nàv'ı.g@tn, shùn. Navigable, nàv'ı.g@b'l; navigable-ness, navigably, navigability.

Latín návigábilis, návigáltio, návigátor, v. návigére, návis, a ship.

Navvy, plu. navvies, nàv'ı.vı, workmen employed in the construction of railroads, canals, tunnels, &c.

Navy, a fleet. (Latin návis, a ship.)

In the north a canal is called a navvy, and men employed in constructing it navvies. Halliwell gives nàvy, "a canal," and navies, "excavators," in his Arcaic Dict.

Navy, plu. navies, nay'.vl, a fleet. Navvy, an excavator (v.s.)

Naval, nay'.vl, pertaining to the navy. Navel [of the body].

Nawab, nàwavb', an Indian governor, same as Na'bob.

Nay, No. Yea, Yes. Neigh, nay, to whinny.

The distinction between nay and no, yea and yes, is not now observed, but it was a very good one. It was this:

A question formed affirmatively, had Yea or Nay for its answer.
A question formed negatively, had No or Yes for its answer.

G.E.-Are you going to town to-night? Answer, Yea or Nay.
Are you not going to town? Answer, Yes or No.

A yea-nay [sort of a man], a shilly-shally.

Old English gea, yea, geese, yes, negatives ne-gena, contracted to nd.

Nazarene, naz'ə.ren', applied to Jesus Christ and his disciples, one of the sect of the Nazarenes.

Nazarean, naz'ə.ren.an, pertaining to Nazareth, pertaining to the Nazarenes.

Nazarite, naz'ə.rīt, a Jew bound by a vow of abstinence and purity of life; naz'aritism.

Nazareth, a city of Galilee, where Jesus Christ was brought up.

"Nazarite," Hebrew nazar, to separate, one set apart.

Nāze (1 syl.), a headland. (Germ. nase; Lat. nāsus, a nose.)

-nce, -ncy (Latin -nt[ia]) nouns, possessed of, result of, state of.

Fragrancy, possessed of fragrance; infancy, infant state.

.nd (Lat. -nd[us]) nouns, something to be [done].

Legend, something to be read; deodand, something to be given to God; stipend, something to be paid as wages.

Neap-tide, neep'-tide, lowest tide. Spring-tide, highest tide.

Neap-tides occur during the quarter moons;

Spring-tides occur during new and full moons.

Old English nep, nep-flood or neap-tide.

Near, nēr, close by. Ne'er, nār, contraction of never.

Near, (comp.) near-er, (super.) near-est;

Near, to draw near; neared, nēr'd; near-ing.

Near-ly, almost; near'ness, proximity, closeness of neighbourhood or relationship, parsimoniousness.

Near at hand, close by. Near-sighted, nēr-sī'ted.

Old English neah, (comp.) nearra, (super.) neahst, neahlee, nearly.

Neat, neet, tidy, black cattle; neat'-ly, neat-ness; neat-handed, clever and natty. Neat-herd, a cow-keeper; neat's-foot, neat's-tongue; neat-cattle, oxen, &c.

"Neat" (tady). Welsh nith, pure; Latin nittīdas, neat.

"Neat" (cattle). Old English neald or neat, neat-hyde, a netherd.

Nebula, plu. nebulae, nēb'bul.ah, plu. nēb'bul.ē, also written nebule, plu. nebules, nēb'bulē, plu. nēb'bulēs, white spots in the starry heavens many of which have been resolved into groups of stars or planetary systems.

Nebular, nēb'bul.ar, pertaining to nebula.

Nebulous, nēb'bul.ūs, cloudy; neb'ulous-ness.

Nebulosity, plu. nebulosities (Rule xliv.), nēb'bul.ūs'-ī.tiz; nebuly, nēb'bul.ī, covered with wavy lines.

Nebular hypothesis, -hī.pōth'.ē.sis, the theory which supposes that the sun was once a luminous mass out of which the planets and their satellites were gradually evolved. (Latin nēbula, nēbūlōsus, nēbūlōsitas.)

Necessitarian, nēs'ēs.sē.tā.tair'ri.ān, one who believes that whatever is (being foreordained) must of necessity be; necessi-tar'ian-ism, the tenets of a necessitarian.

Latin necessarius, necessitas, necessitūdo (ne cedere, sup. esseum, not to be given up or parted with); French nécessité, nécessaire, &c.

Neck, that part of the body which joins the head to the trunk. Neck of land, a narrow strip between two large portions; necked, nēkt, having a neck, as a large necked bottle.

Neck-band, neck-cloth, neckerchief, plu. neckerchieves (ought to be chiefs). Necklace, neck'ē.lēs, a string of beads for the neck; neck-laced (3 syl.); neck-tie, nek'.tī.

Neck and crop, head and heels. Stiff-necked, stubborn.

To harden the neck, to resist doggedly.

To break the neck of [something], to surmount introductory difficulties. Neck-verse, Psalm li. 1, the trial-verse which saved the neck of those who obtained “benefit of clergy.”

Old English necca or hnecca. “Neckerchief” is Neck-kerchief, a wretched hybrid: neck Eng., kerchief Fr., couvre chef, a “neck head-cover” 11 and the plural -chieves adds to the absurdity.

Nec'ro- (Greek prefix), a dead body, putrid (nekros, a corpse).

Nec'ro-lite (3 syl.), certain nodules in limestone, which give out (when struck) a putrid smell.

Greek nekro- [nekros] lithos, a dead-body stone.

Necrology, nē.krō'ē.lō.gy, a register of deaths; nec'ro-logical, nēk'ē.ē.lō.gō'ē,kē. necrologist, nē.krō'ē.lō.gēst.

Greek nekro- [nekros] lēgōn, a register of dead persons.

Nec'ro-man-cy, plu. -mancies, -mān'dēz,* enchantment, divination by calling the dead from their graves to answer; necro-man'cer; necro-man'tic, necro-man'tic-ly.

Greek nekro- [nekros] mānēs, divination by the dead.

Necrophagous, nē.krō'ē.gēs, eating carrion.

Greek nekro- [nekros] phago, I eat dead bodies.

Necropolis, nē.krō'ē.pōlēs, a cemetery.

Greek nekro- [nekros] pōlēs, city of the dead.

Necropsy, nek'ē.pōp'sē, examination of a dead body.

Greek nekro- [nekros] opsis, investigation of a dead body.

Necrosis, nē.krō'ē.sēs, mortification, gangrene.

Greek nekro-sēs, deadness, v. nekroō, nekroς, a dead body.
Nectar, nēk’t’r, beverage of the gods, the sweet secretion of flowers, a sweet and pleasant drink; nectarous, nēk’tair’rous, pertaining to nectar.

Nectary, plu. nectaries, nēk’tā.rīz, that part of a flower which secretes nectar (honey); nectarous, nēk’tair’rous, sweet as nectar.

Nectariform, nēk’tair’form, having a honey-like secretion. (Latin nectar formes, bearing nectar.)

Nectarine, nēk’tair’īn (not necl’trine), a fruit like nectar.

Nectarium, plu. nectariums, nēk’tair’ēüm, -ē.ōm, a nectary; nectarous, nēk’tārīs, sweet as nectar.

Nectareous, containing nectar, pertaining to nectar.

Nectarous, sweet as nectar.

Nectarall, pertaining to the nectary of a flower.

Latin nectar, nektarēus; Greek nektarīs, nektarōs.

Née, nay (French), born: as Mrs. Smith née Jones, that is Mrs. Smith whose birth or maiden name was Jones.

Need. Needs. Knead, need, to work up dough. (O. E. cnedan.)

Need (noun and verb trans. and intrans.), necessity, to require, to be necessary, it behoves (oportet me, te, &c.)

Needs, plu. of need, wants, (adv.), of necessity, necessarily (nes, native affix of adverbs), also requires, insists.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, must of right.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.). must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, must of right.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, necessarily.

Will needs. Would needs, must needs.
Neó- (Greek prefix), new, fresh, young, recent (Greek neós).

Neology, ne.ól'.ogy, rationalism, theology subjected to reason rather than faith; neologic, ne.ół'.ogik'; neological, ne.ół'.ólog'ík'; neological-ly; neologist, ne.ól'.ódžist. Neologise, ne.ól'.ó.djize; neologised (1 syl.), neologis-ing. Neologism, ne.ól'.ó.djizm.

Greek neó- (neos) logós, new interpretation.

Ne'o-phyte, -fite, a new convert, a proselyte.

Greek neóphytos (neos phytos, a new plant).

Ne'o-teric, -tér'r'k, one of modern times, recent.

Greek neótérkos, recent (neós, new, neótér's, comp.).

Ne'o-zoic (not -zoic), -zo'.ik. The whole geological period of organised life is divided into three groups: the paleo-zoic [pal.e.o-zo'.ik], meso-zoic, and neo-zoic. The paleo-zoic or archaic group begins with the Cambrian period, the meso-zoic with the Trias, and the neo-zoic with the Tertiary rocks.

Greek neó- (neós) zón, recent or modern animal-life.

Nepenthe, ne.pen'.the, a magic drug supposed to produce oblivion of grief. Nepenthes, ne.pen'.thēz, the pitcher-plant.

Greek né-penthēs, freedom from sorrow, assuaging grief.

Nephy, fem. niece, né'ver, néece, son and daughter of a brother or sister. (Old Eng. nefa, nephew (nefe, niece); Fr. nièce.)

Ne plus ul'tra (Latin), nothing superior, superlative.

Nepotism, nép'.ó.tizm, state patronage handed over to relations.

French nepotisme (Latin nepos, a nephew); Ital. nepotismo, church patronage unduly bestowed by popes on their nephews.

Neptune, nep'tchnune, the classic sea-god; neptunian, néptu'.ni.an (not nép.tchů-ni'an), adj. of Neptune;

Neptunian rocks, the stratified rocks or those which have been deposited in layers by the action of water.

Neptunian theory, the theory which attributes all the geologic "rocks" to the action and agency of water.

The Plutonian theory attributes them to the action and agency of fire or heat.

Neptunist, nép'.tún'ist, an advocate of the neptunian theory.

Plutonist, an advocate of the Plutonian theory.

Nereid, nér'.ē{id} (not nér'.rid), a sea-nymph; nereites, nér'.ē.ites; -fossil tracks of sea-worms (-ite denotes a fossil).

Nerita, nér'.i.ta, a genus of univalvular shell-fish;

Nerit, nér'.rit, one of the nerita.

Greek nér'ēs, gen. nér'ēidos, a nereid (daughter of Nereus, 2 syl.)

Nerve (1 syl.), a fibrous cord, an organ of sensation, to give vigour to; nerved (1 syl.), nerv'-ing (R. xix.), nerve-less.
AND OF SPELLING.

Nervine, ner'vin, a medicine to act on the nerves.

Nervous, ner'vūs, relating to the nerves, vigorous, over-sensitive; ner'vous-ness, ner'vous-ly.

Nervure, ner'vūr, the vein of a leaf, nerve or muscle of an insect's wing. Nervation, ner'vā'ʃūn.

Nervous system, -sēs'tēm. Ner'vous tem'perament.

Neutral, nū'ləl, pertaining to the nerves. (See Neural.)

Latin nervus, nervosus, nervus; Greek neuron, a. nerve.

-ness (a native postfix), added to abstract nouns. Of the 1337 words with this termination about half a dozen are not abstract words: viz., fastness, harness, likeness (a picture), madness, witness, wilderness, and the fem. nouns lion-ess, govern-ess, marchion-ess, &c. (which end in -ess preceded by -n-). Of the rest only about 25 have a plural, and these plurals signify repetitions:

Ness, a headland, a cape, often used as a postfix: as Bowness, Shoebury-ness, Fife-ness. (Old English nes or nesse.).

Nest (not nest), a bird's seat for incubation; nest'-ed, recovered from the feebleness and slime of hatching.

Nest-egg, an egg left in a nest to induce a hen to return to it, something laid by as the beginning of a "saving."

Net, a texture made with meshes, clear of all deductions (as net weight), to catch in a net, to spread a net over, to clear in trade as a profit; nett'-ed (R. xxxvi.), nett'-ing (R. i.), nett'-y, net-work.

Net proceeds, pro'.seeds, the sum cleared after every charge is paid. Net-weight, -wait, the exact weight after all deductions for casks, refuse, waste, &c. have been made. Net sum. Net profit, &c. Gross weight, gross sum, gross profits, gross proceeds, &c., before the proper deductions have been made.

"Net" (of thread, &c.), Old Eng. net or nett, net-rāpas, rope-net.

"Net" (not gross), Ital. netto; Fr. net; our net; Lat. nītīdus.

Nethermost; nether lip, the lower lip.

"Nether," Old Eng. nither, (comp.) nithor, viethoven or vilhenest. "Neither," Old English nathor or nawthor.
Nethinim, נְתִּינִים, servants employed in the Jewish temple. The Gibonites were condemned to this service by Joshua (Josh. ix. 27). The word means given to God.

Nettle, נֶטֶל, a plant, to irritate; nettled, נֶטֶלֶד; nettling; nettle-rash, a skin eruption. Dead-nettle, דָּד נֶטֶל, a nettle that does not sting. (O. E. nettele, netle or nytle.)

Neur- (before vowels), neuro-, νευρ- (before conson.), Greek prefix, nerve. (Neuron, a nerve.)

Neural, νευραλ, pertaining to the nerves or nervous system.

Neurine, νευριν, nervous substance or matter.

Neur-algia, νευραιλ'גיה, pain of a nerve; neuralgic, νευραιולג'יκ. (Greek neuron algos, nerve pain.)

Neuro-logy, νευρολlogan, a scientific description of the nerves; neurological, νευρολוג'יκ. (Greek neuron logos, treatise on the nerves.)

Neuro-pathy, νευρופ'תיה, affections of the nervous system.

Neuro-ptera, νευρופ'טרא, an order of insects; neuropter, νευρופ'טר, one of the neuroptera; neuropteran, νευρופ'טראן, same as neuropter; neuropteran, νευρופ'טראל; neuropterous, νευρופ'טראל. (Greek neuron pteron, nerve wing, so called from the finely-reticulated nerves of their wings.)

Neuro-pteris, νευρופ'טריס, a genus of fossil ferns.

Neurosis, νευρο'σίς, nervous affection acting on the organs of sense and motion without any ostensible disease. Greek neuron, a nerve (-σίς denotes a disease or affection of).

Neuro-skeleton, νευρο'σκεל אוה, the deep-seated bones of the vertebral skeleton connected with the nervous axis.

Neurotic, νευρο'טικ, seated in the nerves, a medicine for disease of the nerves. (Greek neuron tīk.)

Neuro-tomy, νευρο'טומיה, dissection of a nerve; neurotomical, νευρο'טומ'יו. (Greek neuron tomē, nerve cut or dissection.)

Nerve (1 syl.); nervous, νευρ'ווס; nervous-ness. (v. Nerve.)

Neuter, νευρ'וט, taking no part with disputants, indifferent, an intransitive [verb], without sex (like a working bee), without stamen or pistil; neutral, νευρ'וטל; neutral-ly.

Neutrality, νευρ'וטל'יטי. Neutralise (R. xxxi.), νευρ'וטליז, to render void, to counteract; neutralised (3 syl.), νευρ'וטליז'ד; Neutralisation, νευρ'וטליז'ד'יא'. Neutral tint, a grey pigment composed of blue, red, and yellow in certain proportions. Latin neuter, neither, neutralis; French neutralisation.
Neuvaines, nu'vainz, prayers of the same kind offered up for nine successive days. (French neuvaine, neuf, nine.)

Never, nēv'ēr [n-e-ver], "not ever," at no time, not at all.

Never-the-less, notwithstanding. (Old Eng. nō thy les.)

The following Scripturasc~ are not to be imitated:
(1) Ask me never so much dowry .... I will give [it] (Gen. xxxiv. 12).
(2) It refuseth to hear the voice of the charmer, charm he never so wisely (Ps. Iviii. 5, Pray. Blk. V.), that is, however wisely he charms.
(3) He answered him to never a word (Matt. xxvii. 14).

Here to is the obsolete adverb meaning over-and-above, altogether. Thus, Tyndale says, "If the pocke be burned to [wholly] ...." Mercutio's icy hand had alto frozen mine (Rom. & Jul., 1562), i.e., altogether. The phrase "never a word" is a mistranslation of οὐδὲ ἐν ὑμῖν, where οὐδὲ ἐν is simply οὐδὲ-ἐν resolved, [οὐδὲ ἐν] οὐδὲ-μιᾶ, οὐδὲ-ἐν [οὐδὲ ἐν] not one [single] word. The whole sentence is "He answered [to] him over-and-above not one [single] word." Ἀπέκριθη αὐτῷ πρὸς οὐδὲ ἐν ὑμῖν.

Old Eng. nō/ere, i.e. n-ere or ne-ere. "Nevertheless," nō thy les.

New, nū, recent; new'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); new'-er, new'-est, new'-ly, new'-ness. Renew, to make new; &c.

Knew, nū, did know. (Old Eng. cnaw[an], past cnēow.)

Gnu, nū, plu. Gnuς, nūze, South African ox. (S. African.)

News, nūze, intelligence, tidings; news-boy; news-man, plu. news-men; news-monger, a tittle-tattle; news-agent, news-seller, news-vendor; news-galley, a metallic frame used by printers for containing columns in type for proofs in slips. News-paper. News-room, a room where newspapers are provided for subscribers.

The Daily News, a newspaper; 2, 3 ... Daily News (not newises).

Noose, noo's, a running knot. (Latin nōdus, a knot.)

Nose, noze, a feature of the face. (Old Eng. nosu or nasu.)

Noes, those who vote no to a question. (Old Eng. no, nū.)

News, singular or plural?

When Shakespeare lived, News was used indifferently with a singular or plural construction: thus Sing. The news which is called true (Winter's Tale v. 2).

This news hath made thee a most ugly man (Ky. John iii. 1).

This news, I think, hath turned your weapons' edge (2 Hen. VI. ii. 1).

Plu. You breathe these dreadful news in [a] dead .... ear (Ky. John v. 7).

These news .. have in some measure made me well (2 Hen. VI. i. 1).

Ten days ago I drowned these news in tears (3 Hen. VI. ii. 1).

Modern custom gives it only a singular construction.

Old Eng. neoue or niwe, v. niwe[an], past niwode, past part. niwod, niwelc, newly, niwmes, newness, niwe-suma, a new-comer.

Newt, nūtē, an eft or efet. (O. E. efete, sim. "ant" from æmete.)

Newtonian system, nū.tē'.nī.än sis' tēm, the Copernican system developed by Sir Isaac Newton.

Newtonian philosophy, -fi.lōs's.fy, the laws, &c., laid down by Sir Isaac Newton in explanation of celestial phenomena. A Newto’nian, one who accepts the Newtonian system and believes in it.
Errors of Speech

Next. Near, (comp.) near’er, (super.) near’est or next.

Old Eng. neah, comp. neah-ra or nyr, super. neah-st, neahst or nearst.

Nexus, nex’us, a tie, an annexionation. (Latin nexus, v. nector.)

Nib, the point of a pen; nibbed (R. i.), nib’d. (Old Eng. nib.)

Nibble, nib’ble, a little bite, to gnaw; nibbled, nib’bled; nib’bling, nibbling-ly; nibbler, nib’bler.

German knarpen, to crunch. Norse knibe, to nip, &c.

Nibelungen lied, nib’el-un’gen lied, the lay of the Nibelungen hoard. This hoard was taken from the Nibelungs by Siegfried (Sege-freed), and given to his wife; the second part of the epic is called the Nibelungen mitt.

