Last night as he was closing up a little boy came in.
 "Your wife wants both your overcoats," he said without a grin,
 "To send them to the cleaner's." E. Z. gave them, with a dime.
 His wife said when he told her: "Well, you're left another time."

He bought a lot of real estate from such a lovely man.
 He took his wife out Sunday just to look over the land;
 But when they reached the section that the lots were said to be
 His wife said: "E. Z., you're all right, they're nine miles-out at sea."
