Dear Ray:

After talking with you on the phone yesterday I realized that I had not answered your questions. The more I thought about it the more I remembered about the burial you mentioned.

I remember the body being picked up at the depot in Manassas and the trip to the grave. I remember that we got our hearse stuck. The weather had been cold until the night before the burial and then it turned warm with a warm rain and everything turned to mud. The funeral was at the UB Church in Aden and then we went to Potters Store where the burial was.

As for records, there might be an announcement in the Manassas Journal, either an obituary or a notice. The UB Church in Aden might have a record. You might also get in touch with Allen Herring. His mother was related to the Potters and she had made the arrangements for the body to be picked up. Joe Herring was for many years the town marshall in Manassas.

All our records are gone and so far as we know there was no record in Manassas of the burial officially. We hope this has been of some help.

Sincerely,

Dennis