Nice (1 syl.), pleasant, squeamish. Niece, neece (a relative).

Nice-ly, comme il faut; nice’ness, minute exactness, &c.

Nicety, ni’ties, a dainty food, a minute distinction. More nice than wise, more concerned to observe minutie than practically wise.

Old Eng. hnes, tender, delicate, hneslice, nicely, hnes-ly, delicacy.

Nicene Creed, ni’sen’, the summary of religious doctrines drawn up by the council held at Nice in A.D. 325.

Niche, ni’tch, a recess in a wall [for a statue, &c.]; niched, ni’tched, having a niche. (French niche; Italian nicchia.)

Nick, a notch, a score, the exact moment, the devil, to cut a nick, to hit the exact moment; nicknamed, ni’kt; nick’ing.

Nick-nack, ni’tu. nick-nacks, small articles of virtu.

Nick of time, the exact moment required.

Nick (the devil), in Scandinavian myth. a kelpie or water-wraith.

Nickel, nik’el, a white metal; nickel-ic, nik’el.ic.

Nickeline, nik’el.in, native arsenate of nickel.

Nickel [silver], German silver made of nickel and tin.

Nicknamed (2 syl.), nicknám-ing (R. xix); nicknám-er.

Either an eke name, an additional name, an ag-nomen, or French nom de nique, a name of derision.

Nicotin, nik’s.in. Nicotian-in, nik’ko.shé.zin.

Nicotin, a poisonous liquid extracted from tobacco;

Nicotianin, the volatile oil of tobacco.

Nicotiana, nik’ko.shé.al’nah, a genus of plants of which the tobacco plant is the type. Nicotian, nik’ko.shé.an.

So named from Jean Nicot, lord of Villemain, who introduced the plant into France, in 1560, while he was ambassador at Lisbon.
Nictate, nik'tate. Nictitate, nik'ti.tate.
Nictate, to wink; nictat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), nictat'-ing; nictation, nik'ti.tion. (Latin nictare, to wink.)
Nictitate, to sweep the lid over the eye in order to clean it; nictitát-ed, nictitá.t-ing (Rule xix.); nictita'tion, -shún, a sweeping of the eye, a nervous flickering of the eye-lid.
Nictitating membrane, a membrane which birds can draw over their eyes to protect them from injury in flying.

Nidification, nid'i.fi.ka'y''shún, the act of building a nest.

Nidus, ni'düs, the place where parasites, worms, insects, &c. lay their eggs and breed. (Latin nidus, a nest).

Niece, fem. of nephew, neece, nēv'.vu. Nice (1 syl.), agreeable.
Niece, nephew, daughter and son of a brother or sister.

Nig'gard,, sordid person; niggard-Iy, nig'gard-li-ness (R. xi.)

Nigger, n'gel', a negro. (Latin niger, black.)

Nigh, ni, (comp.) nigh'er, (super.) nigh'est or next.

Nigh, ni, (comp.) nigh'er, (super.) nigh'est or next.

Night, nite, from sunset to sunrise. Knight, nite, a deg. of rank.

Night-ward; night-cap, a cap to wear in bed, a tumbler of hot grog at bed-time; night-dress, night-gown, night-shirt; night-fall, evening; night-fly, plu. -flies, fite, a moth that flies at night; night-glass, a telescope for night use; night-hawk; night-jar, the goat-sucker; night-man, plu. -men, one who empties cess-pools, &c. at night-time; night-rà'ven; night-season, -són; night-soil, the contents of cess-pools, &c., cleared at night; night-time; night-vision, -win, a dream; night-walker, -walk'er, a somnambulist; night-watch, the guard set at night; night-watching; night-work.

In the night, during the night, unexpectedly.
By-night, during the night, in the night-time.
To-night, this very night. A-nights, adv., nightly.

Nightshade (2 syl.), a plant, called deadly because it was used at one time to blacken the eyes in mourning.

Nightingale (3 syl.), a bird that sings by night.

Nightmare, nite'mare, an incubus. (Old Eng. niht mare.)

"Night," Old English niht, nihtless, nightly, to-nihts, to-night, nihte-hrofem, night-raven, nihtgale, nightingale, niht-sced; night-shade, niht waco, night-raven, niht-vecce, night-watching, niht-woore, night-work. (It will be seen that the -r of night is interpolated.)
Nile (contraction of Latin nil), a term in book-keeping meaning “cancelled,” not to be counted-in, no effects, &c.

Nilly, in the phrase Willy-nilly, whether willing or not.

Old English will[an], n-til[an] or nyll[an], i.e. ne-will[an].

Nilometer, ni-lom-ter, an instrument for ascertaining the height of the periodical rising of the Nile; Nilotic, adj.

Nimble, nim-bl, brisk, expert, active; nimble-ness, nim*bly*, nimble-footed; nimble-fingered, fing-er.d (O.E.numol.)

Nimbus, nim-bus, a band of light painted by Christian artists round the top of the head, or a series of rays round the head and face of consecrated persons.

Aureola, au-ree- lah (not au-ree- o-lah, nor yet au-ree- o-lah), a mantle of rays encompassing the body of saints, &c.

Glory, glor-ry, the nimbus and aureola combined, or more correctly a back-ground of clouds symbolising the Trinity. Sometimes the heavens are opened and the three persons of the Trinity are shown encompassed with angels.

Halo, hak-lo, a luminous circle round the sun or moon.

Nimbus clouds, rain and storm clouds.

“Nimbus,” Latin nimbus, a storm, a head-dress, a “nimbus.”

Nincompoop, nim-kop-poop, a poor creature almost an idiot.

A corruption of the Latin non compos [mentis], not of sound mind.

Nine (1 syl.), one less than ten; ninth (an ordinal); nine-teen’, nine added to ten; nine-teenth (an ordinal); nine-ty, nine-multiplied by ten; ninetieth (an ordinal); ninth-ly, nine-fold; nine-holes, a game; nine-pins, a game.

The sacred Nine, the Muses.

Old English nig on, 9; nigontye, 19; nigotha, 9th; nigonteoth, 19th.

Ninny, nin-ny, a simpleton. (Spanish niño, Latin nánus.)

Nño means one no better than a child, náns, a dwarf, hence “Ninny” means a grown-up person with the mind of a child; “Nincompoop” means one “not in his right senses”; “Idiot,” one of imbecile mind. (Degrees of mental weakness.)

Niobe, né-bë, a woman who wept herself into stone at the loss of her fourteen children; niobium, neo-bium, a metal.

Nip, a pinch, to pinch; nipped, nipt; nipp-ing (R. i.).

(Articles made in pairs have no sing. when the two parts are joined together. If a pair consists of two perfect articles, each part can be referred to in the singular number: as a glove (gloves), a shoe (shoes); but nippers, pincers, tongs, nutcrackers, &c., have no sing. Dutch knap-pen, to nip, to pinch; Danish knib, a nip, to nip.

Nipple, nipp-pl, a teat, part of the lock of a gun; nippled (2 syl.), nipply. (Old English nypell.)
AND OF SPELLING.

Nisan, ni'zan, in the Hebrew calendar, the first month of the year, called Abib before the captivity—about Easter.

Nisi prius, ni'si pri'ās, a law term applied to trials of local or county courts. The words mean unless before. The writ runs that the cause shall be tried at the Westminster court, unless the circuit judges have previously disposed of it. "Nisi prius justiciarii domini regis ad assisas capiendas venērint." The hypothesis is, of course, a mere legal fiction.

Nit, the egg of a louse. Knit, nit, to weave together.

Nitty-y, nitty-i-ness. (Old English kniti or knit.) "Knit," Old English cnyit[an], past cnyite, past part. go-cnyt.

Nitre, ni'trē, saltpetre, nitrate of potash; nitrariy, ni'trār'y, an artificial bed where nitre is formed.

Nitric acid, ni'trik ās'sid, five parts oxygen to one hydrogen. (-ic, in chemistry, denotes an acid which contains the largest possible quantity of oxygen.)

Nitrous acid, ni'trūs ās'sid, a similar combination to nitric acid but with less oxygen. (-ous, in chemistry, denotes an acid with less oxygen than -ic.)

Nitrāte, ni'trātē, a salt formed by the combination of nitric acid with a base, as nitrate of soda. (-ate, in chemistry, denotes a salt from an acid in -ic.)

Nitrēte, ni'trētē, a salt formed by the combination of nitrous acid with a base. (-ite, in chemistry, denotes a salt from an acid in -ous.)

Nitrated, ni'trātēd, combined with nitre. Nitriferous, ni'trīf'erūs, producing nitre. (Latin ferō.)

Nitrify, ni'trīf'ī, to convert into nitre; nitrifies, ni'trīf'īzē; nitrified, ni'trīf'i-dē; nitrifying, nitrification.-kay'-shūn. Latin nitrum-ficio, to make nitre. In compounds, facio is ficio.

Nitrāte of silver, silver dissolved in nitric acid.

Nitrāte of soda, a compound of nitric acid and soda.

Nitrāxide, ni'trāks'īdē, laughing gas.

Nitro-, ni'trō- (Latin nitrum, Greek nitron, prefix), formed by nitric acid, combined with nitric acid.

Nitro-benzole, -bēn'zōlē', artificial oil of bitter almonds.

Nitro-calcite, -kāl'sītē, nitrate of lime. (Latin calc.)

Nitro-glycerine, -gli'si-reen, a blasting oil, prepared by the action of nitric [or sulphuric] acid on glycerine.

Nitrogen, ni'trōdžēn, an elemental gas the basis of nitric acid. Nitrogenises, ni'trōdž'ē-nīzē; nitrogenised (1 syl.), nitrogenising (Rule xix.)

Nitrogenous, ni'trōdž'ē-nūs, containing nitrogen.

"Nitrogen" was called at one time azote (āzōtē).
Nitrometer, n.i.tröm.e.ter, an instrument for testing the quality and value of nitre.

Greek nitron; Latin nitrum; French nitre, a mineral alkali.

Niveous (not nivious, Rule lxvi.), niv.'e.ús, snowy, like snow.

Latin nivus (not niva, gen. nviis, snow; Greek nýphas, a snow-flake).

No, not so, not any. Know, nōw (to rhyme with grow), verb.

Noes, nōze, those who vote “no.” The noes have it, those who vote “no” are the more numerous.

Nose, nōze, a feature of the face. (Old Eng. nasi or nosi.)

Knows, nowz (to rhyme with grows), understands.

Old English cndw[i]an, past cndw[e], past part. cndwen.

Noose, nōo’z, a running knot. (Latin nōdis, a knot.)

Gnus, nūze, a South African animal of the ox kind.

News, nuze, tidings. (Old English neowe or nuwe, new.)

No-where, -wār, in no place. (O. E. nā lwār or -lwār.)

No-whit, -wit, not in the least. (Old English nā lwit.)

No-whither, -wθh’er, to no place. (Old Eng. nā lwθthr.)

No, nay. Aye, yea, yes.

“No,” “Yes,” ought to be the answers of negative questions;

“Nay,” “Yea,” ought to be the answers of affirmative questions;

but, the distinction has been dropped, and “nay,” “yes,” are very rarely used.

Old Eng. nā or nō; “Yea” is Old Eng. gea; “Nay” is ne-gea (nēn); “Yes” is Old Eng. gea, clearly. “Aye” is another form of gea.

Noachian, nō.ā’.ki.än, pertaining to Noah, as the Noachian flood.

Nōb, the head. Snōb, a vulgar pretender. Knōb, nōb.

Nōb, a man of rank, and nōbb’-y, generous, grandiose, are not yet elevated from familiar slang (cont. of noble).

Snob is nob with s.-privative.

Similarly, “scape” is scap, not to be taken, “sober” is s-ebrius, not tipsy. We have in Latin se-grego, se-paro, se-cerno, se-jungo, &c.

So in Italian, calzare (to put on your shoes), s-calzare (to take them off); formilo, s-formilo; flotta, s-flottare, &c.

Knob, nōb, a lump. (Old English * cnæp*; German knöpf.)

“Nop,” German knöbel, a nob, knöpf, a knob; Danish knop, a nop.

Nobility, nō’.bl’t-l’ty (a collective noun), titled families, noble birth, high-mindedness, excellence;
Noble metals, met'lz, those which can be separated from oxygen by heat only: as gold, silver, platinum, &c.

Enno'ble, to make noble; enno'bled (3 syll.), enno'bling.

Lat. nobilis, nobiles, v. nobilis-are, to ennoble; Old Eng. nubelnes.

Nobody, plu. nobodies, nōdīdēlz, no one. (O. E. nār or nō bodig.)

Nocturnal, nōk.tūr'nāl, nightly, during the night; nocturnal-ly.

Nocturn, nōk.tūrn, a midnight service in the Latin church.

Noctograph, nōk.tō.grāf, a writing-frame for the blind, or for those who want to write in the dark.

Nōd. Bow (to rhyme with nōw).

Nōd, a quick and slight inclination of the head in recognition of an equal.

Bow, a slow formal inclination of the head and back in recognition of respect. Out of doors, a bow to ladies and superiors (recognized as friends) is performed by taking off the hat, but by servants, workmen, soldiers, &c., by touching the hat or cap.

Nōd, to give a nod, to doze; nodd'ed (R. xxxvi.), nodd'ing (R. i.), nodd'ing-ly, nodd'er. (Lat. nūtō, Gk. nuktō.)

Nodde, nōd.d'il, the head (a pet expression, “the little nodder”).

Noddy, nōd.dy, a simpleton, a sea-fowl noted for its silliness.

Neddy-noddy, a donkey. (Query Greek nōthēs, stupid.)

Nōde (1 syll.), the point where the orbits of two planets intersect each other, or where a planet intersects the ecliptic. (In Bot.) that part of a stem out of which the leaf grows; nodal, nōd.dāl. (Latin nōdus, a knot.)

Noes, nōse, those who vote “no” or against a measure. (See No.)

Noggen, Noggin, Nogging, nōg'n, nōg'.in, nōg'.ing.

Noggen, made of nogs or hemp, clumsy.

Noggin, an earthen mug, bellied out towards the middle.

Nogging, the “stopping” (whether of brick or grout) between the panels of a house-wall made partly of wood. (If with brick it is called brick nogging).

Welsh nogi, to stop, nog, a stopping. Wooden bricks are nogs.

Noise, nōyz, uproar, loud sounds; nois'-y, nōyz'y; noisi-ly, noisi-ness (R. xi.), noise'-less, noiseless-ly, noiseless-ness.

If got noised abroad, it was rumoured, talked about.

French noise, a quarrel; the French for “noise” is bruit.
Noisome, noisome-ly, noisome-ness. (A hybrid, Norman noisifé, Teutonic -some.)

Latin noéo, to hurt, nocivus, whence noisife (nois'-some).

Noli-me-tangere (Latin), nöli me tän'jë-re, "touch-me-not," plants of various sorts, as the squirting cucumber.

Nolle prosequi (Latin), nöle pro'së.kwi (not pro'së.kwi), a notice from a plaintiff to stop proceedings in a suit.

Nomad or nomade, nöm'äd, one who leads a wandering life; nomadic, nöm'äd-ik; nomadism, nöm'äd.ism.

Nomadise, nöm'äd.ize; nom'ädised (3 syl.), nom'äd.is-ing.

Gk. nòmas, gen. nömádos, roaming, v. nòmeo, to drive flocks afield.

Nomenclature, nó'm.en.klay'手里, the vocabulary of scientific terms; nomenclator, nó'm.en.hlay'tor.

Latin nomenclátor, nomenclátura; Greek onóma hálēo, I call names.

Nominal, nöm'ï.näl, not real, "vox et præterea nihil"; nominal-ly. Nominal-ism, the tenets of the Nominalists, which in the middle ages were opposed to the Realists.

The point in dispute was this: are abstract words the names of real existences, or merely words which require some real thing to be joined to them before they can be even thought about? For example: Is beauty a real thing or a mere word? The Nominalists maintained it to be nothing but a word, of varying meaning according to the object to which it is applied, as "beauty" of a nose, of a picture, of a face, of a star, &c., all quite different. The Realists maintained that "beauty" exists per se, and would exist even if we could form no idea of it.

Latin nöminalis (nömæ, gen. nöminalis, a name; Greek onóma).

Nominate, nöm'ï.näte, to propose, to designate, to name; nomin'ät-ed (R. xxxi.), nomin'ät-ing (R. xix.), nomin'ät-or (R. xxxvii.); nominee, nöm'ï.në, one proposed or named for some office or vacant post. Nom'inal (q.v.).

Nomination, nöm'ï.näyʿ.shu'n; nominative-ly, -nat.ive.ly.

Nominative case, nöm'ï.na.tiv, the case which names the subject that the verb speaks about.

The Objective Case is that which reveals the object to which the verb leads. For example: I write books. "I" (the nominative case) is the subject to be spoken about, and "books" (the objective case) reveals what it is that "I" write.

Lat. nominatio, nominativus, nominátor, v. nominare, to nominate.

Nön-(Lat. prefix). Generally, but not always, united by a hyphen. Nonage, nonchalance, nondescript, nomenclity, nonpareil, nonplus, nonsense, and nonsuit are without a hyphen.

Nö'na- (Latin prefix), nine. In one example (nonillion) nö'n-.

No'na-genarian, dje'nairrū'än, one who has passed his ninetieth birthday. (Lat. nōnagenarius, nōnageni, ninety.)

No'na-gesimal, dje'sëz'mul, the ninetieth [degree] or highest point of the ecliptic. (Latin nōnagesimus, the ninetieth.)
Nona-gon, nö'n'ä.gön, a plain figure with nine angles and nine sides. (A hybrid, -gon being Greek gönía, an angle.)

The Greek would be enneagon, en'.né.a.gön, nine angles.

Nones, nönz, in the Roman calendar the ninth day before the Ides (1 syl.) of the month. (Latin nönae.)

Nonillion, the ninth power of a million. That is, one followed by fifty-four ciphers (non- [nono-] million).

A million is 1 followed by 6 ciphers, and 6 \times 9 = 54 ciphers.

Nön- (Lat. prefix). Dis- (Gk. and Lat. prefix). Un- (native prefix).

Non- denotes failure in agents, but is simply privative where no agency is concerned.

Dis- denotes severance or active antagonism.

Un- denotes simply absence or being without.

In- is the Latin prefix equivalent to our un-.

Non-appearance, failure of putting in an expected appearance. Dis-appearance, withdrawing from view.

Non-appointment, failure in receiving an expected appointment. Dis-appointment, frustration of hope.

"Non-appointment" refers to the office not obtained; "Dis-appointment" to the hope overthrown.

The non-appointment was a great dis-appointment.

Non-arival, failure of arriving as was expected.

Non-attendance, failure to attend as was expected; non-attention. In-attention denotes a simple fact.

Non-bituminous, -bitü.minüs, containing no bitumen.

Non-chalance, no'[n].shäl.aunts, indifference; non-chalant, no'[n].shäl.ahn, supine, indifferent.

Non-cohesion, -kU.he'.shun, absence of cohesion.

Non-commissioned officer, non-köm.mish'.änd öf'.fiser, an officer below a commissioned officer.

In the army, any officer below an ensign.

In the navy, any officer below a lieutenant.

Non-committal (Rule iv.), not being pledged or committed.

Non-communion, -cöm.mü'.nö'n; non-communion-ist, one who fails to come to the "Lord's supper."

Non-compliance, failure of expected compliance.

Non-condensing engine, a high-pressure engine.

Non-conduct'-or (Rule xxxvii.), a substance which does not conduct electricity, light, sound, heat, &c.; non-conduct'ing; non-conduction, kön.dük.shün.

Non-conform'ist, one who does not conform to the church by law established; non-conform'ing; non-conform'ity.

Non-contagious, -kön.tay'.djüs, not communicated by touch; non-conta'gious-ness, not of a contagious character.
Non-content', one who votes "No" in the House of Lords.
Dis-content, positive or active dissatisfaction.
Mal-content, a grumbler who shows his discontent by overt acts. (Latin male contentus.)
Non-contributor, one who is not a contributor.
Non-delivery, failure of an expected delivery.
Non-descript', abnormal, not easily described.
Non-development, failure of development.
Non-discovery, dis.kīv'ā.ry, failure of finding out.
Non-elastic, not possessed of elasticity.
Non-elect', not one of the elect; non-election, e.lēk'.shūn, failure of obtaining an election.
Non-electric, e.lēk'.trīk, a substance not an electric.
A electric can be made to exhibit electricity, but not to conduct it. A non-electric can be made to conduct electricity, but not to exhibit it.
Non-entity, plu. non-entities, en'.ti.tiz, what has no existence, one of no influence.
Non-entry, failure of making a due and proper entry.
Non-episcopal, e.p'i.s.kop.ūl, not under the rule of a bishop. (Latin episcopus, a bishop.)
Non-essential, ē.sēn'.shūl, not indispensable.
Non-execution, ē.x'ē.kū'.shūn, failure of performance.
Non-existence, having no existence; non-existent.
Non-fulfilment, failure of an expected fulfilment.
Non-juror, one who refused to take the oath of allegiance to the successor of James II.; non-juring.
Non-metallic, destitute of metallic properties.
Non-naturals, nū'tchē.rūl, (in Med.) denotes all abnormal states of body or function.
Non-obedience, ō.bē'.di.enς (not ō.bē'.di.ənς), failure in expected obedience.
Non-observance, failure of expected observance.
Non-parel', pā.rēl, without an equal, an apple, a type.
Non-payment, failure of expected payment.
Non-performance, failure of doing something expected.
Non-plus, to puzzle, to confound with perplexity; nonplussed, nōv'.plūst; nonpluss-ing. ("Plus" is treated as a word of one syllable, Rule i.).
Non-production, pro.dēk'.shūn, failure of producing something expected; non-productive-ness.
AND OF SPELLING.

Non-professional, not belonging to the profession, not in a professional capacity: as a non-professional visit from a medical adviser. Un-professional, not according to the etiquette or practice of the profession.

Non-proficient, non-prof'sident, not up to the mark of proficiency; non-proficiency, nôn-prof'ien'sy.

Non-resident, one not residing where his property lies; non-residence, absenteeism.

Non-resistance, passive obedience; non-resist'ant, one who thinks it wrong to resist a law however much he disapproves of it; non-resist-ing, resis't'ing; resist'ive.

Non'sense, not sense, absurdity; nonsensical, non.sen'si kal; nonsensical-ly, nonsensical-ness.

Non-sequitur, -sêk'kwîtur (in Log.), something that does not follow as a logical sequence from the premises stated. As “matter is inert, therefore it could not be the author of the material world.” This does not follow from the statement “matter is inert,” although it may be true.

Non-sexual, -sex'u'al, having no sexual organs.

Non-sol'vent, not able to pay his debts; insolvent, a declared bankrupt; non-sol'ven'cy, insolvency.

Non-submission, -sûb.mish'a'n, failure of due submission; non-submissive, nôn-sûb.mis'si've.

Non-suit, -sût, the abandonment of a law-suit by the plaintiff (when actually in court) on the discovery of some error or omission; to determine that the plaintiff shall drop his suit; non-suît-ed, adjudged to have dropped his suit; non-suît-ing, adjudging that the plaintiff has abandoned his suit.

None, nun, not one. Nun, a female religious recluse.

Nones, nônz, in the Rom. calendar, 9 days before the Ides (nônc).

None-such, nôn'sûch, an apple (without a peer).

Nonillion, nôn'nîl'.yûn, a million raised to the ninth power.

It consists of 1 followed by 54 ciphers (6 × 9 = 54).

Noodle, noo'dël, a dunce. Noddle, nôd'dêl, the head.

Welsh nwyddol, whimsical, nwyda, a whim, nwydyllt, harebrained. “Noodle,” dim. of nod, the “little thing that nods.”

Nook (to rhyme with book not noo'k); a corner, a small recess.

oo before k is shorter than when a labial or liquid follows: Thus book (not boo'k), brook, cook, crook, hook, look, nook, rook, shook, took; but foo't (long), roo'm, noo'n, poö'ry, loö'p, &c.

Noon, noö'n, mid-day; noon-day, noon-tide; high-noon, exact mid-day; fore-noon, the morning up to noon; after-noon, between noon and sun-set. (O.Eng. nôn, nôn-tid.)
Noose, News, Gnus, Noes, Nose, Knows.

Noose,

nooze, a running knot, to catch in a noose, to tie a noose; noosed (1 syl.), noosed-ing, R. xix. (Latin nōdus.)

News, nūze, tidings. (Old English neowe or niwe, new.)

Gnus, nūze, plu. of gnu, a sort of ox, South Africa.

Noes, nūze, those who vote "no" to a measure. (O. E. nū.)

Nose, nūze, a feature of the face. (Old Eng. nū.)

Knows, nūws (to rhyme with grows), doth know.

Nor, correlative of neither or not: as neither James nor John.

It was not James who did it, nor [yet] John. Gnaw, nör, to bite, to nibble. ("Nor" is n- or, as "none" is n-one.)

"Gnaw," Old Eng. gnawlan, past gnath, past part. gnagen.

Normal, nor'.māl, according to rule. Ab-normal, not according to rule. Normal School, a school for training teachers intended for elementary schools.

Latin norma, a rule, a square to work by, a law, normalis, made to the square or by rule; normalis linea, a perpendicular line.

Norman, plu. Normans, a Norwegian or north-man, a colony of whom settled in France and called the part colonised by them Normandy, hence a native of Normandy.

Normas, nor'.māz or Norms (in Scandinavian Mythol), the three Fates: Past, Present, and Future.

Nör'sroy, king-at-arms, the third of the three heralds, his jurisdiction lies north of the Trent (nor-roy, i.e., north-roy).

The other two are Garter and Clarendon, kla-ren'so.

Norse (1 syl.), the language of the ancient Scandinavians; Norseman, plu. Norsemen, a native of Scandinavia.

Nörth, opposite the South. From North to East are seven points, and from North to West are seven points, called (1) N. by E., (2) NN.E., (3) N.E. by N., (4) N.E., (5) N.E. by E., (6) E.N.E., (7) E. by N. By substituting W. (West), we have the points in the opposite direction.

Northern, nör'.tern; northerly, nör'ter.ly.

Northern-most, nör-tār-n-most. North’ing, tending north, distance [of a planet] from the equator northwards. Southing, its distance from the equator southwards.

Northward (adj.): as a northward direction.

Northwards (adv.), in a northern direction. (-s is our native adverbial suffix: as now-adays, anights, &c.)

North-star, the pole-star
Northern Lights, ...lites, the aurora borealís.

Northman, plu. Northmen, native of ancient Scandinavia.

North pole, the most northern extremity of the earth's axis.

North frigid zone, all the north of our globe up to the arctic circle. The opposite zone is the South frigid.

North temperate zone, between the arctic circle and the torrid zone. The opposite zone is the S. temperate.

North-west Passage, a passage for ships through the Boreal regions from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

(Discovered by Capt. M'Clure in 1850-1851.)

Northern hemisphere, -hém'.i.sfeer, that half of the globe which lies north of the equator. That half which lies south of the equator is called the Southern hemisphere.

Northern Drift, the erratic boulder group brought by polar currents from the north.

Northern Signs, sines, those signs of the zodiac which appear north of the equator. Those south of the equator are called The Southern Signs.

The Northern Signs are (1) Aries (3 syl.), (2) Taurus, (3) Gemini, (4) Cancer, (5) Leo, (6) Virgo.

The Southern Signs are (1) Libra, (2) Scorpio, (3) Sagittarius, (4) Capricornus, (5) Aquarius, (6) Pisces.

Old Eng. north, northern, north-east, north-west, northward, northwards.

Norwegian, nor.wi'gian, a native of Norway, adj. of Norway.

Nose, a feature of the face (Old English nosu or nasu.); nosed (1 syl.), having a nose, suspecting, prying out;

nose-less; nose-bag, a bag with food attached to a horse's head; nose-band, part of a bridle; nose-gay, a bouquet.

Nosing, the edge of stairs.

Nostril, nöstra'il, one of the cavities of the nose.

To lead by the nose, to lead unresistingly.

To thrust [one's] nose into..., to interfere with.

The length of [one's] nose, a very short way.

To turn up [one's] nose, to show contempt.

Under [one's] nose, quite near at hand.

§ Noes, nöze, those who vote “no” to a question.

Knows, nöie (to rhyme with grows), understands.

Old English cnęw-an, past cnęw, past part. cnęwen.

Noose, noo'z, a running knot. (Latin nōdus.)

News, nüze, tidings. (Old English neowe or newe, new.)

Gnus, nüze, plu. of gnu, a sort of ox (South Africa).

"Nostril," Old English nosu thyrhel, nose hole.
Noso-, nös’o- (Greek prefix), disease, diseases. (Greek nösös.)
Noso-graphy, nösös’og’ră.fy, scientific description of diseases.
Greek nösös[grafh]o, I describe diseases.
Noso-logy, nösös’ol’o.gy, systematic classification of diseases, doctrine of diseases; nosological, nösös’ol’o.djăl’; nosologist, nösös’ol’o.djăst, one skilled in diseases.
Greek nösös[loj]gion, treatise on diseases.
Nostalgia, nösös’tăl’o.djăh, home-sickness; nostal’gic.
Greek nesos algos, distress to-return-home.
Nostril, nösös’trl, one of the apertures of the nose. (See Nose.)
Nostrum, nösös’tr’im, a quack or patent medicine.
Latin nostrum, our own (private patent medicine).
Not, adv. of denial. (Old Eng. nált [n-oht], not ought.)
Knot, nöt, a tie, to tie a knot. (Old Eng. cnatt, v. cnyt[an].)
Knout, a whip for criminals in Russia. (Russian knált.)
Newt, nátæ, an eft or efet, (Corruption of an-eft.)
Notable, nôt’â.bl, clever, nôt’â.b'l, remarkable.
Notably, nôt’â.b’l, cleverly, nôt’â.b’ly, especially.
Notability, nôt’â.b’l.ness, nôt’â.b’l.ness.
Notation, nôtay’sh’iin, record by symbols, the nomination of a line of figures, representation of musical signs by notes.
Notator, nôtay’to’r. (Latin notiito, nót’iito.)
Notch, a nick, to nick; notched (2 sy1.), notch’ing, notch’er.
Nôte (1 sy1.), an observation in writing or printing upon something stated in the text, a short letter, a memorandum, a musical character, a bank-note, to make a note, to jot down, to observe; nöt’-ed (R. xxxvi.), nöt’-ing (R. xix.), nöt’-er; nöt’-ed, remarkable; nöt’ed-ly, nöt’ed-ness, note’-worthy, note’-less, note’-book, note’-paper.
To note a bill, to record on the back its non-acceptance.
French note, noter; Latin nálta (nosco, supine nältum, to know).
Nothing, nált’ing, no-thing; noth’ing-ness, nothing less.
To make nothing of it, not to understand it.
Old English nált or nalité, or rather nó or ni thing or thing;
Notho-saurus, plu. notho-sauri, nöth'-o-saw'-rüs, -saw'-ri, or notho-saur'ian, plu. -saur'ians, a fossil saurian fish of the Devo'nian period. (Gk. nöthös saurols, bastard lizard.)

Notice, nö'-tis, information officially made, civility, attention, to observe, to pay attention to; noticed, nö'-tis't; notice-ing (R. xix.), nö'-tis'-ing. Notice-able (only -ce and -ge retain the e before able); noticeably. (Fr. notice, Lat. notitia.)

Notify, *nö'-tij'if, to declare, to make known, to give notice; notifies (Rule xi.), nö'-tij'is'-iz; notified, nö'-tij'is'-ide; not-i-fii-er, not-i-fyi-ing. Notification, nö'-tij'-i'is-kay'-shin.

Latin nöti-fikatiO, nöti-fikii're; French nöti-fikatiO, v. notifier.

Notion, nö'-shün, opinion, sentiment, idea, knowledge; notional, nö'-shün'-il, existing in idea only, imaginary; noti-o-nal-ly, no'tionist. (Latin nöti-o, nöti-um, known.)

Notorious, nö'-tôr'-rüs, publicly known [in a bad sense]; notor'i-ously, notor'i-ous-ness. Notoriety, nö'-tôr'-i'-i'is-ty, disrepute. (Latin nöti-rius, nöti-ria, an indictment.)

Not'o- before cons., Not- before vowels (Gk. prefix), southern.

Not-ornis, nö'-tor'-rnis, a fossil bird of the coot kind found in New Zealand. (Greek nöt-[nöto]-sornis, south bird.)

Not'o-therium, -ôth'-i'ëm, an extinct gigantic quadrued found in Australia. (Gk. nöto-[nöto], thèrïon, a beast.)

Not'wheat, nö'-weet, unbearded wheat.

Old English nöt weiðe, smooth or shorn wheat.

Not-with-standing, however, nevertheless, although, in spite of. Withstand means to resist, not-with-standing, "non obstante."

Old English n-dht, not ought, n-dht, not aught.

Noun, a substantive. Common noun. Proper noun, a "proper name." (Latin nömen, Greek önöma.)

Nourish, nö'-rish, to sustain, to feed, to cherish; nour'ished. (2 syl.), nour'ish-ing, nour'ish-ing-ly, nour'ish-er, nour'ish-ment, nourish-able (Rule xxiii.) See Nutriment.

French nöurriv, nöurrice; Latin nutrivre, supine nutritum.

Novel, növ'-ål, a tale of human life, new; novelette, növ'-ëlët,' a short novel (-ette, Fr. dim.); növ'-ël-ist, a writer of novels.

Novelty, plu. novelties (Rule xliiv.), növ'-ëlëtiz.

Latin novellitus, növellus, novus, Greek növs, new.

November, no.vëm'-ber, the ninth month from March, the proper beginning of the year, as in this month the sun crosses the equator for his northern route.

The words September (7th month), October (8th month), November (9th month), and December (10th month), are relics of the calendar which began the year with March. We in England began the year in March from the 14th to the middle of the 18th century. The change was made in 1752.
Novice, nov'·i·ce, a beginner, a female religious recluse who has not yet taken the vow, a proselyte; novice·ship.

Novitiate, nov·i·tial·ate. (Fr. novice, noviciat; Lat. nov·itius.)

Now, at this present time, very lately; now·a·days, in this age;

Now and then, occasionally. (Old Eng. ná, ná hucanē.)

"Now and then" is a corruption of ná·hucanē, sometimes.

Nowhere, no'·a·ware, in no place. (Old English nó hu·ær.)

Nowise (not noways), no'.wis·e, not at all; in nowise (not in noways), by no means. (Old English affix -wes with no.)

Noxious, no'k·shū·us, baneful, hurtful; noxi·ous·ly, noxi·ous·ness.

Latin noxius (nox, hurt, v. nocēre, to hurt).

Noyau (Fr.), noy'·wō', a cordial flavoured with bitter almonds.

Noyade, noy'·war·d, destruction of many persons at once by sending them to sea in a boat and skuttling it. Devised by Carrier in the first Fr. Revolution. (Fr. noyer, to drown.)

Nozzle, noz·z'l, the snout, the air·tube of a pair of bellows, the thing that holds the wick of a lamp (diminutive of nose.)

Nucleus, plu. nuclei, nū·kli·ūs, nū·kli·i, the germ, the basis, that round which an accumulation gathers; nucleated, nū·kli·ate·ed, having a nucleus. (Lat. nūclēus, nux, a nut.)

Nude (1 syl.), naked; nude·ly. Nudity, nū·dī·ty, nakedness.

Latin nuditas, nūdus (Greek nē·duō, not to clothe).

Nudge, to jog one's arm to arrest attention; nudged, nudg·'ing.

Nugatory, nū'·ga·tory, ineffectual. (Lat. nūgatorius, nuga, trifles.)

Nug'get, a piece of gold picked up in a "digging."

Bengalee nugnut pā, "hard cash," from Persian nugud, cash (Notes and Queries). Generally derived from an ingot.

Nuisance, nū·sān·se, an annoyance. (Fr. nuisance [obsolete].)

Nūll (Rule v.), void. Nullity. Nullify, nūl·ī·fy, to render void; nullifies, nūl·ī·fies; nullified, nūl·ī·fied (Rule xi.), nullifi·er, nullify·ing. Nullification, nūl·ī·fi·ka·tion. (Latin nullitas, nullus, none.)

Numb, nūm, torpid from cold, without sensation, to render numb; numbed, nūmd; numb·ing, nūm·'ing; numb·ness, nūm·ness, torpor from cold, insensibility.

Old English num[an], to take away, past nūm, past part. numen.

Number, nūm·ber, a figure, a good many, one part of a serial, to count, to affix a number to; numbered, nūm·ber·ed; num·ber·ing, num·ber·er, number·less.

Book of Numbers, the fourth book of the Bible.

Card·inal number, one, two, three, &c.

Or'dinal number, first, second, third, &c.
AND OF SPELLING.

Golden number, the cycle of the moon.

Add 1 to the year, then divide by 19, the quotient will be the number of cycles since the birth of Christ, and the remainder will be the "Golden Number."

So called because in ancient almanacs it was displayed in gold.

Abstract number, a number per se, as five.

Concrete number, a number applied, as five men.

Prime number, a number not divisible (except by unity), as one, two, three, five (four is not prime).

Square number, the product of a number multiplied by itself, as 4 which is \( 2 \times 2 \), or which is \( 3 \times 3 \).

Cubic number, the product of a number multiplied twice by itself, as 8 which is \( 2 \times 2 \times 2 \), or \( 3 \times 3 \times 3 \).

Whole number, an unbroken number, i.e., not a fraction.

Noun of number, a noun which refers to a collection of persons or things, as people.

Nouns of number have this peculiarity, they may have either a singular or plural construction. The strict rule is: if the reference is to a mass considered as an indivisible whole the singular construction should be used, but if the reference is to a mass considered as a number of independent individuals the plural construction must be employed: thus "The band was playing in the park," "The clergy were in their robes." The "band" is no band at all except in union. "The clergy were in their robes" means each clergyman present wore his robe.

French nombre; Latin númerus, v. númerâre, to number.

Numeral, nù.'mè:r.âl. Numerical, nù.'mè'r'i.kâl.

Numeral, the symbol of a number, pertaining to a number.

Numerical or numeric, nù.mè'r'rik, consisting of figures, expressed by a number.

We say numeric difference, numeric algebra, &c., that is, the difference "expressed by a number," algebra with figures (not letters) for coefficients, as \( 2b \), numerically greater or less, but we called \( X, V, L, C, D, \) &c., numeral (not numerical) letters.

("Numeric" is sometimes a noun, but "numerical" never.)

Numerical-ly, adv. of numeral. Numerical-ly, adv. of numerical, as it is expressed by figures.

Arabic numerals, the ordinary figures 1, 2, 3, 4, &c.

Roman numerals, the numeral letters, i, v, x, l, c, &c.

Numerate, to put numbers to. Enumerate, to count up.

We numerate houses, but enumerate a series of figures.

No'merät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), no'merät-ing (Rule xix.)

Numerator, one who numerates. (In Arith.) the upper part of a fraction, the lower part is the Denominator.

Thus, in \( \frac{2}{3} \), "2" is the numerator, and "3" the denominator.

Numerable, that may be numbered. Enu'merâble, countless.
Numeration, nü`.mē`ray`.shūn, the art of reading off a series of figures or expressing their values in words.
Numerous, nü`.mē`.rūs; numerous-ly; nu`me`rous-ness.
Number, numbered (3 syll.); number-ing.
Super-num-erary, extra, more than needful.
Numismatic, nü`.miz`.māt`.ix, pertaining to coins and medals.
Numismatic, the science which explains coins and medals.
Numismat-ics, nü`.miz`.tāt`.iks. (Greek lógos.)
Numismaticist, nü`.miz`.tāt`.is.t.
The following have the “m” doubled.
Nummery, nüm`.mū`.rē, relating to money or coin.
Nummulite, nüm`.mūl`.īt.ē, a fossil resembling a coin (-ite, a fossil); nummulitic, nüm`.mūl`.īt`.ik.
Nummulitic Formation, limestone full of nummulites.
Latin numisma, Greek nomisma, legal coin (nomízo, nomos, law).
Latin nummus, Greek nummós, coin. Aristotle tells us there was a Tarentine coin so called = three obol, but númeró, to count, seems the true derivation, and one “m” the correct spelling.
Numskull, nüm`.skul, a dunce. (Old English num[nen] scol.)
The verb num[nan], to take away, past nöm, past part. numen.
Nun, a female religious recluse. None, nün, not one.
Nunnery, plu. nunneries, nü`n`.nư`.riz; num`n`.ish (Rule i) .
Nuncio, plu. nuncios (Rule xlii.), nü`n`.she`.ō.zē, an ambassador from the pope to a sovereign, a courier. Nunciature, nun`.she`.ă.či.tōr, office of a nuncio.
Spanish nuncio, Latin nuntius.
Nuncupative, nü`n`.kā`.pā`.tēv, nominal, verbal, not written; nuncupatory, nü`n`.kā`.pā`.tē.rē.
Lat. nuncupátius, v. nuncupáre, i.e., nümén-cápēre, to take a name.
Nuptials, nüp`.shūl`.z, marriage ceremony; nup`ti`.al (adj.), nup-ti-ly. (Latin nuptiálius, v. núbère, sup. nuptium.)
"Nuptials" regards the ceremony from the woman’s side, nupta (a bride), but "marriage" regards the union from the man’s side, maritus (a husband). Our native word “vow” regards the union as a contract, “wed” (a pledge, agreement, vow).
Hence “Nuptials” means the bridal ceremonies.
"Wedding," the vows made of mutual fidelity.
"Marriage," the taking of a husband.
Nurse, a woman who has the care of little children, to suckle, to cherish, to take care of the sick; nursed, nürst; nurses-ing; nurse-ling (-ling, offspring, diminutive.)
Nursery, plu. nurseries, nü`n`.sē`.riz (not nüs`.ē`.riz.)
Old Eng: norice (Lye, Dict. Saxon.); French nourrice; Lat. nūrīx.
AND OF SPELLING.

Nurture, nurt'yer (not nur't'yer), erudition, bringing up, diet, to feed, to train up; nurtured, nurt'y'red; nutritive (Rule xix.), nurt'y'ring.

Fr. nourriture, v. nourrir (Lat. nūtrīriō, I feed the young).

Nut, a shell-fruit, a kernel, a screw, to gather nuts; nut't'ed (Rule xxxvi.), nutt'ing (Rule i.).

Nut-brown, nut-gall, nut-shell; nut-crackers, an instrument for cracking nuts; nut-cracker, one who cracks nuts.

"Nut-crackers" has no sing. Pairs have a sing. only when each part of the pair is perfect and independent: as a shoe (shoes), &c. Nutcrackers, tongues, &c., united by a joint, have no sing.

Nutation, nut'a'shun, a vibratory movement of the earth's axis.

Nutritious (not -cious), nutrit'ish', nourishing; nutritiously.

Nutritive, nutrit'iv; nutritive.

Nutrition (Rule xxxiii.), nutrit'ish', nourishment.

Nutriment, nutrit'ment; nutrit'ment.

Latin nutrit'mentum, nutrit'ivus, v. nutrit're; supine nutrit'tum.

Nux vomica (Latin), nūx vom'i'kah, the vomit; nut, it yields strychnia and is the fruit of the East Indian strychnos.

Nymph, nūmf, a goddess who presided over some part of nature.

The nymphs are innumerable, but the chief are—

Dry'ad, plu. Dry'ads or Dryades, drīdäd'és; Wood-nymphs.

Greek drūs, a forest tree, Drūdēs.

Echo, ekēko, one of the Mountain-nymphs. (See Oread.)

Ham'a-dryad, plu. Ham'adryads or Hamadryad's, Tree-nymphs (Gk. ham'adrēs, i.e., [they live and die] with the tree they preside over).

Hyad, hē'ad, plu. Hyads or Hyades, hē'dés, Rain-nymphs.

Greek hūdōr, water, nymphaō hūdōs.

Lim'niad, plu. Lim'niads, Lake-nymphs (lim'ān, a lake).

Limō'niad, plu. Limōniads, Meadow-nymphs (leimōn, a meadow).

Mē'liad, plu. Mēliads or Mēliades, mē'li'dés, nymphs of fruit-trees.

Nymphs of Melis, one of the Cyclades (Latin mātil, fruit).

Naiad, nā'ad, plu. Naiads or Naiades, nā'adēs, Water-nymphs.

Greek nēdō, to flow. Nāidēs.

Napē, na'pe's (no sing.), Valley or Glen nymphs (Gk. napē, a glen).

Nereid, nē're'id, plu. Nereids, nymphs of the Mediterranean sea, daughters of Nereus [nē'rēs], the Old Man of the Sea, nē'reidēs.

Oceanid, o'ē'sēn'id, plu. Oceanids or Oceanides, o'ē'sēn'i'dēs, Ocean nymphs. (Greek Ókēstánoς, the ocean.)

Oread, orē'rē'ad, plu. O'reads or Oracle, orē'rē'sēdés, Mountain nymphs.

Greek orēs, a mountain. Orēdēs.

Petērē, petē'tē'ad (no sing.), Rock nymphs. (Greek petēraiō, petrēς.)

Potameid, pō'tē'mē'id, plu. Potameids or Potameides, pō'tē'mē'idēs, River nymphs. (Greek pōtāmōς, a river.)
Nympha, pln. nymphae, nim'fah, pln. nim'fē, the third state of an insect. (Same as pūpa or chrysalis, kris'ā.īs.)
(The 1st state is the egg; 2nd, the larva; 3rd, the pu'pa, chrysalis, or nympha; and 4th, the imā'gu.)

Nymphaean, nim'fē.ān (not nim'fē.ān), adj. of nymph; nymph-like, nymph-ish. (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adjectives it is diminutive.)

Latin nympha, nymphaeus; Greek numphē, numphios.

O'- (Irish), son of, Welsh Ap-, Scotch Mac-, Eng. Fitz-. Like French de, German von, it often indicates aristocratic birth or one of the landed gentry. O'Neil.

O.S., Old Style, 11 days later than the New, so that the 1st Jan. O.S. is the 12th. Still retained in Russia and Greece.

O, sign of the vocative case: as O king, live for ever.

Oh! exclamation of pain, distress, excitement.

Owe (to rhyme with grōw), to be indebted to. (O. E. ąg[an].)

Ho! a call to arrest attention. (Welsh ho !)

Hoe, hō, an instrument for hoeing. (French houe.)

Hōw, in what manner, to what a degree. (Old Eng. ħā.)

Oaf, ąfe, an idiot, a changeling by the fairies; oaf-ish, stupid.

Corruption of ouph (elf). It was once thought that idiot children were changelings by the fairies, who carried off the good child.

Oak, oke, pln. oaks, a forest tree. Hoax, hökes, a trick.

Oak-en, oke'n, made of oak (-en, made of: as wood-en, gold-en, &c.); oak'-ling, a young oak (-ling, diminutive, offspring). Oak-apple, oak'-bark', oak-galls, oak'-tan'.

Oak-paper, paper for walls in imitation of oak.

Old English ąe or ace, āc-corn, an acorn, -e-en.

Oak'um, old rope pulled into loose fibres for calking ships.

Old English acumba or acumba, oakum, the coarse part of flax.

Oar, ąr, a machine for rowing boats; oared, ą'rđ, furnished with oars; car-y, ą'r'ry; oars-man (not oar-man, so boats-man, i.e., "man-of-the-oar or boat," meaning skilled in its management).

To boat the oars, to lay the oars in the boat.

To feather the oar, to turn the blade horizontally with the top aft as it comes out of the water.

To lie on the oars (not lay), to cease from giving strokes and merely to dip the oars and raise them.

To muffle the oars, to wrap something round that part of the oars which works in the rowlocks, to deaden the sound.
To unship the oars, to take them out of the rowlocks.

§ O'er, contraction of over. (Old English ober or ófer.)
Ore (1 syl.), metal with some mineraliser. (Old Eng. ora.)
Or (conj.), a contraction of other. (Old English oththe.)
Hoor, hú'r, white with age or frost. (Old English há'r.)
Hors, hor (French), disabled as hors de combat.
Haw, the berry of the hawthorn. (Old English hæg.)
Whore, hoo'r, a prostitute. (Old Eng. höre, Welsh huren.)
“Oar,” Old English ár, är-blæd, car-blade, är-loce, the rowlock.
Oasis, plu. oases, ó'ásís, ó'asís, ó'aséz (not o'ó'sís), a fertile spot in a desert. (A Coptic word, called auasis by Herodotus.)
Oats (1 syl.), a grain. An oat, one single grain; oat'-en (-en, made of or from). Oat-cake; oat-meal, ote-meel;
Wild-oats, the wild habits of young men.
To sow [your] wild oats, to live in youthful dissipation.
He has sown his wild oats, he has become steady.
(This is the only grain in the plural number: we say barley, millet, maize, rye, wheat, &c., all in the singular number.)
Old English dian, cats, dtä, an oat-grain.
Oath, ó'ath, a profane expression, an appeal to God in confirmation of what is said. False-cath, perjury. (O. E. ðith.)
Ob- (Latin prefix), opposed to, reversed, against, drawn towards, for a purpose. (Sometimes emphatic.) It becomes Oc- before “c,” except in ob-compressed, ob-conical, ob-cordate.
Of- before “f,” except in ob-fuscate.
O- before “m,” except in ob-mutescence.
All words beginning with ob are from the Lat., except the following: obédient (Greek), Obi (African), oboe (Italian), obeisance and oblique (Latin through the French).
Ob-durate, ob'di.rate, obstinate; ob'durate-ness, ob'durate-ly.
Obduracy, ob'du.raisy, obstinacy. (Lat. obduraire, ob emph.)
Obedient, ob'éd.i.ent (not o'bé'd.jent), submissive; obe'dient-ly.
Obedience, o'bé.d.i.ense, submission; obediency, -bé'd.i.en.sy.
Passive obedience (Eng. Hist.), that unqualified obedience which some think is due from a subject to a ruler.
Obe'y, o'bé'; obeyed, o'bé'd'; obey'ing, obey'er.
Latin obédienz, gen. obédientis, obédientia, obédire (ob-audio.)
Obeisance, o'bé'sance (not o'bé'sance), a bow, a sign of obe'dience, a humble salute. (Fr. obéissance, Lat. obédire.)
Obelisk, ó'belisk, a spiral monument with four faces, a reference mark (†), also called a dagger. (Latin ó'beliscus.)
Obelus, "obelus", a mark in printing. "Obolus", a coin (an obol.)

In the Septuagint the obelus (ظلمו) indicates that the passage does not occur in the Hebrew text. The mark (י"ע) in modern books indicates a break, as If thou didst ever thy dear father love — (Hamlet).

Lat. "obelus", Gk. ὀβὸλος (a spit), a mark to indicate that something is amiss, or not finished. The word means "obolus," Gk. ὀβόλος.

Oberon, "oberon", king of the fairies and husband of Titania.

Corruption of Alberon (Alberon), Ger. Alberich, King of the elves.

Obese, " obese", fat; obese-ness; obesity, "obesity", fatness.

Obey, "obey"; obeys', obeyed' (2 syst.), obey'-ing. (See Obedient.)

Obfuscate, "obfuscate", to bewilder, to obscure; obfusc'at-ed (R. xxxvi.), obfusc'at-ing; obfuscation, "obfuscation".shēn.

Latin "obfuscate", supine obfusc'atum (ob intens., fuscus, dusky).

Obi, "obi", the witchcraft of the West Indian negroes; obi-man, obi-woman, "obi-man", the sorcerer and sorceress of the West Indian negroes.

Postobit (not post or'bit); Latin "after death," a deed to come into force after the funeral; obitual, "obitual".

Obituary, "obituary", a register of deaths.

Latin obitus, death, dead, v. "obire", supine obitūn, to die (ob'co).

Object, (noun) "object", (verb) "object", anything seen, a ridiculous figure, to disapprove, to suggest objections;

Object-less; object-glass, a glass to form the image of the "object" looked for: as the object-glass of a telescope.

Object'ed (R. xxxxi.), object'-ing, object'ing-ly, object'or.

Objective, "objective", object'ive-ly, object'ive-ness.

Objectivity, "objectivity", state of being objective.

Objection, "objection", objection-able, objectionable-ly.

Latin objectus, v. objectāre (ob-jectāre [Object]), to throw out in opposition.

Objurate, "objurate", to chide; objur'at-ed (Rule xxxvi.); objur'at-ing (R. xix.); objuration, "objuration".shēn; objurations (R. xxxvii.); objurator, "objurator".try.

Latin objurāto, objurator, objuratorius, objurator (ob jurate).

Oblate, "oblate", flattened at the poles; oblate spheroid, "spheroid", a spheroid flattened at the poles.

The corresponding French word is aplati (Greekplatōs, flat, widespread); our word is coined from the Latin lātus, wide, but is objectionable because the word is used in another meaning.

Oblation, "oblation", an offering. (Latin oblātio.)

Oblige, "oblige", to do a favour, to compel; obliged' (2 syst.), oblig'-ing (R. xix.); obliging-ly, civilly, kindly; oblig'-er.
Obligation, "obligato". Obligato, "obligato" (in Music), the essential part as it contains the melody: thus a violin, obligato is not an accompaniment of chords, but the main part which carries out the melody.

Obligatory, "obligatory" (not "oblig'atory", nor "-gay'try").

Obligor, "obligor", he who receives an obligation, a debtor;

Obligee, "obligee", he who confers the obligation, a creditor.

Lat. "obligatio", obligare (ob, to bind down, to bind by kindness).

Oblique, "oblique", slant, not direct; oblique'-ly, oblique'-ness.

Obliquity, plu. obliquities, "obliquity", irregularity.

Oblique angle, any angle except a right angle (90 deg.)

Oblique-angled triangle, a triangle without one right angle.

French "obliqu", Latin "obliquus" (Greek "lix", oblique).

Obliterate, "obliterate", to efface; obliterate'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), obliterate'-ing (R. xix.). Obliteration, "obliteration", "obliteration", Latin "oblitration", obligare (ob, to bind down, to bind by kindness).

Oblivion, "oblivion", forgetfulness, amnesty; oblivious, "obliv'ious"; oblivious-ly, oblivious-ness. (Latin "oblivio", obliviosus.)

Ob'long; a rectangular four-sided figure longer than it is broad.

A round fig. longer than it is broad is called an Oval, "oval".

Obloquy, "obloquy", reproach, ill repute. (Latin obloquor.)

Obnoxious, "obnoxious", hateful, odious, exposed, liable; obnoxious-ly, obnoxious-ness. (Latin obnoxius.)

Oboe, "oboe" or Hautboy, "hautboy", a wind instrument.

French haut bois, long stalk or mouth piece; Italian oboe.

Obolus, "obolus", an obol (coin). Obelus, a mark in printing.

"Obolus," Lat. obelus; Gr. obelos. "Obelus," Lat. obelus; Gr. obelos.

Obovate, "obovate", oval-reversed, that is with the smaller end downwards. (Lat. ob ovatus, ovum, an egg.)

Obscene, "obscene", indecent; obscene'-ly, obscene'-ness.

Obscenity, plu. obscenities, "obscenity", indecency.

Obscurus, Latin obscenus, obscenus, French obscene, obscénité.

Obscure, "obscure", indistinct, remote from observation, to darken; obscure'-ed (2 syl.), obscure'-ing, obscure'-ly, obscure'-ry, obscuration, "obscuration", "obscuration", (Lat. obscūrus, obscūritas.)

Obsequies, "obsequies", funeral solemnities. (Latin obsequium.)

Obsequious, "obsequious", fawning, meanly servile; obsequious-ly, obsequious-ness. (Latin obsequium, obsequiosus.)

Observe, "observe", notice; observed (2 syl.), observ'-ing (R. xix.), observing-ly, observ'-er, observ'-able, observ'-able-ness, observ'ably. Observ'ance, observ'ant, observ'ant-ly.

Observanda (Latin), "observanda", things to be observed.
Observation, \( \text{o'b.zer.vay}'\text{.shun} \); observation-al.

Observatory, plu. -ries, \( \text{o'b.zer.vu.tri}'\text{,tiz} \), a building for astronomical observations. Observer (Rule xxxvii.)

Latin observabilis, observans, gen. observantis, observantia, observatio, observator, observare (ob serv, to keep for a purpose).

Obsidian, \( \text{o'b.siid.'\text{.i}i.n} \), volcanic glass. (Latin obsidianus.) It was discovered in Ethiopia, by Obsidianus, a Roman.

Obsidional, \( \text{o'b.sii.d.'\text{.i}o.nal} \), pertaining to a siege.

Obsidional crown. (Latin obsidionalis, \( \text{o'b.sed.va} \).)

Obsolescent, \( \text{o'b.so.les}'\text{.sent} \), growing more and more out of use. (-sc-, inceptive.)

Ob'soletic-ly, ob'soletic-ness, (in Zool.), want of development.

Latin obsolutus, v. obsolere, obsolescere, obsolencens, gen. -entis.

Obstacle, \( \text{o'b.sta.kl} \), a hindrance. (Latin obstäculum.)

Obstetrics, \( \text{o'b.stet.'\text{.ri}k} \) (not \( \text{o'b.stet.'\text{.riks} \)), art of midwifery; obstetric, \( \text{o'b.stet.'\text{.ri'k} \); obstetrician, \( \text{o'b.stet.'\text{.trish}'\text{'\text{.i}n} \). Except arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric (which are from the French) all the sciences with this termination are plural.

Latin obstetrix, a midwife, for obstitrix (obsisto, obstitum).

Obstinate, \( \text{o'b.sti.na.tate}'\text{, stubborh; obstinate-ly, obstinate-ness.}

Obstination, \( \text{o'b.sti.nay}.\text{shin} \). Obstination is stubbornness in a bad sense; Obstination is pertinacity in a good sense.

Latin obstinatio, obstinax, gen. obstinatis.

Obstipation, \( \text{o'b.sti.pay}'\text{.shun} \), costiveness; ob'sthipit-ed, costive.

Latin obstipatio, obstipatus, v. obstipare, to stop chinks. That which is immovable, like a log-stuck-in-the-ground (slipes).

Obstreperous, \( \text{o'b.strep.'\text{.ri}n} \), noisy; obstreperous-ly, -ness.

Latin obstrepetus, obstrepere (ob strepo, to make a great noise).

Obstrue, to hinder; obstrue-ly, obstruct-ly, obstruct-er.

Obstruction, \( \text{o'b.stru.'k'}\text{'\text{.shun} \); obstructive, \( \text{o'b.stru.kl.'\text{.tiv} \); obstructive-ly.

Obtain, \( \text{o'b.tain}' \), to gain; obtained, \( \text{o'b.tain}'\text{'\text{ing, obtain}'\text{'\text{'\text{er, obtain}'\text{'\text{able (R. xxiii.), obtain}'\text{'\text{ment. (Latin obtinere.} \)}

Obtrude, \( \text{o'b.tru.ded}' \), to thrust oneself in unwelcome; obtrude-ly, -er.

Obtrusion, \( \text{o'b.tru.'\text{.shun}} \). (Verbs ending in -de or -d, -se or -s, add -sion not -tion.) Obtrusive, \( \text{o'b.tru.'\text{.siv} \); obtrusive-ly, obtrusive-ness. (Lat. obturäre, sup. obstrum, ob trudo.)

Obtuse, \( \text{o'b.tuec}' \), blunt, dull, stupid; obtuse-ly, obtuse-ness.

Obtuse-angle, an angle more than ninety degrees.

Acute angle, \( \text{ak\text{\text{ute}'\text{, an angle less than ninety degrees.} \)

Right angle, \( \text{rite}'\text{, an angle exactly ninety degrees.} \)

Oblique angle, \( \text{o'b.leck}'\text{, any anglo except a right angle.} \)
Obtuse-angled triangle, a triangle with one obtuse angle.
Right-angled triangle, a triangle with one right angle.
Acute-angled triangle, a triangle with three acute angles.
Oblique-angled triangle, any triangle except a right ang.

Latin obtusus, v. obtundre, supine obtusum, to make blunt.

Obverse, obverse'. Inverse. Reverse.

Obverse (of a coin), the side which shows the sovereign's head.
Reverse (of a coin), the other side, called the "tail."

Inverses, upside down, placed in contrary order.

Obverse, (in Bot.) having the base of a leaf narrower than the top, having the point of the radicle of the seed approaching the eye or hilum. Obverse-ly.

Obverse, (in Bot.) any unusual position or attachment.

Obverter, to face; obvertered (Rule xxxvi.), obverting.

Latin obvertere, supine obversum, to turn towards the beholder; revertère, supine reversum, to turn away from the beholder; invertere, supine inversum, to turn the contrary way.

Obviates, obviate, to prevent, to intercept; obviated (R. xxxvi.), obviating.

Obvious, evident; obvious-ly, obvious-ness.

Latin obvius (ob via, [meeting] on the way), face-to-face.

Occasion, the prefix ob before "c." (See Ob-.

-oc (Welsh -og), nouns, full of, as havoc, haf-og.

-ock, a native diminutive, as hill-ock (hyll-ock).

All words beginning with oc- are from the Latin, except oclot (Mexican), octroi (Fr.), oclocracy (Gk.), and those beginning with octa-, with octopus, octopod, and octogynous, which are irregular.

Occasion, okay'shun (not aokay'shun, a very common error), opportunity, to cause, to give rise to; occasioned, okay'shund; occasion-ing; occasion-er, causer.

Occasion-al, okay'shun-al, occurring sometimes; occasion-ally. Occassional-ism, the doctrine that God controls the will and is the cause of whatever is.

Latin occasio (oc [ob] cadu, to fall out, to happen).

Occident, ok'si'dent, the west; occident'-al. Orient, the east.

Latin occidens, gen. occidentis, the west (oc [ob] cadu, to fall down).

Occiput, ok'si'put, the back of the head; occip'tal.

Lat. occiput (oc [ob] ciput, the head turned away from the beholder).

Occult, ok'kalt', secret; occult'-ly, occult'-ness, occult'-ed.

Occultation, ok'kaltay'shun, eclipse.

Occult sciences, -si'kuns, magic, witchcraft, astrology, alchemy, &c. (Lat. occultus, oc[ob]colo, to cover by tillage.)
Occupy, ōk.kū.py, to employ, to keep possession of; occupies, ōk.kū.pīze; occupied, ōk.kū.pūde (Rule xi); occu'pi-er, occupy-ing; occu'pant, one who has possession; occu­pancy, plu. occupancies, ōk.kū.pūn.sīs (Rule xliv.)

Occupation, employment.

Occupation-bridge, a bridge over a railway to connect parts of fields, &c., severed by the "cutting."

Occur, ōk.kūr (not o.kur'), to happen; occurred, ōk.kūrd'; occur'-ing (R. iv.), occur'-ence (not -ance), ōk.kūr'vence.

Ocean, Main, Sea, ō.shān, māne, see.

Ocean, one of the great outward seas.

Sea, a large expanse of water land-locked. (Old Eng. sā.)

Main, one of the great oceans or seas. (Old Eng. megen.)

Oceanides, ō.shān'.ā.deze, sea-nymphs. (Gk. òkeanidēs.)

Greek òkeanōs; Latin òceanus, òceanicus. The "ocean," according to Homer, was the watery boundary of the earth, hence it means an outward or out-lying body of salt water.

Ocelot, ō.sē.lōt, a Mexican pard. (Mexican tlahocelot.)

Ochlocracy, ok.lok'.rā.sy, mobocracy.

Greek ochlos kratia, mob rule. (See Aristocracy.)

Ochre, ō.ker, a clay used as a pigment; ochraceous (R. lxiii.), ō.krāy'.shē.ās, of the colour or quality of ochre.

Latin ochra; Greek ochrōs, pale, wan; French ocre (wrong).

-ock (a native dim. postfix), as "hillock," hyll-ock, a little hill.

Octa- (Greek), Octo- (Latin prefix), eight. Oct- before vowels.

Care should be taken to use octa- with Greek words, and octo- with Latin ones. One example (octu-ple) has octu- for octo-.

Octa-gon, ōk.tā.gōn, a figure with eight sides and angles; octagonal, ōk.tāg'.ō.nāl. (Greek octa-, gönia, an angle.)

Octa-hed'ron, a solid contained by eight equal sides; octa-hed'ral; octa-hedrite, -hēd'.rite.

Greek octa-hedra, eight seats, foundations, sides.

Oct-ander, ōk.tān'.der, one of the octandria.

Greek oct- [octa-] andria, eight [instruments of] manhood.

Linnaeus termed "stamens" the manhood (andria), and "pistils" the womanhood (gynia) of plants.
Latin ōcto- (octo-), ангульт, an angle or corner.

Octant. Sextant. Quadrant, measuring arcs, the eighth, the sixth, and the fourth or quarter of a circle.

Octa-style, ōkˈtā.stīlə, a building with eight columns in front. (Greek okta-stulos, eight columns.)

Octave, ōkˈtā.vē (in Music) the longest interval in the diatonic scale, from C to C, D to D, &c., the eighth part of a pipe of wine, the eighth day from a church festival.

Octavo, plu. octavos, ōkˈtā.vōs (Rule xlii.), a sheet folded into eight leaves, usually written 8vo., plu. Svos.

Latin octāvus; Spanish octavo; French in-octavo; Italian ottavo.

Oct-ennial, ōkˈtēnˈnē.əl, every eighth year, lasting eight years; octennial-ly.
Latin octennialis, octennium (octo annus). In compounded words annus becomes ennus: thus bi-ennial, tri-ennial, sept-ennial, &c.

Oc-tillion, ōkˈtē.li.ən, a million raised to the eighth power, or 1 followed by forty-eight cyphers. A million contains six cyphers, and $6 \times 8 = 48$.

October, ōkˈtē.ber, the eighth month from March. At one time the year began with March. We changed from March to January in 1752.

Now that the year begins with January, the words September (7th month), October (8th month), November (9th month), December (10th month), are anomalous.

Octo-decimal, -ōkˈtō.ˈdē.ˌməl, (in Crystalog.) a crystal is so called which is "8 and 10," that is having eight faces and two summits. The eight faces is "octo," and $8 + 2$ summits $= 10$ for "decimal." (Lat. octo-decem, eight, ten.)

Octo-decimo, plu. octo-decimos; ōkˈtō.ˈdē.ˌmoz (R. xlii.), a sheet folded into eighteen leaves. Usually written 18mo., plu. 18mos., and called eighteen-mo. (Latin octo-decem.)

Octo-dentate, dēnˈˌtātə, having eight teeth.

Octo-fid, ōkˈˌto.ˈfīd, cleft into eight segments, as a calyx.

Octo-genarian, -jē.ˈnär.ˈrē.ən, one who has attained his eightieth birthday. (Latin octogenārius.)

Octo-gynous (ought to be octa-gynous), ōkˈtō.ˈgā.ˌnōs, having eight pistils. (Greek octa-γυνή, eight ladies.

Octo-pod (ought to be either octo-ped or octa-pod), a crustacean or insect with eight feet and legs.
Octopus (ought to be octa-pus), ok'to-pus (not ok'to'-pus), a fish with eight arms. Plural octopi or octopuses.

Greek okta-pus, 8 feet. We have also the Greek words okta-daktulios (8-fingered), okta-podes (8 feet long), okta-tonos (with 8 feelers), &c. Octa-is the normal Greek prefix, and octo- the Latin.

Octo-syllabic, -sil.la.b'l, a word of eight syllables; octo-syllabic, -sil.la.b'l, consisting of eight syllables. Latin octo-syllaba (Greek sol [sun] labē), a syllable or that which "holds together" to make one sound.

Octroi, ok'troy, a toll on consumable things paid in France on entering a town. (Low Lat. auttorium, i.e., auctoritate.) Levied "by authority" of the sovereign on (1) drinks, (2) eatables, (3) fuel, (4) forage, (5) raw materials.

Octuple, ok'tu.ple, eight-fold. (Latin octuplus, pliico, to fold.)

Ocular, (not occular), ok'tar, pertaining to the eyes, with the eyes. Ocular demonstration, eye-sight proof. Ocular-ly, ok'tar.ly. Oculist, ok'tar.ist, eye-doctor. Latin oculus, the eye; Greek okkos, i.e. ophthalmos, the eye.

Od, the way mesmerism acts. Odd, strange, not even.

Odilic, od'ilik, adj. of "od." (Greek hodōs, the way.) This barbarous word was introduced by Baron Reichenbach, and has been used to explain the "phenomena" of table-turning, &c.

Odd, strange, not even. Hod, a brick dorse!. Ode (L syll.), a poem.

Odd-ly, odd'-ness. Oddity, plu. oddities (R. xlv.), odd'-i.tiz.

Odds, oddz, an uneven wager, difference, inequality.

Odds and ends, stray articles, fragments. At odds, at variance.

"Odds and ends," ords and ends, beginnings and ends (Skeat, Chaucer). Welsh oddid, peculiarity, rarity. This explains the double d. "Hod," German hotte. "Ode," Greek oidé (acoidé, acidó, to sing). The monosyllables (not ending in f, l, or s) with a double final con sonant are add and odd, burr and err, ebb and egg, buzz and fuzz, bitt, mitt, and butt, fizz, frizz, and whizz. (Add banns of marriage.)

-ode (Greek termination -odes), nouns. In Medicine.

-ode, a lyric poem. Owed, owed (to rhyme with mowed).

Odious, o'd'iiús (not o'djús), hateful; odious-ness, odious-ly.

Odiunm, o'diüm, blame. Odiun theologicum, -the'o.- lōdyg'-kām, bitter hatred, hatred as intolerant as that excited by theological differences. Latin odiosus, odiun, v. odi, I hate.

Odometer, o'dom'-ē.ter (should be hodometer), an instrument attached to a carriage wheel to measure the distance travelled over; odometrical, o'do.mē'tr'-i.kāl. Greek hodos metron, a way-metre, a measurer of the road.
AND OF SPELLING.

Odont- before vowels, Odont- before consonants (Gk. prefix), a tooth. (Greek ὀδός, gen. ὀδοντός, a tooth.)

Odont-algia, ὀ.δόν.τάλ".ά.μα, tooth-ache; odontalgic, ὀ.δόν.τάλ".ά.μίκ, a remedy for tooth-ache, pertaining to tooth-ache. (Gk. odont- [odontos] algoς, pain of the teeth.)

Odont-aspis, ὀ.δόν.τάς".πίς, a genus of shark-like fishes found in the "chalk." (Gk. odont- aspis, teeth [like] shields.)

Odonto, πλυ. odontos (R. xiil.), ὀ.δόν.τόζε, a tooth powder. Greek ὀδός, gen. ὀδοντός, the tooth.

Odont-oid, ὀ.δόν.τοίδ, tooth-like. (Gk. odont-, eidos, like.)

Odonto-graph, ὀ.δόν.τόγ".γράφ, an instrument used in the construction of wheel-work. Odonto-graphy, ὀ.δόν.τόγ"-'γραφί, a description of the teeth of different animals.

Greek odonto-grapho, I describe the teeth.

Odonto-life, ὀ.λίμπ, a petrified tooth. (Greek lithos, stone.)

Odonto-logy, ὀ.δόν.τόλ".ογί, a treatise on teeth.

Greek odonto- λόγος, a word about the teeth.

Odonto-pteris, ὀ.δόν.τόγ"."περίς, a genus of fossil ferns, the leaflets of which have tooth-like lobes.

Greek odonto- περίς, tooth[like] ferns.

Odonto-stomatous, ὀ.στόμ.ατός, having mandibles.

Greek odonto-, στόμα, gen. στόματος, a mouth.

Odour, ὀ.ὀρ, perfume; odorous, ὀ.ὀρίζε, o'dorous-ly.

Odoriferous, ὀ.ὀρίζε"."ό.ρίζε, sweet-smelling; odoriferous-ly, ὀ.ὀρίζεροισ-ness. Odour-less.

Latin odor, ὀριζέρο, I carry perfume).

Odyle (should be hodyle), ὀ.δύλε, the acting power of animal magnetism. Odyle-force. Odyllic, ὀ.δύλ-ικ, adj. of odyle.

Od, the way mesmerism acts; od'ilic.

Greek ὀδός ὁλε, the matter or that which constitutes "od."

Odyssey, ὀ.δίς.σ.ύ, the wanderings of Odysseus, ὀ.δίς."σ.ύκε (Latin Ulysses), one of Homer's epics.

Every word beginning with od- is Greek, except odious (Latin) and odd (Welsh).

-oeia, -ε.ο.ία (Gk. postfix oikos, a house), adj. It denotes the arrangement of stamens and pistils in flowers.

Mon-oeia, one-house, the stamens and pistils "dwelling" on the same plant (Linæus's Class xxii.)

Di-oeia, δι.ο.ία, two-houses, the stamens "dwelling" on one plant, and the pistils on another. (Lin. Class xxii.)

Odema, ε.ο.έμα, a mild form of dropsy; edematous, ε.ο.έματος, adj. (Greek oidema, a swelling, a puffiness.)

Œnanthic acid, ε.νάν.τικ ἀσ'σίδ, the acid of fermented liquors or Œnanthic ether mixed with sulphuric acid.
Enanthic ether, -ē'rhēr, the fragrant principle of wine and other fermented drinks. (Greek oíanthē.)

The Greek word oíanthē has a different meaning. It is oían-anthē, vine blossom, and refers to the young shoots and tendrils of the vine; but enanthic means oíanos-anthē, the bouquet of wine.

Enothera, -ō'no.ē'rēh'ēr (not οἰάνθη: οἵ, rēah), evening primrose.

Greek oíanos ibērō, to catch a wine [flavour], because the drie leaves “catch” a wine-like flavour.

O'er, o'r, contraction of over. (Old English øber or øfer.)
Ore (1 sy1.), metal with some mineraliser. (Old Eng. orā.)
Oar, o'r, for rowing. (Old English ār.)
Or (conj.), contraction of other. (Old English othīhē.)
Hoar, hō'r, white with age or frost. (Old English hār.)
Hors, hor (French), disabled, as hors de combat.
Whore, hoo'r, a prostitute. (Old Eng. hōre, Welsh huren.)

Of- (Latin ob [of] before -f) as of-fend. (See Ob-.)

Of-, off- (Taut. prefix), from, out-of, away, of'-fal, off'-spring.

Of, on (prep.), stands between nouns in regimen: a glass of wine.

† Between two nouns it gives the latter an adjectival force, as a man of courage (i.e., a courageous man).

‡ “Of,” followed by a [an], gives the noun preceding “of” an adjectival force, as a brute of-a-dog: (a vile dog), a monster of-a-man, a monstrous man, a love of-a-bonnet, a lovely bonnet, a brute of-a-woman, a brutal woman.

† The “double genitive” is used in such elliptical sentences as these: a bust of Milton's, one which belonged to Milton; but a bust of Milton is one representing Milton.

In a few phrases “of” is written o', as 'Two o'clock, Jack o' lantern, Will o' the Wisp.

Errors of Speech.—

“Of” for on or with is a mere vulgarism: as

(1) You have not called of [on] us for a long time.
(2) What can he want of [with] these things?
(3) What can he want of these men? (is correct).

Sentence (2) means What can he want [to do with] these things?
Sentence (3) means What can he want [to get out of] these men.

In sentence (2) the word “want” reflects back to the subject: What can he want [for himself ] with [i.e., having] these things.

In sentence (3) the word “want” passes on to the object: What of these men can he want? (i.e., what service).

Off, awf, begone!, distant, away, &c. (Old English of.)

Be off! begone! From off [the shelf] denotes removal.
Badly off, impeccunious. Badly off for, ill-supplied with.
Off and on, changeable. To stand off and on (sea phrase).
Off-hand; impromptu. Off-scouring, refuse.
Off-side (in driving), to the right hand of the driver.
The off-horse, the horse on the right hand of the driver.
I must be off, I must go. To come off, to fare, to happen.
To get off, to alight, to escape.
To go off [as a gun], to get discharged, to desert, to depart.
To take off, to carry away. Well off, faring well.

Offal, of fall, refuse (off-fall, German abfall).

Offence, ofence (not offence, a common error), an affront, a violation; offence-less, offence-less-ly. Offensive, of-siv (not o.fen-siv); offen-sive-ly, offen-sive-ness.

Offend, ofend (not ofend); offend-ed (Rule xxxvi), offend-ing, offend-ing-ly, offend-er (not ofend-der).

Offence ought to be offense, we preserve the "s" in offensive.
The blunder arises from confusing the word with fence.

Latin ofensio, ofendere, ofensum (of [ob]fendo, to provoke much); French offense, offensive.

Offer, offer, proposal, bid, to make a proposal; offered, of-ferd.

Offer-ing, proposing, a sacrifice, a gift; offer-er, offer-able.

Offertory, offer.tory (not ofr.tory, a common error), certain sentences in the Book of Common Prayer, alms.

Old Eng. offr[tan], past offrde, past part. offrd, offrung, offering.

Lat. ofere (of[obl]fere), to bring before [the gods], to offer.

Office, ofs, function, a place of trust, a room for transacting business; office-bearer, -bearer, one who holds office.

Officer, oflicer, one holding a commission, a public servant; officered, of-fic.-ed, furnished with officers; officer-ing.

Official, of-ficial, one vested with office, pertaining to office, authorised by authority; official-ly.

Officiate, of-fish-ate, to perform the "service" [in church]; officiated (Rule xxxvi), officiating (Rule xix).

Officious, of-fish.-us, over com'plaisant; officious-ly, officious-ness. Office copy, an official copy.

Official manager, one appointed to wind up the affairs of a joint-stock company.

Latin officium, officialis, officiosus [of[obl]facio, to act for another].

Officinal, of-fis'-nal: "Officinals" are drugs directed in the pharmacopedia to be kept in stock by druggists.

Latin officina, a warehouse; French [preparation] officinale.

Off- (Teutonic prefix of-), apart from, severed from.

Offal, of-fal, refuse food for pigs, &c. (off-fall, Ger. abfall.)

Off-ing, of-fing, at a distance from the shore, steering from land. (Old Eng. of.-ung, off-ing.)

Off-scouring, awf-skbw'-ing, dregs. (Old Eng. of-scärung.)
Errors of Speech

Off-set, awf'-set, a young shoot or bulb separated from the parent root. Offset-staff, a measuring rod of ten links.
A set-off, one thing set against another to cancel both.
To set-off, to show to advantage, to start.
Old English ofsett, an offset; ofsettan, to set off.
Off-shoot, anything arising out of another.
To shoot off, to fire. (Old Eng. ofsce6tan, ofsce6tung.)
Off-spring, progeny. (Old English ofspring or ofspring.)
Off-ward, awf'.wud, leaning off from shore: (O. E. of-ward.)
Oft, contraction of often, frequently. (Old English oft.)
Often, of' ten (not of'-ten), frequently; (comp.) oftener, of' n'er; (super.) ofteneast, of'n-est.
Old English oft, comp. ofter, super. oftost.
Ogee, o.g (often written O.G), a moulding with a double curve, one concave and the other convex. (Should be ogvee.)
French ogive or augive, from the Latin angère, to augment, because the "O.G arch" raises the height of the crown by a second curve.
Ogham, òg'.üm, a cipher used by the ancient Irish.
Ogle, o'g'l, a side glance, to cast a coquetish glance towards one of the opposite sex, to look at a woman through an eye-glass; ogled, o'g'l'd; o'g'ling, o'g'ling-ly, o'g'ler.
Spanish ojuelo, an eye-glass.
Oglio or olio, plu. olios, o'.lè.öze, a medley, a hotch-potch.
A corruption of olla (Spanish olla podrida, a pot of all sorts of fragments boiled up together, similar to the French pot au feu).
Latin olla, a pot, ollâris, potted, ollârius, kept in a pot. Probably some confusion between olla (a pot) and olcjo (ring and peal) may have contributed to the manufacture of our word.
Ogre, fem. ogress, o'.g'r, o'.grès, a bogey; ogre-ish.
Ogres (o'.g'r'z) were supposed to devour human beings.
Old Eng. oga, terror; French ogre. Supposed to be from the Ogurs. Oigours or Huns, said by the credulous historians of the middle ages to have drunk human blood and fed on human flesh.
- Oh! exclamation of pain, distress, excitement.
O, sign of address: as O king, live for ever!
Owe (to rhyme with grōw), to be indebted to. (O. E. og[an].)
Ho! a call to arrest attention. (Welsh ho l)
Hoe, ho, an instrument for hoeing. (French houe.)
Hòw, in what manner, to what a degree. (Old Eng. hú.)
-oid (Gk. termination [o]-eidos), nouns resembling: as spheroid, sphairo-eidos, like a sphere.
These terminations ought to be open: as sphero.id; in French the more correct form is employed spherode, spheroidal.
Oil, a fatty liquid. Hoyle, a writer on games: as whist, &c.

Oiled (1 syl.), oil-ing, oil-y, oil-ness (Rule xi.)

Essential oils, oils which evaporate in boiling.

Drying oils, oils which dry and lose their greasy feeling: as linseed oil, poppy oil, nut oil.

Uncious oils, oils which do not dry: as olive oil, almond oil, rapeseed oil, whale oil.

Mineral oil, oil extracted from certain minerals: as lignite, bitumen. Paraffin is a mineral oil.

Rock oil, oil which rises from wells or springs, and requires simply to be collected and packed: as petroleum.

Oil-cake, cakes made of flax-seed, rape-seed, &c., from which the oil has been extracted. It is a food for cattle.

Oil colour, a pigment mixed with oil. Pigments mixed with water are called water colours.

Oiled-paper, oiled-silk; oil-clout, floor cloth; oil-skin, a sort of waterproof cloth; oil-cups, oil gas.

Oiling out, running a thin coat of drying oil over a part of a picture to be wiped out.

Oilman, plu. oilmen, one who sells oil.

Oil-mill, oil-nut, oil-painting; oil-stone, a hone.

Oil-spring, a spring from which oil issues; oil-well.

Oil of bricks, obtained by subjecting bricks soaked in oil to the process of distillation. Used by lapidaries.

Oil of vitriol, sulphuric acid.

The liquid principle of oil is called oleine, ο’λείς.
The fatty or suety part is stearine, στέραριν.

Oleaginous, ο’λει.αδ’ρης; oleaginous-ness.

Oleifant, ο’λει’άντ, a manufactured oil.

Oleic, ο’λείκ; oleiferous, ο’λει.φε’ρος. (See Oleic.)

Oleometer (should be Eleometer), an oil gauge.

Latin oleum, oleaginos; Greek ελαιόν metron.

Oint’ment, a salve. (Latin unguintum, ungo, to anoint.)

Old, (comp.) old-er, (super.) old-est. Eld, elder, eldest.

(1) Old, elder, oldest, is applied to both persons and things.
Eld, elder, eldest, is applied to persons only.

(2) Older, eldest, denote duration of time.
Elder, eldest, denote priority of birth, and have no reference to length of age, as one’s eldest son may have lived fewer years than the youngest.

This is my youngest son (forty years old to-day), his elder brother (my eldest son) died in infancy.
Old- ness, old-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means “like”); olden times, of yore.

Old-fashioned, antiquated. Old age.

Old-clothesman, -klōthz-man, one who buys old clothes.

Old bachelor, fem. old maid, an unmarried man or woman past the usual marrying age. Old Tom, strong gin.

Old school, having the manners and opinions of times gone by. New school, having modern manners, &c.

An old song, worthless. Old style, the Julian mode of reckoning. New style, the reformed method.

Old Red Sandstone, the series of strata between the coal measures and the Silurian system.

Old Testament, the Bible from Genesis to Malachi. From Matthew to Revelation is the New Testament.

Old Eng. eald, comp. yldra, super. ylded, ealdor, an elder, ealdorman, an alderman. “Ealdfader,” aldfather, is a much better word than the hybrid grandfather, and so is aldlfather than the meaningless great grandfather.

There is no reason why we should not revive the verb eald-, past ealdode, past part. ealdod, to grow old.

Oleaginous, -ole'agen'ous, oily, unctious; oleag'nous-ness. See Oil. (Latin oleag'ínus, oleum, oil.)

Oleander, -ole'an'der, an evergreen shrub, the rose bay.

Oleaster, -ole'es'ter, the wild-olive-tree. (Latin oleaster.)

Oleifiant gas (not oil-), -ol'ef'iante gas, made by heating sulphuric acid and alcohol. (Latin oleum-ficio [ficicr].)

So called because it forms with chlorine a compound resembling oil.

Oleic acid, -ole'ik a's'sid, an acid resulting from the action of certain oils upon potash during the formation of soap.

Oleate, -ole'ate, a salt of oleic acid (-ate denotes a salt formed from an acid in -ic with a base).

Oleiferous, -ole'if'ous, producing oil.

Oleine, -ole'in, the liquid portion of oil and fat. The suet or fatty part is called stearine, ste'ar'in.

As “stearine” is Greek (steār, suet), “oleine” should be the Greek “elaine” [elain] also, and not the Latin “oleine.”

Oleon, -ole'o'n, a liquid obtained from oleine and lime.

Oleometer, -ole'o'me'ter, an instrument for testing oils. This hybrid should be étànometer, Greek elaion-metron.

Oleo-phosphoric, -fós'for'rik; an acid found in brain, &c.

Oleo-resin, turpentine and vegetable balsam.

Oleo-saccharum, -säh'ka.rüm, oil and sugar.

Latin oleum, oleum-fero, oleum with Greek metron.
AND OF SPELLING:

Olfact'ory, pertaining to the sense of smelling. The olfactories,
"olfacto'ry," the organs of smelling, the nose.

Latin ol'factus. An ill-formed word. The Latin olfac'torium means a "nose-gay," already appropriated to another meaning.

Olibanum, ol'i'bin, an aromatic gum resin. (Gk. lib'anos.)
"Libanos" is the tree, and lib'anos the gum resin, of Arab article.

Oligo-o- before a. (Greek prefix), a few, little (Ollgos, a few).

Olig-archy, plu. oligarchies, ol'gi'ri's. (Rule xliv.), the rule vested in "the few"; oligarch, ol'gi'rik, one of the rulers of an oligarchy; oligarchical, ol'gi'rik'al.
oligarchical-ly. (Greek oligos archi!, rule of the few.)

Oligo-clase, ol'igo'klas, soda-felspar.

Olio, plu. olios, a medley, a hotch-potch.
A corruption of ollas (Span. olla podrida), Lat. olla, a pot. The Fr.
pot au feu into which all sorts of fragments are boiled together.

Olive, ol'ive, a tree, the fruit of the tree, a brownish-green; olivaceous, ol'iv'a's. olive-green, olive-like; olive-brown, a colour; olive-crown, given at the Olympic games; olive-branch, emblem of peace; olive-oil, olive-yard. (Latin olivum, olivaceus.)

Olla podrida: (Spanish), olla podrida, a medley.

The tainted pot (Latin olla, a pot), being so often replenished and so rarely emptied and purified.

Olympiad, ol'im'pia'd, a period of four years (the interval between the Olympic games of Greece), this period formed the Greek standard of computation, like our A.D.

Olympic, ol'im'piik, adj. [An] Olympic, plu. Olympics, the olympic festival. Olympian, living on Olympus.

(Zeus, the Muses, &c., are Olympian not Olympic. The games are Olympic not Olympian.)

Olympia, a district of Elis, in Greece, where the games were held,
Olympia, the games, Olympiion, Olympikos. Olympia, a hill in Olympia the fabled residence of the gods. Unhappily we Latinise the Greek o and i into o and e, whereby we lose the softness of the u and the characteristic value of k for the too common c.

Ombre, om'bray (not om'ber), a game at cards for three.

Spanish hombre, the man [who plays for the pool against two adversaries]. Spadille (ace of spades), the best card. Manille (lowest card in trumps), the next best card. Basto (ace of clubs), the third best card. Ponto (the ace of hearts or spades if trumps), the fourth best card. All the tricks in one hand Volé. The victory against Ombre is termed Codille.

Ombrometer, om'brom'eter, a rain-gauge. (Gk. ombros. rain.)

Omega, om'ega (not om'ga nor om'ga), long o, and the last letter of the Greek alphabet; the end.

"I am alpha and omega, the beginning and the end" (Rev. i. 8).
Omelet, òm'e.lēt (not om'e.lēt nor or'mē.lēt), a sort of pancake made of beaten eggs. (French omelette [om.le.t].)

Omen, ö'm.en, a presage, a prognostic; omened, ö'm.end, prognosticated; ominous, òm'ē.nēs, foreboding, inauspicious; om'inous-ly, om'inous-ness.

Latin ömen, gen. ömēnis, ömēnōsus (Greek oiomai, to forebode).

Omicron, öm'i.krōn (not öm'i.krōn), short 0 in Greek.

Omission, ö.mi'shən, failure to do, neglect; omissive, -siv.

Omit, ö.mit', to leave out; omitt'ed (L. xxxvi.), omitt'ing, R. iv. (Latin omitto, supine omission, omission).

Verbs in -t and -te sometimes take -tion and sometimes -sian. The rule is this: If the supine of the Latin verb is sum, "-sian" is to be used, if not "-tio." Thus "omit" makes omission, and "dis-sent" dissension, but "inspect" makes inspection, &c.

Om'i- (Latin prefix), nouns, all, entirely (omnis, all).

Omnibus, plu. omnibuses (not omnibi), ònū.nī.būs, means a conveyance for all [who choose to use it]. It is the dative case plural of "omnis" and not a nominative case.

Omn'i-farious, -fär'i.ūs, of all varieties of form.

Latin omnifārius (omnibus modis est fāri).

Omn'i-percipient, -per.sīp'ī.xent, understanding all things, seeing all things. Omni-percipline.

Latin omni-[omnia]percipientia, gen. percipientia.

Omni-potent, öm.nīp'.ō.tent, all-powerful; omnipotent-ly.

Omnipotence, omnipotency.

Latin omnipotentia, omnipotens, gen. omnipotentis (omnis posse).

Omni-pres'ent, every-where present. Omniprescence.

Latin omni-presens, gen. præsentis (pra sum).

Omniscient, öm.nīs'ī.xent (not öm.nīsh'.ī.ant), knowing all things; omniscient-ly. Omniscience, öm.nīs'ī.xence; omniscience, knowledge of everything.

Latin omni-[omnia]scientia, scientia, knowing all things.

Omnium gatherum, öm.nī.xūm gāth.ēr.ūm, a familiar dog-Latin phrase for a miscellaneous collection, a gathering-together of all sorts of things.

Omn'i-vorous, öm.nīvr'.ō.rūs, eating both vegetable and animal food. Omnivores, öm.nīvr'.ō.reez, an order of birds.

Latin omni-[omnia]vorans, eating all-things.

On- (a Teutonic prefix), upon, forwards: on-set, on-wards.

-on (Fr. term., Lat. -o), nouns. In Chem. a metalloid: as boron.

-one, -oon, -on (augmentative), nouns, large: as trombone (a large wind instrument), ball-oon (a large ball), million (a large thousand).
AND OF SPELLING.

On. Upon, \( \ddot{u}p\ddot{\text{on}} \). There is no real difference between these two prepositions. We say:
- It lies on the ground (or) upon the ground (rest).
- Put this on the table (or) upon the table (motion).
- He got on the coach (or) upon the coach (ascent).
- It fell on the ground (or) upon the ground (descent).
- On this hint I spake (or) upon this hint (as a consequence).
- On better acquaintance (or) upon better acquaintance.

On-to for upon or up to is a vulgarism: as
- The dog jumped on-to [upon] the table.
- The horse went well on-to [up to] the second milestone.

But when on is part of a compound verb to may follow:
- as hold-on to the ropes; laugh-on to your heart's content.

On dit (Fr.), \( \ddot{o}'n \) de, a flying rumour, a report.

Once, \( \ddot{w}n\ddot{c}e \) (rhymes with dunce), a single time.
- At once, all at one time, immediately. Once and again, repeatedly. ("Once" from one : as Germ. eïnst from ein.)

One, \( \ddot{w}n\ddot{n} \). Wan, \( \ddot{w}n\ddot{n} \). On. Wan, \( \ddot{w}\ddot{n} \).

One, an individual, a single specimen. Ones, \( \ddot{w}n\ddot{z} \), persons; one-ness, \( \ddot{w}n\ddot{n}\ddot{z} \)-ness, unity. At one, in accord;
- One o'clock; one-eyed; one-sided, one-sided-ness.
- One = the French on, someone, I myself.

"On" is a contraction of homme (om, on), and "one" is our man, mon.
- The Germans say wie man sagen möchte (as one might say), wie man es wünscht (as one would have it), hier man spricht deutsche.

Errors of Speech.

(I.) One is not to be changed into another pronoun in the same sentence. Hence the following sentences are incorrect:
- (1) In former days one went by coach,
  But now he [one] goes by train.
- (2) In such a scene one might forget his cares,
  And dream himself [oneself], in poet's mood, away.
- (3) One is apt to forget himself [oneself] in such a matter.
- (4) One ought to take care of his [one's] health.
- (5) One should do a thing himself [oneself], if he [one] wishes it to be well done.
- (6) In correcting the faults of others one ought to be doubly careful to be correct himself [oneself].

(II.) One Another. One to Another.
To may precede "one another" or may be placed between the two words: as "be kind to one another" (or) "one to another," but the former is less pedantic. In the one case "one another" is a compound pronoun, and in the other case it is the Latin alius alium, as alius alium utilebat.

(III.) A not an should precede one, because there is in reality a digamma before the o (w[one]). Hence "such an one," "many an one," should be "such a one," "many a one."
- "One," O. E. on or on.
- "Won," Old Eng. wun[an], past won, past part. wunnen.

Onerary, \( \ddot{\text{o}}\ddot{\text{\'e}}\ddot{\text{\'\text{r}}\ddot{\text{\text{\'r}}}} \). Honorary, \( \ddot{\text{o}}\ddot{\text{\'\'\text{\'\text{r}}}}\ddot{\text{\text{\'r}}}) \).

Onerary, adapted for bearing burdens, weighty.
- Honorary, conferring honour without emolument.
Onerous, ōn'-ērōs (not ō'-nērōs), burthensome; onerous-ly.

Onus, ō-nūs, stigma, trouble, weight.

Lat. ōnus, gen. ōnēris, onērarius, ōnērasus (Gk. δοσ, an ass).

Onion, ōn'-yūn (not ōn'-yūn), a bulbous vegetable.

French oignon, Latin unio, gen. unionis. The connection between onion, pearl, and union (in Latin) is very curious. "Union" means all three. Pearls were so called because two are never found alike in any shell, but each pearl is unique. Onion is so called from its pearly lustre, and union from its oneness.

Only, ōn.ly (to rhyme with lonely), one alone, merely.

Only-begotten [son], one [son] without any second.

(?) The position of only.

As a rough general rule Only should stand immediately before the word it qualifies, and Alone immediately after, but this rule in regard to only is very laxly followed: Thus we say

(1) "I only shot one bird all the day."
(2) "I shot only one bird all the day."
(3) "I shot one bird only all the day."

The first of these is the most usual, although grammarians dislike it. In example (1) "shooting-birds" is a compound word qualified by the number one, two, &c. (as it may be), and "only" expresses the fact that my success in "shooting-birds" was limited to only shooting-one-bird. This is really more definite than either example 2 or 3, where a supplemental clause seems to be required: as

"I shot only one bird (but several hares)," or

"I shot one bird only (but several hares)."

Old English ana, anak or énkle (in or in, one).

Onomatopoeia, ō-nōm'-ā-tō-pē'-ah, an imitation word: as moo, caw, meow, buzz, fizz, crack, bang, &c.

Onomatopoetic, ō-nōm'-ā-tō-pē'-tik.

Lat. onomatopoeia (Gk. onoma poieō, [the sound] makes the word). This very long and difficult word might be shortened by omitting -to-, as in ónomα-μικοφη, ónomα-κλυτος, ónomα-κρυσος, &c.

On-set, the first brunt, a violent attack. (Old Eng. onset[an].)

Onslaught, on'-slawt, a slaughterous attack. (Old Eng. onsalege.)

Ontology, ōn-tōl'-ē-gy; the science of existence, its reality, and its object; ontologic, ōn'-tō-loj'-ik; ontological, ōn'-tō-loj'-ik-kul; ontological-ly; ontologist, ōn-tōl'-ō-gist.

Gk. [rho] logos, discourse about ὅδ γε or existence or being.

Onus, ō'-nūs, the weight, the difficulty, the task: as

Onus probāndi, the task of proof;
Onus importandí, the charge and risk of importing merchandise.

Onward (adj.), forward. Onwards (adv.), in advance.

Although onward is sometimes used adverbially, yet it must be remembered that it is the final s which gives the adverbial character to the word, -es being our native adverbial suffix: as nights, nightly (anights). Old English on-uard, on-wardes.

Onyx, ō'-nīks, a streaky agate, an abscess in the corner of the eye.
Onycha, onth'ikah, the shell of the onyx-fish. Onymancy, on't'man'se, divination by the nails.

Lat. onyx, gen. onychis; Gk. onyx, onychos, the nail, an onyx or onyx-stone. Any stone with white and other bands is an onyx, whether agate, jasper, chalcedony, &c. The white crescent at the base of our nails gave rise to the word.

Oolite, 'ol.it'é (3 syl. not oo'.lite, 2 syl.), a variety of limestone.

Oolitic, 'ol.it.uk; Oolithes, 'ol.ith.zz, fossil eggs.

Oology, oo.li.o.gy, the science of eggs and nests.

Greek oón lógós; oón lithós, egg-stone, so called because its small rounded grains resemble eggs.

-oon (Fr. and Ital. ending) nouns, large: ball-oon, a large ball.

Ooze, hoe.

Hose, hoze,poss. of Who. (Old English hwa, hwa.)

Hose, haze, stockings. (Old English hose, plu. hosan.)

Hoes (to rhyme with grows), plu. ofhoe. (French hose.)

Owes, owz (to rhyme with grows), 3 sing. of owe. (O. E. ag[an].)

“Ooze,” O. E. wés, wésig, oosy. The loss of the w is to be regretted.

Opacity, op.as't' ty, obscurity, want of transparency. (See Opaque.)

Op-, for ob- before -p (Latin prefix), See Ob-.

Opal, 'opal (not op.wal), a precious stone very iridescent.

Opalise, 'opal.i.se; Opalised, 'opal.iss'.

Opalise, to convert into a substance like opal.

Opalesce, to exhibit the iridescence of an opal.

Opalised, 'opal.ised; opalising (Rule xix.), 'opal.ising.

Opalesced, 'opal.essed'opalescing (R. xix.), 'opal.ess'ing.

Opalescence, 'opal.ess'sense; opalescent, 'opal.ess'sent.

Opaline, 'opal.i.n; adj. of opal (-ine, Lat., “pertaining to”).

Opalum (Gk. óps, gen. ópós, the eye), a stone lustrous as the eye.

Opaque, 'op.ake', not transparent; opaque'-ly, opaque'-ness.

French opaque: Latin ópacus (ab ópe, i.e., terrá, Scaliger). The introduction of these French terminations in -que is much to be deplored. They do not in any way assist in the pronunciation, but quite the reverse, and the ordinary spelling opake (Latin ópacus) would be much better.

Ope (1 syl.), contraction of open. Hope (1 syl.) Hoop.

Open, 'open.n; to disclose, free to all, artless, &c., to undo, to commence, &c.; opened, 'open.d; opening, 'open.ing; openings, apertures, vacancies; open-er, 'open.e.r; open-ly, 'open.ly; open-ness, 'open.ness.

Open-hearted, frank; open-mouthed, greedy. The open, the open sea, &c. To open up, to lay open a mine, to make a trade.

Old Eng. open*[aun]*, past openode, past part. opened, openeth, openly.
Opera, őpˈɛrə, a musical drama; operatic, őpˈɛrətɪk; operatical, őpˈɛrətɪkəl; operationally, őpˈɛrətənəl-i. Opera-house, a theatre for operas. Opera-dancer, opera-singer.

Ital. opera; Lat. őpɛra, work; opera theatri̇alēs, actors of plays.

Opera-meter, őpˈɛrəmɛtər, an instrument for measuring the amount of work done, an instrument for measuring the number of revolutions made by a wheel or shaft.

A hybrid: Latin őpɛra, Greek metron, a work measurer. "Ergometer" would be good Gk., ergon metron (Mensor is the Lat.)

Operate, őpˈɛrət, to work effectually; operated (Rule xxxvi.), operating (Rule xix.), operator (Rule xxxvii.).

Operation, őpˈɛrəʃən; operative, őpˈɛrətɪv, a skilled workman, effective, working.

Lat. operatīō, operātōr, v. operārī (őpɛrə, works); Fr. opération.

Operculum, plu. opercula, o-perˈkələm, plu. o-perˈkələ (in Bot.), a lid or cover; (in Conch.), the horny substance with which snails and other mollusces close the aperture of their shell, the gill-cover of fishes. Operˈcular, adj.

Latin operālūm, a lid or cover; v. operculāre (őpɛrələrə).

Ophi-, őfˈfi-, and ophio-, őfˈfiːəʊ- (Greek prefix) nouns, a serpent.

Ophi-cleide, -kläde, the "serpent" improved (a wind inst.)

Greek ophi[ɔphiṣ]klēis, gen. kleidos, a key, the keyed serpent. This word would be more regular if written ophio-cleide.

Ophidin, őfˈfɪdən. the reptile order including serpents.

Ophidian, őfˈfɪdɪən, one of the ophidia, pertaining to serpents. Ophidion, őfˈfɪdɪən.ən, the eel-prout; ophidious, őfˈfɪdəs, snake-like.

These words are all of them objectionable. Ophis makes ophis (Lat.) and ophēs (Greek) in the gen., not ophidōs. The Latin form "serpentītēs" would be less objectionable.

Ophiology, őfˈfɪələˈdʒi, that part of Natural History which treats of serpents; ophiologic, őfˈfɪələˈdʒɪk; ophiological, őfˈfɪələˈdʒɪklək; ophiologist, -dʒɪst.

Greek ophi[ɔphiσ]logos, treatise on serpents.

Ophio-mancy, őfˈfɪəˈmænˈsɪ, divination by serpents.

Greek ophi[ɔphiσ]manteia, serpent divination.

Ophio-morphous, őfˈfɪəˈmɔrˌfjuːs, snake-shaped.

Greek ophi[ɔphiσ]morphē, snake shape.

Ophio-phagous, őfˈfɪəˌfəˈfæɡəs, feeding on snakes.

Greek ophi[ɔphiσ]phagōs, I eat serpents or snakes.

Ophites, őfˈfɪtəs, a sect in the second century who maintained that the tempting-serpent in Paradise was Jesus.

Ophthalamo-, őfˈrælˌmo-. (Gk. prefl) nouns, the eye (ophthalmos).

Ophthalmia, őfˈrælˌmi.ə.ən, inflammation of the eye.
Ophthalmic, ōf.θῆλ'.mīk, pertaining to the eye.

Greek ophthalmia, disease of the eye (ophthalmos, the eye).

Ophthalmodynia, ōf.θῆλ'.mo-đīn'.tāh, pain in the eye.

Greek ophthalmum (ophthalmos) δύναι, pain in the eye.

Ophthalmodulia, ōf.θῆλ'.mo-du-lī'.ah, eye-service.

Greek ophthalmum (ophthalmos) δουλεία, eye-service.

Ophthalmology, ōf'.θῆλ'.lō.gy, the science which treats of the eye; ophthalmologist, ōf'.θῆλ'.lō.đījist.

Greek ophthalmum (ophthalmos) λόγος, treatise on the eye.

Ophthalmoptosis, ōf.θῆλ'.mōp.tē'.sis, protrusion of the whole eye. (Greek ophthalmōptōsis, eye falling-out.)

Ophthalmoscope, ōf'.θῆ'.mo.skō.pe, an instrument for inspecting the eye; ophthalmoscopy, ōf'.θῆλ'.mō.skō.py.

Greek ophthalmum (ophthalmos) skopeō, I inspect the eye.

(Except in phantascope and telescope, the vowel preceding -scope is always -o-.)

Opiate, ō'.pi.lē'ta, a narcotic. (See Opium.)

Opine, ā.pī'nē', to think, to suppose; opined (2 syl.), opin-ing (R. xix.), ā.pī'nē'.ing. (Lat. opinor, to think, to suppose.)

Opinion, ō.pi'.n'yūn, belief, conviction, notion; opinionated, ō.pi'.n.i.ānā.tė'.ed, conceited, wedded to one's own opinions; opinionative, ō.pi'.n.i.ā.nā.tī'.v; opin'ionative-ly, opin'i-onative-ness; opinioned, ō.pi'.n'yūnd; opinion-ist.

Latin opinio, gen. opiniosis, v. opināri; French opinion.

Opium, ō'.pi.lūm, the juice of the white poppy (used as a medicine).

Opiate, ō'.pi.lē'te, a narcotic; opiated, ō'.pi.lē'.tē'.ed, mixed with opium. (Lat. ōpium; Gr. ὁπίον, from ὁπός, juice.)

Opodeldoc (not opidildock), ō.po.dēl'.doc, a liniment.

A word coined by Paracelsus (du grec opos, suc, et d'un mot arabe).

Opossum, ō.pōs'.sūm, an American and Australian animal, the females have an abdominal pouch in which they can carry their young, contracted to 'possum. (Indian opassom.)

Oppidan, ōp'.pi.dā'n, an Eton student, not on the foundation, who boards in the town. Sometimes applied to university students who lodge in the town. (Latin oppidānus.)

Opponent, ōp.pō'.nent (not o.pō'.nent), an adversary, a rival.

Opponency, ōp.pō'.nē.nς, a disputed in the schools, in which the student opposes the professor. If the professor opposes the student it is an Act.

Latin opponens, gen. -nentis (op[ob]ponent, to place in opposition).

Opportunity, plu. opportunities (Rule xliv.), ōp'.por.tū'.nī.tiz (not o'.por.tū'.nī.ty), an occasion, a convenient time, &c.; opportune, ōp'.por.tūnē; opportune'ly, opportune'ness.

Lat. opportunitas, opportūnus (op[ob]portūs, over-against the haven).

It means "timely as a port to a ship."
Errors of Speech

Oppose, ōp.pōze' (not ō'pōze), to confront, to resist; opposed' (2 syl.), oppōs'-ing (Rule xix.), oppōs'-ing-ly, oppōs'-er, oppōs'-able. (Only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able.)

Opposition, ōp.pō.zīsh'ēn, hostility, contrariety; opposition-ist, oppo'nent; oppo'nency, a school disputation.

Latin oppōsītio, oppōsītum (op[t]ōnē're, supīne pōsitum, to place in opposition). (See Opponent.)

Oppress, ōp.prēs' (not ō'press'), to treat harshly, to overtax; oppressed, ōp.prēs'-; oppress'-ing, oppress'-or (R. xxxvii.)

Oppression, ōp.prēsh'ēn (not ō'pres'h'en, a common error).

Oppressive, ōp.prēs'-stiv (not ō'pres'-stiv, a common error), oppressive-ly, oppressive-ness.

Lat. oppressio, oppressor, oppressus, v. opprēnīo (op[t]ōnē're, to press down); Fr. oppresser, oppression, oppressif, pressurer.

Opprobrious, ōp.prēbr'ēüs, abusive, offensive; opprobrious-ness, opprobrious-ly. Opprobrium, plu. opprobriums, -ēnz.

Latin opprobrium, opprobriosus, v. opprēbrāre (op[t]ōnē're.)

Oppugn, ōp.pūnea', to deny. Impugn, im.pūne', to accuse.

Oppūned (2 syl.), oppūn'-ing (Rule xix.), oppūn'-er.

Latin oppugnō (op[t]ōgno, to fight against).

Optative, ōp.tāt'ēiv, a mood of verbs. (Latin optātīvus.)

Optics, ōp.tēks, the science of light and vision.

Optic, ōp.tēk, relating to optics; optic lens, optic nerves.

Optician, ōp.tēsh'ēn, a maker of optical instruments.

Optical, ōp.tēk'āl; optical-ly, optical instruments, optical delusion, a delusion of the sight; optical par'allax, that of objects viewed by one eye alternately.

Optigraph, ōp.tē.grāf, a telescope for copying landscapes.

Optometer, ōp.tōm'ēter, an instrument for determining the limits of distinct vision.

Greek [t]ēptika or [k]ēptikē [technē], optēkē, v. optēnai, to see. All the sciences derived from Greek words ending in -ka are plu., except the five borrowed from the French: arithmetē, logē, magē, music, and rhetoric. Latin optēkus, optēce, optics.

Optimates, ōp.tē.mātēs, the magnates of ancient Rome.

Senior Optime, se'nē.or ōp.tē.me, one of the second class of the mathematical Tripos in the Camb. exam. for degrees.

Junior Optime, one of the third class of the mathematical Tripos... The first class are called Wranglers, and the first of the first class is called The Senior Wrangler.

Optimism, ōp.tē.mīzm, the doctrine that "whatever is is best." Optimist, one who thinks that "whatever is is best," one who thinks man will go on improving as long as the world endures. A pes'simist thinks that nothing can be worse than the present order of things, and that the world goes on from worse to worse.

Lat. optilus, plu. opt%imates, optimus (opto, to wish), all one can wish.

Optlon, óp'ühlun, choice; option-ill, op't'ional-ly. (Lat. optio.)

Opulent (one -p-), óp'pü.lent, wealthy; op'ulent-ly. Op'ulence, óp'pü. lence. (Lat. opulentia, opulentus, from opes, wealth.)

Opuscle, o.püs'.küle, a brochure. (Lat. opusculum, a little work.)

-or, frequently follows t- and s-, instead of -er (Latin -tor, -sor), an agent. It is a pity the rule is not universal.

-or (Latin suffix), abstract nouns: error, labor, terror; some of this class of words retain the Frenchified -our.

(No useful object is gained by retaining the French ending (1), because so many words have lost it, and (2) because so many have it which are not from the French.)

During the present century it has been dropped in the following words: emperor, error, exterior, horror, inferior, interior, successor, superior. In many other words it had been dropped before.

It is retained in the following words, none of which are French: arbour, behaviour, clangour, demeanour, endeavour, flavour, neighbourhood, tremour.

In the following it quite misleads: armour (armure), harbour (hâvre), parlour (parloir), rancour (rancune).

Only nineteen words remain to keep up the delusion. (See -our.)

Or, gold (in Her.), (conj.) correlative of either.

Or or Nor in negative sentences.

Rule (1) If the negation refers to both or all together "nor," but

(2) If the negation refers to either one not both together "or."

(3) After neither or nor, the correlative must be "nor."

It is not for kings to drink wine nor for princes strong drink. Whoever honoureth not his father or mother let him die the death. Fight neither with small nor great (1 Kings xxii. 31). Then thy son, nor thy daughter, nor the stranger... (Ex. xx. 10).

Or ever, before (a corruption of ere ever, before ever).

"Or." Old Eng. oththe or oththon: Tell us by what authority thou doest these thynges, other [oththon] is he that gave the thy authority.—Tyndale, "New Testament."

Oracle, ór'rā.kl. Auricle, aw'rā.kl; the external ear.

Oracle, a divine response, the temple where oracles were consulted, the deity or person who utters the response, &c. Oracles, the communication of God to man.

Oraeular, Aurieular, Auricula, o,rāk'kū.lar, aw'rāk'kū.lah. Oracular, pertaining to an oracle, of the nature of an oracle. Aurieular [confession], uttered in the ear, &c.

Auricula, the bear's ear. (Latin auris, an ear; -cula, dim.)
Oracular-ly; oraculous, orâk’kûl.îs; oraculous-ness.

"Oracle," Latin orâcûlûm ("orae procutio") so the Greek ëogûn, an oracle, is from ëgo, to say or speak. Cicero says: "quod est in his [orâculûs] deorum oratio").

"Auricular," Latin aurûcûlâris, aurûcûlârius (auris, an ear).

Oral, ô’râl, by word of mouth; oral-ly. (Fr. oral; Lat. os ôris.)

Horal, hô’râl, relating to hours. (Lat. hôra; Gk. hôra, the hour.)

Aural, awô’râl, pertaining to the ear. (Latin auris, the ear.)

Orange, ô’rânj, a fruit, a colour; orangery, ô’rânj.rî (not ô’rën.j.rû), a house where oranges are reared artificially.

Orange-man, plu. -men, one of the Irish protestant society organised, A.D. 1689, in support of William-of-Orange.

Orange-tawny, a brown yellow colour; orange-musk, a species of pear; china orange, tchi’nañ ô’rânj.

Orange-ade (3 syl.), a drink made with orange-juice.

French orange (poômum aurantiijm, the golden fruit, aurum, gold, the "golden fruit of the Hesperides," so famed in fable).

Orang outang, ô’râng’ oo.tang’, one of the ape tribe.

Malay orang houtan, the wild man of the woods.

Oration, ô rayshun, a speech. Horatian, hô ray’’ shë’án, after the manner of Horace, the Roman poet.

Orator, ôr’râ.tor (Rule xxxvii.); oratorical, ôr’râ.tôr’rî.kûl; oratorical-ly. Oratory, ôr’râ.tô’rî, the art of an orator.

Oratory, plu. oratories, ôr’râ.tô’rîz, a private chapel.

This comes from the Latin orâre, to pray, and it would have been much better if we had accepted the French oratoire.

Oratorio, plu. oratorios, ôr’râ.tô’rî.zô, a sacred musical drama without acting, scenery, or character costume.

(In the Latin the "â" of all these words is long, as it is in "oration.") Orâtio, orator, orâtiorum; Italian orâtoria; French oratoire.

Orb, a celestial sphere, a hollow globe; orb of day, the sun; orb of night, the moon; orb-like; orb(ed (1 syl.)

Orbit, or’bût, the path of a heavenly body; orbitâl.

Orbicular, or.bik’û.lêr, spherical; orbic’cular-ly, orbicular-ness. Orbiculate, or.bik’û.lô-î, orbicular; orbic’ulâted.

Latin orbûcûlâris, orbûcûlâtius, orbis, v. orbûtûre.

Orc, a species of whale, a man-eating sea-monster.

Old English orca, a goblin; Latin orca, a whale; Greek uråcha.

Orcadian, or.kå’ dî.ân, pertaining to the Orkney Islands, a native of the Orkneys. (Lat. orkûdës (orca), the whale-islands.)

Orchard, ork’’rî, a fruit-garden; orch’ard-ist, one who cultivates an orchard as a trade; orch’ard-ing, making orchards.

Old English ortgeard or oreccerd a herb garden.
Orchestra, orˈ.ksi.trə (not ərˈksi.trə), a place assigned to musicians, the musicians assembled in an orchestra; orchestral, orˈ.ksi.trəl, suitable to an orchestra, &c.

Gk. orčestra, the space where the chorus danced (orčēomai, to dance).

Orchis, orˈ.ksi [or orchid, orˈ.kəd], a plant; orchidaceous (Rule lxvi.), orˈ.ksi.dāˈ.shəs; orchideous, orˈ.kədˈ.ē.əs.

Orchidaceae, orˈ.ksi.dāˈ.shəˌsiˌeˌ (aceae, an order of plants).

Greek orčhes, testiculc, à cause de la forme des bulbes (Bouillet).

Latin orčhis, gen. orchitis; French orčis or orchidé.

Ord, an edge, a beginning: asords and ends, corrupted into odds and ends. (Old Eng. ord, a point, a beginning.)

Horde, hōrd, a migratory tribe. (French horde.)

Hoard, hōrd, a store. (Old English hoard, a store.)

Odd, strange, not even. (Welsh odid, peculiarity, oddity.)

Où, the hypothetical agent of mesmeric phenomena.

Greek ὁίδης, the way [mesmerism acts].

Hod, a dorsal for carrying bricks and mortar. (Fr. hotte.)

Ort, a fragment dropped from the mouth in eating. (O.E. orted.)

Ordain, orˈ.dānˌ, to decree, to invest with ministerial office; ordained' (3 syl.), ordain-ing, ordain-er.

Ordination, orˈ.dānˌeɪˈ.shən. (Latin orˈ.dānˌeɪˈ.shənˌ.)

Ordeal, orˈ.ðe.əl (should be orˈ.dəl′), a scrutiny or severe test.

Fiery ordeal, a very severe trial, as when an accused person had to prove his innocence by holding red-hot iron in his hand or walking blindfold over red-hot plough-shares.

Water ordeal was performed by plunging the bare arm into boiling water or by being tossed into a river.

(The first was for the gentry. Both might be performed by deputy, and hence the phrase “passing through fire and water” to serve you.)

Old English orted or orted, a judgment, an ordeal.

Orˈ.der, arrangement, method, command, badge, to command; ordered, orˈ.derd; orˈ.der-ing, order-er; order-ly, systematically; orˈ.derliˌness, Rule xi. (Latin orˈ.der, orˈ.deriˌ.)

Orderly, plu. orderlies, orˈ.derˈliˌz, a soldier appointed to wait upon a commanding officer and to carry messages;

The orderly officer, the officer whose turn it is to superintend the cleanliness, food, and comforts of his regiment.

Orderly non-commissioned officer, the sergeant on duty for the week. His duty is to attend the orderly room for instructions and convey them to the proper quarters.

Orderly book, regimental orders entered by the captain.

Orders (in Arch.), the five styles of Greek architecture: viz., the Tuscan, Dorˈ.ic, Iōˈ.nic, Corinthian, and Composite.
Holy Orders, the three offices of bishop, priest, and deacon.
In Holy Orders, belonging to any of these three orders.
To take Orders, to become an ordained minister.

Order of the day, the business set down for consideration on the minutes. To move "for the order of the day," an artifice for burking a disagreeable motion by setting it aside for the routine business set down on the minutes.

Orders in council, issued by the advice of the ministers.
Order-book, a day-book in which orders are entered.

Close orders, soldiers standing one pace off each other.

Letters of Orders, a certificate given to one ordained to testify that he has been admitted into Holy Orders.

Standing orders, regulations which must be observed by every member of parliament or of a club.

Sailing orders, the final instructions given to ships of war.

Ordinal, or. Ordinal, the ordination service.

Ordinal numbers, those which express order: as 1st, 2nd, 3rd, &c.; the numbers 1, 2, 3, are Cardinal Numbers.

French ordinal, cardinal; Latin ordinalis, cardinalis.

Ordinance, Ordinance, or. Ordinance, ordinance.

Ordinance, a law, a regulation. (Latin ordinans, -antis.)

Ordinance, artillery (the word means "regulation guns").

Ordinary, a table d'hôte, an established judge of an ecclesiastical court (usually the bishop of the diocese), the Newgate chaplain, customary, common; ordinary seamen.

Ordinarily, or. Ordinarily, in ordinary, in constant service, statedly in attendance. (Latin ordinarius.)

Ordination, or. Ordination, consecration of the ministry.

French ordination; Latin ordinatio, creation of governors.

Ordinance, ordinance. Ordinance, or. Ordinance, a law, a rule.

Ordinance, artillery; ordinance-map, one of the maps under the authority of the Ordnance Department, from actual survey by the Royal Engineer corps.

Both these words are from the Latin ordinans, gen. ordinantis, to settle by decree, to fix or establish by authority.

Ordure, or. Order, dung. Orgeat, or. Orgeat, or. Orgeat, a beverage. Orgies (q.v.)

Ore, or, metal (as it is extracted from a mine); ory, containing ore. (Old English ør or ør.)

Oar, ør, for rowing. (Old English ør or ør.)

O'er, ør, a contraction of over. (Old English øfer.)

Or, conj. (Old English otheron, corrupted into other, o'r.)
Hare-, the first syl. of several plants. (Old English hara-.)
Hear, hōr, white with age or frost. (Old English hār.)
Hors, hor, as hors de combat, disabled (French).
Haw, the berry of the hawthorn. (O. E. hag, hāgthorn.)
Whore, hoo'r', a prostitute. (Old Eng. hōre, Welsh huren.)
Oread, plu. oreads or oreades, ò'rē'ādz, ò'rē'ā dez, mountain nymphs. (Gk. òrēûdes (òrōs, a mountain); Lat. òrēûdes.)
Organ, a musical instrument, that by which any function of plants or animal bodies is carried on, a phrenological development, an exponent of news or opinions, an agent, &c.
Organic, or gà'nik', pertaining to an organ, having organs; organic analysis, -à.nàl'ê.tis, that of organic compounds;
Organic chemistry, that part of chemistry which treats of the composition and properties of organised bodies;
In-organic chemistry treats of substances which are not organised: as metals, gases, minerals, water, &c.
Organic remains, fossil remains of animals and vegetables.
Organic disease, one affecting the structure of an organ.
Functional disease, a derangement of the secretions.
Organic laws, those which affect the constitution of a state.
Organical, or gà'nik'ê.kâl; organ'ical-ly; organ'ical-ness.
Organise, or gà'nis'e (Rule xxxi.); or'ganised (3 syl.), or'ganis-ing (Rule xix.), or'ganis-er; or'ganis-able.
Organisation, or gà'nik'ês'zhûn. Organism, or gà'nik'ìzm.
Organic structure. Organised bodies, those which possess organs: as animals and plants. Those which possess no organs, as metals and minerals, are inorganised bodies.
Organ-ist, one who plays the organ; organ-builder; organ-loft, the place where a church-organ stands.
Organo-genesis, or gà'nik'o-ô'dēn'ê.tis, (in Bot.) the gradual development of an organ. (Greek gà'nē'sis, birth.)
Organo-graphy, or gà'nik'o-gràf'ê.fì, that part of Botany which treats of the structure of plants, and the functions of its several parts; organo-graphic, or gà'nik'o.gràf'ê.tîk; organographical, or gà'nik'o.gràf'ê.tîkêl. Organog'raphist, -fìst. (Greek gà'nikon graphê, I describe the organs.)
Organo-logy, or gà'nik'o-lôj'ê.dìj, that branch of physiology which treats of the organs of animals; organological, or gà'nik'o.lôd'ê.tîkêl. Organologist, or gà'nik'o.lôd'ê.dìjist.
Organon, or gà'nik'ôn, a body of rules and canons for regulating scientific investigations: as the Organon of Aristotle, the Novum Organon of Bacon.
Old Eng, organ; Gk. organon (ergô, functional work); Lat. organista, Orgeat, or'.zhah. Orgies, or’djēz. Ordiure, or’.dū’.r. Orgues, orgz.

Orgeat, a beverage made from barley and sweet almonds.
French orgeat (orge; Latin hordeum, barley).

Orgies, or’.djit, debauch, revelry especially by night.
French orgies; Latin orgia, rites of Bacchus; Greek orgia.

Orgues, orgz (Fr.), pieces of timber shod with iron, hung over a gateway and let down in case of attack. (Gk. organon).

Orichale, or’.ri.kalk, the brass of the ancients resembling gold.
Lat. orichalcum; Gk. oreichalkos, mountain brass (oros chalkos).

Oriel, or’.rī.ēl. Oriole, or’.rī.ōle.

Oriel, a large bay window with front and sides, a recess. (It has no connection with orient and does not mean eastern.)

Oriole, or’.rī.ōle, a genus of birds of a golden colour.

“Oriel,” Old Fr. oriol; Lat. os, gen. oris, a mouth, gap, opening, &c. “In gentem lato dedit ore fenestram” (Virgil, Aen. ii. 482).

“Oriole,” Span. oriel, the golden thrush; Lat. aurēōlus, golden.

Orient, or’.rī.ēnt, the east, eastern; oriental, or’.rī.ēn’tāl; oriental-ly, oriental-ism; oriental-ist, a scholar of Asiatic languages. Oriency, or’.rī.ēn’si, richness of colour. Orientation, or’.rī.ēn’tāy’shūn, the process of determining the exact east in taking “bearings.”

Lat. orientis, gen. orientis, place of sun-rise; orientalis, v. orītor, to rise.

Orifice, or’.rī.īs, an aperture, an opening.
Latin orificeum (os, gen. oris ficto [facto], I make a gap or opening).

Oriflamme, or’.rī.flām, the sacred banner of France.
A crimson flag with five clefts like “tongues of fire,” mounted on a gilt staff. It was originally the banner of St. Denis [Sahn Dnees].

Origanum, or’.rī.gi.ni.ūm, wild marjoram, mountain-joy.
Latin origanum; Greek origânōma (orig-ös[gănōs]), mountain-joy. So called because it delights in open hilly grounds.

Origin, or’.rī.djīn, beginning; source; original, or’.ridg’i.nūl; original-ly. Originality, or’.ridg’i.nūl’tē.ty.

Originate, or’.ridg’i.nāt, to invent, to set going; origināt-ed (R. xxxvi.), origināt-ing (R. xix.), origināt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Origination, or’.ridg’i.nāy’shūn.

Original sin, that “depravity” which is man’s birth-right as a descendant of “disobedient Adam.”
Latin origo, gen. originis, originālis, originātio (ōrītor, to arise).

Oriole, or’.rī.ōle, a genus of yellow birds. Oriel, a bay window.

“Oriole,” Span. oriel, the golden-thrush; Lat. aurēōlus, golden. “Oriel,” Old Fr. oriol; Lat. os, gen. oris, an opening, a mouth.

Orion, or’.rī.ōn, an autumnal constellation. (Rises in October.)

According to Greek mythology, the giant Orion was a famous hunter, who was placed at death among the stars, where he appears with belt, sword, club, and lion’s head. His “rising” is often followed by rough weather, and hence he is termed “Stormy Orion.”
Orison, ɔrˈɪzən, a prayer. (Fr. oraison; Lat. orāre, to pray.)

New Orleans, nu orˈleens, one of the United States. Orleans, in France, a corruption of Auriel, the Roman emperor.

Orlop, ɔrˈlɔp, the lower deck of a ship-of-the-line, that in which the cables are stowed. (Germ. überlauf, an over-deck.) Überlaufen, to run over; the orlop is a platform “laid over” the beams in the hold. The deck “over” the hold.

Ormolu, ɔrˈmɔ.lu, gilt bronze or copper, mosaic gold; ormolu varnish, imitation gold varnish; ormolu clocks. French ormolu, or moulu, ground gold.

Ornament, ɔrˈnə.mənt, an embellishment, to embellish; ornament-ed (R. xxxvi.), ornament-ing, ornament-or; Ornamental, ɔrˈnə.mənˈtəl; ornamental-ly. Ornamentation, ɔrˈnə.mənt.əˈSHən. (Lat. ornamentum.)

Ornate, ɔrˈnət, elaborately decorated; ornate-ly, ornate-ness. Latin ornātus ornāre, to adorn (Greek hóra, beauty).

Ornith-, (before vowels), ornitho- (before cons.), orˈnith.o (Greek prefix), bird, pertaining to birds (ornis, gen. ornithōs).

Ornith-ichnite, ɔrˈnith.iˈk night, fossil footmarks of birds. Greek ornith-ichnos, a bird’s foot-print (-ite denotes a fossil).

Ornitho-coprus, ɔrˈnith.oˌkəp.əs, birds’ dung. Greek ornitho-[ornis, gen. ornithos], koprōs, dung of birds.

Ornithoid-ichnites, orˈnith.əˌoid-ˌɪksˌnaitz, bird-like footprints in mineral strata. (Same as ornith-ichnites, but a more modest term, as it merely states the marks to be like the foot-prints of a bird, and not that they are so.) Gk. ornitho- eidos, ichnos, bird-like foot-prints (-ite denotes a fossil).

Ornitho-lites, orˈnith.əˌlaitz, fossil remains of birds. Greek ornitho-[ornis, gen. ornithos] lithos, stone birds.

Ornithology, ɔrˈnith.əˌləˌjI, that part of Natural History which treats of birds; ornithological, ɔrˈnith.əˌləˌjIˌəˌkəl; ornithological-ly; ornithologist, ɔrˈnith.əˌləˌjIˌəˌlist. Greek ornitho- logos, treatise on birds.

Ornitho-manocy, ɔrˈnith.oˌmænˈsɪ, divination by birds. Greek ornitho-[ornis, gen. ornithos] manteia, divination by birds.

Ornitho-rhynchos, ɔrˈnith.oˌrɪnˌkəs, the platypus. Greek ornitho-rhynchos, bird-beaked mammal (like a duck’s beak).

Orography, ɔrəˈgræf.əˌjI, a description of mountains; orographist. Greek oros graphō, I describe mountains.

Orology, ɔrəˈləˌdʒI, a treatise on mountains; orologist, orological. (Greek orōs lógos, a treatise on mountains.)
Orphan. Often. (Orpin. Orpine. Orphean. See below.)
Orphan, or'f'zn, a child bereft of one or both parents; orphan-age, an asylum for orphans. (Greek orphános.)
Often, of'n, frequently. (Old English of, comp. ofter.)
Orphean, or'f'é'zn (not or'f'é'an), pertaining to Orpheus (or'f'ēs); Orphic, as Orphic legends, Orphic rites, Orphic hymns, &c.
Orpheon, or'f'é'on, a musical instrument.
Latin Orphēus and Orphēus, adj. of Orpheus (or'f'ēs).
Orpin, or'pin (contraction of or'piment), a yellow colour (Fr.)
Orpiment, or'pī'ment, king's yellow.
Corruption of Latin aurī-pigmentum, gold-coloured pigment.
Orpine, or'pin, the rose-plant, the sedum. (French orpin.)
Orrery, or're'ry. Horary, hō'rá'ry, noting the hours. (Lat. hōra.)
Orrery, an astronomical toy, named by Sir Richard Steel in honour of Charles Boyle, earl of Orrery.
Or'ris (a corruption of iris), the flag-flower or fleur-de-lis;
Orris-root, the dried root of the Flor'entine iris.
Ort, a fragment, a bit dropped from the mouth in feeding.
Orts, fragments. Ords, beginnings. (One of these two words is corrupted in the phrase odd's and ends.)
Ought, aut, anything. Naught, naut, nothing.
Aught, aut, the least jot. Naught, something worthless.
Odd, peculiar, not even. (Welsh odd.)
Ortho- (Greek prefix), right, straight (orthos, erect, straight, &c.)
Ortho-can'thus, fossil fin-spines of the coal measures.
Greek ortho- [orthos] akanthos, straight spines or thorns.
Ortho-ces, or.rihos'ē'ras, a genus of shells tapering to a point like a horn. Ortho-creatidæ, -sc.rū't'shē.
Greek ortho- keras, straight horn (-tē, a group or family).
Ortho-clase, potash felspar, so called from its cleavage.
Greek ortho- [orthos] kλāsis, straight fracture. (Orth'.kλās.)
Ortho-doxx, opinions in accordance with the national church and national laws: In Turkey Mahometanism, in China Buddhism, in England accordance with the "Thirty-nine Articles" is religious orthodoxy. Ortho-doxy.
Greek ortho- [orthos] dōxa, right opinions.
Ortho-dromics, or.rihō'du'miks, the art of sailing on the arc of a great circle, that is, straight sailing.
Orthodromy, or.rihō'du'my; orthodromic, -mik.;
Greek ortho- [orthos] dōmēs, [taking] the straight course.
Orthoepy, or ὀρθῆ ἀ. ὑ (not ὀρθῆ ὁ. ὑ), correct pronunciation of words. (See Orthography.)

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ὀ. ἐ. ἐ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Greek ortho- [orthos] ἔφ. [speaking] words aright.

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or. ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.

Orthoepic, or ὀ. ἐ. ὑ. ὑ; orthoepical, -κάλ.

Orthoepist, or ὀ. ὀ. κ. ὑ (not ὀ. ὀ. ὁ. ὑ).

Orthography, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ, correct spelling; orthographic, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographical, -κάλ; orthographically; orthographer, or ὀ. ὀ. γ. ὑ. ὑ; orthographic.

Greek ortho- [orthos] γράφ. I write correctly.
a circle, to adhere closely (as caterpillars, &c.); osculat-ed
(R. xxxvi), osculat-ing (R. xix); osculatory, os'ku.lä.t'ry.
Ocula, "s'kù.lah, the large pores of sponges. Oscular, adj.
Osculation, "s'kù.lä.shün; osc'culant; oscule, "s'kù.l, a small two-lipped aperture. (Latin Oscûlare, oscûlum.)
-ose (Lat. os[u], adjectives, full of: verbose, full of words.
Osc, o'sher. Hosier, hō.zher. Hosea, hō.zè.ah, the prophet.
Oser, a willow; osiered, o'sher'ed, covered with osiers;
osier-holt, land where osiers are cultivated.
Hosier, a dealer in hose. (O. E. hose, covering for the legs.)
Fr. osier; Gk. oisus. “Osier-holt” (holt, Old Eng. a wood, a grove.)
Osnaburg, os'nä.bur, a coarse linen from Osnaburg, Hanover.
Osspray [or osprey], the great sea-eagle. (Corruption of osfray.)
Latin ossifraga (os frangere, to break bones), the bone-breaker.
Osseous, "s'sè.üs, bony, resembling bone. Osseous breccia, breccia is a conglomerate of fragments, and osseous breccia is a conglomerate of bony fragments.
Ossee, "s'sè.ter, a species of sturgeon.
Latin ossus (os, gen. ossis; Greek Òsëtôn, a bone.
Ossi- (Lat. prefix), bone, bony, made of bone. (See Osteo-.)
Ossicle, "s'sî.ûl, a little bone like the "bones" of encrinites.
Latin ossi- [os, gen. ossis] with -cûlum, diminutive.
Ossiferous, "s'sî.fôr, producing bone.
Latin ossi-[os, gen. ossis]ferens, bone-producing.
Ossify, "s'sî.fî, to convert into bone; ossifies, "s'sî.fîzî;
ossified, "s'sî.fîd; (rule xi); os'sîfûr, ossify-ing;
ossific, "s'sî.fîk; having power to ossify.
Ossification, "s'sî.fî.kshün, conversion to bone.
Latin ossificatio [facio], to make bone; French ossification.
Ossivorous, "s'sî.vîr, eating bone.
Latin ossi- [os, gen. ossis] vorare, to devour bones.
Ostitis, "s'sî.tî'sîs, inflammation of a bone. (Greek ostion, a bone, with -itis, which denotes inflammation.)
Ostensible, os. tên'sî.ôl, apparent, avowed but not real;ostensibly, os. tên'sî.bîly. Ostensible, os. tên'sî.ôlity; ostensive, os. tên'sîv; ostensive-ly; ostent', appearance.
Ostentation, os. tên'tay'shün, display, parade, show.
Ostentations, os. tên'tay'shûs; ostentations-ly;
ostentations-ness, vanity shown in obtrusive display.
Latin ostentatio, ostentio, v. ostendo, supine ostentum or -sum
(os ob tendo, to stretch out or display); French ostentation.
Osteo-, os.'te.o- (Greek prefix, similar to the Latin ossi-, q.v.), bone, bony, pertaining to bones. (Greek Òstëon, a bone.)
Osteo-colla, ὀστέοκολλα, a carbonate of lime precipitated by water on sticks, and other substances.

Greek osteo- [ὀστέον] κολλά, bone glue. From the notion that it has the power of uniting broken bones.

Osteo-dentine, ὀστέο-δεντέ, a modification of dentine or tooth-bone found in the centre of whales' teeth.

(The word should be oste-dentine (Latin) or osteo-dentine (Greek). "Osteodentine," a hybrid, is partly Greek and partly Latin.

Greek osteo-[ὀστέον]; Latin dens, gen. dentis, a tooth.

Osteo-geny, ὀστεογένες, formation of bone; osteogenesis, ὀστεογένεσις (same meaning).

Greek osteo- [ὀστέον] γένναιον or γένεσις, genesis of bone.

